MAPLE LEAF.

"PROGRESS."

VOL. I. SANDWICH, C. W., FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1856. NO. 1.

THE MAPLE LEAF,

IS PUBLISHED

Every Friday Morning,

BY

J. H. WILKINSON,

BEDFORD STREET;

Sandwich, Canada West.

TERMS:—Eight shillings and ninepence Cy, per annum, if paid in advance; or Ten Shillings at the end of the year,

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Six lines or under, first insertion, 2s 6d, cy
Each subsequent insertion, . . 0 7½ "

Advertisements over six lines, 4d per line for the first insertion, and one penny per line for every subsequent insertion. A liberal discount made to Merchants and others who advertise by the year.

Advertisements sent in for insertion without written directions, will be continued till forbid and the usual rates charged.

CLUBS.

Any person procuring 10 subscribers will be entitled to a copy gratis. Payment to be made in advance.

The JOB OFFICE connected with the "MAPLE LEAF" is in every respect complete for the dispatch of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

Professional Cards.

Mr. William Johnson,
Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c., &c.
Sandwich, C. W.

Mr. Charles Baby,
Attorney and Councillor at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, &c.
Office, Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. J. H. Wilkinson.
Law, Chancery, Conveyancing, and Land Agency Office,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. Louis J. Fluett,
Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, Conveyancer and Land Agent,
Sandwich.

Mr. S. S. Macdonell,
Barrister, Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, &c., &c.
Windsor, C. W.

Mr. John O'Connor, Jun.,
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c.,
Windsor, C. W.

Charles Eugene Casgrain, M.D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Office and Residence, opposite the "Mear's Hotel,"
Sandwich, Canada West.

Dr Reynolds,
Physician and Surgeon,
Amherstburg.

John Adley,
Physician and Surgeon &c.,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Dr. Dewson, M. D.,
Physician, &c.,
WINDSOR, CANADA WEST.

John McCrae,
Auctioneer, Insurance and General Agent,
Windsor, Canada West.

Bank of Upper Canada Agency,
Windsor, Canada West.
Office Hours, 9 to 12, A.M.; 2 to 4, P.M.

Philip S. Donnelly,
Provincial Land Surveyor, &c.,
Moore, County of Lambton.

P. Marentette,
Gunsmith and Manufacturer of Guns.
Every description of Fire-arms repaired at his shop, on Bedford Street,
Sandwich.

L. P. St. Amour,
IMPORTER, AND WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS CROCKERY, HARDWARE, PERFUMERY, &c.
Sandwich, Canada West.

Sandwich Post Office.
Open daily, from Nine till Twelve, A.M., and from half-past Twelve till Four, P.M.
P. H. MORIN, Post Master.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware Crockery, Boots & Shoes
&C. &C. &C.
Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich.

THE HOLLY-TREE INN,

A NEW STORY,

BY CHARLES DICKENS.

CHAPTER I.

THE GUEST.

I have kept one secret in the course of my life. I am a bashful man. Nobody would suppose it, nobody ever does suppose it, nobody ever did suppose it. But, I am naturally a bashful man. This is the secret which I have never breathed until now.

I might greatly move the reader, by some account of the innumerable places I have been to, the innumerable people I have not called upon or received, the innumerable social evasions I have been guilty of, solely because I am by original constitution and character, a bashful man. But, I will leave the reader unmoved, and proceed with the object before me.

That object is, to give a plain account of my travels and discoveries in the Holly-Tree Inn; in which place of good entertainment for man and beast, I was once snowed up.

It happened in the memorable year when I parted forever from Angela Leath whom I was shortly to have married, on making the discovery that she preferred my bosom friend. From our school days I had freely admitted Edwin, in my own mind, to be far superior to myself, and, though I was grievously wounded at heart, I felt the preference to be natural, and tried to forgive them both. It was under these circumstances that I resolved to go to America—on my way to the Devil.

Communicating my discovery neither to Angela nor to Edwin, but resolving to write each of them an affecting letter conveying my blessing and forgiveness, which the steamtender for shore should carry to the post when I myself should be bound for the New World, far beyond recall;—I say, locking up my grief in my own breast, and consoling myself as I could, with the prospect of being generous, I quietly left all I held dear, and started on the desolate journey I have mentioned.

The dead winter time was in full dreariness when I left my chambers for ever, at five o'clock in the morning. I had shaved by candle-light, of course, and was miserably cold, and experienced that general all-pervading sensation of getting up to be hanged, which I have usually found inseparable from untimely rising under such circumstances.

How well I remember the forlorn aspect of Fleet Street when I came out of the Temple! The street-lamps flickering in the gusty north-east wind, as if the very gas were contorted with cold; the white-topped houses: the bleak, star-lighted sky; the market people and other early stragglers, trotting, to circulate their almost frozen blood; the hospitable light and warmth of the few coffee-shops and public-houses that were open for such customers, the hard, dry, frosty rime with which the air was charged (the wind had already beaten it into every crevice), and which lashed my face like a steel whip.

It wanted nine days to the end of the month, and end of the year. The Post-office packet for the United States was to depart from Liverpool, weather permitting, on the first of the ensuing month, and I had the intervening time on my hands. I had taken this into consideration, and had resolved to make a visit to a certain spot (which I need not name), on the further borders of Yorkshire. It was endeared to me by my having first seen Angela at a farm-house in that place, and my melancholy was gratified by the idea of taking a wintry leave of it before my expatriation. I ought to explain, that to avoid being sought out before my resolution should have been rendered irrevocable by being carried into full effect, I had written to Angela over night, in my usual manner, lamenting that urgent business—of which she should know all particulars by-and-by—took me unexpectedly away from her for a week or ten days.

When I got up to the Peacock—where I found everybody drinking hot purl, in self preservation—I asked, if there were an inside seat to spare? I then discovered that, inside or out, I was the only passenger. This gave me a still livelier idea of the great inclemency of the weather, since that coach always loaded particularly well. However, I took a little purl (which I found uncommonly good), and got into the coach. When I was seated, they built me up with straw to the waist, and, conscious of making a rather ridiculous appearance, I began my journey.

We performed Auld Lang Syne the whole day; seeing nothing, out of towns and villages, but the track of stoats, hares, and foxes, and sometimes of birds. At nine o'clock at night, on a Yorkshire moor, a cheerful burst from our horn, and a welcome sound of talking, with a glimmering and moving about of lanterns, roused me from my drowsy state. I found that we were going to change.

They helped me out, and I said to a waiter, whose bare head became as white as King Lear's in a single minute: "What Inn is this?"

"The Holly-Tree, sir," said he.

"Upon my word, I believe," said I, apologetically to the guard and coachman, "that I must stop here."

Now, the landlord, and the landlady, and the ostler, and the postboy, and all the stable authorities, had already asked the coachman, to the wide-eyed interest of all the rest of the establishment, if he meant to go on?—The coachman had already replied, "Yes, he'd take her through it"—meaning by Her, the coach—"if so be as George would stand by him." George was the guard, and he had already sworn that he would stand by him. So, the helpers were already getting the horses out.

I thought I had never seen such a large room as that into which they showed me.—It had five windows, with dark red curtains that would have absorbed the light of a general illumination; and there were complications of drapery at the top of the curtains, that went wandering about the wall in a most extraordinary manner. I asked for a smaller room, and they told me there was no smaller room. They could screen me in, however, the landlord said. They brought a great old japanned screen, with natives (Japanese, I suppose), engaged in a variety of idiotic pursuits all over it; and left me, roasting whole before an immense fire.

My bedroom was some quarter of a mile off, up a great staircase, at the end of a long gallery; and nobody knows what a misery this is to a bashful man who would rather not meet people on the stairs. It was the grimmest room I have ever had the nightmare in; and all the furniture, from the four posts of the bed to the two old silver candlesticks, was tall, high shouldered, and spindle-waisted. Below, in my sitting-room, if I looked round my screen, the wind rushed at me like a mad bull; if I stuck to my arm-chair, the fire scorched me to the colour of a new brick. The chimney-piece was very high, and there was a bad glass—what I may call a wavy glass—above it, which, when I stood up, just showed me my anterior phrenological developments—and these never look well, in any subject, cut short off at the eyebrow. If I stood with my back to the fire, a gloomy vault of darkness above and beyond the screen insisted on being looked at; and, in its dim remoteness, the drapery of the ten curtains of the five windows went twisting and creeping about, like a nest of gigantic worms.

I suppose that what I observe in myself must be observed by some other men of similar character in themselves; therefore I am emboldened to mention, that when I travel, I never arrive at a place but I immediately want to go away from it. Before I had finished my supper of broiled fowl and mulled port, I had impressed upon the waiter in detail, my arrangements for departure in the morning. Breakfast and bill at eight. Fly at nine. Two horses, or, if needful, even four.

Tired though I was, the night appeared about a week long. In cases of nightmare, I thought of Angela, and felt more depressed than ever by the reflection that I was on the shortest road to Gretna Green. What had I to do at Gretna Green? I was not going that way to the devil, but by the American route, I remarked, in my bitterness.

In the morning I found that it was snowing still, that it had snowed all night, and that I was snowed up. Nothing could get out of that spot on the moor, or could come at it, until the road had been cut out by laborers from the market-town. When they might cut their way to the Holly-Tree, nobody could tell me.

It was now Christmas Eve. I should have had a dismal Christmas-time of it anywhere, and, consequently, that did not so much matter; still, being snowed up, was like dying of frost, a thing I had not bargained for. I felt very lonely. Yet I could no more have proposed to the landlord and landlady to admit me to their society (though I should have liked it very much), than I could have asked them to present me with a piece of plate. Here my great secret, the real bashfulness of my character, is to be observed. Like most bashful men, I judge of other people as if they were bashful too.—Besides being far too shame-faced to make the proposal myself I really had a delicate misgiving that it would be in the last degree disconcerting to them.

Trying to settle down, therefore, in my solitude, I first of all asked what books there were in the house? The waiter brought me a Book of Roads, two or three old Newspapers, a little Song-book terminating in a collection of Toasts and Sentiments, a little Jest-book, an odd volume of Perigrine Pickle, and the Sentimental Journey. I knew every word of the two last already, but I read them through again: then tried to hum all the songs (Auld Lang Syne was among them); went entirely through the jokes—in which I found a fund of melancholy adapted to my state of mind; proposed all the toasts, enunciated all the sentiments, and mastered the papers. The latter had nothing in them but Stock advertisements, a meeting about a county rate, and a highway robbery. As I am a greedy reader, I could not make this supply hold out until night; it was exhausted by tea time. Being then entirely cast upon my own resources, I got through an hour in considering what to do next. Ultimately, it came into my head (from which I was anxious by any means to exclude Angela and Edwin), that I would endeavour to recall my experience of Inns, and would try how long it lasted me. I stirred the fire, moved my chair a little to one side of the screen,—not daring to go far, for I knew the wind was waiting to make a rush at me—I could hear it growling—and began.

My first impressions of an Inn, dated from the Nursery; consequently, I went back to the Nursery for a starting-point, and found myself at the knee of a sallow woman with a fishy eye, an aquiline nose, and a green gown, whose speciality was a dismal narrative of a landlord by the roadside, whose visitors unaccountably disappeared for many years, until it was discovered that the pursuit of his life had been to convert them into pies. For the better devotion of himself to this branch of industry, he had constructed a secret door behind the head of the bed; and when the visitor (oppressed with pie), had fallen asleep, this wicked landlord would look softly in with a lamp in one hand and a knife in the other, would cut his throat, and would make him into pies; for which purpose he had coppers underneath a trap-door, always boiling; and rolled out his paste in the dead of the night. Yet even he was not insensible to the stings of conscience, for he never went to sleep without being heard to mutter, "Too much pepper!"—which was eventually the cause of his being brought to justice. I had no sooner disposed of this criminal than there started up another, of the same period, whose profession was, originally, housebreaking; in the pursuit of which art he had had his right ear chopped off one night as he was burglariously getting in at a window, by a brave and lovely servant-maid (whom the aquiline nosed woman, though not at all answering the description, always mysteriously implied to be herself). After several years, this brave and lovely servant-maid was married to the landlord of a country Inn: which landlord had this remarkable characteristic, that he always wore a silk nightcap, and never would, on any consideration, take it off. At last, one night, when he was fast asleep, the brave and lovely woman lifted up his silk nightcap on the right side, and found that he had no ear there; upon which, she sagaciously perceived that he was the clipped housebreaker, who had married her with the intention of putting her to death. She immediately heated the poker and terminated his career, for which she was taken to King George upon his throne, and received the compliments of royalty on her great discretion and valour. This same narrator, who had a Ghoulish pleasure, I have long been persuaded, in terrifying me to the utmost confines of my reason, had another authentic anecdote within her own experience, founded, I now believe, upon Raymond and Agnes or the Bleeding Nun. She said it happened to her brother-in-law, who was immensely rich—which my father was not; and immensely tall—which my father was not.—It was always a point with this Ghoule to present my dearest relations and friends to my youthful mind, under circumstances of disparaging contrast. The brother-in-law was riding once, through a forest, on a magnificent horse (we had no magnificent horse at our house), attended by a favourite and valuable Newfoundland dog (we had no dog), when he found himself benighted, and came to an Inn. A dark woman opened the door, and he asked her if he could have a bed there? She answered yes, and put his horse in the stable, and took him into a room where there were two dark men.—While he was at supper, a parrot in the room began to talk, saying, "Blood, blood! Wipe up the blood!" Upon which, one of the dark men wrung the parrot's neck, and said he was fond of roasted parrots, and he meant to have this one for breakfast in the morning. After eating and drinking heartily, the immensely rich tall brother-in-law went up to bed; but, he was rather vexed, because they had shut his dog in the stable, saying that they never allowed dogs in the house. He sat very quiet for more than an hour, thinking and thinking, when, just as his candle was burning out, he heard a scratch at the door. He opened the door, and there was the Newfoundland dog! The dog came softly in, smelt about him, went straight to some straw in a corner which the dark men had said covered apples, tore the straw away, and disclosed two sheets steeped in blood. Just at that moment the candle went out, and the brother-in-law, looking through a chink in the door, saw the two dark men stealing up-stairs; one armed with a dagger, that long (about five feet); the other carrying a chopper, a sack, and a spade. Having no remembrance of the close of this adventure, I suppose my faculties to have been always so frozen with terror at this stage of it, that the power of listening stagnated within me for some quarter of an hour.

These barbarous stories carried me sitting there on the Holy-Tree hearth, to the Road-side Inn, renowned in my time in a sixpenny book with a folding plate, representing in a central compartment of oval form the portrait of Jonathan Bradford, and in four corner compartments four incidents of the tragedy with which the name is associated—coloured with a hand at once so free and economical, that the bloom of Jonathan's complexion passed without any pause into the breeches of the ostler, and smearing itself off into the next division, became rum in a bottle. Then, I remembered how the landlord was found at the murdered traveller's bedside, with his own knife at his feet, and blood upon his hand; how he was hanged for the murder, notwithstanding his protestation, that he had indeed come there to kill the traveller for his saddle-bags, but had been striken motionless on finding him already slain; and how the ostler, years afterwards, owned the deed. By this time I had made myself quite uncomfortable. I stirred the fire, and stood with my back to it, as long as I could bear the heat, looking up at the darkness beyond the screen, and at the wormy curtains creeping in and creeping out, like the worms in the ballad of Alonzo the Brave and the fair Imogene.

"To be continued, to morrow," said I, when I took my candle to go to bed. But, my bed took it upon itself to continue the train of thought that night. It carried me away, like the enchanted carpet, to a distant place (though still in England), and there, alighting from a stage-coach at another Inn in the snow, as I had actually done some years before I repeated in my sleep, a curious experience I had really had there. More than a year before I made the journey in the course of which I put up at that Inn, I had lost a very near and dear friend by death. Every night since, at home or away from home, I had dreamed of that friend; sometimes, as still living; sometimes, as returning from the world of shadows to comfort me; always, as being beautiful, placid, and happy; never in association with any approach to fear or distress. It was at a lonely Inn in a wide moorland place, that I halted to pass the night. When I had looked from my bed-room window over the waste of snow on which the moon was shining, I sat down by my fire to write a letter. I had always, until that hour, kept it within my own breast that I dreamed every night of the dear lost one. But, in the letter that I wrote, I recorded the circumstance, and added that I felt much interested in proving whether the subject of my dream would still be faithful to me, travel-tired, and in that remote place. No. I lost the beloved figure of my vision in parting with the secret. My sleep has never looked upon it since, in sixteen years, but once. I was in Italy and awoke (or seemed to awake) the well-remembered voice distinctly in my ears, conversing with it. I entreated it, as it rose above my bed and soared up to the vaulted roof of the old room, to answer me a question I had asked, touching the Future Life. My hands were still outstretched towards it as it vanished, when I heard a bell ringing by the garden wall, and a voice, in the deep stillness of the night, calling on all good Christians to pray for the souls of the dead; it being All Souls Eve.

To return to the Holly-Tree. When I awoke next day, it was freezing hard, and the lowering sky threatened more snow.—My breakfast cleared away, I drew my chair into its formed place, and, with the fire getting so much the better of the landscape that I sat in twilight, resumed my Inn remembrances.

That was a good Inn down in Wiltshire where I put up once, in the days of the hard Wiltshire ale and before all beer was bitterness. It was on the skirts of Salisbury Plain, and the midnight wind that rattled my lattice window, came moaning at me from Stonehenge. There was a hanger on at that establishment (a supernaturally preserved Druid, I believe him to have been, and to be still), with long white hair, and a dinty blue eye always looking afar off: who claimed to have been a shepherd, and who seemed to be ever watching for the re-appearance on the verge of the horizon, of some ghostly flock of sheep that had been mutton for many ages. He was a man with a weird belief in him that no one could count the stones of Stonehenge twice, and make the same number of them: likewise, that any one who counted them three times, nine times, and then stood in the centre and said "I dare!" would behold a tremendous apparition, and be stricken dead. He pretended to have seen a bustard (I suspect him to have been familiar with the dodo), in manner following: He was out upon the plain at the close of a late autumn day, when he dimly discerned, going on before him at a curious fitfully bounding pace, what he at first supposed to be a gig-umbrella that had been blown from some conveyance, but what he presently believed to be a lean dwarf man upon a little pony. Having followed this object for some distance without gaining on it, and having called to it many times without receiving any answer, he pursued it for miles, when, at length coming up with it, he discovered it to be the last bustard in Great Britain, degenerated into a wingless state, and running along the ground. Resolved to capture him or perish in the attempt, he closed with the bustard; but, the bustard, who had formed a counter resolution that he should do neither, threw him, stunned him, and was last seen making off due west. This weird man at that stage of metempsychosis, may have been a sleep-walker, or an enthusiast, or a robber; but, I awoke one night to find him in the dark at my bedside, repeating the Athanasian Creed in a terrific voice. I paid my bill next day, and retired from the county with all possible precipitation.

That was not a common-place story which worked itself out at a little Inn in Switzerland, while I was staying there. It was a very homely place, in a village of one narrow, zig-zag street among mountains, and you went in at the main door through the cow-house, and among the mules and the dogs and the fowels before ascending a great bare staircase to the rooms; which were all of unpainted wood, without plastering or papering—like rough packing cases. Outside, there was nothing but the straggling street a little toy church with a copper-coloured steeple, a pine forest, a torrent, mists, and mountain-sides, A young man belonging to this Inn, had disappeared eight weeks before (it was winter-time), and was supposed to have had some undiscovered love affair, and to have gone for a soldier. He had got up in the night, and dropped into the village street from the loft in which he slept with another man; and he had done it so quietly, that his companion and fellow-laborer had heard no movement when he was awakened in the morning and they said "Louis, where is Henri!" They looked for him high and low, in vain, and gave him up. Now, outside this Inn there stood, as there stood outside every dwelling in the village, a stack of firewood; but the stack belonging to the Inn was higher than any of the rest, because the Inn was the richest house and burnt the most fuel. It began to be noticed, while they were looking high and low, that a Bantam cock, part of the live-stock of the Inn, put himself wonderfully out of his way to get to the top of this wood-stack; and that he would stay there for hours and hours, crowing, until he appeared in danger of splitting himself—Five weeks went on—six weeks—and still this terrible Bantam, neglecting his domestic affairs, was always on the top of the wood-stack, crowing the very eyes out of his head.

By this time it was perceived that Louis had become inspired with a violent animosity towards the terrible Bantam, and one morning he was seen by a woman who sat nursing her goitre at a little window in a gleam of sun, to catch up a rough billet of wood, with a great oath, hurl it at the terrible Bantam corwing on the wood-stack, and bring him down dead. Hereupon, the woman, with a sudden light in her mind stole round to the back of the wood-stack and, bringing a good climber, as all those women are, climbed up, and soon was seen upon the summit, screaming, looking down the hollow within, crying, "Seize Louis, the murderer! Ring the church bell! Here is the body!" I saw the murderer that day, and I saw him as I sat by my fire at the Holy-Tree Inn, and I see him now, lying shackled with cords on the stable litter, among the mild eyes and the smoking breath of the cows, waiting to be taken away by the police, and stared at by the fearful village. A heavy animal—the dullest animal in the stables—with a stupid head, and a lumpish face devoid of any trace of sensibility, who had been, within the knowledge of the murdered youth, an embezzler of certain small moneys belonging to his master, and who had taken this hopeful mode of putting a possible accuser out of his way. All of which he confessed next day, like a sulkey wretch who couldn't be troubled any more, now that they had got hold of him and meant to make an end of him. I saw him once again, on the day of my departure from the Inn. In that Canton the headsman still does his office with a sword; and I came upon this murderer sitting bound to a chair, with his eyes bandaged, on a scaffold in a little market-place. In that instant, a great sword (loaded with quicksilver in the thick part of the blade), swept round him like a gust of wind, or fire, and there was no such creature in the world. My wonder was—not that he was so suddenly dispatched, but that any head was left unreaped, within a radius of fifty yards of that tremendous sickle.

That was a good Inn, too, with the kind, cheerful landlady and the honest landlord, where I lived in the shadow of Mont Blanc, and where one of the apartments has a zoological papering on the walls, not so accurately joined, but that the elephant occasionally rejoices in a tiger's hind legs and tail; while the lion puts on a trunk and tusks; and the bear, moulting as it were, appears as to portions of himself like a leopard. I made several American friends at that Inn, who all called Mont Blanc, Mount Blank—except one good-humored gentleman, of a very sociable nature, who became on such intimate terms with it that he spoke of it familiarly as "Blank;" observing at breakfast, "Blank looks pretty tall this morning;" or considerably doubting in the court-yard in the evening, whether there warn't some go-ahead naters in our country, sir, that would make out the top of Blank in a couple of hours from first start—now!

Once, I passed a fortnight at an Inn in the North of England, where I was haunted by the ghost of a tremendous pie. It was a Yorkshire pie, like a fort—an abandoned fort with nothing in it; but the waiter had a fixed idea that it was a point of ceremony at every meal, to put the pie on the table.—After some days, I tried to hint, in several delicate ways, that I considered the pie done with; as, for example, by emptying fag-ends of glasses of wine into it; putting cheese-plates and spoons into it, as into a basket; putting wine-bottles into it, as into a cooler; but always in vain, the pie being invariably cleaned out again and brought up as before. At last, beginning to be doubtful whether I was not the victim of a spectral illusion, and whether my health and spirits might not sink under the horrors of an imaginary pie, I cut a triangle out of it, fully as large as the musical instrument of that name in a powerful orchestra. Human provision could not have forseen the result—but the waiter mended the pie. With some effectual species of cement, he adroitly fitted the triangle in again, and I paid my reckoning and fled.

The Holly-Tree was getting rather dismal. I made an overland expedition beyond the screen, and penetrated as far as the fourth window. Here, I was driven back by stress of weather. Arrived at my winter quarters once more, I made up the fire, and took another Inn.

It was in the remotest part of Cornw[illegible] A great annual Miners' Feast was be[illegible] holden at the Inn, when I and my travel[illegible] companions [illegible] among the wi[illegible] crowd [illegible] before it by [illegible] break-down in [illegible] some miles aw[illegible] I had the honor of leading one of the unharnessed post horses. If any lady or gentleman, on perusal of the present lines, will take any very tall post-horse with his traces hanging about his legs, and will conduct him by the bearing-rein into the heart of a country dance of a hundred and fifty couples, that lady and gentleman will then, and only then, form an adequate idea of the extent to which that post horse will tread on his conductor's toes, Over and above which, the post horse, finding three hundred people whirling about him will probably rear, and also lash out with his hind legs, in a manner incompatible with dignity or self-respect on his conductor's part. With such little drawbacks on my usually impressive aspect, I appeared at this Cornish Inn, to the unutterable wonder of the Cornish Miners. It was full, and twenty times full, and nobody could be received but the post horse—though to get rid of that noble animal was something—While my fellow travellers and I were discussing how to pass the night and so much of the next day as must intervene before the jovial blacksmith and the jovial wheelwright would be in a condition to go out on the morass and mend the coach, an honest man stepped forth from the crowd and proposed his unlet floor of two rooms, with supper of eggs and bacon, ale and punch. We joyfully accompanied him home to the strangest of clean houses, where we were well entertained to the satisfaction of all parties. But, the novel feature of the entertainment was, that our host was a chairmaker, and that the chairs assigned to us were mere frames, altogether without bottoms of any sort; so that we passed the evening on perches. Nor was this the absurdest consequence; for when we unbent at supper, and any one of us gave way to laughter, he forgot the peculiarity of his position, and instantly disappeared. I myself, doubled up into an attitude from which self extrication was impossible, was taken out of my frame like a Clown in a comic pantomime who has tumbled into a tub, five times by the taper's light during the eggs and bacon.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Poetry.

Do they Miss Me at Home?

Do they miss me at home? Do they miss me?
'Twould be an assurance most dear
To know at this moment, some lone one
Was saying "I wish he was here!"
To know that the group at the fire-side,
Were thinking of me as I roam!
Oh yes! 'twould be joy without measure,
To know that they miss me at home.

When twilight approaches the season
That ever is sacred to song.
Does some one repeat my name over,
And sigh that I tarry so long?
And is there a cord in the music
That's missed when my voice is away?
And a chord in each heart that awakens
Regret at my wearisome stay?

Do they place me a chair at the table,
When evening's home-pleasures are nigh,
And lamps are lit in the parlor,
And stars in the calm azure sky?
And when the "good nights" are repeated
And each lays him [illegible] to sleep,
Do they think of th[illegible] and waft me
A whispered "good night" o'er the deep?

Do they miss me at [illegible] miss me,
At morning, at noon, and night?
And lingers one gloomy shade 'round them,
That only my presence can light?
Are joys less invitingly welcomed,
And pleasure less hailed than before,
Because one is missed from the circle—
Because I am with them no more?

Miscellany.

THE docks of London are the most extensive and finest constructions of the kind, for the purposes of commerce, in the world. In London there are a number of these docks, of which the following are the principal:—The West India docks, the act for whose formation passed in July 1799; they were commenced February 3, 1800, and were opened August 27, 1802, when the Henry Addington West Indiaman first entered them, decorated with the colors of the different nations of Europe. The London docks were commenced June 26, 1802. and were opened January 31, 1805. The East India docks were commenced under an act passed July 27, 1803, and were opened August 4, 1806. The first stone of the St. Katharine docks was laid [illegible]; and 2,500 men were daily employed upon them until they were opened [illegible] 1828.

THE invention of bows and arrows are ascribed to Apollo. Known in England previous to A.D. 450. The use of them was again introduced into England by the Conqueror, 1066; and greatly encouraged by Richard I., 1190. The usual range of the long bow was from 300 to 400 yards; the length of the bow was six feet and the arrow three. Cross bows were fixed to a stock of iron or wood, and were discharged by a trigger.

INDIAN MEAL SHORT CAKES.—Stir into a pint of sweet milk three [illegible] a little salt, and half a cup of butter, with enough sifted Indian meal to make a thick batter. Drop it from a large spoon upon buttered tins. Bake [illegible] when they [illegible]

HINTS TO SCOLD[illegible] you have scolded your [illegible] aman," I said once, [illegible] down, and his wife took [illegible] "Never to signify, and if [illegible] it." "And I dare say, if the truth [illegible] you have scolded him quite as often." "Nay," said the old woman, with [illegible] of kindness which the world cannot excel, "How can a wife scold her good man, who has been working for her and her little ones all day? It may be a man is peevish sometimes, for it is he who wears the crosses of the world. But who should make him forget them but his wife? And she had best for her own sake, for nobody can scold much when the scolding is all on one side."

THE USEFULNESS OF TIGHT LACING.—A learned doctor has given his opinion that tight lacing is a public benefit, inasmuch as it kills off all the foolish girls, and leaves the wise only to grow into women.

A JOKE IN SPITE OF HIS TEETH.—Some people may imagine that the expression "mad with the toothache," is a mere phrase, but the following joke made by an individual when suffering under acute pain in one of his molars, affords proof of what may be called dental insanity. While rolling in agony from one side of the bed to the other, this miserable being asked himself in the middle of the night. "What property is a man likely to come into, if all his lower teeth should become affected?" The reply was as mad as the question. "About a dozen achers in a Rotten Row." Surely this man's friends must either take out his teeth, or take out a commission of lunacy.—London Punch.

BOTHWELL AND VICTORIA ROAD.—A public meeting was held at Victoria (Zone Mills) on Friday, 8th instant, to take measures for the construction of a Plank Road between Bothwell Station, on the Great Western Railway, and the village of Victoria. A large number of persons were present, and the utmost enthusiasm in regard to the enterprise was exhibited. The cost of the road was stated to be about $20,000, and resolutions were unanimously adopted by the meeting in favor of the work. A company was at once formed, with 1000 shares at $20 each; and of this amount $12,000 in cash or materials for the work was at once pledged. Subscription papers were arranged to be put into circulation to make up the necessary amount.

Another Road scheme has also been started for the construction of a Plank Road from the village of Bothwell, across the Thames, into the heart of the Township of Al boro, and there is every prospect of success. The cost will probably be about $16,000 or $17,000, and of this the sum of $3,200 has already been subscribed.

MOVEMENTS OF TROOPS.—It is stated by the Kingston Herald, that the 15th Regiment now in Quebec, is ordered forthwith to Kingston, and that five companies of artillery are ordered to Kingston from home.

THE CANADIAN—OF MESSRS. EDMONSTONE AND ALLAN'S LINE OF MONTREAL STEAMSHIPS.—The Telegraph from Boston yesterday, announced the arrival the night before of the Canadian—one of the steamships which are to be put on the Montreal Line, under the new contract of Messrs. Edmonstone and Allan, with the Canadian Government. The Canadian sailed from Greenock on the same day as the Persia sailed from Liverpool, and therefore, arrived at Boston, in little more than 24 hours longer than the other ship required to reach New York. Considering that the Persia is to be considered the very crack steamer of the Atlantic fleet, this is a great triumph for the Canadian, and we have no doubt will be only the forerunner of a series of excellent voyages on our own waters.—Montreal Herald, Feb. 13.

A PETRIFIED INDIAN.—While engaged in excavating recently, upon the Milwaukie and La Cross Railroad, near Schlesengerville, Iowa, the workmen came upon the petrified remains of an Indian, and with the remains some singular relics of olden times. The body was perfect, not having suffered by decay. His height at the present time would be considered gigantic, measuring 7 feet 2 inches. On his breast was a plate of copper, on which were engraved numerous hieroglyphics, the meaning of which can hardly imagined. But there they are a record of the past. Could these hieroglyphics be read, they might, perhaps, unveil some mystery which hangs like a dark cloud over the history of the red man. An arrow of considerable strength and curious construction was also found with him, and especially invites the attention of antiquarians.—Amherstburg Telegraph.

On Tuesday the 6th instant a lamentable accident occurred by two trains coming into collision on the Michigan Southern Railway, a short distance from the town of Hillsdale. To add to the confusion, the broken cars took fire, nearly consuming the bodies of five persons, who were killed at the time the engines came in contact with each other. Several persons were badly wounded, in fact, it is stated that nearly all the second class passengers in both trains were more or less hurt. Twelve mail bags with their contents were consumed by the flames.

THE STRIDE OF A RACE HORSE.—The celebrated animal painter, Herring, stated that a race horse will clear from twenty to twenty-four feet in a bound, and from the impression left on the turf, he infers that a horse at full gallop places only one foot at a time upon the ground. This, he says, is more convincing to the ear than to the eye. In listening to a horse galloping on a hard road it will be found accurately exhibited by placing the little finger on a table or pane of glass, and causing the other three fingers to follow in rotation; by so doing, the precise sound of a horse galloping will be produced. Then follows the bound, and again the one, two, three, in regular succession.

The following observation on the habit which ladies have of kissing one another is from the new novel entitled Lost Love. "There is not the slightest need to kiss at all, [illegible] in a wooden mechanical [illegible] people on the old Chinese [illegible] the slightest [illegible] [illegible] a party.

[illegible] Magistrate, on Saturday last' [illegible] case of felonious assault com[illegible] one of our city cotemporaries, [illegible] which have been grossly misrepresented, as Mr. Maguire himself informed us on applying to him for information on the subject. The fact is, the medical witness, Dr. Marsden, gave evidence so powerfully in favor of the accused, that it was legally impossible for the Magistrate to have committed him for trial.—Quebec Chronicle.

A GOOD JOKE.—We copy the following excellent joke from the Columbia (Texas) Democrat. It is well known that the two gentlemen referred to, have been at 'sword's points' for some years past:— General Sam Houston and Commodore Moore, on their late visit to Austin, occupied seats in the same stage. Not a word was spoken by either on the route. On entering a hotel one day to dine, they were joined by the driver. Moore having retired from the table after dinner, says Houston to the driver, "You probably have more rascality on board this trip than you ever carried before." "Why," asked the driver. "You have Commodore Moore along," was the reply, "Ah! General," says the driver, "I just heard Commodore Moore make the same remark, but it was on your account."

New Railroad Cars.

On Saturday morning the Great Western Railroad Company turned out from their extensive work shops at Hamilton, eight splendid first-class carriages, being part of a new batch just completed. They are entirely different in their arrangements from those hitherto in use, and afford very superior accommodation. The seats are much higher at the back, and are divided by an arm, so that each passenger may sit perfectly at his ease, and court the sleepy goddess to his heart's content. This advantage is mainly secured by an ingenious contrivance, by which the seat is swung over so as to leave the upper part of the back much higher than in the old style, while the other portion occupies no more room than before. The back of the seat is slightly bent, so as to fit the occupant's back, and the cushions are on sofa springs Each car will seat forty-five passengers There are double doors at either end, which will avoid the annoyance occasioned by sudden gusts of cold atmosphere in winter, and by clouds of dust in summer. The stove is placed in the centre of the car, and when not wanted will be replaced by a tete-a-tete seat. Each car is fitted with one of Copp Brothers' Water apparatus, and with offices. They have been built under the superintendence of Mr. Sharp, foreman of the car department, to whose skill the traveling public are indebted for this new luxury. The painting is of the most elegant description, and indeed the whole work, which was done entirely at the Company's works, reflects the highest credit on the artizans employed.—Globe.

MUNICIPAL.

TILT vs. THE MUNICIPALITY OF THE TOWNSHIP OF TORONTO.

(Reported by C. Robinson, Esq., Barrister at Law.)

[Q. B. Michaelmas Term, 19 Vic.]

Mr. Dempsey obtained a rule last term upon the Municipality of the Township of Toronto, to show cause why theirby-law No. 71, passed on the 2nd of April, 1855 should not be quashed on the ground that the Municipal Council in passing it, exceeded their powers, and that the by-law is therefore illegal.

The By-law is entitled a by-law to alter and amend by-laws 53 and 62, and it enacts that so much of those by-laws passed respectively on the 19th of June, 1853, and the 8th of May, 1854 as relates to the sums to be paid in lieu of Statute Labor, shall be repealed. Sec. 2—that the Port Credit, and Hurontario Street, and Streetsville Plank Road Companies shall have the right to claim in terms of their charters (in so far as the Municipality may have acquired any control in or over the same) at the rate of five shillings for each day's statute labor that each person shall be liable to perform according to the terms of their respective charters.

3rd, That all persons liable to perform Statute labor, under the control of this Municipality, may compound for such duties by paying the Overseer for their division five shillings for every day they may be required to work at any time before the 1st day of June, and every Overseer is required to accept the same in lieu of such Statute labor.

The Municipality maintain their authority to pass the by-law under the Assessment Consolidation Act 16 Vic. ch. 182, and they show that at the present increased price of labor, five shillings per day is a very resonable and low rate, and that laborers cannot be hired for less.

ROBINSON, C. J. delivered the judgment of the Court.

I see nothing which bears upon the question raised in this case besides the Statutes 12 Vic. ch. 81 Sec. 31—sub-sections 27 and 97 and 16 Vic. ch. 182, Sec. 35 and 38, and reading these enactments in connection I am of opinion that, however low a rate two shillings and sixpence may be for a day's labor at the present time, there is no authority given to the Municipal Councils to go beyond it in fixing the terms of commutation.

The only effect of the latter Statute is, that it leaves to non-resident proprietors no option as to commuting, but provides that they shall commute by paying at the rate of two shillings and six pence a day, or such other sum as may have been determind by the Municipal Council as the rate of commutation for residents.

Now the former Act authorises the Municipal Councils to pass by-laws "for empowering the landholders in any township to compound for the Statute labor by them respectively, performable for any time not exceeding at any rate not exceeding two shillings and six pence for each day's labor."—Now whether this provision extends to any but residents in the township or not, there can be no doubt it does embrace them, and that as to them no more than two shillings and six pence can be fixed under that Act as the rate for the day's labor, and that being so, the rate of two shillings and six pence [illegible] under the latter Statute be exceeded [illegible] residents, unless we could hold that the 38th clause of the same Statute gives authority to the Councils to impose whatever rate they please, and relieves from the restriction contained in the 12th Vic ch. 81. It does not appear to me that it does, for I think that clause is not to be looked upon as conferring authority at all in this respect, it only refers to what may have been done in any township under the former Statute, which it does not, as regards the rate of commutation, profess to alter or repeal.

The words in the 38th clause, or such other sum must be taken, I think, to mean as has been argued, any less sum at which the Council may have fixed the commutation rate for resident proprietors. That there would otherwise be no limit, is an argument no doubt in favor of this construction, though not a conclusive one, since the Legislature has in some instances forborne to limit the power of the Municipalities in regard to taxation; I mean as respects the amount.

We are of opinion that the by-law must be quashed, with costs.—Law Journal.

Legislative Assembly.

TORONTO, FEBRUARY 22nd.

A Committee was appointed to consider whether accommodation could not be provided for the Reporters in the body of the House.

Mr. BOWES called the attention of the House to a placard of an inflammatory character which had appeared in the streets of the city, in which threats of violence were used against two Catholic members of the Legislature, the Hon. Charles Wilson and Mr. O'Farrell, M. P. He also stated that the principal Officers of the Orange Society had issued hand-bills disavowing connexion with the authors of the placard, and denouncing the attempt to excite the religious prejudices of the community.

Sir A. MACNAB expressed his satisfaction that the Orangemen had disavowed any connexion with the authors of the placard.

Mr. LORANGER regarded the appearance of such dangerous documents as a warning to the members of the House to avoid discussions calculated to create religious conflict.

On the further consideration of the Speech from the Throne being moved,

Mr. RANKIN rose to define his political position, and having contrasted the discord existing among the Opposition members with the union existing on the Ministerial side of the House, declared himself an independent adherent of the Government.

Mr. J. H. CAMERON spoke at length into a defence of the Clergy of the Church of Scotland from the aspersions cast on them by Mr. Brown; and censured the attempt of the Opposition leader to excite religious prejudices against the Catholics of Lower Canada, whom he commended, as the best friends of the Anglican Church in this section of the Province. He avowed his confidence in the Government, and expressed a disbelief of any combination of parties being formed capable of replacing them. A Provincial Police organization he considered to be a necessary measure.

Mr. LORANGER (in French) criticized at great length the statements of Mr. Dorion in regard to the state of Education in Lower Canada, and examined the political position of the member for Lambton. The police measure he was prepared to support, so far as applied to the organization of a Provincial Force in cities; and justified his support of the measure by reference to the Parliament House burnings in Montreal, and the recent murder at St. Sylvester.

Mr. PAPIN, in reply to Mr. Loranger and in defence of Mr. Dorion, said that the latter had not depreciated Lower Canada, but merely considered that the Administration had neglected the interests of Lower Canada.

Mr. FOLEY did not agree with members of either side of the House. He was prepared to justify the omissions in the Speech on the ground that the members of the Government had had no time to consult together during the recess—being engaged in travelling over Europe and sueing an Editor in Hamilton. He proceeded to examine what were the natural grounds of agreement between members on the Ministerial side of the House, and illustrated his argument by a retrospect of the public conduct of individuals. He proceeded to show that the mode of settlement adopted by the present government in regard to the Clergy Reserves, was proposed by the Tories in 1846. He opposed the establishment of the Provincial Police force, and cited the history of Ireland to show that such a measure was one tyrannical in its character.—He criticized the administrative acts of the Government, and contended that in distributing the patronage at their disposal, the Tories had come in for the lion's share.

Sir ALLAN MACNAB referred to inaccuracies in Mr. Foley's statement in regard to the part taken by the Conservatives in effecting the Union of the Provinces. In regard to the part he had taken on the question of secularization, he was fully prepared to justify his course. The first division on the question in the Provincial Parliament after the passing of the Imperial Act, showed that the measure was supported by 93 to 13; and it appeared hopeless longer to oppose the measure. He had, indeed, assured his friends on the last annual election that he should no longer oppose the settlement of the Reserves; and there was no act of his life of which he was prouder than his vote on the secularization measure. As to the question of patronage distribution, he had no hesitation in saying that Reformers had their own share; and were it not invidious to enter upon personalities, this could be proven by special references to the appointments which had been made during the past year. The provisions of the Police Bill would be fully discussed in the House, and there would be an opportunity of framing such a measure as will meet the wishes of the country.

Mr. ROBINSON read from the journals of the House to prove that he had not voted to deprive the Lower Canadians of their proper share of representative rights, when the Union Act was framed.

Mr. RHODES related the circumstances of the St. Sylvester murder, to show that a Provincial Police Force was necessary.

Mr. JACKSON referred to the settlement of the Clergy Reserves, and argued that that it was just, equitable, and conclusive. On the subject of schools, he thought the time must shortly come when the whole of our school system must undergo revision. As to the charge brought against the Liberal supporters of the Government, that they were allies of men who had deserted their principles, it was sufficient to say, that the Reformers were not responsible for the Government. It was their business to get good measures.

Mr. BOWES read from the Report of the Chief Superintendents on Education, to show that the School system was not imperilled by the concessions made in the last Separate School Bill. He commended the Inspector General—when he was member of a former administration for having helped to secure the removal of the differential system of duties which prevented the growth of the wholesale trade of Upper Canada.—He regretted the absence of an allusion in the Speech to a stringent license law; and declared his intention to vote against the amendment.

Mr. FERRIS made some explanation in reference to the trade of Montreal.

Mr. YOUNG further explained on the same subject, and predicted that if the indifference of late years to Lower Canada interests continued, much as he would regret a dissolution of the Union, there could be no doubt that such an issue would ensue.

Mr. HARTMAN disputed the correctness of Mr. Bowes's inferences in regard to the subject of Separate Schools.

Mr. DORION (of Drummond) disputed the inferences drawn by Mr. Rhodes from the St. Sylvester murder, in favor of a Police force.

Mr. FELTON pointed out the danger of delay in the capture of criminals—such as St. Sylvester murderers—from the fact that the lapse of time allowed a large amount of sympathy to be got up in favour of the accused, and thus the ends of justice will be frustrated.

The debate was then adjourned.

The House adjourned at a quarter past 11 P. M.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

SANDWICH, FEB. 29, 1856.

THE Proprietor of this journal, having purchased the "CANADA OAK" office, has thought it better to come before the public for their support and encouragement under an entirely new name. And to publish a journal devoted to the interests of our County, and to supply a want that has long been felt, we are determined that no trouble shall be spared on our part to render it, in this respect, thoroughly useful.

The "MAPLE LEAF" will advocate at all times such measures as will tend to the advancement of Essex. All public improvements will find an advocate in this paper, and especially the improvement of our County roads.

A Southern Line of Railway is much needed; and we hope that the day is not far distant, when we may congratulate the County of Essex upon the completion of a second line of Railway; and that such a line of Railway will be built, there is little doubt in our mind.

The County of Essex possessing a climate and soil not surpassed anywhere, with two lines of Railway terminating within its limits, and the great improvements that are in contemplation by the County Council, upon the Public Roads, completed, we need not fear a comparison with any County in the Province.

We will endeavor to furnish our readers, and particularly Municipal Officers, in each issue, with such matters upon the Municipal Law relating to their duties and responsibilities, as will be of service to them in the exercise of their different offices. The proceedings of the County Council will, after each session, be published in our columns, which will give to them a greater circulation than can possibly be expected from publishing them only in pamphlet form, thereby placing within the reach of every person in the County an opportunity of knowing what has been accomplished by that body. To the Farmer and Merchant we propose to make this journal as valuable as possible; we will, therefore, give such papers on Agriculture as are particularly fitted to improve that interest, and to make Farming both profitable and honorable.

All political questions will be discussed with moderation and in a Conservative spirit. We wish to conserve our British institutions. They are the offspring of that wisdom, which is our best inheritance. They are the monuments of that patriotism which is our pride and our boast, from the all-destroying hand of democracy. It is of the greatest importance at this time that British feelings should be encouraged and democracy frowned upon.

The subject of an union of the British American Provinces deserves the greatest attention, but requires to be handled with no small degree of caution. That such an union, upon a proper basis, will contribute to our prosperity, we believe no one can deny, possessing, as we would then possess, a population, an extent of territory and mineral resources, which would entitle us to greater consideration in the eyes of others, and would increase our trade materially beyond its present limits.

We will act independently of all parties, advocating such measures only which we conceive to be for our welfare. We will endeavor to steer a straightforward course, free from fear or favor.

The columns of this paper will be open to only such communications as contain nothing offensive or personal, as all others can only be inserted as advertisements. We will be happy at all times to receive communications which contain useful hints to the Farmer, and upon other useful subjects.

During the session of Parliament, every effort will be made to supply the reader with the latest reports, as far as our space will admit of our doing so.

COUNTY OF ESSEX AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of this Society was held in the Council Chamber in the Town of Sandwich, on Saturday the 23rd instant. There was an exceedingly large attendance of influential members of the Society, and there appeared to be a greater interest taken in the welfare of the Society than usual upon such occasions.

GEORGE BULLOCK, Esq., President, took the chair; Mr. Bartlett acting as secretary. The President having ably explained the objects of the meeting, requested the Secretary and Treasurer to read their reports, which being done, were unanimously adopted. The Secretary also read the Township Reports, but, we are sorry to say, there appeared on the part of one or two townships to be a want of interest towards this very important subject. We hope that before the next annual meeting every Township in the County will have its society organized and its report forwarded to the Secretary of the County Society.

Upon the President stating that it was necessary to elect officers for the next year, J. G. Buchanan, Esq., of Colchester, was unanimously elected President, Thomas Woodbridge, Esq., first Vice-President, and John Maloney, Esq., second Vice-President. Mr Bartlett was re elected Secretary, and Mr. Blackader Treasurer.

The following Directors were then elected for the next year: Messrs. Weaver, Kolfage, Leonard Wigle, John Arner, J. W. Wigle, Henry Wright, R. Foster, J. C. Fox, Joseph Bartlett, Morgan Baldwin and Edwin Smith.

Mr. Woodbridge then took the chair, as first Vice-President, in the absence of the President. A vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Mr. Bullock, late President, for the very efficient manner in which the affairs of the Society were conducted under his management.

A petition from the Township Society of Gosfield and Mersea, praying the Directors would appoint "Mr Leonard Wigle's" in the Township of Mersea as the place for holding the County Fair. The Directors decided upon granting the prayer of the petition, and thereupon ordered that the next County Fair be held at Mr Wigle's in the Township of Mersea. We have every hope that the new Directors will exert themselves in getting up a Fair that will do credit to our County; and with Mr. Buchanan, long known for the interest he has taken in agricultural matters, as President of the Society, we have little reason to fear that the next County Fair will not be all that we could wish.

There will be a few persons to whom the first and second numbers of the Maple Leaf will be sent; and if they do not wish to become subscribers, they will please return them, as all who do not will be considered as subscribers, and will be furnished regularly with the paper thereafter. The Maple Leaf is the cheapest paper published in the County, and we hope to make it the best.

Dr. Casgrain has removed from the City of Detroit, and has made Sandwich his place of residence. The Doctor only requires to be known in this neighborhood to make him exceedingly popular, that is, if gentlemanly bearing and a thorough knowledge of his profession can make him so. Persons desiring his professional services can see him at his office, opposite "the "Mears' Hotel," Sandwich, at all hours.

We would advise such of our friends who wish a first rate Steak, served up in regular English style, and at all hours, with all the other little etceteras, to call at Simpson's eating house, 253 Jefferson Avenue, Detroit, nearly opposite the Biddle House.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL CHAMBER, Sandwich, 28th Jan., 1856.

IN conformity with the provisions of the Act 12th Victoria, chap. 81, the Reeves and Deputy Reeves of the several Municipalities composing the County of Essex, met at the Court House in the town of Sandwich, on Monday the twenty-eighth day of January, 1856.

The following gentlemen put in and filed their certificates of having been elected, and taken the oath of qualification and office according to the thirty-third section as amended of the eighty-first chapter of the 12th Victoria.

S. S. Macdonell, Windsor; Thomas Woodbridge, Sandwich; Henry H. Cunningham, Anderdon; Gabrielle Bondy, Deputy Reeve, Sandwich; Solomon Wigle, Gosfield; Andrew Patillo, Maidstone; Jno Brush, Colchester; Theodore Malotte, Mersea; Peter Desjardins, Tilbury West; Felix A. Lafferty, Amherstburg; William Flanigan, Rochester; and Michael Maloney, Malden. Also an affidavit of the Collector of the Township of Sandwich, that there are at least five hundred names of householders and freeholders on the collector's roll of the said Township for the year 1855.

Moved by Mr. Malotte, seconded by Mr. Lafferty, that the council adjourn until two o'clock this afternoon.

Carried.

MONDAY AFTERNOON.

The council met pursuant to adjournment A quorum being present,

Moved by Mr. Woodbridge, seconded by Mr. Malotte, that S. S. Macdonell, Esquire, be appointed Warden of the County Council for the ensuing year.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Lafferty, seconded by Mr. Maloney, that H. H. Cunningham, Esquire be appointed, as being a fit and proper person for Warden for the year 1856.

The vote was taken upon the amendment which was lost.

The original motion was then put and carried.

Mr. Macdonell was declared duly elected Warden by the County Clerk, and took his seat.

Moved by Mr. Malotte seconded by Mr. Brush, that the Council adjourn for half an hour.

Carried.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment.

The Warden handed in his oath of office, taken before the County Judge.

The Warden exercised his privilege of appointing an Auditor, by naming P. J. Salter, Esquire as one of the auditors for the present year.

Moved by Mr. Woodbridge, seconded by Mr. Bondy, that P. H. Morin, Esquire, be an Auditor for the present year.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Patillo, seconded by Mr. Flanagan, that J. A. Wilkinson, Esquire, be an Auditor for the present year.

The vote was taken upon the amendment wich wahs lost.

The original motion was then put and carried.

Moved by Mr. Desjardins, seconded by Mr. Bondy, that O. Ouellette be messenger for the ensuing year.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Flanagan, seconded by Mr. Patillo, that Stephen Reeves be appointed Messenger for the ensuing year.

The vote was taken upon the amendment which was carried.

The County Treasurer handed in his report, which was read and referred to the Finance Committee.

Moved by Mr. Malotte, seconded by Mr. Wigle, that the Council adjourn until tomorrow at 10 o'clock, A.M.

Carried.

SECOND DAY.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL CHAMBER, Sandwich, 29th Jan., 1856.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment.

The roll was called.

Present: S. S. Macdonell, Esq., Warden, and Messrs. Bondy, Brush, Cunningham, Desjardins, Lafferty, Maloney, Malotte, Patillo, Wigle and Woodbridge.

The minutes of yesterday were read and approved.

Moved by Mr. Malotte, seconded by Mr. Wigle, that Messrs. Cunningham, Brush, Lafferty, and Woodbridge be a Committee on Finance.

Carried.

Moved by Mr. Woodbridge, seconded by Mr. Malotte, that Messrs. Patillo, Bondy and Maloney, be a Committee to inspect Gaol.

Carried.

Moved by Mr. Cunningham, seconded by Mr. Malotte, that Messrs. Brush, Bullock, Woodbridge and the Warden, be a Building Committee for the new Court House.

Carried.

Moved by Mr. Brush, seconded by Mr. Malotte, that Messrs. Maloney, Wigle, Brush, Malotte and Flanagan, be a Committee on Roads and Bridges.

Carried.

Moved by Mr. Brush, seconded by Mr. Cunningham, that Messrs. Woodbridge, Cunningham, Malotte and Brush be a Committee on Education.

Carried.

Moved by Mr. Woodbridge, seconded by Mr. Bondy, that A. Prince, Esquire, and the Rev. Mr. McClaren be Grammar School Trustees, instead of the Rev. Mr. Dewar and the Rev. Mr. McClaren, retiring Members of the Board.

Carried.

Moved by Mr. Maloney, seconded by Mr Cunningham, that the following gentlemen be Local Superintendents of Schools for the ensuing year, viz:

Anderdon,	Joseph R. Bathlet, Esq.
Malden,	James Kevill, Esq.
Colchester,	Rev. F. Gore Elliott.
Gosfield,	James King, Esq.
Mersea,	Jonathan Wigfield, Esq.
Rochester,	Francis Graham, Esq.
Tilbury West,	Alexander Gregg, Esq.
Maidstone,	John Murray, Esq.
Sandwich,	Dr. Charles Casgrain.

Carried.

A petition from School Section number Nine was read and referred to Committee on Schools.

A petition from inhabitants at River Canard was read and referred to Committee on Roads and Bridges.

Moved by Mr. Maloney, seconded by Mr. Cunningham, that the eighth rule be suspended for the despatch of business.

Carried.

The By Law, "To appoint Messrs. Alfred Bailey and Patrick Warren, Commissioners to dispose of the timber on the Township Line between Anderdon and Malden," was introduced and read a first time.

A petition from Russel Spencer was introduced and read by Mr, Woodbridge, and referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Cunningham introduced a memorial praying that His Excellency the Governor General in Council would re-appoint W. D. Baby, Esq., as Sheriff of this County, which was adopted, Moved by Mr. Cunningham, seconded by Mr. Maloney, that the petition be adopted, and forwarded by the County Clerk with as little delay as possible.

Carried.

Moved by Mr. Malotte, seconded by Mr. Wigle, that the County Clerk be authorized to furnish the Municipalities with the necessary Assessment blanks.

Carried.

Moved by Mr. Maloney, seconded by Mr. Woodbridge, that the County Clerk be requested to hand Mr. Rankin, M.P.P., a copy of the petition regarding Mr. Sheriff Baby, with a request from this Council that Mr. Rankin would lay the same before His Excellency in Council at his earliest convenience, and that he will use his endeavors and influence with the Administration for the purpose of carrying out the views of the Memorial, and that he be furnished with a copy of this resolution.

Carried.

The Council adjourned until two o'clock, P.M.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment.

A quorum being present,

Moved by Mr. Flanagan, seconded by Mr. Patillo, that A. Rankin, Esquire, M.P.P., be requested to attend the Council on Wednesday, at 11 o'clock, A.M., to make such remarks to this Council as he may deem necessary regarding the establishment of a permanent seat of Government.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Cunningham, seconded by Mr. Wigle, that Mr. Rankin be not requested to come before this Council, as they, the Council, are already fully sensible of the necessity for the establishment of a permanent seat of Government for this Province.

The vote was taken upon the amendment which was carried.

Moved by Mr. Cunningham, seconded by Mr. Wigle, that the County Clerk be instructed to draw up a petition to be signed by the Warden and County Clerk on behalf of this Council, and transmit the same to the Member of the County for presentation to the Legislative Assembly, praying that a permanent seat of Government may be fixed for the Province.

Carried.

Moved by Mr. Brush, seconded by Mr. Woodbridge, that the County Clerk be authorized to furnish a sufficient number of printed blank forms for the use of the Reeves and Justices in their Magisterial duties, viz: Informations, Warrants to Apprehend, Summons to Parties, Summons to Witnesses, Recognizance to Bail, Convictions, Commitments, Commitments for want of Sureties, Search Warrants, Depositions, &c., &c.

Carried.

Moved by Mr. Woodbridge, seconded by Mr. Brush, that the Warden be authorized to sign a warrant to the Treasurer for the amount of McDonald and Finlay's account for repairing and binding books for Registry Office.

Carried.

Moved by Mr. Cunningham, seconded by Mr. Wigle, that the Council adjourn until 10 o'clock, A.M., to-morrow.

Carried.

ARRIVAL OF THE ATLANTIC.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24th.

The Atlantic arrived off Sandy Hook at 10 o'clock last night, and came to her dock this A. M.

She experienced strong westerly gales, ten days successively, and was three days in large fields of ice. She brings no news of the Pacific.

February 10.—Latitude 52: Long. 17; passed Steamship America from Halifax.

The Atlantic brings 40 passengers.

No American Mail received since Atlantic.

LATEST.

Lord Palmerston promises to lay a part of the Central American correspondence before Parliament.

Scott & Russell, ship builders, London, have failed, liabilities large.

Preliminary protocol was signed at Vienna on the 1st by representatives of France, England, and Turkey.

Russia and Austria agree to open the conference at Paris within three weeks. Lord Clarendon is appointed English Plenipotentiary.

There is a doubtful report that the Emperors of Russia and Austria will visit Paris during the Conference.

The protocol preliminary to the Congress of Paris has been definitely signed, and matters are progressing favorably in the direction of peace.

No news of interest from the Crimea or from Asia.

The last of the docks of Sebastopol has been destroyed.

An armistice by land only will doubtless be signed to last till the end of March.

The most important news is that which relates to the extraordinary statement in England, on the subject of a war with the U. S. It was again confidently reported on the Liverpool Exchange, that the American Minister had demanded his passport, and his absence from Lady Palmerston's Soiree, was attributed to the personal misunderstanding between Clarendon and himself.

We have no particulars of the misunderstanding, as the English papers maintain complete silence on the subject. Clarendon, however, is reported to have spoken in an imperious manner to Buchanan, which Mr. B. promptly checked by closing the interview. It is also reported that the Derby party intend to bring forward a motion in Parliament on the subject of the omission of allusion to America in the Queen's speech.

It is further reported that France and England have sent envoys to Brazil, to seek to enlist the interests of that country against the interests of the United States in Central America. In the meantime, the general tone of the English Press, is threatening and presumptuous towards the United States.

Purely commercial Presses form an exception, and the Chambers of Commerce both at Manchester, and Liverpool protest earnestly against any interruption to the amicable relation of the two countries.

The funds have been unsettled and depressed by the threatening aspect of affairs. The following is an extract from a leader in the Times:—"We expect to hear every day that our Minister at Washington has received his passport and is on his way home. That of course will compel similar proceedings on our part with regard to the American Minister, and Mr. Crampton and Mr. Buchanan, two inoffensive gentlemen representing their Governments at Washington and London will probably cross each other on the Atlantic.

After deploring the existence of this domestic quarrel it says "England has really apologised enough to satisfy ten European Emperors. We can not hold her responsible for the estrangement. The Americans must reckon on our obstinate resistance if they drive us to it—let them count the cost before they take any fatal steps, else after two or three * * * * * they will make their calculations in vain.

The London Despatch says a good deal of pardonable irritation is felt here that this sympathies of a republican people should be so unaccountably manifested during the present war, in behalf of the mainstay and sheet anchor of European despotism, and if the republic of the United States permits its rulers to plunge into a war with Great Britain, they will receive the most terrible lesson ever administered to national envy and quarrelsomeness.

The Paris journal Des Debats has a long and labored editorial, to prove that up to the present point the interests of France and England are identical, but that a continuance of the war either in the Baltic or in Asia would only subserve the private interests of England.

General Prince Paskiewitch died at Warsaw on the 1st February.

The chairman of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, at the annual meeting of the Chamber, spoke in strong terms against any interruption of friendly relations between the two countries; other members expressed the same sentiments, but the Chamber did not adopt a formal resolution on the subject.

The Manchester Chamber of Commerce held its annual meeting on Monday, the 4th inst., when the following resolution, prepared by Jon Bright, M. P. was moved by the Mayor of Manchester, and unanimously adopted:—

"That this Chamber has observed with deep regret that difficulties have arisen between the British Government and the Government of the United States, with regard to the construction of a treaty on the subject of Central America and the attempts which are alleged to have been made to enlist men for the British army within the jurisdiction of the United States. The Chamber would urgently impress upon the Government of this country the propriety of considering these questions in a conciliatory spirit, with a strong determination to spare alike to the United Kingdom and the United States the indescribable events which must arise from any interruption of amicable relations between the two conntries.— The resolution was unanimously agreed to Mr. Bright made a good speech on the occasion. Letters by the India and China mail are to hand.

The only noticeable article of news, additional to that published, is that the trial of Mr. Keenan, American Consul of Hong Kong, is postponed on account of the sickness of the Chief Justice.

ARRIVAL OF THE ASIA.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.

The steamer Asia, which sailed from Liverpool on the morning of the 9th, has arrived, bringing 50 passengers. She brings but little news of importance to add to the Atlantic's advices—There was a severe storm on the English coast on the night of the 7th; many American vessels were damaged.— The Ocean Rover, from Charleston, went ashore at Crosby Point. She leaked slightly. The Edward Everett, from Baltimore, arrived at Cork leaking badly; she had lost her spars, and thrown overboard over 700 barrels of flour.

The Henry Pratt, from Mobile, was ashore at Port Hengerol, with her masts cut away. The barque Warren, from Pennsylvania, put in Yargal in distress—she lost part of her cargo. Barkque Maid of Auckland, Clark, from Boston to London was abandoned, waterlogged, &c. with masts cut away in lat. 40 by 20°, long. 50 by 68°. Master and crew rescued by an American ship Equality. Captain Noyse from Savannah, and landed at Liverpool Friday, 1st instant.

The London Morning Advertiser states, that Sir H. Bulwer had intimated that he would like to act as mediator between the British Government and Buchanan. This movement is said to be at the desire of Palmerston.

An interview was to take place at the Embassy, when Bulwer would explain the compromise at length to Buchanan, which he is prepared to recommend. All other papers maintain profound silence on this matter.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

LONDON, Friday Evening.

Funds firm, closing at ½ higher than yesterday's prices.

LONDON, Saturday Morning.

The Times censures the course taken by both the English and American Cabinets in reference to existing difficulties; and after remarking that even the humanity we have shown must have its limits, concludes as follows:

"We are as desirable of peace as Mr. Cobden can be, but we know that when a nation becomes too proud to listen to reason the only appeal is to arms.'

The steamer Asia brings presents consisting of plate, medals, &c., for the officers and crew of the Kane Arctic Expedition.

The peace plenipotentiaries were beginning to assemble at Paris.

The British Steamship Polathernias, was totally lost on the north-west coast of Jutland.

In the House of Commons, Palmerston in answer to an enquiry from Cobden, said the correspondence of the American Government on Central American affairs, would, when completed, be laid before Parliament. Mr. Bailly remarked that, he would postpone the motion of which he had given notice, relative to enlistment in the United States, until the correspondence was made public.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

By the Asia.

Flour easier. Ohio offered at 37s 6d; Western Canal 35s.

Wheat 9s 6d a 9s 9d for Red; 10s 9d a 11s 10d for white.

Indian Corn much depressed, nominally 35s.

Money in England more stringent.

American Stocks lower. Consols 91½.

THE SEARCH FOR THE PACIFIC.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.

The steamer Alabama arrived from her cruise in search of the Pacific.

The Propeller Arctic sailed from Halifax on the 20th instant.

THE RUSSIAN ACCEPTANCE.

The following is a translation of the circular issued by the Russian government to its diplomatic agents in which it announces the acceptance of the Austrian proposals.— This document is dated St. Petersburg, January 19:—

Public opinion in Europe has been strongly excited by the intelligence that propositions of peace concerted between the Allied Powers and Austria had been transmitted to St. Petersburg through the intervention of the Cabinet of Vienna.

Already the Imperial Cabinet, upon its side, had made a step in the path of conciliation, by pointing out, in a despatch bearing date the 11th (23rd) of December, published in all the foreign journals, the sacrifices which it was prepared to make, with a view to the restoration of peace.

This two fold proceeding proved the existence on either side of a desire to profit by the compulsory cessation imposed by the rigor of the season on the military operations, in order to respond to the unanimous wishes which are everywhere manifested in favour of a speedy peace.

In the despatch cited above the Imperial Government had taken for basis the four points of guarantee admitted by the Conferences at Vienna, and had proposed, with regard to the third point—which had alone led to the rupture of the Conferences—a solution which differed rather in form than in substance from the one put forward at that epoch by the allied Powers.

The propositions transmitted to day by the Austrian Government speak of the same fundamental proposition—that is to say, the neutralisation of the Black Sea by direct treaty between Russia and the Porte, to regulate by common agreement the number of ships of war which each of the adjacent Powers reserves the right of maintaining for the security of its coasts. They only differ appreciably from those contained in the despatch of the 11th (23rd) of December by the proposal for rectifying the frontier between Moldavia and Bessarabia, in exchange for the places on the Russian territory in the actual occupation of the enemy.

This is not the place to enquire if these propositions unite the conditions necessary for insuring the repose of the East and the security of Europe, rather than those of the Russian Government. It is sufficient here to establish the point, that at last an agreement has been actually arrived at on many of the fundamental bases for peace.

Due regard being had in this agreement, to the wishes manifested by the whole of Europe, and to the existence of a coalition the tendency of which was every day to assume larger proportions, and considering the sacrifices which a protraction of the war imposes upon Russia, the Imperial Government has deemed it its duty not to delay by accessory discussions a work the success of which would respond to its heartfelt wishes.

It has, in consequence, just given its adhesion to the propositions transmitted by the Austrian Government as a project of preliminaries for negociations for peace.

By the energy of its attitude in the face of a formidable coalition, Russia has given a measure of the sacrifices she is prepared to make to defend her honour and dignity; by this act of moderation the Imperial Government gives at the same time a new proof of its sincere desire to arrest the effusion of blood, to conclude a struggle so grievous to civilisation and humanity, and to restore to Russia and to Europe the blessing of peace.

It has a right to expect that the opinions of all civilised nations will appreciate the act.

THE CENTRAL AMERICAN QUESTION.

(From the Times, 29th Jan.)

If the American Congress could only be induced to betake themselves, however tardily, to the duties for which, we presume, they were elected, we might hope to know the fate that awaits us, from some source more authentic than the Message of the President of the comments or the Press.— But, alas! we hope in vain. Sedet æternumque sedebit; there seems no reason whatever why the labours of Congress should ever come to an end From Banks to Scattering, and from Scattering to Banks, sometimes 99 when the required majority is 105; sometimes 106 when the required majority is 113; nobody gains, nobody loses; nobody seems a bit nearer winning or losing than was before. They pace round their allotted circle like the inmates of the great hall of the Caliph Vathek, and persist in an insane repetition of divisions for Banks, Richardson, Fuller, and Scattering, —for Scattering, Fuller, Richardson, and Banks.

In the meantime, while this agreeable comedy is being acted, we shall do wisely to employ ourselves in taking a careful view of our relations to the great American nation, whose representative seem to think of nothing but playing out the farce they have commenced. We have two questions still to settle with the United States—first, the arrangement of the affairs of Central America; and secondly, the termination of the dispute which has arisen out of our ill-advised attempt at enlistment in Canada. We sincerely wish that we could see some more decided efforts on our part towards the solution of the first of these questions, and a little more good sense and moderation on the part of the second. We offer no opinion as to the construction of the treaty under which the first dispute has arisen although we think that in so simple a matter we have every right to complain that the mutual understanding, whatever it was, has not been embodied in clear and intelligible language. Our present object, however, is not to grumble over the past, but to suggest remedies for the future. For what useful or honourable purpose do we keep open this contemptible quarrel about the island of Ruatan and our rights of protecting that polished and civilized community, the kingdom of Mosquito? When the quarrel arose our policy was obvious enough. It was not the love of mosquitoes, nor an abstract delight in the pestiferous Isthmus of Darien, nor an opinion that the possession of Ruatan added any perceptible lustre to the diadem of the Queen of Great Britain and Canada, of India and Australia, that made us seek so earnestly to retain some hold on these miserable regions It was, we believe, simply and solely because it was thought they would be the seat of the canal destined to unite the Atlantic with the Pacific, and to confer a lasting dominion on the Power in whose hands this key of two oceans should be placed. But when we had obtained from America an undertaking not to colonize or occupy these countries, and were thus secured from the only rivalry likely, in this respect, to be really formidable, our possessions became valueless, our rights not worth the breath which their assertion cost us, and our claims mere worn-out properties, which true wisdom would have thrown aside and thought of no more. If this was so when it was considered probable and even likely that we should discover a spot suitable for the formation of a ship canal between the two oceans, how much is the case strengthened when it has been ascertained that there is hardly a possibility remaining of carrying that great work into execution? Were the affairs of mankind conducted by reason instead of by passion and prejudice, we should have heard no more of the Musquitoes. But, unfortunately, it seems impossible for man to adapt himself to circumstance and to change a career merely because its object has been obtained, or has ceased to be worth attaining; and so we find English statesmen defending our claims with the same pertinacity now that they are valueless as they did when they supposed them to possess the most inestimable value.

Nor, while we thus reprobate the conduct of our own statesmen, do we see any reason to speak more highly of that of the statesmen of America. If it be ridiculous in us to cling to this worthless inheritance, is it not equally absurb in them to expend their diplomacy and their casuistry in attempting to reject us from it? If we protect no more the King of Mosquito and swelter no more under the sun of Ruatan, what will they have gained or what shall we have lost?— Nothing that we know of, except the gratification of the vanity of the one and of the obstinacy of the other. It seems impossible that such a difference can really present any serious difficulty. As to the point of honour which is said to be engaged in the quarrel, if honour there be in adhering to what we do not want, because somebody else who wants it as little as we do is seeking to dispossess us, could not the wound to our honour be sufficiently salved by leaving the matter to the arbitration of the Emperor of the French, the King of Belgium, or some other discreet potentate?

Certainly, whatever other cause of quarrel we may have, for this at least, it would not only be an iniquity, but an absurdity, to break off our friendly relations with America. With regard to the quarrel about the enlistment the case is very different. The English Government, it seems, committed an error in seeking to enlist soldiers on the American continent. That error was perceived, promptly retracted, and candidly acknowledged. It does not suit the electioneering purposes of the American President and his Cabinet to be content with this ample satisfaction. They seek to push the quarrel further, and they can do so if they will. The nation must decide whether or not it will adopt and ratify such a course. On our side the means of pacification seem to be exhausted and we await without fear, as without menace, whatever it may please the Government of the United States to do, resolved, we trust, to respect the rights of others, but equally resolved to maintain our own dignity and support our own honour.

Important from India and Persia.

HORRIBLE CRUELTIES OF THE PERSIANS IN HERAT—POST MOHAMMED PREPARING FOR WAR—THE SANTAL REBELLION IN BRITISH INDIA—CONFIRMATION OF THE FALL OF HERAT.

Correspondence of the London Times.

Bombay, Dec. 17.—Since the fall of Herat into the hands of the Persians and their nominee and creature, Prince Yusuf, of which I gave you in my last such details as had then reached us, intelligence from over the border has dribbled in but scantily, and for the most part from sources that render it less easily verified than usual. It bears upon it, however, no stamp of improbability, either in regard to the apprehensions of Dost Mohammed, the ferocity of the victorious party at Herat in its hour of triumph, or the subsequent quarrels of its leaders among themselves. You may recollect it being stated that upon the occupation of the city by the Persian troops, the life of the deposed Chief Mahommed Sadik Khan was spared, and that he and his principal adherents were treated with respect and consideration. Indeed, for an Oriental revolution, it appeared to be a singularly bloodless one. This state of things, we are now told, did not long continue. Mahommed Sadik was put to death, together with the whole family of Yar Mohammed, his father, with the sole exception of one woman, spared for the sake of her wealth, to produce which she was tortured by the most approved and recondite methods. A later report mentions that a quarrel had taken place between Prince Yusuf and one of his followers, in the course of which the former was severely, if not mortally wounded.

At Cabul and Candahar the occupation of the frontier town of Herat by one of the exiled royal race of the Suddozyes with the support of Persia, appears to have laid to sleep the jealousies of the Baruckzye brothers. Relinquishing, or postponing his own views on Candahar, Dost Mohammed wrote urgently to his surviving brothers of that place, entreating them to join him in sinking their family disputes, and in forming a powerful opposition to the common enemy. The Candahar chiefs assented to their brother's proposal, and proceeded to call together the clans of their territory. The Ameer did the same, and it is said that the whole force, if united, and joined by Hyder Khan's troops at Balkh, 10,000 strong, would amount to some 70,000 men with 80 guns. An advance upon Herat is not apprehended, but rather such a demonstration in force as shall deter Persia from taking aggressive measures, in the event of such being contemplated.

Whether any application for aid has been forwarded by the Ameer to his British Allies, or whether the application, if made, is likely to be favorably received, I have at present no information. Their has been, as was natural some revivals of the reports touching the dispatch of a force to the Persian Gulf. These no doubt are premature, but I have good reason to believe that the papers connected with the last expedition have been under official consideration. With regard to Affghan requests for assistance, the appearance at Kurrachee of a young chief of the Candahar family may, it has been suggested, be connected with some such piece of diplomacy. The person in question is, however, ostensibly on his way to Mecca, and it is probable that the tomb of the Prophet and not Bombay is his real destination.

From the north west frontier there are no news of any importance, save the rumor of an intended expedition from Peshawur against a Momund chief, by name Saadat Khan. In what particular way this individual has been making himself obnoxious we not told; perhaps, because the offences of a border leader, possessing a stronghold in the mountains, need no description to make them intelligible. It appears that this is not the first time that he has embroiled himself with us. Mention is made of his having been temporarily dispossessed by us in 1842. The force to be employed on this occasion will consist of two regiments of infantry and one of cavalry, for whom Saadat Khan in his fort of Pundiali is said to be preparing a warm reception.

Australia.

THE LAW OF MARRIAGE.—Although the present session of the Legislative Council is stamped with an ignominy beyond redemption, and with scarcely a parallel even in the history of despotisms, on account of its impolitic scheme of taxing the necessaries of the people; there is, nevertheless, one bright refreshing spot amid the waste—an oasis in the desert—which will gain for it some honorable fame, and of which for time to come the members of our present Parliament may triumphantly boast; namely, the Marriage Bill. It is the result, as it now stands, not only of a serious study of the peculiar requirements of the colony, but also a just concession to the sentiments we have from time to time expressed in the columns of this journal. Much praise is due to his Honor the Chief Justice for the assistance he has given in framing this bill; but it is only another added to the many claims of gratitude which his liberality and patriotism have won or deserve to win for him, from the citizens of every denomination in this country and Tasmania. The Attorney-General in a still greater degree merits the expression not merely of our praise, which is of little or no value in itself, but of our sincere gratitude for his able and consistent conduct during every stage of the bill's progress. He had no ordinary difficulties to contend with during its discussion; and hereafter, when he shall have retired from the cares and troubles of an honorable public life, he may, like Sir R. Bourke, look back upon one achievement at least of his career which gave the land of his adoption almost universal satisfaction. The Bill, as it now stands, contains nothing to which Catholics can reasonably object—it interferes with no canon—no regulation—no rubric of Holy Church; and consequently may be hailed as a measure calculated to do much good. In fact we look upon the bill as a model for the Imperial Parliament to copy—as just the prototype which such a Senate as that of Great Britain, made up of such heterogeneous elements, absolutely requires to settle a great question in a just and liberal spirit.— Sydney Freeman, Sept. 29, 1855.

Hayti.

A letter written by a gentleman in Hayti has been recently translated, giving the gloomiest possible description of the social, political and commercial condition of the people of Hayti, the writer asserting that the inhabitants are fast retrograding into African barbarism. A contemporary fortifies the letter by, showing the decline in Haytien exports in sugar, coffee, and cotton since 1786, when the island was a French dependency. Some of the statistics we quote. For example while the exports of raw sugar in 1789 was 93,573,000 lbs., in 1850 it was totally ceased. The exports of coffee had fallen in the same period from 76,835,219 lbs. to 30,608,343; that of cotton had declined from 76,835,219 lbs, 664,156; while that of the white sugar, which was 47,516,513 lbs. before this island became free, had terminated fifty years ago. In like manner indigo and tobacco which had formerly been lucrative products to the Haytien planter, no longer appeared on the list of exports. In short, while the exports of the island, as a clolony, had risen as high as two hundred and five millions of francs, they had been gradually falling since Haytien independence was declared, til they had now sunk as low as three millions and a half.

The Queen's Speech.

The following is the Queen's address at the opening of Parliament, January 21st:

My Lords and Gentlemen:

Since the close of the last session of Parliament, the arms of the Allies have achieved a signal and important success. Sebastopol, the great stronghold of Russia in the Black Sea, has yielded to the persevering constancy and daring bravery of the Allied forces.

The naval and military preparations for the ensuing year have necessarily occupied my attention; but, while determined to omit no effort which could give vigor to the operations of war, I have deemed it my duty not to decline overtures which might reasonably afford a prospect of a safe and an honorable peace. Accordingly, when the Emperor of Austria lately offered to myself and to my august ally, the Emperor of the French, to employ his good offices with the Emperor of Russia, with a view to endeavor to bring about an amicable adjustment of the matters at issue between the contending powers, I consented, in concert with my allies, to accept the offer thus made, and I have the satisfaction to inform you that certain conditions have been agreed upon, which I hope may prove the foundation of a general treaty of peace. Negotiations for such a treaty will be shortly opened in Paris. In conducting these negotiations, I shall be careful not to lose sight of the objects for which the war was undertaken, and I shall deem it right in no degree to relax the naval and military preparations, until a satisfactory treaty of peace shall have been concluded.

Although the war in which I am engaged was brought on by events in the south of Europe, my attention has not been withdrawn from the state of things at the north, and, in conjunction with the Emperor of the French, I have concluded with the King of Sweden and Norway a treaty containing defensive engagements applicable to his dominions, and tending to the preservation of the balance of power in that part of Europe. I have also concluded a treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation with the Republic of Chili. I have given directions that these treaties shall be laid before you.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons— The estimates for the ensuing year will be laid before you. You will find them framed in such a manner as to provide for the exigencies of war, if peace should unfortunately not be concluded.

My Lords and Gentlemen—It is gratifying to me to observe that, notwithstanding the war, and the burdens and sacrifices which it has unavoidably imposed upon my people, the resources of my empire remain unimpaired. I rely with confidence on the patriotism of my loyal subjects for a continuance of the support which they have so nobly afforded me; and they may be assured that I shall not call upon them for exertions beyond what may be required by a due regard for the great interests of the honor and the dignity of the empire.

There are many subjects connected with internal improvements which I recommend to your attentive consideration. The difference which exists in several important particulars between the commercial laws of Scotland and those of other parts of the United Kingdom has occasioned inconvenience to large portion of my subjects engaged in trade. Measures will also be proposed to you for improving the laws relating to partnership by simplifying those laws, and thus rendering more easy the employment of capital in commerce. The system under which merchant shipping is liable to pay local duties and passing tolls has been subject of much complication. Measures will be proposed to you for affording relief in regard to those matters. Other important measures for improving the laws of Great Britain and Ireland will be proposed to you, which will, I doubt not, receive your attentive consideration. Upon these, and all other matters upon which you may deliberate, I fervently pray that the blessing of Divine Providence may favor your councils, and guide them to the promotion of the great object of my unvarying solicitude—the welfare and happiness of my people.

English papers accuse Louis Napoleon, the Emperor of the French, with dabbling in English funds—not exactly Louis himself, but his agent. It is asserted that previous to the circulation of the Peace rumors, he invested five millions of dollars, when consols stood at 85, which on the following day rose to 90. This proved rather a profitable speculation,—if it could be called a speculation when there was a certainty of winning—so much so that it has justly raised the ire of that important personage John Bull, who thinks the nephew of his illustrious uncle has no right to fill his private purse at the expense of the public good of his subjects. If peace should happen to ensue from the negotiations now on foot, it is not altogether an improbability that with Louis Napoleon, hay made in sunshine may be necessary for support during the wintry storms of adversity—which a year's quietness may bring upon him. Napoleon well knows that his throne is more secure in war than in peace, especially with an exhausted exchequer and an enormous public debt, and an idle army. Hence, probably, his investment in English funds.

KNOW NOTHINGS EXPOSED.—A Western correspondent writes as follows:

The largest secret society in Shelbyville is the Know Nothings; everybody belongs to the order. Their place of meeting all last year, was in the celler, under Charley Woodward's store. I have been put in possession of their ceremony of initiation, which was as follows;

A large dark looking barrel was placed just inside of the door. When a candidate was introduced the Inside Guardian said to him interrogatively. "Take su'thin?"— The response was "Yes." A full goblet was then placed in his hand, and he was taught to make the sign of the first degree, by elevating the brim of the cup to within about an inch of his nose, then throwing the head back, and reverting the position of the hand, so that the lille finger should be upward. The ceremony was then complete; but a singular feature in the case, and in which this differs from any other secret order I know of, was that at every meeting each member had to be initiated over again.

Among the many good thing in the variegated memoirs of the Rev. Sidney Smith, is the following: "When you meet with neglect, let it rouse you to exertion, instead of mortifying your pride.—Set about lessening those defects which expose you to neglect, and improve those excellencies which command attention and respect." This is good advice.

PERSONALITIES OF LITERATI.

JERROLD.

DOUGLASS JERROLD, a well known contributor to Punch and editor of various publications, is a man of about 50 years of age and in person is remarkably spare and diminutive. His face is sharp, angular, and his eyes of a greyish hue. He is probably one of the most caustic writers of the age, and with keen sensibility, he often writes, under the impulse of the moment, articles which his cooler judgement condemns. Although a believer in hydropathy, his habits do not conform to the internal application of "Adam's ale. His Caudle Lectures have been read by every one, In conversation he is quick at retort—not always refined, He is a husband and grandfather.

MACAULAY.

The Hon. T. B. MACAULAY is short in stature, round, and with growing tendency to aldermanic disproportions. His head has the same rotundity as his body, and seems stuck on it as firmly as a pin-head. This is nearly the sum of his personal defects; all else except the voice, [which is monotonous and disagreeable,] is certainly in his favor. His face seems literally instinct with expression; his eye above all, full of deep thought and manner. As he walks, or rather struggles along the street, he seems in a state of total abstraction, unmindful of all that is going on around him and solely occupied with his own-working mind.

LAMARTINE.

LAMARTINE is—yes, ladies, positively—a prim looking man, with a long face, short grey hair, a slender figure, and suit of black. Put a pen behind his ear, and he would look like a "confidential clerk." Give his face more character and he would remind you of Henry Clay. He has a fine head phrenologically speaking—large and round at he top, with a spacious forehead, and a scant allotment of cheek.

DUMAS.

On the contrary, is a burly fellow—His large, red, round cheeks stand out, till they seem to stretch the very skin that covers them, and it looks as smooth as a polished apple. His black crisped hair is piled high above his forehead, and stands divided into unequal masses, one inclining to the right, the other to the left. His eyes are dark and his mouth sensuous but not to the degree of vulgarity. His person is large, and his flowing mantle red. He is a gentleman to lay bare his throat and look romantic, not Byronically so, but piratically. Yet he looks good humored, and like a man whose capacity for physical enjoyment is boundless. His negro blood is evident enough to one who knows he has it; but it would not be detected by any one who knew it not.

EUGENE SUE.

Is neither prim nor burly. He is a man of large frame, over which a loose black coat is carelessly bottoned. Complexion light, eyes blue, hair once black, now pepper and salt, whiskers voluminous, eyebrows black and thick, good forehead, and the lower face ample.

BELLS.—Our readers will perhaps be more disposed to admire the colossal magnitude of the Russian bells, after they have cast a glance at the following short list of the largest bells in Europe:

	English pounds.
Great bell at St Pauls	8,400
——— of Lincoln	9 894
Great Tom, Christ Church, Oxford	17,000
In the Palazzo Vecchio, Florence	17,000
Great bell of St Peter's Rome	18,606
Bell at Erfurth	28.224
——— Rouen	43.000
——— St. Ivan, Moscow	160,000
Fallen bell (now raised) at the foot of the same tower.	443,772

BOOK NOTICE.

WOODWORTH'S YOUTH'S CABINET AND UNCLE FRANK'S DOLLAR MAGAZINE, received too late to notice it particularly this week; but will do so next.

DIVISION COURTS FOR ESSEX.

1st. Sandwich Monday, 12th May 1856.
2nd. Amherstburg, Saturday, 12th April.
3rd. Kingsville, Wednesday, 16th do.
4th. Colchester, Monday, 14th do.
5th. Mersea, Friday, 18th do.
6th. Simon's, Middle Road, Saturday, 17th, May

Sandwich 12th Feb. 1856.

SPRING CIRCUITS.

HOME CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Sir John Beverley Robinson, Bart.

Milton.	Monday, 17th March,
Barrie.	Tuesday, 25th March,
Niagara.	Tuesday, 22nd April,
Hamilton	Tuesday, 13th May,
Sydenham	Tuesday, 27th May,

EASTERN CIRCUIT.

The Hon, Mr. Justice, Draper

Brockville	Monday, 31st April,
Cornwall	Monday, 28th April,
L'Original	Thursday, 8th May,
Ottawa	Monday, 12th May,
Perth	Thursday, 22nd May.

MIDLAND CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice McLean.

Whitby	Wednesday, 26th March,
Peterborough	Tuesday, 8th April,
Coburg	Monday, 14th April,
Belleville	Thursday, 24th April,
Picton	Tuesday, 6th May,
Kingston	Tuesday, 13th May,

OXFORD CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Burns.

Brantford	Tuesday, 22nd April,
Simcoe	Tuesday, 29th April,
Woodstock	Monday, 5th May,
Stratford	Wednesday, 14th May,
Berlin	Tuesday, 20th May,
Guelph	Monday, 26th May.

WESTERN CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Hagarty.

Goderich	Wednesday, 5th March,
St. Thomas	Wednesday, 12th March,
London	Wednesday, 19th March,
Chatham	Tuesday, 15th April,
Sandwich	Tuesday, 22nd April,
Sarnia	Tuesday, 29th April.

CITY OF TORONTO.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Richards.

Toronto.	Monday, 5th May.

EXECUTORS' NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to all persons indebted to the late ALPHEUS MORSE, of the Town of Sandwich, deceased and late of the Firm of MORSE AND CALVIN, Lumbermen, to make payment to the undersigned, and all persons having claims against the said A. MORSE or MORSE AND CALVIN, are requested to present them for payment prior to the 1st day of May next to ELECTA MORSE, H. C. GUILLOT } Executors.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th 1856.

WILLIAM SWIFT,

MERCHANT TAILOR,

IS prepared to attend upon the Gentlemen of Amherstburg in his line of business, and is not afraid to assert that he will cut and Fit in the latest and most fashionable Styles as well as any Tailor west of London.

Amherstburg, Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROSE DALE MILLS.

THE highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Rye, Corn, or Buck Wheat, either at the Mills or at the Store of

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

MEETING OF PARLIAMENT

THE PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT assembled in Toronto, for the despatch of Business

On Friday 15th February

The Globe will contain a full report of the Debates made up each day to the hour of going to press; and will have the most reliable political intelligence at the earliest moment.

THE DAILY "GLOBE"

Will be sent four months for TWO DOLLARS.

THE TRI-WEEKLY "GLOBE"

Will be sent three months for ONE DOLLAR!

Orders should be sent in immediately so as to secure the Debates from the commencement of the Session.

GLOBE OFFICE, Toronto, February 14, 1856

Family Store.

THE Subscriber keeps constantly on hand a large and well selected assortment of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware and Crockery,

at his old stand on Bedford Street, which he will sell, at a small advance on cost, for Cash.

A large supply of the very best [illegible] always on hand.

Produce and Cord Wood bought and sold.

JOSEPH MILLER.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

JAMES JESSOPP,

CARPENTER & JOINER,

WILL always be on hand to attend to the question of Building, and every description of Carpenter and Joiner work upon the shortest notice.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

New Harness and Saddlery Establishment.

A. C. ELLIS.

Every description of LIGHT and FANCY BUGGY HARNESS, made in the most fashionable styles.

HEAVY HARNESSES constantly on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.

SADDLES of every description made to order on the shortest notice.

CARRIAGE and BUGGY TRIMMING done in a style not to be surpassed.

A large assortment of WHIPS always kept on hand.

In his Store, adjoining Mr Guillot's, will be found every description of Goods in his line of business. Every endeavor will be made to give entire satisfaction to his Customers.

N.B.—Cord Wood, Hides, and Produce wanted, for which the highest price will be given.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. &c. &c.

AT THE REGULATOR.

THE Subscribers would invite the attention of their Friends and the Public generally to their new and complete Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c., &c., which they are now offering low for cash.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

N.B.—The highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all kinds of Produce.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1846.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, } TO WIT: }

BY virtue of a writ of Fieria Facias issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex against the lands and Tenements of Alfred Baby, and to me directed, at the suit of Dennis Ouellette, I have seized and taken the following lands and tenements, viz.: Water Lot number three on the East, and Water Lots numbers three, four and fourteen West, and Land and Water Lots numbers thirteen and sixteen, all on the North side of Sandwich Street in the Village of Windsor, and being part of the Town plot of Windsor, as laid out on the estate of the late Francis Baby, Esquire, all which property, or the interest of the said Alfred Baby in and to the same, I will offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Saturday the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, at 12 o'clock, noon.

W. D. BABY, Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

Sandwich and Windsor Stage.

BY C. F. LABADIE.

A PUBLIC STAGE will run regularly every hour each day, from Sandwich to Windsor.

C. F. L. possesses superior Horses and a more comfortable conveyance than have heretofore been upon this line, and hopes to receive a share of public patronage.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

NOTICE.

TO ALL IT MAY CONCERN.

ALL persons owing the subscriber are hereby notified that payment must be made on or before the 15th day of April next if they wish to save the costs of collection.

TO RENT.

The House and Premises in which the subscriber lives. Terms $24 per quarter payable in advance. Possession given on the first of May next.

GEORGE HANN.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

LOTS FOR SALE IN THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.

PART of Lot No. 3: on the west [illegible] Bedford Street, with a good Store [illegible] on. Also Lots 7 and [illegible] J. Fluett, Esquire, with [illegible] and stables. Those Lots will [illegible] to incumbrances. [illegible] apply to J. H. WILKINSON, Ag't for J. A. Verrait.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

LOT No. Four, in the 4th Concession, Gosfield.

J. H. WILKINSON.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

FOR SALE.

(ON TIME.)

AN Eighteen-Horse Power Engine and Boiler complete. Apply to

GEO. BULLOCK.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

ESSEX BUILDING SOCIETY.

THE 66th Loan Meeting will be held at the Secretary-Treasurer's Office, at half past three o'clock, P.M., Wednesday, 5th March next. (Management Month.) £150 for sale.

GEO. BULLOCK, Sec-Treas, E.B.S.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

AGRICULTURE, &c.

—o—

Black Tartarian Cherry.

The splendid variety of the cherry, the which is also known by the name of the Circassian, Circassian Black, Circassian Heart, and Ronalds's Black Heart, is said to be a native of Spain, having been carried to Russia, thence to England. It is also said to have been brought from Circassia to England, by Mr. Ronald, in 1749. "It is distinguished for its large, obtuse-heart-shaped, shining purplish black fruit, with an uneven surface, containing a rich tender flesh, and hangs in clusters. It is a cherry of great excellence, bears plentifully, ripens early in July, and is highly esteemed in the market, but double the price of the ordinary kinds. The tree grows rapidly, is very ornamental, and is, on all accounts, worthy of general cultivation.

The Cherry Tree (Prunus Cerasus) is said to have been introduced into this country, in A.D. 1562, by Sir Anthony Denny, from Cerasus, in Asia, by the Roman general, Lucullus. Cherries were hawked in the streets of London in the beginning of the 15th century. There are between two and three hundred varieties under cultivation.—The People's Journal.

Cleaning the Barks of Trees.

We have often recommended the use of whale oil, soap, potash, &c., for cleaning the bark of trees, and supposed that no application could exceed it for this purpose. A few days since we visited the seat of Isaac Bentley, Esq., near the Lodi Print Works, and there saw the cleanest fruit trees it has ever been our lot to meet with. Mr. Renno informed us that he used a solution made of one pound of best bleachers' soda (carbonate of soda) dissolved in one gallon of water, and that it is the best of all for fruit trees. All the fungi, dead bark, &c., are softened, and readily exfoliate from the healthy part of the bark during the growth of the tree. The surface of the cherry, peach, plum, nectarine, apricot, and many other kind of trees, seemed polished, and of a color most readily resembling that in the growth at the ends of the branches than usual. The trees were in excellent health, and we were informed that they bore superior crops to those not so treated. Within the last few days we have applied the solution with our own hands to a few trees, and of ascertaining if so strong a solution would injure the tender parts of the plants, have sprinkled it over the leaves of many tender shrubs, but as yet they are uninjured, while the inner part of vegetables are readily decomposed by it.—Working Farmer.

Cooked and Uncooked Food for Fattening.

In our last, we published views of a machine for pulping turnips and other root food for cattle, and stated that some conclusive experiments had been made which has shewn, when proved it to be more valuable than cooked food. The experiments alluded to were first published in the Irish Farmer's Gazette, and consisted in feeding one lot of hogs on cooked turnips and barley meal, and another on raw turnips crushed, adding meal, the proportions used by farmers before being fed. There were four hogs in each lot. Those fed on cooked turnips weighed, when the experiment commenced, on the 27th November, 1852, 816 lbs. This lot were fed three times a day, and consumed 20 lbs daily, and 10 lbs of meal mixed with 12 lbs. of bran and barley meal. In thirty nine days they had gained an average each of 103 lbs., or an aggregate of 412 lbs. To produce this gain there were consumed 9,920 lbs. of turnips, and 468 lbs. of bran and barley meal. The other lot of four hogs weighed, at the commencement of the experiment, 792 lbs.—They, too, were fed three times a day, and consumed 140 lbs. pulped turnips, fermented and mixed with 12 lbs. of bran and meal. It will be seen that the hogs fed on raw turnips consumed just half the quantity given to the others, while they gained an average each of 110 lbs., and 28 lbs. more than those fed on cooked turnips. In cooking the latter, just a ton of coal was consumed in the thirty-nine days. The pulped turnips, bran, and meal, stood three or four days before being fed. Each lot of hogs had a box in the bottom for a part of the water in the turnips to run out into troughs, which otherwise was found to check the fermentation. The liquor received in the troughs was fed to young pigs. We agree with the Genesee Farmer, that turnips contain (90 per cent) too much water for cooking (10 per cent) to fatten hogs economically. A part of the nutritive element in the turnips passes out of the system by the bowels and a part from the skin and blood, by the kidneys, dissolved in an excess of urine. A little dust on the roots, and more barley, oat, or corn meal, would be cheaper and better food.

The proposition of feeding stock on uncooked roots, pulped, is well worthy the attention of all farmers, since a saving of a few cents in the fattening of each animal is a gain of many millions of dollars to the agricultural interest. We hope that many of our enterprising, thinking people will examine into the subject, and themselves try experiments. We shall always be pleased to hear their views.—The Cultivator and Country Gentleman.

New Leicester Sheep.

The Long-wooled Sheep comprehend, first, the pure New Leicester Breed; and, secondly, the varieties more or less intermixed with it in blood, of which the principal are: 1st, the larger class of Lincolnshire Sheep; 2d, the Ramsey Marsh Breed; 3d, the Cotswold Breed; 4th, the Devonshire Notts; 5th, the Long-wooled Irish varieties. These last-named breeds are of large size, are destitute of horns in both sexes, and bear long wool, unsuited for preparation by the card, but eminently fitted for preparation by the comb, and the manufacture of stuffs termed worsted. They are the kinds of sheep especially adapted to the plains, and to districts where artificial food can be reared in the necessary quantity. They have been continually increasing in numbers with the extension of tillage and the general improvement of agriculture. Of the several varieties, the New Leicester Breed ought to stand the first claim with respect to form and the aptitude to fatten readily. The larger Lincolnshire the Romney Marsh, the Cotswold, and the improved Devonshire breed, have each properties which render their cultivation profitable under particular circumstances. Irish varieties have not yet generally attained to the perfection at which the others have arrived.—The People's Journal.

Management of Barn-Yard-Manure.

At the present day, no subject connected with agriculture is of deeper interest and importance, and deservedly so, as that of artificial manures—substances manufactured, or brought from a great distance at much cost, —while the manufacture of guano at home, in the barn-yard, is either altogether neglected or imperfectly attended to; and while we are for purchasing foreign manures, for purchase artificial or manufactured manures, we think—we are sure—it would be greatly to their interest, to know more about the composition of the manure of the hog-pen, the horse-barn, &c., and the reason of its beneficial action on all soils.

In this subject there is great diversity of opinion among scientific men, and also among the farmers themselves. Some farmers assert that manure is not worth the expense of hauling and spreading on the soil, while others think it is never applied but with benefit to the subsequent crops. There is undoubtedly a reason for this difference of opinion. The former was probably formed by drawing on the land a substance resembling good rich manure—made perhaps by cattle eating nothing but straw, and allowed to remain in the yard till all that was soluble was washed out of it, and what little ammonia in the first process evaporated into the atmosphere. We agree with the farmer who thinks such a manure hardly worth the labor of drawing out; at the same time we think that manure "as is manure" is never used without great benefit. We once more assert—and all our natures to repeat it—that unproved, or farmers act upon it—that the composition and value of all manure depends, not on the animals making it, but on the composition of the food consumed—that the more ammonia there will be in the manure, the more valuable it will be to apply to all the cereal crops.

Some farmers who understand this, and keep their stock on proper food, manage the manure they make so wretchedly that its value is lessened in many instances one-half. Then, again, some let the liquid excrements of the animals fund they are by far the most valuable containing all the alkaline phosphates and nine-tenths of the ammonia), run to waste, and are thus not only lost to the farm, but fill the atmosphere with gases injurious to animal life.

To prevent these losses, should be the great aim of the scientific farmer. The buildings should all be spouted, and the water not be allowed to run on the manure except at the discretion of the farmer, if this is done, there is sufficient waste straw on the yard in attendance to absorb all the urine. The next precaution will be not to let the horse dung remain in a loose heap, close to the stable door, sweating and fuming, sending off all its ammonia, the most valuable ingredient into the atmosphere; but it should be mixed with the cold and sluggish hog manure, the value of which would be owing to rapid fermentation and the loss of so much ammonia. Compression, by excluding the air, will also check decomposition. Yet it is desirable that the manure should ferment, and the bulk and weight be lessened before applied to the soil, by loss of its elements of fertility. This can be done by preventing leaching and the evaporation of ammonia. The latter is a somewhat difficult operation, and various plans have been recommended without much success. Sulphate of lime, or plaster, which dissolves in water, will decompose carbonate of ammonia, the sulphuric acid of the lime uniting with the ammonia, forming sulphate of ammonia, while the carbonic acid attaches itself to the lime, forming carbonate of lime; and as sulphate of ammonia is permanent as a salt, and of great value as a manure, the plaster of lime has been repeatedly recommended for this purpose. But it will only act in this way when in solution and as it requires 400 lbs. water to dissolve one pound of sulphate of lime, its beneficial effects are limited, under its use, or upon a fermenting manure heap, it immediately prevents the escape of ammonia. The high price of the article, however is against its economic use for this purpose; yet if farmers would only cover all the loose in the neighborhood, and learn how to manufacture the superphosphate themselves, it would be found the cheapest and the best of all ammoniacal fixers. Finely pulverized clay is a great absorbent of ammonia, and the covering the manure heap with a layer containing considerable clay, would retain a greater part if not all the ammonia, if decomposition was not allowed to proceed rapidly.

Hotels, &c.

HENNELL HOUSE,

LATE FREE MASON'S TAVERN,

Sandwich.

THIS House is pleasantly situated at the terminus of the Great Western Railroad from Windsor to Sandwich, and possesses all the requisites which are generally met with in first-class hotels—Good Beds, superior Stabling, and unimpeachable Liquors.

From the long experience of the present proprietor in this line of business, he is enabled to meet the wishes of his patrons in every particular, with promptness; and he will make it his study so to treat his visitors, that they may leave him with perfect satisfaction, and return with pleasure future occasions.

WM. HENNELL.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

SANDWICH EXCHANGE,

BEDFORD STREET, SANDWICH.

JACOB STUTTZ

IN returning thanks for past favors, begs to inform his Friends and the Public that he still keeps on hand the best of every thing in the line and a continuance of his customers, and trusts that by assiduity and attention to business, to merit their patronage and support.

N.B.—A Good Stable and Shed.

WESTERN HOUSE,

BY CYRUS DOBSON.

THIS Hotel, adjoining the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, has been put in first-rate repair, and the Proprietor hopes that, by strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a share of public patronage.

N.B.—There is an excellent stable attached to the premises, and an attentive ostler will always be in attendance.

Sandwich, 29th Feb. 1856.

THE COTTAGE INN,

BY ALEXANDER REAUMP,

THE Proprietor having lately leased the above comfortable premises, and having thoroughly repaired and refurnished the same, will be happy to receive all those travelling public at all hours. A supply of good old Ohio and Hot Water will always be found at the Bar, with all other choice Liquors.

The COTTAGE INN has good and comfortable Stables attached.

ALEXANDER REAUME.

Sandwich, February 29th, 1856.

TRAVELLERS' HOME,

T. HALEY, PROPRIETOR,

(Formerly of Aylmer, Canada West.)

THIS House having been fitted up in the most comfortable manner, the Proprietor hopes that, by keeping the choicest Liquors and a strict attention to business, to be able to give entire satisfaction to all who may favor him with a call. Attentive waiters and a well supplied table will always be found here.

Good Stabling and an attentive Ostler always in attendance.

N.B.—FRESH OYSTERS always on hand.

Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

PRINCE ALBERT HOTEL.

THIS Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Warner, has been thoroughly renovated, and will be kept well supplied with the very best liquors. An attentive man will always be in attendance to take charge of horses.

A private Parlor, for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen, has been fitted up.

F. X. TRUDELL,

Proprietor.

Sandwich Street,

29th February, 1856.

BROOKER'S TAVERN.

WM. BROOKER is prepared to attend upon his Customers at his new and well-furnished house near the Canard Bridge, where the Traveller will have his wants attended to in regard to food, Beds, Stabling, &c., and will respect to food and every accommodation as usual.

A supply of Groceries always kept on hand which will be sold very cheap.

February 29th, 1856.

ROYAL EXCHANGE.

JOHN BERGS announce to the Travelling Community, and Public in general, that he has opened the above new TAVERN, with good accommodations, and hopes by attention to his business, to merit a share of public patronage. A choice selection of Groceries always on hand.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

INTERNATIONAL

BILLIARD

SALOON,

Wind or, C.W. opposite the Depot of the Great Western Railway,

T. M. HOWRIGAN,

Proprietor.

The above Saloon is neatly and commodiously fitted up the Proprietor having spared no expense for that purpose of rendering it attractive to visitors.

The best of Cigars, Wines and Liquors always on hand.

Windsor, Feb. 29th, 1856.

AMERICAN HOTEL,

COURT HOUSE SQUARE, LONDON, C. W.

ROBERT ARKELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and Travelers that he has taken the above Hotel, which has undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The house is in a fine open, airy and central situation, and commands a delightful view of the valley of the Thames and surrounding country.

The Table is supplied with all the delicacies of the season. The Wines and Liquors will be of the best brands, and he trusts by assiduity and attention to the comfort of his guests to merit their patronage and support.

ROBERT ARKELL.

London, 29th Feb. 1856.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

COURTIER HOUSE

Corner of Erie and Seneca Streets,

Nearly Opposite the Buffalo & N. Falls Railroad.

B. F. POPPLE, MANAGER.

VISITORS visiting the Courtier House, Buffalo, will find every convenience and attention at reasonable charges. Tourists visiting Buffalo, will find this Hotel calculated to meet their wishes.

Buffalo, 29th Feb. 1856.

CIGAR FACTORY.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the Inhabitants of Amherstburg and vicinity that he has opened a Cigar Factory in the above Town, where every description of the choicest Kind are always on hand. He has also lately imported from Havana a large quantity of the very best Principal and every other description of Cigars, which he intends to sell at a much smaller price than can be had in Detroit. Call and see him, and he will give a pull.

JOHN N. MILLER.

Sandwich, 29th Feb. 1856.

S. D. ELWOOD & CO.,

PUBLISHERS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN

BOOKS, STATIONERY,

AND ALL KINDS OF

PAPERS,

PRINTERS AND BINDERS STOCK

MANUFACTURERS OF

BLANK BOOKS

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

Orders for Lithographed Letter and Bill Heads, Maps, Drafts, Stock Certificates, &c., &c., &c.,

EXECUTED WITH PROMPTNESS.

192 Jefferson Avenue,

S. D. ELWOOD,
J. CRAWFORD,

DETROIT.

Feb 29th, 1856.

New Hardware

GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT!

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and the Trade generally, that he has commenced business on his own account, in this City, as a

WHOLESALE GENERAL GROCER.

And is now receiving a large and carefully selected Stock of

GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, OILS, PAINTS, &c., &c., &c.

To which he confidently invites the attention of Western and City Merchants.

Premises—Jefferson Avenue West, opposite Messrs. McKeand, Bruce & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods Warehouse.

A. I. McKENZIE.

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

DETROIT SEED STORE

AND

AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.

I would call the attention of Farmers and Gardeners to my present stock of Agricultural Implements, consisting of the most useful and latest improved kind of Ploughs, Hay and Corn Stalk Cutting Boxes, Cultivators, Seed Planters, Corn Shellers, Fan Mills, Horse Rakes, Corn Planters, Cob Crushers, Churns, &c. Garden, Field, and Flower Seeds, raised by the most experienced and careful growers in this country and England, and I think purchasers may feel confident that every kind sold will prove true to their name, and give perfect satisfaction. All seed offered for sale will be of the present year's growth when offered as such.

E. F. PARKER.

75 Woodward Avenue, Detroit.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

ELEVENTH YEAR.

SPLENDID ENGRAVINGS AND PRIZES.

THE Eleventh Annual Volume of this useful publication commences on the 1st day of September next.

The "SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN" is an Illustrated Periodical, devoted chiefly to the Mechanical Information relating to the various Mechanic and Chemic Arts, Industrial Manufactures, Agriculture, Patents, Inventions Engineering, Millwork, and all interests which the head of PRACTICAL SCIENCE is enlisted to promote.

Reports of all the Patents Claims, together with News and Information upon Thousands of other Subjects.

The contributors to the Scientific American are among the most Eminent Scientific and practical men of the times. The Editorial Department is universally acknowledged to be distinguished, not only for the excellence and truthfulness of its discussions but for the fearlessness with which error is combated and false theories are exploded.

Mechanics, Inventors, Engineers Chemists, Manufacturers, Agriculturists, and People of every Profession in Life, will find the Scientific American to be of great value in their respective callings. Its counsels and suggestions will save them Hundreds of Dollars annually, besides affording them a continual source of knowledge, the experience of which is beyond pecuniary estimate.

The Scientific American is published once a week; every number contains eight large quarto pages, forming at the end a complete and splendid volume, illustrated with several hundred original engravings.

Specimen copies sent gratis.

TERMS—Two Dollars subscription, $2 a year or $1 for six months. Price copies for six months, 25; for a year, 38.

For further Club rates and for statement of the fourteen large Cash Prizes, offered by the publishers, see Scientific American.

Southern, Western and Canada money or Post Office Stamps taken at par for subscription.

Letters should be directed (post paid) to

MUNN & CO.,

128 Fulton St. New York

Messrs Munn & Co. have been, for many years extensively engaged procuring patents for new inventions, and will advise inventors without charge as regards the novelty of their improvements.

ALEXANDER GORDON,

NOTARY PUBLIC AND INSURANCE AGENT,

Sandwich & Windsor, Canada West.

REASON LIFE & FIRE

ASSURANCE COMPANY.

LONDON, ENGLAND, AND KINGSTON, CANADA.

CAPITAL £150,000 or $750,000,

With power to increase to Half a Million Sterling.

This substantial English Company is now in full operation throughout Canada, in the Life and Fire Departments, and the subscriber has also authority to take Risks, in both Departments, in the City of Detroit and vicinity.

ALEX. GORDON, Agent,

Western Frontier and Detroit.

Sandwich, C.W., Feb. 29th, 1856.

J. H. ALLISON,

IMPORTER OF

IMPROVED

RAILROAD WATCHES.

Cased in beautiful styles warranted excellent time keepers: do. Swiss full jewelled Levers of every style.

GOLD PENS.

I continue manufacturing Pens of every desirable pattern; these I have received

A SILVER MEDAL & DIPLOMA

At the Michigan State Fair, and are not to be surpassed by any Pens in the market.

ALSO DEALER IN

FINE JEWELLRY,

SILVER WARE,

AND FANCY GOODS.

I have an experienced Jeweller, capable of making New Work to order,

SETTING STONES AND DIAMOND WORK, &C.

FINE GILDING AND GALVANIZING

Done at Short Notice.

WATCH REPAIRING.

Being a Practical Workman, all work entrusted to my care will be carefully attended to.

GOLD PENS RE-POINTED

at 50 cents all sizes. Orders sent by mail, accompanied by cash, will be promptly attended to.

J. H. ALLISON,

No. 173 Jefferson Ave.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

LIVERY STABLE.—NOTICE.

THE Undersigned gives notice to all person or persons hiring Horses, Buggy or Carriage from his Livery Stable in Sandwich, will be held responsible for all damage done on Horses, Buggy or Carriage and harness, or delay of the same. Persons wishing to patronize him in his business will be pleased in taking the above articles at their own risk.

C. F. LABADIE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TILES, TILES.

THE Public are respectfully informed that T. M. & J. H. Worthington are Manufacturing and have on hand a large quantity of Tiles, for Draining Cellars, Fences, &c., at their Brick Yard, Westminster, two miles from London, and a quarter of a mile from Mr. J. Nesbit's Tavern, at First Toll Gate on the London Road. Which they will sell at the Low Price of £4 per 1000 with Soles or Bottoms, without £3 15s. They will be found to be much cheaper than any other Material for Draining as they will facilitate greatly in the labor, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when put down will never require cleaning. Samples can be seen at, and orders received at the Store of Mr. J. Fazell, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also, Brick, Tiles and Press Bricks for fronting Buildings of a superior quality.

London, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Crockery Store and China Emporium.

E. F. MATHER & Co., IMPORTERS and Dealers in Crockery, China, Glass, Iron and Wood Ware, Lamps, Chandeliers and Looking Glasses, Table Cutlery, and Fancy Ware, Sign of the Big White Pitcher, No. 223 Jefferson Avenue, Somerlied's Block, opposite Firemen's Hall, Detroit, Michigan.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

CARPETS. CARPETS.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

THE Subscribers have just received, ex last vessels, 5 PLY, AND SCOTCH CARPETINGS which they are prepared to offer at low prices, and are well worthy of inspection.

J. & J. HARRIS,

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Beecher, Rice and Ketchum.

CARPET & OIL CLOTH WAREHOUSE,

No. 142 Jefferson Avenue,

Canard Block, Detroit, Michigan.

BEECHER, HOLLISTER & WILKINS,

Carpet Hall, Lake Street, Chicago, Importers of Carpets, Oil Cloths, Paper-hangings Curtain and Upholstery materials.

A. A. RICE. L. BEECHER. E. P. HOLLISTER.
C. B. KETCHUM, D. WILKINS, JR.

Detroit, Feb. 29th, 1856.

JUST PUBLISHED,

CANADA

PHYSICAL, Economic and Social, by Adam Lillie, D.D. One Volume, 12mo, about 300 Pages. Maps of Canada East & West. Cloth 3s.; Stiff Covers 2s 9d.

MACLEAR & CO.,

Publishers, Toronto.

N.B.—Sent by Post to any part of North America or Europe, if desired.

Toronto, Feb. 29th, 1856.

NEW ESTABLISHMENT.

THE Subscriber begs leave to notify the Public that he will carry on business in the building lately occupied by T. Murphy, opposite the Hennell Hotel, where he intends to carry on the Tailoring Business in all its branches, and hopes by strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage.

N. B.—He will receive the Report of Fashion monthly.

Cutting done to order.

W. T. BASSANDALE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

THE SANDWICH MILLINERY AND DRESS MAKING Establishment will be reopened for the season.

The Proprietor having just returned from the Eastern Cities with a Large Stock of Millinery and Dress Goods of the latest style and fashion, which he offers for sale at a small advance from their original Cost.

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE

L. P. ST. AMOUR.

Sandwich, Feb 29th, 1856.

HIDES WANTED.

ANY Quantity of Hides will be taken in at the Sandwich Tannery at either of the Saddler's Shops in Sandwich or Windsor, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

JAS. WOODRUFF.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

WHEAT! WHEAT!! WHEAT!!!

AND CORN!!!

THE Highest Price will be paid in Cash for good Merchantable Wheat and Corn, either at the Store of the Subscriber, at Sandwich, or at the Rose Dale Mills.

GEO. & G. A. BULLOCK.

Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

BUILDING.

THE SUBSCRIBER, in returning thanks to the Inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor, and Vicinity for past favors, begs respectfully to inform them that he is now at Home, having finished his Contracts in the City of Detroit, and is prepared to enter into Contracts either by Jobbing or Day Work.

Brick or Wooden Buildings

Of any description, and furnish Material for the same.

HENRY TEAKLE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

TO BE SOLD

CHEAP FOR CASH,

The property of a person going to England, the following Real Property, viz:

FOUR Town Lots situated in the Town of Sandwich in the County of Essex enclosed in one block with a good Cottage, Stable, and a variety of choice grafted fruit, and a good well of water, being composed of Lots Nos. 13, 14, 15, and 16, on the East side of Russell street; also Water Lot No. 17, a good site for a Steam Mill; also Lot No. 16, on the West side of Bedford Street.

Lots No. 13 east half in 2nd Con. Rochester, 100 acres, also the East half of Lot No 8, in 4th Con. Sandwich, 100 acres.

Enquire of George Bullock Esq. Sandwich.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Patent Medicines.

DR. VERVAIS

Pulmonic Syrup,

A NEW PREPARATION OF

COD LIVER OIL SYRUP,

FOR THE CURE OF

COLDS, COUGHS, ASTHMA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, AND ALL DISEASES OF THE LUNGS.

SINCE the most excellent Medicines have been offered to the Public, and by excellent physicians, it must be thought superfluous on my part to offer any New Preparation. But from many years experience and practice, both in the laboratory and with my patients, I find that the above preparation is the best one ever offered to the Medical public. The Chemical Composition is such that the disagreeable taste is removed without in the least diminishing the virtues of the Oil. It can be taken with perfect safety in all seasons, and also during the changing of the constitution. And its properties are remarkable as instantaneously to remove the nervous irritability of the Lungs, soften the Cough, and remove the dryness of the throat and the viscid phlegm with which the passage of the lungs are loaded. It also, by its healing power, gives tone to the system, secures a free circulation of the blood, and opens every pore of the skin,—thus giving diversal egress to the impurities which all systems engender, and which are the true origin of nearly all the diseases to which human beings are liable. It cannot be said in favor of a Medicine which will restore the languishing and dying patient from a death-bed to the best health, and make him enjoy the real blessing of a healthy constitution. We have not that pretension. "Cod Liver Oil Syrup" is not a Medicine which will cure all diseases to which human beings are liable, but it will cure the diseases for which it is made, if the patient perseveres in the use of a bottle or two. The most ample experience justifies the Proprietor in speaking so candidly and confidently of his discovery. When Pulmonic Syrup have been suffering from severe cough, whooping cough, bronchial and catarrhal affections, have with the use of a few bottles, not only been restored to their wonted health, but even felt their constitution stronger than for many years previous. All persons who have once used Dr. Vervais' Pulmonic Syrup, have invariably procured more for the use of themselves and friends. The Proprietor again warrants his preparation to be everything he claims for it, and he only asks the trial of a single bottle to convince every one that it is without doubt, or hesitation the most palatable, speedy, and efficacious Medicine ever made use of in America. He has especially devoted 12 years to the preparation of such Medicines, and he can at last hail with pleasure and delight this wonderful preparation of the cods of Kamtschatka Remedy for the cure of nearly all Diseases of the Lungs, particularly Heeds Fevers, Night Sweats, Dyspnea, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all Pains in the Chest. I have only further to add that the Compound has not been extended beyond my limits as a prescription until astonishing success attended its use in removing the diseases for which I recommended it. It became very popular, and was called for so frequently, I found it necessary to prepare it in large quantities to meet the constant demand for it. Since the Medicine is carefully compounded by myself, who am thoroughly acquainted with the medicinal properties and effects of each article separately, and of their combined influence when chemically united and have also a perfect knowledge of the human system, and of the functions of each organ both in its healthy and diseased condition I can therefore recommend this preparation with the greatest confidence, and am therefore fully persuaded from past experience that it will give Universal Satisfaction; but, at the same time, I do not pretend to assert as medicines are generally lauded up to the eyes of the public, that it is a "Cure-All," nor that it is, under all circumstances, absolutely infallible. Yet I can truly say that I am acquainted with no chemical composition that acts so well for a tonic—expectorant in chronic cough, and catarrhal affection of debilitated habits, to re-establish a healthy condition of the secreting organs, to promote the dissolution of the deposite, and to give strength to the system—as this Cod-Liver Oil Syrup. Also in allaying the irritability of the muscular fibres of the bronchial tubes of the lungs and the spasmodic contraction of the air tubes in that dynastic patient, or in any case of dyspnea (tightness of breathing). Consumptive patients will find a great advantage in using this Syrup, not on account of facilitating the expectoration and giving rest, but being very nutritive in itself.

This will be found to be a true solution of the sufferer. There is no medicine which acts so quickly on the respiratory organs as this "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup," because it is received into the circulation, and determined to the lungs. The effects of the Syrup have been so successful in removing the various diseases for which it has been severally recommended it, that I hereby assure the public that they need not fear either to use or recommend it; as it will, in a far greater degree, perform all that is stated in the directions accompanying the Article.

Dose for a grown up person, one teaspoonful four or five time a day.—A child of eight to twelve years, half a teaspoonful three times a day—from one to two years of age, twenty drops three times a day.

AYER'S

PILLS

Are curing the Sick to an extent never before known of any Medicine.

INVALIDS, READ AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

JULES HAUEL, Esq., the well known perfumer, of Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, whose choice products are known in almost every house, says:

"I am happy to say of your CATHARTIC PILLS, that I have found them a perfect family medicine, and I commend use, than any other within my knowledge. Many of my friends have been astonished at the results of a few doses of them, and I am myself astonished at the results of a few doses of them, and I am myself astonished with me in believing that they possess extraordinary virtues in curing all diseases of the stomach. Your PILLS are not only effectual, but safe and pleasant to be taken—qualities very much wanting in other medicines with which I am acquainted."

The venerable Chancellor WARDLAW writes from Barnwell, South Carolina:

"Dr. J. C. AYER.—Sir: I have taken your Pills with great benefit, for indigestion, languor, loss of appetite, and bilious headaches, which has of late years troubled me in the spring. I am glad your Pills are offered me. I have used your Cherry Pectoral many years in my family for the relief and cure of colds, coughs, &c., and it is the best medicines which ever used: and I feel it a pleasure to commend you for the many good things you have done and are doing."

JOHN F. BEATTY, Esq., Sec. of the Penn. Railroad Company, writes:

"Dr. J. C. AYER.—Dear Sir: Acton, Me., May 25, 1852.

"Sir: I have used your CATHARTIC PILLS in my family with acrofula in its worst form, and now, after having taken three bottles of your Sarsaparilla, have been completely cured in a few weeks by your Pills. I have also used them in my family, for which I am grateful to be, while my means will procure them."

The widely renowned Dr. STEVENS, of Fall River, Mass., writes:

"Having used your CATHARTIC PILLS in my practice, I certify to my experience that they are an invaluable purgative. In cases of accumulated fullness of the stomach, causing headache, indigestion, costiveness, and the great variety of symptoms which arise from such a state of things, they are a superior remedy to any other. In all cases where a purgative remedy is required, they are the best cathartic we have ever used. They are also superior to any other I have ever found. They are sure in their operation, and never fail to relieve the patient. They are an invaluable article for public use. I have for many years known your Cherry Pectoral as one of the best remedies for coughs, colds, &c., and your Pills are in no wise inferior to that admirable preparation for the healing of diseases of the lungs."

"Acton, Me., May 25, 1852.

"Dr. J. C. AYER — DEAR SIR: I have used your Pills in my family with scrofula in its worst form, and now, after having taken three bottles of your Sarsaparilla, have been completely cured in a few weeks by your Pills. I have also used them in my family, for which I am grateful to be, while my means will procure them."

ANDREW J. MEEKEVE,

Overseer of the Poor of Acton, Middlesex County.

CAPT. JOEL PRATT, of the ship Marion, writes from Boston, 22nd April, 1852:

"Your Pills have cured me from a bilious attack which nine good doctors gave me up to die with. I was speechless, very serious. I had tried of my relief by my Physician, and from every part of the body. I took a few doses of your Pills and completely restored me to health. I have since given them to my children for worms, and they never fail of effecting them. They were promptly cured. I recommended them to my friends, and they have used them with the best effect. I could be told me in a few days they had cured him. They are the best medicine in the world; and I am free to say so."

Read the from the distinguished Solicitor of the Supreme Court, Wendell Phillips, Esq., of Boston, what he says of them, not only in this but the neighboring States.

"Dear Sir: I have great satisfaction in assuring you that myself and wife have been very much benefited by your medicines. My wife was afflicted with a severe cough, a very dangerous cough, by your CHERRY PECTORAL, and since then she has enjoyed perfect health. Your Pills have save several times been called from attacks of the Bilious Fever, by the timely use of your CATHARTIC PILLS, and for these complaints, YOUR CATHARTIC PILLS have entirely superseded the use of a dozen quack nostrums which we have been upon me for some years,—indeed, this came in the form of a letter, and I therefore have no hesitation in giving my name, and from my position, I am confident it will be read. Your Pills have done more for my family, and you may well suppose we are not an unlimited of it.

WENDELL PHILLIPS."

LLEWITT THAXTER."

"Senate Chamber, Boston, Mass., Jan. 1854.

"DR. J. C. AYER — Honored Sir: I have made a thorough trial of your CHERRY PECTORAL, and find that it has not been cured by them of the dreadful Rheumatic pains under which he found me suffering. The first dose relieved me, and a few subsequent doses have entirely removed the disease. I feel in better health now than for some years, and I attribute much of it to the effects of your CATHARTIC PILLS. Yours with great respect,

LUCIUS B. METCALF."

The above are all from persons who are publicly known to have their word taken, and who would not speak but what is known to be true, and who would not speak but what is known to be true, and who would not speak but what is without a thorough conviction that they were true.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO.,

Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass.

GEO. and G. A. BULLOCK, and J. A. VERVAIS, Sandwich;

D. OULLETTE, Windsor;

And every Druggist and Merchant in Canada.

MAPLE LEAF.

"PROGRESS."

VOL. I. SANDWICH, C. W., FRIDAY, MARCH 7, 1856. NO. 2.

THE MAPLE LEAF,

IS PUBLISHED

Every Friday Morning,

BY

J. H. WILKINSON,

BEDFORD STREET,

Sandwich, Canada West.

TERMS:—Eight shillings and ninepence Cy, per annum, if paid in advance; or Ten Shillings at the end of the year,

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Six lines or under, first insertion, 2s 6d, cy Each subsequent insertion, . . 0 7½ "

Advertisements over six lines, 4d per line for the first insertion, and one penny per line for every subsequent insertion. A liberal discount made to Merchants and others who advertise by the year.

Advertisements sent in for insertion without written directions, will be continued till forbid and the usual rates charged.

CLUBS.

Any person procuring 10 subscribers will be entitled to a copy gratis. Payment to be made in advance.

THE JOB OFFICE connected with the "MAPLE LEAF" is in every respect complete for the dispatch of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

Professional Cards.

Mr. William Johnson,
Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c., &c.
Sandwich, C. W.

Mr. Charles Baby,
Attorney and Councillor at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, &c.
Office, Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. J. H. Wilkinson.
Law, Chancery, Conveyancing, and Land Agency Office,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. Louis J. Thatt,
Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, Conveyancer and Land Agent,
Sandwich.

Mr. S. S. Macdonell,
Barrister, Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, &c., &c.
Windsor, C. W.

Mr. John O'Connor, Jun.,
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c.,
Windsor, C. W.

Charles Eugene Casgrain, M.D.
Physician and Surgeon,
Office and Residence, opposite the "Mear's Hotel,"
Sandwich, Canada West.

Dr. Reynolds,
Physician and Surgeon,
Amherstburg.

John Adley,
Physician and Surgeon, &c.,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Dr. Dewson. M. D.,
Physician, &c.,
WINDSOR, CANADA WEST.

John McCrae,
Auctioneer, Insurance and General Agent
Windsor, Canada West.

Bank of Upper Canada Agency,
Windsor, Canada West.
Office Hours, 9 to 12, A.M.; 2 to 4, P.M.

Philip S. Donnelly,
Provincial Land Surveyor, &c.,
Moore, County of Lambton.

P. Marentette,
Gunsmith and Manufacturer of Guns.
Every description of Fire-arms repair d at his shop, on Bedford Street,
Sandwich.

L. P. St. Amour,
IMPORTER, AND WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS
CROCKERY, HARDWARE,
PERFUMERY, &c,
Sandwich, Canada West.

Sandwich Post Office.

Open daily, from Nine till Twelve, A.M., and from half-past Twelve till Four, P.M.
P. H. MORIN, Post Master.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware
Crockery, Boots & Shoes
&C. &C. &C.
Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich.

THE HOLLY-TREE INN,

A NEW STORY,

BY CHARLES DICKENS.

Continued from our last.

The Holly-Tree was fast reviving within me a sense of loneliness. I began to feel conscious that my subject would never carry me on until I was dug out. I might be a week here—weeks!

There was a story with a singular idea in it, connected with an Inn I once passed a night at, in a picturesque old town on the Welch border. In a large, double bedded room of this Inn, there had been a suicide committed by poison, in one bed, while a tired traveller slept unconscious in the other. After the time, her suicide bed was never used, but the other constantly was; the disused bedstead remaining in the room empty, though as to all other respects in its old state. The story ran, that whosoever slept in this room, though never so entire a stranger, from never so far off, was invariably observed to come down in the morning with an impression that he smelt Laudanum; and that his mind always turned upon the subject of suicide: to which, whatever kind of man he might be, he was certain to make some reference if he conversed with any one. This went on for years, until it at length induced the landlord to take the disused bedstead down, and bodily burn it—bed, hangings, and all. The strange influence (this was the story), now changed to a better, but never changed afterwards. The occupant of that room, with occasional exceptions, would come down in the morning, trying to recall a forgotten dream he had had in the night. The landlord, on his mentioning his perplexity, would suggest various common-place subjects, not one of which, as he very well knew, was on the true subject. But the moment the landlord suggested "Poison," the traveller started, and cried "Yes!" He never failed to accept that suggestion, and he never recalled any more of the dream.

This reminiscence brought the Welch Inns in general, before me, with the women in their round hats, and the harpers with their white bears (venerable, but humbugs, I am afraid), playing outside the door while I took my dinner. The transition was natural to the Highland Inns, with the oatmeal bannocks, the honey, the venison steaks, the trout from the loch, the whiskey, and the flasks (say five gallons materials so tauntingly at hand) the Athol Brose. Once was I coming south from the Scottish Highlands in hot haste, hoping to change quickly at the station at the bottom of a certain wild historical glen, where those eyes did with a reticence so like landlord come out with a telescope and sweep the whole prospect for the horses: which horses were away picking up their own living, and did not heave in sight under four hours. Having thought of the loch-trout I was taken by quick association to the Anglers' Inns of England (I have assisted at innumerable feats of angling, by lying in the bottom of the boat, whole summer days, doing nothing with the greatest perseverance: which I have generally found to be as effectual toward the taking of fish as the finest tackle and the utmost science); and to the pleasant white, clean, flower-pot decorated bed-rooms of those inns, overlooking the river, and the ferry, and the green ait, and the church spire, and the country bridge; and to the peerless Emma with the bright eyes and the pretty smile who waited. bless her! with a natural grace that would have converted Blue Beard. Gazing my eyes upon Holly-Tree Inn, I next discerned among the glowing coals, the pictures of a score or more of those wonderful English posting-inns which we are all so sorry to have lost, which were so large and so comfortable, and which were such monuments of the British submission to rapacity and extortion. He who would see these houses pining away, let him walk from Basingstoke or even Windsor to London, by way of Hounslow, and moralise on their persisting remains; the stables crumbling to dust; unsettled laborers and wanderers bivouacking in the outhouses; grass growing in the yards; the rooms where erst so many hundred beds of down were made up, let off to Irish lodgers at eighteen-pence a-week; a little ill-looking beer-shop shrinking in the top of former days, burning coke-fire grates for fire-weed, having one of its two windows bunged up, as if it had received punishment in a fight with the Railroad; a low, bandy legged, brick-making bulldog standing in the door-way. What could I next see in my fire, so naturally, as the new railway-house of the same name on the inland country road; with nothing particular on draught but cold air damp, nothing worth mentioning in the larder but new mortar, and no business doing, beyond a conceited affectation of luggage in the hall? Then, I came to the Inns of Paris, with the pretty apartment of four rooms, one below and seventy-five winding stairs, the privilege of ringing the bell all day long without influencing anybody's mind or body but your own, and the not-too-much-for-dinner, considering the price. Next, to the provincial Inns of France, with the great church-tower rising above the courtyard, the horse-bells jingling merrily up and down the street beyond, and the clocks of all descriptions in all the rooms, which are never right, unless taken at the precise minute when by getting exactly twelve hours too fast or too slow, unintentionally become so. Away I went, next, to the lesser road-side Inns of Italy; where all the dirty clothes in the house (not in wear) are always lying in your ante room; where the mosquitoes make a rain in pudding of your face in summer, and the cold bites it blue in winter; where you get what you can, and forget what you can't; where I can, and forget what you can't; where I should again like to be boiling my tea in a pocket-handkerchief dumpling, for want of a tea-pot. So, to the old palace Inns and old monastery Inns, in towns and cities of the same bright country; with their massive quadrangular stair-cases whence you may look from among glistering pillars high into the blue vault of Heaven; with their stately banqueting-rooms, and vast refectories; with their labyrinths of ghostly bed chambers, and their glimpses into gorgeous streets that have no appearance of reality or possibility. So, to the close little Inns of the Palatine districts, with their pale attendants, and their peculiar smell of never letting in the air.—So, to the immense fantastic Inns of Venice, with the cry of the gondolier blow, as he skims the corner; the grip of watery odors on one particular little bit of the bridge of your nose (which is never released till you have left there); and the great bell of St. Mark's Cathedral tolling midnight. Next, I put up for a minute at the restless Inns upon the Rhine, where your going to bed, no matter at what hour, appears to be the tocsin for everybody else's getting up; and where, in the table d'hote room at the end of the long table, there is a row of shelves all about on it at the other end, all made of white plates), one knot of stoutish men, entirely drest in jewels and dirt, and having nothing else upon them, will remain all night, clinking glasses, and singing about the river that flows and the grape that grows and Rhine wine that is the finest wine in the world; a woman that smiles and hi faints in the dirt, and is carried off by another man, who may be her husband, or may be her brother, and all the rest of it. I departed thence, as matter of course, to other German Inns, where all the eatables are served down to the same flavor, and where the mind is disturbed by the apparition of hot puddings, and boiled cherries sweet and slab, at awfully unexpected periods of the repast. After a draught of sparkling beer from a foaming glass jug, and a recognition through the windows of the student beer-houses at Heidelberg and elsewhere, I put out to sea for the Inns of America, with their four hundred beds a-piece, and their eight or nine hundred ladies and gentlemen at dinner every-day. Again, I stood in the bar-rooms thereof, taking my evening cobbler, julep, sling, or cocktail. Again, I listened to my friend the General—whom I had known for five minutes, in the course of which period he had made me intimate for life with two Majors, who again had made me intimate for life with three Colonels, who again had made me brother to twenty-two civilians—again, I say, I listened to my friend the General expounding the resources of the establishment, as to gentlemen's morning-room, sir; ladies' morning-room, sir; gentlemen's evening room, sir; ladies' evening-room sir; ladies' and gentlemen's evening reunting-room, sir; music-room, sir; reading-room, sir; all over four-hundred feet long. And the entire planned and finished within two or three calender months from the first clearing off of the old incumbrances on the plot at a cost of five hundred thousand dollars, sir. Again I found, as to my individual way of thinking, that the greater the more gorgeous, and the more dollarous, the establishment was, the less desirable it was. Nevertheless, again I drank my cobbler, julep, sling, or cock-tail, in all goodwill to my friend the General, and my friends the Majors, Colonels, and civilians, all; full well knowing that whatever little moles my brainy eyes may have descried in them, they feeding on a kind, generous, large-hearted, and great people.

I had been going on lately, at a quick pace, to keep my solitude out of my mind; but, here I broke down for good, and gave up the subject. What was I to do? What was to become of me? Into what extremity was I submissively to sink? Supposing that, like Baron Trenck, I looked out for a mouse or spider, and found one, and beguiled my imprisonment by training it!—Even that might be dangerous with a view to the future. I might be so long alone with the rod that come to be cut through the snow, that, on my way forth, I might burst into tears, and beseech, like the prisoner who was released in his old age from the Bastile to be taken back again to the five windows, the ten curtains, and the sinuous drapery.

A desperate idea came into my head.—Under any other circumstances I should have rejected it; but in the strait at which I was, I held it it fast. Could I so far overcome the inherent bashfulness which withheld me from the landlord's table and the company I might find there, as to invite him, in confidence, under various pretences, with some of the inmates of the house, singly—with the object of getting from each, either a whole autobiography or, a passage or experience in one, with which I could chest the tardy time; first of all by seeking out, then by learning, and then by remembering and writing down! Could I, I asked myself, so far overcome my retiring nature as to do this? I could. I would. I did.

The results of this conception I proceed to give, in the exact order in which I attained them. I began my plan of operations at once, and, by slow approaches and after overcoming many obstacles (all of my own making, I believe), reached the story of:

THE OSTLER.

I find an old man, fast asleep, in one of the stalls of the stable. It is mid-day, and rather a strange time for an ostler to devote to sleep. Something serious, too, about the man's face. A withered, woe-begone face. The eyebrows painfully contracted; the mouth fast set, and drawn down at the corners; the hollow cheeks sadly, and, as I can not help fancying, prematurely wrinkled; the scanty, grizzled hair, telling weakly its own tale of some past sorrow or suffering. How fast he draws his breath, too, for a man asleep! He is talking in his sleep.

"Wake up!" I hear him say, in a quick whisper through his fast clenched teeth.—"Wake up dear! Murder! O Lord help me! Lord help me, alone in this place!"

He stops, and sighs again—moves one lean arm slowly, till it rests over his throat—shudders a little, and turns on his straw—the arm leaves his throat—the hand stretches itself out, and clutches at the side towards which he had turned, as if he dimly found himself to be grasping at the edge of something. Is he waking? No—there is the whisper again; he is still talking in his sleep.

"Light grey eyes!" he says now, "and a droop in the left eyelid. Yes! yes!—flaxen hair with a gold-yellow streak in it—all right, mother—all right. Two arms with a cross tattooed on either—little lady's hand, with a reddish look under the finger nails—and the knife—always the cursed knife—first on one side, then on the other. Aha! you shedevil, where's the knife! Never mind, mother—too late now. I've promised to marry, and marry I must. Murder! wake up then for God's sake, wake up!"

At the last words his voice rises, and he grows so restless on a sudden, that I draw back quietly to the door. I see him shuder on the straw—his withered face grows distorted—he throws up both his hands with a quick, hysterical gasp; they strike against what is the bottom of the manger under which he lies; the blow awakens him; I have just time to slip through the door, before his eyes are fairly opened and his senses are thoroughly collected.

What I have seen and heard has so startled and shocked me, that I feel my heart beating fast, I softly and quickly retrace my steps across the inn-yard. The discomposure that is going on within me, apparently shows itself in my face; for, as I get back to the covered way leading to the Inn stairs, the landlord, who is just coming out of the house to ring some bell in the yard, stops astonished, and asks what is the matter with me? I tell him what I have just seen.

"Aha!" says the landlord, with an air of relief. "I understand now. Poor old chap! He was only dreaming his old dream over again. There's the queerest story—of a dreadful kind, too, mind you—connected with him and his dream, that ever was told."

I entreat the landlord to tell me the story. After a little hesitation, he complies with my request.

Some years ago, there lived in the suburbs of a large sea-port town on the west coast of England, a man in humble circumstances, by name Isaac Scatchard. His means of subsistence were derived from my employment that he could get, as an ostler; and, occasionally, when times went well with him, from temporary engagements in service as stable-helper in private houses. Though a faithful, steady, and honest man, he got on badly in his calling. His ill-luck was proverbial among his neighbours. He was always missing good opportunities, by no fault of his own; and always living longest in service with amiable people who were not punctual payers of wages. "Unlucky Isaac" was his nickname in his own neighbourhood—and no one could say that he did not richly deserve it.

With far more than one man's fair share of adversity to endure, Isaac had but one consolation to support him—and that was the dreariest and most negative kind—that he had no wife and children to increase his anxieties and add to the bitterness of his various failures in life. It might have been from mere insensibility, or it might have been from generous unwillingness to involve another in his own unlucky destiny—but the fact undoubtedly was, that Isaac arrived at the middle term of life without marrying; and, what is much more remarkable, without once exposing himself, from eighteen to eight and thirty, to the genial imputation of ever having had a sweetheart. When he was out of service, he lived alone with his widowed mother. Mrs. Scatchard was a woman above the average in her lowly station, as to capacities and manners. She had seen better days, as the phrase is; but she never referred to them in the presence of curious visitors; and though perfectly polite to every one who approached her, she held aloof from all intimacies among her neighbours. She contrived to provide hardly enough, for her simple wants, by doing rough work for the tailors; and always managed to keep a decent home for her son to return to, whenever his ill luck drove him out helpless into the world.

One bleak autumn, when Isaac was getting on fast towards forty, and when he was, as usual, out of place, through no fault of his own, he set forth from his mother's cottage on a long walk inland to a gentleman's seat, where he had heard that a stable-helper was wanted. It was then his birthday; and Mrs. Scatchard, with her usual fondness, made him promise, before he started, that he would be back in time to keep that anniversary with her, in as festive a way as their poor means would allow. It was easy for him to comply with this request, even supposing he slept a night each way on the road. He was to start from home on Monday morning; and whether he got the new place or not, he was to be back for his birthday dinner on Wednesday at two o'clock.

Arriving at his destination too late on the Monday night to make application for the stable-helper's place, he slept at the village inn, and, in good time on the Tuesday morning, presented himself at the gentleman's house, to fill the vacant situation. Here, again, his ill-luck pursued him as inexorably as ever. The excellent written testimonials as to character, which he was able to produce, availed him nothing; his long walk had been taken in vain—only the day before, the stable-helper's place had been given to another man.

Isaac accepted this new disappointment meekly, and took his departure with no appearance of unusual depression in his face or manner. Before starting on his homeward walk, he made some enquiries at the inn, and ascertained that he might save a few miles, on his return, by following a new road. Furnished with full instructions, several times repeated, as to the various turnings he was to take, he set forth for his homeward journey, and walked on all day with only one stoppage for bread and cheese. Just as it was getting towards dark, the rain came on and the wind began to rise; and he found himself, to make matters worse, in a part of the country which he was entirely unacquainted, though he knew himself to be some fifteen miles from home.—The first house he found to enquire at was a lonely road-side inn, standing on the outskirts of a thick wood. Solitary as the place looked, it was welcome to a lost man who was soaked, and tired, footsore, and wet. The landlord was a civil, respectable looking man; and the price he asked for a bed was reasonable enough. Isaac therefore decided on stopping comfortably at the inn for that night.

At a little after eleven the house was closed. Isaac went round with the landlord and held the candle while the doors and lower windows were being secured. He noticed with surprise the strength of the bolts, bars, and iron sheathed shutters.

"You are well armed against robbers here," said the landlord. "We never have had any attempts made to break in yet, but it's always as well to be on the safe side. When nobody is sleeping here, I am the only man in the house. My wife and daughter are timid, and the servant-girl takes after her mistresses. Another glass of ale, before you turn in?—No?—Well, how such a sober man as you comes to be out of place is more than I can make out, for one.—Here's where you're to sleep. You're our only lodger to-night, and I think you'll say my missus has done her best to make you comfortable. You're quite sure you won't have another glass of ale?—Very well. Good night."

It was half-past eleven by the clock in the passage as they went up stairs to the bed-room, the window of which looked on to the wood at the back of the house. As Isaac locked the door, sat his candle on the chest of drawers, and wearily got ready for bed. The bleak autumn wind was still blowing, and the solemn, monotous, surging moan of it in the wood was dreary and awful to hear through the night-silence.—Isaac felt strangely wakeful, and restless, as he lay down in bed, to keep the candle alight until he began to grow sleepy; for there was something unendurably depressing in the bare idea of lying awake in the darkness, listening to the dismal, ceaseless moaning of the wind in the wood.

Sleep stole on him before he was aware of it. His eyes closed, and he fell off insensibly to rest, without having so much as thought of extinguishing the candle.

The first sensation of which he was conscious after sinking into slumber, was a strange shivering that ran through him suddenly from head to foot, and a dreadful sinking at the heart, such as he had never felt before. The shivering only disturbed his slumbers—the pain woke him instantly. In one moment he passed from a state of sleep to a state of wakefulness—his eyes wide open—his mental perceptions cleared on a sudden as if by a miracle.

The candle had burnt down nearly to the last morsal of tallow; but the top of the unsnuffed wick had just fallen off, and the light in the little room was, for the moment, fair and full. Between the foot of his bed and the closed door there stood a woman with a knife in her hand, looking at him.

She was a speechless with terror, but he did not lose the preternatural clearness of his faculties; and he never took his eyes off the woman. She said not one word as they stared each other in the face; but she began to move slowly towards the left-hand side of the bed.

He closely followed her. She was a fair, fine woman, with yellowish flaxen hair, and light gray eyes, with a droop in the left eyelid. He noticed these things and fixed them on his mind, before she was round at the side of the bed. Speechless, with the expression of the same fear in her face, or, may be, I saw a g[illegible] in either way, it seared me out of my senses, and I am not my own man again yet."

"Isaac, your face frightens me. Come in to the fire. Come in, and tell mother all about it."

He was as anxious to tell as she was to hear; for it had been his hope, all the way home, that his mother, with her quicker capacity and superior knowledge, might be able to throw some light on the mystery which he could not clear up for himself. His memory of the dream was still mechanically vivid, though his thoughts were entirely confused by it.

His mother's face grew paler and paler as he went on. She never interrupted him by so much as a single word; but when he had done, she moved her chair close to his, put her arm round his neck, and said to him:

"Isaac, you dreamed your ill dream on this Wednesday morning. What time was it when you saw the fair woman with the knife in her hand?"

Isaac reflected on what the landlord had said when they passed by the clock on his leaving the inn—allowed as nearly as he could for the time that must have elapsed between the unlocking of his bedroom door and the paying of his bill just before going away, and answered:

"Somewhere about two o'clock in the morning."

His mother suddenly quitted her hold of his neck, and struck her hands together with a gesture of despair.

"This Wednesday is your birthday, Isaac; and two o'clock in the morning was the time when you were born."

Isaac's rapacities were not quick enough to catch the infection of his mother's superstitious dread. He was amazed and a little startled also, when she suddenly rose from her chair, opened her old writing desk, took out pen, ink and paper, and then said to him:

"Your memory is but a poor one, Isaac, and now I'm an old woman, mine's no much better. I want all about this dream of yours to be as well known to both of us years hence, as it is now. Tell me over again all you told me a minute ago, when you spoke of what the woman with the knife looked like."

Poetry.

Song of the War.

From the Dublin University Magazine.

Oh! if the mighty voices of the press
Truth's echoes are—if nations long enchain'd
Have any hope that freedom be regained
By dint of our hard, bloody-bought success
In the Crimean shambles, nor redress
Would seek save by our brands with carnage stained
In freedom's sacred cause, and unprofaned
By wild ambition or licentiousness,
They have like reason to believe and know
That ev'ry timid, power and treacherous friend
Of liberty, as well as open foe,
Can but expect—unless Heav'n wisdom send—
Ills, of which none that now are felt by old And feudal anarchs can a thought unfold!

Miscellany.

SCENE UPON A STEAMBOAT.—Captain (lawfully riled) "How came you to turn in with your boots on?" Backwoodsman (who had just woke up:)—Why, do you want a fellar to turn in here among those varumits barefooted?"

FRIENDSHIP.—It is not the least advantage of friendship, that by communicating our thoughts to another, we render them distinct to ourselves, and reduce the subject of our sorrow and anxiety to their just magnitude for our own contemplation.—Coleridge.

A young Scotchman having wooed a buxom damsel, persuaded her to accompany him to a Scottish Justice of the Peace, to have the ceremony performed. They stood very meekly under the operation, until the magistrate was laying the damsel under obligations to obey her husband. "Say no more about that, sir," said the half made husband.—"If this hand remains upon my body, I'll make her obey me! Are we married yet?" said the expectant maiden to the mother of covenants between man and woman. "No," said the wondering Justice. "Ah! very well," cried she, "we will finis's the remainder to morrow;" and away skipped the expectant damsel, congratulating herself on her narrow escape.

IMPUDENCE.—You'll come to want, I'm afraid," said an old lady to a young gentleman. "I have come to want already," was the prompt reply; "I want your daughter." The old lady screamed, then went into the next room and hysterics.

TIME.—No preacher is listened to but Time, which gives us the same train and turn of thought that other people have tried in vain to put into our heads before.—Swift.

NO PERFECTION.—Nauman was a mighty man, but he was a leper. Every man has some but or other in his character—

[illegible] very happy—
[illegible] other not [illegible] happy as he should be. Nauman was as great as the world could make him; and yet, as Bishop Hall says of Naaman the Assyrian leper in Syria would not have changed skin as with him.—Mat. Henry.

ABERNETHY AND THE YANKEE CAPTAIN.—An American captain, on being one morning shown into Abernethy's consulting room, immediately, in Yankee fashion, cropped out the cuteness of his mouth upon the floor. "The man of medicine stared, keeping his hands in his pockets, according to custom, until the patient should explain. "What shall I do for my dyspepsy?" asked the American captain. "Pay me my fee, and I'll tell you," replied the doctor. The money was produced, and this advice given, "Instead of squirting your saliva over my carpet, keep it to lubricate your food with."

A merchant in this city suddenly entered his counting house the other day, and found one of his clerks raising a large book in the air with the end resting on his chin.

"Why aint you at work?" he inquired.

"I am, sir."

"You aren't at what work?"

"Balancing the ledger, sir."

That was rather a "fast" specimen of juvenile "Young America," not yet inducted into trousers, who said one day recently to his father—

"Father, come and get me this apple."

There being no signs of compliance, the young "chip" exclaimed:

"Father, why don't you start? I always start when you tell me!

A gentleman talking to another on the subject of marriage, made the following observation: "I first saw my wife in a storm: carried her to a ball in a storm; married her in a storm; lived in a storm all her life; but, thank heaven, I buried her in pleasant weather."

A certain cockney blackeard, overcome by his sensibilities, fainted at the grave of his fourth spouse.

"What shall we do with him?" asked a perplexed friend of his. "Let him alone," said a waggish by-stander, "he'll soon revive."

They had something of a hail-storm out in Ohio, last week, says the New York Dutchman. Some of the lumps were as large as watermelons, and made such holes in the ground by people talk of putting doors to them and using them for potato cellars. Great State that Ohio. It aint nothing else, Mynheer.

NAILS GROWING INTO THE FLESH.—A late writer in the Ohio Cultivator gives the following remedy: Cut a notch in the middle of the nail, every time the nail is pared. Be disposition to close the notch draws the nail up from both sides. It cured mine after I had suffered weeks with its festering.

SELF KNOWLEDGE.—If amidst all other studies you do not learn to converse and commune with your own selves, whatever you know, or rather whatever you imagine you know, I would not purchase it at the expense of a straw.—Archbishop Leighton

A Swindler Caught.

BOSTON, Feb. 27th.

Daniel C. Emery was last night arrested charged with committing forgeries in Philadelphia as follows:—A check for $425 on the Bank of Pennsylvania; one for $692 on the Southwark Bank; one on the Gerard Bank for $1,587 41 cents, and one on the Farmer's and Mechanics' Bank for $1,000. About ten years since Emery was convicted and sentenced to ten years in the State Prison, for forgeries on several Boston firms, but was pardoned after two years. He was arrested last night at the Winthrop House where he has been boarding with his wife and two children. He is about 32 years old. —Leader.

A gentleman from Holly Springs, by the train last night, gives the following particulars of a most awful and distressing agony:

Mr. R. R. Cox, on Wednesday last, shot his wife, killing her instantly, and then shot himself through the head. When the servants broke into their room, both were found dead and weltering in their blood! Mr. Cox was at times partially insane. He formerly resided in this city, in South Memphis, at a place known as the "Swiss Cottage." He was a most worthy young man, and the awful calamity just recorded can be attributed only to insanity, with which his friends believed him to be afflicted for some time previous to this melancholy affair.—His wife (Miss Wilson, of Marshall county, Miss.) was a bride of but six weeks.

Mr. Cox is the third male member of a worthy family who have died a violent death within the last eight or ten years.—One, in a fit of insanity threw himself from the deck of a Mississipi steamer, and was drowned; another was slain by the accidental discharge of a double barrelled shot-gun, when hunting on a camp hunt; and now we have to record the death of still another, and that of his fair young wife, by his own hands! My God, in his mercy, stay his afflicting hand from the surviving members of their stricken families!—Memphis Enquirer 15th.

☞ The Kingstonians have been making a move towards securing the holding of the next Provincial Agricultural Fair in their city. A public meeting has been held, and measures adopted and entered into to secure the construction of a Crystal Palace, to be used by the Government, Local Agricultural, Horticultural, and Floricultural Societies. A committee has been nominated for the purpose of procuring plans suitable, and estimating the expense necessary to be incurred, for the structure.—one to be a credit to the Province and an ornament to that particular locality.—Western Planet.

A number of the citizens have set on foot a scheme for the purpose of procuring and presenting to William Lyon McKenzie a suitable testimonial as an appreciation of [illegible] services as a public man during the last thirty years. The [illegible] contemplated to [illegible] good homestead, [illegible] man and his inte[illegible] and independent [illegible].—Western Planet.

By an extra "Canada Gazette" of Wednesday last, we perceive that Lord Bury has actually resigned his post as the Governor's Private Secretary and Superintendent General of Indian affairs, and that His Excellency has been pleased to appoint Richard Theodore Pennefather, Esq., to fill the vacated offices—as we surmised some time since.

THE VALUE OF A GOOD EXCUSE.—A young gentleman having broken his appointment with Dr. Franklin, waited on him the following day, and made a very handsome apology for his absence. He was proceeding, when the doctor stopped him with, 'my good boy, say no more—you have said too much already; for the man who is so good at making an excuse, is seldom good at anything else.'

SIR JOHN FRANKLIN.

At the last sitting of the Geographical Society of Paris, M. de la Roquette, one of the members of that body, read a very interesting paper on the expeditions of the celebrated English navigator named above, and on the discovery of the North-West Passage. After giving an account of the labors of Sir John Franklin, and of the information respecting his companions during the late expedition under Dr. Rae, an account of which has been recently published, M. de la Roquette concludes as follows:—"Now that, according to all appearances, no further hope can be entertained of again seeing these brave and unfortunate navigators, the moment appears favorable for examining what they have done, and whatsoever of it they belongs to them in the solution of the question of a passage between the Atlantic and the Pacific. While waiting for the formation of a special committee, composed of competent men, to be appointed in England, to tender homage to the memory of one of her most illustrious navigators, we may be permitted to express our ideas on the subject.

During the first two expeditions on the coasts of the Arctic ocean, under the command of Franklin—from 1819 to 1822, and from 1825 to 1827—the extreme point reached by him to the east was Cape Turnagain (112 deg. long. W of Greenwich, and to the west Return Reef (14 deg. 57 W. long), leaving in the latter direction an unexplored distance of not more than 160 miles. That space was more than filled up in 1837 by Dease and Simpson, who managed to go from Lancaster Strait and Barrow Strait, reached in the Spring of 1850, probably by following the Peel and Victoria Straits, the mouth of Beck's River, where the remains of their vessels were found, there is no doubt that when the mouth of that river was arrived at, the north-west passage was discovered.

These are literally the terms made use of by Lieut. Pim, by Sir Roderick Murchison, formerly president of the Geographical Society of London, before the select committee of the House of Commons. The question was discussed at great length, and decided affirmatively before the same committees, which did not, however, feel itself sufficiently authorised to pronounce as far as Franklin and his companions, or Captain Washington, by order of the Admiralty; by Sir Roderick Murchison, by Captain Collinson and others. Admiral Sir Beaufort, formerly hydrographer to the Admiralty, Sir John Richardson, one of the most renowned explorers in the Arctic seas, Dr. Hawk, president of the Geographical Society of New York, Mr. Grinnel, and several eminent men, have also expressed in writing a similar opinion. Strong in the view of such imposing authorities, and after having studied the principal official and private publications which have appeared on the subject, I think I am fully authorised in declaring with the last admiralty that before us that Franklin or his companions appear to have been the first to solve in coming from the east the famous problem of the passage between the two oceans. This opinion, however, does not in any way take from the glory and merit of Captain Sir Robert M'Clure, whose voyage of discovery was accomplished somewhat later from the west and north of Barin's Island." —Gallignani.

We understand that His Excellency the GOVERNOR GENERAL yesterday, confirmed the Report of the University of Commission, which, we are happy to say, completely exonerates Dr. MCCAUL from the charge brought against him. Such a result could only be anticipated when the evidence became known; and, we will venture to add, that never was a man of any rank in life accused upon such frivolous and unreliable testimony. Indeed, it was fortunate for society that such was the case. Had the witnesses made a better tale, it is not unlikely that success in changing credence, would have stimulated a few diseased minds who crave for notoriety to get up similar accusations against others of the community. The criminal records of every country are full of such proceedings. We trust, however, that we have seen the last of them; and that those who suffer from curiosity and suspicion, will, before they give currency to an accusation, satisfy themselves that in their desire to guard over the public morality, they are not propagating slanders.—Scandal is generally welcome, and those who have some serious backbiting to witness, are always well received. The facts disclosed at the late enquiry should make those garrulous people somewhat cautious. After all the gossip and surmises it turns out, that in reality there is no evidence at all, on which a known malefactor would have been convicted. It is not for us to say, after a careful perusal of the evidence, that public opinion will fully endorse the decision of the Commission, and we hope that the whole business will be now cast aside for ever. Perhaps the party most affected, Dr. MCCAUL, will be the last to forget the ordeal [illegible] has undergone pending the [illegible] result of this rig[illegible] however, be most [illegible] especially as it has [illegible] verdict which the [illegible] part of the community had already pronounced.—Leader.

The Alexandria 'Gazette' has been shown by a gentleman living in Fairfax, C. H., a specie of hog that fell at that place during the rain of Saturday last. It is very black, discarding the snow, and not a little larger than a grain of coarse powder. Cold will not kill this mysterious celestial hog.

APPOINTMENTS.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE,

Toronto, 1st March, 1856.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL has been pleased to make the following appointments, viz:

MICHAEL LAVELLE, Esquire, M. D.

AMOS MCCRAE, Esquire, M. D. and

THOMAS W. POOLE, Esquire, M. D. to be Associate Coroners for the United Counties of Peterborough and Victoria.

JOHN HYNDMAN, Esquire, M. D. and

PATRICK FLANNAGAN, Esquire, to be associate Coroners for the United Counties of Huron and Bruce.

DAVID YOUNG LESLIE, Esquire, Survey or in Her Majesty's Customs, to be a Collector of Customs.

JAMES KING, of Kingsville, County of Essex, Esq. to be a Collector of Customs.

GEORGE M BARTON, of Dundas, Esquire, Solicitor.

OLIVER SPRINGER, of Hamilton, Esquire, Barrister and Attorney at Law, and DANIEL HOME LIZARS, of Stratford, Esq. Barrister at Law, to be Notaries Public in Upper Canada.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE,

Toronto, 28th February, 1856.

His Excellency the Governor General has been pleased to appoint RICHARD THEODORE PENNEFATHER, Esquire, to be Governor's Secretary and Superintendent General of Indian Affairs, in the place of The Right Honorable Viscount Bury, resigned.

MILITARY DISTRICT NUMBER NINE, UPPER CANADA.

First Battallion, Essex.

To be Lieutenant-Colonel:

Lieutenant Colonel James B. Askin, from To be Major:

late 3rd Essex.

Major William D. Baby, from late 3rd Essex,

To be Captains:

Captain Constant Gauthier, from late 3rd Essex.

" Dominique Langlois, do

" Luc Ouillette, do

" Alexis Maisonville, do

" Pierre Hector Morin, do

" Pierre Marentette, do

Lieutenant Denis Downing, do

" John A. Askin, do

" Edward Bolsmier, do

To be Lieutenants:

Lieutenant Jérome Demouchelle, from late 3d Essex.

" C. F. Labadie, do

" Laurent Meloche, do

Ensign John D. Askin, do

" John Watson, do

" Moses Labadie, do

" John McCrea, do

" Thomas McKee, do

" Charles H. Askin, do

Joseph Mercer, and Gabriel Bondy, junior, Gentlemen.

To be Ensigns:

Ensign Richard Besthaame, from late 3rd Essex.

" John Halford.

" Laurent Réaume,

" James McKee,

" Léon Langlois,

" Pierre Defour,

" Paul LeDuc,

" Francis Lespérance,

" Celestin Allen,

" Oliver Maisonville,

" Victor Ouillette.

" Denis Dronillard, and " Magloire Parent, Gentlemen.

To be Adjutant:

Ensign Victor Ouellette.

To be Quarter-Master:

Quarter-Master John D. Laughton, from late 3d Essex.

Fourth Battalion, Essex.

To be Lieutenant-Colonel:

Major James King, from late 1st Essex.

To be Major:

Captain Peter G. Malotte, from late 1st Essex.

To be Captains:

Lieutenant Theodore Malotte, from late 1st Essex,

" Jonathan Wingfield, do

Ensign Ralph Foster, do

" John Wigle, do

" Benjamin Siddall, do

" Michael W. Wiggle, do

" Francis Wilkinson, do

Ensign Jean Ortona, do

Leonard Nightingale, and William Malotte, Esquires.

To be Lieutenants:

Solomon Wigle,

Ellis Hill,

James W. King,

Lewis Nightingale,

John Cascaddan,

William Malotte.

Henry Harris,

Thomas Ganyo,

John Cottis, and John Thayer, Gentleman

To be Ensigns:

Henry Rt. Scratch,

John H. Black,

Peter H. Scratch,

Alneson McDonald,

John Lamarsh,

Robert Alneson Atkinson,

Theodore Scratch,

Leonard Fox,

Thomas Sanford,

Aaron C. Black,

To be Adjutant:

Lieutenant Thomas Ganyo.

To be Quarter-Master:

James Elliott, Gentleman.

To be Surgeon:

George Castsworth, Esquire.

Captains Joseph Malotte and Henry Scratch, of the late First Battalion, Essex, now the Fourth, Essex, are permitted to retire, retaining their rank.

Legislative Assembly.

SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

Hon. Mr. MACDONALD (Glengary) enquired whether the Government were now able to appoint a day for the discussion of the question as to the Seat of Government.

Hon. Mr. DRUMMOND said that Sir Allan Macnab's absence had prevented the Government from coming to any conclusion on the point. The Government were therefore disposed to leave the matter entirely in the hands of the House.

Hon. Mr. MACDONALD then suggested Monday week for the discussion.

Hon. Mr. DRUMMOND,—That will depend a good deal on whether there is to be a call of the House or not.

Mr. MACDONALD.—The members are nearly all present already, but if there is to be a call of the House, let the motion be made on Monday for a call on Monday week.

Mr. ALLEIN suggested Wednesday week, that all the members from the Quebec district may be present.

Mr. POWELL wished Mr. Drummond to say whether the Government were satisfied with Wednesday week. If that day were fixed, there should be a distinct understanding that there should be no postponement for the House was full now, and though some members might have to leave soon on business, they would remain if they were sure of the question coming up definitely on Monday week.

Hon. Mr. DRUMMOND.—I wish the House distinctly to understand that the Government can have no voice in this matter as a Government, either with regard to the choice of the Seat of Government or with regard to any of its incidents. The question is not a Government question, and the choice of the day must be left with the House.

Mr. LARWILL said that the House, like the Ministry, was very much divided on this question, and he thought the best way to settle it would be to get the views of the members on the subject, by referring it to the Municipalities.

Solicitor General Ross thought that Monday week was far to early a day for members from the Quebec District.

Hon. Mr. MACDONALD (Glengary) said his note-book appeared in the paper on the 15th of February, and had been sent over the country, and, if hon. members were so careless about the question as not to be present after that, they would not be here on Monday fortnight. If delayed so long, some now present would find it inconvenient to remain that length of time.

Mr. CASAUTT took the same view as Solicitor General Ross.

Mr. LORANGER suggested to the hon. member for Glengary that if a greater delay than Monday week was insisted on, he would receive immediately as he was engaged to do, his notice being first in the paper.

After some further conversation,

Hon. Mr. MACDONALD moved a call of the House for Monday the 19th March.

The amendment was carried by a majority of 8. Ayes, 51; Nays, 43.

YEAS,—Messrs. Aikins, Biggar, Bowes, Brown, Cameron, Cartier, Casault, Cayley, Chapais, Christie, Crawford, Cryster, Dionne, Dostaler, Drummond, Evanturel, Foley, Fortier (Bellechasse), Fournier, Fraser, Freeman, Gould, Hartman, Jackson, Larwill, Lemieux, Macdonald, Attorney General Macdonald, Marchildon, Meagher, Morrison (Niagara, Morrison (Simcoe), Munro, Niles, Houlliot, Price, Rhodes, Robinson, Robin, Sol. Gen. Ross, Scalchard, Shaw, Sol. General, Smith, Smith (Victoria), Southwich, Spence, Stevenson, Thibaudeau, Wilson, and Wright—51 NAYS,—Messrs. Bell, Bourassa, Brodeur, Bureau, Church, Conger, Cooke (Ottawa), Cook (Oxford), Daoust (Beauharnois), Daoust (Two Mountains), Dardis, Delong (Lanaudiere), Dorion (Drummond), Dorion (Montreal), Dufresne, Felton, Ferrer, Flinn, Fortier (Nicolet, Galt, Gill, Guevremont, Holton, Jobit, Laberge, Laporte, Le Boutillier, Loranger, Lyon, Macdonald (Glengary), McDonald (Cornwall), McCann, Masson, Matthieu, Mongenais, Papin, Pinsonneault, Powell, Prevost, Lanborn, Smith (Northumberland, Somerville, Turcotte, Valois, Whitney and Young—48.

Mr. HOLTON said he understood the question was now on the main motion, and he wished to express his extreme surprise and regret at the position the Attorney General East had chosen to assume. That hon. gentleman a little while ago, said it was impossible for the government to agree upon a day for the discussion, and said that the government as government would do nothing either to accelerate or to retard the discussion of the question.

Mr. SMITH, (Northumberland) rose to a question of order. He thought there was no use for discussion after the question had been decided.

Mr. HOLTON, proceeded to say, that the Attorney General had always expressed a strong desire to see this question disposed of in accordance with the views which he (Mr. H.) and the majority from his part of the country entertained. He was greatly surprised, therefore, that the hon. gentleman after expressing in the most decided way the opinion of the hon. member for Glengary, in having an early day fixed, should afterwards with every one of his colleagues vote against it.

M. SPEAKER. Order! The question is as to the call of the House, and not of course on any particular member.

Mr. HOLTON.—I understand the question we are now debating is as to the day that the call of the House shall be fixed for, and I invite the Attorney General to give a reason for the change that has come over him.

Mr. POWELL.—Would it be in order to move a further postponement of the question? We have seen within a few minutes how speedily a change can be effected on a member of the Government and perhaps the whole Government intend now to deal with the question harmoniously as a Government.

Mr. SPEAKER.—The House has decided that there shall be a call of the House for Monday fortnight, and no other day can now be fixed.

Mr. GALT.—The question we voted on was between the 8th and 15th. But we are not prevented from saying whether there shall or shall not be a call of the House at all.

Mr. SPEAKER.—The amendment having been carried no other amendment can now be made on the motion.

Hon. Mr. MACDONALD (Glengary).—But those who voted against the amendment are now at liberty to vote against the whole thing. When the Speaker puts the question shall the main motion as amended be carried. I and others can say, no.

Mr. SPEAKER.—It is not to be supposed that the House having affirmed that there shall be a call of the House on a particular day, shall next affirm that there shall be no call at all.

Attorney General DRUMMOND.—I have a few observations to make in reply to the hon. member for Montreal (Mr. Holton) from whom I so narrowly escaped annihilation a moment ago. I still tremble from the effects of it. (Laughter.)

Mr. SPEAKER.—It is irregular to allow any further discussion, unless it is the sense of the House to allow the hon. gentleman to speak.

Hon. Mr. DRUMMOND—(Cries of order: chair!) I beg the indulgence of the House to allow me an opportunity of answering the very serious charge which has been launched against me.

Mr. DORION, (Montreal)—If the Attorney General is allowed to speak, hon. gentlemen on this side will have a right to reply.

Mr. SPEAKER.—It the hon. gentleman wishes to be heard he has friends enough in the House who can move to that effect.

Hon. Mr. DRUMMOND.—I think it a matter of some importance to myself, that I should say to those who usually act with me on the Seat of Government question, that I should have an opportunity of explaining myself and convincing my hon. friend from Montreal that I have not betrayed the cause. It is the misfortune of my hon. friend that he has too great a development of the organ of mirthfulness. (Laughter.) He seems to have been sent here for the purpose of always expressing concentrated astonishment. My hon. friend with that voice which always reminds me of the lamentations of Jeremiah, attacks me as if I had committed some monstrous crime. I, and those who act with me heard that hon. gentleman rising and accusing hon. members on this side of displaying fidelity to the Government of the day.

Mr. SPEAKER (rising).—Order!

Attorney General DRUMMOND continuing to speak, although the Speaker had stood up.

Mr. SPEAKER said, very warmly—I should be sorry to call the hon. member by name and submit him to the censure of the House. But he is a blagodier for his M. P. and is producing in this discussion, the debates on an entirely different question.

Hon. Mr. DRUMMOND then proceeded to explain his vote, by saying that when any question of great importance came before the House, even when he was sure of victory, even when triumph lay on his side, he was afraid to secure that triumph without enabling any man to say that he had done him wrong or injustice. He wished those in favour of a permanent Seat of Government to make use of their majority to secure the object they had in view, but for no other purpose. He could not have any but a wish the rankling feeling in his mind that he had been deprived of the opportunity of coming up to represent the wishes of his constituents. The hon. member for Quebec for instance [Mr. Chabot] had left last night on business connected with the Seigniorial Commission—He did not think with his hon. at parting—and he would not like him to be able to say that he had joined in hurrying on this matter in his absence.

The subject was then allowed to drop.

Legislative Council.

FRIDAY, February 22.

The Council met a 3 o'clock P. M. Several petitions were presented to the House, after which.

Hon. Mr. CROOKS gave notice of the following motion; which was presented last session:—

"That an humble address be presented to her Majesty the Queen, praying that her Majesty would be pleased to cause a measure to be laid before the Imperial Parliament for the dissolution of the Union now subsisting between East and West Canada, and that the Provinces of Eastern and Western Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, be united under one general government.

"That the Governor General be appointed for the said Provinces by her Queen, and Lieutenant Governors under him for each of the said late Provinces, be appointed by her Majesty.

"That the Legislature consist as at present, of a Legislative Council and House of Assembly, the members composing both Houses to be elected by the majority of legal votes according to the laws now existing in each separate Province, until altered or amended by a law to be passed by the general Legislature, according to population.

"That the Speaker of the Legislative Council be elected by the members present for the time being at the commencement of each second session, subject to the approval of the Governor General or person administering the Government for the time being, and the said Legislative Council to have power to appropriate monies, but not to levy any tax, and to be constituted a court for the trial of Impeachments."

"That the Municipal Councils be charged with the internal concerns of each of the said late Provinces with the powers now confided to them by law which may be so altered or amended by the general Legislature as may be deemed necessary for that purpose; and that the Lieutenant Governor in each of the said late Provinces shall have the same authority over any by-law they may pass as the Governor General now possesses."

"That the said General Government have the sole control and authority to levy taxes, and over the revenue and expenditure of the United province, and of enacting such laws as may be deemed necessary for the good government and prosperity thereof; and to pray that her Majesty would be graciously pleased to give the said United Province such name or designation as her Majesty may graciously think proper, and to fix some place in the said united Province for the permanent Seat of Government."

Hon. Mr. CROOKS gave notice that he should bring this matter before the House on Thursday next. He also ordered that 300 copies of the motion be printed for the use of the Council.

The subject of the proper day for calling the House came up, and the report of a select committee to investigate the case decided that Friday was the proper day for the calling of the roll. It was accordingly called.

Hon. Mr. BLAQUIERE gave notice of a motion for Wednesday, recommending an amendment to the French translation of Rule 4, respecting the call of the House; said amendment being according to the recommendation of the above mentioned Committee.

On motion of Hon. Mr. DE BLAQUIERE, the Council adjourned till Monday next, at 3 p.m.

☞ Mr. George Malotte is authorized to receive subscriptions for the "Maple Leaf," in the lower Townships; and such of our friends who have not already become subscribers, will have an opportunity of doing so in a few days when Mr. Malotte passes through.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

SANDWICH, MARCH 7, 1856.

PERMANENT SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

Below will be found the Petition of the County Council, adopted at its last session, praying the Legislature to appoint a permanent Seat of Government. The Council have, in our opinion, adopted a course in this matter, which entitles them to great praise. That the system of moving the seat of Government every four years, is detrimental to our best interests, few will attempt to dispute. And one of the many serious injuries to which the Province is made liable by continuing this system, is that of exposing the Records to the thousand chances of being destroyed in their transition from one place to the other; and another is the necessity for occupying buildings not suitable for offices, and in exposed positions. If, unfortunately, such a misfortune were to happen, what a state of confusion would the affairs of the Province be thrown into! a state which would result in losses that could never be repaired.

If some central position could be chosen which would heal the sectional jealousies which have unfortunately existed upon this subject, and which have heretofore been a great drawback to the settlement of this question, the necessity for which is becoming more apparent every day, and no one, we are inclined to believe, more suitable than Kingston, could be chosen, having a position that is central; and its being strongly fortified, certainly entitle it to no small share of consideration; where fire-proof buildings with suitable archives might be erected, of a nature creditable to our posterity.

To the Honourable the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Canada in Parliament assembled:

The Petition of the Municipal Council of the County of Essex in Council assembled.

Humbly sheweth:

That your memorialists are of opinion that the present system of removing the seat of Government from place to place is not compatible with our present state of improvement and that it would, in the opinion of your petitioners, be far better for the Province at large, if the Legislature were to fix a permanent seat of Government for this Province; and your petitioners therefore pray that your honorable body will take into serious consideration the subject of this petition during the present session of Parliament, and take such steps as will ensure at the expiration of the present term the accomplishment of this object.

And your petitioners as in duty bound will ever pray.

We trust that this petition may not be presented in vain, and that members of Parliament will not delay the accomplishment of this much desired object. We hope that County Councils throughout the Province will adopt similar petitions to be presented to Parliament, making strong representations of the necessity of a change in the Government. Every person is aware, we believe, that Toronto cannot be made the permanent seat of Government, from the fact Lower Canadian Members will never consent to vote in favor of its remaining there. Should, however, it return to Quebec, the consequence may be that Upper Canada will never have the seat of Government again within it, hence the necessity for some central place being chosen, to which members from both sections of the Province could not object.

It is with regret that we have to notice the death of Mr. John McCormick, an old and respected friend, and one who has gained for himself friends wherever he was known. The deceased left this neighborhood, about a week before he was taken ill, for the Lake Townships, and on his arrival at Oxford in the Township of Colchester, complained of being unwell, and in just one short week from that time he had passed from this life. It is melancholy indeed to see one in the vigor of manhood thus cut off, leaving, as he did, a large family of children to mourn over their loss in a kind and devoted parent. The deceased expired on Monday the 25th ult, at 10 o'clock, pm, in the 43rd year of his age. His remains were conveyed to Point Pelee Island, where they were interred.

A rare chance for making money is now offered, in the lottery to be drawn at Aylmer for Land and other articles. Every ticket purchased will draw a prize. The value of the property is estimated at £1,000 and will be divided into lots, so as to produce quite a number of very valuable chances. The tickets are sold at the very low price of ONE DOLLAR, and may be had from Mr. Haley, at the Traveller's Home in the Town of Sandwich.

Due notice will be given, through these columns, of the day of drawing.

It is reported by Telegraph from New York, that Captain Whitney, of the Ordnance, has received orders from the United States War Department, to place Governor's Island, in New York Harbor, in a state of war defence.

MORE SNOW.—On Saturday and Sunday last we had a very severe snow storm; in fact, more snow fell during those two days than has fallen before during any one snow storm this winter. The roads are in many places completely blocked up with drifts so much so, that tracks have to be made through the fields in many places. There has been sleighing in this neighborhood for seventy-five days, and there is every prospect of its continuing for a couple of weeks longer. There has not been so severe a winter since 1842.

The Sandwich Street Plank Road Company, we are happy to be able to state to our friends in the Lake Townships, have entered into a contract, by which five miles of the road, east from the Cross, will be completed. One mile is to be planked and the remaining four are to be gravelled. This contract, when completed, will extend as far as the Township of Gosfield, and passing through what is called the Willow Swamp, will be of the greatest convenience to farmers living beyond the Cross, who entertain no very friendly feeling towards the old mudhole.

To the Editor of the "Maple Leaf:"

Dear Sir,

Through the medium of your paper, I take the opportunity of calling the attention of our townspeople to an important article which is much needed by this Town —namely, a Fire Engine.

At the present time there is nothing to save the devouring element, fire, from destroying our whole town, and something must be done. Should once a fire originate in the night, and get ten minutes' start, the probable result would be, that many persons would be left without a home, and many a family rendered miserable and wretched, and suffer much from the inclemency of the weather. True, there is an engine in Windsor, but I think it could not accomplish the object for which it is intended, and therefore we should not be able to derive any benefit from that source. Some persons may make the remark, there are Engines enough in Detroit. Supposing the alarm of fire be raised here at midnight. What space of time would elapse before an engine from that city could arrive here and be in operation? Why it would be useless. We had lays in our power, it would require too late to render much service, if any at all. We want an engine of our own, and we must have one; and the earlier the better. Our Township Council ought to see the propriety and expediency of obtaining one; and, in duty bound, should vote a sum of money towards purchasing one. It must be confessed that late Township Councils have not done much towards improving the place; indeed, much more might have been done by them, but the past is gone, and we look towards the future with brighter prospects. There is no doubt that the inhabitants, especially the Merchants, would subscribe liberally. Then why delay any longer? Let some influential person take a subscription list, and ascertain if Sandwich can buy a Fire Engine. The cost is trifling compared with its usefulness. If sufficient means cannot be obtained for that purpose, then sufficient evidence is shown that there are but few men amongst us who study their own interests, and the welfare and prosperity of the town. Although we have for a long time been preserved from fire—and we feel thankful for it—it is no reason that the awful calamity will not visit us at some future time, and perhaps not long hence. It may come unawares, and we should be prepared for it. If we are not, then it is our own fault, and we suffer the consequences.

I remain,

Yours very respectfully,

A SANDWICHITE.

March 1st, 1856.

ARRIVAL of the STEAMSHIP ARAGO.

NEW YORK, Saturday Evening

The steamer Arago, from Cowes, arrived here this morning. She brings 111 passengers, also dispatches from the British government to their Minister at Washington and from Mr. Buchanan, and Mr. Mason at Paris, to the American government.

The Arago was greatly impeded on her passage by ice, and was obliged frequently to stop and blow off steam.

Capt. Sims says that the quantity of ice and difficulty of navigation on the Banks exceeded anything he ever heard of before, and recommends all vessels bound to Europe to go S. E. of the same.

Washington, Saturday Evening.

The Treasurer reports the amount in the U. S. Treasury subject to draft as upwards of $22,000,000.

Savanah, Saturday Evening.

The ship Telegraph of Boston, previously reported as on fire at Tybee, was totally destroyed, together with her cargo.

Charleston, Saturday Evening.

Lakeman, late 1st mate of the ship Ariel on trial here for the murder of Capt. Ayres has been acquitted.

New York, Saturday Evening.

Capt. Whitney of, the Ordnance Department received orders on Thursday from the War Department to put Governor's Island, in the Harbor, in a state of War defence.

ARRIVAL of the STEAMSHIP BALTIC.

New York, March

The steamship Baltic from Liverpool, arrived this afternoon with four days later advices. She brings no news of importance.

Cotton dull and quiet, prices unchanged. Breadstuffs slightly advanced, except wheat, which has declined 1s—?

In flour there is an improved demand. Western Canal quoted 34s a 34s 6d, Philadelphia 37s a 39s, Ohio 39s. Corn opened heavy but improved, and close mixed corn is quoted 33s, white 36s.

Richardson, Spence & Co. quote pork quiet, 81s 3d. Beef—improved demand, 100 for prime mess, and 1 ni retail 120s.—Lard quiet and prices irregular; quotations are 69s a 69s. Bacon 51s a 53s 6d.

Money more stringent.

Consols advanced to 90¼a90¾.

The new Loan has been fixed at £5,000,000.

The peace Conference opened on the 23d All the Envoys had arrived at Paris Confidence in the re-establishment of peace continued. The excitement respecting the American difficulties was not so great. A large force of British troops is to be sent to Canada.

The London Times says, under the head of Military news:—

"In addition to the 18th Regiment and a battalion of Rifles which are about to be dispatched, it is understood to be the intention of the British Government to send out two regiments of cavalry to British North America, so as to form a powerful force in that country. In anticipation of this step the Times announces that almost every regiment attached to the home station has received private intimation that their services may be required in Canada, and such a course has been given in order that the regimental clothing which is made expressly for that station, may be in readiness, in case the exigences of the service should require a large body of troops to be moved to that country."

LATEST.

The Baltic arrived at her dock at 11 o'clock.

Africa arrived out on the 18th.

The Baltic brings dates to the 20th.

The news is very dull.

The Times announces that the 18th Regiment and a battalion of rifles are about to be despatched to Canada, and several other regiments will follow, so as to concentrate a powerful force in that country.

It is rumored also that almost every regiment attached to the home service has received intimation that their services may be required in Canada.

The money market continues tight demand being in excess of supply.

The new loan is announced with the funding of exchange bills to the extent of 3,000,000*l*. As these amounts have to be paid in five instalments in the course of two months, the demand will doubtless continue active.

Consols improved on the announcement of the loan to 91¼, but afterwards declined to 90¾ a 90⅝, at which they closed.

The Rothschilds, it is said, have proposed taking the whole of the new loan.

There is much gossip about the peace conference.

Baron Brunow is reported to have said that Russia is sincerely desirous of peace; but that if peace be not made within three or four weeks at furthest from the opening of the conference, serious difficulties might interfere with the final settlement of the question.

Lord Clarendon had a private interview with the Emperor, immediately on his arrival at Paris.

The Duke of Norfolk is dead.

A mulatto girl was found secreted on board the ship "Astorian," which arrived at Liverpool from New Orleans.

FRANCE

News uninteresting.

The article in the Assemblee Nationale, touching the defensive works being constructed at Portsmouth, has elicited some remark, and is looked upon as an exhibition of France's jealousy.]

AUSTRIA.

Some additional particulars of the forthcoming Austrian amnesty has transpired. It will with a few exceptions, be unconditional, and be made known immediately concerned. Those who choose can resume their citizenship at once, and be put in possession of their property. Those who do neither, will be considered as dead, and their property handed to their legal heirs.

ASIA.

On the 5th Jan. six battalions of Russians surprised a battalion of Turks near Zeugdena.

The latter retreated, leaving their guns and baggage.

The Russians subsequently burnt the Pacha's palace and several villages.

RUSSIA.

The Emperor's brother, the Grand Duke Nicholas is married to the Princess of Oldenburg, Alexandrina Petrowna.

Latest Telegraphic Despatches.

THE CONFERENCES.

The following is extracted from the letter of the Times Paris correspondent dated Feb. 13, six p.m.:—

"Baron Brunow arrived here last night, at half-past ten o'clock, by the express train from Stessburg, and took up his quarters in the hotel of the Russian embassy, in the Faubourg St. Honore. Mr. de Bourqueney has already arrived but has left for Blois to bring up his family. It is to be hoped that Lord Cowley will, on his return to Paris, bring Lord Clarendon with him. The English plenipotentiaries are expected at the end of the week; the sooner they come the better. Count Buol will be here on Friday or Saturday, or at least it is given out. M. Cavour leaves Turin to-day, will probably arrive on Friday, but the resident Sardinian minister, the Marquis de Villa Marina, is on the spot, and keeps a good look out. Ash Pacha, the Ottoman plenipotentiary, will not arrive before the 18th or 19th. Turks do not travel by the electric telegraph like Russians. It is still doubted whether it be possible for the conferences to begin on the 20th.

"A very handsome table has been fitted up at the foreign office for the plenipotentiaries to sit at during the conferences. It is covered with rich crimson velvet and, together with the chairs, forms a handsome piece of furniture. It was at first only large enough to accomodate eight persons; but then Sardinia and Turkey had only one plenipotentiary each. Since the decision in favour of two it has had to be lengthened and now is large enough for twelve. The two additional places are no doubt, meant for Prussia, if Prussia behave herself as she ought. I have already mentioned that Count Walewski, as minister for foreign affairs of the sovereign in whose capital the conferences are held, will preside.

"It is said that one of the first acts of the Emperor of Russia, after the signature of the treaty of peace, should we be so happy as to see it, will be the formal notification to France and England of his accession to the throne. In diplomatic fictions, those powers, it seems, are supposed to believe that the Emperor Nicholas is still living."

According to the Paris correspondent of the Oesterreichische Zeitung the three Powers have already agreed on the most important point to be adjusted at Paris, and one of them is that Nicholaieff, not being on the coast of the black Sea, is not to share the fate of Sebastopol.

PARIS, Feb. 14.—Count Buol ought to have reached Straburg to-day. He is expected at Paris this evening or to-morrow morning. Count Cavour arrived at Lyons to-day, which place he was to leave immediately for Paris. Aali Pacha left Constantinople the day before yesterday: it is thought he cannot arrive at Paris before the 22nd inst. It is supposed that the Conferences will not open before Tuesday next.

PRUSSIA AND THE CONFERENCES.

A diplomatic despatch has been published, dated the 7th inst, and signed by the Prime Minister, which represents the views entertained by the Court of Prussia. Prussia accepts the five propositions, and is ready to take part in the Paris Conferences if invited. Prussia engages to procure the acceptance of the Germanic Confederation, provided she is specially represented at the Conference, so as to permit her to follow up the negotiations on the divers views which may be entertained by the different Powers.—This is thought to refer to the fifth point, though that is not stated. It is believed at Berlin that Austria proposes a middle course and will be satisfied if the German Diet accepts the propositions with the omission of the fifth point; but there is no official confirmation of this.

FRANCE.

On the 14th the Bank of France received the measure reducing to 75 days the maximum of bills handed for discount, and resolved to re-commence taking commercial paper of 90 days' date.

TURKEY.

The following intelligence has been received under date of Constantinople, Feb. 4: "There are hardly any foreign troops here. There are 1000 French in camp at Maslak, and two English battalions, with a small cavalry detachment, at Pera and Scutari Mehemet Kiprisli Pacha acts for Aali Pacha, who will soon leave for Marseilles in the Ajaccio. Advices from Trebizond of the 28th January state that the Russians have evacuated part of Turkish Armenia and retired to Erivan."

On the 2nd instant the propositions of the Ambassadors for the amelioration of the condition of the Christians were submitted to the Council and accepted. In a few days the official acceptance is expected. The Fourth Point may be thus regarded as settled in principle. The next point, relating to the organization of the Principalities, will be the object of the next conferences. It is intended to settle this point before the negotiations in Paris begin, in order to have the project ready for discussion there.

SWEDEN.

The king of Sweden has appointed the hereditary Prince to be Viceroy of Norway.

RUSSIA.

Intelligence from St. Petersburg presages important personal changes in the higher administrative departments. The removal of the Minister of the interior and Chief of Police is spoken of.

The death of the Dowagar Empress of Russia causes some alarm.

Count V. Esterhazy had his first audience of the Czar on the 6th inst.

ASIA.

Accounts from Tiflis state that General Williams was unwell. 100 brass guns taken from Kars have been mounted in one of the squares of Tiflis.

PRUSSIA.

Letters have been received from Mr. Murray, dated from Tabreez. He had reached that place after a fatiguing journey of 25 days amid rain and snow, and could continue his route to Mosul as he intended, on account of the heavy snowfall, in which two caravans had been lost.

JAPAN.

The Dutch Government have have concluded an important treaty of commerce with the Emperor of Japan, which gives them privileges from his Japanese Majesty denied to the Governments of England and the United States. By this treaty Dejima is ceded to the Dutch, whereon to form an entrepot for their trade with the people of Japan, allowing them to land their goods and stores without paying any duty, or being subject to the inspection of the authorities, excepting when they trade with the city of Hungersaki, when a duty will be levied upon all kinds of merchandise.

Central America.

As in the "enlistment difficulty," the correspondence to which we have alluded opens with the interest we might have otherwise felt in much that has been said and written respecting it—so, as regards central America, General Walker's last move pales all speculation and complicates the matter egregiously. The news is to this effect. The General, flushed with success, has ousted the Nicaraguan government and issue a decree reclaiming or annexing the whole Mosquito Territory. This is a pretty bold move, in the teeth of the Protectorate. But this is not all. Col. Kinney, at about the same moment and under assurances from some of Walker's personal adherents that he would be well received, went up from San Juan to Grenada, to feel his way probably towards joint operations. But Walker wanted no rival near his throne. He forthwith picked a quarrel with "Mr." Kinney as he called him; procured the issue of another decree, to the effect that to uphold the grant of Kinney's that Kinney as the Shepard grant to Kinney, was a crime against "the integrity of Central America;" even had Kinney arrested on a charge of high treason; and finally sent him off as a prisoner to San Juan. Kinney indeed seems to escaped being shot.

This curious episode may be fruitful of new events. It is not likely to increase the confidence in Walker's moderation, which has begun to prevail; and it may be the precursor of a civil war. Further more, it is rumoured that the other Republics of Central America are combining against Nicaragua. How if Mr. Kinney should once more exchange the spade for the rifle, and take the field boldly against his former comrade and actual oppressor.

We have said that in both matters under dispute, fresh complications crowd out our interest in what is a few days old. Thus it is that we hurry past several debates in the Senate at Washington, on which we might otherwise have paused. We must still however, express our pity for poor old General Cass, in whom advancing age and his recent escape from death have made a proof his recent escape from death have made a proof his recent escape from death have made a proof ified the chronic Anglophobia. With him,

Peace is despaired,
For who can think submission? War then, war,
Open or understood, must be resolved.

Fortunately for America, Great Britain, and the world at large, two nations are not going to cut each other's throats in order that General Cass's monomania may be pampered. There are some Senators, such men as Mr. Crittenden and Mr. Bell, who think with us that—

All things invite
To peaceful counsels, and the settled state
Of orders, how in safety best we may Compose our present evils, with regard
Of what is past or what is present where, dismissing quite
All thoughts of war.

Nevertheless, appropriations have been proposed and favorably received, for augmenting the U.S. Navy and rendering the Army more efficient. Ten new steam-frigates, and three millions of dollars to be expended on improved armament; it is in the shape, that this suggestion comes. In peace prepare for war, is a good policy, all the world over, though Messrs. Cobden and Bright don't think so.—A blow.

MANCHESTER, February 8, 1856.

The importers of Canadian and United States wheat, are, at this moment, losing half a dollar on every bushel, and proportionably on flour, owing to the fall in price, occasioned by the prospect of peace. The effect will be to cause an entire revolution in this branch of commerce, which must, for some time, be transferred to other hands. British growers will cease to import Canadian and American wheat and flour, upon a falling market, with a prospect of the decline being, in future, both rapid and great. The result will be, that American and Canadian firms must ship on their own account; and this transference of the trade from one set of hands to another, will tend, in more than this way, still more to lower the price. For example, when a house in America sends a cargo of wheat or flour on consignment, it has to go into the hands of brokers, and is thus at once subject to extra charges. Then the length of time before a return can be made, and the dangerous condition of a declining market, must again still further reduce the price. That this state of things will in time effect a reaction in favor of higher prices is very probable, from the fact that for some time supplies will not be sent in large quantities, either from the unwillingness of purchasers to operate at any but a safe figure—which must be, comparatively a low figure—or of holders to submit to any considerable abatement for some time. Thus it is possible that there may be a period between this and next harvest when prices will rally, even if peace should be concluded. But who shall say when the reflow of the tide shall take place, or when it does take place, whether prices will come up to the present mark, for no one supposes that the bottom of the downward tendency has been nearly touched. An extensive corn dealer has declared to me his opinion that, the decline will not stop till wheat reaches 50s. a quarter,—a decline nearly equivalent to a dollar a bushel. Of course this is conjectural only, even in the event of peace, and a continuance of war would probably cause a recovery of the present fall.

The figure of Scott Russell & Co., whose extensive establishment I visited in June, was declared a few days ago. No stoppage in the construction of the great Eastern steamer, will, it is asserted, result from this catastrophe.—Leader.

House of Commons, Feb. 15.

RELATIONS WITH THE UNITED STATES.

On the motion going into Committee of supply, Mr. Roebuck called attention to our relations with the United States as of America, in consequence of the production of all correspondence with the government of those States relative to the conduct of Mr. Crampton. The hon. member stated that his intention for bringing forward this motion was to make the country acquainted with the actual state of affairs: for he did not think Lord Palmerston had spoken correctly when he said he had apologised for what was taken amiss, and expressed our sorrow for the violation of the United States laws, and had done all they could do as honorable men to repair this injury committed. He (Mr. Roebuck) denied the statement of the noble lord, he should have said nothing could be done; but it was not so. Mr. Crampton had gone from Washington to Nova Scotia, and had entered into a combination with the Governor of Nova Scotia to lay down a plan by which laws of the United States might be violated, openly, and surreptitiously to obtain what they were precluded from by the laws of the United States. Mr. Crampton had endeavoured to prevail upon persons to go to Nova Scotia to be enlisted, and had given his employer a cypher by which they might communicate with him, thus violating the laws of the United States. These instructions were given to the agents to avoid violating them. These facts he proposed from a case tried in America, in which defendant, an agent of Mr. Crampton's, was prosecuted by the United States. The United States, under the circumstances, justly acted calmly. Mr. Crampton went beyond his instructions, and therefore they demanded his recall, or his instructions went beyond what the laws of the States allowed, and therefore they demand his recall. The hon. member quoted a similar case in reference to a French minister in the United States, who, upon the demand of the United States, was immediately recalled by his government. The report of the trial to which we had referred, was, he admitted, a disgrace to the United States, and showed a spirit of hatred towards England, and therefore was not worthy of regard, but it contained the admission of Mr. Crampton's own handwriting, and making charges that had never been contradicted. He wanted to know what were the instructions given to Mr. Crampton, and whether they authorised him by deals to break the law of the United States, and he waited for an expression of opinion on this point. All members that the United States might know that the House of Commons was no party to the transactions. He concluded by moving for the instructions given to Mr. Crampton. Mr. Hatfield seconded the motion.

LORD PALMERSTON explained the delay that had occurred in the presentation of Parliament of the correspondence with the United States, by stating that shortly before the meeting of Parliament a dispatch arrived from America, complaining of the conduct of her Majesty's ministers and consuls in the United States, and demanding their recall. A despatch of such importance could not be answered immediately, and the necessary information had not been gathered to enable her Majesty's Government to reply; and, until such information was obtained it would be unjust to the consul to publish the dispatch. With regard to the proceedings detailed by the hon. member, Lord Palmerston said that America being a free country there could be no power to prevent men going from one place to another beyond the boundaries to further their own purpose; on the subject of the case, "the United States v. Hurst and others," that underhand practices had been resorted to prove a violation of the laws, and when the House was in possession of all the facts of the case he was convinced they would not, would alter the opinions which they might form on the speech of the right hon. and learned gentlemen. He was surprised at the course taken by the hon. member in trifling with such important interest as those involved in the question and he holding the brief of the counsel for the Queen's Government, making himself the mouthpiece of calumnies that had been uttered in the United States by interested parties opposed to the British Government. A war with America would be equally calamitous to both parties engaged, but there was a tendency to conciliate the disputes on both sides, and he felt moreover that when matters were calmly considered by the Congress of the United States and the Parliament of Great Britain, an amicable arrangement would be effected.

Mr. DISRAELI did not think it expedient to interfere in the question till all the papers on the subject were before the House, and therefore he would not support the motion of the member for Sheffield; but the same time he protested against the principle that the House was not to investigate matters connected with the conduct of our Ministers in foreign courts. When charges were made against them he thought the hon. and learned gentleman was quite justified in bringing the question before the House, and it was not just for a member of her Majesty's Government to charge him with being an advocates of the enemies of his country. The motion was then withdrawn.

Powers of Special Meetings and Trustees—Free Schools.

A school officer writing to the Educational Department for information in regard to the powers of Special Meetings, and of Trustees in admitting non-resident children to the school; and also on the subject of the Rate Bill as the Free School System, received the following reply:

"Any subsequent special meeting can rescind the resolutions of the annual meeting, and pass such other lawful resolutions as it thinks proper.

"Trustees have no authority to admit non resident children to their school (unless their parents or guardians own property in section); but if they do admit them, they (and not the rate-payers) determine the amount of fees to be charged, more particularly as they are entitled to no aid from the school fund for the attendance of such non-resident children. The Trustees must return the names of such non-resident children to the Trustees of the section in which they (the non-residents) reside, in order that the Trustees of that section may include such average attendance in their half-yearly reports to the local superintendent.

"I agree with those who have contended that (strictly speaking) the meeting had nothing more to do with fixing the amount of the ordinary rate-bill; but, in justice to the rate payers, I think that that right ought to be conceded to them, otherwise the Trustees could, by fixing the rate-bill at one penny per month, practically defeat the intentions of the meeting, in deciding upon adopting the rate-bill system.—Since no meeting of Trustees can fix a rate bill higher than one shilling and three pence per month, the interest of the supporters of the school are, on the one hand, protected, while on the other, the larger holders of property are not compelled to pay for the entire support of the school; but both parties are equally required to pay a just proportion of the cost of supporting the school as an important municipal institution. The fixing of a maximum rate bill was designed as a compromise of the question of Free Schools or, think I, should have said the spirit of the compromise should be observed by the friends of Free Schools.

"In regard to the assertion that Free Schools are declining, I may remark that out of the 3,243 Common Schools in Upper Canada, in 1854, 1,177 were reported as absolutely free, and 1,190 as partly free (i.e. with a very small rate-bill); or a total of 2,846; while, in 1855, there were only 1052 wholly free, and 643 partly free, total 1,700; an increase of 1,294 in favor of 1854. The returns of 1855 have not yet reached this office."

BIRTHS.

In this town, on the 5th of February last, Mrs. Ellis, of a daughter.

At Sandwich, on the 2nd of February last, Mrs. St Amour of a daughter.

At Sandwich, on the 1st instant, Mrs. Davis of a daughter.

At Sandwich, on the 22nd February ult., Mrs. Wm Hunt of a daughter.

At Sandwich, on the 27th February ult., Mrs. Alexander Ouellette, of a daughter.

DIED,

At the River Thames, at the residence of Mr. Williams, Maria, youngest daughter of Mr. John Weaver of Petite Cote.

SANDWICH MARKET.

"Maple Leaf" Office, 6th March, 1856

Wheat, per bushel,	. . .	$ 1 12
Barley,	do	1 00
Corn,	do	0 75
Oats,	do	0 43
Rye,	do	0 80
Potatoes,	do	0 60
Beef, 100 lbs,	. . . .	7 50
Pork,	do	7 25
Wool,	. . . .	0 20
Wood, per cord,	. . . .	2 00
Tallow, per 100 lbs,	. . . .	12 00
Butter, per lb.,	. . . .	0 24
Chickens, per pr.,	. . . .	0 40
Eggs, per dozen,	. . . .	0 23
Hay, per ton,	. . . .	12 00

DIVISION COURTS FOR ESSEX.

1st. Sandwich Monday, 12th May, 1856.
2nd. Amherstburg, Saturday, 12th April.
3rd. Kingsville, Wednesday, 16th do.
4th. Colchester, Monday, 14th do.
5th. Mersea, Friday, 18th do.
6th. Simon's, Middle Road, Saturday, 17th, May
Sandwich 12th Feb. 1856.

SPRING CIRCUITS.

HOME CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Sir John Beverley Robinson, Bart
Milton.	Monday, 17th March,
Barrie.	Tuesday, 25th March,
Niagara.	Thursday, 22nd April,
Hamilton	Tuesday, 13th May,
Sydenham	Tuesday, 27th May,

EASTERN CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Draper
Brockville	Monday, 31st April,
Cornwall.	Monday, 28th April,
L'Original	Thursday, 8th May,
Ottawa	Monday, 12th May,
Perth	Thursday, 22nd May.

MIDLAND CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice McLean.
Whitby	Wednesday, 26th March,
Peterborough	Tuesday, 8th April,
Coburg.	Monday, 14th April,
Belleville	Thursday, 24th April,
Picton	Tuesday, 6th May,
Kingston	Tuesday, 13th May.

OXFORD CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Burns.
Brantford	Tuesday, 22nd April,
Simcoe	Thursday, 24th April,
Woodstock	Monday, 5th May,
Stratford	Wednesday, 14th May,
Berlin	Tuesday, 20th May,
Guelph	Monday, 26th May.

WESTERN CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Hagarty.
Goderich	Saturday, 5th March,
St. Thomas	Wednesday, 12th March,
London	Wednesday, 19th March,
Chatham	Tuesday, 15th April,
Sandwich	Tuesday, 22nd April,
Sarnia	Tuesday, 29th April.

CITY OF TORONTO.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Richards.
Toronto.	Monday, 5th May.

PAINT SHOP.

FRANCOIS PAYETTE having opened a Paint Shop in the Town of Sandwich, opposite the "Sandwich Exchange," will be happy to attend to the painting of houses, Graining, Glazing, Varnishing, and, in fact, every description of work in his line of business with despatch and at moderate charges.

N.B.—Buggies and Carriages painted and varnished upon reasonable terms.

Sandwich, 9th March, 1856.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

ALL Persons to whom the late Mr. John McCormick, of Point Pelée Island, deceased, was indebted at the time of his decease, are requested to send in their accounts forthwith to the undersigned or either of them.

MARY MCCORMICK.
DAVID MCCORMICK.
WILLIAM MCCORMICK

Point Pelée Island,
7th March, 1856.

SIMPSON'S EATING SALOON.

MR. SIMPSON would inform the Gentlemen of Sandwich and vicinity that he is prepared at all hours to furnish "Hot Meals," and those who may favor his establishment with a call, can depend upon having, if they wish, a "steak" cooked in the good old English style, with all the little etceteras.

Dinner Parties accommodated upon the shortest notice.

N.B.—A few persons can be accommodated with good clean beds.

AUDITORS' REPORT OF RECEIPTS & EXPENDITURES for the Township of SANDWICH, ending the 31st December, 1855.

DR.

	£	s.	d.
To Paid for Roads and Bridges,	164	5	8
" Treasurer's Salary,	25	0	0
" Township Clerk's Salary,	51	2	6
" Auditors do	20	10	0
" for Surveying, .	21	2	6
" Inspectors, .	6	15	0
" Indigent Poor, .	34	12	6
" Election Expences, .	6	5	0
" Messenger to Council .	1	5	0
" Lumber and Nails for Township purposes, .	0	17	5½
" Sandwich Wharf, .	17	2	5
" Path Master Town of Sandwich, .	6	0	0
" for Selecting Jurors, .	9	7	6
" Assessors, .	33	15	0
" Legal Services, .	38	5	0
" Councillors' Salary, .	37	10	0
" Stationery, .	2	10	9
" Rent, Fire, Wood, &c., C. Chamber, .	9	7	0
" Court of revision, .	6	5	0
" Printing, .	16	16	0
" Deduction of Taxes, .	44	17	11½
" School Sections, .	332	14	0
" School Grant, .	160	7	11½
" Superintendent of Common Schools, .	13	0	0
" County Treasurer,	1135	18	11½
Amount of Absentees and Defaulters, .	35	10	2½
	£2218	16	7½
To Balance, .	646	1	4½
	£2864	18	0½

CR.

	£	s.	d.
By Cash due the Township as per Treasurer's Book,	303	8	2½
Cash from Collector, .	3127	17	8½
Auction of Wharf Lumber,	7	5	4
Statute Labor, Sec. No. 6,	9	1	0
do do Sandwich, .	4	1	5
Rev. Inspector, .	86	8	0
Pound Keeper, Sandwich, .	3	3	9
Rev Inspector—D. Moynahan, .	46	10	0
Fines of Bowning, J.P. .	0	8	6
Exhibition Licence, .	0	5	0
Wild Land Tax, County Treasurer, .	240	18	10½
Error in amount rec'd from Collector, .	35	10	2½
	£3864	18	0½

By Balance due the Township, . £646 1 4½

JOSEPH MERCER, } Auditors
JOHN A. ASKIN. }

March 1, 1856.

Beacon

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE CO
of London.

Incorporated under Act of Imperial Parliament, 7 and 8 Vic., Chap. 1.

CANADA BOARD.
KINGSTON.

TRUSTEES.
The Hon John A Macdonald.
Jame. Morton, Esquire.

DIRECTORS:
M. W. Strange, Esq., Chairman,
Thos. A. Corbett, Esq., Deputy Chairman
James Morton, Esq. John Mowatt, Esq.
James Hatty, Esq. A. J Macdonell, Esq.
Lewis Wallbridge, Esq. T. Clarkson, Esq.

MONTREAL.
Wm. Molson, Esq. Thomas Evans, Esq.
Damase Masson, Esquire,

This Company Insures all descriptions of BUILDINGS, MANUFACTORIES, MILLS, &c. and GOODS or FURNITURE in the same, against loss or damage by fire, on liberal terms. All descriptions of LIFE RISKS, taken at as low rates as are consistent with security to the assured. LOSSES promptly settled without reference to England.

ALEX. GORDON,
Agent at Windsor for Western Frontier
March 7, 1856.

EXECUTORS' NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to all persons indebted to the late ALPHEUS MORSE, of the Town of Sandwich, deceased and late of the Firm of MORSE AND CALVIN, Lumbermen, to make payment to the undersigned, and all persons having claims against the said ALPHEUS MORSE or MORSE AND CALVIN, are requested to present them for payment prior to the 1st day of May next to

ELECTA MORSE, } Executors.
H. G. GUILLOT }

Sandwich, Feb. 29th 1856.

WILLIAM SWIFT,
MERCHANT TAILOR,

IS prepared to attend upon the Gentlemen of Amherstburg on the line of business, and is not afraid to assert that he will cut and Fit in the latest and most fashionable Styles as well as any Tailor west of London.

Amherstburg, Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROSE DALE MILLS.

THE highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Rye, Corn, or Buck Wheat, either at the Mills or at the Store of

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

J. H. ALLISON,
IMPORTER OF
IMPROVED
RAILROAD WATCHES.

Cased in beautiful styles warranted excellent time keepers: do, Swiss full jeweled Levers of every style.

GOLD PENS.

I continue manufacturing Pens of every desirable pattern; these Pens have received
A SILVER MEDAL & DIPLOMA
At the Michigan State Fair, and are not to be surpassed by any Pens in the market.

ALSO, DEALER IN FINE JEWELRY,
SILVER WARE,
AND FANCY GOODS.

I have an experienced Jeweller, capable of making New Work to order.

SETTING STONES AND DIAMOND WORK, &C.,
FIRE GILDING AND GALVANIZING
Done at Short Notice.

WATCH REPAIRING.

Being a Practical Workman, all work entrusted to my care will be carefully attended to.

GOLD PENS RE-POINTED
at 50 cents all sizes. Orders sent by mail, accompanied by cash, will be promptly attended to.

J. H. ALLISON,
No. 176 Jefferson Ave.
Feb. 29th, 1856.

CIGAR FACTORY.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the inhabitants of Amherstburg and vicinity that he has opened a Cigar Factory in the above Town, where every description of the choicest kind are always on hand. He has also lately imported from Havana a large quantity of the very best Principe and every other description of Cigars, which he intends to sell at a much smaller price than can be had in Detroit. Call and see him, and he will give a puff.

JOHN N. MILLER.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

MEETING OF PARLIAMENT

THE PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT assembled in Toronto, for the despatch of Business

On Friday 15th February

The Globe will contain a full report of the Debates made up each day to the hour of going to press; and will have the most reliable political intelligence at the earliest moment.

THE DAILY "GLOBE"

Will be sent four months for TWO DOLLARS.

THE TRI-WEEKLY "GLOBE"

Will be sent three months for ONE DOLLAR!

Orders should be sent in immediately so as to secure the Debates from the commencement of the Session.

GLOBE OFFICE,
Toronto, February 14, 1856.

Family Stores.

THE Subscriber keeps constantly on hand a large and well selected assortment of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware and Crockery,

at his old stand on Bedford Street, which he will sell, at a small advance upon cost, for Cash.

A large supply of the very best Flour always on hand.

Produce and Cord Wood bought and sold,

JOSEPH MILLER.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

JAMES JESSOPP,
CARPENTER & JOINER,

WILL always be on hand to attend to the question of Building, and every description of Carpenter and Joiner work upon the shortest notice.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

New Harness and Saddlery Establishment.

A. C. ELLIS.

Every description of LIGHT and FANCY BUGGY HARNESS, made in the most fashionable styles.

HEAVY HARNESSES constantly on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.

SADDLES of every description made to order on the shortest notice.

CARRIAGE and BUGGY TRIMMING done in a style not to be surpassed.

A large assortment of WHIPS always kept on hand.

In his Store, adjoining Mr. Guillot's, will be found every description of Goods in his line of business. Every endeavor will be made to give entire satisfaction to his Customers.

N.B.—Cord Wood, Hides, and Produce wanted, for which the highest price will be given.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. &c. &c. &c.
AT THE REGULATOR.

THE Subscribers would invite the attention of their Friends and the Public generally to their new and complete Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c., &c., which they are now offering low for cash.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

N.B.—The highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all kinds of Produce.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, } BY virtue of a writ of
TO WIT: } Fieri Facias issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex against the lands and Tenements of Alfred Baby, and to me directed, at the suit of Dennis Ouellette, I have seized and taken the following lands and tenements, viz:

Water Lot number three on the East, and Water Lots numbers three, four and fourteen on the West, and Water Lots numbers thirteen and sixteen all on the North side of Sandwich Street in the Village of Windsor, and being part of the Town plat of Windsor, as laid out on the estate of the late Francis Baby, together with all the property, or the interest of the said Alfred Baby in and to the same, I will offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Saturday the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, at 12 o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich,
29th February, 1856.

Sandwich and Windsor Stage.

By C. F. LABADIE.

A PUBLIC STAGE will run regularly every hour each day, from Sandwich to Windsor.

C. F. L. possesses superior Horses and a more comfortable conveyance than have heretofore been put on this line, and he pos to receive a share of public patronage.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

NOTICE

TO ALL IT MAY CONCERN.

ALL persons owing the subscriber are hereby notified that prompt notice is made on or before the 15th day of April next if they wish to save the costs of collection.

TO RENT.

The House and Premises in which the subscriber lives. Terms $24 per quarter payable in advance. Possession given on the first of May next.

GEORGE HANN.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

LOTS FOR SALE IN THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.

PART of Lot No. 3, on the west side of Bedford Street, with a good Store thereon. Also, Lots 7 and 8, adjoining the residence of L. J. Fluett, Esquire, with dwelling house and stable. These Lots will be sold on favorable terms.

For particulars apply to
H. WILKINSON,
J. A. Vervais.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

LOT No. Four, in the 4th Concession, Gosfield.

J. H. WILKINSON.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

FOR SALE.
(ON TIME.)

AN Eighteen-Horse Power Engine and Boiler complete. Apply to

GEO. BULLOCK.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

TO PRINTERS.

WANTED—A good steady hand, to whom constant work and good wages will be given.

Apply at this Office.

7th March, 1856.

AGRICULTURE, &c.

Cheese Making from a Small Dairy.

We have received requests from several of our lady correspondents, to write a short article on cheese-making especially in reference to that large class of farmers who keep but few cows. It always gives us pleasure to comply with the requests of the ladies, especially of those who are good house-keepers—know how to milk a cow, make good butter and cheese, and cultivate a small flower-garden.

First rate cheese can be made from a few cows, but it is attended with more labor in proportion to the amount made, than in a large dairy, inasmuch as the curd has to be made every morning and placed aside till you have sufficient to make a good sized cheese. The milk is placed in a tub, and warmed to the proper temperature (95 deg. Fahr., or about as warm as when taken from the cow,) by adding a portion of heated milk. If rennet is then added, the milk will set, and afterwards let alone till the curd is well come. The time this occupies varies from fifteen minutes to two hours, according to the amount of rennet, the temperature, &c.—the hotter it is put together, and the more rennet there is added, the quicker will the change come. As a general thing, the longer it is in coming, the tenderer and sweeter will be the curd. If it comes too quickly, it is owing to an excess of lactic acid being formed of the sugar of milk, so that the curd has that hard, cough, white appearance that is the case when the curd is precipitated by vinegar, or any other acid; but if there is a very slow formation of lactic acid, the curd is gradually precipitated in flocks, is less dense, and very sweet and tender. It is then broken up quite fine, either by hand or a curd-breaker made for the purpose, which cuts it into very small pieces. After this it is allowed to stand and settle. The whey is then drawn off and passed through a sieve, to remove any curd there may be in it. The curd is then placed in a strong cloth, and well pressed, to remove the whey. It is then placed in a cold place, and the operation repeated daily—or every other day, if the milk will keep sweet, as it will in the fall, till there is curd enough to make a cheese of the desired size. When the right quantity is obtained, the curd is all broken up very fine, salted, and well mixed. In putting the curd in the vat to be pressed, it is built sufficiently large to cover the whole cheese is placed in the vat, and into this cloth the curd is put. When the curd has filled the vat, a "follet," (usually made of sheet tin, and from three to six inches wide, and sufficiently long to lap over four or five inches when placed round the cheese,) is placed inside the vat for an inch or so, and the cloth drawn up straight, so that when being pressed the follet will not cut it. The whole of the curd is then put in, the cloth turned over the top of it, a smooth board placed over the this, and then it is ready to press. After it has been pressed for some hours, it is taken from under, and pounteured all over with a skewer, either of wood or iron. Place it in the press again till it has become sufficiently consolidated to take out of the vat without falling to pieces. It must then be turned, or laid on its side in the clean cloth put round it. Place it again under the press, occasionally turning it and putting round it fresh cloths, till the cheese when pressed does not wet them. It is then all right, and should be kept in the dairy, or other cool, damp place, for a few days placing a light cloth over it, so that it may be taken to an upper room, where it will require turning very frequently, or the side next the floor will mold. Let the room be dark and well ventilated. (See our remarks on Butter and Cheese-Making, in the May number, page 143.)

A cheese press may be purchased for about $5; and the cost of the vats, fillets, &c., is very trifling; so that it is to us surprising that so few farmers with from four to ten cows ever make any cheese—not even enough for their own consumption. Good cheese sells for nearly as much as butter, and yet a cow will give, to say the least, as much again cheese as she will butter. It is true the whey is not so good to fat hogs as the sour milk, yet it contains much nutritive matter, and is a valuable food for shoats, or a good drink for fattening hogs; yet we think it would be more profitable to make cheese at the present relative prices of the two articles, than butter.

A Few Words on Growing Clover Seed.

The largest yield and best quality of clover seed is obtained by pasturing the first year's growth of clover till the last week in May, and then taking out the animals, destroying any Canada thistles, docks, May weed, &c., that may happen to be in the lot, thus insuring clean seed. It is, however a more general practice to take a crop of clover hay first, and then allow the second growth to go to seed. In this case the first crop should be mown as early as possible; for the great difficulty in obtaining a large yield of clover seed is early frosts, which often check the growth of the clover before the seed is fully matured, and a small crop with an inferior quality of seed is the consequence. When the first crop is pastured or cut very early for hay, the second crop is of course much earlier, and the seed is elaborated perfectly under the influence of warm weather while yet the crop is late, it may be allowed to stand as long as it will grow; for the frosts do not injure the vitality of the seed, but merely checks its growth. Three bushels of clean seed to the acre is about an average yield, though much larger crops are sometimes—and may be often—grown.

Action and Reaction in Farming

Clover being a leguminous plant, allowing it to go to seed does not impoverish the soil to that extent as do the cereal crops which specially exhaust the soil of nitrogen; while clover obtains the large quantity of nitrogen which it contains from the atmosphere; so that by growing clover seed the soil is not materially impoverished or the following crop much injured.

We make these remarks in the hope that they may induce farmers more generally to grow at least sufficient clover seed for their own use, believing that they will seek more land down to clover every year if they do so, than if they have to give their neighbors or city seed-store men four or five dollar per bushel for it, and knowing that the yield of wheat and corn crops will bear a pretty constant proportion to the amount of clover grown and used on the farm. If farmers would make it a rule, with exception only in uncommon cases, never to sow wheat or barley without in the spring seeding down the land with ten or twelve pounds of Red Clover seed per acre, the increased average yield of grain would much more than make up for the fewer number of acres sown; while the greater quality of stock the land would thus be able to maintain, would greatly enhance the profit of the farmer.

The Proper Time to Cut Wheat.

Much difference of opinion exists between purely theoretical and purely practical farmers, in regard to the proper time when wheat and other grain crops should be cut. The theoretical farmer says it should be cut while quite green—say fourteen days before it is ripe—while most practical farmers think it should be quite ripe before cutting. The early cutting advocates advance nothing by a very plausible scientific reason for their opinion, but give numerous experiments which confirm the deductions of science.—The arguments in favor of early cutting may briefly be stated thus: The grain and straw of wheat contain starch and sugar, a portion of which, if the grain is allowed to get quite ripe, is converted into woody fibre, or bran; while if cut green, these would remain unchanged in the grain, and the wheat would yield more flour of a superior quality with considerable less bran. Another reason is, that the straw when cut green is of much more value as food for cattle, containing starch and saccharine matter, which if allowed to get fully ripe is changed into woody fibre, and its nutritive qualities greatly reduced; and then there is less loss by shelling when the crop is cut green than when fully ripe.

We think the true course lies between the two extremes; for while we would by no means cut wheat fourteen days before it is ripe, feeling satisfied from numerous practical experiments that there would be much shrinkage and a loss, and perhaps to the miller, but to the farmer,) yet we would equally avoid letting the grain get fully ripe. As good a practical test as any we know, of the right time to cut wheat, is to take a kernel between the end of the finger and the thumb joint, squeeze it to a pulp, and if there is a milk or cheese like substance in the grain all circulation and growth have ceased, but if it is watery no more nutriment from the soil, and will be better cut up than standing; the straw for an inch or two below the ear will be found to be white, and to have lost all its sap. And now, as the world-renowned agriculturist, Fellenberg, places the control of the harvest, he need not fear that a portion of it will get over-ripe before it can be harvested, and much be lost by shelling, as was formerly often the case where there was a large breadth of wheat to cut and cradlers could not be had at any price; therefore all the necessary to commence operations till the grain is in a fit state for cutting.

Scab, and Grub in the Head of Sheep.—The scab in sheep is caused by a parasitical insect, the acari, and is exceedingly contagious, so much so, indeed, that it seldom makes its appearance in a flock without spreading to the whole. The cause of contamination, however, is not so much from a sound sheep coming in direct contact with a diseased one, as by rubbing themselves on the same posts, &c. As soon as it is discovered, all the affected sheep should be immediately removed from the flock, and the sound ones turned into fresh pastures or fields where they should be well watched, and any that may show symptoms of the disease be instantly taken away.

The best and surest remedy, if applied with care, is the common unguentum distilled with five times its weight of lard. Rub a little on the sheep, and then open a furrow along the back and with the finger apply a little and rub it well in; then open another furrow on each side of the sheep and apply as before, rubbing it well in. Half an ounce is an ordinary dressing, but if the case is an aggravated one, 1½ oz. may be used. It is usually the worst about the shoulders. A strong decoction of tobacco, with the addition of a little spirits of turpentine, is recommended by some, but we have never used it, though it will probably be found efficacious. The unguntum is a certain cure, and if used with ordinary care is perfectly innocious.

Mixing Ashes with Manure.—Unleached wood ashes will in all cases decompose salts of ammonia where there is sufficient moisture present, and liberate the ammonia, which escapes into the atmosphere and is lost. So that when ashes or lime are mixed with fresh liquid or solid excrement, the latter is at once decomposed, and the ammonia very plausible scientific reason for their opinion, but give numerous experiments which confirm the deductions of science.—The arguments in favor of early cutting may briefly be stated thus: The grain and straw of wheat contain starch and sugar, a portion of which, if the grain is allowed to get quite ripe, is converted into woody fibre, or bran; while if cut green, these would remain unchanged in the grain, and the wheat would yield more flour of a superior quality with considerable less bran. Another reason is, that the straw when cut green is of much more value as food for cattle, containing starch and saccharine matter, which if allowed to get fully ripe is changed into woody fibre, and its nutritive qualities greatly reduced; and then there is less loss by shelling when the crop is cut green than when fully ripe.

We think the true course lies between the two extremes; for while we would by no means cut wheat fourteen days before it is ripe, feeling satisfied from numerous practical experiments that there would be much shrinkage and a loss, and perhaps to the miller, but to the farmer,) yet we would equally avoid letting the grain get fully ripe. As good a practical test as any we know, of the right time to cut wheat, is to take a kernel between the end of the finger and the thumb joint, squeeze it to a pulp, and if there is a milk or cheese like substance in the grain all circulation and growth have ceased, but if it is watery no more nutriment from the soil, and will be better cut up than standing; the straw for an inch or two below the ear will be found to be white, and to have lost all its sap. And now, as the world-renowned agriculturist, Fellenberg, places the control of the harvest, he need not fear that a portion of it will get over-ripe before it can be harvested, and much be lost by shelling, as was formerly often the case where there was a large breadth of wheat to cut and cradlers could not be had at any price; therefore all the necessary to commence operations till the grain is in a fit state for cutting.

Hotels, &c.

HENNELL HOUSE,

LATE FREE MASON'S TAVERN,

Sandwich.

THIS House is pleasantly situated at the terminus of the New Gravel Road from Windsor to Sandwich, and possesses all the requisites which are generally met with in first class Hotels—Good Beds, superior Stabling, and unimpeachable Liquors.

From the long experience of the present proprietor in this line of business, he is enabled to meet the wishes of his patrons, in every particular, with promptness; and he will make it his study so to treat his visitors, that they may leave him with perfect satisfaction, and return with pleasure on future occasions.

WM. HENNELL.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th.

SANDWICH EXCHANGE,

BEDFORD STREET, SANDWICH.

JACOB STUTTZ

Returning thanks for past favors, begs to inform his Friends and the Public that he still keeps on hand the best of everything to suit the taste and comfort of his customers, and trusts that by assiduity and attention to business, to merit their patronage and support.

N.B.—A Good Stable and Shed.

WESTERN HOTEL,

BY CYRUS DOBSON.

THIS Hotel, adjoining the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, has been put in thorough repair, and the Proprietor hopes that, by strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a share of public patronage.

N.B.—There is an excellent stable attached to the premises, and an attentive ostler will always be in attendance.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

THE COTTAGE INN,

BY ALEXANDER REAUME,

THE Proprietor having lately leased the above comfortable premises, and having thoroughly repaired and refurnished the same, will be happy to attend upon the travelling public at all hours. A supply of good old Ohio and Hot Water will always be found at the Bar, with all other choice Liquors.

The COTTAGE INN has good and comfortable Stables attached.

ALEXANDER REAUME.

Anderdon, February 29th, 1856.

TRAVELLERS' HOME,

T. HALEY, PROPRIETOR,

(Formerly of Aylmer, Canada West.)

THIS House having been fitted up in the neatest and most comfortable style, the Proprietor hopes that, by keeping the choicest Liquors, and a strict attention to business, to be able to give entire satisfaction to all who may give him a call. Attentive waiters and a well supplied table will always be found there.

Good Stabling and an attentive Ostler always in attendance.

N.B.—FRESH OYSTERS always on hand.

Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

PRINCE ALBERT HOTEL.

THIS Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Warner, has been thoroughly renovated, and will be kept well supplied with the very best liquors. An attentive man will always be in attendance to take charge of horses.

A private Parlor, for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen, has been fitted up.

F. X. TRUDELL,

Sandwich Street, Proprietor.

29th February, 1856.

BROOKER'S TAVERN.

WM. BROOKER is prepared to attend upon his Customers at his new and well-furnished house near the Canard Bridge, where the Traveller will have his wants attended to in regard to good liquors, and his friends may expect to find every accommodation as usual.

A supply of Groceries always kept on hand which will be sold very cheap.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROYAL EXCHANGE.

J. D. McGREGOR,

BEGS to announce to the Travelling Community, and Public in general, that he has opened the above new TAVERN, with good accommodations, and hopes by attention to his business, to merit a share of public patronage. A choice selection of Groceries always on hand.

Maidstone Cross, February 29th, 1856.

MANSION HOUSE.

THIS new and commodious Inn is now completely finished, and the Proprietor hopes, by a strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to receive a continuance of the patronage which was so liberally awarded him at his old stand.

ALONZO BROWN,

Maidstone Cross, Proprietor.

7th March, 1856.

AMERICAN HOTEL.

COURT HOUSE SQUARE, LONDON, C. W.

ROBERT ARKELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and Travellers that he has taken the above Hotel, which has undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The house is in a fine open, airy and central situation, and commands a beautiful view of the valley of the Thames and surrounding country.

The Table is supplied with all the delicacies of the season. The Wines and Liquors will be of the best brands, and he trusts by assiduity and attention to the comfort of his guests to merit their patronage and support.

ROBERT ARKELL.

London, 29th Feb. 1856.

INTERNATIONAL

BILLIARD SALOON,

Windsor, C.W., opposite the Depot of the Great Western Railway.

T. M. HOWRIGAN,

Proprietor.

The above Saloon is neatly and commodiously fitted up, the Proprietor having spared no expense for the purpose of rendering it attractive to visitors.

The best of Cigars, Wines and Liquors always on hand.

Windsor, Feb. 29th, 1856.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

COURTER HOUSE

Corner of Erie and Seneca Streets,

Nearly Opposite the Buffalo & N. Falls Railroad.

B. F. POPPLE, MANAGER.

VISITORS to the above Courter House, Buffalo, will find every convenience and attention at reasonable charges. Tectotalers visiting Buffalo, will find this Hotel calculated to meet their wishes.

Buffalo, 29th Feb. 1856.

S. D. ELWOOD & CO.,

PUBLISHERS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN

BOOKS, STATIONERY,

AND ALL KINDS OF

PAPERHANGS,

PRINTERS AND BINDERS STOCK

MANUFACTURERS OF

BLANK BOOKS

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

Orders for Lithographed Letter and Bill Heads, Maps, Drafts, Stock Certificates, &c., &c., &c.,

EXECUTED WITH PROMPTNESS.

192 Jefferson Avenue,

S. D. ELWOOD, } DETROIT.
J. C. PARSONS, }

Feb 29th, 1856.

New Wholesale

GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT!

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and the Trade generally, that he has commenced business on his own account, in this City, as a

WHOLESALE GENERAL GROCER,

And is now receiving a large and carefully selected Stock of

GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, OILS, PAINTS, &c., &c., &c.,

To which he confidently invites the attention of Western and City Merchants.

Premises, King Street West, opposite Messrs. McKeand, Doss & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods Warehouse.

A. I. McKENZIE.

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

DETROIT SEED STORE

AND

AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.

I would call the attention of Farmers and Gardeners to my present stock of Agricultural Implements, consisting of the most approved and latest patterns of Ploughs, Hay and Corn Stalk Cutting Boxes, Cultivators, Seed Planters, Corn Shellers, Fan Mills, Root Pullers, Corn Planters, Cob Crushers, Churns, &c. Also, Field and Flower Seeds, raised by the most experienced and careful growers in this country and England, and I think purchasers may feel confident that what they get sold will prove true to their names and give perfect satisfaction All seed offered for sale will be of the present year's growth when offered as such.

E. F. PARKER.

75 Woodward Avenue, Detroit.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,

ELEVENTH YEAR.

SPLENDID ENGRAVINGS AND PRIZES.

THE Eleventh Annual Volume of this useful publication commences on the 12 day of September next.

The "SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN" is an Illustrated Periodical, devoted chiefly to the promulgation of information relating to the various Mechanic and Chemic Arts, Industrial Manufactures, Agriculture, Patents, Inventions Engineering, Millwork, and all kindreds matters in the light of PRACTICAL SCIENCE is calculated to advance.

Reports of U. S. Patents granted are also published every week, including Official Copies of all the Patent Claims, together with news and information upon Thousands of other Subjects.

The contributors to the Scientific American are among the most Eminent Scientific and practical men of the times. The Editorial Department is universally acknowledged to be distinguished, not only for the excellent and interesting views of its discussions but for the fearlessness with which error is combated and false theories are exploded.

Mechanics, Inventors, Engineers Chemists, Manufacturers, Agriculturists, and People of every Profession of Life, will find the Scientific American to be of great value in their respective callings. Its counsels and suggestions will save them Hundreds of Dollars annually, besides affording them a continual source of knowledge, the experience of which is beyond pecuniary estimate.

The Scientific American is published once a week; every number contains eight large quarto pages, forming annually a complete and splendid volume, illustrated with several hundred original engravings.

Specimen copies sent gratis.

TERMS:—Single subscriptions, $2 a year or $1 for six months. Five copies for six months, $4; for a year, $8.

For further Club rates and for statement of the fourteen large Cash Prizes, offered by the publishers, see Scientific American.

Southern, Western and Canada money or Post Office Stamps, taken at par for subscriptions.

Letters should be directed (post paid) to

MUNN & CO.

128 Fulton St. New York

Messrs Munn & Co. have been, for many years extensively engaged procuring patents for new inventions, and will advise inventors without charge in regard to the novelty of their improvements.

LIVERY STABLE, NOTICE.

THE Undersigned gives notice to all person or persons hiring Horses, Buggy, or Carriage from his Livery Stable in Sandwich, will be held responsible for all damage done on Horses, Buggy, or Carriage and harness, or delay of the same. Persons wishing to patronize him in his business, will be pleased in taking the above articles at their own risk.

C. F. LABADIE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TILES, TILES.

THE Public are respectfully informed that M. & J. H. WHITEHOUSE are Manufacturing and have on hand a large quantity of Tiles, for Draining Cellars, Farms, &c., at their Brick Yard, Westminster, two miles from London, and a quarter of a mile from Mr. J. Nellis's Tavern, at First Toll Gate on the Dundas Road, which they will sell at the Low Price of £4 per 1000 with Soles or Bottoms, without £3 15s. They will be found to be much cheaper than any other Material for Draining, and they facilitate greatly in the labor, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when put down will never require removing. Samples may be seen and orders received at the Store of Mr. J. Fitzell, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also Roofing Tiles and Press Bricks for fronting Buildings of a superior quality.

London, Feb., 29th, 1856.

Crockery Store and China Emporium.

F. P. MATHER & Co., IMPORTERS and Dealers in Crockery, China, Glass, Britannia and Silver Plated Ware, Lamps and Looking Glasses, Table Cutlery and Fancy Ware, "Sign of the Big White Pitcher," No. 224 Jefferson Avenue, Kearsley's Block, opposite Fireman's Hall, Detroit, Michigan.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

CARPETS. CARPETS.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

THE Subscribers have just received, ex "London," a Large Stock of BRUSSELS, 5 PLY, AND SCOTCH CARPETINGS which they are prepared to offer at low prices, and are well worthy of inspection.

T. B. & J. HARRIS,

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Beecher, Rice and Ketchum.

CARPET & OIL CLOTH WAREHOUSE,

No. 142 Jefferson Avenue.

Conant Block, Detroit, Michigan.

BEECHER, HOLLISTER & WILKINS, Carpet Hall, Lake Street, Chicago, Importers of Carpets, Oil Cloths, Paper-hangings Curtain and Upholstery materials.

A. A. HICE. L. BEECHER. E. F. HOLLISTER
C. B. KETCHUM, D. WILKINS, JR.

Detroit, Feb. 29th, 1856.

JUST PUBLISHED,

CANADA

PHYSICAL, Descriptive and Historical, by Adam Lille, D.D. One Volume, 12mo, about 300 Pages, with Map of Canada East & West. Cloth 5s.; Stiff Covers 3s 9d.

MACLEAR & CO.,

Publishers, Toronto.

N.B.—Sent by Post to any part of North America or Europe, if desired.

Toronto, Feb. 29th, 1856.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

Hamilton and Toronto Branch.

ALTERATION OF TIME.

ON and after MONDAY NEXT, the 10th December, trains will run daily (Sundays excepted) between Hamilton and Toronto, as follows:

GOING WEST

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed Mail
	A M	P M	P M
Toronto, -	8 00	3 20	10 00
Mimico, -	8 10	3 30	10 15
Port Credit, -	8 25	3 45	10 30
Oakville, -	8 43	4 03	10 53
Bronte, -	8 55	4 15	11 15
Wellington Square,	9 10	4 30	11 35
Hamilton, -	9 30	4 50	12 00

GOING EAST.

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed Mail
	A M	P M	A M
Hamilton, -	10 40	6 10	3 10
Wellington Square,	11 00	6 30	3 35
Bronte, -	11 15	6 45	3 55
Oakville, -	11 27	7 00	4 15
Port Credit, -	11 45	7 20	4 35
Mimico, -	12 00	7 35	4 50
Toronto, -	12 15	7 50	5 05

The above Trains connect at Hamilton with Trains of Great Western Railway running in connection with Trains to Buffalo, Rochester, Boston, New York, and with Michigan Central Railroad Trains at Detroit for Chicago, St Louis, &c., &c.

The 3 20 Train from Toronto meets G W R Accommodation Train going West at Hamilton, for Preston Galt, Paris, London, and intermediate Stations

Through Tickets for any of the above places can be obtained at the Ticket Office, Toronto Station

Stages run daily between Oakville, Milton, Georgetown, &c., &c., &c.

C. J. BRYDGES,

Managing Director

Great Western Railway Offices,

Stove Manufactory

ESTABLISHMENT.

THE Subscriber begs leave to notify the Public that he will carry on business in the building lately occupied by T. Murphy, opposite the Hennell Hotel, where he intends to carry on the Tinning Business in all its branches, and hopes by strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage.

N. B.—He will receive the Report of Fashion monthly.

Cutting done to order.

W. T. BASSANDALE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

THE SANDWICH MILLINERY AND DRESS MAKING Establishment will be reopened for the season.

The Proprietor having just returned from the Eastern Cities with a Large Stock of Millinery and Dress Goods of the latest style and fashion, which he offers for sale at a small advance from their original Cost.

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE

J. P. ST. AMOUR.

Sandwich, Feb 29th, 1856.

HIDES WANTED.

ANY Quantity of Hides will be taken in for the Sandwich Tannery at either of the Subscriber's Shops in Sandwich or Windsor, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

JAS. WOODBRIDGE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

WHEAT! WHEAT!! WHEAT!!!

AND CORN!!!!

THE Highest Price will be paid in Cash for good Merchantable Wheat and Corn, either at the Store of the Subscriber at Sandwich, or at the Rose Dale Mills.

GEO. & G. A. BULLOCK.

Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

BUILDING.

THE SUBSCRIBER, in returning thanks to the Inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor, and Vicinity for past favors, begs to respectfully to inform them that he is now at Home, having finished his Contracts in the City of Detroit, and is prepared to enter into Contracts for the erection of

Brick or Wooden Buildings

Of any description, and furnish Materials for the same.

HENRY TEAKLE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

TO BE SOLD

CHEAP FOR CASH,

The property of a person going to England, the following Real Property, viz:

FOUR Town Lots situated in the Town of Sandwich in the County of Essex enclosed in one block with a good Cottage, Stable, and a variety of choice grafted fruits, and a good well of water, being composed of Lots Nos. 13, 14, 15, and 16, on the East side of Russell street, also Water Lot No. 17, a grant for same Sandwich Mills; also Lot No. 16, on the West side of Bedford Street.

Lots No. 13 east half in 2nd Con., Rochester, 100 acres, also the East half of Lot No 8, in 4th Con., Sandwich, 100 acres.

Inquire of George Bullock Esq. Sandwich.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Patent Medicines.

DR. VERVAIS

Pulmonic Syrup,

A NEW PREPARATION OF

COD LIVER OIL SYRUP,

FOR THE CURE OF

COLDS, COUGHS, ASTHMA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, AND ALL DISEASES OF THE THROAT AND LUNGS.

SINCE so many excellent Medicines have been offered to the Public, and by excellent physicans, it might be thought superfluous on my part to offer any NEW PREPARATION. But from many years experience and practice, both in the laboratory and with my patients, I found that the above preparation is the best that has been offered to the public. The Chemical Composition is such that the disagreeable taste is removed without in the least diminishing the virtues of the Oil. It can be taken with perfect safety in all cases, and at all ages, without injuring the constitution. And its properties are so remarkable as instantantaneously to relieve the nervous irritability of the Lungs, soften the Cough, and remove the dryness of the Throat and the viscid phlegm with which the passage of the Lungs are loaded. It causes a gentle warmth throughout the system, equalizes the circulation of the blood, and opens every pore of the skin, thus giving universal egress to the impurities which all systems engender, and which are the true origin of nearly all the diseases to which the human race is liable. Too much cannot be said in favor of a Medicine which will restore the languishing and dying patient from a death-bed to the land of health, and make him enjoy the real blessing of a healthy constitution. We have now the radical cure, "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup," which I not only recommend, but WARRANT to cure all the diseases for which it is made, if the patient will persevere in the use of a bottle or two. The most ample experience justifies the Proprietor in speaking so candidly and confidently of his discovery, when Patients who have been suffering from severe cough, whooping-cough, colds and pulmonal affections, have with the use of a few bottles, not only been restored to their wonted health, but even felt their constitution stronger than for many years previous. All persons who have once used this Medicine have instantly ordered more for the use of themselves and friends. The Proprietor again warrants his preparation to be everything he claims for it; and he only asks the trial of a single bottle to convince every one that it is without doubt or hesitation the most palatable, speedy, and efficacious Medicine ever made use of in America. He has especially devoted 12 years to the preparation of such Medicines, and he can at last hail with pleasure and delight this wonderful preparation of the only infallible Remedy for the cure of nearly all Diseases of the Lungs, particularly Hectic Fevers, Night Sweats, Dyspnea, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all Pains in the Chest. I have only further to add, that this Compound has not been extended beyond my limits as a prescription until astonishing success attended its use in removing the diseases for which I recommended it. It became very popular, and was called for so frequently, I found it necessary to prepare it in large quantities to meet the constant demand for its. Since then it is carefully compounded by myself, who am thoroughly acquainted with the medicinal qualities and effects of each article separately, and of their combined influence when chemically united and have also a perfect knowledge of the human system, and of the functions of each organ both in its healthy and diseased condition, I can therefore recommend this preparation with the greatest confidence, and am therefore fully persuaded from past experience that it will give Universal Satisfaction; but, at the same time, I do not prescribe it as a cure-all, nor do I intend to have it foisted up to the eyes of the public, that it is a "Cure-All," nor that it is, under all circumstances, absolutely infallible. Yet I can truly say that I am acquainted with no chemical composition that acts so well for a tonic—expectorant in chronic cough, and internal affection of debilitated habits, and to re-establish a healthy condition of the secretory organs, to promote the dissolution of the deposite, and to give strength to the system—as this Cod-Liver Oil Syrup. Also in allaying the irritability of the muscular fibres of the bronchial tubes of the lungs and the spasmodic affection of the bronchial tubes in the asthmatic patient, or in any case of dyspnea (tightness of breathing). Consumptive patients will find a great advantage in using this Syrup, not on account of facilitating the expectoration and giving strength, but being very nutritive in itself.

This virtue should draw the attention of the sufferer. There is no medicine which acts so quickly on the respiratory organs as this "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup," because it is received into the circulation, and determined to the lungs. The effects of the Syrup have been so successful in removing the various diseases for which I have generally recommended it, that I hereby assure the public that they need not fear either to use or recommend it; as it will, in a far greater degree, perform all that is stated in the directions accompanying the Article.

Dose for a young child is prepared to enter one teaspoonful four or five times a day.—A child of eight to twelve years, half a teaspoonful three times a day—from one to two years of age, twenty drops three or four times a day.

AYER'S PILLS

Are curing the Sick to an extent never before known of any Medicine.

INVALIDS, READ AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

JULES HAUEL, Esq., the well known perfumer, 76 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, whose choice products are found at almost every toilet, says:

"I am happy to say of your CATHARTIC PILLS, that have found them a most family medicine, of valuable use, than any other within my knowledge. Many of my friends have testified similar benefits from their use, while with me in believing that they possess extraordinary virtues in purifying and healing the blood. Things are not only effectual, but safe and pleasant to be taken—a dose for a sweet morsel. I thank God we are blessed with the public when they are known!"

The venerable Chancellor WARDLAW writes from Batimore, April, 1854:

"DR. J. C. AYER:—Sir: I have taken your Pills with great benefit, for the bilioteness, hepatic, loss of appetite, and Bilious headache, which has of late years overtaken me in the spring. I have never found a medicine to act as ever consent to be, while my means will procure them."

The worthy Reverend S. R. BRIDEWELL, D., of Wentworth, N. H., writes:

"I have used your CATHARTIC PILLS in my practice, I certify from experience that they are an invaluable purgative. In cases of disordered functions of the liver, causing headache, dyspepsia, costiveness, and a great variety of diseases that follow, they are a surer remedy than any I am able to name. Where a cathartic medicine is required, I confidently recommend these Pills to the public, as superior to any other I have ever known. They are safe in their operation, and perfectly safe—qualities which render them the best aperient we can use. I have for many years known your Cherry Pectoral as the best family medicine in the world, and your Pills are in no wise inferior to that admirable preparation for the treatment of diseases."

"Acton, Me., Nov. 25, 1853.

"DR. J. C. AYER:—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted with scrofula in its worst form, and now, after having used your Pill, am entirely rid of all signs of suffering. I have been completely cured in a few weeks by your Pills. They were recommended to me as the best, and only be imagined when you realize what I have suffered, and how well I waited in the acuity of my hand, and destroyed my hair, and lost the use of my left hand and arm, and finally, if cause out in my face, and kept it for months a raw sore, my mouth and nose a constant mass of corruption. Your Cathartic Pills, and now am entirely free from the complaint. My eyes are now clear, my skin is fair, and my health commenced a healthy growth; all of which makes me feel bound to your generous.

"Hoping this statement may be the means of conveying information to others of the value of your Pills, I am, with sentiment of gratitude, Yours, &c., MARIA RICKER."

"I have known the above named Maria Ricker from her childhood, and can confirm the above statement.

ANDREW J. MESERVE,

Overseer of the Portsmouth Manufacturing Co."

CAPT. JOEL PRATT, of the ship Isaac Hebard, of Boston, 20th April, 1854:

"Your Pills are a gift from above. I have a bilious attack which arose from derangement of the Liver, which had become very serious. I called on Dr. Ayer, and got a box of Pills, and from every remedy I could try; but a few doses of your Pills relieved me, and a few more cured me. I have given them to my children for worms, with the best effects. They were worms in my family, but since I have given them to a friend for costiveness, which had troubled him for years; they have done him more good than all the doctors. You make the best medicine in the world; and I am free to say so."

Read this from the distinguished Solicitor of the Supreme Court, whose brilliant abilities have made him well known, not only in this country, but in England:

"New Orleans, 5th April, 1854.

"SIR: I have great satisfaction in assuring you that myself and family have been very much benefited by your Cherry Pectoral. My wife was cured, two years since, of a severe and dangerous cough by your Cherry Pectoral, and since then has enjoyed perfect health. My children have several times been cured of sore throat and croup by it. It is an invaluable remedy for children. I have also used your CATHARTIC PILLS, and am entirely cured me from a dyspepsia and costiveness, which has troubled me for years. I have used your Pills in my practice, and in much more important, from the fact that I had failed to relieve them in the most distressing cases. They relieved me, and a few subsequent doses have entirely removed the disease. I feel in better health now than for some years before, which I attribute entirely to the effects of your CATHARTIC PILLS. I am with great respect, yours, LUCIUS H. METCALF."

The above are all from persons who are publicly known where they reside, and whose veracity will make these statements without a thorough conviction that they were true.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO.,

Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass.

GEO. and G. A. BULLOCK, and

J. A. VERVAIS, Sandwich;

D. OULLETTE, Windsor;

And every Druggist and Merchant in Canada.

MAPLE LEAF.

"PROGRESS."

VOL. I. SANDWICH, C. W., FRIDAY, MARCH 14, 1856. NO. 3.

THE MAPLE LEAF,

IS PUBLISHED

Every Friday Morning,

BY

J. H. WILKINSON,

BEDFORD STREET,

Sandwich, Canada West.

TERMS:—Eight shillings and ninepence Cy, per annum, if paid in advance; or Ten Shillings at the end of the year.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Six lines or under, first insertion, 2s 6d, cy
Each subsequent insertion, . . 0 7½ "

Advertisements over six lines, 4d per line for the first insertion, and one penny per line for every subsequent insertion. A liberal discount made to Merchants and others who advertise by the year.

Advertisements sent in for insertion without written directions, will be continued till forbid and the usual rates charged.

CLUBS.

Any person procuring 10 subscribers will be entitled to a copy gratis. Payment to be made in advance.

The JOB OFFICE connected with the "MAPLE LEAF" is in every respect complete for the dispatch of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

Professional Cards.

Mr. William Johnson,
Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c., &c.
Sandwich, C. W.

Mr. Charles Baby,
Attorney and Councillor at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, &c.
Office, Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. J. H. Wilkinson.
Law, Chancery, Conveyancing, and Land Agency Office,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. Louis J. Fluett,
Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, Conveyancer and Land Agent,
Sandwich.

Mr. S. S. Macdonell,
Barrister, Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, &c., &c.
Windsor, C. W.

Mr. John O'Connor, Jun.,
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c.,
Windsor, C. W.

Charles Eugene Casgrain, M.D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Office and Residence, opposite the "Mear's Hotel."
Sandwich, Canada West.

Dr. Reynolds,
Physician and Surgeon,
Amherstburg.

John Adley,
Physician and Surgeon &c.,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

ALEXANDER GORDON,
NOTARY PUBLIC AND INSURANCE AGENT
Sandwich & Windsor, Canada West.

John McCrae,
Auctioneer, Insurance and General Agent
Windsor, Canada West.

Bank of Upper Canada Agency,
Windsor, Canada West.
Office hours, 9 to 12, A.M., 2 to 4, P.M.

Philip S. Donnelly,
Provincial Land Surveyer, &c.,
Moore, County of Lambton.

P. Marentette,
Gunsmith and Manufacturer of Guns.
Every description of Fire-arms repair d at his shop, on Bedford Street,
Sandwich.

L. P. St. Amour,
IMPORTER, AND WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS
CROCKERY, HARDWARE,
PERFUMERY, &c.,
Sandwich, Canada West.

Sandwich Post Office.

Open daily, from Nine till Twelve, A.M., and from half-past Twelve till Four, P.M.

P. H. MORIN, Post Master.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware
Crockery, Boots & Shoes
&c. &c. &c.
Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich.

THE HOLLY-TREE INN,

A NEW STORY,

BY CHARLES DICKENS.

Continued from our last.

Isaac obeyed, and marvelled much as he saw his mother carefully set down on paper the very words that he was saying. "Light grey eyes," she wrote, as they came to the descriptive part, with a droop in the left eyelid. "Flaxen hair, with a gold-yellow streak in it. White arms, with a down on them. Little lady's hand, with a reddish look about the finger nails. Clasp knife with a buck-horn handle, that seemed as good as new." To these particulars, Mrs. Scatchard added on every month, day of the week, and time in the morning, when the woman of the dream appeared to her son. She then locked up the paper carefully in her writing-desk.

Neither on that day, nor on any day after, could her son induce her to return to the matter of the dream. She obstinately kept her thoughts at out it to herself, and even refused to refer again to the paper in her writing-desk. Ere long, Isaac grew weary of attempting to make her break her resolute silence; and time, which sooner or later wears out all things, gradually wore out the impression produced on him by the dream. He began by thinking of it carelessly, and he ended by not thinking of it at all. This result was the more easily brought about by the advent of some important changes for the better in his prospects, which commenced not long after his terrible night's experience at the inn. He reaped at last the reward of his long and patient suffering under adversity, by getting an excellent place, keeping it for seven years, and leaving it, on the death of his master, not only with an excellent character, but also with a comfortable annuity bequeathed to him as a reward for saving his mistress's life in a carriage accident. Thus it happened that Isaac Scatchard returned to his old mother, seven years after the time of the dream at the inn, with an annual sum of money at his disposal, sufficient to keep them both in ease and independence for the rest of their lives.

The mother, whose health had been bad of late years, profited so much by the care bestowed on her, and by freedom from money anxieties, that when Isaac's next birthday came round, she was able to sit up comfortably at table and dine with him.

On that day, as the evening drew on Mrs. Scatchard discovered that a bottle of tonic medicine—which she was accustomed to take, and in which she had fancied there was a dose or more was still left—happened to be empty. Isaac immediately volunteered to go to the chemist's, and get it filled. It was as rainy and bleak an autumn night as on the memorable past occasion when he lost his way and slept at the roadside inn.

On going into the chemist's shop, he was passed hurriedly by a poorly-dressed woman coming out of it. The glimpse he had of her face struck him, and he looked back after her as she descended the door-steps.

"You're noticing that woman?" said the chemist's apprentice behind the counter.—He is my opinion there's something wrong with her. She's been asking for laudanum to put to a bad tooth. Master's out for half an hour; and I told her I wasn't allowed to sell poison to strangers in his absence. She laughed in a queer way, and said she would come back in half an hour. If she expects master to serve her, I think she'll be disappointed. It's a case of suicide, sir, if ever there was one yet."

These words added immeasurably to the sudden interest in the woman which Isaac had felt at the first sight of her face. After he had got the medicine-bottle filled, he looked about anxiously for her, as soon as he was out in the street. She was walking slowly up and down on the opposite side of the road. With his heart, very much to his own surprise, beating fast, Isaac crossed over and spoke to her.

He asked if she was in any distress. She pointed to her torn shawl, her scanty dress, her crushed, dirty bonnet—then moved under a lamp so as to let the light fall on her stern, pale, but still most beautiful face.

"I look like a comfortable, happy woman —don't I?" she said with a bitter laugh.

She spoke with a purity of intonation which Isaac had never heard before from other than ladies' lips. Her slightest actions seemed to have the easy negligent grace of thorough-bred women. Her skirt, for all its poverty-stricken paleness, was as delicate as if her life had been passed in the enjoyment of every social comfort that wealth can purchase. Even her small, finely-shaped hands, gloveless as they were, had not lost their whiteness.

Little by little, in answer to his question, the sad story of the woman came out. There is no need to relate it here it here; it is told over and over again in Police Reports and paragraphs about Attempted Suicides.

"My name is Rebecca Murdoch," said the woman, as she ended. "I have ninepence left, and I thought of spending it at the chemist's over the way in securing a passage to the other world. Whatever it is, it can't be worse to me than this—so why should I stop here?"

Besides the natural compassion and sadness moved his in heart by what he heard, Isaac felt within him some mysterious influence at work all the time the woman was speaking, which utterly confused his ideas, and almost deprived him of his powers of speech. All that he could say in answer to her last reckless words was, that he would prevent her from attempting her own life, if he followed her about all night to do it. His rough, trembling earnestness, seemed to impress her.

"I won't occasion you that trouble," she answered, when he repeated his threat. "You have given me a fancy for living by speaking kindly to me. No need for the mockery of protestations and promises from me without them. Come to my lodging to-morrow at twelve and you will find me alive. to answer for myself. No!—no money. My ninepence will do to get me as good a night's lodging as I want."

She nodded and left him. He made no attempt to follow—he felt no suspicion that she was deceiving him.

"It's strange, but I can't help believing her," he said to himself—and walked away, bewildered, towards home.

On entering the house his mind was still so completely absorbed by its new subject of interest, that he took no notice of what his mother was doing when he came in with the bottle of medicine. She had opened her old writing-desk in his absence, and was now reading a paper attentively that lay inside it. On every birthday of Isaac's since she had written down the particulars of his dream from his own lips, she had been accustomed to read that same paper, and ponder over it in private.

The next day he went to Fuller's Meadow. He had done only right in believing her so implicitly—she was there, punctual to a minute, to answer for herself. The last-left faint defences in Isaac's heart against the fascination which a word or look from the misery began incrutably to exercise over him, sank down and vanished before her for ever on that memorable morning.

When a man, previously insensible to the influence of women, forms an attachment in middle life, the instances are rare indeed, let the warning circumstances be what they may, in which he is found capable of freeing himself from the tyranny of the new ruling passion. The charm of being spoken to familiarly, fondly, and gratefully by a woman whose language and manners still retained enough of their early refinement to hint at the high social station that she had lost, would have been a dangerous luxury to a man of Isaac's rank at the age of twenty. But it was far more than that—it was certain even to him—now that his heart was opening unworthily to a new influence, at that middle time of life when strong feelings of all kinds, once implanted, strike root most stubbornly in a man's moral nature—A few more stolen interviews after that first morning in Fuller's Meadow completed his infatuation. In less than a month from the time when he first met her, Isaac Scatchard had consented to give Rebecca Murdoch a new interest in existence, and a chance of recovering the character she had lost, by promising to make her his wife.

She had taken possession, not of his passions only, but of his faculties as well. All arrangements for the present and all plans for the future were of her devising. All the mind he had he put into her keeping. She directed him on every point; even instructing him how to break the news of his approaching marriage in the safest manner to his mother.

"If you tell her how you met me and you I am at first," said the cunning woman, "she will move heaven and earth to prevent our marriage. Say I am the sister of one of your fellow-servants—ask her to see me before you go into any more particulars—and leave it to me to do the rest. I want to make her love me next best to you, Isaac, before she knows anything of who I really am."

The motive of the deceit was sufficient to sanctify it to Isaac. The stratagem proposed relieved him of his one great anxiety, and stifled his uneasy conscience on the subject of his mother. Still, there was something wanting to perfect his happiness, something that he could not realise, something mysteriously untraceable, and yet, nothing that perpetually made itself felt; not when he was absent from Rebecca Murdoch, but, strange to say, when he was actually in her presence! She was kindness itself with him; she never made him feel his inferior capacities, and inferior manners—she showed the sweetest anxiety to please him in the smallest trifles; but, in spite of all these attractions, he never could feel quite at his ease with her. At their first meeting, there had mingled with his admiration when he looked in her face, a faint involuntary feeling of doubt whether that face was entirely worthy of him. No after familiarity had the slightest effect on this inexplicable wearisome uncertainly.

Concealing the truth as he had been directed, he announced his marriage engagement precipitately and confusedly to his mother on the day when he contracted it. Poor Mrs. Scatchard showed her perfect confidence in her son by flinging her arms round his neck, and giving him joy of having found at last, in the sister of one of his fellow-servants, a woman to comfort and care for him after his mother was gone.—She was all eagerness to see the woman of her son's choice; and the next day was fixed for introduction.

It was a bright sunny morning, and the little cottage garden was full of light as Mrs. Scatchard, happy and expectant, dressed for the occasion in her best gown, and waited for her son and her future daughter-in-law. Punctual to the appointed time, Isaac hurriedly and nervously led his promised wife into the room. His mother rose to receive her—advanced a few steps, smiling —looked Rebecca full in the eye—and suddenly stopped. Her face, which had been flushed the moment before, turned white in an instant—her eyes lost their expression of of softness and kindness, and assumed a blank look of terror—her outstretched hands fell to her sides, and she staggered back a few steps with a low cry to her son.

"Isaac!" she whispered, clutching him fast by the arm, when he asked alarmedly what she was taken ill. "Isaac! Does that woman's face remind you of nothing?

Before he could answer; before he could look around to where Rebecca, astonished and angered by her reception, stood, at the lower end of the room; his mother pointed impatiently to her writing-desk, and gave him the key.

"Open it," she said, in a quick, breathless whisper.

"What does this mean? Why am I as if I had no business here? Does your mother want to insult me?" asked Rebecca, angrily.

"Open it, and give me the paper in the left-hand drawer. Quick! quick, for Heaven's sake!" said Mrs. Scatchard, shrinking further back in terror. Isaac gave her the paper. She looked over it eagerly for a moment—then followed Rebecca, who was now turning away haughtily to leave the room, and caught her by the shoulder—abruptly raised the long, loose sleeve of her gown, and glanced at her hand and arm.—Something like fear began to steal over the angry expression of Rebecca's face as she shook herself free from the old woman's grasp. "Mad!" she said to herself; "and Isaac never told me." With these few words she left the room.

Isaac was hastening after her when his mother turned and stopped his further progress. It wrung his heart to see the misery and terror in her face as she looked at him.

"Light grey eyes" she said, in low, mournful, awe-struck tones, pointing towards the open door "A droop in the left eyelid.—Flaxen hair with a gold-yellow streak in it. White arms with a down on them. Little, ladies' hand, with a reddish look under the finger nails. The woman of the dream!—Oh, Heaven! Isaac, the woman of the dream!"

That faint cleaving doubt which he had never been able to shake off in Rebecca Murdoch's presence, was fatally set at rest for ever. He had seen her face, then, before —seven years before, on his birthday, in the bedroom of the lonely inn. "The woman of the dream!"

"Be warned, Oh, my son! be warned! Isaac! Isaac! let her go, and do you stop with me!"

Something darkened the parlour window, as these words were said. A sudden chill ran throug him; and he glanced sidelong at the shadow. Rebecc Murdoch had come back. She was peering in curiously at them over the low window blind.

"I have promised to marry, mother," he said, confusedly and amst."

The tears came into his eyes as he spoke, and dimmed his sight; but he could just discern the fatal face outside moving away again from the window.

His mother's head sank lower.

"Are you faint?" he whispered.

"Broken-hearted, Isaac."

He stooped down and kissed her. The shadow, as he did so, returned to the window; and the fatal face peered in curiously once more.

Three weeks after that day, Isaac and Rebecca were man and wife. All that was hopeless, vague, and stubborn in the man's moral nature, seemed to have closed round his fatal passion, and to have fixed it unassailably in his heart.

After that first interview in the cottage parlour, no consideration would induce Mrs. Scatchard to see her son's wife again, or even to talk of her when Isaac tried hard to plead her cause after their marrige. This course of conduct was not in any degree occasioned by a discovery of the degradation in which Rebecca had lived. There was no question of that between mother and son.—There was no question of anything but the fearfully exact resemblance between the living breathing woman and the spectre woman of Isaac's dream. Rebecca, on her side, neither felt nor expressed the slightest sorrow at the estrangement between herself and her mother-in-law. Isaac, for the sake of peace, had never contradicted her first idea that age and long illness had affected Mrs. Scatchard's mind. He even allowed his wife to upbraid him for not having confessed this to her at the time of their marriage engagement, rather than risk anything by hinting at the truth. The sacrifice of his integrity before his one all-mastering delusion, seemed but a small thing, and cost his conscience but little, after the sacrifices he had already made.

The time of waking from his delusion—the cruel and the rueful time—was not far off. After some quiet months of married life, as the summer was ending, and the year was getting on towards the month of his birthday, Isaac found his wife altering towards him. She grew sullen and contemptuous—she formed acquaintances of the most dangerous kind, in defiance of his objections, his entreaties, and his commands,—and, worst of all, she learnt ere long, after every fresh difference with her husband, to seek the deadly self-oblivion of drink.—Little by little, after the first miserable discovery that his wife was keeping company with drunkards, the shocking certainty forced itself on Isaac that she had grown to be a drunkard herself.

He had been in a sadly desponding state, for some time before the occurrence of these domestic calamities. His mother's health as he could but too plainly discern every time he went to see her at the cottage, was failing fast; and he upbraided himself in secret as the cause of the bodily and mental suffering she endured. When, to his remorse on his mother's account, was added the shame and misery occasioned by the discovery of his wife's degradation, he sank under the double trial—his face began to alter fast, and he looked what he was, a spirit-broken man. His mother, still struggling bravely against the illness that was hurrying her to the grave, was the first to notice the sad alteration in him, and the first to hear of his last bitterest trouble with his wife. She could only weep bitterly, on the day when he made his humiliating confession; but on the next occasion when he went to see her, she had taken a resolution in reference to his domestic afflictions, which astonished, and even alarmed him. He found her dressed to go out, and on asking the reason, received this answer:

"I am not long for this world, Isaac," said she; "and I shall not feel easy on my death-bed, unless I have done my best to the last to make my son happy. I mean to put my own fears and my own feelings out of the question, and to go with you to your wife, and say what I can do to reclaim her. Give me your arm, Isaac; and let me do the last thing I can in this world to help my son before it is too late."

He could not disobey her; and they walked together slowly towards his misery able house. It was only one o'clock in the afternoon when they reached the cottage where he lived. It was the dinner hour, and Rebecca was in the kitchen. He was thus able to take his mother quietly into the parlour, and then prepare his wife for the interview. She had fortunately drank but little at that early hour, and she was less sullen and capricious than usual. He returned to his mother with his mind tolerably at ease. His wife soon followed him into the parlor, and the meeting between her and Mrs. Scatchard passed off better than he had ventured to anticipate: though he observed with secret apprehension, that his mother, resolutely as she controlled herself in other respects, could not look his wife in the face when she spoke to her. It was a relief to him, therefore, when Rebecca began to lay the cloth.

She had the cloth—brought in the bread-tray, and cut a slice from the loaf for her husband—then returned to the kitchen. At that moment, Isaac, still anxiously watching his mother, was startled by seeing the same ghastly change pass over her face, which had altered it so awfully on the morning when Rebecca and she first met. Before he could say a word she whispered with a look of horror:—

"Take me back!—home, home, again, Isaac! Come wi h me, and never come back again."

He was afraid to ask for an explanation, she could only sign to her to be silent, and help her quickly to the door. As they passed the bread-tray on the table she stopped and pointed to it.

"Did you see what you wife cut your bread with?" she asked, in a low, still whisper.

"No, mother,—I was not noticing—what was it?"

"Look!"

He did look. A new clasp-knife, with a buck-horn handle lay with the loaf in the bread-tray. He stretched out his hand, shudderingly, to possess himself of it; but, at the same time, there was a noise in the kitchen, and his mother caught at his arm.

"The knife of the dream!—Isaac, I'm faint with fear—take me away! before she comes back!"

He was hardly able to support her—the visible, tangible reality of the knife struck him down, and utterly destroyed any faint doubts that he might have entertained up to this time, in relation to the mysterious dream-warning of nearly eight years before. By a last desperate effort, he summoned self-possession enough to help his mother quietly out of the house,—so quietly, that the "dream-woman" (he thought of her by that name, now!) did not hear them departing, from the kitchen.

"Don't go back, Isaac—don't go back!" implored Mrs. Scatchard, as he turned to go away, after seeing her safely seated again in her own parlour.

"I must get the knife," he answered, under his breath. She tried to stop him again; but he hurried out without another word.

On his return, her found that his wife had discovered their secret departure from the house. She had been drinking, and was in a fury of passion. The dinner in the kitchen was flung under the grate; the cloth was off the parlour-table. Where was the knife. Unwisely he asked for it. She was only too glad of the opportunity of irritating him, which the request afforded her. "He wanted the knife, did he! Could he give her a reason why?—No!—Then he should not have it,—not if he went down on his knees to ask for it." Further recriminations elicited the fact that she had bough t it a bargain—and that she considered it her own especial property. Isaac saw the uselessness of attempting to get the knife by fair means, and determined to search for it, later in the day, in secret. The search was unsuccessful. Night came on, and he left the house to walk about the streets. He was afraid now to sleep in the same room with her.

Three weeks passed. Still sullenly enraged with him, she would not give up the knife; and still that fear of sleeping in the same room with her, possessed him. He walked about at night, or dozed in the parlour, or sat watching by his mother's bedside. Before the expiration of the first week in the new month his mother died. It wanted then but ten days of her son's birthday. She had longed to live till that anniversary. Isaac was present at her death; and her last words in this world were addressed to him: "Don't go back, my son, don't go back!"

He was obliged to go back, if it were only to watch his wife. Exasperated to the last degree by his distrust of her, she had revengefully sought to add a sting to his grief, during the last days of his mother's illness, by declaring that she would assert her right to attend the funeral. In spite of all that he could do, or say, she held with wicked pertinacity to her word; and, on the day appointed for the burial, forced herself —inflamed and shameless with drink—into her husband's presence, and declared that she would walk in the funeral procession to his mother's grave.

This last worst outrage accompanied by all that was most insulting in word and look maddened him for the moment. He struck her. The instant the blow was dealt, he repented it. She crouched down, silent in a corner of the room, and eyed him steadily; it was a look that cooled his hot blood, and made him tremble. But there was no time now to think of a means of making atonement. Nothing remained, but to rid the worst of the funeral was over. He locked her into her bed room.

When he came back some hours after, he found her sitting, very much altered in look and bearing, by the bedside, with a bundle on her lap. She rose, and faced him quietly, and spoke with a strange stillness in her voice, strange fixedness in her eyes, a strange composure in manner.

"No man has ever struck me twice," she said, "and my husband shall have no second opportunity. Set the door open and let me go. From this day forth we see each other no more."

Before he could answer she passed him, and left the room. He saw her walk away up the street

Would she return? All that night he watched and waited; but no footstep came near the house. The next night overpowered by fatigue, he lay down in bed, in his clothes, the door locked, the key on the table, and the candle burning. His slumber was not disturbed. The third night, the fourth, the fifth, the sixth, passed, and nothing hrppened. He lay down on the seventh, still in his clothes, still with the door locked the key on the table, and the candle burning; but easier in his mind.

Easier in his mind, and in perfect health of body, when he fell off to sleep. But his rest was disturbed. He woke twice, without any sensation of uneasiness. But the third time it was that never-to-be-forgotten awaking of the night at the lonely inn, that dreadful sinking pain at the heart, which once more aroused him in an instant.

His eyes opened towards the left hand side of the bed, and there stood—— The woman of the dream, again?—No! His wife; the living reality, with the dream spectre's face—with the dream-spectre's attitude; the fair arm up—the knife clasped in the delicate, white hand.

He sprang upon her, almost at the instant of seeing her, and yet not quickly enough to prevent her from hiding the knife. Without a word from him—without a cry from her—he pinioned her in a chair. With one hand he felt up her sleeve—and, there, where the dream-woman had hidden the knife, she had hidden it,—the knife with the buck-horn handle, that looked like new.

In the despair of that fearful moment, his brain was steady, his heart was calm. He locked at her fixedly, with the knife in his hand, and said these last words:

"You told me we should see each other no more, and my word shall not be broken."

He left her, and set forth into the night. There was a bleak wind abroad, and the smell of recent rain was in the air. As the distant church-clocks chimed the quarter as he walked rapidly beyond the last houses in the suburb. He asked the first policeman man he met, what hour that was, of which the quarter past had just struck.

The man referred sleepily to his watch, and answered:—"Two o'clock." The morning of the day of the month was this day that had just begun? He reckoned it up from the date of his mother's funeral. The fatal parallel was complete.—it was his birthday!

Had he escaped the mortal peril which his dream foretold? or had he only received a second warning? At that ominous doubt forced itself on his mind, he stopped, reflected, and turned back again towards the city. He was still resolute to hold to his word, and never to let her see him more; but there was a thought now in his mind of having her watched and followed. The knife was in his possession—the world was before him; but a new distrust of her—a vague, unspeakable, superstitious dread—had overcome him.

"It must know where she goes, now she thinks I have left her," he said to himself, as he took back swarily to the precincts of his house.

It was still dark. He had left the candle burning in the bedchamber; but when he looked up at the window of the room now, there was no light in it. He crept cautiously to the house-door. On going away he remembered to have closed it; on trying it now, he found it open.

He waited outside, never losing sight of the house, till daylight. Then he ventured indoors—listened, and heard nothing—looked into kitchen, scullery, parlour; and then, finally, went up, at last, into the bedroom—it was empty. A pick-lock lay on the floor, betraying how she had gained entrance in the night; and that was the only trace of her.

Whither had she gone? No mortal tongue could tell him. The darkness had covered her flight; and when the day broke, no man could say where the light found her.

Poetry.

The Sister's Reply.

We miss thee at home. Yes, we miss thee
Since the hour we bade thee adieu,
And prayers have encircled thy pathway
From anxious hearts loving and true!
That the Saviour would guide and protect thee
As far from the loved ones you roam,
And whisper, where'er thou wert saddened,
They miss thee—all miss thee at home.

When morning awakens from slumber,
We catch from her lips the first kiss,
And fold in a wandering zephyr
To be wafted to him whom we miss;
And when we have joined the home circle
And replaced the still vacant chair,
In each eye rise the gathering tear-drops
For him we were wont to see there.

The shadows of evening are falling,
O where is the wanderer now?
The breeze that floats lightly around us,
Perchance may soon visit his brow;
O bear on thy bosom a message,
We are watching—Oh, why wilt thou roam?
The heart has grown sad and dejected,
For we miss thee—all miss thee at home.

Miscellany.

On Wednesday week night last a collision occurred on the Great Western Railway, near Lobo Station, by which two or three very handsome passenger cars were completely destroyed, and the engine London damaged to a considerable extent. Several passengers were slightly bruised, but only one suffered to, any considerable extent.—He received a severe blow on his forehead; it is thought, however, that the injury is really not so great as was at first supposed. —Western Planet.

A GOOD MAXIM.—The more pe ceably and quietly we get on, the better—the better for our neighbors. In nine cases out of ten the wisest policy is, if a man cheats you, quit dealing with him; if he is abusive, quit his company; if he slanders you, take care to live so that nobody will believe him. No matter who he is, or how he misuses you, the wi est way is generally to leave him alone, for there is nothing better than this, cool, calm, quiet way of dealing with the wrongs we meet with.

A REMARKABLE EXECUTIONER.—We have observed several wonderful stories of late respecting the skill of the Chinese executioners, who, it is said, can strike off the heads of their victims so skilfully that the poor fellows themselves never discover their loss until a moment or two after they are dead. We recal to mind, however, the story of a German executioner, who far surpassed the Chinese professional dexterity. Upon one occasion, it happened that a criminal who was condemned to death had a singular itching to play at ninepins; and he implored permission to play once more at his favorite game before he died. Then, he said, he would submit to his fate with out a murmur. The Judge, thinking there could be no harm in humoring him granted his last prayer; and upon arriving at the place of execution he found everything prepared for the game—the pins being all set up and all ready. He commenced his favorite sport with enthusiasm. After a while the Sheriff, observing that he showed no inclination to desist, made a sign to the executioner to strike the fatal blow while he stooped for the ball. The executioner did so, but with such dexterity that the culprit did not notice or feel it. He thought, indeed, that a cold breath of air was blowing upon his neck, and drawing himself back with a shrug, his head dropped forward in his hands. He naturally supposed that it was a ball which he had grasped, and before it firmly rolled it at the pins. All of them fell; and the h ad was heard to exclaim at it rebounded from the further wall —"Hurrah! I've won the game!"—Portfolio.

There are six hundred and sixty thousand five hundred and sixty three slaves owned in this country by ministers of the Gospel and members of the different churches, viz: 219,563 by the Methodists; 77,000 by the Presbyterians; 125,000 by the Baptists; 80,000 by the Episcopalians; 101,000 by the Campbellites; and 50,000 by other denominations.—American Paper

A present for Cronstadt is being constructed at the Lewmoor Iron Works, England. It is a shell, nine feet five inches in diameter. Its weight is over a ton. It cost £25 in filled, and the mortar which is to discharge such a shell weighs thirty-five tons. This shell is intended to bombard Cronstadt, and it is expected that a bombardment well sustained with such a weight of metal, will crumble the walls of that defence like powder.

EARLY RISING.—The Christian Advocate of this week has a letter from its London correspondent, under date of December 7th, giving an interesting account of the visit of the King of Sardinia. In speaking of the departure of the King, the writer introduces the following extract from the Court Circular of the 6th: "At half-past four o'clock this morning, the Queen, the King of Sardinia, Prince Albert, and the Duke of Cambridge, breakfasted together at Windsor Castle. The writer then contrasts the present mode of family enjoyment with that of George the Fourth. Then the hour of breakfast oil times ran also the afternoon. "Now, we find the Queen sitting down to breakfast, with her husband and her guests, three hours before day-light, on a wild December morning, with the wintry wind howling round the turrets of Windsor, and the snow lying thick on park and terrace." The writer admits that this hour is earlier than that at which the royal family usually breakfast, and was fixed to allow of the departure of Victor Emanuel, the train starting at five o'clock. Yet the habits of the Queen and Prince Albert are systematically so early and regular, that in the spring and summer her Majesty and children are generally seen driving three or four miles from Buckingham palace, as early as eight o'clock, having breakfasted and united in domestic worship with the household, before leaving home.

A HUNGARIAN TRAGEDY.—A young Hungarian soldier named Wesley, belonging to an Austrian regiment in the garrison of Rastadt, was executed a few mornings ago in that city, for murder, in virtue of the sentence of the Court martial. Wesley, who was a young man of excellent character, conceived a violent passion for a young woman named Mauckert, a female servant in a public house at Rastadt, and he paid his addresses to her. She pretended to love him, promised to marry him, and made him give her all the money he received from his family, or was able to earn by his skill as a farrier. All at once to his dismay, he learned that she was being engaged to be married to a man in Hungary, and when he called upon her for an explanation, she admitted that she meant to marry that man and no other, and that she only pretended to be in love with him in order to get his money, to be able to marry sooner. On this Wesley, in despair, plunged a knife into her heart, killing her instantaneously. He was sentenced for this to be hanged, but no hangman could be found for miles around, and so he was ordered to be shot. He was marched to the glacis of the fort under a strong guard, and there found about 2,500 soldiers drawn up. The soldiers, as usual in Germany on such occasions, knelt also, three riflemen who had recently carried off prizes for their skill in shooting were ordered forward. All the soldiers then began singing a hymn, and in the midst of it, the signal was given, and at the moment the criminal, struck by three balls, fell dead.—Gavignani's Messenger.

THE NEW POST OFFICE.—This beautiful building was opened for the transaction of business on Tuesday last, and indeed a great improvement on the narrow structure from which the office is removed. The public entrance is through a lobby, with side doors opening into the hall, which is a fine spacious room, probably large enough for the accommodation of a city of 50,000 inhabitants. There are 147 private boxes and 640 ordinary boxes. The ladies have a delivery window for their own especial benefit,—there being besides 2 windows for men, and an office for the money order department. The inner delivery room and the large sorting room behind are well adapted to their purpose, and we should fancy Mr. Ritchie and his aides will find themselves much more comfortable in their new quarters.

Although it is a great credit to the Architect, and those who have carried out the work and I must do something to impress visitors with the business importance of the City of Hamilton.—Hamilton Gazette.

APPOINTMENTS.

MILITARY DISTRICT NUMBER NINE, UPPER CANADA.

One troop of Volunteer Militia Cavalry, in the County of Essex, with its Head Quarters at Sandwich, to be styled the Essex Troop of Volunteer Militia Cavalry.

The following Officers are appointed to this Troop, viz:

To be Captain:

Theodore Wigle, Esquire.

To be Lieutenant:

Cornet James H. Wilkinson, from late 1st Essex.

Troop of Cavalry:

Ensign James McKee from 1st Battalion Essex.

HEAD QUARTERS,

Toronto, 8th March, 1856.

MILITIA GENERAL ORDERS.

No. 2.—The attention of the several Officers in command of Corps belonging to the Active or Volunteer Militia Force in Upper Canada, is requested to those provisions of the General Order No. 1 of the 16th August, 1855, which direct that all correspondence connected with the drill and discipline of those Companies, &c., shall be addressed to the Inspecting Field Officer of Militia, and also that the Pay Lists are to be transmitted to that Officer prior to their being sent to the Adjutant General at Head Quarters.

Legislative Assembly.

TORONTO, TUESDAY, MARCH 11, 1856.

In the House on Thursday,

Mr. DORION moved for a Committee of the Whole, to take int consideration resolutions relating to the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors—the effect of which were to prohibit the sale of spirituous liquors in less quantities than one gallon—to prohibit the retail of liquors in any less quantity by licensed tavern keepers, to persons residing within a certain number of miles of the tavern, unless they were persons boarding at the house where the liquor was sold.

Mr. DORION said the resolutions were of a character affecting the revenue of the country, and the matter might have to be considered in its fiscal aspects by the Government.

Mr. SPENCE avowed himself a supporter of the Maine Law, pure et simple, and considered the question of revenue to be of trivial account compared with the great social benefits which he believed would result from temperance reform.

Mr. SANDOM moved in amendment to Mr. DORION's resolution,—that it was expedient to prohibit by legislative enactments, the active trade in intoxicating drinks.

Mr. FELTON moved, in amendment to the main motion, the expediency of a new license law, which would prevent license, from being granted without the consent of the Township and County Municipality where the tavern was to be established—also to require a high security that the terms of the license should not be violated. He intended also by this resolution to declare drunkenness a crime.

Mr. DORION criticized Mr. Felton's resolutions, pointing out the difficulty of the discretion they gave to a measure of drinking constituted the drunkard—whether it would be criminal to be drunk once or drunk twice a day—whether drinking half a pint of brandy would constitute a drunkard or a whole gallon of beer. Mr. Felton's Bill had been laid before the House and in the discussion of the fines for the violation of the law had not been fixed, so that it was impossible to judge of its principles.

Mr. SYDNEY SMITH said, unlike the member for Wolfe, his opinions instead of being less strongly in favor of the law, had been strengthened during the recess. No one denied that legislation was not necessary.—He admitted a decline in the support which had been accorded to the measure during the last session. But this did not alter his views. The Bill of last session, he considered did not go far enough. He hoped the Committee of the present session, notwithstanding the fluctuation of opinion in the United States, would introduce a more stringent enactment, making the man who sells liquor not merely liable to a fine, but declaring him a criminal. He looked upon the people of Canada would sustain the prohibitory law if it was passed. He disavowed any faith in the efficiency of any license law such as that proposed by the hon. member for Montreal.

Mr. HARTMAN lectured Mr. Felton for abandoning his Prohibitory Bill, and called the attention of the House to that which had produced the change in his opinions. He pointed out that no petitions had been presented against a prohibitory law with the exception of one from Barnston's Corners. On the other hand, petitions, signed by no fewer than 60,000 persons, had been laid before the House,—a petition in favor of the action of the Temperance Convention held in Toronto, which had been ridiculed by some members and said the only doubt expressed as to the success of the Temperance movement, was that which had been realized, viz: that certain members of Parliament would be thrown out of their professions. He proceeded to prove that the law had been successful in Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont.

Mr. LORANGER justified Mr. Felton's change of opinion. The majority which sustained the Speaker's decision on the question last year, showed that there was no hope of carrying a prohibitory law in the present Parliament—and Mr. Felton, seeing that public opinion was against him, proposed take a stringent license law as the best measure that could be got. Every journal of note in the country had sustained the decision of the House, and it was evident that a prohibitory law, if passed, could not be carried into effect.

Mr. JACKSON regretted that Mr. Felton had introduced his resolutions—inasmuch as they were embraced in those introduced by Mr. Dorion. He declared himself the advocate of prohibition, and referring to the numerous petitions before the House, said if they did not prove that the people were prepared to carry the law into effect, at least it might be taken to show that a very large body of the people—all those at least who had signed the petitions—would aid in enforcing the law effect. He admitted the danger of placing laws on the Statute-book which could not be carried out; and considered the tendency of such legislation to be to bring the law into disrespect. He admitted, also, that under some circumstances a stringent license law might be advisable—and if the sense of the House on Mr. Sanborne's motion was found to be adverse to prohibition, members would have to take such a Temperance Reform as they could get.

Mr. MACMILLON spoke in favor of placing large discretionary power in the hands of Municipalities, to regulate the liquor traffic.

Mr. FELTON defended himself from the attack made on him by Mr. Hartman, and pointed out that gentlemen was as inconsistent as he was himself—being prepared to vote for only half what the Maine Law petitioners asked for. He pointed out the dangers of premature legislation on the prohibitory question, and showed the advantage of waiting to have the experience of the States, which had tried this law, to guide us in establishing a Temperance Reform.—He declared the many members in the House would vote for prohibition who were not in favour of the principle—but did so to gain an ephemeral popularity.

Mr. RANKIN considered that more cant was uttered on this than on any other subject. He agreed with medical authorities, who said that liquor was not a necessary of health. But he considered that the taste for spirituous liquors could not be altered by Act of Parlian ent, and therefore declared himself opposed to a prohibitory law.

Mr. SPENCE pointed out the inefficiency of the license law in force, and considered that any further reform in that direction would be useless. Thirteen States of the Union had affirmed the principle of Prohibition, and a prohibitory measure had been passed in New Brunswick, and had received the assent of our Sovereign. He argued that the revenue could not suffer from the loss of duties on imported liquors, inasmuch as the money not expended in liquors would be expended, after the law was in operation, on other dutyable goods.

Mr. YOUNG said he was opposed to the principle of prohibition, and considered that the effect of a tariff, as it at present stood, was to encourage the excessive use of spirituous liquors. In 1851 there were imported into the Province 98,000 gallons of spirits; while in 1854 the quantity imported was not less than 700,000 gallons. The result of legislation, due to a small 12½ per cent. duty on spirits, and the large specific duty on wines—a duty equivalent to 150 per cent. on the original cost. He argued that to encourage by a light duty the importation of wines would be to advance the Temperance Reform and not retard it. He referred to the absence of drunkenness in European countries in confirmation of his argument.

Mr. LABERGE spoke at length (in French) in opposition to a prohibitory law.

Mr. POWELL hoped the legislative farce of last year would not be repeated during the present session, and claimed credit for having from the first resisted the Prohibitory Bill.

Mr. WILSON supported the principle of prohibition, and censured Mr. Rankin for sneering at the kind of signatures attached to the petitions in favor of a prohibitory law. He considered that if women did sign these petitions they were deeply interested in the question.

Mr. JAMES SMITH that those in favor of a prohibitory law should not abandon their ground, as Mr. Felton had done. He pointed out the inefficiency of the license laws. The liquor trade could not be regulated; it must be prohibited. He had once thought differently, but had been good reason to change his opinion.

Mr. BELLINGHAM argued against the use of ardent spirits, by references to the habits of the Ottawa lumbermen, who, he said, were virtuously temperate. He was doubtful, however, whether prohibition could be enforced in the county of Glengarry, where there were twenty thousand Macdonalds, all of whom drank whiskey.

Mr. J. S. MACDONALD, rising indignantly, asked how Mr. Bellingham had the audacity to charge his constituents with intemperate habits.

Mr. DRUMMOND avowed himself the advocate of a stringent license law. But he opposed the Maine Law from seeing, by actual observation, that the tendency of such a law was to encourage hypocrisy. He asked Mr. Felton to withdraw his motion.

Mr. FELTON having asked permission to withdraw his motion.

Mr. MACKENZIE objected.

The House then divided on Mr. Felton's amendment—YEAS, 43—NAYS, 67.

The House then divided on Mr. Sanborn's amendment—YEAS, 50—NAYS, 51.

The House divided on Mr. Dorion's amendment.—YEAS, 65—NAYS, 35.

The House then went into Committee, and rose without having discussed any of the clauses of the resolutions.

The House adjourned at half-past 11 o'clock P. M.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

SANDWICH, MARCH 14, 1856.

We have received a number of Parliamentary papers from A. Rankin, Esq., M.P.P., for which he will please accept our thanks.

General Williams, the heroic defender of Kars, we are happy to learn, will be presented with a very handsome sword, for which the Legislative Assembly of Nova Scotia have voted the sum of one hundred and fifty guineas. This officer has distinguished himself, in the cool and soldier-like bravery which he displayed in the defence of Kars, with a force much inferior to the enemy in point of numbers, and well might the Nova Scotians feel proud of their countryman. He has shown a knowledge of his profession which many an older soldier might feel proud of possessing; and had it not been for the neglect of the Government in furnishing his little army with supplies, he could and would have held the fortress against Russian arms, for a much longer duration reducing his already small army to the utmost distress, he was compelled to surrender in order to save his men from a fate which would have been inevitable. We copy from the Halifax Chronicle the following particulars:

The House of Assembly of Nova Scotia did itself and the Province the honor, on Saturday last, of voting the sum of one hundred and fifty guineas, for the purchase of a suitable sword to be presented to our distinguished countryman, Major General Williams, who since the fall of the Crimean fortress which so heroically defended, is a respected prisoner of war in the Russian dominions. The resolution was moved by the Hon. Attorney General, seconded by the Hon. James W. Johnston, supported by the Hon. Joseph Howe, and unanimously attained by the unanimous vote of the Armenian. The eulogiums pronounced in the House, on the occasion, were alike creditable to those who uttered, and honorable to the gallant soldier whose career and captivity formed a theme for their eloquence. The Legislative Council has since sanctioned the appropriation, also by a unanimous vote. The countrymen of the hero of Kars will to a man—or we are much mistaken—endorse this most praiseworthy proceeding on the part of their representatives in the Provincial Parliament. General Williams was born at Anapolis in the latter part of the year 1800, and entered the Royal Artillery when about 25 years of age. His father had long served in that gallant corps, and previous to his death had attained the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. General Williams has several surviving sisters and other relatives, scattered in England, New Brunswick, and the United States. It is gratifying to learn that he has been treated in the most magnanimous manner by the Muscovites, and that he expects to be speedily released.

The London Illustrated News, of 2nd inst. has a portrait of Gen. Williams, and in the accompanying notice the writer says of the defence of Kars—How well he acquitted himself of the trust reposed in him, how skilful his position, and could that England's choice, let not England only, but the united voice of the Cabinets and armies of Europe declare. In this instance at any rate "the right man was put into the right place," and surely has history presented to our notice the parallel fact of a General more honored in the circumstances attending his defeat than it falls to the lot of most men to be in the achievement of the most complete success. Whatever human skill and forethought, lest to its own resources could plan—whatever the highest order of moral courage and of physical endurance could achieve—it will be readily granted to Gen. Williams and the heroic garrison of Kars that in each and all of these qualities they were severally and pre-eminently distinguished.

How is it then that the honour of the Bath, so lavishly dispensed in the Crimea, should in the case of Gen. Williams, up to the present time at least, have been withheld—he being notoriously (without disparagement of others) the only British General engaged in the present war upon whose judgment, tactics, and bearing, and "sufficiency for the position in which he was placed," lest so that position was by famine as well as by fees, the national verdict of approval has been pronounced, without the slightest admixture of censure, from the first to the last.

A gentleman in the City of Detroit informed us the other day, that the great number of 88,800 live hogs had been crossed over the River Detroit, on their way to the Eastern market, besides 48,000 dead hogs. These have all had to be carried by the Great Western Railway to the Suspension Bridge.

PORK.

By the Cincinnatti Gazette of the 11th ult., it appears that the quantity of Pork packed in the States of Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Iowa, Illinois and Missouri, exceeds that of 1854-5 by 214,338 hogs; and they have yet to receive amounts from fifty-two packing places. The increase in weight (ranging from 9 to 30 per cent) taken at 12 per cent on 2,024,125 hogs slaughtered, would be equal to 217,294 hogs, which added to the increased number, makes an aggregate increase equal to 431,632 hogs, which taken at an average of 180 lbs per hog, gives nearly 78 million pounds.

There is also no doubt of the increased number of hogs shipped East this season, as compared with last, but the exact amount cannot at present be stated until the returns are all received. There is also no doubt of more pork being put up by Farmers at home than usual, and mostly in Bacon, in consequence of high prices and inability to procure cooperware.

The arrival of the steamer, and Parliamentary news of importance, have crowded out a number of articles intended for this issue, which will appear in our next.

MINISTERIAL CRISIS.

On Monday last, being the day for the consideration of Mr. Cameron's motion for a copy of the charge delivered by the Hon Judge Duval to the Jury, on the trial before the Criminal Court at Quebec, of Kelly and others, for the murder of Edward Corrigan. There was a very spirited debate between Mr. Drummond on the part of the Ministry, and Mr. Cameron; and, for some cause or other, the Ministry made it a Government question, and upon a division were defeated. We must confess that it was a strange course for the Ministry to pursue in opposing this motion. By the list of Members who voted, it will appear that a few of the prominent members of the Government were absent when the vote was taken, shewing that there was a disposition on the part of some of the Government Members to vote for the motion, but were more inclined to shirk the vote than to place the ministry in the minority. Whether it is the intention of the Ministry to still try and keep their seats, after the adjournment, it is hard to tell at present; and if they resign, who will take office, is a question that is still more difficult to answer, unless the present premier absented himself in pursuance of an arrangement that may have been entered into, so as to place the Ministry upon a surer foundation when re-organized. We hope it is so.

From the delay in the mails, we were not in possession of the particulars until to-day (Thursday), when it was too late to give a very lengthy and more important a subject. Below is the list of Members who voted for and against the motion.

The motion was then carried by a vote of 48 to 44, leaving the Ministry in minority of Four!

YEAS.—Messrs. Aikins, Bell, Bellingham, Biggar, Burton, Cameron, Christie, Church, Cooke, (Oxford), Crawford, Daly, Darche, Delong, DeWitt, Dorion (Drummond), Dufresne, Forres, Ferrie, Frazer, Freeman, Gamble, Gould, Hartman, Larwell, Lumsden, Lyon, Macbeth, Macdonald (Glengary) McDonald (Cornwall), Mackenzie, McCann, Matheson, Mattice, Merritt, Murney, Patrick, Poulin, Powell, Rankin, Rhodes, Rolph, Scatcherd, Shaw, Somerville, Wilson, Wright, Yeilding and Young—48.

NAYS.—Messrs. Alleyn, Bourassa, Brodeur Burwell, Carter, Cassault, Chapais, Clarke, Daoust (Beauharnois), Daoust (Two Mountains), Desaulniers, Dioune, Dorion (Montreal), Dostaler, Attorney General Drummond, Evanturel, Felton, Fortier (Nicolet), Fortier (Bellechasse), Gaucher, Fournier, Gill, Guevremont, Holton, Labelle, Laporte, Laterrière, Lemieux, Loranger, Attorney General Macdonald, Marchildon, Masson, Meagher, O'Farrell, Papin, Poulette, Pouliot, Prevost, Price, Solicitor General Ross, Ross (Northumberland), Solicitor General Smith, Spence, Thibaudeau and Turcotte—44.

MINISTERIAL CRISIS.

TUESDAY March 11, 1856

The Speaker took the chair at 3 o'clock.

After some routine business had been transacted.

Attorney General DRUMMOND rose, and said: I rise, Mr. Speaker, to announce to you and to this Honourable House, that, having taken into consideration the vote of last night on Mr. Cameron's motion, my colleagues and myself have come to the conclusion, that we should throw ourselves on the indulgence of this House, by asking an adjournment till Thursday next, that we may have time to consult with the leader of the Government, and among ourselves more fully than we have yet been able to do, as to the course we should adopt, under the circumstances in order that that course may be consistent, not only with the duty we owe to the crown and its representative in this country, but the duty we owe to the House and the duty we owe to ourselves.

Hon. Mr. MACDONALD (Glengary.)—Of course, Mr. Speaker, this motion will meet with no opposition. But when, after the vote of last night the Attorney General comes down to state that he will move an adjournment till Thursday next, I must say that it is a very singular proposition.

Hon. Mr. DRUMMOND said—I stated distinctly that we had agreed to ask for the indulgence of the House for an adjournment till Thursday next, but the first motion required by the rules of the House was, that it should be received by this House that when it adjourn it should be to Thursday.

Hon. Mr. MACDONALD (Glengary) then rose and said—I am satisfied that I misunderstood the Hon. Attorney General, but I ask if you can find a precedent such as this to justify the Government. After they acknowledge that they have been disappointed with the vote of last night, instead of calling a meeting of their friends, and coming down to the House and announce that course. Then I put it to the whole House, whether we have not taken the more manly part first to declare our opinion, and to have done with it, than the one canvassed, unbiassed, and untrammelled, as to the course we thought it ought to adopt?

Mr. HARTMAN.—I do not approve of the course that the Government take. Of course we cannot ask those who were absent, "why they were absent;" but, if it was known, I should think it would be found that their absence had something to do with the question before the House.

Hon. Mr. MACDONALD (Kingston.) Well it is not an Upper Canada question.

Hon. Mr. DRUMMOND.—I rise to order. I refer this to the good sense of the hon. gentleman. I think it would be a breach of privilege for me to animadvert upon what any such thing has ever been allowed in England? I do not think that we ought to go on with this discussion.

Mr. SPEAKER.—If it is explanation is allowed, other members may be allowed to do the same. It is not say it is unparliamentary, but it is unusual.

Mr. STEVENSON.—I merely wished to relieve the gentleman's mind.

Mr. SMITH (Northumberland.)—If the government have been deserted by so me of their followers, I was not among the number.

Mr. MORRISON (Niagara.)—I regret I paired off last night, or my name would have been among the nays.

Mr BOWES.—I may say also, that I was necessarily absent.

Mr. POLET.—As other honorable gentlemen have given explanations, I may say that I was absent not because I desired to shirk the vote.—(Hear, hear.)

Hon. Mr. DRUMMOND.—I now move "that this House do now adjourn to Thursday next."

The House then adjourned at a quarter to four.

ARRIVAL of the STEAMSHIP AFRICA,

Three days later from Europe—no news of the Pacific—meeting of the Peace Conference, the American difficulties.—advance in Breadstuffs, &c., &c.

New York, March, 8.

The Africa arrived at her dock a little before 6, with Liverpool dates to the 23d.

No news of the Pacific.

The Peace Conference is supposed to have met on the 23d. Anxiety was great as to the result.

Nothing more about the American difficulties, excepting that the London Advertiser professes to know that Dallas brings very stringent instructions.

Russia, it is said, consents to the dismantling of Nicolieff. This is doubtful.

The Paris editors have been ordered to write nothing concerning peace or war during the session of the conference.

The Rothschilds took all the new British loan at 90.

Cotton declined 1-16d, chiefly on middling and lower qualities, owing to large arrivals. Sales of the week 70,000 bales, including 11,000 on speculation and for export.

Wheat and flour dearer, and held firmly. Corn in good demand at 1s advance.

Beef active and unchanged in price.—Lard firm and in demand at 54s. Pork has become unchanged.

Money Market tight and quiet. American stocks quiet. Consols fluctuating at 91.

The circular of John McHenry & Co. quotes as follows: "Liverpool Feb. 22d. The unfavorable reduction on prices has been followed by an increased demand for beef. Stock well cleared off, and fresh imports will meet with ready sales. Pork—Good sales, imports small. Lard—Sales have been pressed by auction privately at very irregular rates; closed dull, at 55s for good quotations. Tallow active.

"Breadstuffs—A better tone, and business doing. Wheat 2d a 3d dearer. Philadelphia and Baltimore flour wanted at advance of 1s a 2s; while western canal brands generally remain unsalable. Indian corn has attracted speculators. The demand has been increased by reason of the low prices recently ruling, and an advance of 1s a 2s has been established. Wheat—white 10s 5d a 11s 3d; red 10s a d. Flour—western canal 33s; a 35s; Ohio 37s a 39s. Corn—yellow 34s 6d a 35s; white 34s 8d and 36s 6d."

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH FROM LONDON—Saturday.—Count Orloff arrived at Paris Thursday night. The conferences opened Monday, the 25th.

Letters from St. Petersburg and Warsaw to German papers, give details of the extensive preparations made by Russia for a continuance of war. They state that on no point has the former energy of military department abated.

It is said the amount of frauds of which Mr. Sadier, who recently committed suicide, has been guilty, is £1,000,000 short of one million pounds, in railway shares, mortgages, &c., &c.; while he has also committed crimes of a most diabolical description.

A portion of the advance squadron of the Baltic fleet has settled up ready for leaving Spithead on the afternoon of the 22d.

The money article in the Daily News of Saturday says that the funding of the new loan by the Rothschild at about 90 produced a fall of half per cent, on consols, although part of this was subsequently recovered. The largest subscriptions to the loan reached thirty millions.

There is, in reality, no news of moment.

The Turkish Envoy, Ali Pacha, had reached Paris.

The question of precedence had been solved by the adoption of alphabetical order in the conference, which places Austria first.

The Paris Constitutionniel intimates that the congress will not occupy themselves exclusively with the subjects arising out of the present war. It says the treaties of 1815 will be essentially remodelled. Other papers speak in the same strain.

Later correspondence had been received from the Crimea, but there is nothing interesting.

The Parliamentary proceedings have been unimportant.

Nothing of interest from France or other parts of Europe.

THE CONFERENCE.

Ali Pacha, the Turkish Envoy, reached Marseilles on the 19th, en route for Paris, and we may now calculate there will be no hindrance to the commencement of the Conference on Monday next, the 26th of February. Although the plenipotentiaries have not assembled in Council, it is stated that the exigencies of diplomatic etiquette have already been fully discussed and satisfactorily settled.

The knotty question of precedence has been solved in a way which conciliates puntcillio by adopting alphabetic order, by this means Austria takes the lead, followed by France, Great Britain, Russia, Sardinia, Turkey.

The Independence Belge introduced the name of Prussia into the above list—this, however, says the London Globe, is we suppose, a slip of the pen, for nothing has transpired to indicate any alteration in the rule laid down to exclude all no combatants. Prussia has remained neutral, and cannot bring forward her claim as one of the European powers.

The Army in the Crimea.

From the Times' Correspondent.

HEIGHTS ABOVE SEBASTOPOL, Jan 18, 1856

The lamented Lord Raglan was subjected to no small amount of absurd ridicule, in consequence of his lordship's despatces containing such frequent reference to the state of the thermometer, and the vicissitudes of the weather. I remember myself being disposed to all the extremes of heat and cold there can be no subject of deeper interest than the vicissitudes of the weather. The rapid changes which take place are certainly most trying to the constitution, but it is astonishing to find how few are the cases of serious illness which occur. "Providence tempers the wind to the shorn lamb" is the consolatory expression of many an officer who shivers beneath his fur clothing, and who marvels greatly that he has not long since been an inmate of an hospital, or become a tenant of one of those narrow dwellings where thousands of their gallant comrades dwell in peace, and repose careless of the alarms of war. The rapidity with which the changes of the temperature take place is certainly most extraordinary. But a day or two since we were bounding along over the frozen plains, and might have fancied in true northern fashion always supposing that we had got the necessary vehicles. By the way, several officers of the Second Division are possessed of them—now, however, locomotion is a difficult process indeed, even on the well constructed and splendid roads, and off the main tracts the country is a veritable Serbonian bog.

Last year we were so much occupied with our own discomforts and miseries, and circumstances over which we had then no control, such as Russian batteries and earth works, as greatly circumscribed the limits of our perambulations, that we knew nothing of the state of our allies during that period. Circumstances have now changed. Visitors to Kamiesch Kazatch are numerous; but with all respect for our allies, and with the utmost reverence for their boasted wonderful organization and other matters, I am bound to state that their principal lines of communication are not one whit better than were our Balaklava in the worst period of last year's miseries. Much of this state of things is unavoidable and no possible amount of labor can, in severe and constant wet, render weather, keep newly made roads in a good and efficient state. You have probably had opportunities of seeing the streets of London after a heavy fall of snow or a rapid thaw—you have a complete system of sewerage and drainage for every street, and organized bands of contractors ready to sweep away the slush and mud, and well paved streets; but, with all these advantages, is there anything more wretched or more annoying than the state of the London thoroughfares during such a period? The few snow storms which visit London, and the few slight frosts which are sometimes experienced in the metropolis, dwindles into the merest insignificance when compared with their Crimean brethren—those grim generals, "Janvier" and "Fevrier," upon their campaign. The fact that our Allies have not succeeded in keeping their roads in good condition may tend, perhaps, to mitigate a little of that anger, and modify to some extent that unmeasured abuse, which has been heaped upon the British army for not accomplishing that which was absolutely impossible for it to do.

Some of your readers may suppose, now that the Russian ships have been sunk by the enemy in the harbor of Sebastopol, that the British and French fleets are undisputed masters of the Black Sea. Banish the fond illusion. There are millions of tiny creatures, armed to the teeth, and quite ready yet to do battle for the cause of Holy Russia and who, unlike the huge line of battle ships which skulked under the protection of stone fortresses and bristling guns, and dared not to confront the enemy, are prepared to attack the largest vessel that ever floated in the waters of the Euxine. The French ships laying at Kamiesch have suffered most severely from these shoals of sea worms, which gnaw through the stoutest timbers of their complete destruction in an incredibly short space of time. The Russian ships must have suffered severely from this plague, and the inglorious position which they occupy under the waters is one to which they must eventually have fallen from this cause in a very short time had they not been otherwise disposed of by their proprietors.

A most gallant and promising officer, Lieutenant Massinger, of the 46th, has just met with his death in a most distressing manner, while engaged at some blasting operations necessary for obtaining materials for road-making. As the train did not fire so rapidly as was expected, the gallant officer incautiously dropped some grains of powder on the fuse, which was not extinguished, when the explosion immediately took place, killing Lieutenant Massinger on the spot, and seriously wounding a corporal of his regiment who was standing near him.

I have been informed that a deserter from the enemy has stated, that Gortschakoff has resigned his command of the army in the Crimea, and that he is to be succeeded by General Mouravieff—the same general whose signal defeat before Kars, and whose subsequent humane treatment of the garrison of that town when it had fallen into his power, has made the catastrophe glorious and honorable alike to victors and the vanquished. It is reported here that General Mouravieff is to succeed Prince Gortschakoff, who, on lately quitting the Crimea issued the following farewell address to his army:—At the moment that I hasten, in obedience to the command of my Sovereign, to another destination, I take my leave of you, my valiant comrades. I make over to my worthy successor an army that has been hardened in battle, that has been the shield of our country and the joy of the Emperor. Your bravery and self-denial, valiant warriors, will ever remain indelible in my heart I thank you from my heart for the fidelity you have shown me in this time of trial, of vicissitudes, in the year 1855—a struggle that will ever remain memorable, and in which you defended the Crimean Peninsular against a numerous enemy, that had the command of means unproportioned in the annals of war.

THE FALL OF RUSSIAN POWER IN THE EAST.

From the Times, Feb. 18.

A telegraphic dispatch brings tidings of the destruction of Fort St. Nicholas, by the French army in the Crimea. Sir. W. Codring on that point has communicated that the demolition of the defences was complete. In a few days more, then, that Sebastopol exists no longer as a naval stronghold. Sixteen months after the first shell was thrown against the place, the only remaining fort has become a mass of ruins. A large barrack, capable of containing three Russian regiments, will no doubt be destroyed also. Every building that the siege has spared, is now in the hands of the allies, and they will probably not quit the shores of the Crimea without having rendered useless whatever might serve as a shelter for the armaments of the enemy. We may now, in truth, look upon the great work of the campaign as concluded. The destruction of Sebastopol, and not the conquest of the Crimea was the object proposed by those who originated the bold enterprise of 1854. If the impulses of the Western nations rather than the policy of their rulers led to the war, as we may now consider as at an end, it is equally true that the general feeling indicated Sebastopol as the point of attack. Even before the blow was first struck at Oltenitza the name of the Crimean fortress was in the mouths of all who ventured to advise or predict on the course of the war. At that time, there seemed but little chance of a speedy conclusion such close lists. The Russian armies held the rich provinces of the Danube. Before them was a broad river, which an army assailing them from the south must rashly place in its rear. Their flank was covered on one side by a delta of impassable marshes fortresses, on the other by the territory of a Power supposed to be friendly through a similarity of institutions and great benefit by recent conferred. The Russian generals had even crossed the Lower Danube and seized the best position in the Dobrudscha, from which they could threaten and thus dislodge them. So great was the credit of the Russian numbers and resolution, that the defence of the Dardanelles and Bosphorus was among the first plans of the Western tacticians. But there were causes fated soon to overthrow this mighty prestige. Perhaps, chief among these was that unfortunate vice of life and exhaustion of resources of which we know so little. What may have been passing behind the iron barrier of Russian isolation we can only judge of by the results.—The bravery of the Turks and the jealousy of Europe have at last insulted Austria added, to the difficulties of the time, and the fate of Turkey was at length abandoned. Hardly was this great victory gained when the minds of our people reverted to Sebastopol. With much justice, they attributed the success of Russia in former wars to her uncontested naval power in the Black Sea. She could detate the peace of Adrianople, she could confiscate and govern Georgia, she could wrest Asiatic Bashalics from the Sultan, she could rule the petty Court of Greece, and guide the animosities of the Bavahs blindly because from a commodious and impregnable dock-yard she could send out a powerful squadron against any point of a weak rival's undefended coast. Sebastopol was a stronghold, on a peninsula that jutted far out into the Euxine, beyond the shoal waters of the coast, beyond the limit where the sea is only frozen. It lay opposite Constantinople. The prevailing winds for within two days bear even a sailing fleet to the Bosphorus; and not only wind, but steam, was brought into the service of Russia's ever vigilant ambition. What a Russian fleet could do, what it would dare to do, had been shown at Sinope. Turkey's naval forces were monthly destroyed by fires, and the faintest trace of rivalry, it was evident, would soon be at an end. In these circumstances the British people called for a blow at Russian naval power, rejoiced at the enterprise that was set on foot, and for a year of alternate victory and disaster never belied their character for tenacity of purpose.

The victory is now won, the object is attained fully, and we trust for ever. Although it would be folly to depreciate a result because its effects may not be eternal, yet it is certainly more gratifying to feel that success cannot soon be nullified. The allies have not only destroyed Sebastopol, but to a great extent the possibility of restoring it.—Seventy years have elapsed since the conquest of the Crimea, and little less since the old Tartar village of Akhtiar gave place to the first buildings of a new city, baptized with a pretentious name, but destined to a period of sombre and ominous grandeur and then to a terrible fall. During the lives of two generations that stronghold, where all is colossal and built as if for ages, has been the care of a succession of Sovereigns. The description given of the docks will tell how much time, labour, and treasure has been expended on the fleet which is now inguffed beneath the waters of the harbour. It is said that the foundations, laid twelve feet below the surface of the earth, have been broken up by the successive explosions. Although it may be that anyone of our engineers have done engineering thing that engineers have done engineering thing and undertaken greater works than what has been done at Sebastopol does as regards the destruction of Russian supremacy in the East.

The navy of the Czar is gone, and cannot be reconstructed. All that remains of it is a few vessels sunk within the port.—We should be glad to learn that some means has been found to destroy even these, and that no vestige of the once dreaded fleet remained whole below the waves. We may however, now pause, satisfied with our labours. We may appreciate what we have gained by considering what but a short time since we should have been content with. While the seige was in progress, even those most exacting only urged at first the opening of the Black Sea to the war vessels of every nation. It was demanded that the old policy of Turkey should be discarded, and that England and France should freely send their fleets under the palace windows of the Sultan, pass the forts of the Bosphorus, into the neighborhood of the Russian harbors. The Russian Admirals in turn would have been at liberty to pass at will into the Mediterranean. This was even thought fit that ports on the Black Sea coasts should be granted to the allies, in order that a balance might be established. Later, our statesmen went farther, and demanded the limitation of Czar's amendments. Even then Turkey would have had to keep up squadrons at a great expense, and provide men for a service for which her population is unfitted and from which it instinctively shrinks. How much more has been now gained! The Straits may be closed, for there is no danger within. Turkey may spend her money more profitably than in line of battle ships for there is no enemy for them to oppose.—Constantinople need dread no sudden assault; any future invasion must be conducted entirely by land, for no navy will protect the Russian transports which supply armies in Bulgaria or below the Caucasus. With the forts and docks of Sebastopol ends the dream of a new conquest by the barbarians.

Arrival of the Arabia.

Halifax, March 12.

The steamship Arabia arrived here last night, and will be due at Boston early on Thursday morning.

The Arabia brings no tidings of the Pacific.

The steamship Edinburg, previously reported to have arrived at Glasgow from New York, passed on the 7th a quantity of ice and saw upon some floes a broken table furniture with white handles. It is suggested that this might belong to the Pacific, but as the P. had no cabin or other furniture with white handles, the agent in this city is confident that the portions of wreck allued to never belonged to that vessel.

PEACE CONFERENCE IN PARIS.

Three meetings of the Peace Conference in Paris have been held, but the proceedings have not been allowed to be made public.

Rumors, favorable and otherwise, were circulated in abundance, and at the close of the week considerable alarm was created by a report that Russia had started objections which would cause the Conference to break up. It was, however, regarded as a mere Stock Jobbing ruse, and a general impression prevailed that matters were progressing favorably. The opinion increased that immediately after peace is proclaimed a general European Congress will be held, to readjust the balance of power.

Active preparations for a continuance of the war prevailed on all sides,

An armistice until the end of March had been officially announced, and was made known to the Crimean armies. It is not to affect the existing blockade of the Russian ports.

The excitement in regard to the American difficulty appeared to be totally extinct.

Omer Pasha had resigned his command of the Ottoman contingent, and his resignation was accepted.

On Tuesday no meeting, and at the meeting on Wednesday nothing transpired; among the rumors asserted it is stated that Russia while agreeing to the total destruction of Sebastopol, Bomarsund and Nicholaieff, refuses the protectorate over Greek Christians.

Leave of absence is now granted to officers in the Crimea.

The allies are about to destroy the sunken ships in the harbor of Sebastopol by dropping heavy shells to explode in the water.

ENGLAND.—There is a talk of the early dissolution of Parliament, or change in the government. The rumor affected funds.

On the 27th the Lord Mayor of London assemqled the distinguished party at the Mansion House to meet.

Buchanan was invited to dine with the Queen, and etiquette required to give the Queen's dinner precedence.

The proceedings of Parliament are of some interest. In the Commons DeLacy Evans gave notice of the reason disapproving of the course of the government refusing direct offers of troops from Canada, while, at the same time it was making abortive attempts to enlist men in the adjoining neutral state of the U. S. contrary to law.

PARIS, 23th.—There was a rumor of break up in the conference, and considerable agitation in the money market. A despatch to the London Advertiser states that it is deemed not improbable that the result of the moves of the artful diplomatists of Russia may cause an immediate breaking up of the conference.

A very grave breach has already occurred, though the 55th point is last of all, it was agreed to take it up first. Accordingly, at the second reading it was submitted for consideration. Warloff and Brunnow objected and proposed to submit to the Congress o all the crowned heads of Europe, pledging themselves, in the name of the Czar, to abide by the decision of that Congress.—This unexpected course had produced consternation in Paris, causing the fall of French funds, and surprised and alarmed our own government. Lord Cowley expressed to London to take instructions from the Government on the subject.

RUSSIA.

From the Correspondent of the Times.

One of the most striking evidences of the pacific turn taken of late by the Russian press is afforded by the Northern Bee of February 1, containing a long article devoted to foreign commerce, and more especially to the construction of railways in Russia, as a means to the development of the former. Among the lines the Court Journal considers most important and pressing for immediate construction are—1, the line from Moscow, by way of Toula, Orel, Kourak, Kharkoff, Poltava, and Kremenctchug, to Odessa (this line has been already decided on by the Government, and the necessary surveys are about to be made); 2, a branch line from Moscow to Saratow (on the Wolga); and 4, another branch line from Orel to Witebsk, by way of Smolensk. The completion of this latter would open up the corn countries in the south-eastern governments of Orel, &c., and convey their produce to the Baltic at the Port of Riga, "which Cobden has so justly in the Evening Mail called the Hamburg of Russia;" for the Northern Bee lays it down as an indispensable condition of the concession of this line to be made by any company, that it should undertake to make the Duma (Davina) navigable, both up and down the stream; and also dredge out the Dnieper and make it navigable from Smolensk to Rogatschew. It would further a communication of species of tintinabulation that is not effected by ringing as with us, but by striking on the bells with a hammer according to musical notes.

The expectations of peace, of course, excite very different feelings in different classes; of only two can the sentiments be predicted with any certainty. The commercial classes desire the return of peace; the military profession desires the continuance of the war. The nobility appear to be divided between those whom the pecuniary sacrifices have already disgusted with the war and those whose patriotic sentiments make them disgusted with the terms proposed for peace. In a private letter I find the following observation attributed to the Emperor Alexander:—"I can't wage a war with a foreign enemy; I have enough to do with the enemy at home." This is understood of the corruption, incapacity and thorough worthlessness of the whole system of interior government administration. We find that the Russian Government is about to commence reforms in national education, the administration of justice in Siberia; the issue of various petty official certificates, such as passports for travelling in the interior, is announced to have been all the way along gratuitous, and the shornks had never any right to take any money from the public for procuring them, &c. The institution of Serfdom, notwithstanding all the Paris made correspondence from St. Petersburg, is the only abuse to which, as it would appear, the axe is not to be laid; not only has the retention of all its privileges been fately reassured to the nobility (amongst the most prized of which is the right of possessing land and souls), but the Emperor is now taking every measure to facilitate the entrance of the nobility into the service of the State, of which it has the monopoly.

On one field of reform, however, the Government has been obliged to make a sudden halt, after taking a first step; it had empowered the Professor of Military History at the Military Academy in St. Petersburg to deliver a set of lectures on the late Crimean campaigns, and furnished him with a variety of official information for the purpose. The professor addressed himself to his task with free and candid criticism; but at the end of the first lecture it was found that the events were still too recent, and the prominent persons were still too influential in public affairs, for a candid criticism to be without danger.

The man who was arrested near London some two weeks since, on suspicion of having placed obstructions on the track of the Great Western Railway, has made an confession of having perpetrated that most henous crime, and has been fully committed to stand his trial at the next Assize Court. His only incentive to commit the act was pure revenge for being expelled the cars by the conductor for refusing to pay his fare.—We trust he may receive that punishment which his detestable disposition causes him to richly merit.—Western Planet.

SELF-SEALING ENVELOPES INSECURE.—The examination into the charge of poisoning against Palmer in England, elicited evidence of a circumstance that has called public attention to the insecurity of the letter envelopes known as self sealing or adhesive. At the instance of the accused party a postmaster had opened a letter thus sealed, shown him the contents and resealed it without detection. This can be readily done. All that is necessary is to moisten the adhesive matter, which can be done by wetting the tongue of the envelope, and allowing it to remain in that condition a few minutes.—The letter then can be opened with facility, will indeed sometimes fly open, and can be sealed in the original manner, especially if the adhesive matter has originally been liberal. Detection is impossible. A London paper says:—"The inference is inauspicious and we fear we must return to the age of sealing wax, or demand a really adhesive envelope" We apprehend that it will be difficult to supply such a demand, as what ever means are requisite to seal it, will be sufficient to unseal it.

WORTH MAKES THE MAN.—Robert Burns, on his way to Leith, one morning, met a country farmer; he shook him earnestly by the hand, and stopped to converse awhile. A young Edinburgh blood took the poet to task for this defect of taste.—"Why, you fantastic gomeril," said Burns, "it was not the great-coat, the scone bonnet, the coarse sandals, nor the hoss I spoke to, but the man that was in them; and the man, sir, for true worth, would weigh down you and me, and ten more such, any day."

MARRIED.

In Windsor, on the 11th instant at the residence of the bride's father, by the Rev. Robert Peden, E. Thornton Taylor, Esq., of Montreal, to Victoria, eldest daughter of James Dougall, Esq.

BIRTHS.

At Sandwich, on the 6th, inst, Mrs. Calkins of a daughter.

At Sandwich, on the 11th, inst, Mrs Stuttz of a son.

SANDWICH MARKET.

"Maple Leaf" Office, 13th March, 1856
Flour Best warranted	$ 8. 00	$ 8 50
" 2nd quality	" 7 00	" 7 50
Buckwheat Flour	" 3 00	" 4 00
Rye "	" 3 00	" 3 50
Corn Meal per 100	" 1 50	" 2 00
Corn per bushel 56lbs.	" 0 63	" 0 00
Oats " do 34lbs.	" 0 37½	" 0 00
Potatoes do	" 0 50	" 0 56
Wheat do 60lbs,	" 1 00	" 1 25
Barley do 48lbs,	" 0 77	" 0 00
Hay per Ton	10 00	12 00
Straw per load	" 1 50	" 2 00
Wood per cord (Hard)	" 2 00	" 0 00
do Mixed	" 1 50	" 2 00
Pork per 100lbs.	" 6 00	" 6 50
Beef " "	" 5 00	" 6 00

WARNER'S EXCHANGE,

AMHERSTBURG, C. W.

THE SUBSCRIBER has leased the "Lalberty Stand," second door above the Prince Albert Hotel, Murray Street, for a term of years, and has it repaired throughout, furnished with new furniture, bedding, &c., and now open for the accommodation of the travelling public, and by strict attention to business he hopes to receive a liberal share of the same.

His table will be well supplied with all the luxuries of the season. His Bar will always contain the choicest brands of Liquors.

His Stables and Shed are large and convenient.

Persons wishing good Board will find this a convenient place, being a central place of business.

CHARLES WARNER.

Amhersburg, March 14th, 1856.

NOTICE.

A MEETING of the Board of Public Instruction will be held at Sandwich, on Wednesday the 26th day of March; and at Amhersburgh, on Thursday the 27th, for the purpose of examining Teachers, and granting Certificates for 1856.

PAUL JOHN SALTER.
Secretary & Treasurer.

Office Board Public Instruction, }
Sandwich, 10th March, 1856 }

Closing Up.

THE Subscriber, having determined to bring his business to a close by the first day of July next, begs most respectfully to return his grateful acknowledgments to his Customers and the Public generally for their liberal support for the past. He now offers his present Stock, comprising a general assortment of at reduced prices to close up. To any person desirous to engage in the business, he will dispose of the stock at cost. The rest will be completed by the subscriber also. The place of business is offered for sale at a bargain (the premises comprising half an acre front by one in the rear, with three substantial buildings, and other out-houses in good order.

Dry Goods, Groceries Boots and Shoes. Crockery. Hardware &c. &c.

He would request all persons indebted to him to call and settle up, either with the cash or notes at short date, and Persons having claims will please present them for payment with as little delay as possible. From and after this date, no credit will be given to any person, as the goods will be sold at reduced prices, and for the cash only or its equivalent.

H. C. GUILLOT.

Sandwich, 14th March, 1856.

Notice.

COUNTY OF ESSEX } NOTICE is hereby given, to wit: } that a Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the said County, will be holden at the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, on Tuesday the first day of April next, at the hour of Ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all Coroners, Justices, Gaolers, Bailiffs, Constables, Jurors, and all others in anywise concerned are required and enjoined to attend, to do and perform all those things which to their office belong and appertain.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich, }
1st March, 1856. }

Notice.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, } Notice is hereby given to wit: } on that the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol delivery Assize and Nisi Prius, in and for the said County, will be held at the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, on Tuesday the twenty-second day of April next, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all Coroners, Justices, Gaolers, Bailiffs Constables, and all others in any way concerned are required to attend, to do and perform all those things which to their office belong and appertain.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich, }
1st March, 1856. }

TO be published monthly, price half-a dollar per annum,

The Churchman's Friend,

For the diffusion of information relative to the Church of England, her Doctrine and Ordinances. Edited by Edward H. Dewar, M.A., Rector of Sandwich, assisted by other Clergymen.

Sandwich, March 15th, 1856.

OPPOSITION

To the Combination of Trade!!

J. W. JOHNSTON has just returned from New York, with a large and splendid stock of Gold and Diamond Jewelry, Diamond Rings and Breast Pins, Gold Watches, Lockets and Chains, Gold Pens and Pencils, Cuff Pins and Earrings; the Egyptian Style just come in fashion, Pearl Earrings and Rings, Gold and Silver.

Gold and Silver Watches, Gold Thimbles; a fine assortment of Silver Ware, Tea and Table Spoons, Fruit and Butter Knives, Card Cases, Port Monies, Cake Baskets, English, French and German Fancy Goods, Pearl and Shell Card Cases, Port Monies of every description.

Ladies and Gentlemen's Dressing Cases, fine assortment Writing Desks, Pearl and Rosewood, Crosha fixins of all kinds.

COMBS.

Back, fine, coarse, and pockets combs, both horn and wood combs, the latest style of Bloomer Combs.

CLOCKS.

Clocks at $1,25, warranted good time pieces; prices at wholesale a good deal less.

ENGLISH CUTLERY.

Bowie Knifes, Razors, and a very large stock of Pocket Cutlery. Revolving Pistols, Double and Single Barreled Guns. Yankee notions always on hand.

A very large stock of Notions, country merchants and peddlers' attention is called to examine this stock, before purchasing elsewhere.

Pins, Needles, Thread, Buttons, Tape Bobbin, Carpet Bags, Umbrellas, Suspenders Tobacco Boxes, Hooks and Eyes, Whalebone, Feather Dusters, Horse Brushes, Shoe Brushes Tooth and Clothing Brushes, Fiddles, Accordeons, Flutinis, Indian Beads and Rings, and Pins, Gilt and Plated Watches at two dollars a piece; in fact all sorts, from a needle to an anchor, and from an anchor to a tin pail; nothing charged for looking; call and see, two doors from Griswold street, on Jefferson avenue, opposite the U. S. Court Room.

J. W JOHNSTON.

Canada Western Assurance

COMPANY.

Chartered by Act of Parliament.

Capital £100, 000.

in Shares of £10 each.

HOME OFFICE,

TORONTO.

President . I. C. Gilmor, Esq.
Vice-President : T. Haworth, Esq.
Secretary & Treasurer : R. Stanton, Esq.
Solicitor : A. Morrison, Esq.

DIRECTORS.

John Howcutt, Esq., GeorgeMichie, Esq., Rice Lewis, Esq., W. Henderson, Esq., M. P. Hayes, Esq., Hugh Miller, Esq., James Beaty, Esq.

Application for Fire Risks received at the Home Office, Toronto, on Wellington Street, opposite the Commercial Bank.

OFFICE HOURS, 10 A. M. TO 3 P. M.

Marine Risks Taken.

ISAAC C. GILMOR,
President.

ROBERT STANTON,
Secretary & Treasurer.

JOHN McCRAE, Agent.
British Commercial Store, Windsor.

DIVISION COURTS FOR ESSEX.

1st. Sandwich Monday, 12th May, 1856.
2nd. Amhersburg, Saturday, 12th April.
3rd. Kingsville, Wednesday, 16th do.
4th. Colchester, Monday, 14th do.
5th. Morson, Friday, 18th do.
6th. Simon's, Middle Road, Saturday, 17th, May
Sandwich 12th Feb. 1856.

SPRING CIRCUITS.

HOME CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Sir John Beverley Robinson, Bart
Milton.	Monday, 17th March,
Barrie.	Tuesday, 25th March,
Niagara.	Thursday, 22nd April,
Hamilton	Tuesday, 13th May,
Sydenham	Tuesday, 27th May.

EASTERN CIRCUIT.

The Hon, Mr. Justice Draper
Brockville	Monday, 31st April,
Cornwall	Monday, 28th April,
Original	Thursday, 8th May,
Ottawa	Monday, 12th May,
Perth	Thursday, 22nd May.

MIDLAND CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice McLean.
Whitby	Wednesday, 26th March,
Peterborough	Tuesday, 8th April,
Coburg	Monday, 14th April,
Belleville	Thursday, 24th April,
Picton	Tuesday, 6th May,
Kingston	Tuesday, 13th May,

OXFORD CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Burns.
Brantford	Tuesday, 22nd April,
Simcoe	Tuesday, 29th April,
Woodstock	Monday, 5th May,
Stratford	Wednesday, 14th May,
Berlin	Tuesday, 20th May,
Guelph	Monday, 26th May.

WESTERN CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Hagarty.
Goderich	Wednesday, 5th March,
Sandwich	Wednesday, 12th March,
London	Wednesday, 19th March,
Chatham	Tuesday, 15th April,
Sandwich	Tuesday, 22nd April,
Sarnia	Tuesday, 29th April.

CITY OF TORONTO.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Richards.
Toronto.	Monday, 5th May.

PAINT SHOP.

FRANCOIS PAYETTE having opened a Paint Shop in the Town of Sandwich, opposite the "Sandwich Exchange," will be happy to attend to the painting of houses, Graining, Glazing, Varnishing, and, in fact, every description of work in his line of business with despatch, and at moderate charges.

N.B.—Buggies and Carriages painted and varnished upon reasonable terms.

Sandwich, 9th March, 1856.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

ALL Persons to whom the late Mr. John McCormick, of Point Pelée Island, deceased, stood indebted at the time of his decease, are requested to send in their accounts forthwith to the undersigned or either of them.

MARY McCORMICK.
DAVID McCORMICK.
WILLIAM McCORMICK

Point Pelée Island,
7th March, 1856.

SIMPSON'S EATING SALOON.

MR. SIMPSON would inform the Gentlemen of Sandwich and vicinity that he is prepared at all hours to furnish "Hot Meals," and those who may favor his establishment with a call, can depend upon having, if they wish, a "steak" cooked in the good old English style, with all the little etceteras.

Dinner Parties accommodated upon the shortest notice.

N.B.—A few persons can be accommodated with good clean beds.

No 233 Jefferson Avenue Detroit Mich. few doors above the Theatre.

AUDITORS' REPORT OF RECEIPTS & EXPENDITURES for the Township of SANDWICH, ending the 31st December, 1855.

DR.

	£	s.	d.
To Paid for Roads and Bridges,	164	5	8
" Treasurer's Salary,	25	0	0
" Township Clerk's Salary,	51	2	6
" Auditors' do	29	10	0
" for Surveying,	21	2	6
" Inspectors,	6	15	0
" Indigent Poor,	34	12	6
" Election Expences,	6	5	0
" Messenger to Council	1	5	0
" Lumber and Nails for Township purposes,	0	17	5½
" Sandpaper,	17	2	5
" Path Master Town of Sandwich,	6	0	0
" for Selecting Jurors,	9	7	6
" Assessors,	33	15	0
" Legal Services,	36	5	0
" Councillors' Salary,	37	10	0
" Stationery,	2	10	0
" Rent, Town Wood, &c., C. Chamber,	9	7	0
" Court of Revision,	6	5	0
" Printing,	16	10	0
" Deduction of Taxes,	44	17	11½
" School Sections,	332	14	0
" School Grant,	160	7	11½
" Superintendent of Common Schools,	13	0	0
" County Treasurer,	1125	18	11½
Amount of Absentees and Defaulters,	35	10	2½
	£2218	16	7½
To Balance,	646	1	4½
	£2864	18	0½

CR.

	£	s.	d.
By Cash due the Township as per Treasurer's Book,	303	8	2½
Cash from Collector,	2127	17	8½
Auction of Wharf Lumber,	7	5	4
Statute Labor, Sec. No, 6,	9	1	0
do do Sandwich,	4	1	5
Rev. Inspector,	86	8	0
Pound Keeper, Sandwich,	3	3	9
Rev Inspector—D. Moynahan,	46	10	0
Fines of Downing, J.P.	0	8	6
Exhibition License,	0	5	0
Wild Land Tax, County Treasurer,	240	18	10½
Error in amount rec'd from Collector,	35	10	2½
	£2864	18	0½

By Balance due the Township, £646 1 4½

JOSEPH MERCER, }
JOHN A. ASKIN. } Auditors

March 1, 1856.

Beacon

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE CO of London.

Incorporated under Act of Imperial Parliament, 7 and 8 Vic., Chap. 1.

CANADA BOARD.

KINGSTON.

TRUSTEES.

The Hon John A Macdonald. James Morton, Esquire.

DIRECTORS:

M. W. Strange, Esq., Chairman. Thos. A. Corbett, Esq., Deputy Chairman. James Morton, Esq. John Mowatt, Esq James Harty, Esq. A. J Macdonell, Esq. Lewis Walbridge, Esq. T. Clarkson, Esq.

MONTREAL.

Wm. Molson, Esq. Thomas Evans, Esq. Damase Masson, Esquire,

This Company Insures all descriptions of BUILDINGS, MANUFACTORIES, MILLS, &c. and Goods or FURNITURE in the same, against loss or damage by fire, on liberal terms. All descriptions of LIFE RISKS, taken at as low rates as are consistent with security to the assured. Losses promptly settled without reference to England.

ALEX. GORDON,
Agent at Windsor for Western Frontier
March 7, 1856.

EXECUTORS' NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to all persons indebted to the late ALPHEUS MORSE, of the Town of Sandwich, deceased and late of the Firm of MORSE AND CALVIN, Lumbermen, to make payment to the undersigned, and all persons having claims against the said A. MORSE or MORSE AND CALVIN, are requested to present them for payment prior to the 1st day of May next to

ELECTA MORSE }
H. C. GUILLOT } Executors.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th 1856.

WILLIAM SWIFT,

MERCHANT TAILOR,

IS prepared to attend upon the Gentlemen of Amhersburg in his line of business, and is not afraid to assert that he will cut and Fit in the most out and most fashionable Styles as well as any Tailor west of London.

Amhersburg, Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROSE DALE MILLS.

THE highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Rye, Corn, or Buck Wheat, either at the Mills or at the Store of

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

Sandwich, 29th Feb. 1856.

J. H. ALLISON,

IMPORTER OF

IMPROVED

RAILROAD WATCHES.

Cased in beautiful styles warranted excellent time keepers: do. Swiss full jeweled Levers of every style.

GOLD PENS.

I continue manufacturing Pens of every desirable pattern; these Pens have received

A SILVER MEDAL & DIPLOMA

At the Michigan State Fair, and are not to be surpassed by any Pens in the market.

ALSO DEALER IN

FINE JEWELRY,

SILVER WARE,

AND FANCY GOODS.

I have an experienced Jeweller, capable of making New Work to order,

SETTING STONES AND DIAMOND WORK, &C.

FIRE GILDING AND GALVANIZING

Done at Short Notice.

WATCH REPAIRING.

Being a Practical Workman, all work entrusted to my care will be carefully attended to.

GOLD PENS RE-POINTED

at 50 cents all sizes. Orders sent by mail, accompanied by cash, will be promptly attended to.

J. H. ALLISON,
No. 176 Jefferson Ave.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

CIGAR FACTORY.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the inhabitants of Amhersburg and vicinity that he has opened a Cigar Factory in the above Town, where every description of the choicest kind are always on hand. He has also lately imported from Havana a large quantity of the very best Principe and every other description of Cigars, which he intends to sell at a much smaller price than can be had in Detroit. Call and see him, and he will give a puff.

JOHN N. MILLER.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1855.

MEETING OF PARLIAMENT

THE PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT assembled in Toronto, for the despatch of Business

On Friday 15th February

The Globe will contain a full report of the Debates made up each day to the hour of going to press; and will have the most reliable political intelligence at the earliest moment.

THE DAILY "GLOBE"

Will be sent four months for TWO DOLLARS.

THE TRI-WEEKLY "GLOBE"

Will be sent three months for ONE DOLLAR!

Orders should be sent in immediately so as to secure the Debates from the commencement of the Session.

GLOBE OFFICE,
Toronto, February 14, 1856

Family Store.

THE Subscriber keeps constantly on hand a large and well selected assortment of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware and Crockery,

at his old stand on Bedford Street, which he will sell, at a small advance upon cost for Cash.

A large supply of the very best Flour always on hand.

Produce and Cord Wood bought and sold.

JOSEPH MILLER.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

JAMES JESSOPP,

CARPENTER & JOINER,

WILL always be on hand to attend to the question of Building, and every description of Carpenter and Joiner work upon the shortest notice.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

New Harness and Saddlery Establishment.

A. C. ELLIS.

Every description of LIGHT and FANCY BUGGY HARNESS, made in the most fashionable styles.

HEAVY HARNESSES constantly on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.

SADDLES of every description made to order on the shortest notice.

CARRIAGE and BUGGY TRIMMING done in a style not to be surpassed.

A large assortment of WHIPS always kept on hand.

In his Store, adjoining Mr Guillot's, will be found every description of Goods in his line of business. Every endeavor will be made to give entire satisfaction to his Customers.

N.B.—Cord Wood, Hides, and Produce wanted, for which the highest price will be given.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. &c. &c.

AT THE REGULATOR.

THE Subscribers would invite the attention of their friends and the Public generally to their new and complete Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c., &c., which they are now offering low for cash.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

N-B.—The highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all kinds of Produce.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, } BY virtue of a writ of
TO WIT: } Fieria Facias issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex against the lands and Tenements of Alfred Baby, and to me directed, at the suit of Dennis Ouellette, I have seized and taken the following lands and tenements, viz.:

Water Lot number three on said East, and Water Lots numbers three, four and fourteen West, and Land and Water Lots numbers thirteen and sixteen, all on the North side of Sandwich Street in the Village of Windsor, and being part of the Town plot of Windsor, as laid out on the estate of the late Francis Baby, Esquire, all which property, on the fifteenth of this said Alfred Baby in and to the same, I will offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Saturday the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, at 12 o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich,
29th February, 1856.

Sandwich and Windsor Stage.

By C. F. LABADIE.

A PUBLIC STAGE will run regularly every hour each day, from Sandwich to Windsor.

C. F. L. possesses superior Horses and a more comfortable conveyance than have heretofore been upon this line, and hopes to receive a share of public patronage.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

NOTICE.

TO ALL IT MAY CONCERN.

ALL persons owing the subscriber are hereby notified that payment must be made on or before the 15th day of April next if they wish to save the costs of collection.

TO RENT.

The House and Premises in which the subscriber lives. Terms $24 per quarter payable in advance. Possession given on the first of May next.

GEORGE HANN.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

LOTS FOR SALE IN THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.

PART of Lot No. 3 on the west side of Bedford Street, with a good Store thereon. Also, Lots 7 and 8, adjoining the residence of L. J. Fluett, Esquire, with dwelling house and stables. These Lots will be sold subject to incumbrances.

For particulars apply to

J. H. WILKINSON.
Att'y for J. A. Vervais.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

LOT No. Four, in the 4th Concession, Gosfield.

J. H. WILKINSON.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

FOR SALE.

(ON TIME.)

AN Eighteen-Horse Power Engine and Boiler complete. Apply to

GEO. BULLOCK.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

TO PRINTERS.

WANTED—A good steady hand, to whom constant work and good wages will be given.

Apply at this Office.

7th March, 1856.

AGRICULTURE &c.

SOWING CLOVER SEED.—Sow over every acre of your best land in wheat 12 pounds of clover seed. If the land which you have in wheat has been long in culture without having been turned or manured, you may rationally conclude that it needs a dressing of one of these minerals, so make your arrangements to give it a dressing this fall, as clover does not thrive well in land where lime is not present. If you use lime, give to your field 50 bushels per acre, if marl, 100 bushels. So says the American Farmer.

UNDER-DRAINING.

THE reason for under-draining is found in these two facts: First That water, however small in quantity, remaining stagnant at the roots of plants, is extremely injurious; experience demonstrating that no amount of manure will make a plant thrive while the roots are surrounded by stagnant water. Second, That water falling upon and percolating through the soil is not only injurious, but greatly beneficial to vegetation, furnishing plants with elements which they need, and imparting strength and vigor of growth. On these two propositions the whole theory of draining hangs; and it is simply the most efficacious methods of removing the stagnant water, and transmitting the soil as much like a filter as posible, that is matter of discussion. There is much diversity of opinion on this subject which we cannot discuss, but must, give the methods generally adopted with the most success.

Stone drains were first used, then horse-shoe tiles, and now 1¼-inch to 2-inch pipes pipes are found to be much the cheapest and best for draining purposes. In England this pipe, either round or flat-bottomed, is superseding all others. It was at first supposed that the water would not find its way into the pipe, but experience proves this to be incorrect, the joints affording sufficient avenues for this purpose.

In under-draining, the first thing is to provide an outlet for the water brought by the drains. This it will be always necessary to clean out to prevent obstruction, as a stoppage at the outlet or main drain renders the whole network of pipes useless. A fall of 1 in 700, with well laid pipe, passes off the water freely; but where there is plenty of fall, more should be given. The depth of drains and the distances apart of these must depend a great deal on the kind of soil and whether there are any springs as well as surface water to be removed; from two to five feet deep are the extremes, three feet being in general the best. The distance apart ranges from 16 to 100 feet on soil of which need draining at all, and there are very few but what imperiously demand it.

The cost of draining depends a great deal on the price of pipes and on the skill of the digger. Drains can be cut, the pipes laid and covered up again, all complete, for twenty five cents per rod. The price of tiles would vary according to the places for making and obtaining them. Probably 1¼-inch to 2-inch pipe would cost from six to eight dollars per thousand.

In cutting the drains, it is usual to throw out two furrows in opposite directions as deep as possible. It is then cleared out about four inches deep with a common spade; the next foot is thrown out with a narrower spade; and the remainder with a spade about six inches wide at the top, and gradually tapering so as to leave the bottom of the drain just wide enough for a man's foot. The bottom of the drain should be cleaned out with a narrow scoop, the handle being sufficiently long and so shaped that a man can clean the drains from the top.

In laying the pipes, all that is necessary is to place them end to end as close as possible. If convenient, it is best to put a piece of turf with the grass downwards over the pipes; though this may be dispensed with if the soil is moist and care is taken not to disturb the pipes in covering them with it. After the drains have been laid and covered a few days, the water comes through clear as crystal, and there is little danger of stoppage from any deposit of sediment, and few if any of the fertilizing elements of the soil are washed out.

There has been much discussion between theoretical and practical men, as to whether the drains should be laid across the natural slope of the land or lengthwise of it, practical farmers for a long time adopting the former and the scientific farmers advocating the latter. There are few at the present time but what think the scientific men are right, and the drains are laid the same way as the land slopes and empty into a main drain, laid with larger tiles, running across the fall. This main drain discharges the water into an open ditch, which should always be kept clean, so that the water can run off freely.

The economy of under-draining at a cost of from $20 to $30 per acre, has been much questioned in this country where lands are so abundant and cheap; but all those who have given it a fair trial, have no doubt of its great benefit and of its paying great interest on the capital invested. They say that the soil acts much easier, is ready to plow much earlier in the spring, and yields greatly increased crops with less manure and less labor. We have no hesitation in asserting that there is but little land on which all agricultural crops would not be increased half, as much again by thorough underdraining. It is a fact which, though it appears paradoxical, is nevertheless clearly established by experience, that land well under-drained is much drier in wet weather, and much more moist in dry hot weather, than that undrained. We believe that the general adoption of thorough draining will do much to remov the innumerable insects, blights, and rusts, which now make such fearful devastation on our crops. An old English farmer informs us that he can remember when under-draining was scarcely known in England, the crops were more liable to be injured by insects, &c., than they are here at present; but now they are unknown there, and the crops have doubled, which he thinks is owing more to underdraining than any other cause.—Genesee Farmer.

MILCH COWS, AND CALVES.

IT is impossible to choose a subject of more general interest to the agricultural community, than Milch Cows; for though there is only a portion of American farmers that devote their farms principally to the dairy business, yet every homestead has its cows, and every farmer is interested in their management.

The best time for cows to "come in" is generally considered to be about the middle of April; though where calves are raised for the butcher, it will be profitable to have them earlier; as the young calves, they are much better. The period of calving is one of considerable danger, and much care is necessary to keep the cow in a healthy state and in that condition which will make her most profitable the coming season. Cows of course should never be starved during the winter, but keep in nice warm pens, having plenty of straw, cornstalks, or hay, regularly given them. If they are not milked, they may be kept in good condition on straw and cornstalks till within six weeks of calving, when they should have a little hay; and as the spring draws near, if not in good condition, a little corn meal, or what is much better, three or four pounds of crushed oil-cake a day, may be given for a week or so previous to calving. It is not however, desirable to have the cow all fat; but as it is often the case that owing to eating a large quantity of dry food, the nutritious food the cow becomes costive, and inflammation to a greater or less extent ensues, it is advisable to give more concentrated nutriment; and oil-cake besides being more nutritious than any other food given to cattle, is a slight aperient, and helps to keep the cow in a healthy state. It may be continued as long after calving as the farmer pleases—it will do no harm—nothing, in fact, producing more or richer milk. Whether it will pay to feed it, we are unable to say. Mangel wurzel being also laxative and very nutritious, are valuable food for cows at this period; and nothing will pay a farmer better than to grow a few acres every year for this especial purpose. Ruta baga are good, but are apt to give an unpleasant flavor to the butter. They are not so aperient as mangel wurzel. After the cow has calved, she should have some warm slops and be carefully attended. The first milk should be drawn out of the bag before the calf sucks; and afterwards, if the bag is hard, it is sometimes advisable to get as much of the milk as possible previous to letting the calf suck, so that he may knock on the under, and well clean out all the milk.

When fatting for the butcher, the calves should always be placed in a dark place and be tied up, so that they can not run about. It is very necessary that the calf should be fed with the cleanest and sweetest milk, and that it should not be allowed to get warm. After the first week or so the fresh milk may be substituted by skim milk and boiled linseed or oil-cake, which should be given two or three months before the calf is weaned. Nothing pays better than to keep rearing calves well the first four months, giving them a good start in life. By so doing we raise the whole element of rearing calves; for though it may conduce to laying on fat, the formation of muscles and bones and the general health of the animal is lessened.

Every one knows the great necessity there is of being gentle and kind to cows, so that they may be quiet and peaceful, and not stand trembling in durance vile while being milked. It is this that accounts for the opinion that a cow will give a dairy-maid more milk than she will to a man. We think a man, during the milking season, has no business near a cow, his great, rough, hard hands, and still harder heart, rendering him unfit for a good milker; while a gentle, rosy dairy maid, with her kind words, soft hands, and "So, so, my good bossy," seats on a three legged stool, will fetch out the milk till the froth runs over the pail. Cows should be milked regularly the same hours every day, and should have access to water and shelter at all times.

SOAKING CORN IN A SOLUTION OF HARTSHORN.—A few years since, hearing a neighbor speak of the great value of soaking seed corn in a solution of hartshorn previous to planting, I was induced to try it, and have met with perfect success. I put two ounces of the hartshorn, costing twenty-five cents, to a pail of water, poured on the whole seed and let it stand six hours, planting as soon as possible, rolling it in plaster as I plant.

Two years ago we had a dry time just as our corn was nicely up, and all corn fields in this region looked yellow and sickly, while my corn planted as above took on a dark green color and grew well till harvest, when the two hundred bushels of corn per acre, which we consider a good crop here. My neighbor who planted in an adjoining field, on much better land and well manured, but who did not use the hartshorn, had a very poor crop. I induced a neighbor to use it last year, and he obtained equally beneficial results. WARREN EEA.

RENOVATING OLD TREES.—The London Gardener's Chronicle contains an interesting account of the renovation of an old oak, the material facts, of which we will condense in a single paragraph. The tree was 20 feet in circumference, hollow, and the abode of a famous swarm of bees, whose honey was coveted by some chaps who had no legal right to the same. They set the dead wood in the hollow on fire, to smoke out the bees and get their generous store of sweets; but justly during the combustion of the whole tree, and punishment, with great efforts and the aid of a fire engine from the village of Buckinghamshire, they finally succeeded in putting out the fire. By the assistance of the ashes furnished from the dead wood within the tree, it has been rejuvenated, bears abundant crops of acorns, and may live another century.

A. WRETCH.—Old Mr. Singlestick mystified a tea-party, by remarking that women were facts. When pressed to explain his meaning he said, 'Facts are stubborn things.'

Hotels, &c.

HENNELL HOUSE,

LATE FREE MASON'S TAVERN,

Sandwich.

THIS House is pleasantly situated at the terminus of the New Gravel Road from Windsor to Sandwich, and possesses all the requisites which are generally met with in first class hotels—Good Beds, superior Stabling, and unimpeachable Liquors.

From the long experience of the present proprietor in this line of business, he is enabled to meet the wishes of his patrons, in every particular, with promptness; and he will make it his study so to treat his visitors, that they may leave him with perfect satisfaction, and return with pleasure on future occasions.

WM. HENNELL.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th.

SANDWICH EXCHANGE,

BEDFORD STREET, SANDWICH.

JACOB STUTTZ

IN returning thanks for past favors, begs to inform his Friends and the Public that he still keeps on hand the best of every thing to suit the taste and comfort of his customers, and trusts that by assiduity and attention to business, to merit their patronage and support.

N.B.—A Good Stable and Shed.

WESTERN HOTEL,

BY CYRUS DOBSON.

THIS Hotel, adjoining the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, has been put in firstrate repair, and the Proprietor hopes that, by strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a share of public patronage.

N.B.—There is an excellent stable attached to the premises, and an attentive ostler will always be in attendance.

Sandwich, 29th Feb. 1856.

THE COTTAGE INN,

BY ALEXANDER REAUME,

THE Proprietor having lately leased the above comfortable premises, and having thoroughly repaired and refurnished the same, will be happy to attend upon the travelling public at all hours. A supply of good old Ohio and Hot Wine will always be found at the Bar, with all other choice Liquors.

THE COTTAGE INN has good and comfortable Stables attached.

ALEXANDER REAUME.

And o don. Februa y 29th, 1856.

TRAVELLERS' HOME,

T. HALEY, PROPRIETOR,

(Formerly of Aylmer, Canada West.)

THIS House having been fitted up in the neatest and most comfortable style, the Proprietor hopes that, by keeping the choicest Liquors and a strict attention to business, to be able to give entire satisfaction to all who may give him a call. Attentive waiters and a well supplied table will always be found here.

Good Stabling and an attentive Ostler always in attendance.

N.B.—FRESH OYSTERS always on hand.

Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

PRINCE ALBERT HOTEL.

THIS Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Warner, has been thoroughly renovated, and will be kept well supplied with the very best liquors. An attentive man will always be in attendance to take charge of horses.

A private Parlor, for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen, has been fitted up.

F. X. TRUDELL,
Proprietor.

Sandwich Street,
29th February, 1856.

BROOKER'S TAVERN.

WM. BROOKER is prepared to attend upon his Customers at his new and well-furnished house near the Canard Bridge, where the Traveller will have his wants attended to in regard to good liquors, and his friends may expect to find every accommodation as usual.

A supply of Groceries always kept on hand which will be sold very cheap.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROYAL EXCHANGE.

H. MCGEE,

BEGS to announce to the Travelling Community, and Public in general, that he has opened the above new TAVERN, with good accommodations, and hopes by attention to his business, to merit a share of pub lic patronage. A choice selection of Groceries always on hand.

Maidstone Cross, February 29th, 1856.

MANSION HOUSE.

THIS new and commodious Inn is now completely finished, and the Proprietor hopes, that by a strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a share of public patronage, which was so liberally awarded him at his old stand.

ALONZO BROWN,
Proprietor.

Maidstone Cross,
7th March, 1856.

AMERICAN HOTEL.

COURT HOUSE SQUARE, LONDON, C. W.

ROBERT ARKELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and Travellers that he has taken the above Hotel, which has undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The house is in a fine open, airy and central situation, and commands a beautiful view of the valley of the Thames and surrounding country.

The Table is supplied with all the deliencies of the season. The Wines and Liquors will be of the best brands, and he trusts by assiduity and attention to the comfort of his guests to merit their patronage and support.

ROBERT ARKELL.

London, 29th Feb. 1856.

INTERNATIONAL BILLIARD SALOON,

Windsor, C.W., opposite the Depot of the Great Western Railway.

T. M. HOWRIGAN,

Proprietor.

The above Saloon is neatly and commodiously fitted up, the Proprietor having spared no expense for the purpose of rendering it attractive to visitors.

The best of Cigars, Wines and Liquors always behand.

Windsor, Feb. 29th, 1856.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

COURTER HOUSE

Corner of Eric and Seneca Streets,

Nearly Opposite the Buffalo & N. Falls Railroad.

B. F. POPPLE, MANAGER.

VISITORS visiting the Courter House, Buffalo, will find every convenience and attention at reasonable charges. Teetotalers visiting Buffalo, will find this Hotel calculated to meet their wishes.

Buffalo, 29th Feb. 1856.

S. D. ELWOOD & CO.,

PUBLISHERS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN

BOOKS, STATIONERY,

AND ALL KINDS OF

PAPERS,

PRINTERS AND BINDERS STOCK

MANUFACTURERS OF

BLANK BOOKS

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

Orders for Lithographed Letter and Bill Heads, Maps, Drafts, Stock Certificates, &c., &c., &c.,

EXECUTED WITH PROMPTNESS.

192 Jefferson Avenue,

DETROIT.

S. D. ELWOOD,
J. C. PARSONS,

Feb 29th, 1856.

New Wholesale GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT!

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and the Trade generally, that he has commenced business on his own account, in this City, as a

WHOLESALE GENERAL GROCER.

And as now receiving a large and carefully selected Stock of

GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, OILS, PAINTS, &c., &c., &c.

To which he confidently invites the attention of Western and City Merchants.

Premises, King Street West, opposite Messrs. McKeand, Bros & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods Warehouse.

A. I. McKENZIE.

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

DETROIT SEED STORE AND AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.

I would call the attention of Farmers and Gardeners to my present stock of Agricultural Implements, consisting of the most useful and latest improved kinds of Ploughs, Hay and Corn Stalk Cutting Boxes, Cultivators, Seed Planters, Corn Shellers, Fan Mills, Root Pullers, Corn Planters, Cob Crushers, Churns, &c. Garden, Field, and Flower Seeds, raised by the most experienced and careful growers in this country and England, and I think purchasers may feel confident that every seed sold will prove true to their name, and give perfect satisfaction All seed offered for sale will be of the present year's growth when offered as such.

E. F. PARKER.

75 Woodward Avenue, Detroit.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN.

ELEVENTH YEAR.

SPLENDID ENGRAVINGS AND PRIZES.

THE Eleventh Annual Volume of this useful publication commences on the 17 day of September next.

The "SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN" is an Illustrated Periodical, devoted chiefly to the promulgation of information relating to the various Mechanic and Chemic Arts, Industrial Manufactures, Agriculture, Patents, Inventions Engineering, Millwork, and all interests which the light of PRACTICAL SCIENCE is calculated to advance.

Reports of U. S. Patents granted are also published every week, including Official Copies of all the Patent Claims, together with news and information upon Thousands of other Subjects.

The contributors to the Scientific American are among the most Eminent Scientific and practical men of the United States. The Editorial Department is universally acknowledged to be distinguished, not only for the excellence and truthfulness of its discussions but for the fearlessness with which error is combated and false theories are exploded.

Mechanics, Inventors, Engineers Chemists, Manufacturers, Agriculturists, and People of every Profession in Life, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN to be of great value in their respective callings. Its counsels and suggestions will save them Hundreds of Dollars annually, besides affording them a continual source of knowledge. the experience of which is beyond pecuniary estimate.

The Scientific American is published once a week; every number contains eight large quarto pages, forming annually a complete and spendid volume, illustrated with several hundred original engravings.

Specimen copies sent gratis.

TERMS.—Single subscriptions, $2 a year or $1 for six months. Five copies for six months, $4; for a year, $8.

For further Club rates and for statement of the fourteen large Cash Prizes, offered by the publishers, see Scientific American.

Southern, Western and Canada money or Post Office Stamps, taken at par for subscriptions.

Letters should be directed (post paid) to

MUNN & CO.
128 Fulton St. New York

Messrs Munn & Co. have been, for many years extensively engaged procuring patents for new inventions, and will advise inventors without charge in regard to the novelty of their improvements.

LIVERY STABLE.—NOTICE.

THE Undersigned gives notice to all person or persons hiring Horses, Buggy, or Carriage from his Livery Stable in Sandwich, will be held responsible for all damage done on Horses, Buggy, or Carriage and harness, or delay of the same. Persons wishing to patronize him in his business, will be pleased in taking the above articles at their own risk.

C. F. LABADIE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TILES, TILES.

THE Public are respectfully informed that M. & J. H. WHITEHOUSE are Manufacturing and have on hand a large quantity of Tiles, for Draining Cellars, Farms, &c., at their Brick Yard, Westminster, two miles from London, and a quarter of a mile from Mr. J. Nellis's Tavern, at First Toll Gate on the Hamilton Road, which they will sell at the following Low Prices for 1000 with Horse or Bottoms, without £2 15s. They will be found to be much cheaper than any other Material for Draining, as they facilitate greatly in Ploughing, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when put down will never require removing. Samples may be seen and orders received at the Store of Mr. J. Fitzell, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also Roofing Tiles and Press Bricks for fronting Buildings of a superior quality.

London, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Crockery Store and China Emporium.

F. P. MATHER & Co., IMPORTERS and Dealers in Crockery, China, Glass, Britannia and Silver Plated Ware, Lamps and Looking Glasses, Table Cutlery and Fancy Ware, "Sign of the Big White Pitcher," No. 224 Jefferson Avenue, Kearsley's Block, opposite Fireman's Hall, Detroit, Michigan.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

CARPETS. CARPETS.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

THE Subscribers have just received, ex "London," a Large Stock of BRUSSELS, 5 PLY, AND SCOTCH CARPETINGS which they are prepared to offer at low prices, and are well worthy of inspection.

T. B. & J. HARRIS,

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Beecher, Rice and Ketchum.

CARPET & OIL CLOTH WAREHOUSE,

No. 142 Jefferson Avenue.

Conant Block, Detroit, Michigan.

BEECHER, HOLLISTER & WILKINS, Carpet Hall, Lake Street, Chichago, Importers of Carpets, Oil Cloths, Paper-hangings Curtain and Upholstery materials.

A. A. RICE, L. BEECHER, E. P. HOLLISTER
C. B. KETCHUM, D. WILKINS, JR

Detroit, Feb. 29th, 1856.

JUST PUBLISHED,

CANADA

PHYSICAL, Descriptive and Historical, By Adam Lille, D.D. One Volume, 12mo, about 400 Pages. Maps of Canada East & West. Cloth 6s.; Stiff Covers 8s 9d.

MACLEAR & CO.,
Publishers, Toronto.

N. B.—Sent by Post to any part of North America or Europe, if desired.

Toronto, Feb. 29th, 1856.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

Hamilton and Toronto Branch.

ALTERATION OF TIME.

ON and after MONDAY NEXT, the 10th December, trains will run daily (Sundays excepted) between Hamilton and Toronto, as follows:

GOING WEST

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed	Mail
	A M	P M	P M	A M
Toronto,	8 00	3 20	10 00
Mimico,	8 10	3 30	10 15
Port Credit,	8 25	3 45	10 30
Oakville,	8 43	4 03	10 53
Bronte,	8 55	4 15	11 05
Wellington Square,	9 10	4 30	11 35
Hamilton,	9 30	4 50	12 00

GOING EAST.

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed	Mail
	A M	P M	A M	P M
Hamilton,	10 40	6 10	3 10
Wellington Square,	11 00	6 30	3 35
Bronte,	11 15	6 45	3 50
Oakville,	11 27	7 00	4 15
Port Credit,	11 45	7 20	4 35
Mimico,	12 00	7 35	4 50
Toronto,	12 15	7 50	5 05

The above Trains connect at Hamilton with Trains of Great Western Railway running in connection with Trains to Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, Boston, New York, and with Michigan Central Railroad Trains at Detroit for Chicago, St. Louis, &c. &c.

The 3 20 Train from Toronto meets O W R Accommodation Train going West at Hamilton, for Preston, Galt, Paris, London, and intermediate Stations

Through Tickets for any of the above places can be obtained at the Ticket Office, Toronto Station

Stages run daily between Oakville, Milton, Georgetown, &c. &c. &c.

C. J. BRYDGES,
Managing Director

Great Western Railway Offices,

New Fashions!

ESTABLISHMENT.

THE Subscriber begs leave to notify the Public that he will carry on business in the building lately occupied by T. Murphy, opposite the Hennell Hotel, where he intends to carry on the Tailoring Business in all its branches, and hopes by strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage.

N. B.—He will receive the Report of Fashion monthly.

Cutting done to order.

W. T. BASSANDALE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

THE SANDWICH MILLINERY AND DRESS MAKING Establishment will be reopened for the season.

The Proprietor having just returned from the Eastern Cities with a Large Stock of Millinery and Dress Goods of the latest style and fashion, which he offers for sale at a small advance from original Cost.

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE
L. P. ST. AMOUR.

Sandwich, Feb 29th, 1856.

HIDES WANTED.

ANY Quantity of Hides will be taken in for the Sandwich Tannery at either of the Saddler's Shops in Sandwich or Windsor, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

JAS. WOODBRIDGE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

WHEAT! WHEAT!! WHEAT!!! AND CORN!!!!

THE Highest Price will be paid in Cash for good Merchantable Wheat and Corn, either at the Store of the Subscriber at Sandwich, or at the Rose Dale Mills.

GEO. & G. A BULLOCK.

Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

BUILDING.

THE SUBSCRIBER, in returning thanks to the Inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor, and Vicinity for past favors, begs respectfully to inform them that he is now at Home, having finished his Contracts in the City of Detroit, and is prepared to enter into Contracts for the erection of

Brick or Wooden Buildings

Of any description, and furnish Materials for the same.

HENRY TEAKLE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

TO BE SOLD

CHEAP FOR CASH,

The property of a person going to England, the following Real Property, viz:

FOUR Town Lots situated in the Town of Sandwich in the County of Essex enclosed in one block with a good Cottage, Stable, and a variety of choice grafted fruits, and a good well of water, being composed of Lots No. 13, 15, and 16, on the East side of Russell street; also Water Lot No. 17, a good site for a Steam Mill; also Lot No. 16, on the West side of Bedford Street.

Lots No. 13 cast half in 2nd Con., Rochester, 100 acres, also the East half of Lot No 8, in 4th Con., Sandwich, 100 acres.

Enquire of George Bullock Esq. Sandwich.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Patent Medicines.

DR. VERVAIS' Pulmonic Syrup,

A NEW PREPARATION OF

COD LIVER OIL SYRUP,

FOR THE CURE OF

COLDS, COUGHS, ASTHMA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, AND ALL DISEASES OF THE LUNGS.

SINCE so many excellent Medicines have been offered to the Public, and by excellent physicans, it might be thought superfluous on my part to offer any Patent Medicine. But from many years experience and practice, both in the laboratory and with my patients, I find that the above preparation is the best that has yet been offered to the public. The Chemical Composition is such that the disagreeable taste is completely taken out in the least diminishing the virtues of the Oil. It can be taken with perfect safety in all cases, and at all ages without injuring the constitution. And its properties are so remarkable as instantaneously to remove the nervous irritability of the Lungs, allay the Cough, and remove the dryness of the Throat and the viscid phlegm with which the passage of the Lungs are loaded. It cannot be said in favor of this valuable Medicine, that distinguishing and dyeing patent from a death-bed to the best health, and make him enjoy the real blessing of a healthy constitution. We have now the radical cure, "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup," which I not only recommend as a WARRANTER to Cure the diseases for which it is made, if the patient perseveres in the use of a bottle or two. The most ample experience justifies the Proprietor in speaking so candidly and confidently of its discovery, when Patients who have been suffering from severe cough, whooping-cough, colds and catarrhal affections, have with the use of a few bottles, not only been restored to their wonted health, but even fait their constitution stronger than for many years previous. All persons who have once used this Medicine have instantly ordered more for the use of themselves and friends. The Proprietor again warrants his preparation to be everything he claims for it; and he only asks the trial of a single bottle to convince every one that it is without doubt or hesitation the most palatable, speedy, and efficacious Medicine ever made use of in America. He has especially devoted 12 years to the preparation of such Medicines, and he can at last hail with pleasure and delight this wonderful preparation of the only efficacious Remedy for the cure of nearly all Diseases of the Lungs, particularly Hectic Fevers, Night Sweats, Dyspnea, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all Pains in the Chest. I have only further to add that this Compound has not been extended beyond my limits as a prescription until astonishing success attended its use in removing the diseases for which I recommended it. It became very popular, and was called for so frequently, I found it necessary to prepare it in large quantities to meet the constant demand for it. Since this Medicine is carefully compounded by myself, who am thoroughly acquainted with the medicinal qualities and effects of each article separately, and of their combined influence when chemically mixed and have also a perfect knowledge of the human system, and of the functions of each organ both in its healthy and diseased condition, I can therefore recommend this preparation with the greatest confidence, and am therefore fully persuaded from past experience that it will give Universal Satisfaction; but, at the same time, I do not pretend to assert, as medicines are generally foisted up to the eyes of the public, that it is a "Cure-All," nor that it is, under all circumstances, infallible in its effects. I can truly say that I am acquainted with no chemical composition that acts so well for a tonic—expectorant in chronic cough, and catarrhal affection of debilitated habits, to re-establish a healthy condition of the secretory organs, to promote the dissolution of the deposite, and to give strength to the solids—than this Cod-Liver Oil Syrup, also in allaying the irritability of the muscular fibres of the bronchial tubes of the lungs and the spasmodic contraction of those tubes in the asthmatic patient, or in any case of hysmus (tightness of breathing). Consumptive patients will find a great advantage in using this Syrup, not on account of facilitating the expectoration ard giving rest, but being very nutritive in itself.

This virtue should draw the attention of the sufferer. There is no medicine which acts so quickly on the respiratory organs as this "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup," because it is received into the circulation, and determined to the lungs. The effects of the Syrup have been so successful in removing the various diseases for which I have severally recommended it, that I hereby assure the public that they need not fear either to use or recommend it; as I will, in a far greater degree, perform all that is stated in the directions accompanying the Article.

Dose for a growing up person, one teaspoonful four or five times a day.—A child of eight to twelve years, half a teaspoonful three times a day.—From six to eight years of age, twenty drops three or four times a day.

AYER'S PILLS

Are curing the Sick to an extent never before known of any Medicine.

INVALIDS, READ AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

PRIES HAUEL, Esq., the well known perfumer, of Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, whose choice products are found at almost every toilet, says:

"I am pleased to say of your CATHARTIC PILLS, that I have found them a better family medicine, for common use, than any I have ever sold, and I have sold them for years. My friends have realized marked benefits from them, and cordially with me in recommending them to the public. I have known virtues for driving out diseases and curing the sick. They are not only effectual, but pleasant and safe, and these qualities which must make them valued by the public. Many times have I known

The venerable Chancellor WARDLAW writes from Edgefield, 15th April, 1854:

"Dr. AYER—Dear Sir: I have taken your Pills with great benefit, for the listlessness, fatigue, loss of appetite, and bilious headache, which are the result of my sedentary use in the spring. A few doses of your Pills cured me. I have used your Cherry Pectoral now for years in my family for coughs and colds with unfailing success. You make medicines which are real, and I feel a pleasure in commending you for the good you have done and are doing."

JOHN T. PRATT, Esq., Treas. of the Hartford & Erie Railroad Co. says:

"Fa. R. R. Office, Philadelphia, Dec. 13, 1853.

"SIR: I take pleasure in adding my testimony to the efficacy of your medicines, having derived very essential benefit from the use of both your Pectoral and Cathartic Pills. I am never without them in my family, nor shall I ever consent to be, so long as they can be procured of you.

The widely renowned S. S. STEVENS, M. D., of Westmoreth, N. H., writes:

"Having used your CATHARTIC PILLS in my practice, I certify that I experience that they are an invaluable purgative. In cases of disordered functions of the liver, causing biliousness, indigestion, costiveness, and in the early stages of diseases that follow, they are a surer remedy than any other. In all cases where a purgative medicine is required, I confidently recommend these Pills to the public, as superior to any other I have ever found. They are not only sure to relieve, and restore to health, but are also safe to handle and take. Their sugar coating makes them an invaluable article for public use. I have for many years used your Cherry Pectoral, and find it the best Cough medicine in the world; and these Pills are in no way inferior to that admirable preparation, in the treatment of diseases."

Acton, Me., Nov. 25, 1853.

"DR. AYER—Dear SIR: I have been afflicted from my birth with costiveness, and have used, during the last twenty years, trial, and an untold of amount of suffering, have your Pills. I was induced to try them a few weeks ago, from what feelings of rejoicing I write can only be imagined when you realize that I have found relief and health from their use.

"Never until now have I been free from this loathsome and tormenting disease. At times it assailed my eyes, and made me almost blind; at times the whole head, and at others it settled in the scalp of my head, and destroyed my hair, and has made me partly bald for years; sometimes again it came out in my face, and kept it for months a raw sore. In short, it now makes up I consider, the whole list of Cathartic Pills, and now am entirely free from the complaint. My eyes are well, my skin is fair, and by the use I commenced a healthy growth; all of which makes me feel almost a new person.

"Hoping this statement may be the means of conveying the knowledge of such good to others as it has, with every sentiment of gratitude, Yours, &c., MARIA CRANE."

"I have known the above named Maria Ricker from her childhood upwards, and attest the truth of the above.

ANDREW J. MESERVE,
Overseer of the Pemberton Cotton Manufacturing Co."

CAPT. JOEL PRATT, of the ship Marietta, writes from Boston, 30th April, 1854:

"Your Pills have cured me from a bilious attack which was dangerous and of long standing. They have been very serious. I had failed of any relief from the use of many other remedies. Your Pills I could try; but a few doses of yours have completely restored me to health, and I have given them to my family with perfect confidence. They were promptly effectual. I recommend them to my friends and to seamen, which had troubled him for months; he told me in a few days he was entirely free from it. Make the best medicine in the world; and I am free to say so."

Read this from the distinguished Solicitor of the Supreme Court, whose high character for truth and veracity is well known, not only in this but the neighboring States:

"SIR: I have great satisfaction in assuring you that medicines. My wife was cured by your CHERRY PECTORAL, after having been very much benefited by your CATHARTIC PILLS. She had a severe cough, by your CHERRY PECTORAL, and since then has enjoyed excellent health. Our children have several times been cured from attacks of the Influenza and Croup by it. I consider it the best remedy for Croup in use. Your CATHARTIC PILLS have by myself and family, relieved us from attacks of the Liver, and prevented much more important disease. Indeed, this cure is got rather from the use of these Pills than from any other medicine. They are the best Physicians which this section of the country affords, and I had from my own experience, and from those around me, full confidence in their virtues.

"You seem to me, Doctor, like a providential blessing to mankind, and you may well suppose we are un unfeigned friend of yours.

CLEAVIUS THAXTER."

"Senate Chamber, Boston, April 5th, 1854.

"DR. J. C. AYER—Honored Sir: I have been afflicted with a severe cough, and have used your CHERRY PECTORAL, which has entirely cured me. I have also used your CATHARTIC PILLS, and have been cured thereby of the dreadful symptoms under which he found myself suffering. The first dose re-lieved me, and a few subsequent doses have entirely removed the disease. I can truly say that this first dose re-moved my pain, and I attribute entirely to your CATHARTIC PILLS and to your CHERRY PECTORAL the great benefit I have received from their use.

LUCIUS MANLY."

The above are all from persons well known to the public, where they reside, and who would not for any consideration publish a statement which was not strictly true.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass.

GEO. and G. A. BULLOCK, and J. A. VERVAIS, Sandwich;
D. OULLETTE, Windsor;
And every Druggist and Merchant in Canada.

MAPLE LEAF.

"PROGRESS."

VOL. I. SANDWICH, C. W., FRIDAY, MARCH 21, 1856. NO. 4.

THE MAPLE LEAF,

IS PUBLISHED

Every Friday Morning,

BY

J. E. WILKINSON,

BEDFORD STREET,

Sandwich, Canada West.

TERMS:—Eight shillings and ninepence Cy, per annum, if paid in advance; or Ten Shillings at the end of the year.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Six lines or under, first insertion, 2s 6d, cy
Each subsequent insertion, 0 7½ "

Advertisements over six lines, 4d per line for the first insertion, and one penny per line for every subsequent insertion. A liberal discount made to Merchants and others who advertise by the year.

Advertisments sent in for insertion without written directions, will be continued till forbid and the usual rates charged.

CLUBS.

Any person procuring 10 subscribers will be entitled to a copy gratis. Payment to be made in advance.

THE JOB OFFICE connected with the "MAPLE LEAF" is in every respect complete for the dispatch of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

Professional Cards.

Mr. William Johnson,
Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c., &c.
Sandwich, C. W.

Mr. Charles Baby,
Attorney and Councillor at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, &c.
Office, Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. J. H. Wilkinson.
Law, Chancery, Conveyancing, and Land Agency Office,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. Louis J. Fluett,
Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, Conveyancer and Land Agent,
Sandwich.

Mr. S. S. Macdonell,
Barrister, Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, &c., &c.
Windsor, C. W.

Mr. John O'Connor, Jun.,
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c.,
Windsor, C. W.

Charles Eugene Casgrain, M.D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Office and Residence, opposite the "Mear's Hotel,"
Sandwich, Canada West.

Dr. Reynolds,
Physician and Surgeon,
Amherstburg.

John Adley,
Physician and Surgeon, &c.,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

ALEXANDER GORDON,
NOTARY PUBLIC AND INSURANCE AGENT
Sandwich & Windsor, Canada West.

John McCrae,
Auctioneer, Insurance and General Agent
Windsor, Canada West.

Bank of Upper Canada Agency,
Windsor, Canada West.
Office Hours, 10, A.M., to 3, P.M.

Philip S. Donnelly,
Provincial Land Surveyer, &c.,
Moore, County of Lambton.

P. Marentette,
Gunsmith and Manufacturer of Guns.
Every description of Fire-arms repaired at his shop, on Bedford Street,
Sandwich.

L. P. St. Amour,
IMPORTER, AND WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS
CROCKERY, HARDWARE,
PERFUMERY, &c.,
Sandwich, Canada West.

Sandwich Post Office.

Open daily, from Nine till Twelve, A.M., and from half-past Twelve till Four, P.M.
P. H. MORIN, Post Master.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware
Crockery, Boots & Shoes
&c. &c. &c.
Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich.

THE HOLLY-TREE INN,

A NEW STORY,

BY CHARLES DICKENS.

Continued from our last.

Before leaving the house and town for ever, he gave instructions to a friend, and neighbour to sell his furniture for anything that it would fetch, and apply the proceeds to employing the police to trace her. The directions were honestly followed, and the money was all spent; but the enquiries led to nothing. The pick-lock on the bedroom door remained the one last useless trace of her.

At this point of the narrative the landlord paused, and looked towards the stable-door.

"So far," he said, "I tell you what was told to me. The little that remains to be added lies within my own experience. Between two and three months after the events I have just been relating, Isaac Scotchman came to me, withered and old-looking before his time, just as you saw him to-day. He had his testimonials to character with him, and he asked for employment here. I gave him a trial, and liked him in spite of his queer habits. He is as sober, honest, and willing a man as there is in England. As for his restlessness at night, and his sleeping away his leisure time in the day, who can wonder at it after hearing his story? Besides, he never objects to being woke up, when that's wanted, so there's not much inconvenience to complain of, after all."

"I suppose he is afraid of waking out of that dreadful dream in the dark?" said I.

"No," returned the landlord. "The dream comes back to him so often, that he has got to bear with it by this time resignedly enough. It's his wife keeps him waking at night, as he has often told me."

"What! Has she never been heard of yet?"

"Never. Isaac himself has the one perpetual thought about her, that she is sitting and looking for him. I believe he wouldn't let himself drop off to sleep towards two in the morning for a king's ransom. Two in the morning, he says, is the time when she will find him, one of these days. Two in the morning is the time, all the year round, when he likes to be most certain that he has got that cla pknife safe about him.—He does not mind being alone, as long as he is awake, except on the night before his birth-day, when he firmly believes himself to be in peril of his life. The birthday has only come round once since he has been here; and then he sat up, along with a neighbour. 'She's looking for me,' he always says, when I speak to him on the one theme of his life; 'she's looking for me.' He may be right. She may be looking for him. Who can tell?"

"Who can tell?" said I.

THE BOOTS.

Where had he been in his time? he repeated when I asked him the question.—Lo-d, he had been everywhere. And what had he been? Bless you, he had been everything you could mention almost.

Soon a good deal! Why, of course he had. I should say so, he could assure me, if I only knew about a twentieth part of what had come in his way. Why, it would be easier for him, he expected, to tell what he hadn't been, than what he had. Ah! A deal, it would.

What was the curiousest thing he had seen? Well! He didn't know. He couldn't momently name what was the curiousest thing he had seen—unless it was a Unicorn—and he see him once, at a fair. But, supposing a young gentleman not eight year old, was to run away with a fine young woman of seven, might I think that a queer start? Certainly! Then, that was a start as he himself had had his blessed eyes on—and he had cleaned the shoes they run away in—and they was to look that he couldn't get his hand into 'em.

Master Harry Walmer's father, you see, he lived at the Elms, down away by Shooter's Hill there, six or seven mile from Lumnon. He was a gentleman of spirit, and good-looking, and held his head up when he walked, and had what you may call fine notions about him. He wrote poetry, and he rode, and he ran, and he cricketed, and he danced, and he acted, and he done it all equally beautiful. He was uncommon proud of Master Harry as was his only child; but he didn't spoil him, neither. He was a gentleman that had a will of his own (as is right of his own), and that would be mindor.—Consequently, though he made quite a companion of the fine bright boy, and was delighted to see him so fond of reading his fairy books, and was never tired of hearing him say my name is Norval, or any of them pieces, and sing his songs about Young May Moons is beaming love, and When he as adores the has left but the name, and that: still he kept the command over the child, and the child was a child, and it's to be wished more of 'em was!

How did Boots happen to know all this? Why, through being under-gardener. Of course he couldn't be under-gardener, and be always about, in the summer-time, near the windows on the lawn, a mowing, and sweeping, and weeding, and pruning, and this and that, without getting acquainted with the ways of the family. Even supposing Master Harry hadn't come to him one morning early, and said, "Cobbs, how should you spell Norah, if you was asked?" and then begun cutting it in print, all over the fence.

He couldn't say he had taken particular notice of children before that; but, really it was pretty to see them two mites a going about the place together, deep in love. And the courage of the boy! Bless your soul, he'd have throwed off his little hat, and tucked up his little sleeves, and gone in at a Lion, he would, if they had happened to meet one, and she had been frightened at him. "One day he stops, along with her, where Boots was hoeing weeds in the gravel, and says—speaking up, "Cobbs," he says, "I like you." "Do you, sir? I'm proud to hear it." "Yes, I do, Cobbs. Why do I like you, do you think, Cobbs?" "Don't know, Master Harry, I am sure." "Because Norah likes you Cobbs." "Indeed, sir?—That's very gratifying." "Gratifying, Cobbs? It's better than millions of the brightest diamonds, to be liked by Norah." "Certainly, sir." "You're going away, ain't you, Cobbs?" "Yes sir." "Would you like another situation, Cobbs?" "Well, sir, I shouldn't object, if it was a good 'un." "Then, Cobbs" says he, "you shall be our Head Gardener when we are married." And he tuck her, in her little sky-blue mantle, under his arm, and walks away.

Boots could assure me that it was better than a piece, and equal to a play, to see them babies with their long bright curling hair, their sparkling eyes, and their beautiful light tread, a rambling about the garden, deep in love. Boots was of opinion that the birds believed they was birds, and kept up with 'em, singing to please 'em. Sometimes, they would creep under the Tulip trees, and down by the pond, with their arms round one another's necks, and their soft cheeks touching, a reading about the Prince, and the Dragon, and the good and bad enchanters, and the king's fair daughter.—Sometimes, he would hear them planning games in the holiday time in a forest, keeping bees and a cow, and living entirely on milk and honey. Once, he came upon them by the pond, and heard Master Harry say, "Adorable Norah, kiss me, and say you love me to distraction, or I'll jump in head-foremost." And Boots made no question he would have done it, if she hadn't complied. On the whole, Boots said it had a tendency to make him feel as if he was in love himself—only he didn't exactly know who with.

"Cobbs," said Master Harry one evening, when Cobbs was watering the flowers, "I am going on a visit, this present Midsummer time, to my grandmamma's at York."

"Are you indeed, sir? I hope you'll have a pleasant time. I am going into Yorkshire myself, when I leave here."

"Are you going to your grandmamma's, Cobbs?"

"No, sir. I haven't got such a thing."

"Not as a grandmamma, Cobbs?"

"No, sir."

The boy looked on at the watering of the flowers for a little while, and then said, "I shall be very glad indeed to go, Cobbs—Norah's going."

"You'll be all right then, sir," says Cobbs, with your beautiful sweetheart by your side."

"Cobbs," returned the boy, flushing, "I never let anybody joke about it, when I can prevent them."

"It wasn't a joke, sir," says Cobbs with humility, "was it so meant."

"I am glad of that, Cobbs, because I like you you know, and you're going to live with us,—Cobbs!"

"Sir."

"What do you think my grandmamma says else, when I go down there?"

"It couldn't so much as make a guess, sir."

"A Bank of England five-pound note, Cobbs."

"Whew!" says Cobbs, "that's a spanking sum of money, Master Harry."

"A person could do a good deal with such a sum of money as that. Couldn't a person, Cobbs?"

"I believe you, sir!"

"Cobbs," said the boy, "I'll tell you a secret. At Norah's house, they have been joking her about me, and pretending to laugh at our being so fond. Pretending to make game of it, Cobbs!"

"Such, sir," says Cobbs, "is the depravity of human nature."

The boy, looking exactly like his father, stood for a few minutes with his glowing face towards the sunset, and then departed with "Good-night, Cobbs. I'm going in."

If I was to ask Boots how it happened that he was a going to leave that place just at that present time, well, he couldn't rightly answer me. He did suppose he might have stayed there till now, if he had been anyways inclined. But, you see, he was younger then, and he wanted changes. "That's why he wanted—change. Mr. Walmers, he said, to him when he give him notice of his intentions to leave, "Cobbs," he says, "have you anything to complain of? I make the inquiry, because if I find that any of my people has anything to complain of, I wish to make it right if I can." "No, sir," says Cobbs; "thanking you, sir, I find myself as well situated here as I could hope to be anywheres. The truth is, sir, that I'm a going to seek my fortun." "O, indeed, Cobbs?" he says; "I hope you may find it." And Boots could assure me that he felt touching his hair with his boot-jack as a salute in the way of his present calling—that he hadn't found it yet.

Well, sir! Boots left the Elmses when his time was up, and Master Harry he went down to the old lady's at York, which old lady would have given that child the teeth out of her head (if she had had any,) she was so wrapt up in him. What does that Infant do—for Infant you may call him and he within the mark—but cut away from that old lady's with his Norah, on a expedition to go to Gretna Green and be married!

Sir, Boots was at this identical Holly-Tree Inn (having left it several times since to better himself, but always comes back through one thing or another), when, one summer afternoon the coach drives up, and out of the coach gets them two children. The Guard says to our Governor, "I don't quite make out these little passengers, but the young gentleman's words was, that they was to be brought here." The young gentleman gets out; hands his lady out; gives the Guard something for himself; says to our Governor, "We're to stop here to-night, please." Sitting-room and two bedrooms will be required. Chops and cherry pudding for two;" and tucks her, in her little sky-blue mantle, under his arm, and walks into the house much bolder than Brass.

Boots leaves me to judge what the amazement of that establishment was, when those two tiny creatures all alone by themselves was marched into the Angel;—much more so, when he, who had seen them without their seeing him, give the Governor his views of the expedition they was upon.—"Cobbs," says the Governor, "if this is so, I think you ought to have given notice to your friends' minds. In which case you must keep your eye upon 'em, and humour 'em, till I come back. But, before I take these measures, Cobbs, I should wish you to find from themselves whether your opinions is correct." "Sir to you," says Cobbs, "that shall be done directly."

So, Boots goes upstairs to the Angel, and there he finds Master Harry on a e-normous sofa—immense at any time, but looking like the Great Bed of Ware, compared with him—a drying the eyes of Miss Norah with his pocket-handkcher. Their little legs was stretched out on account, of course, and it really is not possible for Boots to express to me how small them children looked.

"It's Cobbs! It's Cobbs!" cries Master Harry and comes running to him and catching hold of his hand. Miss Norah comes runninger to him on t'other side and catching hold of his t'other hand, and they both jump for joy.

"I see you a getting out, sir," says Cobbs. "I thought it was you. I thought I couldn't be mistaken in your height and figure.—What's the object of your journey, sir?—Matrimonial?"

"We are going to be married, Cobbs, at Gretna Green," returned the boy. "We have run away on purpose. Norah has been in rather low spirits, Cobbs; but she'll be happy, now we have found you to be our friend."

"I thank you, sir, and thank you, miss," says Cobbs, "for your good opinion. Did you bring any luggage with you, sir?"

If I will believe Boots when he gives me his word and honour upon it, the lady had got a parasol, a smelling-bottle, and a round and a half of cold buttered toast, eight pepper-mint drops, and a lace pocket-handkerchief with a dollar. The gentleman had got about half-a-dozen yards of string, a knife, three or four sheets of writing-paper folded up surprising small, a orange, and a Chaney mug with his name upon it.

"What may be the exact natur of your plans, sir?" says Cobbs, in a hurry, sir, which, put in a pleayton that I could borrow, would take you and Mrs. Harry Walmers Junior (myself driving if you approved), to the end of your journey in a very short space of time. I am not altogether sure, sir, that this pony will be at liberty to-morrow, but even if you had to wait over-to-morrow, for him, it might be worth your while. As to the small account here, sir, in case you was to find yourself running at all short, that don't signify; because I'm a part proprietor of this inn, and it could stand over."

Boots swore to me that when they clapped their hands, and jumped for joy again, and called him "Good Cobbs!" and "Dear Cobbs!" and bent across him to kiss one another in the delight of their confiding hearts, he felt himself the meanest rascal for deceiving 'em, that ever was born.

"I never see anything you want just at present, sir," says Cobbs, mortally ashamed of himself.

"We should like some cakes after dinner," answered Master Harry, folding his arms, putting out one leg, and looking straight at them, "and two apples—and jam. And I dare say we should like to see a boat-and-water. But, Norah has always been accustomed to half a glass of currant wine at dessert. And so have I."

"It shall be ordered at the bar, sir," says Cobbs; and away he went.

Boots says the feeling as fresh upon him as the memory of speaking, as he had then, that he would far rather have had it out in half a dozen rounds with the Governor, than have combined with him; and that he wished with all his heart there was any impossible place where those two babies could make an impossible marriage, and live impossibly happy ever afterwards. However, as it couldn't be, he went into the Governor's plans, and the Governor set out for York in half an hour.

The way in which the women of that house—without exception—every one of 'em—married and single—took to that boy when they heard the story, Boots couldn't express. It was as much as he could do to keep 'em from dashing into the room and kissing him. They climbed up all sorts of places, at the risk of their lives, to look at him through a pane of glass. They were seven deep at the key-hole. They was out of their minds about him and his bold spirit.

In the evening, Boots went into the room, to see how the runaway couple was getting on. The gentleman was on the window-seat, supporting the lady in his arms. She had tears upon her face, and was lying, very tired and half asleep, with her head upon his shoulder.

"Mrs. Harry Walmers Junior, fatigued, sir?" says Cobbs.

"Yes, she is tired, Cobbs; but, she is not used to be away from home, and she has been in low spirits again. Cobbs, do you think you could fetch a bottle of sherry?"

"I ask your pardon, sir," says Cobbs.—"What was it you——"

"I think a Norfolk lattin would rouse her, Cobbs. She is very fond of them."

Boots withdrew in search of the required restorative, and when he brought it in, the gentleman was sitting on a sofa, feeding her with a spoon, and took a little himself. The lady being heavy with sleep, and rather cross. "What should you think, sir," says Cobbs, "of a chamber candle-tick?" The gentleman approved; the chambermaid went first, up the great staircase; the lady in her husband's arms, followed, gallantly, by the gentleman; the gentleman embraced her at her door, and retired to his own apartment, where Boots softly locked him up.

Boots couldn't but feel with increased acuteness what a base deceiver he was, when they presented him at breakfast (they had ordered sweet milk-and-water, and toast and currant jelly, overnight), about the pony. It was as much as he could do, he don't mind confessing to me, to look them two young things in the face, and think what a wicked old father of lies he had grown up to be. Howsomever, he went out, a lying like a Trojan, about the pony. He told 'em that it did so unfort'nately happen that the pony was half crippled, you see, and that he couldn't be taken out in that state, for fear it should strike to his inside. But, that he'd be finished clipped in the course of the day, and that to-morrow morning at eight o'clock the pheayton would be ready. Boot's view of the whole case, looking back upon it in my room, is, that Mrs. Harry Walmers Junior was beginning to give in. She hadn't had her hair curled when she went to bed, and she didn't seem quite up to brushing it herself, and it's getting in her eyes and her out. But, nothing put out Master Harry. He sat behind his breakfast cup, a tearing away at the jelly, as if he had been his own father.

After breakfast, Boots is inclined to consider that they drawed soldiers—as he knows that many such was found in the fireplace, all on horseback. In the course of the morning, Master Harry rang the bell—it was surprising how that there boy did carry on—and said in a sprightly way, "Cobbs, is there any good walks in this neighborhood?"

"Yes, sir," says Cobbs. "There's Love Lane."

"Get out with you, Cobbs"—that was that there boy's expression—"you're joking."

"Begging your pardon, sir," says Cobbs, "there really is Love Lane. And a pleasant walk it is, and proud shall I be to show it to yourself and Mrs. Harry Walmers Junior."

"Norah, dear," said Master Harry, "this is curious. We really ought to see Love Lane. Put on your bonnet, my sweetest darling, and we will go there with Cobbs."

"Boots leaves me to judge what a Beast he felt himself to be, when that young pair told him, as they all three jogged along together, that they had made up their minds to give him two thousand guineas a year as head gardener, on account of his being so true a friend to 'em. Boots could have wished at the moment that the earth would have opened and swallowed him up; he felt so mean, with their beaming eyes a looking at him, and believing him. Well, sir, he turned the conversation as well as he could, and he took 'em down Love Lane to the water-meadows, and there Master Harry would have drownded himself in half a moment more, a getting out a water-lily for her—but nothing daunted that boy. Well, sir, they was tired out. All being so new and strange to 'em they was tired as tired could be. And they laid down on a bank of daisies, like the children in the wood, leastways Boots does suppose so, for he never was there, and left nobody.

Boots don't know what I do—but never mind, it don't signify either way—why it made a man fit to make a fool of himself, to see them two pretty babies a lying there in the clear sunny day, not dreaming half so hard when they was awake, as they did when they was asleep. But, Lord! when you come to think of yourself, you know, and what a game you have been up to ever since you was in your own cradle, and what a poor sort of a chap you are, and how it's always either Yesterday with you, or else To-morrow, and never To-day, you don't mind it so much.

Well, sir, they woke up at last, and then one thing was getting pretty clear to Boots; namely, that Mrs. Harry Walmers Junior's temper was on the move. When Master Harry took her round the waist, she said he "teased her so;" and when he says, "North, my young May Moon, your Harry teases you?" she tells him, "Yes; and I want to go home."

A lifted coal, and baked bread-and-butter pudding brought Mrs. Walmers up a little; but Boots could have wished, he must privately confess to me, to have seen her more sensible of the voice of love, and less absorbed in the contemplation of herself in currants. However, Master Harry he kept up, and his noble heart was as fond as ever. Mrs. Walmers turned very sleepy about tea-time, and began to cry. Therefore, Mrs. Walmers went off to bed as per yesterday; and Master Harry ditto repeated.

About eleven or twelve at night, comes back the Governor in a chaise, along with Mr. Walmers and a elderly lady. Mr. Walmers looks amazed and very serious both at once, and says to our missis, "We are much indebted to you, ma'am, for your kind care of our little children, which we can never sufficiently acknowledge. Pray ma'am where is my boy?" Our missis says, "Cobbs has the dear child in charge, sir. Cobbs, show Pa?" Then, he says to Cobbs, "Ah, Cobbs! Lam glad to see you. I understood you was here!" And Cobbs says, "Yes, sir. Your most obedient, sir!"

I may be surprised to hear Boots say it, perhaps; but, Boots assures me that his heart beat like a hammer, going up stairs. "I beg your pardon, sir," says he, while unlocking the door; "but I hope you are not angry with Master Harry?" For, Master Harry is a fine boy, sir, and will do you credit and honour." And Boots signifies to me, that if the line boy's father had contradicted him in the daring state of mind in which he then was, he thinks he should have "fetched him a crack," and taken the consequences.

But, Mr. Walmers only says, "No, Cobbs. No, my good fellow. Thank you!" And, the door being opened, goes in.

Boots goes in too, holding the light, and he sees Mr. Walmers go up to the bedside, and gently down and kiss the little sleeping face. Then, he stands looking at it for a minute, looking wonderfully like it (they do say he ran away with Mrs. Walmers); and then he gently shakes the little shoulder.

"Harry, my dear boy! Harry!"

Master Harry starts up and looks at him. Looks at Cobbs first. Such is the temper of that mite, that he looks at Cobbs, to see whether he has brought him into trouble.

"I am not angry, my child. I only want you to dress yourself and come home."

"Yes, Pa."

Master Harry dresses himself quickly.—His breast is full, as well when he has nearly finished, and it swells more and more as he stands at last, a looking at his father; his father standing a looking him, the quiet image of him.

"Please may I"—the spirit of that little creature, and the way he kept his rising down!—"please may I see dear Pa—may I kiss Norah before I go?"

"You may, my child."

So, he takes Master Harry in his hand, and Boots leads the way with the candle, and they come to that other bedroom; where the elderly lady is seated by the bed, and poor little Norah lies fast asleep. Fast asleep. There, the father lifts the child up to the pillow, and he lays his little face down for an instant by the little warm face of poor unconscious little Mrs. Harry Walmers Junior, and gently draws it to him—a sight so touching to the chambermaid who are propping through the door, that one of them calls out "It's a-bame to part 'em." But this chambermaid was always, as Boots informs me, a soft-hearted one.—Not that there was any harm in that girl. Far from it.

Finally, Boots says, that 'all about it Mr. Walmers drove away in the chaise, having hold of Master Harry's hand. The elderly lady and Mrs. Harry Walmers Junior that was never to be, (she married a Captain, long afterwards, and died in India), went on next day. In conclusion, Boots puts it to me whether I hold with him in two opinions firstly, there are not many couples on their way to be married, who are half as innocent of guile as those two children; secondly, that it would be a jolly good thing for a great many couples on their way to be married, if they could only be stopped in time and brought back separately.

THE LANDLORD.

URIAH TATTENHALL is my elder brother by fifteen years. I am Saint Tattenhall.

My brother Uriah rang at his gate at his snug retreat of Brumpington Cottage, Peckham, near London, exactly at a quarter before six—his regular hour—when the omnibus from the city set him down at the end of the lane. It was December, but the weather was fine and frosty, and as it was within a few days of Christmas, his children—four in number—two boys, just come home from school, and every day—were all on the alert to receive him, with a world of schemes for the delectation of the coming holiday-time.

My brother Uriah was an especial family man. He made himself the companion and the playfellow of his children on all occasions that his devotion to the business in the city would admit of. His hearty, cheery voice was heard as he entered the hall, and while he was busy pulling off his over-coat, and hanging up his hat; "Well, my boys, well George, well Miss Lucy, there. What are you for to-day? How's your mamma? Ever since this morning? What a mamma! The kettle boiling, eh!" The running fire of hilarity that always animated him seemed to throw sunshine and a new life into the house, when he came in. The children this evening rushed out into the hall, and crowded round him with such a number of "I say, pas," and "Do you know, papa," and "Don't tell him now, Mary,—let him guess. Oh! you'll never guess pa!" that he could only hurry them all into the sitting-room before him like a little flock of sheep, saying, "Well, well, you rogues—well, well,—let us have some tea, and then all about it."

Poetry.

Men of England

CAMPBELL.

Men of England! who inherit
Rights that cost your sires their blood!
Men whose undegenerate spirit
Has been proved on land and flood,

By the foes ye've fought uncounted,
By the glorious deeds ye've done,
Trophies captured—branches mounted,
Navies conquered—kingdoms won!

Yet remember, England gathers
Hence but fruitless wreaths of fame,
If the virtues of your fathers
Glow not in your hearts the same.

What are monuments of bravery,
When no public virtues bloom?
What wreath of fame shades of slavery
Trophied temples, arch and tomb?

Pagan-te!—let the world revere us,
For our people's rights and laws,
And the breasts of civic heroes
Bared in Freedom's holy cause.

Yours are Hampden's, Russell's glory,
Sydney's matchless shade is yours,—
Martyrs in heroic story
Worth a thousand Agincourts!

We're the sons of sires that baffled
Crowned and mitred tyranny:
They defied the field and scaffold,
For their birthrights—so will we.

Miscellany.

RECENT ASTRONOMICAL FACTS.—Ten years ago there were supposed to be only four of the small planets between Mars and Jupiter, known as Asteroids. Now thirty three are known, viz:—Flora, Ceres, Vesta, Iris, Metis, Eunomia, Hebe, Pysche, Thesis, Melpomene, Massilia, Fortuna, Lutetia, Calliope, Thalia, Parthenope, Irene, Pgeria, Astræe, Juno, Ceres, Pallass, Themis, Phocea, Proserpine, Euterpe, Bellona, Amphitrite, Urania, Euphrosyne, Pomona, Polyhymnia, and Hygeia, and every little while they discover a new one.

It is now asserted that the rings of the planet Saturn, are made of steam, and take their shape and positions from the velocity with which they revolve. The main body of the planet itself is as light as cork.

Our summer is just a week longer than our winter. This un is 186½ days north of the equator, and nearly 179 south of it.

The visible eclips s of the year here, will be two partial ones of the Moon, and one of Jupiter. None of the Sun.

It may be comforting to some next summer to learn that the Sun will be a million and a half miles nearer to us on the 4th of July, than either in March or October.

There is wisdom in the following advice of the Rev'd Sydney Smith: "Never teach false morality. How exquisitely absurd to tell girls that Beauty is of no value—her whole prospects and happiness in life may often depend upon a new gown or becoming bonnet; and if she has a grain of common sense she will find this out. The greatest thing is to teach their just value; and that there must be something better under the bonnet than a pretty face for real happiness. But never sacrifice truth."

NEWSPAPERS.—There is no book so cheap as a newspaper, in no so interesting, because it consists of a variety, measured out in suitable proportions as to time and quality,—Being new every week or day, it invites to a habit of reading, and affords an easy and agreeable method of acquiring knowledge, so essential to the welfare of the individual and the community. It causes many an hour to pass away pleasantly and profitably, which would otherwise have been spent in idleness and mischief.

FRENCH LOVE OF SCANDAL.—A French provincial paper contains the following:—"A trial took place at our assizes. It promised rich food for scandal. All the ladies in town bedecked themselves in their smartest toilets, and crowded to the Court House. On seeing this the presiding judge rose and said, 'Persons have assembled as spectators are not aware of the nature of the cause. I therefore invite all decent women to withdraw.' A pause took place wit out a single female moving from her seat. Seeing this the president again rose and exclaimed, "Officers of the court, now that all the decent women are retired, turn out the remainder."

The Hamilton Spectator says that the body of a woman, with the arms and legs cut off, was found, on Saturday afternoon, in a well in the rear of Mr. Nelson Mills' new block of buildings, in the West end of that city. No trace could be obtained of either the legs or arms. The b dy, which had evidently been in the well for some time, was discovered by James Small, while in the act of cleaning the well. From the position in which the body was found, there can be no doubt of a brutal murder has been committed, and as a means of screening their guilt, the murderer or murderers resorted to the revolting expedient of throwing the body into the well.

Her Majesty has determined on the creation of an "Order of Valour, to be open to all ranks of the army or navy who shall have been distinguished for conspicuous personal courage. The decoration will consist of a plain metal cross, and the order, it is said, will consist of only one grade, and for this distinction, every individual, from the

...while older or able bodied seaman up to his Admiral or Commander in Chief, who shall have distinguished himself by a conspicuous act of personal valour before the enemy, will be eligible. In granting the order the particular reason for which it is awarded will be specified, and along with the decoration the recipient will be entitled to a small annual pension. The order is not intended as a reward for continuous good service, as that is already recognised in different ways. It will be confined to menbers of the naval and military force of her Majesty, and it probable that the first batch of mentions will comprise most of those who evinced conspicuous gallantry throughout the late operations in the East.

A new game has been tried by the rogues of Baltimore. Two well dressed females rush into a house, breathless with fright, pretending to be pursued by swells. After the first half recover under the kind attentions of the inmates, a loud rapping is heard at the hall door, and the strangers scream and rush up stairs; and while the folks below make investigations at the door, the frightened young ladies fill their capacious pockets with whatever valuable they find in their hasty flight through the chambers. When the row is over, and they are assured that they can safely come down, they depart with many apologies for the trouble they have given. When the folks go into their chambers, they begin to understand what it meant.

TELEGRAPH PROJECT.—The Piedmontese papers state, that it is the intention of the Mediterranean Telegraph Company, which is now making a cable between Sardinia and La Calle, on the coast of Africa, to continue its line to Melbourne, South Australia. After establishing branches from La Calle to Bugia, Algiers, and Oran, they will direct their main line through Tunis, Tripoli, Alexandria, Cairo, Suez, Jerusalem, Damascus, Bagdad, Bassora, Hyderabad, and Bombay.
At the latter city the line is to separate into two branches, one going northward to Agra (whence secondary branches will extend to Lahore, Peshawur, and be therefore at a short distance from Cabul and Cashmere, Benares, and Calcutta; and the other passing through Bengaloreand Madras, and likewise ending at Calcutta. From that capital the line is to follow the northern coast of the Gulf of Cangal and the peninsula of Malacca; then pass over to the Sound Island and the north of Australia, whence it will follow the eastern coast, touching the numerous colonies there, and ending at Port Adelaide. The whole distance is calculated at about 20,000 kilometres (12,- 500 miles).

A German correspondent of the Algemeine Zeitung, writing from New York on the 12th ult., describes very minutely the defenceless condition of the seaboard towns of the United States, holding it as his opinion that a few minutes fire would be sufficient to silence the batteries, and asserting that a thousand British regulars would be easily able to overcome several times their number of American troops, in which he is partly right. His idea is that Long Island could be taken with scarcely any difficulty whatever, and the British, by establishing their batteries on Brooklyn Heights, would hold the entire harbor of New York at their own disposal. By the same system of tactics the writer of the article thinks that it would be easy to obtain possession of Boston, then, entering the city from Roxbury. These two important cities and harbors once in the invaders' hands, would command half the United States with their fleets, and would be able to keep open their own communication with Europe, thus making the United States the only sufferer by the war.—
Colonist.

Our Common Law Procedure Act.

There is nothing better deserving of the attention of public men than the laws of the country in which they live. Law, like other human institutions, is necessarily imperfect. Every human code has its defects.—
Time and experience prove their existence and suggest the remedy. Still public men may legislate with all the wisdom of man, and yet fall short of the remedy necessary for the wants and requirements of their fellow men. Law, by reason of its universality, cannot be made a fitting rule for every future case that may arise. It is easy to lay down a general rule, but difficult to determine whether a given state of facts forms a case within its purview. The application of existing laws to future cases is the pro vince of the Judge. The conduct of those cases, in bringing them before the Judge, is the province of the lawyer. Any measure intended to lessen the labors both of the Judge and the Advocate is worthy of support. Any measure which will have the effect of making the practice of our Courts simple and intelligible, must be productive of good. Any measure which will cause the administration of justice to be certain and moderately cheap, will be a boon to the people. Such is the Common Law Proce-dured Bill, introduced by the Hon. Attorney-General Macdonald. In scope it is most comprehensive. In conception it is remarkably clear. In language it is most explicit. This praise we bestow upon it from honest conviction.

Radical changes in the laws of a country should be attempted with much care. It is said that bad law well defined, is better than good law not understood. Certainty is everything—Misera est servitus, ubi jus est vagum aut incertum. Before any bill, an act in process of time receives, if doubtful, a construction from the Courts. Decision upon decision serves to build up its true meaning. The meaning when understood becomes imbedded in the minds of the legal profession; clients are advised without hesitation, and proceedings are taken with a good prospect of success. Therefore many will look upon a bill, the tendency of which will be to sweep away old associations as an unwelcome intruder. Old law may be understood, but new law must be tried before it is understood.

A careful perusal of the bill now before parliament has satisfied us that great prudence has been exercised in the preparation of it. The chief portion of it has been copied from the two English common law procedure acts, 13 & 14 Vic., cap. 96, and 17 & 18 Vic., cap. 125. A few sections are original, because necessary for the circumstances of this Province. We think that these two English acts may be adopted by us without any misgivings. One has been in force for nearly four, and the other for two years. Time has established their utility and confirmed the opinions of those who wisely framed them. They are the productions of master minds. Let it be understood that they alter the process, practice and system of pleading in our Common Law Courts or superior to jurisdiction. There is no change in the law itself—but solely in the machinery by which it is dispensed.—
The old English practice from which our present practice has been taken, was felt to be prolix, embarrassing and unnecessarily expensive, in some cases antamount to a denial of justice. On 12th May, 1846, the Queen issued a commission, appointing certain persons "to enquire and ascertain whether any and what alterations and amendments can be made for the better administration of justice in the process, practice and system of pleading in the Superior Courts of Common Law at Westminster, and other matters relating to the said Courts." The commissioners appointed were Sir John Jervis, the Attorney General, since raised to a seat in the Common Pleas; Samuel Martin, Esq., Queen's Counsel, since raised to be one of the Exchequer, and three practising lawyers of eminent standing, one of whom Mr. Willes; has also been lately honored by a seat on the Bench. Sir A. E. Cockburn was afterwards added to the commission.
These illustrious men, the greatest lawyers of their day, made their first report on 30th June 1851. Their report was based upon the evidence of other lawyers equally celebrated, such as the Hon. Thomas Denman, the Hon. Claud Wilde. and others. The Commissioners, after a very elaborate examination of the then extensive changes, the Imperial Statutes upon which Attorney General MacDonald's bill is based, were favored noon the recommendation of that Commission. The changes have been found to work admirably, and are, by this time, widely appreciated. It is therefore plain that the Government has not acted rashly in bringing forward a Canadian Common Law Procedure Bill. Space will not permit, else we might here review some of its most prominent features. We may mention, however, that should it pass, as is generally hoped, Special Pleading will be numbered among "things that were past." Facilities will afforded for abitrations and other friendly settlements between parties. Writs of Mandamus will be issued to parties at Common Law in cases where they are now driven into Chancery. The technalities of action will be abolished. Ejectment will be placed on the intelligent and satisfactory footing. Forms of pleading will be given short, sweet, and neat. There are other features, the consideration of which we must reserve till some future day. Upon the whole, we can safely say that this Act will be a great boon to the legal practitioner, and a library to the law student.—
As a measure which will lessen the costs of a suit, no doubt it will prove acceptable to the public. The judges are understood to be favorably disposed towards it, and have, we believe, been consulted with reference to its provisions.— Colonist.

PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION, FOR 1856.

The Local committee for the Provincial show, to take place in Kingston in the Autumn of 1856, having been nominated by the Board of Agriculture, met on Thursday last, entering the city from Roxbury. These two important cities and harbors once in the invaders' hands, would command half the United States with their fleets, and would be able to keep open their own communication with Europe, thus making the United States the only sufferer by the war.—
Colonist.

The Local committee for the Provincial show, to take place in Kingston in the Autumn of 1856, having been nominated by the Board of Agriculture, met on Thursday last, entering the city from Roxbury. These two important cities and harbors once in the invaders' hands, would command half the United States with their fleets, and would be able to keep open their own communication with Europe, thus making the United States the only sufferer by the war.—
Colonist.

Wm. Ferguson, Esq. President Frontenac
Agricultural Society.
A. Cambell, Esq. President Lennox Agricultural Society.
Samuel Clark, Esq. President Addington
Agricultural Society.
Judge Mackenzie,
Sheriff Corbett,
James O'Reilly, Esq.,
M. W Strane, Esq.,
P. J. Litchfield, M. D.
Col. A. Cameron,
Andrew Dickson, Esq.
F. J. Baker, M. D.
J. Flanagan, Esq.,
Thos. Briggs, Esq.

Wm. Ferguson, Esq., President Frontenac Agricultural Society, was called to the chair, and Thos. Briggs, Esq., appointed Treasurer for the exhibition, and J. P. Litchfield, M. D. and Allan Geddes, Esq. Secretaries.

The Chairman read a communication from Col. Marks, stating that the Board of Agriculture at Toronto, highly approved of the proposition of putting up permanent buildings of iron and glass, for the purpose of the Exhibition, and would vote funds in aid of the object if appropriate plans were adopted by the committee, and if the inhabitants of the locality to be benefited by the Exhibition, or certain sections, were willing to come forward and assist in raising the required amount. Resolutions were passed instructing the Secretaries to request the Hon. Attorney General Member for the city to use his influence to obtain from the Crown a lease of land for the use of the Exhibition, and for the erection of permanent buildings, and also to obtain from the Builders estimates, plans and specifications for suitable structures.

Our City needs a Public Garden, and this seems the proper moment to secure it, if those who are especially to be benefited by it, exhibit the liberality and public spirit which may be anticipated from them.—
Whig.

Legislative Assembly.

TORONTO, TUESDAY, MARCH 18,

In the House on Thursday,

Mr. DRUMMOND moved to rescind the motion of the House on Monday night, ordering certain members of the Government to present an address to his Excellency, asking for a copy of the charge delivered by Judge Duval on the Corrigan murder trial.
In making the motion he referred to English precedents, and showed that in the House of Commons Sir Robert Peel had recommended in a certain case a course similar to that which he proposed. If the vote had been of such a character as to show that the Government had lost the confidence of the House it would have been their duty to make way for others.—
They had been asked to perform what they considered an unconstitutional act, and as they dared not do that, that they had come down to ascertain whether or not they still possessed the confidence of Parliament
He did not deny that the object of Mr.
Cameron's motion might be laudable. A serious outrage had been perpetrated, and the Government were prepared to accept the fullest investigation into their conduct.
But the investigation proposed began at the wrong end. Instead of being directed against the Bench, the Administration were asked to do what was equivalent to making Mr. Justice Duval to account. The enquiry was calculated to prejudge the judge's position if he was innocent. And if he was guilty the mode proposed of bringing him to trial was unconstitutional.

Mr. CAMERON entered at length into personal explanations, and called God to witness that he had neither in the House nor out of the House caballed against the Ministry. Had the Ministry given the same ex planations on Monday evening which the Attorney General had given to night, he would not have pressed his motion. But now that the motion was passed he was not prepared to withdraw it. He reproduced the arguments which he had formerly adduced to prove that there were English precedents for the course he pursued, and argued that the independence of the Bench was not so likely to be endangered by popular influence as by improper ministerial interference
The duty devolved upon the Government in the introduction of a responsible system of Gove ument. He declared his intention to adhere to his motion.

Mr. RANKIN declared himself an independent member, and discarded precedents.
He deprecated the lawyers, and informed the House that he was a farmer, a man of un-tutored mind—who voted according to his own sincere convictions. He deprecated expressing non confidence in the Ministry —fearful the result of a general election in view of the imminence of a war with the United States, and concluded by declaring his intention to re-affirm the vote he had given on Monday night in favor of the motion for the Address.

Mr. LORANGER supported the motion to rescind the vote of Monday, and declared his opinion to be that the only way of call ing the judge to account for his conduct was by impeachment. The motion advanced by opposition speakers that the power of the people was omnipotent, might be very true, but in a free country the people were not above the law; and he maintained that the motion of Monday night was opposed to the law, and at variance with the provisions of the constitution. He supposed the case of a similar motion being made affecting the Upper Canada judiciary, and asking if members in this section of the Province would have given a similar vote. He justified the ministerial proceeding, and declared his intention to vote for rescinding the motion.

Mr. WILSON agreed with the position assumed by Mr. Cameron, and proceeded to reason at length on the constitutional issue —contending that the course pursued by the Government was at variance with the principles of the Constitution. He declared that he had no confidence in the Ministry.

Mr. SANDFIELD MACDONALD pointed out the ministerial weakness; and asked the House to consider fairly on the question the House—viz: the question whether an enquiry should be made into the conduct of Judge Duval.

He concluded by moving the previous question.

A discussion then arose as to the effect of this motion.

The SPEAKER decided that the effect of moving the previous question was to prevent an amendment being put to the original motion, but that it did not prevent debate.

Mr. BROWN in justifying the motion of the previous question, said it was evident the Ministry desired to shirk the vote on their own motion and get a vote of confidence in amendment from their followers.

Mr. GAMBLE said he was not astonished at the course of the members of the Opposition. His intention, however, in given his vote in favor of the Address for the Duval Judge Duval's charge, was not to declare that he had no confidence in the Ministry.
He should, therefore, vote against the previous question.

Mr. DORION (Montreal) censured the Ad ministration for supporting their own motion by the previous question, and for opposing the previous question. He justified his vote against the address on Monday evening by expressing his opinion that the proper course to pursue was to move for a Committee of enquiry into the manner in which the Corrigan trial had been conducted. The question now, under consideration was whether an order of this House should be disobeyed, and whether the Government possessed the confidence of the country. The practice of rescinding a vote of the House he seriously disapproved—especially in a case where it was deliberately recorded—as in this instance it was.

Mr. J. A. MACDONALD pointed out the inconsistency of Mr. Dorion in voting with the Government in defence of the independence of the Bench on Monday, while for mere party purposes, he now expressed his intention to change that vote. He moved, by a reference to Mr. Drummond's speech that the Government had before expressed their readiness to vote for an enquiry into the circumstances of the Corrigan trial. The member for Niagara had told him the (Attorney General) West) that he was to make a motion for a Committee. The member for Brockville had given him a similar notice, and he assured the House there was no desire on the part of the Government to resist enquiry. Referring to the motion of the previous question, he pointed out that the Opposition were afraid that it would lead to the country notwithstanding the vote of Monday evening, the Government still retained the confidence of Parliament. It was evident from the remarks of Mr. Cameron,
Mr. Rankin, Mr. Gamble and others, that the Administration still possess the confidence of their friends, and the vote which would be given on the amendment of the member for Glengarry, would be taken as an expression of the extent to which this confidence was accorded.

Mr. PAPIN spoke at length in French, justifying his purpose of changing the vote which he had given on Monday evening in favor of the government.

Mr. MACKENZIE doubted the sincerity of the assurance given by the Government of their desire for enquiry. He pointed to the fact of petitions for an examination of the circumstances attending the Corrigan trial having laid before the House, and justified his voting for Mr. Cameron's motion, although he agreed with Mr. Dorion that it was not the most effective way of securing the ends of justice. He thought a thorough investigation should have been ordered by the House into the whole conduct of the trial. He admitted that the judge was not bound to give any evidence which would convict himself, and he cited the case of Chief Justice Holt in England, and Judge Hagerman in this country both of whom had been charged with mal-administration of their duties refused to answer questions affecting their own conduct. He deprecated being supposed to be actuated by religious prejudices in voting as he did, and assured the House that he would have voted as he had done, if the murdered man had been a man Catholic in place of a Protestant.

Mr. CAMPBELL explained that although he and his friends would not rescind their votes, they would not vote for the motion of the previous question.

The House then divided on Mr. J. S.
Macdonald's motion that the previous question be now put:

YEAS,	42.
NAYS,	75.

Mr. J. C. MORRISON then rose and asked leave to introduce a motion for the appointment of a committee of the House to examine into the circumstances of the Corrigan trial.

Mr. MACKENZIE and other members expressed their readiness to vote for the motion; but it was withdrawn on account of being made out of order.

Mr. CRAWFORD brought forward a motion expressing confidence in the Government, which was also withdrawn on a point of formality—to be renewed on Monday.

Mr. DRUMMOND then rose and stated that as the vote which had just been taken assured the Ministry that they still possessed the confidence of the House, they were prepared to present the address, voted on Monday night, to His Excellency, and to tender him such advice as their consciences dictated. He stated also that he had that day received a telegraphic despatch from Judge Duval informing him of the incorrectness of the statements attributed to him in delivering his charge to the jury.

The statement was received in the House with immense cheering.

The House then adjourned at a quarter past 11 P. M.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

SANDWICH, MARCH 21, 1856.

COUNTY GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

THE Grammar School of this County has had the benefit of being noticed by a number of the journals published through the country, and a pretty figure it has cut indeed. A school attended by one boy, and the Teacher obliged to attend without fee-wood; and the solitary pupil allowed to shiver with cold over his Latin Grammar in the miserably delapidated place called the "Grammar School of Essex." Proud, indeed, should the Trustees, and in fact, the whole County, feel, of possessing so useful an institution of which so much has been said of late, and where the youth of Essex are to be trained in subjects which are not taught in the Common Schools, and the only place in the County where parents can hope to have their children taught a classical education. We are heartily ashamed to expose the County in its non-progressiveness; but it is our duty, and that we are determined to fulfil. Is this noble county to have its youth trained up in ignorance, and the people to sit down quietly and allow this state of things to continue? The Grammar School belongs to the public, and the public should see that it be not permitted through neglect to become perfectly useless, as this one has become. Any person looking upon the building which is used for this purpose, and not knowing what it was used for, would never dream for an instant that it was a County Grammar School—a more delapidated looking place could hardly be imagined, with ruin and decay everywhere showing itself.

There is a cause for the existence of this state of things, and we will endeavor to trace the cause to its proper source, and to point out where the remedy should be sought

The Trustees are the guardians of this School, and have for the last few years employed themselves by endeavoring to remove the school from where it is, and to place their ends have allowed the building to go to ruin in the hope, no doubt, that when it become quite useless it would be closed, and thus they might with some degree of propriety ask for its removal; but having failed in their attempt to remove it, have entailed upon the County the disgrace of being entirely without a suitable Grammar School; and all this was done to gratify certain private interests. It may be said by parties who are not acquainted with these facts, as they are, that it would be useless to know in repair a school where the attendance is so small; but the reason of this small attendance is that no exertions have been made to procure the attendance of children. And we would ask what parent would send a boy to a school which has every appearance of being deserted, and where the Trustees have shown such a disposition to neglect it, and where no pains were taken to make it efficient. We have only to look back for eight or ten years, when there was an attendance of over sixty scholars in this very same school; and how could this falling off take place unless there was great fault in its management? The class of boys that can only be admitted to the Grammar School must naturally be limited, and there should have been steps taken to provide a boarding house attached to the school, where boys from other parts of the county might have lodged. But no; this would not answer the views of some of the Trustees, who were afraid that their private interests would thereby be blasted.

Now, had the Trustees gone to the County Council, and applied to them for a sufficient sum for making the school what it ought to be, the Council would have granted the amount; for we are firmly impressed with the belief that any sum in reason would have been granted without any hesitation, had they been appealed to for aid. We are certain that the Council would not stultify themselves by refusing aid to keep up an establishment which might confer incalculable benefit upon the County if conducted in a proper manner. All that is required is a strong representation to be made to the Council at its next session in July, by the Trustees, making the certain that the now progressive spirit will prevail among them that did when large sums were granted for other public improvements by them; and it is not reasonable to suppose that they would refuse to grant five or six thousand pounds when £50,000 have been voted for a railway.

The public look to the present board of Trustees to take such steps as will ensure the establishment of a school that will be creditable to the County, and that will show that the County of Essex is not behind her neighbors in improvements. The present board will not surely allow the County to remain longer under disgrace, but will act like men having an interest in the achievement of their duties.

It is always with pleasure that we notice signs of improvement in the County, and no subject deserves more consideration than our roads. That they are in a somewhat backward state must be admitted, but we are happy to say, that there appears to be an inclination throughout the County to improve them. Companies are being formed to plank and otherwise improve them. This shows a healthy improvement in the right direction.
Among the number is a company formed for the purpose of planking and gravelling the road known as the Richmond Line, in the Township of Rochester, from the Lake shore to the Gosfield Town Line, and that the Township Council have taken steps to forward the enterprise is also a mark of no small encouragement. A large portion of the stock has already been taken up, and we may expect a speedy completion of this certainly useful enterprise, and with the originators and stockholders every success and a large return for the capital invested.

TURKEY.

European diplomatists at the present moment are engaged discussing the probable appearance Turkey may make at the Paris Conference. The extraordinary manifestations of vitality given by the great Eastern power have astonished most of the diplomatic fraternity; the prompt manner in which Menschikoff was marched out of the capital, when he presented his insolent message from the Russian autocrat, first gave Europe some inkling of the spirit of the modern Moslem, but it was only when the famous declaration of war appeared that the consummate ability of Turkish statesmen was fully manifested. That document was characterized by the Times as the ablest state paper which had made its appearance during the present century. That paper alone, with the penetration manifested in the prompt rejection of the Firman note was sufficient to justify Britain, as the friend of progress, (putting all other considerations aside) in forming and maintaining by force of arms, a close alliance with the Turkish empire. One of the reasons given by the pro-Russian press in the United States, for its devotion to the northern despotism was, that they preferred a "living lion to a dead jackass." Up to the present time, however, it would appear that the alleged dead animal has been more than a match in diplomacy and war for the so called Lion. Lord Palmerston asserted that no other nation in Europe has progressed more rapidly than the despised Mohammedan power. The issue of the present conflict has proved the correctness of his lordship's opinion; but there is another better authority than even the veteran diplomatist, to testify to the character of the Turkish people, one who was celebrated as the best friend of Greece, when that miserable country was a Turkish province, and for the same reason celebrated as the enemy of Turkey—Lord Byron. And no one acquainted with Byron's history will suspect him of partiality to the Turkish people; yet he speaks as follows:—

"In all money transactions with the Moslems, I ever found the strictest honor, the highest disinterestedness. In transacting business with them, there are none of those dirty peculations, under the name of interest, difference of exchange, commission, &c.,
&c., uniformly found in applying to a Greek Consul to cash bills, even on the first houses in Pera. * * There does not exist a more honorable, friendly, and high spirited character than the true provincial Aga, or Moslem country gentleman. * * The lower orders are in as tolerable discipline as the rabble in countries with greater pretensions to civilization. A Moslem walking our streets would be less incommoded than an Englishman in Turkey.

"The Ottomans, with all their defects, are not a people to be despised. Equal, at least, to the Spaniards; they are superior to the Portuguese. If it be difficult to pronounce what they are, we can at least say what they are not. They are not treacherous, they are not cowardly, they do not burn heretics, they are not assassins, nor has an enemy advanced to their capital. They are faithful to their Sultan till he becomes unfit to govern, and devout to their God without an Inquisition. Were they driven from St. Sophia to-morrow, and the Russians or French enthroned in their stead, it would become a question whether Europe would gain by the exchange. England would certainly be the loser.

"With regard to that ignorance, of which they are so generally, and sometimes justly accused, it may be doubted, always excepting England and France, in what useful points of knowledge they are excelled by other nations. Is it in the common acts of life? In their manufactures? Is an Turkish sabre inferior to a Toledo? Or is a Turk more clothed or lodged, or fed or taught than a Spaniard? Are their Pachas worse educated than a Grandee? or an Effendi than a king of St. Jago? I think not. * *

"In all the mosques there are schools established, which are very regularly attended, and the poor are taught without the march of Turkey being put into practice.
* * Who shall then affirm that the Turks are ignorant bigots, when they thus evince
the exact proportion of Christian charity which is tolerated in the most prosperous
and orthodox of all possible kingdoms?"

Such is the opinion of a man, given thirty years ago, whose enmity to Moslem government in Greece, led him to assume the command of Turkey being put into practice.
* * Who shall then affirm that the Turks
are ignorant bigots, when they thus evince
the exact proportion of Christian charity which is tolerated in the most prosperous
and orthodox of all possible kingdoms?"

Such is the opinion of a man, given thirty years ago, whose enmity to Moslem government in Greece, led him to assume the command of Turkey being put into practice, when there is already more toleration for Christians than there is for other sects in France which do not belong to the religion of the State? We may expect to see in this conference further proofs of the ability and far-seeing policy of the Turkish statesmen, who have already outwitted Russia and surprised Europe.

From a late number of the London Observer, we find that a scientific discovery has been made by a Mr. Hands, of Duke Street, Grosvenor Place, by which means animal food—butcher's meat, fowls, &c., for instance —can be preserved for any length of time without sugar or salt, or exclusion from air, or in short any of the other modes of preservation. Unlike all potted or hermetically sealed provisions, meats preserved by this patent are entirely free from any process of manipulation that can alter or disturb the natural animal acids and salts. Further, the appearance, taste, nutritive properties, and principles remain unchanged and free from deterioration. All remain essentially intact, and no difference in the use of meats put up under this patent can be detected from the same meats fresh killed.

The principles of preservation in Mr.
Hand's process is the application of certain atmospheric conditions. The substance to be preserved undergoes no manipulation whatever, but is merely placed in an atmosphere which deprives it of its decomposing properties. When taken from the vessel in which it was placed, it is precisely the same as when put in. And when a number of gentleman connected with the shipping and other interests, met together, at the wharf of the agents, Messrs. Clark and Murch, 244 High Street, Wapping (London), on which occasion there was presented to them indiscriminately for comparison some of the meat which had been kept under Mr.
Hand's patent for nearly three months, exposed to a high temperature, and some meat fresh killed. The result of the comparison was a distinct admission on the part of every gentleman present that there could be discovered between the two kinds. It needs no argument therefore to conclude that practically and economically considered, this discovery is of the greatest social importance, and that as a means of adding to the stock of human food, and as entirely obviating the necessity of carrying live stock to sea, it is deserving of the utmost consideration.

A man, by the name of Kennedy, was killed last week, by the falling of a tree, in the Township of Mersea.

The "Daily Evening News" is the title of a new paper just started in Detroit, and published by an association of practical printers. The News is well got up, and edited with much spirit, and sold at the very low price of one cent a number, or three dollars and twenty-five cents a year, being the cheapest paper published in the city.

BOOK NOTICES.

THE BINGHAM PLOUGH.—We have received a pamphlet entitled, "A Practical Essay on the Plough," by Jacob Bingham, the patentee of one of the best ploughs in use, it we can depend upon all that has been said in its favor. If we are not mistaken, one of these ploughs was chosen for exhibition at Paris, and was there ranked among the very best that were on exhibition. Mr.
Bingham of Norwich, in the County of Oxford, C.W., is a Canadian, and as an inventor and mechanic has contributed no slight benefit to the agricultural interests of the Province, in producing a plough having the many good qualities which his appears to have, and we would recommend it to the favorable consideration of farmers. The pamphlet contains drawings and full descriptions of this plough, which may been seen at this office; and farmers would do well by exam-ing them.

"WOLFSDEN" is the title of a book just issued from the press of Philips, Sampson and Co., Boston. The story is a representation of rural life in the State of Maine, among some of the first farmers of the State.
The style of the work is somewhat new, and is superior to most of the books of a like nature; the author appears to have studied nature thoroughly, and has combined truthfulness with a pleasing and happy conception of character. The work is handsome bound, and should be upon the table of every drawing room.

For sale by Elwood & Co., Detroit.

No arrival of a steamer from the old Country up to the time of going to press.

To the Editor of the "Maple Leaf."

Dear Sir,—A letter appears in the Amherstburg Telegraph (referring to my letter to you of the 1st inst.) above the signature of "Maldenite," I would inform that individual, that although not a constant reader of that valuable and useful paper, I did see the advertisment offering for sale the renowned Amherstburg Fire Engine, No. 1, upon easy terms. If the Engine has controlled the flames, stayed the progress of fire, and performed the mighty deeds represented by "Maldenite" who assures us that it has,
I cannot see for what reason the people of Amherstburg wish to dispose of it, which has been of such valuable service. But, if it is the same No. 1 Fire Engine, that I know, and I have no doubt but that it is,
I do not wonder that it is advertised for sale being in a state rendering it perfectly useless; and when dragged out from its place of abode, cannot be moved onward, because it almost buries itself in the mud of that flourishing, thriving, and clean village, Amherstburg. "Maldenite" says, It is a surplus Engine, which the Municipality of Amherstburg are not in want of, and the terms are easy. No doubt the terms are easy, very easy, we are not in want of it either, and would not wish it in any opinion. We would not disgrace our Town by its ap pearance in it. I would advise "Maldenite" to take his Engine to Zone's Foundry; and there receive the trifling amount it is worth.

Yours respectfully
SANDWICHITE.

March 18th 1856.

The Paris Conferences.

From the European Times.

The most extraordinary pains have been taken to prevent the proceedings of the Conferences from transpiring. All the representatives of the several powers are said to have bound themselves to secrecy, as also the two secretaries who are in attendance.—
At the first meeting on Monday, when the Congress assembled at the house of the French minister for foreign affairs, the sitting, as we learn from the "Moniteur," lasted from one o'clock until half-past four, and at their first interview an armistice was agreed upon, which will terminate on the last day of March, unless it be renewed by the belligerent armies, according to some versions, was agreed upon readily, according to others, after considerable controversy; but the fact that it was resolved on the very first time the plenipotentiaries met, points to a pacific solution of the questions at issue.—
But the truce which is to last to the end of the month is to be confined to the land forces.—
The blockade is to be continued as usual, and the British fleet will shortly return to the Baltic, accompanied by gun and mortar boats sufficient, if well handled, to make the Czar tremble for the safety of his capital.
The Conferences, it appears, are to be held three days a week,—on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, and so little do the Parisian quidnuncs know of what has transpired or is occurring, that because the plenipotentiaries did not assemble on Tuesday, according to expectation, it was immediately conjectured that Count Orloff had found his instructions deficient, and had to telegraph to St Petersburg for more definitive orders.
There can be very little doubt that every imaginable phase of the questions which will be raised at this meeting has been looked at and decided upon before the Russian envoy left St. Petersburg.

For those who take no interest in diplomatic etiquette, it may be as well to state ambassadors of the several powers take their places at the Congress table in the alphabetical order of the countries which they represent, Count Warwick, the French Foreign Minister, acting as the President—but Count Orloff, a fine, stately-looking man, above seventy, appears fifteen years younger —that the curtains and furniture of the room where the ambassadors meet are of crimson satin, with an Aubusson carpet on the floor, and that the walls contain busts of the French Emperor and Empress,—that the table at which they sit is round and covered with green cloth,—that the tables of the two secretaries can be moved, when necessary, to the round table,—that a table is placed near the window for such of the plenipotentiaries as wish to write in private; and finally, that the labours of these great Ministers, met to settle the fate of empires and the destiny of millions of human beings, are interspersed with eating and drinking, music, and the other essentials and refinements of life. These miserable details are all that can be wrested together by the representatives of the press French and English, in Paris; and the ponderous pomposity with which, in the absence of all real news, every trifle is related, is very amusing. But when facts are rare, fiction abounds; add some of the most intensely stupid rumours have been put forth respecting squabbles between the British Ministers in Paris, Lord Clarendon and Cowley, respecting prece-dency,—that the last-named nobleman claimed priority of presentation which was denied by the other,—that the dispute was referred to London, when Lord Cowley was told that Lord Clarendon was his superior, —that upon this the old gentleman became sulky, and refused to attend the French Foreign Minister's dinner, and that, not to make the absence of the English Minister remarkable, the Turkish Envoy was advised to stay away. If the representatives of the British nation are capable of acting in this puient manner, all we can say is, that Russian prospects are brightening, and that the "old comedy gentleman" in Downing Street is in his dotage.

In truth, nothing is known beyond the attention to eating and drinking, and the music, of what takes place at the Conference.
Perhaps this is well. We must wait with patience, and the interests of all parties counsels an early decision. The presentation of Lord Clarendon to the Emperor before Baron Brunnow was received was done ad-visedly, to mark the perfect identity of feeling between the two great nations. In this identity the hope of peace is centered.—
Whatever these Powers demand Russia must concede, and has made up her mind to concede, or this Conference would not have assembled during the present year of grace.—
We have faith in Louis Napoleon's singleness of purpose. He has stood by us throughout, although for some time we had some misgivings as to his sincerity. It is said that in a recent interview with his cousin, Prince Napoleon, the Emperor dwelt upon the necessity of of preserving the English alliance, and added that it was French hatred of England which destroyed Napoleon the First. There may be a little truth in this statement as in the other gossip which floats at present in French society; but whether correct or otherwise, no doubt can exist that Louis Napoleon has acted upon it since the first moment he ascended the throne, and the occasions have been tempting from that time to the present to become weary of the alliance if it had not been considerately and conscientiously entered into.

The Pacific.

The Agent of the Collins' Line, in New York, states that the ornamental doors, &c., seen on the ice by the steamer Edinburgh on the 14th ultimo, correspond with those in use in the dock cabins of the Pacific, but as they are also common to most of the trans-Atlantic packet ships, it is quite possible that they may have belonged to some sailing vessel.

The following are the latest speculations on the fate of the missing steamer from the N. Y. Herald of Wednesday:—

"The Pacific has now been out exactly fifty days, and still there are no tidings of her. By many it was expected that something would have been heard of her by the Arabia, but that anticipation has been disappointed. A little reflection would have shown that there was but slight probability of the latter vessel either failing in with or bringing any intelligence of her. If, as we believe, she is locked up in the ice as far north as between latitude 45 and 47, it was not likely that the Arabia, running five or seven degrees to the south of her usual course, as she was compelled to do, could have approached within several hundred miles of her track. In the case of this arrival, we have spoken that the saying that no news is good news is somewhat applicable. Had any other disaster befallen the Pacific than that which is generally apprehended, some indications of it would in all probability have been fallen in with by this time. The long interval that has elapsed since she has been heard of, is by no means incompatible with the safety of the vessel—although of course, that of her passengers will, under such circumstances, still depend on the ample provisioning of the ship and the length of time that she may continue to be locked up in the ice. Before we before any certain calculation can be formed as to her fate, for as long as the extensive fields of ice tracked by the steamers Arago, Atlantic and Baltic hold together, so long there will be a chance of her safety.

"The fact of nothing having been heard of the movements of the Arctic since she left, confirms, we think, this view of the case. This vessel, it will be recollected, was specially constructed for the navigation of ice, is capable of resisting almost any amount of pressure, and has therefore been able to penetrate pretty far north. Had he met with any one an indications of the loss of the Pacific, Lieutenant Hartstein would have immediately returned to the nearest port. It may be that he has discovered her whereabouts but has been unable to approach her. It may be that he is himself embargoed and cannot move. In any case we look upon the non-return of Lieutenant Hartstein as confirming the hopes that we will continue to entertain of the safety of the Pacific. With the transference to our latitude of an arctic climate, it is to be expected that we should make acquaintance with some of the phenomenal incidents of arctic adventure."

The Seat of Government.

The House was engaged all Monday evening, discussing the Seat of Government question brought up by Mr. John Sandfield Macdonald's resolution, affirming the propriety of choosing a permanent place. The debate was warm and protracted. This motion, if it had been carried, would have inevitably taken the Government to Montreal, and all opposing interests were enlisted against it. Mr. Gamble moved that the consideration of the whole subject be postponed, which was, however, negatived 62 to 58. A resolution was then proposed by Mr. Cameron, to postpone the question till information could be obtained as to the cost of rem val, was more fortunate, being carried 66 to 58. The house then adjourned, after arranging that to-day they will adjourn until Wednesday, the 26th instant.

Mr. Greeley telegraphs to the Tribune that the Government has received fresh affidavits, which it is believed will establish the complicity of Mr. Stanley, of the British Consulate in New York, in the recruiting business.

Mr. Barclay's participation and oversight is no less real, but hardly so tangible. It is probable that those depositions will be laid before Congress by the President.

The Courier & Enquirer of this A. M. says:—"We learn by perfectly trustworthy private intelligence, received through a mercantile house in this city, that a combined movement is about to be made by the governments of Guatemala, San Salvador and Costa Rica, for the purpose of expelling Walker and his American followers by force from Nicaragua. Guatemala has already raised 3,000 men for that purpose, and they are now in marching order. San Salvador has engaged to raise two thousand, and Costa Rica one thousand five hundred.

"It is also stated by the same authority, that great hostility exists among the native population of Nicaragua towards Walker, and that a general popular rising against him is inevitable, as soon as active support is rendered by the neighboring States.

The Paris Conference.

Aalia Pash the Turkish Envoy, reached Marseilles on the 19th, en route for Paris, and we may now calculate there will be no hindrance to the commencement of the Conference on Monday next, the 23th of February.

The Paris Constitutional, in an article headed "The Holly Alliance," indicates that the Congress will not occupy itself exclusively with the subjects arising out of the war, and says: "It is not impossible that certain important events which, since 1830, have modified the state of Europe—as it was defined by the Congress of Vienna—will engage the attention of the Conference of Paris." The article goes on to intimate that the treaties of 1815 will be somewhat modelled. The Paris Patrie takes the same strain and quotes also an article to the same effect from the Journal of Frankfort, endeavouring to prove that the present Conference will obliterate all vestiges of the once famous alliance against France. "Revolutionary propagandism," says the Patrie, "has long made an instrument of the revision of treaties of 1815, as in many other instances, a patriotic and national idea, to turn it into an element of disorder.—But now, thanks to the Imperial policy, thanks to the success of our arms, thanks to the confidence that France inspires throughout the Continent, from the wisdom as well as strength of its Government, it is now in the name of Conservative ideas that people in Germany are asking for a revision of the treaties of 1815."

The Seat of Government.—We learn from Toronto, on reliable authority, that a great deal of intriguing is going on in connection with the future location of the seat of Government, and that the Lower Canadians are exerting themselves most strenuously in behalf of Montreal or Quebec,—Monday next is the day fixed upon for the discussion of Mr. Macdonald's motion upon the subject, and we have no doubt there will be considerable manœuvring before then. We hope the Upper Canadian members are on the alert. They must not permit a permanent seat of government to be located in either Montreal or Quebec, notwithstanding a permanent fixture must this time be decided on. Upper Canada, we think, bids fair to retain it. We shall probably soon see.

—Spectator."

Arrival of the Hermann from Southampton.—The U. S. mail steamship Hermann, Edward Higgins commander, has arrived, with 90 passengers, and a full and valuable cargo of German, French, and British merchandise, (572 tons.) Dates, Bremen Feb. 23, Southampton 27th. Her advices are not so late by three days as those brought by the Arabia.

Six first class screw steamships and others are being fitted up for colonial service. It is rumored in Southampton that these ships are being prepared for the embarkation and immediate transportation of a large number of troops and 6,000 horses to the Canadas.

Horses at the Provincial Fair of Canada.—A remarkably fine display of draught horses was made. The animal which took the first premium was a four year old, and his weight was represented as about 1700 lbs; the second best horse exceed this about one hundred weight; the third best was a cross of the blood of the two former, which was "the Clyde" upon a Morgan mare. He had the eye, ear, head, action and fire of the Morgan, with the giant frame of the Clyde. He was a splendid animal, but was not a pure blood, and so stood No. 3. All the draught horses of any note were of this blood. We noticed two half-bloods, two years old, each judged to exceed 1200lbs. These were termed "heavy draught" horses, while the stallion that took the first prize for "light draught" horses, was estimated at 1600lbs. This was a noble specimen, and the Governor-General of Canada, Sir Edmund Head, who was present, honored him by calling him from the ring, and by special notice. In looking at these horses, I could but contrast them with the heavy-limbed, thick-skinned, small and fretful animals under which our farmers bob and jump, by convulsions, when fastened to a heavy breaking up plough. The Scotch farmers, who mostly had those animals in charge, assured me that a span would draw a plough ten inches deep in breaking, with his destiny and steadiness of oxen; and that they would turn their two acres per day of such ploughing, and show no exhaustion.—Report of H. C. Foote to the N. Y. Ag. Society.

STEAMBOAT ACCIDENT,

New York, March 17.

About 8½ o'clock Saturday night the ferry boat, New Jersey, while crossing the Delaware River, from Philadelphia to Camden, took fire in the middle of the stream. There being a great deal of floating ice in the river, much difficulty was experienced managing the vessel, and she was finally run upon the bar opposite Arch street. It is impossible to give a list of the killed and missing, but the following is compiled from accounts that have reached us.

It accounts for 57 passenger; 33 escaped; 4 dead and missing; supposing to be lost 23.

The Capt. of the boat and two mates say there were from 72 to 100 on board. One passenger says about 60: another 100 to 125.

The Captain's statement is probably the most correct, and will make the list of the dead a fearful one indeed.

Very many no doubt were killed by the paddle-wheels, having jumped or been crowded into the water forward of the wheels while the boat was in motion.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

{ Audit Office, Hamilton, March 15th 1856.

Comparative Statement of Traffic Reciepts for the week ending 14th March, 1856 & 5. 1856. No. of miles open 283.

Local Passengers	$11,531 43½
Foreign Passengers	$ 8,576 75
Emigrants	$ 293 50
Mails and Sundries	$ 1,341 45
Local Frei't & Live St'k	9,589 79
For'n Frei't & Live St'k	9,097 70
	$40,430 62½

No. of Passengers 10,815

1855. No. of miles open 241.

Local Passengers	$ 7,213 65½
Foreign Passengers	10,712 35
Emigrants	1,145 50
Mails and Sundries	1,344 09½
Local Frei't & Live St'k	5,387 35
For'n Frei't & Live St,k	10,126 39
	$36,159 34½

No. of Passengers 8,307

Total Receipts from 1st Feb., 1856 $262,149 74½

" " 1st Feb., 1855 $176,289 88½

GEORGE DARTNELL.

DETROIT MARKET.

Flour,	$5 25.
Wheat,	1 12.
Corn,	0 50.
Oats,	0 36.
Pork	6 50.

Detroit, 20th March 1856.

SANDWICH MARKET.

"Maple Leaf" Office, 20th March, 1856
Flour Best wasranted,	$ 8 00. $ 8 50
" 2nd quality	7 00 7 50
Buckwheat Flour,	3 00 4 00
Rye "	3 00 3 50
Timothy Seed,	4 00
Clover,	8 00
Corn-Meal per 100	1 50 2 00
Corn per bushel, 56lbs.	0 51 0 00
Oats " do 34lbs.	0 37½ 0 00
Potatoes do	0 44 0 50
Wheat do 60lbs,	1 00 1 25
Barley do 48lbs,	0 75 0 00
Hay per ton	10 00 12 00
Straw per load	1 50 2 00
Wood per cord (Hard)	2 00 0 00
do Mixed	1 50 0 00
Pork per 100lbs.	6 00 6 50
Beef " "	5 00 6 00

NIAGARA MUTUAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.

GEORGE BULLOCK, Local Agent for the Townships of Sandwich, Maidstone, Rochester and Tilbury West; also the Village of Windsor. Address, Sandwich Post Office.

TO RENT.

A DRUG STORE, with a large and well selected stock of Drugs and Medicines, in the Town of Sandwich. The Store will be leased for a term of years, and the Drugs and Medicines will be sold on reasonable terms. The selection cannot be surpassed in Upper Canada. Possession given on the first day of July next, if required. The present proprietor is about entering other business, which will prevent him attending to the Drug business, and which is the only reason for his retiring from the trade. For particulars inquire of

J. ADLEY.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

NOTICE.

A BAY PONEY came in the barn yard on the "Hand's Farm," about the 1st February last, and unless the owner comes to claim the same and pay the charges, it will be impounded and sold.

Hand's Farm, 15th March, 1856.

George Hann,

DEALER IN FURS AND SKINS.

The highest price paid for Shipping Furs at his Fur Store in the Town of Sandwich. 15th March, 1856.

TO LET OR FOR SALE.

A Brick House and Lot, on No. 4, East side of Main Street, fronting "Mears' Hotel." The above property will be leased for $150 a year; or, for particulars of sale apply to

STANISLAUS LASALINE.

Sandwich, 20th March, 1856.

A RARE CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY

IS NOW OFFERED IN

E. BEVARD'S GRAND GIFT ENTERPRISE

AND

LOTTERY,

to take place at

SANDWICH,

ON THE 10th APRIL, 1856.

ALL PRIZES! NO BLANKS.

The following is a List of a few of the Prizes:

2 Shares in Sandwich Street Plank Road Company, worth		$60
A Glass Case,		40
A Burr Cooking Stove,		40
A Buggy Harness,		40
Trotting Waggon,		20
Double Barrel Gun,		20
Dress Coat (new)		18
Frock do		18
Single Barrel Gun,		15
Do do do,		15
Settee,		15
Pair of Curtains,		12
Lot of Dishes,		11
Six Shooter,		10
Box Stove,		10
20 Yards Carpet,		10
Eight Day Clock,		8
Do do		6
Looking Glass,		5
Pair of Shanghais,		5

Together with other articles amounting to FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

On the day of drawing, the holders of tickets will have the privilege of appointing a Committee to regulate the mode of drawing, &c., &c. If the tickets are not all sold by the day appointed for drawing, due notice will be given of the postponement in the "Maple Leaf."

Tickets, One Dollar Each.

WARNERS'

EXCHANGE,

AMHERSTBURG, C. W.

THE SUBSCRIBER has leased the "Lailberty Stand," second door above the Prince Albert Hotel, Murray Street, for a term of years, and has it repaired throughout, furnished with new furniture, bedding, &c., and now open for the accommodation of the travelling public, and by strict attention to business he hopes to receive a liberal share of the same.

HIS TABLE

will be well supplied with all the luxuries of the season.

HIS BAR

will always contain the choicest brands of Liquors.

His Stables and Shed are large and convenient.

Persons wishing good Board will find this a convenient place, being a central place of business.

CHARLES WARNER.

Amherstburg, March 14th, 1856.

NOTICE.

A MEETING of the Board of Public Instruction will be held at Sandwich, at Wednesday the 26th day of March; and at Amherstburg, on Thursday the 27th, for the purpose of examining Teachers, and granting Certificates for 1856.

PAUL JOHN SALTER.

Office Board Public Instruction, Sandwich, 10th March, 1856.

Closing Up.

THE Subscriber, having determined to bring his business to a close by the first day of July next, begs most respectfully to return his grateful acknowledgments to his Customers and the Public generally for their liberal support for the past. He now offers his present Stock, comprising a general assortment of at reduced prices to close up. To any person desirous to engage in the business, he will dispose of the Stock at cost. The residence occupied by the subscriber also. The place of business is offered for sale at a bargain (the premises comprising half an acre front by one in the rear, with three substantial buildings, and other out-houses in good order.

Dry Goods, Groceries Boots and Shoes. Crockery. Hardware &c. &c.

He would request all persons indebted to him to call and settle up, either with the cash or notes at short date, and Persons having claims will please present them for payment with as little delay as possible. From and after this date, no credit will be given to any person, as the goods will be sold at reduced prices, and for the cash only or its equivalent.

H. C. GUILLOT.

Sandwich, 14th March, 1856.

Notice.

County of Essex } Notice is hereby given-to wit: } on that a Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the said County, will be holden at the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, on Tuesday the first day of April next, at the hour of Ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all Coroners, Justices, Gaolers, Bailiffs, Constables, and all others in any way concerned are required and enjoined to attend, to do and perform all those things which to their office belong and appertain.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich, }
1st March, 1856. }

Notice.

County of Essex, } Notice is hereby given-to wit: } on that the Court of Over and Terminer and General Gaol delivery Assize and Nisi Prius, in and for the said County, will be held at the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, on Tuesday the twenty-second day of April next, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all Coroners, Justices, Gaolers, Bailiffs, Constables, and all others in any way concerned are required to attend, to do and perform all those things which to their office belong and appertain.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich, }
1st March, 1856. }

TO be published monthly, price half-a-dollar per annum,

The Churchman's Friend,

For the diffusion of information relative to the Church of England, her Doctrine and Ordinances. Edited by Edward H. Dewar, M.A., Rector of Sandwich, assisted by other Clergymen.

Sandwich, March 15th, 1856.

OPPOSITION

To the Combination of Trade!!

J. W. JOHNSTON has just returned from New York, with a large and splendid stock of Gold and Diamond Jewelry, Diamond Rings, Gold and Breast Pins, Gold Watches, Lockets and Clmins, Gold Pens and Pencils, Cuff Pins and Earrings; the Egyptian style just come in fashion, Pearl Earrings and Rings, Gold and Silver.

Gold and Silver Watches, Gold Thimbles; a fine assortment of Silver Ware, Tea and Table Spoons, Fruit and Butter Knives, Card Cases, Razors, Mouse Traps, Cake Baskets, English, French and German Fancy Goods, Pearl and Shell Card Cases, Port Monies of every description.

Ladies and Gentlemen's Dressing Cases, fine assortment Writing Desks, Pearl and Rosewood, Crosha fixins of all kinds.

COMBS.

Back, fine, coarse, and pockets combs, both horn and wood combs, the latest style of Bloomer Combs.

CLOCKS.

Clocks at $1.25, warranted good time pieces; prices at wholesale a good deal less.

ENGLISH CUTLERY.

Bowie Knifes, Razors, and a very large stock of Pocket Cutlery. Revolving Pistols, Double and Single Barreled Guns. Yankee notions and Gilt Jewelry.

A very large stock of Notions, country merchants and pedlers' attention is called to examine this stock, before purchasing elsewhere.

Pins, Needles, Thread, Buttons, Tape Bobbins, Carpet Bags, Umbrellas, Suspenders, Tobacco Boxes, Hooks and Eyes, Whalebone, Feather Dusters, Horse Brushes, Shoe Brushes Tooth and Clothing Brushes, Pledges, Accordeons, Flutinas, Indian Beads and Rings, and Pins, Gilt and Plated Watches at two dollars a piece; in fact all sorts, from a needle to an anchor, and from an anchor to a tin pail; nothing charged for looking; call and see, two doors from Grisold street, on Jefferson avenue, opposite the U. S. Court Room.

J. W JOHNSTON.

Canada Western Assurance

COMPANY.

Chartered by Act of Parliament.

Capital £100, 000.

in Shares of £10 each.

HOME OFFICE,

TORONTO.

President . J. C. Gilmor, Esq.
Vice-President : T. Haworth, Esq.
Secretary & Treasurer : R. Stanton, Esq.
Solisitor : A. Morrison, Esq.

DIRECTORS.

John Howcutt, Esq., GeorgeMichie, Esq., Rice Lewis, Esq., W. Henderson, Esq., M. P. Hayes, Esq., Hugh Miller, Esq., James Beaty, Esq.

Application for Fire Risks received at the Home Office, Toronto, on Wellington Street, opposite the Commercial Bank.

OFFICE HOURS, 10 A. M. TO 3 P. M.

Marine Risks Taken.

ISAAC C. GILMOR, President.

Robert Stanton, Secretary & Treasurer.

John McCrae, Agent.

British Commercial Store, Windsor.

DIVISION COURTS FOR ESSEX.

1st. Sandwich Monday, 12th May, 1856.
2nd. Amherstburg, Saturday, 12th April.
3rd. Kingsville, Wednesday, 16th do.
4th. Colchester, Monday, 14th do.
5th. Mersea, Friday, 18th do.
6th. Simon's, Middle Road, Saturday, 17th, May.
Sandwich 12th Feb. 1856.

SPRING CIRCUITS.

HOME CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Sir John Beverley Robinson, Bart
Milton,	Monday, 17th, March.
Barrie,	Tuesday, 25th March.
Niagara,	Tuesday, 22nd April.
Hamilton	Tuesday, 13th May.
Sydenham	Tuesday, 27th May.

EASTERN CIRCUIT.

The Hon, Mr. Justice Draper
Brockville	Monday, 31st April.
Cornwall	Monday, 28th April.
L'Original	Thursday, 8th May.
Ottawa	Monday, 12th May.
Perth	Thursday, 22nd May.

MIDLAND CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice McLean.
Whitby	Wednesday, 26th March.
Peterborough	Tuesday, 8th April.
Cobourg	Monday, 14th April.
Belleville	Thursday, 24th April.
Picton	Tuesday, 6th May.
Kingston	Tuesday, 13th May.

OXFORD CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Burns.
Brantford	Tuesday, 22nd April.
Simcoe	Tuesday, 29th April.
Woodstock	Monday, 5th May.
Stratford	Wednesday, 14th May.
Berlin	Tuesday, 20th May.
Guelph	Monday, 26th May.

WESTERN CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Hagarty.
Goderich	Wednesday, 5th March.
St. Thomas	Wednesday, 12th March.
London	Wednesday, 19th March.
Chatham	Tuesday, 15th April.
Sandwich	Tuesday, 22nd April.
Sarnia	Tuesday, 29th April.

CITY OF TORONTO.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Richards.
Toronto.	Monday, 5th May.

PAINT SHOP.

FRANCOIS PAYETTE having opened a Paint Shop in the Town of Sandwich, opposite the "Sandwich Exchange," will be happy to attend to the painting of houses, Graining, Glazing, Varnishing, and, in fact, every description of work in his line of business with despatch, and at moderate charges.

N.B.—Buggies and Carriages painted and varnished upon reasonable terms.

Sandwich, 9th March, 1856.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

ALL Persons to whom the late Mr. John McCormick, of Point Pelée Island, deceased, stood indebted at the time of his decease, are requested to send in their accounts forthwith to the undersigned or either of them.

Mary McCormick.
David McCormick.
William McCormick

Point Pelée Island,
7th March, 1856.

SIMPSON'S EATING SALOON.

MR. SIMPSON would inform the Gentlemen of Sandwich and vicinity that he is prepared at all hours to furnish "Hot Meals," and those who may favor his establishment with a call, can depend upon having, if they wish, a "Steak" cooked in the good old English style, with all the little etceteras.

Dinner Parties accommodated upon the shortest notice.

N.B.—A few persons can be accommodated with good clean beds.

No 223 Jefferson Avenue, Detroit Mich. jew doors above the Theatre.

AUDITORS' REPORT OF Receipts & Expenditures for the Township of Sandwich, ending the 31st December, 1855.

DR.

	£	s.	d.
To Paid for Roads and Bridges,	164	5	8
" Treasurer's Salary,	25	0	0
" Township Clerk's Salary,	51	2	6
" Auditors do	20	10	0
" for Surveying,	21	2	6
" Inspectors,	6	13	0
" Indigent Poor,	34	12	6
" Election Expences,	6	5	0
" Messenger to Council	1	5	0
" Lumber and Nails for Township purposes,	0	17	5½
" Sandwich Wharf,	17	2	5
" Path Master Town of Sandwich,	6	0	0
" for Selecting Jurors,	9	7	6
" Assessors,	33	15	0
" Legal Services,	38	5	0
" Councillors' Salary,	37	10	0
" Stationery,	2	10	0
" Rent, Fire, Wood, &c., C. Chamber,	9	7	0
" Court of Revision,	6	5	0
" Printing,	10	10	0
" Deduction of Taxes,	44	17	11½
" School Sections,	332	14	0
" School Grant,	160	7	11½
" Superintendent of Common Schools,	13	0	0
" County Treasurer,	1125	18	11½
Amount of Absentees and Defaulters,	35	10	2½
	£2218	16	7½
To Balance,	646	1	4½
	£2864	18	0½

CR.

	£	s.	d.
By Cash due the Township as per Treasurer's Book,	303	8	3½
Cash from Collector,	2127	17	8½
Auction of Wharf Lumber,	7	3	4
Statute Labor, Sec. No. 6,	9	1	0
do do Sandwich,	4	1	8
do Inspector,	88	8	0
Pound-Keeper, Sandwich,	3	3	9
Rev Inspector—D. Moynahan,	36	10	0
Fines of Township, J.P.	0	8	6
Exhibition License,	0	5	0
Wild Land Tax, County Treasurer,	240	18	10½
Error in amount rec'd from Collector,	35	10	2½
	£2864	18	0½

By Balance due the Township, £646 1 4½

Joseph Mercer, }
John A. Askin. } Auditors

March 1, 1856.

Beacon

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE CO of London.

Incorporated under Act of Imperial Parliament, 7 and 8 Vic., Chap. 1.

CANADA BOARD.

KINGSTON.

TRUSTEES.

The Hon John A Macdonald.
James Morton, Esquire.

DIRECTORS:

M. W. Strange, Esq., Chairman.
Thos. A. Corbett, Esq., Deputy Chairman.
James Morton, Esq. John Mowatt, Esq
James Hartt, Esq. A. J Macdonell, Esq.
Lewis Wallbridge, Esq. T. Clarkson, Esq.

MONTREAL.

Wm. Molson, Esq. Thomas Evans, Esq.
Damase Masson, Esquire.

This Company Insures all descriptions of Buildings, Manufactories, Mills, &c. and Goods or Furniture in the same, against loss or damage by fire, on liberal terms. All descriptions of Life Risks, taken at as low rates as are consistent with security to the assured. Losses promptly settled without reference to England.

ALEX. GORDON,
Agent at Windsor for Western Frontier
March 7, 1856.

EXECUTORS' NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to all persons indebted to the late ALPHEUS MORSE, of the Town of Sandwich, deceased and late of the Firm of MORSE AND CALVIN, Lumbermen, to make payment to the undersigned, and all persons having claims against the said A. MORSE or MORSE AND CALVIN, are requested to present them for payment prior to the 1st day of May next to

ELECTA MORSE } Executors.
H. C. GUILLOT }

Sandwich, Feb. 20th 1856.

WILLIAM SWIFT,

MERCHANT TAILOR,

IS prepared to attend upon the Gentlemen of Amherstburg in his line of business, and is not afraid to assert that he will cut and Fit in the latest and most fashionable Styles as well as any Tailor west of London.

Amherstburg, Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROSE DALE MILLS.

THE highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Rye, Corn, or Buck Wheat, either at the Mills or at the Store of

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

J. H. ALLISON,

IMPORTER OF

IMPROVED

RAILROAD WATCHES.

Cased in beautiful styles war-anted excellent time-keepers: do. Swiss full jeweled Levers of every style.

GOLD PENS.

I continue manufacturing Pens of every desirable pattern; these Pens have received

A SILVER MEDAL & DIPLOMA

At the Michigan State Fair, and are not to be surpassed by any Pens in the market.

ALSO DEALER IN

FINE JEWELRY, SILVER WARE, AND FANCY GOODS.

I have an experienced Jeweller, capable of making New Work to order.

SETTING STONES AND DIAMOND WORK, &c.,

FIRE GILDING AND GALVANIZING

Done at Short Notice.

WATCH REPAIRING.

Being a Practical Workman, all work entrusted to my care will be carefully attended to.

GOLD PENS RE-POINTED

at 50 cents all sizes. Orders sent by mail, accompanied by cash, will be promptly attended to.

J. H. ALLISON,
No. 176 Jefferson Ave.
Feb. 29th, 1856.

CIGAR FACTORY.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the inhabitants of Amherstburg and vicinity that he has opened a Cigar Factory in the above Town, where every description of the choicest kind are always on hand. He has also lately imported from Havana a large quantity of the very best Principe and every other description of Cigars, which he intends to sell at a much smaller price than can be had in Detroit. Call and see him, and he will give a puff.

JOHN N. MILLER.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

MEETING OF PARLIAMENT

THE PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT assembled in Toronto, for the despatch of Business

On Friday 15th February

That Globe will contain a full report of the Debates made up each day to the hour of going to press; and will have the most reliable political intelligence at the earliest moment.

THE DAILY "GLOBE"

Will be sent four months for TWO DOLLARS.

THE TRI-WEEKLY "GLOBE"

Will be sent three months for ONE DOLLAR!

Orders should be sent in immediately so as to secure the Debates from the commencement of the Session.

GLOBE OFFICE,
Toronto, February 14, 1856

Family Store.

THE Subscriber keeps constantly on hand a large and well selected assortment of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware and Crockery,

at his old stand on Bedford Street, which he will sell, at a small advance upon cost, for Cash.

A large supply of the very best Flour always on hand.

Produce and Cord Wood bought and sold.

JOSEPH MILLER.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

JAMES TESSORE,

CARPENTER & JOINER,

WILL always be on hand to attend to the question of Building, and every description of Carpenter and Joiner work upon the shortest notice.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

New Harness and Saddlery Establishment.

A. C. ELLIS.

Every description of LIGHT and FANCY BUGGY HARNESS, made in the most fashionable styles.

HEAVY HARNESSES constantly on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.

SADDLES of every description made to order on the shortest notice.

CARRIAGE and BUGGY TRIMMING done in a style not to be surpassed.

A large assortment of WHIPS always kept on hand.

In his Store, adjoining Mr. Guillot's, will be found every description of Goods in his line of business. Every endeavor will be made to give entire satisfaction to his Customers.

N.B.—Cord Wood, Hides, and Produce wanted, for which the highest price will be given.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. &c. &c.

AT THE REGULATOR.

THE Subscribers would invite the attention of the public generally to their new and complete Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c., &c., which they have now offering low for cash.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

N.B.—The highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all kinds of Produce.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

County of Essex, } By virtue of a writ of
to wit: } Fieria Facias issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex against the lands and Tenements of Alfred Baby, and to me directed, at the suit of Dennis Ouellette, I have seized and taken the following lands and tenements, viz.:

Water Lot number three on the East, and Water Lots numbers three, four and fourteen West, and Land and Water Lots numbers thirteen and sixteen, all on the North side of Sandwich Street in the Village of Windsor, and being part of the Town Plot of Windsor, as laid out on the estate of the late Francis Baby, Esquire, all which property, or the interest of the said Alfred Baby in and to the same, I will offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Saturday the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, at 12 o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich,
29th February, 1856.

New Livery Stable.

JOHN LEWIS, having purchased the Livery Stable in the Town of Sandwich, formerly kept by C. F. Labadie, will carry it on in a style that has never been known in this place before. Fresh horses and new carriages are being added to this establishment every day, and persons who patronize him may expect to be furnished with "Crack Teams."

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

NOTICE.

TO ALL IT MAY CONCERN.

ALL persons owing the subscriber are hereby notified that payment must be made on or before the 15th day of April next if they wish to save the costs of collection.

TO RENT.

The House and Premises in which the subscriber lives. Rents $24 per quarter payable in advance. Possession given on the first of May next.

GEORGE HANN.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

LOTS FOR SALE IN THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.

PART of Lot No. 3: on the west side of Bedford Street, with a good Store thereon. Also, Lots 7 and 8, adjoining the residence of L. J. Piatt, Esquire, with dwelling house and stables. These Lots will be sold subject to incumbrances.

For particulars apply to

J. H. WILKINSON.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

Also for J. A. Verrais.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

LOT No. Four, in the 4th Concession, Gosfield.

J. H. WILKINSON.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

FOR SALE.

(ON TIME.)

AN Eighteen-Horse Power Engine and Boiler complete. Apply to

GEO. BULLOCK.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

TO PRINTERS.

WANTED—A good steady hand, to whom constant work and good wages will be given.

Apply at this Office.

7th March, 1856.

AGRICULTURE &c.

Guano on Potatoes.

Last spring I planted four acres of potatoes on a two year old sod; the soil was a very light gravelly loam, well calculated to raise sound potatoes, but as it had been hard run, and never manured, it could not be expected to produce a large crop. I plowed the land deep and well, as early as the weather would permit, letting it lie till the time of planting—May 10th. It was then dragged, and on two acres 600 lbs. of Peruvian guano were sown broadcast. The land was then furrowed out in rows about three feet apart and potatoes planted in the rows, from twelve to fourteen inches between the sets. On the remaining two acres no guano, or manure of any kind, was applied, though treated exactly alike in every other respect.

As soon as the plants were up there was a decided difference visible. The guanoed ones having a richer, darker hue which they maintained throughout the summer. In the fall, when the ungnanoed potatoes were quite ripe and the vines dead, the guanoed ones were growing luxuriantly, the vines covering the whole space between the rows.

The potatoes were dug the last week in October, and accurately measured. On the ungnanoed two acres, there was 238 bushels; and on the two acres guanoed, 410 bushels, making a difference in favor of the guano of 86 bushels per acre. All the potatoes are perfectly sound and good, but the guanoed ones are much the largest, with scarcely a small one among them. The guano cost in New York two and a half cents per lb., freight, breaking the lumps, sifting, and sowing it, would make its cost on the land three cents per pound, or 60 per acre. The 86 extra bushels of potatoes will more than pay for the guano, &c., and leave a good profit for the investment.

As regards the best mode of application, I may state that in another field this year I had an acre of potatoes, part of which were guanoed, as on the other two acres, by sowing broadcast, planting the potatoes in hills. On part of the acre the guano was applied in the hill, plowing in the broadcast immediately over the potatoes, separating them with a little soil, otherwise it would injure the set. The potatoes thus treated were much better than where the guano was sown broadcast. Four rows left unguanoed were not more than half as good as where it was applied.

I consider guano a most powerful and valuable manure, though whether it will pay as well to apply it to wheat, corn, or other grain crops, as it has in this instance to potatoes, I cannot say. I have sown some on wheat this fall and can already see how far it extended, the difference being very perceptible. H. C. IVES.—Rochester N. Y.

Our Native Trees.

All at once there appears to have sprung up a very unusual appreciation of the beauty of our native trees. In half a dozen publications, issued at widely distant points, we find their eulogies set forth in the most glowing and enthusiastic terms. This is one of the most striking evidences of the growth of real taste that we have yet met with in all that has been said and written on horticultural subjects. As long as the riches and beauty of the sylvan treasures that nature has so unsparingly scattered over our own land, and around our own homes, remain unadmired and unappreciated, so long would it be indeed a most hopeless task to attempt to promote improvement in that department of horticulture which depends entirely upon taste. It is quite impossible that any one should be possessed of what is called taste, who relates to landscape gardening, without having felt the grandeur and the beauty of our natural plantations and landscapes. What use would it be to talk of the artistic beauties of an English park, to a man who had lived his life time in the beautiful valley of the Genesee without seeing anything of the rich and striking landscape—its noble forests and broad meadows, blended with a skill that mocks man's puny efforts;—a man who had passed up and down the Hudson river a thousand times without feeling a single impression from its grand and picturesque scenery, the rock-work of which, compared to the artificial rock-work of the landscape gardener, is as a child's toy compared to a genuine gothic castle, or an outlet of a mill dam to the falls of Niagara. It is idle to describe the beauties of a Deodar Cedar to one who has not comprehended the grace and beauty of the Hemlock Spruce that grows by his door, or to talk of the lofty Pine of the Himalayas to one who has never looked upon our noble White Pine with admiration. The cultivation of rural taste, like the exercise of that greatest virtue, charity, should "begin at home." Until we learn to love and admire the sweet and beautiful violet that blooms at our feet, it is folly to send to the antipodes for something more beutiful in imagination. We rejoice, therefore, to witness some healthy symptoms of an awakening taste for native trees, and hope to see all of people actually admiring and planting our native trees. We have never heard so many people speak of the beautiful autumn tints of our forests, as we have this past autumn; and this we are happy to note as another strong evidence of the growth of taste. The colors of the foliage have indeed been indeed unusually brilliant and striking; but they have been so only to those who have some perceptions of the beautiful, and in whose hearts there is at least the germ of the love of nature.

This is a subject on which we would like to dwell, but we must await another opportunity. At present we will make a practical suggestion; for practical we must be, if nothing else.

There is many a good, honest, farmer, whose dwelling stands on a light-house on an ocean rock, exposed to every wind that blows and every ray of sun that a merciless mid-summer day pours down on its devoted walls and windows. The very chickens can not find a shrub to shelter them without making a journey of half a mile.—Now that winter is upon us, and there are idle men sighing for something to do, and idle horses gnawing their stalls and growing unruly for lack of exercise and labor; go into the woods some fine, mild day, when there is snow enough on the ground to make comfortable sleighing, take up some fine young maples, elms, basswoods, tulip trees, (whitewood,) put them on the sled and transport them to your homes, plant them along the roadsides, and here and there in the vicinity of your dwellings; and in a year or two you will find you have made a wonderful improvement in the comfort of your lives and the appearance of your home landscape. Dig good large, wide, and deep holes for the roots. Take them up with all the roots entire, prune the heads lightly, but don't characteristic forms for several years. Shorten the limbs only. If evergreens such as Balsam Firs, Spruces, Hemlocks, Pines, and Cedars, can be had, don't fail to add a few of them.

Weights and Measures.

In England and America grain is generally rated by the bushel though it is not the same measure; for here we use the Winchester bushel, which contains 2,150.42 cubic inches; there since 1826, the legal measure is called the imperial bushel, which contains 2,218.192 cubic inches; so that 32 of their bushels are about equal to 33 of ours.

The following are the commercial weights of a bushel of different articles, viz.: wheat, beans, potatoes, and cloverseed, 60 pounds —corn, rye, buck-seed, and onions 56 pounds—corn in the ear 70 pounds—barley, Scotch wheat, 52 pounds—barley, 48 pounds—hemp seed 44 pounds—timothy seed, 45 pounds—castor beans, 46 pounds—oats, 35 pounds—bran, 20 pounds—blue grass seed, 14 pounds—salt, 50, according to one act of parliament, but Onondaga salt is 56—the real weight of turnips is 56 pounds to the bushel]—dried apples, 24 pounds—dried peaches, 33 pounds according to a table lately published in numerous papers, but according to our experience, both are wrong. We have seen thousands of bushels sold at 22 pounds to the bushel which will measure about three pecks.

Heaping Measures.—Potatoes, turnips, and succulent roots, apples and other fruits, meal and bran, and in some States oats are sold by heaping measure, which contains 2,815 cubic inches. The size of a Winchester bushel measure, is a circular ring with straight sides 8 inches high and 18½ in diameter. A box 12 inches square, with sides 7 inches high, will hold half a bushel.

Comparative Grain Measures.—Besides the difference between the Winchester and imperial and heaped bushels before stated, there are a dozen or more local bushels.—For instance, at Abington, Eng., 9 gallons—at Penrith,16—at Carlisle, 24 at Chester, 32; etcetera. In France, the setier is 4,427, to 10 0 compared with the imperial bushel being that is 4427 bushels. In Holland, the muddle is as 3,157. In Prussia, the scheffel, 1,479. In Poland, the korze, 1,451. In Spain, the fanega, 1,590—that is, 99 thousandths over a bushel and a half.

Barrel Measures.—Rice 60 pounds—flour 196 pounds—powder 25 pounds—cider and other liquors 30 gallons—corn 5 bushels shelled. This latter and most crops are estimated, and corn bought and sold throughout most of the Southern and Western States. At New Orleans a barrel of corn is a flour barrel full of ears. In some parts of the West, it is common to count a hundred ears for a bushel.

Ton Weight and Ton Measure.—A ton of hay by that measure, is twenty cross hundred, that is 2,240 pounds; though in many places that ridiculous old fashion is being done away and 2,000 pounds only counted to a ton.

A Quarter of Corn is the fourth of a ton or eight imperial bushels. This is an English measure, not in use in this country, though very necessary to be known so as to understand correctly English reports. 80 of several of the following weights and measures.

A Last of soap, ashes, herrings &c., 12 to 24—of corn 10 quarters—of gunpowder 24 barrels—of flax or feathers, 1700—of wool 12 sacks.

A Sack or Wool is 22 stone—that is 14 pounds to the stone, 308 pounds.

A Clove or Wool, is 7 pounds or half a stone. Recollect a stone is 14 pounds, when talking of wool, feathers, &c.—but when applied to beef, and other meats, it is only 8 pounds.

A Truss or Hay, new 60 pounds, 56—of straw, 40 pounds. A load 36 trusses.

Weights of a Cubic Foot—Of sand or loose earth, 95 pounds—compact soil 124 —strong or clayey soil 132—pure clay 135 —a mixture of clay and stones 150—masonry of stone 205—brick 225—cast iron 450 —steel 489—copper 480, lead, 709, silver 654, gold 1,203, platina 1,218, glass 108, water 62, tallow 59, cork 15, oak timber 72, mahogany 66, air 0,0 53. In the above fractions are omitted.

A Bale of Cotton in Egypt, is 99 pounds, in America commercial bale is 400 pounds, but is put up in different States, varying from 280 to 720 pounds. Sea Island Cotton is put up in sacks of 300 pounds.

A Cord or Wood is 128 solid feet, usually put up 8 feet long, 4 feet wide, and 4 feet high. In France a cord of wood is 5776 feet.

A Stack or Wood, is 108 solid feet, 12 feet long 3 high, and 3 wide. A stack of wood is a round bundle of small sticks, 4 feet long, girting for a one note, 23 inches, five notes, 36 inches. A billet of wood is similar to a skid, being 3 feet long, 7, 10 and 14 inches round. They are sold by the score or hundred. A score is 20 in old stand.

ALONZO BROWN,
Maidstone Cross, Proprietor.
7th March, 1856.

Fearful Effect of an Avalanche.—During a recent rain storm at Cape Breton, an avalanche of snow, supplied by a large body of water, swept down upon the dwelling-house of a Mr. Campbell, about thirty miles from Sydney, destroying the house, and burying in the ruins Mr. Campbell. His wife, mother, three children, and one of the girls perished by the catastrophe but the others were rescued alive. The remarkable occurred in the night. A barn was also overwhelmed, and eighteen head of cattle were killed. —Detroit Advertiser.

Smith and Brown, running opposite ways round a corner, struck each other. 'Oh, dear,' says Smith, 'you made my head ring.'—'That's a sign it's hollow,' says Brown. 'Didn't your's ring?' says Smith.—'No,' says Brown. 'That's a sign it's cracked,' replied his friend.

HENNELL HOUSE,

Late Free Mason's Tavern,
Sandwich.

THIS House is pleasantly situated at the terminus of the New Gravel Road from Windsor to Sandwich, and possesses all the requisites which are generally met with in first class hotels—Good Beds, superior Stabling, and unimpeachable Liquors.

From the long experience of the present proprietor in this line of business, he is enabled to meet the wishes of his patrons, in every particular, with promptness; and he will make it his study so to treat his visitors, that they may leave him with perfect satisfaction, and return with pleasure on future occasions.

WM. HENNELL.
Sandwich, Feb. 29th.

SANDWICH EXCHANGE,

BEDFORD STREET, SANDWICH.

JACOB STUTTZ

IN returning thanks for past favors, begs to inform his Friends and the Public that he still keeps on hand the best of every thing to suit the taste and comfort of the customers, and trusts that by assiduity and attention to business, to merit their patronage and support.

N.B.—A Good Stable and Shed.

WESTERN HOTEL,

(Late Commercial Exchange,)
BY CYRUS DOBSON.

THIS Hotel, adjoining the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, has been put in thorough repair, and the Proprietor hopes that by strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a share of public patronage.

N.B.—There is an excellent stable attached to the premises, and an attentive ostler will always be in attendance.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

THE COTTAGE INN,

BY ALEXANDER REAUME,

THE Proprietor having lately leased the above comfortable premises, and having thoroughly repaired and refurnished the same, will be happy to attend upon the travelling public at all hours. A supply of good old Ohio and Hot Water will always be found at the Bar, with all other choice Liquors.

THE COTTAGE INN has good and comfortable Stables attached.

ALEXANDER REAUME.
Anderdon, February 29th, 1856.

TRAVELLERS' HOME,

T. HALEY, PROPRIETOR,
(Formerly of Aylmer, Canada West.)

THIS House having been fitted up in the neatest and most comfortable style, the Proprietor hopes that, by keeping the choicest Liquors and a strict attention to business, to be able to give entire satisfaction to all who may give him a call. Attentive waiters and a well supplied table will always be found here.

Good Stabling and an attentive Ostler always in attendance.

N.B.—FRESH OYSTERS always on hand.

Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

PRINCE ALBERT HOTEL.

THIS Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Warner, has been thoroughly renovated, and will be kept well supplied with the very best liquors. An attentive man will always be in attendance. Livery charge moderate.

A private Parlor, for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen, has been fitted up.

F. X. TRUDELL,
Sandwich Street, Proprietor.
29th February, 1856.

BROOKER'S TAVERN.

WM. BROOKER is prepared to attend upon his Customers at his new and well-furnished house on the Canard Road, where the Traveller will have his wants attended to in regard to good liquors, and his friends may expect to find every accommodation as usual.

A supply of Groceries always kept on hand which will be sold very cheap.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROYAL EXCHANGE.

J. H. McGEE,

BEGS to announce to the Travelling Community, and Public in general, that he has opened the above new TAVERN, with good accommodations, and hopes by attention to its business, to merit a share of public patronage. A choice selection of Groceries always on hand.

Maidstone Cross, February 29th, 1856.

MANSION HOUSE.

THIS new and commodious Inn is now completely finished, and the Proprietor hopes that by a strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to receive a continuance of the patronage which was so liberally awarded him at his old stand.

ALONZO BROWN,
Maidstone Cross, Proprietor.
7th March, 1856.

AMERICAN HOTEL.

CORNER HOUSE SQUARE, LONDON, C. W.

ROBERT ARKELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and Travellers that he has taken the above Hotel, which has undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The house is in a fine open, airy and central situation, and commands a beautiful view of the valley of the Thames and surrounding country.

The Table is supplied with all the delicacies of the season. The Wines and Liquors will be of the best brands, and he trusts by assiduity and attention to the comfort of his guests to merit their patronage and support.

ROBERT ARKELL.
London, 29th Feb. 1856.

INTERNATIONAL BILLIARD SALOON,

Windsor, C.W. opposite the Depot of the Great Western Railway.

T. M. HOWRIGAN,
Proprietor.

The above Saloon is neatly and commodiously fitted up, the Proprietor having spared no expense for the purpose of rendering it attractive to visitors.

The Best of Cigars, Wines and Liquors always on hand.

Windsor, Feb. 29th, 1856.

BUFFALO, N.Y.

COURTER HOUSE

Corner of Erie and Seneca Streets,
Nearly Opposite the Buffalo & N. Falls Railroad.

B. F. POPPLE, MANAGER.

VISITORS to Buffalo, visiting the Courter House, Buffalo, will find every convenience and attention at reasonable charges. Tectotalers visiting Buffalo, will find this Hotel calculated to suit their wishes.

Buffalo, 29th Feb. 1856.

S. D. ELWOOD & CO.,

PUBLISHERS,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
BOOKS, STATIONERY,
AND ALL KINDS OF PAPERHANGS,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS STOCK
MANUFACTURERS OF
BLANK BOOKS
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

Orders for Lithographed Letter and Bill Heads, Maps, Drafts, Stock Certificates, &c., &c., &c.,

EXECUTED WITH PROMPTNESS.

192 Jefferson Avenue,
DETROIT.

S. D. ELWOOD,
J. C. PARSONS,
Feb 29th, 1856.

New Wholesale
GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and the Trade generally, that he has commenced business on his own account, in this City, as a

WHOLESALE GENERAL GROCER.

And is now receiving a large and carefully selected stock of

Groceries, Teas, Wines, Liquors, Oils, Paints, &c., &c., &c.

To which he confidently invites the attention of Western and City Merchants.

Premises, King Street West, opposite Messrs. McDonald, Stiles & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods Warehouse.

A. I. McKENZIE.
Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

DETROIT SEED STORE
AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.

I would call the attention of Farmers and Gardeners to my present stock of Agricultural Implements, consisting of the most approved Ploughs, Cultivators, Harrows, Hay and Corn Stalk Cutting Boxes, Cultivators, Seed Planters, Corn Shellers, Fan Mills, Root Pullers, Corn Planters, Cob Crushers, Churns, Garden Field, and Flower Seeds, raised by the most experienced and enroll growers in the country and England, and I think purchasers may feel confident that they can find with me a place true to their name, and give perfect satisfaction. All seed offered for sale will be of the present year's growth when offered as such.

E. F. PARKER.
75 Woodward Avenue, Detroit.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN,
ELEVENTH YEAR.

SPLENDID ENGRAVINGS AND PRIZES.

THE Eleventh Annual Volume of this useful publication commences on the 17 day of September next.

The "SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN" is an Illustrated Periodical, devoted chiefly to the promulgation of information relating to the various Mechanic and Chemic Arts, Industrial Manufactures, Agriculture, Patents, Inventions Engineering, Millwork, and all interests which the light of PRACTICAL SCIENCE is calculated to advance.

Reports of U. S. Patents granted are also published every week, including Official Copies of the Patent Claims, together with news and information upon Thousands of other Subjects.

The contributors to the Scientific American are among the most Eminent Scientific and practical men of the times. The Editorial Departments universally acknowledged to be distinguished, not only for the excellence and truthfulness of its discussions but for the fearlessness with which error is combated and false theories are exploded.

Mechanics, Inventors, Engineers Chemists, Manufacturers, Agriculturists, and People of every Profession if life, will find the Scientific American to be of great value in their respective callings. Its counsels and suggestions will save them Hundreds of Dollars annually, besides affording them a continual source of knowledge, the experience of which is beyond pecuniary estimate.

The Scientific American is published once a week; every number contains eight large square pages, forming at usually a cheap place and splendid volume, illustrated with several hundred original engravings.

Specimen copies sent gratis.

TERMS.—Single subscriptions, $2 a year or $1 for six months. Five copies for six months, $5. Ten copies for $8.

For further Club rates and for statement of the fourteen large Cash Prizes, offered by the publishers, see Scientific American.

Southern, Western and Canada money or Post Office Stamps, taken at par for subscriptions.

Letters should be directed (post paid) to

MUNN & CO.,
128 Fulton St. New York

Messrs Munn & Co. have been, for many years extensively engaged procuring patents for new inventions, and will advise inventors without charge in regard to the novelty of their improvements.

Sandwich and Windsor Stage,
BY JOHN LEWIS.

THE Proprietor of this popular line has added a new Stage and first-rate horses, and will hereafter run an Hourly Stage to Windsor with speed and punctuality. He hopes to merit the patronage of the public.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

SALES, SALES.

THE Public are respectfully informed that M. & J. H. Warrington are Manufacturing and have on hand a large quantity of Tiles, for Draining Cellars, Farms, &c., at their Brick Yard, Westminster, two miles from London, and a quarter of a mile from Mr. J. Nellis's Tavern, at First Toll Gate on the Hamilton Road, which they will sell at the Low Price of $1 per 1000 with Soles or Bottoms, without $3 15s. They will be found to be much cheaper than any other Material for Draining, as they facilitate greatly in the labor, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when put down will never require removing. Samples may be seen and orders received at the Store of Mr. J. Pitzell, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also Roofing Tiles and Press Bricks for fronting Buildings of a superior quality.

London, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Crockery Store and China Emporium.

F. P. MATHER & Co., IMPORTERS and Dealers in Crockery, China, Glass, Britannia and Silver Plated Ware, Lamps and Looking Glasses, Table Cutlery and Fancy Ware, "Sign of the Big White Pitcher," No. 224 Jefferson Avenue, Kearsley's Block, opposite Fireman's Hall, Detroit, Michigan.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

CARPETS. CARPETS.

(WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

THE Subscribers have just received, ex "London," a Large Stock of BRUSSELS, 3 PLY, AND SCOTCH CARPETINGS which they are prepared to offer at low prices, and are well worthy of inspection.

T. B. & J. HARRIS,
Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Beecher, Rice and Ketchum.

CARPET & OIL CLOTH WAREHOUSE,
No. 142 Jefferson Avenue.
Conant Block, Detroit, Michigan.

BEECHER, HOLLISTER & WILKINS,
Carpet Hall, Lake Street, Chicago, Importers of Carpets, Oil Cloths, Paper Hangings Curtain and Upholstery materials.

A. A. RICE, L. BEECHER, F. F. HOLLISTER
C. E. KETCHUM, D. WILKINS, 2d
Detroit, Feb. 29th, 1856.

JUST PUBLISHED,

CANADA

PHYSICAL, Economic and Social, by Adam Lilly, D.D. One Volume, 12mo, about 300 Pages. Maps of Canada East & West. Cloth 3s. ; Stiff Covers 3s 9d.

MACLEAR & CO.,
Publishers, Toronto.

N.B.—Sent by Post to any part of North America or Europe, if desired.

Toronto, Feb. 29th, 1856.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY
Hamilton and Toronto Branch.
ALTERATION OF TIME.

ON and after MONDAY NEXT, the 10th December, trains will run daily (Sundays excepted) between Hamilton and Toronto, as follows:

GOING WEST

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed	Mail
	A M	P M	P M	P M
Toronto, -	-	8 00	3 20	10 00
Mimico, -	-	8 10	3 30	10 15
Port Credit, -	-	8 25	3 45	10 30
Oakville, -	-	8 43	4 03	10 53
Bronte, -	-	8 55	4 15	11 05
Wellington Square, -	-	9 10	4 30	11 25
Hamilton, -	-	9 30	4 50	12 00

GOING EAST.

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed	Mail
	A M	P M	A M	A M
Hamilton, -	10 40	6 10	3 10
Wellington Square, -	11 00	6 30	3 35
Bronte, -	11 13	6 45	3 55
Oakville, -	11 30	7 00	4 15
Port Credit, -	11 45	7 20	4 33
Mimico, -	12 00	7 36	4 50
Toronto, -	12 15	7 50	5 03

The above Trains connect at Hamilton with Trains of Great Western Railway running in connection with Trains to Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, Boston, New York, and with Michigan Central Railroad Trains at Detroit for Chicago, St. Louis, &c, &c.

The 3 20 Train from Toronto meets G W R Accommodation Train going West at Hamilton, for Preston Galt, Paris, London and Intermediate Stations

Through Tickets for any of the above places can be obtained at the Ticket Office, Toronto Station

Stages run daily between Oakville, Milton, Georgetown, &c, &c, &c.

C. J. BRYDGES,
Managing Director
Great Western Railway Office,
Hamilton, 1856.

New Headdress
ESTABLISHMENT.

THE Subscriber begs leave to notify the Public that he will carry on business in the building lately occupied by T. Murphy, opposite the Bennell Hotel, where he intends to carry on the Tailoring Business in all its branches, and hopes by strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage.

N. B.—He will receive the Report of Fashion monthly.

Cutting done to order.

W. T. BASSANDALE.
Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

THE SANDWICH MILLINERY AND DRESS MAKING Establishment will be reopened for the season.

The Proprietor having just returned from the Eastern Cities with a Large Stock of Millinery and Dress Goods of the latest style and fashion, which he offers for sale at a small advance from their original Cost.

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE
L. P. ST. AMOUR.
Sandwich, Feb 29th, 1856.

HIDES WANTED.

ANY Quantity of Hides will be taken in for the Sandwich Tannery at either of the Subscriber's Shops in Sandwich or Windsor, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

JAS. WOODBRIDGE.
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

WHEAT! WHEAT!! WHEAT!!! AND CORN!!!!

THE Highest Price will be paid in Cash for good Merchantable Wheat and Corn, either at the Store of the Subscriber at Sandwich, or at the Rose Dale Mills.

GEO. & G. A. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

BUILDING.

THE SUBSCRIBER, in returning thanks to the Inhabitants of Sandwich, Windsor, and Vicinity for past favors, begs respectfully to inform them that he is now at Home, having finished his Contracts in the City of Detroit, and is prepared to enter into Contracts for the erection of

Brick or Wooden Buildings

Of any description, and furnish Materials for the same.

HENRY TEAKLE.
Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

TO BE SOLD
CHEAP FOR CASH,

The property of a person going to England, the following Real Property, viz:

FOUR Town Lots situated in the Town of Sandwich in the County of Essex enclosed in one block with a good Cottage, Stable, and a variety of choice grafted fruits, and a good well of water, being composed of Lots No. 13, 14, 15, and 16, on the East side of Russell street; also Water Lot No. 17, a good site for a Steam Mill; also Lot No. 16, on the West side of Bedford Street.

Lots No. 13 east half in 2nd Con., Rochester, 100 acres, also the East half of Lot No. 8 in 4th Con., Sandwich, 100 acres.

Enquire of George Bullock Esq. Sandwich.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Patent Medicines.

DR. VERVAIS
Pulmonic Syrup,
A NEW PREPARATION OF
COD LIVER OIL SYRUP,
FOR THE CURE OF
Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, and all Diseases of the Lungs.

SINCE so many excellent Medicines have been offered to the Public, and by excellent physicians, it might be thought superfluous on my part to offer any New Preparation. But, from my long experience in the practice, both in the laboratory and with my patients, I find that the above preparation is the best that has yet been offered to the public. The Chemical Composition is such that the disagreeable taste is removed without the least diminishing the virtues of the Oil. It can be taken with perfect safety in all cases, and at all ages, without injuring the constitution. And its properties are so remarkable as instantaneously to remove the nervous irritability of the Lungs, soften the Cough, and remove the Soreness of the Throat and the viscid phlegm with which the passage of the Lungs are loaded. It diffuses a gentle warmth throughout the system, secures a free circulation of the blood, and opens every pore of the skin,—thus giving universal ease by my Expectorant, which all systems engender, and which are the true origin of nearly all the diseases to which the human race is liable. Too much cannot be said in favor of a Medicine which will restore the languishing and dying patient from a diseased to the best health, and make him enjoy the real blessing of a healthy constitution. We have now the radical cure, "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup," which I not only recommend, but WARRANT IT TO CURE the diseases for which it is made, if the patient perseveres in the use of it. Whole volumes could be written in proof of its superiority, but the limits of this circular does not admit of it. I will, however, say that I am candidly and confidently of his discovery, when Patients who have been suffering from severe cough, whooping-cough, colds and catarrhal affections, have with the use of one bottle of this Syrup been restored to their wonted health, but one full bottle of the substitution stronger than for many years previous. All persons who have once used this Medicine have instantly ordered more for the use of themselves and friends. The Proprietor again warrants his preparation to do everything he claims for it; and he only asks the trial of a single bottle to convince every one that it is without doubt or hesitation the most palatable, speedy, and efficacious Medicine ever made use of in America. He has especially devoted 12 years to the preparation of such Medicines, and he can at last bail with pleasure and delight this wonderful preparation of the only effectious Remedy for the cure of nearly all Diseases of the Lungs, particularly Hectic Fevers, Night Sweats, Dyspnea, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all Pains in the Chest. I have only further to add that this Compound has not been extended beyond my limits as a prescription until astonishing success attended its use in removing the diseases for which I recommended it. It became very popular, and was called for so frequently, I found it necessary to prepare it in large quantities to meet the constant demand for it. Since this Medicine is carefully compounded by myself, who am thoroughly acquainted with the medicinal qualities and effects of each article separately, and of their combined influences when electrically united and have also a perfect knowledge of the human system, and of the functions of each organ both in its healthy and diseased condition, I am therefore recommend this preparation with the greatest confidence, and therefore fully persuaded from my own experience that it will give Universal Satisfaction; but, at the same time, I do not pretend to assert, as medicines are generally foisted up to the eyes of the public, that it is a "Cure-All," nor that it is under all circumstances, absolutely infallible. Yet I can truly say that I am well acquainted with no chemical composition that acts so well for a tonic—expectorant in chronic cough, and catarrhal affection of debilitated habits, to re-establish a healthy condition of the secretory organs, to promote the dissolution of the deposits, and to give strength to the system—as this Cod-Liver Oil Syrup. Also in allaying the irritability of the muscular fibres of the bronchial tubes of the lungs and the spasmodic contraction of those tubes in the asthmatic patient, or in any case of dyspnea (tightness of breathing). Consumptives will find a great advantage in using this Syrup, not on account of facilitating the expectoration and giving rest, but being very nutritive in itself.

This virtue should draw the attention of the sufferer. There is no medicine which acts so quickly on the respiratory organs as this "Cod Liver Oil Syrup," because it is received into the circulation, and determined to the lungs. The effects of the Syrup have been so successful in removing the various diseases for which I have severally recommended it, that I hereby assure to the public that they need not fear either for me or economy, as it will, in a far greater degree, perform all that is stated in the directions accompanying the Article.

Dose for a growing up person, one teaspoonful four or five times a day.—A child of eight to twelve years, half a teaspoonful three times a day.—From five to ten years of age, twenty drops three or four times a day.

AYER'S
PILLS
Are curing the Sick to an extent never before known of any Medicine.

INVALIDS, READ AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

Judge Pirtle, Esq., the well known performer, of Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, whose choice produce is sold in our market, writes:

"I am happy to say of your Cathartic Pills, they have found them a better family medicine, for children and adults, than Calomel or Jalap. Many of my friends have realized marked benefits from them, and one in particular, who had been troubled with a variety of virtues for driving out diseases and curing the sick. They are mild in their operation, and operate in a manner to make them valued by the public. We are well known."

The venerable Chancellor Wardlaw writes from Barnwell, So. Ca., 1854:

"Dr. J. C. Ayer—Sir: I have taken your Pills with great benefit in my family, having relieved my stomach and bilious headache, which has of late years overtaken me in the spring. A few doses of your Pills cured me. I have used your Cherry Pectoral many years in my family for coughs and colds with unfailing success. You are truly a medicine which cures; and I feel it a pleasure to commend you for the good you have done and are doing."

John F. Delvin, Esq., formerly Conductor on Railroad Co., says:

"Pa. R. R. Office, Philadelphia, Dec. 13, 1853.

"Sir: I take pleasure in adding my testimony to the efficacy of your medicines, having derived very material benefit from the use of both your Pectoral and Cathartic Pills. I have never without them in my family, nor shall I ever consent to be, while my means will procure them."

The widely renowned S. S. Stevens, M. D., of West Newton, Pa., writes:

"Having used your Cathartic Pills in my practice, I certify that experience has proved that they are an invaluable purgative. In cases of disordered functions of the liver, causing headache, indigestion, constipation, and the many variety of diseases that follow, they are a surer remedy than any that I have ever known. Being purgative medicine is required, I confidently recommend these Pills to the public, as superior to any that I have found. They will be found in their operation, and perfectly safe—qualities which render them an invaluable family physic. For years I have for many years known your Cherry Pectoral as the best cough medicine in the world, and these Pills are in no wise inferior to that admirable preparation for the treatment of pulmonic diseases."

"Seton, Ma., Nov. 25, 1853.

"Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir: I am daily afflicted from my birth with scrofula in its worst form, and now, after having taken one bottle of your Sarsaparilla, my sores have been completely cured in a few weeks by your Pills. I have used your Cherry Pectoral with it, and can only be imagined when you realize what I have suffered, and how I am."

"Never until now have I been free from this loathsome disease in some shape. At times it attacked my eyes, and for many years my head, beside the running sores on other parts of my body. I commenced using your Sarsaparilla Pills, and now can entirely free from the complaint. I have taken about eight bottles of the Sarsaparilla, and from every remedy I could try; but a few doses of your Pills have done more towards curing me than I have given them to my children for worms, with the best of effect. I have also used your Cherry Pectoral, and refer to a friend for testimonies, which had troubled him for months, he told me to use it, and it cured him in a few days. You make the best medicine in the world; and I am free to say so."

Read this from the distinguished Solicitor of the Supreme Court, whom all the country knows, and whose name is an unbiased of it. Yours respectfully,

J. LEAKE THATCHER.

"Senate Chamber, Ohio, April 5th, 1854.

"Dr. J. C. Ayer—Sir: I have great satisfaction in informing you that your Cherry Pectoral and Cathartic Pills, both in their first origin trial of the Cathartic Pills, left me by your agent, Mr. Hall, and used by them of the general Rheumatism under which he found me suffering. He has used it several times, and in a few subsequent doses have entirely removed the disease. I feel in better health than I have seen years before, which I attribute entirely to the effects of your Cathartic Pills. Yours with great respect,

LUCIUS B. METCALF."

The above are all from persons well known where they reside, and who would not make these statements were it not a thoroughly convenient that they were true.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass.

GEO. and G. A. BULLOCK, and J. A. VERVAIS, Sandwich;
D. OULLETTE, Windsor:
And every Druggist and Merchant in Canada.

MAPLE LEAF.

"PROGRESS."

VOL. I. SANDWICH, C. W., FRIDAY, MARCH 28, 1856. NO. 5.

THE MAPLE LEAF,

IS PUBLISHED

Every Friday Morning,

BY

J. H. WILKINSON,

BEDFORD STREET,

Sandwich, Canada West.

TERMS:—Eight shillings and ninepence Cy, per annum, if paid in advance; or Ten Shillings at the end of the year,

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Six lines or under, first insertion, 2s 6d, cy
Each subsequent insertion, . . 0 7½ "

Advertisements over six lines, 4d per line for the first insertion, and one penny per line for every subsequent insertion. A liberal discount made to Merchants and others who advertise by the year.

Advertisements sent in for insertion without written directions, will be continued till forbid and the usual rates charged.

CLUBS.

Any person procuring 10 subscribers will be entitled to a copy gratis. Payment to be made in advance.

The JOB OFFICE connected with the "MAPLE LEAF" is in every respect complete for the dispatch of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

Professional Cards.

Mr. William Johnson,
Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c., &c.
Sandwich, C. W.

Mr. Charles Baby,
Attorney and Councillor at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, &c.
Office, Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. J. H. Wilkinson.
Law, Chancery, Conveyancing, and Land Agency Office,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. Louis J. Fluett,
Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, Conveyancer and Land Agent,
Sandwich.

Mr. S. S. Macdonell,
Barrister, Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, &c., &c.
Windsor, C. W.

Mr. John O'Connor, Jun.,
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c.,
Windsor, C. W.

Charles Eugene Casgrain, MD.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Office and Residence, opposite the "Mear's Hotel,"
Sandwich, Canada West.

Dr. Reynolds,
Physician and Surgeon,
Amherstburg.

John Adley,
Physician and Surgeon, &c.,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

ALEXANDER GORDON,
NOTARY PUBLIC AND INSURANCE AGENT
Sandwich & Windsor, Canada West.

John McCrae,
Auctioneer, Insurance and General Agent
Windsor, Canada West.

Bank of Upper Canada Agency,
Windsor, Canada West.
Office hours, 10, A.M., to 3, P.M.

Philip S. Donnelly,
Provincial Land Surveyer, &c.,
Moore, County of Lambton.

P. Marentette,
Gunsmith and Manufacturer of Guns.
Every description of Fire-arms repaired at his shop, on Bedford Street,
Sandwich.

L. P. St. Amour,
IMPORTER, AND WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS CROCKERY, HARDWARE, PERFUMERY, &c.
Sandwich, Canada West.

Sandwich Post Office.
Open daily, from Nine till Twelve, A.M., and from half-past Twelve till Four, P.M.
P. H. MORIN, Post Master.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware Crockery, Boots & Shoes
&C. &C. &C.
Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich.

WILLIAM SWIFT,
MERCHANT TAILOR,

IS prepared to attend upon the Gentlemen of Amherstburg in his line of business, and is not afraid to assert that he will cut and Fit in the latest and most fashionable Styles as well as any Tailor west of London.
Amherstburg, Feb. 29th, 1856.

George Hann,
DEALER IN FURS AND SKINS.
The highest price paid for Shipping Furs at his Fur Store in the Town of Sandwich.
15th March, 1856.

NIAGARA
MUTUAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.

GEORGE BULLOCK, Local Agent for the Townships of Sandwich, Maidstone, Rochester and Tilbury West; also the Village of Windsor. Address, Sandwich Post Office.

ROSE DALE MILLS.

THE highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Rye, Corn, or Buck Wheat, either at the Mills or at the Store of
GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

JAMES JESSOPP,
CARPENTER & JOINER,

WILL always be on hand to attend to the erection of Building, and every description of Carpenter and Joiner work upon the shortest notice.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WARNER'S EXCHANGE,
AMHERSTBURG, C. W.
CHARLES WARNER, PROPRIETOR

THE HOLLY-TREE INN,

A NEW STORY,

BY CHARLES DICKENS.

Continued from our last.

The fire blazed bonnily as it was wont, in the bright grate, and that and the candles made the room, with light and warmth, the very paradise of comfort. Mrs. Tattenhall, a handsome woman of five and thirty or so—she might be more, but she did not look it—was just in the act of pouring the water from a very bright silver tea-pot, and with a sunny, rosy, youthful, and yet matronly face, turned smilingly at his entrance, and said, "Well, my dear, is it not a very cold night?"

"Not in this room, certainly, my dear," said my brother Uriah, "and with such a snuggery before one, who cares for cold outside."

Mrs. Tattenhall gave him a brighter smile still, and the neat Harriet coming in with the toast, the whole family group was speedily seated round the tea-table, and the whole flood of anticipated pleasures and plans of the younger population let loose, and cordially entered into, and widened and improved by my brother Uriah. He promised them an early night at the very best pantomime, and they were to read all about all the pantomimes in the newspapers, and find out which was the best. He meant to take them to see all sorts of sights, and right off-hand on Christmas Eve he was going to set up a Christmas-tree, and have Christkindchen, and all sorts of gifts under it for everybody. He had got it all ready done by a German who came often to his warehouse, and it was somewhere, not far off just now.

"Thank you, papa,—thank you a thousand times. Oh! what heaps of fun!" exclaimed the children, altogether.

"Why, really, my dear," said Mrs. Tattenhal, delighted as the children, "what has come to you? You quite out do yourself good as you always are. You are quite magnificent in your projects."

"To be sure" said Uriah, taking hold of the hands of little Lucy, and dancing round the room with her. "To be sure; we may just as well be merry as sad; it will be all the same a hundred years hence."

Presently the tea-table was cleared, and, as they drew round the fire, my brother Uriah pulled out a book, and said, "George, there's a nice book—begin, and read it aloud: it will be a very pleasant book for these winter evenings before all the dissipation begins. It is Pringle's Adventures in South Africa, and is almost as good as Robinson Crusoe. I knew Pringle well; a lame, little man, that you never would dream could sit on a horse, much less ride after lions and elephants in that style."

"Lions and elephants!" all were silent, and George read on. He read till eight o'clock, their bed-time, and the whole group—parents and children—were equally delighted with it. As they closed the book—"Now," said the father, would it not be grand fun to live out there, and ride after the lions and elephants?"

"Ah! grand fun!" said the boys, but the mother and the girls shuddered at the lions.

"Well, you could stay in the house, you know," said Bob.

"Right, my fine fellow," said the father, clapping him on the shoulder. "So now off to bed, and dream all about it."

When the children were gone my brother Uriah stretched out his feet on the fender and fell into a silence. When my brother's silence had lasted some time his wife said, "Are you sleepy, my dear?"

"No; never was more wakeful," said Uriah; "really, my dear, I never was less inclined to be sprightly: but it wont do to pash the spirits of the children. Let them enjoy the Christmas as much as they can, they will never be young but once."

"What is amiss?" asked Mrs. Tattenhall, with a quick apprehensive look. "Is there something amiss? Good gracious! you frighten me."

"Why no, there is nothing exactly amiss; there is nothing new; but the fact is, I have just taken stock, and to-day finished casting all up, and struck the balance."

"And is it bad? Is it less then you expected?" asked Mrs. Tattenhall, fixing her eyes seriously on her husband's face.

"Bad? No, not bad, nor good. I'll tell you what it is. You've heard of a toad in a mud wall. Well, that's me. Twenty years ago, I went into business with exactly three thousand pounds, and here I have been trading, and fagging, and caring, and getting, and losing, business extending, and profits getting less and less, making large sales, and men breaking directly after, and so the upshot is,—twenty years trade, and the balance the same to a pound as that I began with. Three thousand I started with, and three thousand is precisely my capital at this moment."

"Is that all?" said Mrs. Tattenhall, wonderfully relieved. "Be thankful, my dear Uriah, that you have three thousand pounds. You have your health wonderfully, we have all our health; we have children, as good and promising children as anybody is blest with, and a happy home, and live as well and comfortably as any one need to do, or as I wish, I am sure. What do we want more?"

What do we want more?" said Uriah, drawing up his legs suddenly, and clapping his hands in a positive sort of a way on his knees. "Why, I for one, want a great deal more. We've children, you say, and a home and all that. Heaven be thanked, so we have! but I want our children to have a home after us. Three thousand pounds divided amongst four, leaves about seven hundred and fifty each. Is it worth while to fag a whole life, and leave them that and a like prospect? No," continued Uriah, in a considering manner, and shaking his head, "No I want something more; more for myself; more for them; more room, more scope, a wider horizon, and a more proportionate result of a whole human existence. And do you know Maria what I have come to as the best conclusion? To go out to Australia."

"To go out to Australia!" said Mrs. Tattenhall, in astonishment. "My dear Uriah, you are joking. You mean no such thing."

"But that is just what I do mean," said Uriah, taking his wife's hand affectionately; "I have thought of it long, and the toad-in-the wall balance has determined me. And now what I ask of you is to look at it camly and earnestly. You know the Smiths, the Browns, and the Robinsons have gone out. They report the climate delicious, and that wonders are doing. A new country, if it be a good country, is the place to grow and thrive in, without doubt. Look at the trees in a wood. They grow up and look very fine in the mass. The wood, you say, is a very fine wood; but when you have looked at the individual trees, they are crowded and spindled up. They cannot put a single bough beyond a certain distance; if they attempt it, their presuming twigs are poked back again by sturdy neighbours all round, that are all struggling for light and space like them. Look then at the tree on the open plain,—how it spreads and hangs in grand amplitude its unobstructed boughs and foliage: a lordly object. Just so, this London. It is a vast, a glorious, a most imposing London, but thousands of its individuals in it are pressed and circumscribed to a few square yards and no more. Give me the open plain,—the new country, and then see if I do not put out a better head, and our children too."

Mrs. Tattenhall, now she felt that her husband was in earnest. sat motionless and confounded. The shock had come too suddenly upon her. Her husband, it is true, had often told that things did not move as he wished; that they seemed fixed, and stereotyped, and stagnant; but then, when are merchants satisfied? She never had entertained an idea but that they should go on to the end of the chapter as they had been going on ever since she was married. She was bound up heart and soul with her own country; she had her many friends and relations, with whom she lived on the most cordial terms; all her tastes, feelings, and ideas were English and metropolitan. At the very idea of quitting England, and for so new, and so distant a country, she was seized with an indescribable consternation.

"My dear Maria!" said her husband; "mind, I don't ask you to go at first. You and the children can remain here till I have been and seen what the place and prospects are like. My brother Sam will look after business—he will soon be at home in it—and if all is pleasant, why, you will come then, if not I won't ask you. I'll work out a good round sum myself if possible, or open up some connection that will mend matters here. What can I say more?"

"Nothing, dear Uriah, nothing. But those poor children——————"

"Those poor children!" said Uriah. "Why my dear Maria, if you were to ask them whether they would like a voyage to Australia, to go and see those evergreen woods, and gallop about all amongst gay parrots, and great kangaroos, they would jump off their seats with joy. The spirits of the young are ever on the wing for adventure and new countries. It is the prompting of that Great Power which has constructed all this marvellous universe, and bade mankind multiply and replenish the earth. Don't trouble yourself about them. You saw how they devoured the adventures at the Cape, and you'll see how they will kindle up in a wonderful enthusiasm at the promise of a voyage to Australia. What are pantomimes to that?"

"Poor things!" said Mrs. Tattenhall.—'They know nothing about the reality; all is fairyland and poetry to them."

"The reality! the reality, Maria, will be all fairyland and poetry to them."

Mrs. Tattenhall shook her head, and retired that night—not to sleep, but with a very sad heart to ruminate over this unexpected revelation. My brother's words were realised at the first mention of the project to the children. After the first shock of surprise and doubt whether it were really meant, they became undoubtedly delighted. The end of it was, that by the middle of February, my brother Uriah, having had a handsome offer for his business and stock, had wound up all his affairs; and Mrs. Tattenhall having concluded, like a good wife and mother, to go with the whole family, they bade farewell to England, Mrs. Tattenhall with many tears, Uriah serious and thoughtful, the children full of delight and wonder at everything in the ship.

They had a fine voyage, though with very few passengers, for the captain said there was a temporary damp on the Australian colonies. The order of the Government at home to raise the upset price of land to one pound per acre, had checked emigration, and as there had been a good deal of speculation in Melbourne in town allotments, things just now looked gloomy. This was in eighteen hundred and forty-three. "But it can't last long," said the Captain, "that silly order of raising the price of the land is so palpably absurd; while America is selling land so much nearer at a quarter of the price, that it must be repealed; and then all will be right again."

It was the middle of May when our party arrived in Hobson's Bay. It was very rainy, gloomy weather—the very opposite to all that the climate had been represented in the accounts sent home—but then it was the commencement of winter, the November of our season. Uriah got a boat, and sailed up the winding river to the town. The sail was through a flat tract of land densely overgrown with a mass of close, dark bushes, or some ten feet high, somewhat resembling our sloe-tree, the tea-tree of that country. On reaching the foot of the town, which stood on a range of low hills, Uriah and his companions stepped out into a most appalling slough of black mud, through which thay waded till they reached the town, which was of no great extent, scattered over a considerable space, however, for the number of houses, and with great intervals of woodland, and of places where the stumps, a yard high, remained in unsightly nakedness.

Uriah walked on through a scene which, somehow in keeping with the weather, fell heavily on his spirits. There was nothing doing, or stirring; houses in various degrees of progress stood as they were. There were piles of timber, lime, shingles, posts, and rails, empty wagons and carts, but no people employed about them. On every hand he saw lots marked out for fencing or building upon, but there they remained all stationary.

"Is it Sunday!" Uriah asked himself. No, it was Tuesday. Then why all this stagnation; this solitude? In a lane, or rather deep track of mud and ruts, since known as Flinder's Lane, but then without a name, and only just wide enough between the trees for a cart to pass, Uriah wading and plunging along, the rain meantime pouring, streaming, and drumming down on his umbrella, he came face to face with a large active man in a mackintosh cloak, and an oilskin hood over his head. Neither of them found it very convenient to step out of the middle mud tract, because on each side of it rose a perfect bank of sludge raised by the wheels of drays, and stopping to have a look at each other, the strange man suddenly put out a huge red hand warm and wet, and exclaimed:

"What! Tattenhall! You here! In the name of all wonders what could bring you here at this moment?"

"Well," said Robinson! is that you?" cried Uriah. "Is this your climate? This your paradise!"

"Climate—paradise—be hanged!" said Robinson. "They're well enough. If everything else were as well there would be nought to complain of. But tell me Uriah Tattenhall, with that comfortable Trumpington Cottage at Peckham, with that well-to-do warehouse in the Old Jewry, what could possess you to come here?"

"What should I come for. but to settle?" asked Uriah, somewhat chagrined at this salutation.

"To settle! ha, ha!" burst out Robinson. "Well, as for that, you could not come to a better place. It is a regular settler here. Everything and everybody are settled here out and out. This is a settlement, and no mistake; but it is like a many other settlements, the figures are all on the wrong side the ledger,"

"Good gracious!" said Uriah.

"Nay, it is neither good nor gracious." replied Robinson. "Look round. What do you see? Ruin, desertion, dirt, and the—devil!"

"Why, how is that," asked Uriah. "I thought you, and Jones, and Brown, and all of you had made your fortunes."

"So we had, or were just on the point of doing. We had purchased lots of land for building, and had sold it out again at five hundred per cent., when chop! down come little Lord John with his pound an acre, and heigh, presto! everything goes topsy turvy. Our purchasers are either in the bankruptcy court, or have vanished. By jingo! I could show you such lots, fine lots for houses and gardens, for shops and warehouses; ay, and shops and warehouses upon them too, as would astonish you."

"Well, and what then?" asked Uriah.

"What then! why man don't you comprehend. Emigration is stopped, broken off as short as a pipe-shank, not a soul is coming out to buy and live in all these houses—not a soul except an old—excuse me, Tattenhall, I was going to say, except you and another fool or two. But where do you hang out? Look! there is my house," pointing to a wooden erection near. "I'll come and see you as soon as I know where you fix yourself."

"But mind one thing," crid Uriah, seizing him by the arm as he passed. "For heaven's sake, don't talk in this manner to my wife. It would kill her."

"Oh no, mum's the word! There's no use frightening the woman," said Robinson. "No, confound it, I won't croak anyhow.—And, after all, bad as things are, why, they can't remain so for ever. Nothing ever does, that's one comfort. They'll mend sometime."

'When?" said Uriah.

"Well," said Robinson, pausing a little, "not before you and I meet again, so I may leave that answer to another opportunity;" and with a nod and very knowing look he stalked on.

"Odd fellow," said my brother Uriah. "He is very jocose for a ruined man. What is one to think?" and he waded on. After making a self in the woods somewhere about where the Reverened Mr. Morrison's chapel now stands in Collin's Street, he again came across Robinson who stood at the door of a considerable erection of wattle-and-dab that is, a building of boughs wattled on stakes, and dabbed over with mud; then not not uncommon in Melbourne, and still common enough in the bush. It stood on the hill-side with a swift muddy torrent produced by the rains rushing down the valley below it, towards the river, as it had often done since it bore the name of Swanston Street.

"Here, Tattenhall! here is a pretty go!" shouted Robinson; "a fellow has cut with bag and baggage to-night who owes me four thousand pounds, and has left me a lot more houses and land. That's the way every day. But look, here is a house ready for you. You can't have a better, and you can pay me any trifle you like, something is better than nothing."

He led Uriah in. The house was thoroughly and comfortably furnished; though, of course, very simply, with beds and everything. Uriah in less than a week, was safely established there, and had time to ramble about with his boys, and learn more fully the condition of the colony. It was melancholy beyond description. Wild, reckless speculation brought to a sudden close by the cessation of immigration, had gone like a hurricane over the place, and had left nothing but ruin and paralysis behind it. No words that Robinson had used, or that any man could use, could overpaint the real condition of prostration and of misery. Two hundred and eighty insolvencies in a population of ten thousand, told the tale of awful reality. Uriah was overwhelmed with consternation at the step he had taken. O! how pleasant seemed that Trumpington Cottage, Peckham, and that comfortable warehouse in the Old Jewry, as he viewed them from the Antipodes in the midst of rain and ruin.

What, however, was my brother Uriah's astonishment to see Robinson stalk in the next day, his tall figure having to stoop at every door, and in his brusque, noisy way, go up to Mrs. Tattenhall, and shaking her hand as you would shake the handle of a pump, congratulate her on her arrival in the colony.

"A lucky hit, madam, a most lucky scientific hit! Ah! trust Tattenhall for knowing what he is about."

Mrs. Tattenhall stood with a singular expression of wonder and bewilderment on her countenance, for the condition of the place, and the condolings of several female neighbours who had dropped in Uriah's absence, had induced her to believe that they had made a fatal move of it.

"Why, sar,', said she, "what can you mean, for as I hear, the place is utterly ruined, and certainly it looks like it?"

"Ruined! to be sure it is, at least the people are, more's the pity for me, and the like of me who have lost everything; but for Tattenhall who has everything to gain and money to win it with, why it is the golden opportunity, the very thing! If he had watched at all the four corners of the world, and for a hundred years, he could not have dropped into such a chance. Ah! trust Tattenhall, make me believe he did not plan it." Thrusting his knuckles into Uriah's side, and laughing with a thunder-clap of a laugh that seemed to come from lungs of leather.

"Why, look here now," he continued, drawing a chair and seating himself on its iron edge; "look here now, if you had come six months ago, you could have brought nothing except out of the fire.—Town allotments, land, houses, bread, meat, sugur, everything ten times the natural price: and, now! cheap dog cheap! of no value at all, you might have them for asking for; nay, I could go into a dozen deserted shops and take any quantity for nothing. And property? why three thousand pounds cash would almost buy all the place—all the colony."

"What is the use," asked Mrs. Tattenhall, "of buying a ruined colony?"

"A ruined colony!" said Robinson, edging himself still more forward in his chair, and seeming actually to sit upon nothing, his huge figure and large ruddy face appearing still larger. "The colony. madam, is not ruined: never was ruined, never can be ruined. The people are ruined, a good lot of them; but the colony is a good and a grand colony. God made the colony, and let me tell you, madam," looking very serious, "Providence is no speculator, up today, down to-morrow. What he does.—Well, the people have ruined themselves; but it is out of their power to ruin the colony; no, nor the town. The town and the colony are sound as a bell, never were sounder, never had more stuff in them; never had so much. There is the land still, not a yard of it has gone; no great fellow has put that on his back and gone off with it. The land is there, and the houses, and the merchandise, and the flocks, and herds, and horses: and—what concerns you—"

He sate and looked at Mrs. Tattenhall, who stood there intently listening, and Uriah stood just behind her listening too, and all the children with their mouths open, gazing on the strange man.

"Well, what—what concerns us?" said Mrs. Tattenhall.

"To get a huge, almighty heap of something for nothing," said the large man, stretching out his arms in a circular shape, as if he would enclose a whole globe, and in a low, slow, deep tone, calculated to sink deep into the imaginations of the listeners.

"If we did but know when things would mend;" said my brother Uriah, for the first time venturing to put in a word.

"When!" said Robinson starting up so suddenly that his head struck against a beam in the low one storeyed house. "Confound these low places," said he, turning fiery red, and rubbing his crown, "there will be better anon. When? say ye? Hark ye! this colony is—how old? Eight years! and in eight years what a town! what wealth! what buildings! what a power of sheep and cattle! The place is knocked down, won't it get up again? Ay, and quickly! Here are a pair of sturdy legs," he said, turning to Bob, who flushed up in surprise; "but. Mrs. Tattenhall, you did not teach him to walk without a few tumbles eh? But he got up again, and how he stands now! what a sturdy young rogue it is! And what made him get up again? Because he was young and strong, and the colony is young and strong, madam. Eight years old. What shall I give you for a three thousands pounds purchase made now, three years hence? Just think of that," said the tall man, "just turn that over a time or two," nodding solemnly to my brother, and then to my sister-in-law, and then cautiously glancing at the menacing beam, and with a low duck diving out of the house.

"What a strange fellow!" said Uriah.

"But how true!" said Mrs. Tattenhall.

"How true! What true?" asked Uriah, astonished.

"Why," said Mrs. Tattenhall, "what he says. It is truth, Uriah; we must buy as much as we can."

"But," said Uriah, "only the other day he said the clean contrary. He said everybody was ruined."

"And he says so still," added Mrs. Tattenhall."

"And he says so still," added Mrs. Tattenhall, enthusiastically, "but not the colony.—We must buy! We must buy, and wait.—One day we shall reap a grand harvest.

"Ah!" said Uriah; "so you let yourself, my dear Maria, be thus easily persuaded, because Robinson wants to sell, and thinks we have money?"

"Is it not common sense, however? Is it not the plainest sense?" asked Mrs. Tattenhall. "Do you think this colony is never to recover?"

"Never is a long while," said Uriah.—"But still—"

"Well, we will think it over, and see how the town lies; and where the chief points of it will be, probably, hereafter; and if this Mr. Robinson has any land in such places, I would buy of him, because he has given us the first idea of it."

They thought and looked, and the end of it was, that very soon they had bought up land and houses, chiefly from Robinson, to the amount of two thousand pounds. Robinson fain would not have sold, but have mortgaged; and that fact was the most convincing proof that he was sincere in his expectations of a revival. Time went on.—Things were more and more hopeless.—Uriah, who had nothing else to do, set on and cultivated a garden. He had plenty of garden ground, and his boys helped him, and enjoyed it vastly. As the summer went and melons grew ripe, and there were plenty of green peas and vegetables, by the addition of meat, which was now only one one penny a-pound, they could live almost for nothing; and Uriah thought they could wait and maintain themselves for years, if necessary. So from time to time, one tale of urgent staring distress or another lured him on to take fresh bargains, till he saw himself almost penniless. Things still remained as dead as the very stones or the stumps around them. My brother Uriah began to feel very melancholy; and Mrs. Tattenhall, who had so strongly advised the wholesale purchase of property, looked very serious. Uriah often thought: "Ah! she would do it; but—Bless her! I will never say so, for she did it for the best." But his boys and girls were growing apace, and made him think. "Bless me! In a few years they will be shooting up into men and women; and if this speculation should turn out all moonshine!—if the place should never revive!"

He sate one day on the stump of a tree on a high ground, looking over the bay.—His mind was in the most gloomy, dejected condition. Everything looked dark and hopeless. No evidence of returning life around; no spring in the commercial world: and his good money gone; as he sate thus his eyes fixed on the distance, his mind sunk in the lowering present, a man came up, and asked him to take his land off his hands: to take it, for Heaven's sake, and save his starving family.

"Man!" said Uriah, with a face and a voice so savage that it made the suppliant start, even in his misery. "I have no money! I want no land! I have too much land. You shall have it all for as much as will carry me back to England, and set me down a beggar there."

Poetry.

BURNS.

BY OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

The mountains glitter in the snow,
A thousand leagues asunder;
Yet here, amid the banquet's glow,
I hear their voice of thunder;
Each giant's ice-bound goblet clinks;
A flowing stream is summoned;
Wachusett to Ben Nevis drinks.
Monadnock to Ben Lomond.

Though years have clipped the eagle's plume
That crowned the Chieftain's bonnet,
The sun still sees the heather bloom
The silver mists lie on it;
With tartan kilt and philabeg,,
What strife was ever bolder,
Than his that showed the naked leg
Beneath the plaided shoulder.

The echoes sleep on Cheviot's hills,
That heard the bugles blowing,
When down their sides the crimson rills
With mingled blood were flowing;
The hunts were gallant, hearts were game,—
The slashing on the border,—
The rain that swooped with sword and flame,
Give back to "law and order."

Not while the rocking steeples reel,
With midnight tocsins ringing,
Not while the crashing war-notes peal,
God sets his poets singing;
The bird is silent in the night,
Or shrieks a cry of warning,
While fluttering round the beacon light,—
But hear him greet the morning!

The lark of Scotia's morning sky!
Whose voice may sing his praises?
With heaven's own sunlight in his eye,
He walked among the daisies,
Till through the cloud of fortune's wrong
He soared to fields of glory;
But left his land her sweetest song,
And earth her saddest story.

'Tis not the forts the builder piles
That chain the earth together;
The wedded crowns, the sister isles,
Would laugh at such a tether;
The kindling thought, the throbbing words
That set the pulses beating,
Are stronger than the myriad swords
Of mighty armies meeting.

Thus, while the banquet glows.
Without, the wild winds whistle,
We drink a triple health—the Rose
The Shamrock and the Thistle!
Their blended hues shall never fade,
Till War has crushed his cannon,
Close twined as Ocean currents braid
The Thames, the Clyde, the Shannon.

Miscellany.

A COURTSHIP IN PUNS.—A certain Mr Par being smitten with the charms of a certain Miss Marr, a provincial belle, whom he met at Harrow Gate, was exceedingly perplexed to contrive how he should open his heart to her At length he met her, and it was for the last time that season, at a public breakfast; and in the dread of losing her forever he resolved, even there, to make a desperate effort to pop the question. Fortune favored the attempt. It happened that opposite the gentleman there was a plate of Parmesan cheese, and near the lady stood a crystal dish of marmalade.

"Will you do me the honor to accept of a little Par, Miss Ann?" said the lover with a look full of meaning, and moving his hand towards the cheese.

"Tell me first," replied the damsel with admirable readiness, lifting, at the same time the top of the crystal, "whether or not you are fond of Marr, my lad.

"Above all things in existence! "exclaimed the enraptured youth.

The offers were mutually accepted and understood as pledges of personal attachment by the parties, although nobody else comprehended the equivoque, or discovered anything in the transaction but common civility. The treaty thus opened was soon ratified, and Miss Ann Marr was invested with the title of Mrs. Par.

NAVAL AND MILITARY PREPARATIONS AT PORTSMOUTH.—Portsmouth garrison presents just now the appearance of a town beleagured from the sea and the garrison preparing busily for its defence. A large fleet of ships and gunboats is at anchor in the roadstead off the town, and new batteries and quarters for soldiers are being constructed rapidly within the walls of the fortress. At the top of the town a large range of dwelling houses and the theatre have been pulled down to create more room for military accommodation, while at the bottom a heavy battery of sixteen 66-pounder pivot guns is in course of completion, having taken the place of the old platform of 6-pounder saluting guns. In the rear of these has been erected a large shell magazine, flanked by a high earth mound to protect it from the shot of an enemy seaward; new embrasures for heavy 32-pounders have been cut in the curtain of the ramparts at various points commanding Southsea, where a mud fort has been built near the old stone fortress, Southsea Castle, to strengthen that defence double new bridge is in course of ction south of the single one at ...ss-gate "Point," where a battery and Royal Artillery quarters in rear have for some time been built to protect the mouth of the harbour on the right of the entrance. The Government are also endeavouring to negociate for a large extent of house property in Greenwich and the new St. Further enlarging the barrack accommoda ion, and this to the extent (says military rumour) of 30,000 men! If so, Portsmouth and its adjacent dependencies must become almost exclusively a citadel.

THE FINANCES OF GREAT BRITAIN.—A correspondent of the National Intelligencer, gives the following comparative statements in relation to Great Britain, with the object of showing that while the country is certainly diminishing in its power to sustain the pressure of the debt and its consequences, that pressure was steadily diminishing until the 4th of January, 1854. The war has of course changed the state of things. The grand total of funded and unfunded debt in 1816, when England emerged from the last great war, was £32,038,000 per annum cost of management. On the 5th of January 1854, when England was about to engage in the present war, the aggregate amount of funded and unfunded debt, was £770,928,001, and the total annual charge £27,804,845, or about £3 13s. 7d. per cent per annum. The debt had thus diminished £69,927,999; the cost of annual management £4,233,346. The latter in itself may appear a trifling affair, when applied to the entire debt of £770,923,001, it amounts to no less than £99,577.

HOW CANADA OBTAINED ITS NAME.—The origin of the name Canada is curious enough. The Spaniards visited the country previous to the French, and made particular searches for gold and silver; and finding none, they often said "Aquinada" (there is nothing here.) After the departure of the Spaniards, the French arrived; and as the Indians, who wanted none of their company, supposed they were also Spaniards come on the same errand, and were anxious to inform them that their labor was lost by tarrying in that country, incessantly repeating the Spanish sentence, "Aquinada." The French, who knew as little of Spanish as the Indians, supposed this incessantly, recurring sound was the name of the country, and gave it the name of Canada, which it has borne ever since.

IMMENSE STEAMSHIP.—The tendency in steamship architecture is constantly to larger and larger vessels. And with reason too. Persia is found to consume less coal according to her tonnage than any of her smaller consorts in the Cunard line. She runs faster than any others, carries more freight and passengers, and yet is a much more very little larger crew than they. A new steamer is expected this year from England, properly named the Leviathan. Her tonnage will be 22,000! Her estimated draft of water, 30 feet, has given rise to a question about her port of entry here. Portland, in Maine, claims to be able to accommodate her, while New Yorkers insist that she will be obliged to bring her freight to the Emporium, and say that by going round through Long Island Sound, she can take 30 feet of water to Harris' Point, 18 miles from the Battery. There all her passengers and cargo can be quickly taken by steamboat to the great city.—Albany Jour.

THE NEW GOVERNOR OF BARBADOES.—The Barbadoes Globe of the 24th January announces the arrival of the new Governor, Mr. Hincks, Admiral Lyndsay, and the new Commander of the Forces. Mr. Hincks was received by the Hon. Francis Gobing and Edward Packer, Esq., of the Committee of the Legislature. His Excellency was received with loud huzzas by the concourse of persons that had gathered around, and proceeded at once to the Government House.—Sir William Calebrooke, late Governor, and General Wood, late Commander of the Forces in the Winward Islands, had left for England.

HONOUR TO THE BRAVE.—The handsome monument in memory of the soldiers of the 23rd Regiment who fell at the Alma, is nearly completed, in the Porch of St. Paul's Church. The cost has been defrayed entirely from private subscriptions which there was no difficulty in obtaining. The gallant Regiment was so well known in London, and its part in the great conflict so conspicuous and glorious, that for the Londoners to erect a suitable memorial to their departed friends—men who fell in the very front of the fight—was perfectly natural.—It would have been strange indeed had it been omitted. The place is well chosen; and every one who passes through the porch of St. Paul's to his devotions, must pass by this memorial, and be reminded of his own time coming in a manner to make him hope that he may die as well as the soldiers who fell in the discharge of Duty, whether duty may have called him to warlike or peaceful service. It may remind us too, that should Canadians by any possibility be called to do as they did in former wars, the eyes of the nations will be upon them; and, that they may look to it that with those very incentives to good conduct than had the soldiers of the Alma—with not only national honour, but national existence and the safety of their property and their families at stake —they may emulate the single hearted glorious devotion of these men of the 23rd who fell in the van of England's first battle of this war.—London Herald.

NEW MANUFACTORY IN CANADA—ROCHESTER ENTERPRISE.—Our old townsmen, C. M. St. John late Treasurer of our city, and George Peck, Esq., for many years one of our most successful merchants, but of late a resident of Kentucky, have commenced an entire new manufacturing business for northern latitudes, located at Toronto, C. W. It is no less than the manufacture of pressed, Cavendish and Twist Tobacco from the leaf, which is purchased in the Southern States. They are arranging for the erection of large buildings to carry on their works. They have already put up several tobacco presses, which are in operation. We have seen samples of their manufacture, that are equal to any manufactured in Richmond, Va. or either of the Southern States. The immense amount of tobacco consumed in the two Provinces, together with the vast consumption of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Islands, will give a support to a mammoth establishment, and as the experience of the gentlemen is equal to the task, we have no doubt that they can fully compete with any foreign article that may be exported there.—Rochester Tribune.

From the New York Times.

MR. CRAMPTON THE ONLY PRETEXT FOR A WAR.—The Washington Union of Thursday last concludes a long editorial article published, no doubt, by authority of the administration, with the following important declaration:

"But we cannot forbear to add one remark, which is, that Great Britain is thus threatening the United States with war, not because we have infringed her laws or insulted her sovereignty in any the least thing whatever, but only because, after she had infringed our laws and insulted her sovereignty, we courteously request her to relieve us from the embroglio of her minister, Mr. Crampton, for reasons the most cogent and unanswerable. There is no other cause or pretext of a rupture between the two countries."

"No other cause or pretext for a rupture!" Why, according to the President's message, we had supposed that the Central American embroglio was the main question—that the real causes for war lay in John Bull's violations and false interpretations of the Clayton Bulwer treaty. But now, in effect, we are coolly informed that the patriotic indignation of our President, concerning the usurpations of England in Central America, was all humbug, and that all our efforts to strengthen the administration upon Monroe doctrine have been thrown away, for that there is "no cause or pretext for a rupture," in the affairs of Central America. Curious this, very.

The Union talks, too, of Great Britain threatening us with war. We had supposed on the contrary, that the administration had resolved to get John Bull out of Central America, and that the negotiations to this end had been brought to the alternative of England of a backout or a fight. This was the great feature of the message; and the importance of its developements upon this subject was, if we mistake not, the excuse of the President for sending it up to Congress in advance of the organization of the House. Yet we are told now that Crampton is the only existing "cause or pretext for a rupture between the two countries." Is the Central American issue then abandoned on either side, or postponed indefinitely, or settled, or turned over with the consent of both governments in the hands of Gen. Walker and the Nicaragua Accessory Transit Company? We should really like to know.

Crampton is the only "cause or pretext for a rupture!" We turn back to the affair of the steamer Caroline, and the M'Leod cause, and feel fully authorized to bid the Wall of Wall street, and of good old Revolutionary memory, look out for a squall. A much larger crew than they. A new steamer is expected this year from England, properly named the Leviathan. Her tonnage will be 22,000! Her estimated draft of water, 30 feet, has given rise to a question about her port of entry here. Portland, in Maine, claims to be able to accommodate her, while New Yorkers insist that she will be obliged to bring her freight to the Emporium, and say that by going round through Long Island Sound, she can take 30 feet of water to Harris' Point, 18 miles from the Battery. There all her passengers and cargo can be quickly taken by steamboat to the great city.—Albany Jour.

A Montreal paper states that a letter has latterly been received from France, in which it is mentioned that Commander De Belvere, who, during his official visit to Canada last summer, made so very favorable an impression upon all, is about to be appointed Consul General of France for the British American Provinces. It is stated that he will fix his residence in Montreal.

DESERVED DISTINCTION.—The Canadian people must hear with pleasure that the Queen has been pleased to honor Generals Wetherall and Rowan with the Grand Cross of the Bath. These popular officers have merited by their services the distinction conferred on them. The former acted a prominent part during the insurrection of some nineteen years ago, in the eastern section of our Province, and gained a name by his importan[illegible] action at that critical period. Lieutenant-General Rowan served in the Peninsular war with honor, and is familiar with the events and memorable scenes of that epoch. During his late residence in Canada, in the distinguished position of General of the Forces, he evinced a manner free from the airs too often assumed by the militaires that come among us. Generals Rowan and Wetherall stand prominent among the decores of our army, and deserve another grade, which we hope will be given to them ere promotion becomes too late.

What took the Malakoff?—The Marseillaise!

The Marseillaise Hymn, though long prohibited in France by law, yet remains in full power over the hearts of the populace.—An incident is related, incidentally, by a writer in the last Putnam, which, though hushed up as effectually as it can be by the French Government, is nevertheless true, and is told by the soldiers returned from the Crimea.

Three times in rapid succession had the gallant soldiers of the bravest corps militaire that ever poured from the French eagles into foreign lands, charged upon the most formidable of Russian batteries, and thrice had they been driven back by the murderous fire. A fourth charge was ordered, but no spirit animated the ranks. The cry of Vive le Empereur, came forth with a heartless sound.—"Give us the Marseillaise" was the response of the brave Bosquet—Canrobert—and General Bosquet—elicts imperial to the contrary notwithstanding—under such circumstances, dared not refuse. Victory might be gained by it; defeat was almost certain without it. He ordered the bands to play it—the cold enthusiasm was roused—"Allons enfans de la patrie," arose from every mouth, and the battalions moved forward with an impetuosity and ardor they had not shown before. Cannons belched forth their discordant notes, the mitrie whistled its shrill notes of pain and anguish were not silent, but above all arose those inspiring war-notes, "Aux armers, citoyens," &c., and midst the most terrible concert ears ever listened to "the red field was won," and the Malakoff taken. To that Marseillaise, therefore, may be ascribed the success of that destructive assault.

TIMBER.—So much business has been done in seeling the Quebec pine deals by auction, which had lain over for two years, that it is at length considered the weight of this stock on our market is relieved. The same with Canadian spruce deals. Our stocks at the public docks of colonial deals are the afore sensibly lessened, and we cannot be affected in prices during the cessation of imports. Canadian pine timber, hardwood, and staves, may be deemed almost at nominal high rates; for the business to be done in them is small, working from a small stock here, and not any criterion of value in the new season. Dalle deals, battens, and timber are much depressed in demand and in prices. Selling is very difficult, and only attainable by making cer cessions on battens below the import cost of the past season, or that of the ensuing. Speculative purchases are much up of all outports for the reopening of the Russian trade in the event of peace.—Glasgow Mercantile Journal.

OTTAWA CANAL.—Attention is directed to the remarks of our London Correspondent on the Ottawa Canal. We believe it to be the opinion of all military men, who are at all acquainted with the defences of this province that this canal would be of the greatest service in time of war, as it would afford a safe passage to the Upper Lakes.—If this point were to be properly urged upon the home government, no doubt the matter would be taken up by the Imperial authorities, and the expence defrayed by Great Britain.

MUNICIPAL.

In the matter of Loy and the Municipality of the Township of Clarke.

Alterations of school sections within a township and of union school sections.

Under 13 & 14 Vic. ch. 48, 18, sub sec. 4 the municipality may alter the boundaries of school sections within their townships, by taking from one and adding to another, without any previous request of the freeholders or householders, and notwithstanding their disapprobation of the change, provided that those affected by the alteration have notice of the intention to make it.

But they have no power to alter the boundaries of a union school section, consisting of parts of different townships.

WILSON, Q. C., obtained a rule on the Municipality of Clarke, to shew cause why the by-law of the municipality No. 60, for the extension of the limits of the union school section No. 22 should not be quashed:

1. Because it was passed illegally, there being no request of the majority of the freeholders and householders of the section altered by the by-law, expressed at a public meeting called by the trustees, as required by the statue 13 & 14 Vic. ch. 48, sec. 18, sub-section 4.

2. Because all the parties affected by the alteration were not duly notified of the passing of the by-law.

3. Because the municipality had no power to pass the said by-law, or to alter the limits of the union school section No. 22.

The by-law was passed on the 22rd of December, 1854. It enacted, that from and after the passing of the by-law lot 30, in the 6th concession of Clarke, should be added to and form part of union school section No. 22.

C. ROBINSON shewed cause

The facts are fully stated in the judgement.

ROBINSON, C. J., delivered the judgement of the court.

It is very clearly shewn by the affidavits, which are carefully prepared, that the Municipality of Clarke took upon themselves, without the request or consent of the freeholders and householders, to alter, by the by-law complained of, the limits of the school sections Nos. 22 and 12, in Clarke, by taking from the latter a portion of a lot of land which had formerly belonged to it, and by making the whole of that lot (30, in the 6th concession of Clarke), a part of the section 22, whereas, by the arrangements before established, a part only of the lot 30 was united to that section.

The evidence furnished by the affidavits is quite clear as to the nature of the alteration, and that it was made not only without any request of the freeholders and householders of the sections 12 and 22, but contrary to their wish as expressed at a public meeting; and the application to quash the by-law is made by a ratepayer and freeholder residing in school section 12, from which a portion is taken by this by-law and added to section 22.

It is clear understand the affidavits, school section 22 is wholly in Clarke, and has been united with school section 2 in Darlington. And the by-law (60) complained of, passed by the Municipal Council of Clarke takes away part of lot 30, in the 6th concession of Clarke, which before formed part of school section 12 in Clarke, and adds it to school section 22 in Clarke, forming with 2 in Darlington a united school section.

The affidavits seem to me to be inaccurate in one respect. They state repeatedly that the by-law converts No. 6 into a school section, and unites it with 22. It does no such thing that I can make out, but merely in effect takes part of lot 6 from section 12 and adds it to section 22, the lot and both the sections being wholly in Clarke.

If the by-law had made 6 a complete school section of itself, and then united it with section 22 of Clarke, it would have been a case of a municipal council uniting two school sections of their township; and such a by-law, to make it legal, would have required, under 13 & 14 Vic. ch. 48, sec. 18, sub-sec. 4, the previous consent of the municipal council from a majority of the freeholders or householders of sections 12 and 22.

But what has been done is in fact an alteration of the boundaries of school sections within the limits of Clarke, and the affidavits that the Municipal Council could make such alteration without any previous request from the ratepayers.

But they were bound to see that those to be affected by the alteration had notice of their intention to make it, and the affidavits that such notice was not given. The applicant, Ley, is one of those affected by the alteration, and therefore entitled to move upon that ground.

But, as to the objection, it is evident on the opinion of the sheriff, as well as from affidavits filed on the part part of the defendants, that the inhabitants, both of 12 and 22, had notice, for they met and discussed the proposition before the by-law was passed, and they sent to the Municipal Council notice of their disapproval. They have, therefore, no reason for objecting a want of notice.

They evidently mean to contend that the Municipal Council could not pass the by-law in opposition to their will; but the statute does not seem to us to countenance such a position. Sections in a township cannot be united without the previous request of the inhabitants; but an alteration in the boundaries of a section or of two sections, by taking a piece of one and adding it to another, can be made by the council without such request, though not without its appearing that those to be affected by the change have had notice. If they have any such notice, as it appears they have in this case, their disapproving of the change does not disable the Municipal Council from carrying it into effect, if, after hearing the objections, they should think it expedient to do so.

It is further objected, however, that the Municipal Council had not the power of altering the boundaries of a union school section, which they did in effect when they made the Clarke section 22 larger than it was before, because this section was already added so much to the union section.

The objection, it appears to us, is entitled to prevail, for under the latter part of the 18th clause, it is to the reeves and local superintendents of the two townships that the jurisdiction is given to form or alter union school sections consisting of parts of different townships, and the township councils of either township are excluded from exercising a power of that kind.

We are of opinion that on this ground the by-law is illegal, as having been made by an authority not competent to make it, and must on that account be quashed.

Rule absolute.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

SANDWICH, MARCH 28, 1856.

THE Legislative Council Bill has again passed the House of Assembly, and there is hardly a case on record where so radical a change has been made in the letter and spirit of our constitution, where so little interest appears to have been shown, as in passing the bill for the dissolution of the present Legislative Council. That the change will be an improvement we are inclined to doubt. There is no reason why that body should be made a popular body, when it is intended as a balance of power to the already popular and democratic Assembly. If this House be made as it will by the bill just passed—elective, which majority will be considered the popular one? Will the Upper House admit its inferiority to the Assembly? We think not. Then what will be the consequence of this state of things? Why, useful legislation will be impeded, and a party strife will be entered into between the two houses, which in a young and prosperous country like Canada, cannot happen without causing the greatest injury.

Then there does not appear a necessity for the change; for has not the Council shewn an extraordinary vitality in many of their acts as a legislative body. In rejecting the Seigniorial Bill, introduced and passed by the Assembly, and which was intended to alter the whole system of landed tenure in Lower Canada, and did not the Council remodel the bill in such a manner as to make it suitable to the requirements of the people, and which the Assembly knowing it to be an improvement upon their own, repassed it without amendment. And again, did they not boldly reject this same bill which was intended to destroy their own existence, on a former occasion, when brought to them from the Assembly? There is also an address before the Council to the Queen praying that an union of the British American Provinces may be effected and established under one general Government; and through them no doubt this great and much desired measure will be accomplished, so we can hardly accuse that body of a want of vitality when they have taken so prominent a stand upon measures which have in effect the changing of our whole political system. We certainly hope that this bill, when taken to the Legislative Council for their consideration, will meet with the same fate that it did on a former occasion, and that the Conservative spirit which has always shown itself heretofore in their deliberations, will not at the present time have passed away.

The bill, as passed by the Assembly, enacts that the Legislative Council shall be composed of its present members and of forty-eight new members; twenty-four from each Province, who shall be elected for eight years, and are to be renewed by one-fourth every two years. The qualification for electors of Legislative Councillors to be the same as that for the Assembly.

The mode of determining on the manner in which Councillors will go out for the first term, we give the words of the act itself:

XVIII. "Inasmuch as in order to effect the periodical renewal of the Legislative Council by one-fourth every two years, it is necessary that twelve elected Councillors should go out at the end of every two years after the general election as provided by the ninth section of this Act, twelve at the end of four years and twelve at the end of six years; it shall be determined by lot in the manner provided by Schedule E, which shall be the electoral divisions the seats for which shall so become vacant.

XIX. "For the purpose of such determination by Lot, the electoral divisions shall be united in groups of four each, as in Schedule F.

XX. "A list of the names of the Electoral Divisions the seats for which will become vacant by lot, with the dates at which such vacancies will respectively occur, and of the periods at which the seat for each division will thereafter become vacant, shall be transmitted by the Speaker of the Legislative Council to the Governor, who shall, upon or before the first day of September in every second year, beginning on the first day of the month of September next but two after the passing of this Act, issue Writs for the election of successors to the Councillors going out, in the same manner as provided for the first election

XXI. "Those who shall be elected in the place of the Councillors going out as aforesaid shall be elected for eight years."

SCHEDULE E.

DRAWING BY LOT.

"Within the fifteen days next after the first meeting of Parliament, after the election of the forty-eight Legislative Councillors:

1. The Speaker of the Legislative Council shall, during the sittings of the Council, after having duly notified the said Council thereof, cause to be placed upon the Clerk's table, twelve boxes marked respectively, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12.

2. The names of the forty-eight Electoral Divisions shall be plainly written separately, upon a like number of pieces of paper of the same shape and size.

3. The Clerk shall place these papers in the boxes, one by one, having first shown them and then folded them so as to conceal the writing.

4. He shall place in the same box the names of the Electoral Divisions which, according to Schedule F, form part of the same group; and so on for each group.

5. Having shaken the boxes, he shall withdraw alternately from each one name, which he shall unfold, exhibit and take down.

6. The seats for the twelve Electoral Divisions the names of which shall be first withdrawn, will become vacant on the first Monday of the month of November, two years after the day on which the first Writs of Election shall be issued.

7. The Clerk shall twice repeat the above proceedings in a precisely similar manner. The seats for the twelve Electoral Divisions the names whereof shall be withdrawn from the boxes at the second drawing, shall become vacant on the first Monday of the month of November."

The Speaker will be appointed by the Governor, and selected from the members of the Council as at present.

We cannot imagine what could have induced the Government to take up this measure, when it is not asked for by the country, nor is it needed. The only persons, no doubt, who are most interested are those ultra-radicals who would sweep from the Statute Book every act which has a tendency to preserve our institutions from democracy. If this should unfortunately become the law of the land, the next measure may be elective Judges, Magistrates and Sheriffs.

"In consequence of several stereotyped plates, belonging to persons who advertised for sale, having been taken from our office without our knowledge or consent—and the person in whose possession they now are having very uncourteously refused to give them up—we are unable to give insertion to several advertisements which should, and which, otherwise would have appeared in to-day's issue."

The above we copy from the last number of the Expositor, and suppose it intended for ourselves. If stereotyped plates belonging to persons, &c., were removed from that office without the consent or knowledge of the proprietor, is altogether untrue The facts are simply these: When we purchased the Oak office, and everything in it, from the present proprietor of the Expositor, there happened to be two of "Ayer's" plates, which are the several plates belonging to (of course) several persons we suppose the editor of the Expositor refers to, as there were no others; and as to our removing these several plates without his knowledge or consent, why, he might as well accuse us of removing the whole office without consent, after a delivery having been made to us. But that very courteous gentleman of the Expositor must have quite forgotten the very courteous manner in which he came into the printing office of the Maple Leaf, and laid claim to the printing ink and a few other little articles that happened to have been delivered up with the rest of the office; and would have taken the above several "plates" also, had not our foreman had wit enough to doubt that we had authorized their delivery to the editor of the Expositor. Now this is the way editors and men of the courteous gentleman to do, and we would advise the editor of the Expositor, before accusing us of uncourteous conduct, to mend his own ways a little, so that when he wishes to lecture again he may do so with clean hands. Instead of being accused of such conduct, we certainly think that the late editor of the Oak and present editor of the Expositor, has been most uncourteous to ourselves; and any person who would stoop to enter the office of another and make use of the language that that very courteous editor did to the men working in our office, should be the very last person to make such an insinuation against another,

We regret exceedingly to have been obliged to trespass upon our readers, but we could not allow so false a statement to go abroad without contradiction.

A COUNCIL ON SCHOOLS.

Our confrere of the Lambton Observer is very wrathy over the stupid obstinacy of the Reeves who govern the Lambtonese, in refusing to vote some money for the erection of a Grammar School. Now, first of all, as in duty bound, we condole with our frater in Sarnia in his sad case, but at the same time—being compelled in this new vocation to be impartial—we beg to hint that he has not treated with due consideration the sovereign electors of the County of Lambton. Observer and schoolmen wont wrongly to work.

An old Scotch friend of ours, well to do in the world, but unco' fond o' the bawbees, magnanimously determined to send his son Jock to school; and to school Jock went. But one day he came home with a message from the Domine, requesting that Jock should be supplied with a Grammar. Sandy put on his specs, and resolved himself into a committee of supply. "A Grammar, did ye say, Callan?"—some struggling recollection rising in his mind—"a Grammar? Just ye tell the Domine, Jock, that he's ta learn ye ta read an' write, an' ye'll do brawly. I was ance set till the grammar mysel', an' it ne'er did me ony guid; it's just it' nonsense ta tak' awa' our siller; but fegs, they'll no find me sae saft as a' that, Jock." Now, our good old friend Sandy was no enemy to education, but he was not able to appreciate its blessings, and, from sundry communications we noticed in the Observer, we opine it is even so with the delegated democrats in Lambton. Our Sarnia friends should give the gentlemen private lessons, before next meeting of the northern wisdom, and our word for it they will come down handsomely.

We are happy to be able to inform our contemporary, that we will not require to hang our Leaf on the willow as he advises, in case the Essex Council be a transcript of the Lambton one. The Essex Council is, perhaps, not very remarkable for enterprise, but they have voted £50,000 to build a railway, £10,000 to make roads, and they are willing to vote money to build a superior school, when asked.

DROWNED.—On Thursday, Mr. John De Gau, while Duck Shooting upon the river, below Sandwich, was capsized and unfortunately drowned. Mr. Degau has been favorably known for a long time in this neighborhood, and is son-in-law to Mr. George Lee of this place.

At the Quarterly Meeting of the Board of Public Instruction held in Sandwich, on Wednesday the 26th instant, certificates were granted to the following Teachers:

John Vaughan,	2nd class.
Michael Gehan,	3rd class.
Ralph Foster,	do
John Ogle,	do
Francis Windsor,	do
Henry Villaire,	do
Richard Martyn,	do
Henry Bought,	do
Emile Rondot,	do
Joseph Christie,	do

A NEW SPHERE FOR THE FAIR SEX.—We learn by the Advertiser, that Mrs. Montgemery, wife of the late Lieut. Montgemery, who fell while in service in Oregon, has been appointed Commandant of the U. S. Fort at the head of St. Clair River. Mrs. Montgemery is daughter of several officers. Women's rights must be in a fair prospect, when a field is opened them to martial honors. Who would not be a soldier, with a lady to lead him to death or glory?

GROWN WHEAT FLOUR.—A Firm in Detroit shipped to New York 30,000 barrels of Flour, which was afterwards sent to the English Market. This flour was found to be quite unfit for food and unsaleable. There will be a loss to the parties of over $60,000 on the lot.

☞ MESSRS. Bartley and Pinney have opened an office in this Town, and will attend to the running of lines, and surveying of all descriptions. Mr. Bartley is an old experienced hand in such matters, having been for a long time District Surveyor in the "Brock District." We should say that parties requiring professional gentlemen will do well in procuring their services. See advertisement in another column.

We would direct attention to the advertisement in another column, of the "Illustrated Horticulturist," a monthly journal devoted to the Rural Arts. Published by C Readgles, New York.

THE "ESSEX EXPOSITOR.—We have received the first number of the Expositor, a paper to be published hereafter in Windsor, by the former proprietor and editor of the Oak. It makes a very respectable appearance.

To the Editor of the "Maple Leaf."

SIR,—About two weeks ago, a letter appeared in the Toronto Colonist, on the subject of the Pensioners, signed "A Sandwich Lady." Although rather late, you would oblige the Sandwich ladies by stating that it was not written by one of them at all.

Yours truly,
AN INJURED PART.

Sandwich, March 24th, 1856.

SPEECH OF THE FRENCH EMPEROR.

The Legislative Session was opened on Monday at a few minutes after one o'clock, by the Emperor in person, at the Tuilleries, in the Salle des Marechaux. On entering the salle a loud cry of "Vive l'Empereur!" was raised. The Emperor then said. "Gentlemen, be seated," and took his seat himself upon the throne. His Majesty then, in the midst of the most profound silence, delivered the following Speech:—

Gentlemen,—When last I called you together it was a time of serious solicitudes. The Allied armies were being exhausted by a siege in which the obstinacy of the defence made success appear doubtful. Europe, under a sense of uncertainty, seemed to await the end of the struggle before pronouncing on either side. To sustain a war I asked a loan which you voted unanimously, although it might appear excessive. The high prices of commodities threatened the labouring classes with general distress, and a perturbation of the monetary system gave cause to apprehend a decline of the transactions of commerce and manufactures.

But, thanks to your aid, thanks to the energies displayed in France and England, thanks especially to the support of Providence, these dangers, if they have not entirely vanished, are for the most part overcome. A grand feat of arms has decided, in favour of the Allied armies, a war whose intensity is without example in history. Since that event the opinion of Europe has been more openly pronounced. Everywhere our alliance have been extended and confirmed.—The third loan has been opened without difficulty. The country has given me new proofs of its confidence by subscribing a sum five times greater than that which I had asked, It has supported with admirable resignation the sufferings inseparable from a dearth of provisions—sufferings which, however, have been mitigated by private charity, by the zeal of the municipalities, and by the ten million francs distributed to the departments. Arrivals of foreign wheats are now producing a sensible diminution of prices. The fears caused by the disappearance of gold are passing away, and employment has never been more plentiful nor the public revenues more considerable. The advantages of war have re-awakened the military spirit of the nation. Volunteer enrolments were never so enormous, nor was more ardour ever exhibited by the conscripts drawn by lot.

To this brief outline of the situation I have to add facts of a high political signification. The Queen of Great Britain, wishing to give a proof of her confidence and her esteem for our country, and to render our relations more intimate, visited France. The enthusiastic reception which she found here must have convinced her Majesty how profound were the sentiments inspired by her presence, and how well they were calculated to fortify the alliance of the two peoples. The King of Piedmont, who without looking behind him, had embraced our cause with that vigorous courage which had formerly distinguished him on the battle field, has also visited France to consecrate a union that was already cemented by the bravery of his soldiers.

The Sovereigns have had opportunities of seeing a country, but lately so agitated and disinherited of its place in the councils of Europe, today prosperous, peaceable, and respected—also visited War, not with the moral delirium of passion, but with the calmness of justice and the serenity of duty. They have seen France, which sent two hundred thousand men across seas, convoke at the same time, at Paris, all the arts of peace, as if she had meant to say to Europe

"For me, the days of war, not with the rage that is but an episode in my life and my strength are still engaged in the arts of peace; let us neglect nothing to understand each other, and do not compel me to bring all the resources and all the energies of a great nation to bear upon the battle-field."

This appeal seems to have been heard; and the winter, by suspending hostilities, has favored the intervention of diplomacy. Austria resolved on a decisive step, which introduced all the influence of the Sovereign of a vast empire into the deliberations. Sweden united herself more intimately with England and France, by a treaty which guaranteed the wholeness of her territory. Lastly from the the Cabinets, counsels or prayers arrived at St. Petersburg.

The Emperor of Russia—the inheritor of a situation which he had not created—appeared animated with a sincere desire to put an end to the causes which had brought on this sanguinary conflict. He accepted with determination the propositions transmitted by Austria. The honour of his arms having been satisfied, the Emperor did himself honour when he deferred to the claims expressed by the Allied Powers.

The Plenipotentiaries of the belligerent and allied Powers are now met at Paris to decide on the conditions of peace. The spirit of moderation and equity which animates all of them bids us hope a favourable result. Nevertheless, let us await with dignity the end of these conferences, and be equally ready either to draw the sword, if we must, or to extend the hand in friendship to those who have fairly met us in the field. Whatever may happen, let us occupy ourselves in striving, by all proper means to increase the strength and riches of France. If I am ever fully closed, if it be possible, the alliance formed by a community of glory and sacrifices, and the reciprocal advantages of which peace would make yet more apparent. And finally, in this solemn moment of the world's destinies, let us put our confidence in God, who will guide our efforts in the way most comfortable to the interests of humanity and civilisation.

The Speech was received with loud and enthusiastic applause, and by loud cries of "Vive l'Empereur!"

THE LEGEND OF THE KOH-I-NOOR.

There is a strange and gloomy superstition in India respecting the possession of the Koh-i-noor—that famous diamond which all England went mad to see in the Crystal Palace Hyde Park, which the Hindoos say, entails ruin and destruction on every dynasty that possesses it. This is its history, as far as it can be traced. The first three years of the Koh i-noor are lost, like the beginning of all great things, in the obscurity and midst of time. Meer Joomlah, its first historical possessor, is supposed to have torn it from a native Hindoo prince, and is known to have presented it, with other jewels, the Emperor of Hidoston. With him then begins its historical existence. At the death of Aurungzebe, the fortunes of his house declined, and the Empire, consolidated by him with so much skill and power, crumbled by the Emperor in person, at the Tuilleries, in the Salle des Marechaux. On entering the salle a loud cry of "Vive l'Empereur!" was raised. The Emperor then said. "Gentlemen, be seated," and took his seat himself upon the throne. His Majesty then, in the midst of the most profound silence, delivered the following Speech:—

Gentlemen,—When last I called you together it was a time of serious solicitudes. The Allied armies were being exhausted by a siege in which the obstinacy of the defence made success appear doubtful. Europe, under a sense of uncertainty, seemed to await the end of the struggle before pronouncing on either side. To sustain a war I asked a loan which you voted unanimously, although it might appear excessive. The high prices of commodities threatened the labouring classes with general distress, and a perturbation of the monetary system gave cause to apprehend a decline of the transactions of commerce and manufactures.

But, thanks to your aid, thanks to the energies displayed in France and England, thanks especially to the support of Providence, these dangers, if they have not entirely vanished, are for the most part overcome. A grand feat of arms has decided, in favour of the Allied armies, a war whose intensity is without example in history. Since that event the opinion of Europe has been more openly pronounced. Everywhere our alliance have been extended and confirmed.—The third loan has been opened without difficulty. The country has given me new proofs of its confidence by subscribing a sum five times greater than that which I had asked, It has supported with admirable resignation the sufferings inseparable from a dearth of provisions—sufferings which, however, have been mitigated by private charity, by the zeal of the municipalities, and by the ten million francs distributed to the departments. Arrivals of foreign wheats are now producing a sensible diminution of prices. The fears caused by the disappearance of gold are passing away, and employment has never been more plentiful ty possessing the fatal gem can prosper or continue. This superstition has a material truth. So many foregoing coincidences could not fail of leading to a like conclusion for that which is to come after; the dark shadow of such a past inevitably fall on the pathway of the future. But it has also a spiritual truth, which is, that ill-gotten wealth seldom prospers with those who have gotten it, and that, if justice sleeps for one generation, she wakens up with her naked sword brandished before the eyes of another.

The Koh-i-noor has been fatal to all its possessors, because they ruled lawlessly, and they plundered ruthlessly and, plundered wealth turned to cursings not blessings in their hands. With us—when the people of India shall be ruled in justice and in mercy—the chief ruler of England may wear the Koh-i-noor on a brow unstained by its mystical blaze; but until then, until justice and lawlessness, right and not violence, stand by the Indian throne in our British halls of Government, we may fear that the fate of the Koh-i-noor may be fulfilled here as in Hindostan, and that ruin may follow robbery, and judgement come after crime.

Sir Wm. E. Logan.

The gentleman who left us to attend the Exposition at Paris, plain Mr. Logan, has returned to us with the honour of knighthood conferred by the Queen, and with yet greater distinctions showered upon him by his brother savans of England and France. The French Emperor gave him the decoration of the Legion of Honour, the Exhibition awarded him the Gold Medal of the highest class—and lastly the Geological Society of England presents him with the Wollaston medal, the most distinguished mark of appreciation which a geologist can receive. Wollaston, the celebrated geologist, was the discoverer of the metal called palladium, which is found only in very small grains in veins in which gold and platina are discovered. It is ductile as well as malleable, and is of a steel grey colour. To commemorate his discovery, a medal, composed of the metal he brought to light, was provided, to be awarded by the Geological society, to whomsoever, during each year, exhibits the most distinguished excellence in geological science. The selection of Sir William as the medallist of 1855, shows how highly scientific men in England value his talents and exertions. But, perhaps, this will be ma le more evident, by the following document:—

AWARD OF THE WOLLASTON MEDAL AT THE ANNIVERSARY MEETING OF THE GEOLOGICAL SOCIETY OF LONDON IN FEBRUARY, 1856.

The President of the Geological Society, Mr. W. Hamilton, having pointed out in an eloquent address in the chair, the grounds on which the Council had awarded the Wollaston Medal to Sir W. Logan, Sir Roderick Murchison replied:

Sir:—As Sir William Logan was in the earlier part of his scientific career a distinguished pupil of the School of Mines and Geological Survey, and as my lamented predecessor, Sir Henry De la Beche, had formed the highest opinion of his capacity, it naturally gives me sincere pleasure to be the medium of transmitting to him this Wollaston Medal.

Although the Atlantic has unfortunately separated us for most of the period during which our medallist was occupied in successfully advancing Geological Science in his native country, Canada, it has been a source of true gratification to me to observe the very valuable manner in which he has elaborated the full and accurate succession of the most ancient rocks of the vast regions he has surveyed, and how clearly he has separated the great series of fundamental sedimentary, unfossiliferous rocks termed Laurentian or Cambrian, from those Silurian rocks which in common with all Geologists of the United Stated until the present moment, he has placed in parallel with the Lower as well as the Upper Silurian of Britain and Europe.

The skilful manner in which he has followed out the course of these ancient Silurian deposits from their undisturbed and unbroken sequence over vast tracts of the West, to the sea-bound or Eastern Region of North America, where they have been contorted, broken up, metamorphosed and mineralized, will doubtless be considered among the most remarkable labours of our honoured associates.

Whilst in his younger days he established, by close and repeated observations, that natural history constant to which he so justly alluded and which has enabled us to read off the true history of the greater number of Coal Fields, his maps and sections illustrating the structure of the Canadas, prepared in the vast wilds of that country, amidst hardships and privations unknown to European Explorers, will be the imperishable records of his fame as a practicable Geologist.

The devotion and untiring energy with which he arranged, developed and explained the natural productions of Canada, first at the great British Exhibition of 1851, and recently at the great Exposition at Paris, have obtained for him honor both from his own gracious Sovereign and from the Emperor of the French, and I have now only to assure you, Sir, that no one of those well merited honours will be more highly estimated by him than the marked approbation of his brother geologists, in bestowing upon him their highest distinction, the Wollaston Medal.

Mr. Logan is a native of the province; the son, not of an Imperial officer, a mere bird of passage, but of a resident, and one engaged in mercantile pursuits as well as such, every Canadian will join with us in expressing his joy and pride that he has earned honour so high. Not only is he known as a scientific Canadian, but it is from the study of the geological structure of his native soil that he has earned his chief renown. Although long a resident in Great Britain, it was his connection with the geological survey of Canada, a survey ordered and supported by the Canadian people, which brought him prominently before the public.

We understand that Mr. Logan intends remaining some time in Toronto, and it has been proposed that a public dinner should be given in his honour, an idea which we are sure will be gladly welcomed by our citizens. A preparatory meeting will be held in the City Hall, on Thursday, at 3 o'clock, at which gentlemen interested are requested to be present.—Globe.

Two weeks ago we announced, on what we believed good authority, that E. B. Ward had sold his fleet of steamers to a company of ten persons, who either then were, or had formerly been in his employment. Some parties here seemed inclined to call the announcement in question, because they had heard nothing of it; and the Port Huron Commercial "presumed" that the statement war erroneous, so far as related to the Forest Queen, which he "understood from pretty good authority, is under the control of Eber Ward 2nd." Notwithstanding these doubts and hints to the contrary, we believe our information will turn out to be substantially correct. Capt. Ward has sold all his boats as we stated; but there is a condition attached to the sale of the Forester, and possibly also to that of his interest in the Forest Queen, depending on the opposition which they may encounter on the line between Detroit and the different ports to which they used to sail: the purchasers being apparently afraid that they may not be able to make anything upon their bargain, so far as the two vessels mentioned are concerned. As to opposition, we believe there is every likelihood of any amount of that: the Canadian will be again put on her old route, and the Ploughboy is already advertised to run between Chatham and Goderich; so that there is every appearance of an increase of our commercial facilities, corresponding with the progressive increase of business at our western ports.—Lambton Observer.

KERTCH.

Advices from the Crimea state that on the 29th Feb. General Vivian was preparing a grand reconnaissance from Kertch in the direction of Arabat, where the Russians have been concentrating a large force.

RUSSIAN SHIPS OF WAR IN THE BALTIC.

A despatch from Hamburg, bearing date the 5th inst., mentions that two Russian ships of war accompanied by three gun-boats had sailed out of Sweaborg after the breaking up of the ice, and had appeared in the Baltic.

DIED

At Sandwich, Mrs. Theresa St. Amour, wife of Mr. L. P. St. Amour, on Wednesday the 26th inst., aged 21 years and 2 months.

SANDWICH MARKET.

"Maple Leaf" Office, 27th March, 1856.
Flour Best warranted,	$ 8 00	$ 8 50
" 2nd quality .	7 00	7 50
Buckwheat Flour,	3 00	4 00
Rye "	3 00	3 50
Timothy Seed,	4 00	4 00
Clover,		6 00
Corn Meal per 100	1 50	2 00
Corn per bushel, 56lbs.	0 51	0 00
Oats " do 34lbs.	0 37½	0 00
Potatoes do	0 44	0 50
Wheat do 60lbs,	1 00	1 25
Barley do 48lbs,	0 75	0 00
Hay per Ton	10 00	12 00
Straw per load	1 50	2 00
Wood per cord (Hard)	2 00	0 00
do Mixed	1 50	0 00
Pork per 100lbs.	6 00	6 50
Beef " "	5 00	6 00

DETROIT MARKET.

Flour.	$5 25.
Wheat.	1 12.
Corn.	0 50.
Oats.	0 36.
Pork	6 50.

Detroit, 27th March 1856.

Notice.

THE PUBLIC WHARF in the Town of Sandwich will be rented to the highest bidder, on Monday next the 31st inst., at twelve o'clock noon, for the term of one year from the first of April next.

By order,
D. MOYNAHAN,
Township Clerk.

Sandwich, 25th March, 1856.

LAFFERTY & JONES,
AUCTIONEERS AND APPRAISERS,
Amherstburg, Canada West.

Bartley and Pinney,
PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.
Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.

TO BE LET FOR EIGHT YEARS,
A TWO STORY FRAME HOUSE with a Half-Acre Garden, on Lot No 4, West Side of Peter Street.

To be let subject to all Repairs and Taxes. A large reduction will be made to any person paying three years' rent in advance. For further particulars enquire of

J. GREEN,
Great Western Boot and Shoe Store,
Sandwich Side of Alfred Street, Sandwich.

27th March, 1856.
N.B.—Possession will be given on the first of May next.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

COUNTY OF ESSEX } By virtue of a writ to wit; } of fieri facias issued out of Court of Common Pleas at Toronto, to me directed, against the lands and tenements of Alfred Baby at the suit of James Olwell and Mathew Olwell, I have seized and taken in execution the following lands viz: water lot number three on the East, water lots numbers three, four, and fourteen on the west, and land and water lots numbers thirteen and sixteen on the north side of Sandwich Street, in the village of Windsor, being part of the Town Plot of Windsor, as laid out on the Estate of the late Francois Baby, Esq., and Park Lots numbers one and twelve, Field lots letter E Village lots numbers nine and ten on the south side of Sandwich Street, lots numbers twenty-one and twenty-two, north side of Pitt Street, lots numbers one and two on the south side of Pitt street, lots numbers eight and nine on the north side of Chatham Street, in Block G; lot number two on the south side of Chatham Street, lot number five on the north side of London Street, in Block E, lots three and four on the south side of London Street Block G, in the Village of Windsor in the County of Essex, and lot number twenty-eight in the first Concession two hundred acres of land, all of which property I shall offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich on Saturday the twenty-eighth day of June next at twelve o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY.
Sheriff

Sheriffs office, Sandwich,
27th March.

BARTLEY AND PINNEY,
PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.

MAPS AND PLANS drawn in the first style. Estimates, Specifications, &c., of all kinds prepared at short notice. All work entrusted to us shall be executed with punctuality and despatch.

Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.
March 28, 1856. n5ly

Notice.

COUNTY OF ESSEX } NOTICE is hereby given to wit: } on that a Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the said County, will be holden at the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, on Tuesday the first day of April next, at the hour of Ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all Coroners, Justices, Gaolers, Bailiffs, Constables, Jurors, and all others in anywise concerned are required and enjoined to attend, to do and perform all those things which to their office belong and appertain.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.
Sheriff's Office, Sandwich, }
1st March, 1856. }

Notice.

COUNTY OF ESSEX } Notice is hereby given to wit: } on that the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol delivery Assize and Nisi Prius, in and for the said County, will be held at the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, on Tuesday the twenty-second day of April next, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all Coroners, Justices, Gaolers, Bailiffs Constables, and all others in any way concerned are required to attend, to do and perform all those things which to their office belong and appertain.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.
Sheriff's Office, Sandwich, }
1st March, 1856. }

CARPETS. CARPETS.
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

THE Subscribers have just received, ex "London," a Large Stock of BRUSSELS, TAPESTRY AND SCOTCH CARPETINGS
which they are prepared to offer at low prices, and are well worthy of inspection.

T. B. & J. HARRIS,
Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

DETROIT SEED STORE
AND
AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.

I would call the attention of Farmers and Gardeners to my present stock of Agricultural Implements, consisting of the most useful and latest improved kind of Ploughs, Hay and Corn Shall Cutting Boxes, Cultivators, Seed Planters, Corn Shellers, Fan Mills, Root Pullers, Corn Planters, Cob Crushers, Churns, &c. Garden, Field, and Flower Seeds, raised by the most experienced and careful growers in this country and England, and I think purchasers may feel confident that every kind sold will prove true to their name, and give perfect satisfaction. All seed offered for sale will be of the present year's growth when offered as such.

E. F. PARKER.
75 Woodward Avenue, Detroit.

S. D. ELWOOD & CO.,
PUBLISHERS,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
BOOKS, STATIONERY,
AND ALL KINDS OF PAPERHES,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS STOCK
MANUFACTURERS OF
BLANK BOOKS
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

Orders for Lithographed Letter and Bill Heads, Maps, Drafts, Stock Certificates, &c., &c., &c.,
EXECUTED WITH PROMPTNESS.
192 Jefferson Avenue,
S. D. ELWOOD, } DETROIT.
J. C. PARSONS, }
Feb 29th, 1856.

A RARE CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY
IS NOW OFFERED IN
E. BEVARD'S
GRAND GIFT ENTERPRISE
AND LOTTERY,
to take place at
SANDWICH,
ON THE 19th APRIL, 1856.

ALL PRIZES! NO BLANKS.

The following is a List of a few of the Prizes:

2 Shares in Sandwich Street Plank Road Company, worth . . .	$60
A Glass Case, . . .	40
A Bure Cooking Stove, .	40
A Buggy Harness, . .	40
Trotting Waggon, . .	90
Double Barrel Gun, .	20
Dress Coat (new) . .	18
Frock do . .	18
Single Barrel Gun, .	15
Do do do, .	15
Settee, ...	12
Rocking Chair, . .	12
Lot of Dishes, . .	11
Six Shooter, . . .	10
Box Stove, . . .	10
20 Yards Carpet, . .	10
Eight Day Clock, . .	8
Do do . .	8
Looking Glass, . .	5
Pair of Shanghais, . .	5

Together with other articles amounting to FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

On the day of drawing, the holders of tickets will have the privilege of appointing a Committee to regulate the mode of drawing, &c., &c. If the tickets are not all sold by the day appointed for drawing, due notice will be given of the postponement in the "Maple Leaf."

Tickets, One Dollar Each.

DIVISION COURTS FOR ESSEX.

1st. Sandwich Monday, 12th May, 1856.
2nd. Amherstburg, Saturday, 12th April.
3rd. Kingsville, Wednesday, 16th do.
4th. Colchester, Monday, 14th do.
5th. Mersea, Friday, 18th do.
6th. Simon's, Middle Road, Saturday, 17th, May
Sandwich 12th Feb. 1856.

SPRING CIRCUITS.

HOME CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Sir John Beverley Robinson, Bart.
Milton.	Monday, 17th March,
Barrie.	Tuesday, 25th March,
Niagara.	Tuesday, 22nd April,
Hamilton	Tuesday, 13th May,
Sydenham	Tuesday, 27th May,

EASTERN CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Draper
Brockville	Monday, 31st April,
Cornwall	Monday, 24th April,
L'Original	Thursday, 8th May,
Ottawa	Monday, 12th May,
Perth	Thursday, 22nd May.

MIDLAND CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice McLean.
Whitby	Wednesday, 26th March,
Peterborough	Tuesday, 8th April,
Coburg	Monday, 14th April,
Belleville	Thursday, 24th April,
Picton	Tuesday, 6th May,
Kingston	Tuesday, 13th May,

OXFORD CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Burns.
Brantford	Tuesday, 22nd April,
Simcoe	Tuesday, 29th April,
Woodstock	Monday, 5th May.
Stratford	Wednesday, 14th May,
Berlin	Tuesday, 20th May,
Guelph	Monday, 26th May.

WESTERN CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Hagarty.
Goderich	Wednesday, 5th March,
St. Thomas	Wednesday, 12th March,
London	Wednesday, 19th March,
Chatham	Tuesday, 15th April,
Sandwich	Tuesday, 22nd April,
Sarnia	Tuesday, 29th April.

CITY OF TORONTO.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Richards.
Toronto.	Monday, 5th May.

PAINT SHOP.

FRANCOIS PAYETTE having opened a Paint Shop in the Town of Sandwich, opposite the "Sandwich Exchange," will be happy to attend to the painting of houses, Graining, Glazing, Varnishing, and, in fact, every description of work in his line of business with despatch, and at moderate charges.

N.B.—Buggies and Carriages painted and varnished upon reasonable terms.

Sandwich, 9th March, 1856.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

ALL Persons to whom the late Mr. John McCormick, of Point Pelée Island, deceased, stood indebted at the time of his decease, are requested to send in their accounts forthwith to the undersigned or either of them.

MARY MCCORMICK.
DAVID MCCORMICK.
WILLIAM MCCORMICK

Point Pelée Island,
7th March, 1856.

SIMPSON'S EATING SALOON.

MR. SIMPSON would inform the Gentlemen of Sandwich and vicinity that he is prepared at all hours to furnish "Hot Meals," and those who may favor his establishment with a call, can depend upon having, if they wish, a "steak" cooked in the good old English style, with all the little etceteras.

Dinner Parties accommodated upon the shortest notice.

N.B.—A few persons can be accommodated with good clean beds.

No 253 Jefferson Avenue Detroit Mich. few doors above the Theatre.

TO RENT.

A DRUG STORE, with a large and well selected stock of Drugs and Medicines, in the Town of Sandwich. The Store will be leased for a term of years, and the Drugs and Medicines will be sold on reasonable terms. The selection cannot be surpassed in Upper Canada. Possession given on the first day of July next, if required. The present proprietor is about entering other business, which will prevent him attending to the Drug business, and which is the only reason for his retiring from he trade. For particulars inquire of

J. ADLEY.
Sandwich, 15th March, 1855.

TO LET OR FOR SALE.

A Brick House and Lot, on No. 4, East side of Main Street, fronting "Mears' Hotel." The above property will be leased for $150 a year; or, for particulars of sale apply to

STANISLAUS LASALINE.
Sandwich, 20th March, 1856.

Sandwich and Windsor Stage.
BY JOHN LEWIS.

THE Proprietor of this popular line has added a new Stage and first-rate horses, and will hereafter run an Hourly Stage to Windsor with speed and punctuality. He hopes to merit the patronage of the public.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

NOTICE.

A BAY PONEY came in the barn yard on the "Hand's Farm," about the 1st February last, and unless the owner comes to claim the same and pay the charges, it will be impounded and sold.

Hand's Farm, 15th March, 1856.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

THE SANDWICH MILLINERY AND DRESS MAKING Establishment will be reopened for the season.

The Proprietor having just returned from the Eastern Cities with a Large Stock of Millinery and Dress Goods of the latest style and fashion, which he offers for sale at a small advance from their original Cost.

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE
L. P. ST. AMOUR.
Sandwich, Feb 20th, 1856.

Beacon
FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE CO
of London.

Incorporated under Act of Imperial Parliament, 7 and 8 Vic., Chap. 1.

CANADA BOARD.
KINGSTON.
TRUSTEES.
The Hon John A Macdonald.
James Morton, Esquire.
DIRECTORS:
M. W. Strange, Esq., Chairman,
Thos. A. Corbett, Esq., Deputy Chairman.
James Morton, Esq. John Mowatt, Esq
James Hatty, Esq. A. J Macdonell, Esq.
Lewis Walbridge, Esq. T. Clarkson, Esq.
MONTREAL.
Wm. Molson, Esq. Thomas Evans, Esq.
Damase Masson, Esquire,

This Company Insures all descriptions of Buildings, Manufactories, Mills, &c, and Goods or Furniture in the same, against loss or damage by fire, on liberal terms. All descriptions of Life Risks, taken at as low rates as are consistent with security to the assured. Losses promptly settled without reference to England.

ALEX. GORDON,
Agent at Windsor for Western Frontier
March 7, 1856.

EXECUTORS' NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to all persons indebted to the late ALPHEUS MORSE, of the Town of Sandwich, deceased and late of the Firm of MORSE AND CALVIN, Lumbermen, to make payment to the undersigned, and all persons having claims against the said A. MORSE or MORSE AND CALVIN, are requested to present them for payment prior to the 1st day of May next to

ELECTA MORSE } Executors.
H. C. GUILLOT }
Sandwich, Feb. 29th 1856.

J. H. ALLISON,
IMPORTER OF
IMPROVED
RAILROAD WATCHES.

Cased in beautiful styles warranted excellent time-keepers: do. Swiss full jeweled Levers of every style.

GOLD PENS.

I continue manufacturing Pens of every desirable pattern; those Pens have received
A SILVER MEDAL & DIPLOMA
At the Michigan State Fair, and are not to be surpassed by any Pens in the market.
ALSO DEALER IN FINE JEWELRY,
SILVER WARE,
AND FANCY GOODS.

I have an experienced Jeweller, capable of making New Work to order,
SETTING STONES AND DIAMOND WORK, &c.,
FIRE GILDING AND GALVANIZING
Done at Short Notice.

WATCH REPAIRING.

Being a Practical Workman, all work entrusted to my care will be carefully attended to.

GOLD PENS RE-POINTED
at 50 cents all sizes. Orders sent by mail, accompanied by cash, will be promptly attended to.

J. H. ALLISON,
No. 176 Jefferson Ave.
Feb. 20th, 1856.

CIGAR FACTORY.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the inhabitants of Amherstburg and vicinity that he has opened a Cigar Factory in the above Town, where every description of the choicest kind are always on hand. He has also lately imported from Havana a large quantity of the very best Principe and every other description of Cigars, which he intends to sell at a much smaller price than can be had in Detroit. Call and see him, and he will give a puff.

JOHN N. MILLER.
Sandwich, 29th Feb. 1856.

Crockery Store and China Emporium.

F. P. MATHER & Co., IMPORTERS and Dealers in Crockery, China, Glass, Britannia and Silver Plated Ware, Lamps and Looking Glasses, Table Cutlery and Fancy Wares, "Signof the Big White Pitcher," No. 224 Jefferson Avenue, Kearsley's Block, opposite Fireman's Hall, Detroit, Michigan.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

Closing Up.

THE Subscriber, having determined to bring his business to a close by the first day of July next, begs most respectfully to return his grateful acknowledgments to his Customers and the Public generally for their liberal support for the past. He now offers his present Stock, comprising a general assortment of at reduced prices to close up. To any person desirous to engage in the business, he will dispose of the stock at cost. The residence occupied by the subscriber also. The place of business is offered for sale at a bargain (the premises comprising half an acre front by one in the rear, with three substantial buildings, and other out-houses in good order.

Dry Goods, Groceries Boots and Shoes, Crockery, Hardware &c. &c.

He would request all persons indebted to him to call and settle up, either with the cash or notes at short date, and Persons having claims will please present them for payment with as little delay as possible. From and after this date, no credit will be given to any person, as the goods will be sold at reduced prices, and for the cash only or its equivalent.

H. C. GUILLOT.
Sandwich, 14th March, 1856.

Family Stores.

THE Subscriber keeps constantly on hand a large and well selected assortment of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware and Crockery,

at his old stand on Bedford Street, which he will sell, at a small advance upon cost, for Cash.

A large supply of the very best Flour always on hand.

Produce and Cord Wood bought and sold.

JOSEPH MILLER.
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

New Harness and Saddlery Establishment.

A. C. ELLIS.

Every description of LIGHT and FANCY BUGGY HARNESS, made in the most fashionable styles.

HEAVY HARNESSES constantly on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.

SADDLES of every description made to order on the shortest notice.

CARRIAGE and BUGGY TRIMMING done in a style not to be surpassed.

A large assortment of WHIPS always kept on hand.

In his Store, adjoining Mr Guillot's, will be found every description of Goods in his line of business. Every endeavor will be made to give entire satisfaction to his Customers.

N.B.—Cord Wood, Hides, and Produce wanted, for which the highest price will be given.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. &c. &c.
AT THE REGULATOR.

THE Subscribers would invite the attention of their Friends and the Public generally to their new and complete Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c., which they are now offering low for cash.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

N.B.—The highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all kinds of Produce.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, } BY virtue of a writ of TO WIT: } Fieris Facias issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex against the lands and Tenements of Alfred Baby, and to me directed, at the suit of Dennis Ouellette, I have seized and taken the following lands and tenements, viz.: Water Lot number three on the East, and Water Lots numbers three, four and fourteen West, and Land and Water Lots numbers thirteen and sixteen, all on the North side of Sandwich Street in the Village of Windsor, and being part of the Town plot of Windsor, as laid out on the estate of the late Francis Baby, Esquire, all which property, or the interest of the said Alfred Baby in and to the same, I will offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Saturday the first day of May, one thousand and eight hundred and fifty-six, at 12 o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich,
29th February, 1856.

New Livery Stable.

JOHN LEWIS, having purchased the Livery Stable in the Town of Sandwich, formerly kept by C. F. Labadie, will carry it on in a style that has never been known in this place before. Fresh horses and new carriages are being added to this establishment every day, and persons who patronise him may expect to be furnished with "Crack Teams."

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

NOTICE.

TO ALL IT MAY CONCERN.

ALL persons owing the subscriber are hereby notified that payment must be made on or before the 12th day of April next if they wish to save the costs of collection.

TO RENT.

The House and Premises in which the subscriber lives. Terms $24 per quarter payable in advance. Possession given on the first of May next.

GEORGE HANN.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

LOTS FOR SALE IN THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.

PART of Lot No. 3: on the west side of Bedford Street, with a good Store thereon. Also, Lots 7 and 8, adjoining the residence of L. A. Pluett, Esquire, with dwelling house and stables. Those Lots will be sold subject to incumbrances.

For particulars apply to
J. H. WILKINSON.
Or to Arthur or J. A. Verrais.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

LOT No. Four, in the 4th Concession, Gosfield.

J. H. WILKINSON.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

FOR SALE.
(ON TIME.)

AN Eighteen-Horse Power Engine and Boiler complete. Apply to

GEO. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

New Establishment.

ESTABLISHMENT.

THE Subscriber begs leave to notify the Public that he will carry on business in the building lately occupied by T. Murphy, opposite the Hennell Hotel, where he intends to carry on the Tailoring Business in all its branches, and hopes by strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage.

N. B.—He will receive the Report of Fashion monthly.

Cutting done to order.

W. T. BASSANDALE.
Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

AGRICULTURE, &c.

Wretched Pasturage.

In volume eleven of the Journal of the Royal Agricultural Society, we find remarks "wretched pasturage," which vividly brings to our recollection many a sterile field, valuable only for starving the animals doomed to subsist thereon. Judged by its results, one might say that the art of tillage and husbandry consists in making one spire of grass grow where three grew before. Colman says: "In Ireland, after an exhausting course of potatoes and oats, the ground is left out 'to rest' for several years." While the soil is "resting" the people of the 'Green Isle" are expatriated by hundreds of thousands. To cure wretched pasturage, and prevent the constant increase of the ills, a better system of agriculture must be universally practised. Limeing, reseeding and manuring, are the remedies most successfully used in Great Britain. We hope Professor Emmons of Albany will soon bring his recently discovered phosphate of lime (apatite) into market. It is said to contain over 90 per cent of pure phosphate. The New Jersey mineral is equally valuable. We have just analyzed two specimens of gypsum, one from Alabama and the other from Tennessee, and from recently discovered beds both of which are equal to Nova Scotia plaster. We have a sample of nearly pure carbonate of potash from Utah, which is from a mineral spring that yields it abundantly. So soon as a railroad shall be built to the Rocky Mountains, potash will be an article of export. In Texas, there is a salt lake, yielding minerals so cheaply that they can be used for agricultural purposes. Should this natural deposite contain considerable potash and magnesia, as well as soda, it will be very valuable to renovate old pastures. If one could procure ashes enough to give all his fields a top-dressing, it would improve the herbage immensely; but ashes are not to be had in any large quantities. Probably the subsoil is the most available source from which to draw the mineral elements of clover, timothy and other grasses on farms after being "wretched pasturage." Marl, with lime, bone dust, shading the ground with straw and forest leaves, which rotting, form manure, are all popular and often efficient remedies. Every farmer who can should save grass seed, and always have a little on hand to apply to places that need it. American pastures and meadows yield on an average, about one fourth as much feed as they ought to produce, take one year with another. We have often thought that a cow's eyes should be at least as big as her belly to see grass enough to fill her stomach once a day on farms that we have visited.

Mixing Gypsum with Manure.

In the June number of the American Farmer published in Baltimore, the Editor devotes over twelve pages to the discussion of the propriety of mixing gypsum with guano and other animal excretions, or manures. A correspondent had condemned the practice on the ground that the strength of guano and the dung of domestic animals was greatly impaired by the addition of plaster. As may well be supposed, the evidence in favor of mixing gypsum with putrescent manures is overwhelmingly abundant. Those that use the latter should also bear in mind to spread over the excrements of horses and cattle in stables having plank floors, the latter will soon give way by the corrosion, or rotting of the wood, and a valuable horse may break a leg in breaking through a plank on which he stands. Accidents of this kind have happened.

Incidentally the Editor of the Farmer copies the remark; "that a plant growing in a glass vessel, will decompose the glass to obtain the potash which enters into its composition." This is an error which has been handed down in our periodical literature from one to another. Glass is often corroded in soils, but not by the roots of plants that may happen to be in contact with it, but by carbonic acid, either from mould or from the atmosphere and rain-water. Glass tumblers used to drink Congress water, so highly charged with carbonic acid at Saratoga, soon part with their clearness and become rough from the chemical action of said acid. The chemical changes that transpire about the roots of the plants, are mainly, if not entirely, independent of their presence. It is true that interpores and cells present unequal facilities for dissolved salts to enter into general circulation through them—a fact for which no sufficient reason has been found. The growth of a plant, from the first expansion of its germ to full maturity, and the passage of nutritive matter through the walls of minute cells and along continuous canals or tubers, from the extremities of roots to the extremities of leaves, and from the leaves to the roots again, present phenomena which we intend to discuss at some length in future numbers of this journal. The inside work of plants and animals should be better understood.

GOUBER PEA, OR PEA-NUT.—Where the climate and soil suit, this is a valuable crop. The nuts are capital for hogs and the haulm makes excellent hay. In some parts of Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama it is an agricultural staple, and extensively grown for export. They are quoted in Nashville at from 75 to 100 cents a bushel. They have been grown in Genesee county, Western New York, but flourish best where it is warm enough to bring sweet potatoes to perfection. A correspondent writing from Hickman county, Tennessee, says; "The ground is well prepared by plowing and pulverizing, and the peas are planted in ridges or hills and cultivated like other hoed crops. The peas are produced in the ground, the tops running over the same. About the last of September or first of October, they are ripe and ready for harvesting. This is done by first carefully cutting off the tops which are cured for hay. A plow then runs round a row of peas turning a furrow away from it, and then they can be lifted by hand, and after shaking the dirt off, are left out in the sun on the vines. If the ground is wet, they should be picked and taken to some dry place to cure."

In Georgia, it is common to let hogs gather a good share of the crop, as they do peas and oats in some of the western states. Where ground peas are a market crop, the gathering and curing are the principal expense. A light, sandy loam is most favorable to their production.

HENNELL HOUSE,

LATE FREE MASON'S TAVERN,
Sandwich.

THIS House is pleasantly situated at the terminus of the New Gravel Road from Windsor to Sandwich, and possesses all the requisites which are generally met with in first class hotels—Good Beds, superior Stabling, and unimpeachable Liquors.

From the long experience of the present proprietor in this line of business, he is enabled to meet the wishes of his patrons, in every particular, with promptness; and he will make it his study so to treat his visitors, that they may leave him with perfect satisfaction, and return with pleasure future occasions.

WM. HENNELL.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th.

SANDWICH EXCHANJE,

BEDFORD STREET, SANDWICH.

JACOB STUTTZ

IN returning thanks for past favors, begs to inform his Friends and the Public that he still keeps on hand the best of every thing to suit the taste and comfort of his customers, and trusts that by assiduity and attention to business, to merit their patronage and support.

N.B.—A Good Stable and Shed.

WESTERN HOTEL,

BY CYRUS DOBSON.

THIS Hotel, adjoining the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, has been put in fresh repair, and the Proprietor hopes that, by strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a share of public patronage.

N.B.—There is an excellent stable attached to the premises, and an attentive ostler will always be in attendance.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

THE COTTAGE INN,

BY ALEXANDER REAUME,

THE Proprietor having lately leased the above comfortable premises, and having thoroughly repaired and refurnished the same, will be happy to attend upon the travelling public at all hours. A supply of good old Ohio and Hot Water will always be found at the Bar, with all other choice Liquors.

The COTTAGE INN has good and comfortable Stables attached.

ALEXANDER REAUME.

Anderdon, February 29th, 1856.

TRAVELLERS' HOME,

T. HALEY, PROPRIETOR,

(Formerly of Aylmer, Canada West.)

THIS House having been fitted up in the neatest and most comfortable style, the Proprietor hopes that, by keeping the choicest Liquors and a strict attention to business, to be able to give entire satisfaction to all who may give him a call. Attentive waiters and a well supplied table will always be found here.

Good Stabling and an attentive Ostler always in attendance.

N.B.—FRESH OYSTERS always on hand.

Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

PRINCE ALBERT HOTEL.

THIS Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Warner, has been thoroughly renovated, and will be kept well supplied with the very best liquors. An attentive man will always be in attendance to take charge of horses.

A private Parlor, for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen, has been fitted up.

F. X. TRUDELL,
Sandwich Street, Proprietor.
29th February, 1856.

BROOKER'S TAVERN.

WM. BROOKER is prepared to attend upon his Customers at his new and well-furnished house near the Canard Bridge, where the Traveller will have his wants attended to in regard to good liquors, and his friends may expect to find every accommodation as usual.

A supply of Groceries always kept on hand which will be sold very cheap.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROYAL EXCHANGE.

J. L. McGEE,

BEGS to announce to the Travelling Community, and Public in general, that he has opened the above new TAVERN, with good accommodations, and hopes by attention to his business, to merit a share of public patronage. A choice selection of Groceries always on hand.

Maidstone Cross, February 29th, 1856.

MANSION HOUSE.

THIS new and commodious Inn is now completely finished, and the Proprietor hopes, that by a strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to receive a continuance of the patronage which was so liberally awarded him at his old stand.

ALONZO BROWN,
Maidstone Cross, Proprietor.
7th March, 1856.

AMERICAN HOTEL.

COURT HOUSE SQUARE, LONDON, C. W.

ROBERT ARKELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and Travellers that he has taken the above Hotel, which has undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The house is in a fine open, airy and central situation, and commands a beautiful view of the valley of the Thames and surrounding country.

The Table is supplied with all the delicacies of the season. The Wines and Liquors will be of the best brands, and he trusts by assiduity and attention to the comfort of his guests to merit their patronage and support.

ROBERT ARKELL.

London, 29th Feb. 1856.

WARNER'S EXCHANGE,

AMHERSTBURG, C. W.

THE SUBSCRIBER has leased the "Lalonde Stand," second door above the Prince Albert Hotel, Murray Street, for a term of years, and has it repaired throughout, furnished with new furniture, bedding, &c., and now open for the accommodation of the travelling public, and by strict attention to business he hopes to receive a liberal share of the same.

HIS TABLE

will be well supplied with all the luxuries of the season.

HIS BAR

will always contain the choicest brands of Liquors.

His Stables and Shed are large and convenient.

Persons wishing good Board will find this a convenient place, being a central place of business.

CHARLES WARNER.

Amherstburg, March 14th, 1856.

INTERNATIONAL

BILLIARD SALOON,

Windsor, C.W., opposite the Depot of the Great Western Railway.

T. M. HOWRIGAN,
Proprietor.

The above Saloon is neatly and commodiously fitted up, the Proprietor having spared no expense for the purpose of rendering it attractive to visitors.

The best of Cigars, Wines and Liquors always on hand.

Windsor, Feb. 29th, 1856.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

COURTER HOUSE

Corner of Erie and Seneca Streets,
Nearly Opposite the Buffalo & N. Falls Railroad.
H. H. COURTER, MANAGER.

VISITORS visiting the Courter House, Buffalo, will find every convenience and attention at reasonable charges. Tenteateers visiting Buffalo, will find this Hotel calculated to meet their wishes.

Buffalo, 29th Feb. 1856.

New Wholesale
GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT!

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and the Trade generally, that he has commenced business on his own account, in this City, as a

WHOLESALE GENERAL GROCER.

And is now receiving a large and carefully selected Stock of

GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, OILS, PAINTS, &c., &c., &c.

To which he confidently invites the attention of Western and City Merchants.

Premises, King Street West, opposite Messrs. McKeand, Bross & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods Warehouse.

I. McKENZIE.

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TO BE SOLD

CHEAP FOR CASH,

The property of a person going to England, the following Real Property, viz:

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with January, 1855. The following gentlemen eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial departments:—H. T. KNIGHT, JAMES SOWDEN and D. W. RAY.

TERMS: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

N.B.—Newspapers inserting the above prospectus, and drawing attention editorially to the same, will be forwarded the ILLUSTRATED HORTICULTURIST for one year, a copy containing the advertisement should be sent in all cases to ensure attention.

Address

C. READLES, Publisher,
Illustrated Horticulturist
208, BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

NEW VOLUME OF THE

AGRICULTURIST

SUBSCRIPTION REDUCED FROM 25 TO 50 PER CENT.

The Canadian Agriculturist

Has now reached the eighth volume, having been established by the present proprietor in 1848, and is too well known to the leading farmers of the British Provinces, to need any eulogism from us. The undersigned has made arrangements with the proprietor to publish the next, and probably succeeding volumes, and have resolved to make important improvements in the work, while at the same time its price will be considerably reduced.

THE AGRICULTURIST

Is published Monthly, on good Paper, each number containing 32 pages, making at the end of the year a handsome volume of 384 pages.

EVERY NUMBER WILL BE

Illustrated with Engravings

Such as Farm Implements, Portraits of Animals, designs of Farm Buildings, New Inventions, &c., &c., interesting to the Farmer, and also portraits of some of the most Distinguished Agriculturists.

The Work will be conducted as usual by WILLIAM MACDOUGALL, Esq., who has resumed the practice of Agriculture near this city. His personal experience of the improvements made in our Agricultural Legislation since 1847, and having also been connected with this Journal from its commencement, he requires no recommendation from us.

PROFESSOR BUCKLAND, of the Toronto University, whose labors and writings in behalf of Canadian Agriculture are known and appreciated throughout the Province, will contribute to its columns as usual.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS

Of known ability have also been engaged. Efforts will be made to extend the correspondence on subjects of a practical kind.

THE AGRICULTURIST IS NOT LIABLE TO POSTAGE.

WIMAN & Co, Publishers
Toronto, March, 1856.

COMBS.

Back, fine, coarse, and pocket combs, both horn and wood combs, the latest style of Bloomer Combs.

CLOCKS.

Clocks at $1.25, warranted good time pieces; prices at wholesale a good deal less.

ENGLISH CUTLERY.

Bowie Knives, Razors, and a very large stock of Pocket Cutlery. Revolving Pistols, Double and Single Barreled Guns, Yankee notions and Gilt Jewelry.

A very large stock of Notions, country merchants and peddlers' attention is called to examine this stock, before purchasing elsewhere.

Pins, Needles, Thread, Buttons, Tape Bobbin, Carpet Bags, Umbrellas, Suspenders Tobacco Boxes, Snuffs and Eyes, Whalebone, Feather Dusters, Horse Brushes, Shoe Brushes Tooth and Clothing Brushes, Pedlers, Accessories, Pins, Indian Beads and Rings, and Pins, Gilt and Plated Watches at two dollars a piece; in fact all sorts, from a needle to an anchor, and from an anchor to a fish pin; nothing but what is looking at, and not over two doors from Griswold street, on Jefferson avenue, opposite the U. S. Court Room.

J. W. JOHNSTON.

MEETING OF PARLIAMENT

THE PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT assembled in Toronto, for the despatch of Business

On Friday 15th February

The Globe will contain a full report of the Debates made each day to the hour of going to press; and will have the most reliable political intelligence at its earliest moment.

THE DAILY "GLOBE"

Will be sent four months for TWO DOLLARS.

THE TRI-WEEKLY "GLOBE"

Will be sent three months for ONE DOLLAR!

Orders should be sent in immediately so as to secure the Debates from the commencement of the Session.

GLOBE OFFICE,
Toronto, February 14, 1856.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

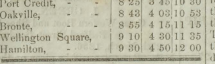
To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rood of Suburban Art, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded; together with the superior typographical execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

JUST PUBLISHED,

CANADA,

PHYSICAL, Economic and Social, by Adam Lille, D.D. One Volume, 12mo, about 500 Pages. Maps of Canada East & West. Cloth 5s.; Stiff Covers 3s 9d.

MACLEAR & CO.,
Publishers, Toronto.



N.B.—Sent by Post to any part of North America or Europe, if desired.

Toronto, Feb. 29th, 1856.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

Hamilton and Toronto Branch.

ALTERATION OF TIME.

ON and after MONDAY NEXT, the 10th December, trains will run daily (Sundays excepted,) between Hamilton and Toronto, as follows:

GOING WEST

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed Mail
	A M	P M	P M
Toronto,	8 00	3 20	10 00
Mimico,	8 10	3 30	10 15
Port Credit,	8 25	3 45	10 30
Oakville,	8 43	4 03	10 53
Bronte,	8 55	4 15	11 5
Wellington Square,	9 10	4 30	11 35
Hamilton,	9 30	4 50	12 00

GOING EAST.

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed Mail
	A M	P M	A M
Hamilton,	10 40	6 10	3 10
Wellington Square,	11 00	6 30	3 35
Bronte,	11 15	6 46	3 55
Oakville,	11 27	7 00	4 15
Port Credit,	11 45	7 20	4 55
Mimico,	12 00	7 35	4 50
Toronto,	12 15	7 50	5 05

The above Trains connect at Hamilton with Trains of Great Western Railway running in connection with Trains to Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, Boston, New York, and with Michigan Central Railroad Trains at Detroit for Chicago, St. Louis, &c, &c.

The 3 20 Train from Toronto meets G W R Accommodation Train going West at Hamilton, for Preston Galt, Paris, London, and intermediate Stations

Through Tickets for any of the above places can be obtained at the Ticket Office, Toronto Station

Stages run daily between Oakville, Milton, Georgetown, &c, &c, &c.

C. J. BRYDGES,
Managing Director
Great Western Railway Offices,
Hamilton, 1856.

TO be published monthly, price half-a-dollar per annum,

The Churchman's Friend,

For the diffusion of information relative to the Church of England, her Doctrine and Ordinances. Edited by Edward H. Dewar, M.A., Rector of Sandwich, assisted by other Clergymen.

Sandwich, March 15th, 1856.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN.

ELEVENTH YEAR.

SPLENDID ENGRAVINGS AND PRIZES.

THE Eleventh Annual Volume of this useful publication commences on the 17 day of September next.

The "SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN" is an Illustrated Periodical, devoted chiefly to the promulgation of information relating to the various Mechanic and Chemic Arts, Industrial Manufactures, Agriculture, Patents, Inventions Engineering, Millwork, and all interests which the light of PRACTICAL SCIENCE is calculated to advance.

Reports of U. S. Patents granted are also published every week, including Official Copies of all the Patent Claims, together with news and information upon Thousands of other Subjects.

The contributors to the Scientific American are among the most Eminent Scientific and practical men of the times. The Editorial Department is universally acknowledged to be distinguished, not only for the excellence and truthfulness of its discussions but for the fearlessness with which error is combated and false theories are exploded.

Mechanics, Inventors, Engineers Chemists, Manufacturers, Agriculturists, and People of every Profession of Life, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN to be of great value in their respective callings. Its counsels and suggestions will save them Hundreds of Dollars annually, besides affording them a continual source of knowledge, the experience of which is beyond pecuniary estimate.

The Scientific American is published once a week; every number contains eight large quarto pages, forming annually a complete and splendid volume, illustrated with several hundred original engravings.

Specimen copies sent gratis.

TERMS.—Single subscriptions, $2 a year or $1 for six months. Five copies for six months, $4: for a year, $8.

For further Club rates and for statement of the fourteen large Cash Prizes, offered by the publishers, see Scientific American.

Southern, Western and Canada money or Post Office Stamps, taken at par for subscriptions.

Letters should be directed (post paid) to

MUNN & CO.,
128 Fulton St. New York

Messrs Munn & Co. have been, for many years extensively engaged procuring patents for new inventions, and will advise inventors without charge in regard to the novelty of their improvements.

JUST PUBLISHED,

CANADA,

PHYSICAL, Economic and Social, by Adam Lille, D.D. One Volume, 12mo, about 500 Pages. Maps of Canada East & West. Cloth 5s.; Stiff Covers 3s 9d.

MACLEAR & CO.,
Publishers, Toronto.

N.B.—Sent by Post to any part of North America or Europe, if desired.

Toronto, Feb. 29th, 1856.

HIDES WANTED.

ANY Quantity of Hides will be taken in for the Sandwich Tannery at either of the Saddler's Shops in Sandwich or Windsor, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

JAS. WOODBRIDGE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Patent Medicines.

THE CHEST.

Sir Astley Cooper, Bart., M. D.,

THE eminent Medical Practitioner, has left a valuable legacy to the world in his Great Preventative of Consumption, and unfailing cure for Pulmonary Diseases, without the use of Medicine. Sir Astley Cooper, Bart., invented and advised the use of the

MEDICATED FUR CHEST PROTECTOR,

To all persons of all ages and conditions, as a certain and a safe shield against those fearful diseases, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs, Colds, and other afflictions of the Lungs, which arise from the exposed state of the Chest, according to fashion and the continual changes of our climate.

"The Protector" is simply a chemically prepared, fur, lined with silk and padded, which, suspended from the neck, covers the chest, in so agreeable a manner, that, once worn it becomes a necessity and a comfort.

"The Protector," although but recently introduced into America is making rapid progress in the United States, the West Indies, South America, and the West Indies. It has for a long time been a staple article in England and on the continent of Europe while it has grown in many countries to the position of an article of dress.

To demonstrate these facts enquire of any English resident in your vicinity of his knowledge of the beneficial effects of wearing the Protector without recourse to doctoring of any kind.

The cost of wearing these articles is a mere trifle and one will last some years. No one who values the health of himself or his family will be without them. The Municipals in this country are not alone recommending them. Harcourt, Bradley & Co., of London, and Manchester, England, were originally entrusted with the manufacture of the Protectors, by the inventor Dr. Cooper, and continue to manufacture according to his original instructions, and therefore recommend those who would wear "The Protectors," to see to their being genuine.

Remember this is a staple article and no Patent Medicine.

RETAIL PRICES.

Gent's Size, - -	$1.50 each.
Ladies do. - -	1.00 do.
Boy's & Misses' do. -	75 do.

HARCOURT, BRADLEY & CO.,
38 Ann Street and 102 Wood Street, New York U. S.

Principal Warehouse, 102 Wood Street, Cheapside, London, Manufactory, 44 Market Street, Manchester, England.

H. B. & Co. are establishing Depots for the sale of "The Protector" in all parts of America. Physicians, Surgeons, Druggists, Clothiers, Dry Goods Merchants, Hatters, and Milliners, also Gentleman's Furnishing Store-Keepers are entrusted with the wholesale and retail distribution of them, and to whom most liberal terms are offered for their enterprise, and a splendid opportunity opens for safe and profitable business.

For terms, apply to

HARCOURT, BRADLEY & CO.,
38, Ann Street, New York.

DR. VERVAIS

Pulmonic Syrup,

A NEW PREPARATION OF

COD LIVER OIL SYRUP,

FOR THE CURE OF

COLDS, COUGHS, ASTHMA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, AND ALL DISEASES OF THE LUNGS.

SINCE so many excellent Medicines have been offered to the Public, and by excellent physicians, it might be thought superfluous on my part to offer any NEW PREPARATION. But from many years of observation and practice, both in the laboratory and with my patients, I find that the most valuable preparation is the best that has yet been offered to the public. The Chemical Composition is such that the disagreeable taste is removed without in the least diminishing the efficacy of the Oil. It can be taken with perfect safety in all cases, and at all ages, without injuring the constitution. And its properties are so remarkable as instantaneously to remove the nervous irritability of the Lungs, soften the Cough, and remove the dryness of the Throat and the viscid phlegm with which the passage of the Lungs are loaded. It diffuses a gentle warmth throughout the system, secures a free circulation of the blood, and opens every pore of the skin,—thus giving universal relief to the diseased, which all systems engender, and which are the true origin of nearly all the diseases to which the human race is liable. Too much cannot be said in favor of a Medicine which will restore the languishing and dying patient from a death-bed to the best health, and make him enjoy the real blessing of a healthy constitution. We have now the radical cure, "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup," which I notedly recommend, but WARRANT TO CURE the diseases for which it is recommended, in numerous cases in the use of a bottle or two. The most ample experience justifies the Proprietor in speaking so candidly and confidently of his discovery, when Patients who have been suffering from severe cough, whooping-cough, colds and pectoral affections, have with the use of a few bottles, not only restored to their wonted health, but even felt their constitution stronger than for many years previous. All persons who have once used the Medicine have instantly ordered more for themselves and friends. The Proprietor again reiterates that his preparation to be everything he claims for it; and he only asks the trial of a single bottle to convince every one that it is without doubt or limitation the most palatable, speedy, and efficacious Medicine ever made use of in America. He has especially devoted 12 years to the preparation of such Medicines, and he can at last hail with pleasure and delight this wonderful preparation of the only effeacious Remedy for the cure of nearly all Diseases of the Lungs, particularly Hectic Fevers, Night Sweats, Dyspnea, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all Pains in the Chest. I have only further to add that this Compound has not been extended beyond my limits as a prescription until astonishing success attended its use in removing the diseases for which it is recommended it. It became very popular, and was called for so frequently, I found it necessary to prepare it in large quantities to meet the constant demand for it. Since this Medicine is carefully compounded by myself, who am thoroughly acquainted with the chemical combinations and effects of each article separately, and of their combined influence when chemically united and have also a perfect knowledge of the human system, and of the functions of each organ both in its healthy and diseased condition, I can therefore recommend this preparation with the greatest confidence, and am therefore fully persuaded from past experience that it will give Universal Satisfaction; but, at the same time, I do not pretend to assert, as medicines are generally foisted upon the public, that this is a "Cure-All," nor that it is, under all circumstances, absolutely infallible. Yet I can truly say that I am acquainted with no chemical composition that acts so well for a tonic—expectorant in chronic cough, and catarrhal affection of debilitated habits, to re-establish a healthy condition of the secretory organs, to promote the dissolution of the deposite, and to give strength to the system—as this Cod-Liver Oil Syrup. Also in allaying the irritability of the muscular fibres of the bronchial tubes of the lungs and the spasmodic contraction of the air tubes in the asthmatic patient, or in any case of dyspnea (tightness of breathing). Consumptive patients will find a great advantage in using this Syrup, not on account of facilitating the expectoration and giving rest, but being very nutritive in itself.

This virtue is now called to the attention of the sufferer. There is no medicine which acts so quickly on the respiratory organs as this "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup," because it is received into the circulation, and determined to the lungs. The effects of the Syrup have been so successful in removing the various diseases for which I have so severally recommended it, that I hereby assure the public that they need not fear either to use or recommend it; as it will, in a far greater degree, perform all that is stated in the directions accompanying the Article.

DOSE for a grown up person, one teaspoonful four or five times a day.—A child of eight to twelve years, half a teaspoonful three times a day—from one to two years of age, twenty drops three or four times a day.

AYER'S PILLS

Are curing the Sick to an extent never before known of any Medicine.

INVALIDS, READ AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

JULES HAUEL, Esq., the well known perfumer, of Chestnut street, says the cross above engraved are found at almost every toilet, says:

"I am aware of most of the Patent Medicine Pills, that have found them a better family medicine, for common use, than any others which have come under my notice, and I include with me in believing that Ayer's Cathartic Pills, are the best antidote for most diseases and curing the sick. They are not only effectual, but such pleasant purgatives that people will take them when they are known."

The late Chancellor WARDLAW writes from Sandwich, 19th April, 1854:

"Dr. J. C. AYER—Sir: I have taken your Pills with great benefit, for the listlessness, languor, loss of appetite, and bilious headache, which are the primary symptoms of me in the spring. A few doses of your Pills cured me. I have used your Cherry Pectoral with great success in my family for coughs and colds with unfailing success. You make medicines which cure, and I feel it a pleasure to recommend you for the good you have done and are doing."

JOHN F. BEATTY, Esq., Sec. of the Penn. Railroad Co. says:

"Pa. R. R. Office, Philadelphia, Dec. 13, 1853.

"Sir: I take pleasure in adding my testimony to the efficacy of your medicines, having derived very material benefit from the use of both your Pectoral and Cathartic Pills. I am never without them in my family, nor shall I ever consent to do so, while they can be procured.

The widely renowned S. S. STEVENS, M. D., of West Point, writes:

"Having used your CATHARTIC PILLS in my practice, I gladly give expression to my belief that they are a valuable purgative. In cases of disordered functions of the liver, causing headache, indigestion, costiveness, and the like, they have done me service. In all cases where a purgative medicine is required, I confidently recommend these Pills to the public, as superior to any other I have ever used. They are more effectual in producing the intended effects of a cathartic—qualities which make them an invaluable article for public use. I have used them in my family for many years. Know of no cathartic that acts as well as the best Cough medicine in the world; and these Pills are in no wise inferior to that admirable preparation in the treatment of diseases."

"Aston, Mo., Nov. 25, 1853.

"Dr. J. C. AYER—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted from my youth up with a severe humor, which baffled the skill of twenty years' trial, and an untold of amount of suffering, have been completely cured in a few weeks by your Pills. With what feelings of rejoicing I write can only be realized when you realize what I have suffered, and how long.

"Never until now have I been free from this loathsome disease in some shape. At times it attacked my eyes, and for months my sight was nearly destroyed. At times it settled in others it settled in the scalp of my head, and destroyed my hair in spots, and finally ulcerated in the ears, and continued it cause out in my face, and kept it for months a raw sore.

"After using two large CATHARTIC PILLS and one box of Pectoric Pills, and now am entirely free from the complaint, and my hair is fast coming in full, and my ears have commenced a healthy growth; all of which makes me feel already a new person.

"Hoping this statement may be the means of conveying to the afflicted that relief so dear to me, I am, with every sentiment of gratitude, Yours, &c., ELIZA RICKER."

"I have known the above named Maria Ricker from her childhood, and her statement is strictly true.

ANDREW MCREVE,
Overseer of the Portsmouth Manufacturing Co."

CAPT. JOEL PRATT, of the ship Ann Parker, writes from Boston, 20th April, 1854:

"Ayer's Pills have cured me from a bilious attack which arose from derangement of the Liver, which had become quite torpid. I also find them the best cure for Costiveness, and from every remedy I could try; but a few doses of your Pills have completely relieved me. I have also given them to my children for worms, with the best of effects. They are pleasant to take. I recommend them also to a friend for costiveness, which had troubled him for years, and he tells me in a few days they had cured him. You make the best medicine in the world; and I am free to say so."

Read this from the distinguished Solicitor of the Supreme Court, whose brilliant abilities have made him well known, not only in this but the neighboring States.

"New Orleans, 5th April, 1854.

"Sir: I have great satisfaction in saying that I, myself and family have been very much benefited by your Cherry Pectoral. In my own case it relieved me of a severe and dangerous cough, by your CHERRY PECTORAL, which had resisted the usual remedies for months, and which have several times been cured from attacks of the Influenza by the use of it. I have also used your Pills in my family for those complaints. Your CATHARTIC PILLS have entirely relieved me from a dyspepsia and liver complaint of long growth upon me for some years,—indeed, this cure is perhaps more important, from the fact that I had failed to get relief from that from which this section of the country affords, and from any of the numerous remedies I had tried.

"You seem to me, Doctor, like a providential blessing to suffering humanity, and my very wish supposes we are not unmindful of it. Yours truly, BENJAMIN F. THAXTER."

"Senate Chamber, Ohio, April 5th, 1854.

"Dr. J. C. AYER—Sir: Having used your Pectoral as the compound of the CATHARTIC PILLS, left me by your agent, I have been induced by them of the dreadful humors under which he found me suffering. The first dose relieved me, and a few subsequent doses of the pills entirely removed the disease. I feel in better health now than for some years before, which I attribute entirely to the healing of your CATHARTIC PILLS. Yours with great respect, JACOB B. CASEY."

The above are all from persons who are publicly known where they reside, and who would not make false statements without a thorough conviction that they were true.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass.

GEO. and G. A. BULLOCK, and J. A. VERVAIS, Sandwich;

D. OULLETTE, Windsor:

And every Druggist and Merchant in Canada.

MAPLE LEAF.

"PROGRESS."

VOL. I. SANDWICH, C. W., FRIDAY, APRIL 4, 1856. NO. 6.

THE MAPLE LEAF,

IS PUBLISHED

Every Friday Morning,

BY

J. H. WILKINSON,

BEDFORD STREET;

Sandwich, Canada West.

TERMS.—Eight shillings and ninepence Cy, per annum, if paid in advance; or Ten Shillings at the end of the year.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Six lines or under, first insertion, 2s 6d, cy
Each subsequent insertion, . . 0 7½ "

Advertisements over six lines, 4d per line for the first insertion, and one penny per line for every subsequent insertion. A liberal discount made to Merchants and others who advertise by the year.

Advertisements sent in for insertion without written directions, will be continued til forbid and the usual rates charged.

CLUBS.

Any person procuring 10 subscribers will be entitled to a copy gratis. Payment to be made in advance.

The JOB OFFICE connected with the "MAPLE LEAF" is in every respect complete for the dispatch of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

Professional Cards.

Mr. William Johnson,
Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c., &c.
Sandwich, C. W.

Mr. Charles Baby,
Attorney and Councillor at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, &c.
Office, Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. J. H. Wilkinson.
Law, Chancery, Conveyancing, and Land Agency Office,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. Louis J. Fluett,
Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, Conveyancer and Land Agent,
Sandwich.

Mr. S. S. Macdonell,
Barrister, Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, &c., &c.
Windsor, C. W.

Mr. John O'Connor, Jun.,
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c.,
Windsor, C. W.

Charles Eugene Casgrain, M.D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Office and Residence, opposite the "Mear's Hotel,"
Sandwich, Canada West.

Dr. Reynolds,
Physician and Surgeon,
Amherstburg.

John Adley,
Physician and Surgeon, &c.,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

ALEXANDER GORDON,
NOTARY PUBLIC AND INSURANCE AGENT
Sandwich & Windsor, Canada West.

John McCrae,
Auctioneer, Insurance and General Agent
Windsor, Canada West.

Bank of Upper Canada Agency,
Windsor, Canada West.
Office Hours, 10, A.M., to 3, P.M.

Philip S. Donnelly,
Provincial Land Surveyer, &c.,
Moore, County of Lambton.

P. Marentette,
Gunsmith and Manufacturer of Guns.
Every description of Fire-arms repaired at his shop, on Bedford Street,
Sandwich.

L. P. St. Amour,
IMPORTER, AND WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS CROCKERY, HARDWARE, PERFUMERY, &c,
Sandwich, Canada West.

Sandwich Post Office.
Open daily, from Nine till Twelve, A.M., and from half-past Twelve till Four, P.M.
P. H. MORIN, Post Master.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware Crockery, Boots & Shoes
&C. &C. &C.
Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich.

WILLIAM SWIFT,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
IS prepared to attend upon the Gentlemen of Amherstburg in his line of business, and is not afraid to assert that he will cut and Fit in the latest and most fashionable Styles as well as any Tailor west of London.
Amherstburg, Feb. 29th, 1856.

George Hann,
DEALER IN FURS AND SKINS.
The highest price paid for Shipping Furs at his Fur Store in the Town of Sandwich.
15th March, 1856.

NIAGARA
MUTUAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.
GEORGE BULLOCK, Local Agent for the Townships of Sandwich, Maidstone, Rochester and Tilbury West; also the Village of Windsor. Address, Sandwich Post Office.

ROSE DALE MILLS.
THE highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Rye, Corn, or Buck Wheat, either at the Mills or at the Store of
GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

JAMES JESSOPP,
CARPENTER & JOINER,
WILL always be on hand to attend to the erection of Building, and every description of Carpenter and Joiner work upon the shortest notice.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WARNER'S EXCHANGE,
AMHERSTBURG, C. W.
CHARLES WARNER, PROPRIETOR

LAFFERTY & JONES,
AUCTIONEERS AND APPRAISERS,
Amherstburg, Canada West.

Bartley and Pinney,
PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.
Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.

MR. JAS. WOODBRIDGE, JUN.,
Division Court Agent, and General Agent for Collecting Debts.
Sandwich, Canada West.

THE HOLLY-TREE INN,

A NEW STORY,

BY CHARLES DICKENS.

Continued from our last.

The man shook his head. "If I had a single crown I would not ask you; but my wife is down of the fever, and my children are dying of dysentery. What shall I do? and my lots are the very best in the place."

"I tell you!" said my brother Uriah, with a fierce growl, and an angry flash of the eye, "I have no money, and how can I buy?"

He glanced at the man in fury; but a face so full of patient suffering and of sickness—sickness of the heart, of the soul, and, as it were, of famine, met his gaze, that he stopped short, felt a pang of remorse for his anger, and, pointing to a number of bullocks grazing in the valley below, he said, in a softened tone, "Look there! The other day a man told me such a tale of horror—a sick family, and a gaol staring him in the face; that I gave him my last money—my carefully hoarded money, and of what use are those cattle to me? None whatever: You may have them for your land, if you like. I have nothing else."

"I will have them," said the man. "On a distant station I know where I could sell them, if I could only leave my family. But they have no flour, no tea, nothing but meat, meat, meat."

"Leave them to me," said Uriah, feeling the warm blood and the spirit of humanity beginning to circulate in his bosom at the sense of what was really suffering around him. "Leave them to me. I will care for them. Your wife and children shall have a doctor. I will find you some provisions for your journey, and if ever your land is worth anything, you shall have it again. This state of things makes monsters of us. It turns our blood into gall, our hearts into stones. We must resist it, or we are ruined, indeed!"

"Nay," say the man, "I won't impose upon you. Take that piece of land in the valley there; it will one day be valuable."

"That!" said Uriah, looking. "That! Why, that is a swamp! I will take that—I shall not hurt you there!" And he laughed outright, the first time for two years.

Years went on, and my brother Uriah lived on, but as it were in the valley of the shadow of death. It was a melancholy and dispiriting time. The buoyancy of his soul was gone. That jovial, sunny, ebullient spirit with which he used to come home from the city, in England, had fled, as a thing that had never been. He maintained himself chiefly out of his garden. His children were springing up into long, lanky lady and lasses. He educated them himself as well as he could; and as for clothes!—Not a navy—not a beggar—in the streets of London, but could have stood a comparison with them, to their infinite disparagement. Ah! those good three thousand pounds! How will the balance stand in my brother Uriah's books at the end of the next twenty years?

But anon there awoke a slight motion in the atmosphere of life. It was a mere flutter of the air, that died out again. Then again it revived—it strengthened—it blew like a breath of life over the whole landscape.—Uriah looked around him from the very place where he had sat on the stump in despair. It was bright and sunny. He heard a sound of an axe and a hammer.—He looked, and saw a house, that had stood a mere skeleton, once more in progress.—There were people passing to and fro with a more active air. What is that? A cart of goods? A dray of building materials.—There was life and motion again? The discovery of converting sheep and oxen into tallow had raised the value of stock. The shops and the merchants were once more in action. The man to whom he had sold the oxen came up smiling—

"Things mend, sir. We shall soon be all right. And that piece of land in the swamp, that you were so merry over, will you sell it? It lies near the wharves, and is wanted for warehouses."

"Bravo!" cried Uriah, and they descended the hill together. Part of the land was sold; and soon substantial warehouses of the native trapstone, were rising upon it.—Uriah's old attachment to a merchant's life came over him. With the purchase-money he built a warehouse too. Labor was extremely low, and he built a large and commodious one.

Another year or two, and behold Uriah busy in his warehouse; his two boys clerking it gravely in the counting-house. Things grew rapidly better. Uriah and his family were once more handsomely clad, handsomely housed, and Uriah's jolly humor was again in the ascendant. Every now and then Robinson came hurrying in, a very busy man, indeed he was now, in the town council, and moreover, mayor; and saying, "Well, Mrs, Tattenhall, didn't I say it it, eh? Is not this boy of a colony on a fine sturdy pair of legs again? Not down? Not dead? Well, well! Tattenhall did me a kindness, then—by ready cash for my land—I don't forget it; but I don't know how I am to make him amends, unless I come and dine with him some day." And he was off again.

Another year or two, and that wonderful crisis, the gold discovery, came. Then, what a sensation—what a stir—what a revolution, what running, and buying and bidding for land, for prime business situations!—what rolling in of people—capital—goods.—Heaven and earth!—what a scene—what a place—what a people.

Ten years to a day from the last balance at the Old Jewry, Uriah Tattenhall, balanced again, and his three thousand pounds, was grown to seventy thousand pounds, and was still rolling up and on like a snow-ball.

There were George and Bob grown into really tall and handsome fellows. George was the able merchant. Bob had got a station out at the Dundenong-hills, and told wonderful stories or riding after kangaroos, and wild bulls, and shooting splendid lyre-birds—all of which come in reading Pringle's Life in South Africa. There were Mary and Lucy, two handsome girls as any in the colony, and wonderfully attractive to a young Benson and a younger Robinson. Wonders were the next year to bring forth, and amongst them was to be a grand pic-nic at Bob's station, at the Dundenong, in which they were to live out in real tents in the forest, and cook, and bake, and brew, and the ladies were to join in a bull-hunt, and shoot with revolvers, and nobody was to be hurt, or thrown, or anything to happen, but all sorts of merriment and wild-wood life.

And really my brother's villa on the Yarra River is a very fine place. The house is an Italian villa built of real stone, ample, with large, airy rooms, a broad verandah, and all in the purest taste. It stands on a high bank above the valley, in which the Yarra winds, taking a sweep there, its course marked by a dense body of acacia trees. In the spring these trees are of resplendent gold, loading the air with their perfume. Now they were thick and dark in their foliage, casting their shade on the river deep between its banks. From the house the view presented this deep valley with this curving track of trees, and beyond slopes divided into little farms, with their little homesteads upon them, where Uriah had a number of tenants making their fortunes on some thirty or forty acres each, by hay at forty pounds a ton, and potatoes and onions at one shilling a pound, and all other produce in proportion.

On this side of the river you saw extensive gardens in the hollow blooming with roses and many tropical flowers, and along the hill sides on either hand vineyards and fruit orchards of the most vigorous vegetation, and loaded with young fruit. The party assembled at my brother Uriah's house on that hospitable Christmas day, descended amid a native shrubbery, and Uriah thrust a walking-stick to its very handle into the rich black soil, and when his friends expressed their surprise, he told them that the soil there was fourteen feet deep, and would grow any quantitty of produce for ages without manuring. Indeed, they passed through green corn of the most luxuriant character, and, crossing the bridge of a brook which there fell into the river, they found themselves under the acacias; by the river side there lay huge prostrate trunks of ancient gum-trees, the patriarchs of the forest, which had fallen and given place to the acacia, and now reminded the spectators that they were still in the land of primitive woods.

"Why, Tattenhall," said Robinson, to my brother Uriah, "Trumpington Cottage, my dear fellow, would cut a poor figure after this. I'd ask lord or gentleman to show me a fertiler or more desirable place in the tight little island. Bigger houses there may be, and are, but not to my mind more desirable. Do you know, very large houses always seem to me a sort of asylums for supernumerary servants—the master can only occupy a corner there—he cuts out quite small in the bulk. And as to fertility, this beats, Battersea Fields and Fulham hollow. Those market-gardeners might plant and plant to all eternity, always taking out and never putting in, and if they could grow peaches, apricots, grapes, figs, twice a year, and all that as fine in the open air as they do in hot-houses, and sell their bunches of parsley at sixpence a-piece, and watermelons—gathered from any gravel heap or dry open field—at five shillings a-piece, plentiful as pumpkins, wouldn't they astonish themselves!

"But what makes you call this place Bowstead?" continued Robinson, breaking off a small wattle-bough to wisk the flies from his face. "Orr has named his Abbotsford—that's because he's a Scotchman; and we've got Cremorne Gardens, and Richmond, and Hawthorne, and all sorts of English names about here;—bu Bowstead! I can't make it out.""

"You can't?" said Uriah, smiling; "don't you see that the river curves in a bow here, and stead is a place?"

"O! that's it," said Robinson; "I fancied it was to remind you of Bow Bells."

"There you have it," said Bob, laughing. "Bow Bells! but, as there was a bow and no bells, my father put a stead to it, that's instead of the bells, you know."

"Bless me!" said Robinson: now I should never have thought of that—how very clever."

And he took the joke in such perfect simplicity, that all bust into a simultaneous laugh; for every one else knew that it was so called in honour of Maria Bowstead, now the universally respected Mrs. Tattenhall.

The whole party were very merry, for they had good cause to be. Mr. and Mrs. Tattenhall, still in their prime, spread out, enlarged every way, in body and estate, rosy, handsomely dressed, saw around them nothing but prosperity. A paradise of their own, in which they saw their children already developed into that manly and feminine beauty so conspicuous in our kindred of the south; their children already taking root in the land and twining their branches amongst those of other opulent families, they felt the full truth of Robinson's rude salutation, as he exclaimed, on coming to a fresh and more striking view of the house and grounds,—

"Ah! Tattenhall, Tattenhall!" giving him one of his jocose pokes in the side, "didn't I say you knew very well what you were about when you came here, eh? Mrs. Tattenhall, ma'am? Who said it? Robinson, wasn't it, eh?"

When they returned to the house, and had taken tea in a large tent on the lawn, and the young people had played a lively game of romps or bo-peep amongst the bushes of the shrubbery, with much laughter, the great drawing room was lighted up, and very soon there was heard the sounds of violins and dancing feet. My brother Uriah and his wife were at that moment sitting under the verandah, enjoying the fresh evening air, the scent of tropical trees and flowrs which stole silently through the twilight, and the clear, deep blue of the sky, where the magnificent constellations of Orion and the Scorpion were growing momentarily into their full nocturnal splendour. As the music broke out my brother Uriah affectionately pressed the hand of his wife, faithfnl and wise and encouraging through the times of their difficulty and depression, and saying "Thank God for all this!" the pressure was as affectionatly and gratefully returned. Then my brother and his wife rose up, and passed into the blaze of light which surrrounded the gay and youthful company within.

THE POOR PENSIONER.

I met her in the corridor walking to and fro, and muttering to herself with a down looking aspect, and a severe economy of dress. the season considered. I wondered how she came there, and was, to say the least of it, decidely startled when she stopped directly opposite me, and, lifting a pair of blank, brown eyes to my face, said, in a stern voice:

"He was not guilty, my lord judge.—God will right him yet. It will all come out some day. I can wait; yes, I can wait. I am more patient than death: I am more patient than injustice."

I made a hasty and undignified retreat down stairs when she left the passage free, and, meeting the waiter, inquired who the woman was. The man touched his forehead significantly, and said that she was harmless (I was very glad to hear it); and that she lived on the broken victuals; and that his mistress always gave her a dinner on Christmas-day. While we were speaking together, she descended to where we stood, and repeated the exact formula of which she had made use before. She was a tall woman, strong-limbed, and thin to meagreness.—She might be fifty, or perhaps fifty-five: her skin was withered, and tanned by exposure to all sorts of weather, and her uncovered hair was burnt to rusty iron-grey.—The waiter suggested to her to go to the kitchen fire; at which she broke into a scornful laugh, and reiterated, "I am more patient than death, I am more patient than injustice," and then walked out at the open door into the snow.

"I don't think she feels it, sir," said the waiter, opening my door for me to enter.

I do not think she did. I watched her from my window. She took up a handful of the newly-fallen snow and thrust it into her bosom, then hugged it close, as if it were a living thing, that could be warmed by that eager clasp; I saw also, as she turned her dark face up towards the sky, that the angry scowl left it. I should imagine that all sensation in her was dead, except in one corner of her heart, to which had gathered the memory of some miserable wrong, whose acuteness would bide with her to the day of death.

Her name, as I learnt on further inquiry, was Hester. She had been born and bred in the Yorkshire dales; her parents were of the yeoman class, and poor through improvidence rather than misfortune. As a girl, Hester was remarkable for her pride and her beauty, of which no more relics remained than are left of the summer rose-garden in drear and misty November. She received the scant education common to her condition half a-century ago, and grew up a wild, wilful-tempered girl, impatient of all restraint, and eager for change and excitement. At sixteen she married, and very shortly afterwards her husband found it expedient to leave the dales, and to enlist in a regiment which was ordered on foreign service. Hester followed him to India, and led the life of camps for several years. During this interval her family lost sight of her completely; for, having parted in anger, no correspondence was kept up between them. This silence and separation lasted full nine years during which time, Death dealt hardly with those left at home. Of all the large family of sons and daughters whom the old people had seen grown up to man's and woman's estate, not one survived. Their hearts began to soften towards the offending child, and they made efforts to learn if the regiment to which her husband belonged had returned to England. It had not.

One bleak and wintry night, while the solitary and bereaved couple were sitting by their silent hearth—it was a very lonely and retired spot where the house stood—a heavy step came up the little garden path.—Neither of them stirred. They thought it was one of the farm-servants returning from the village, whither he had been sent on some errand. The curtains had not been closed over the window, and all the room, filled with the shine of a yule-tide fire, was visible to the wayfarer without. The mother sat facing the window; lifting her slow, dull gaze from the white wood-ashes on the hearth, she looked across towards it, and uttered a low, frightened cry. She saw a dark face peering in at the glass, which wore the traits of her daughter Hester. She thought it was her wraith, and said so to the old man, who, taking a lantern, went out to see if anybody was lurking about.—It was a very boisterous night: loud with wind, and black with clouds of sleety rain. At the threshold he stumbled over a dark form, which had crouched there for the slight shelter afforded by the porch. He lowered the lantern, and threw the light on the face of a woman.

"Dame! dame! It is our bairn; it is like Hester!"

The mother appeared, and, with a great, gasping cry, recognized her daughter.

They led her into the house, towards the glowing heat of the fire, and set her down by the hearth: for her limbs would scarcely support her. Hester wore a thin and ragged cloak, beneath the folds of which she had hidden her child from the storm. He had fallen asleep in her bosom; but as her mother removed the dripping garment from her shoulders, he woke up with a laugh of childish surprise and pleasure. He was a fine, well-grown boy, of from six to seven years old, and showed none of those signs of want and suffering which had graven premature age upon the wasted features and gaunt frame of his mother. It was some time before Hester recovered from her frozen exhaustion, and then her first and eager demand was for food for the child.

"O Heaven, pity me!" cried the old woman, who was weeping over the pair, "Hester and her lad starving, while there was to spare at home!"

She supplied their wants soon, and would have taken the boy; but Hester held him to her with a close and jealous grasp, chafing his limbs, warming his little hands in her bosom, and covering his hand with passionate kisses.

He fell asleep in her arms at last; and then she told her brief story. She was widowed; her husband had died in India from wound-fever, and she had been sent home to England; on her arrival there she found herself destitute, and had traversed the country on foot, subsisting by the casual charity of strangers. Thus much she said, and no more. She indulged no details of her own exquisite sufferings; perhaps they were forgotten, when she ended by saying, "Thank the Lord, the lad is saved!"

Hester lived on at the farm with her parents; and, as the old man failed more and more daily, she took the vigorous management of it upon herself, and things throve with them. By degrees, her beauty was restored, and then she had repeated offers of marriage; for, the inheritance which would be her's at her father's death was by no means despicable. But, she kept herself single, for the lad's sake. Wilfred grew strong, handsome, and high spirited—like his mother, indeed, with whom, much as they loved each other, he had many a fierce contention. He never could bear to be thwarted or checked by her, and often Hester, in the bitterness of her unbridled anger, would cry, "O Wilfred! it would have been better for thee and thy mother if we had died on the door-stone in the snow, that night we came home."

Still, she had an intense pride in him; and always, after their quarrels, she allowed his extravagance to have freer scope, though that was what usually led to their disputes. As might have been expected, Wilfred, under such uncertain training, became reckless, wild, and domineering, though he preserved a certain rough generosity and frankness of character which redeemed his faults, and made him a favourite with the country folks, and a sort of king amongst his companions, whose superior in all rustic sports he was.

His grandfather died when he was nineteen; his grandmother, eighteen months later. Then Hester was sole mistress of the little farm. Wilfred soon began to urge his mother to sell the property and leave the dales, whose uneventful quiet fretted his restless disposition. This she absolutely refused to do; and was on one occasion so deeply irritated at his persistence as to say: "I would sell the Ings to save your life, Wilfred, but for nothing less!"

Poetry.

Firmness of a Loving Girl in a Pet.

Well, let him go, and let him stay—
I do not mean to die;
I guess he'll find that I can live
Without him, if I try,
He thought to frighten me with frowns,
So terrible and black—
He'll stay away a thousand years
Before I ask him back!

He said that I had acted wrong,
And foolishly beside;
I won't forget him after that—
I wouldn't if I died.
If I was wrong what right had he
To be so cross with me?
I know I'm not an angel quite—
I don't pretend to be.

He had another sweetheart once,
And now when we fall out,
He always says she was not cross,
And that she didn't pout.
It is enough to vex a saint—
It's more than I can bear;
I wish that girl of his was—
Well, I don't care where.

He thinks that she was pretty, too—
Was beautiful as good;
I wonder if she'd get him back
Again, now, if she could?
I know she would, and there she is—
She lives almost in sight;
And now it's after nine o'clock—
Perhaps he's there to-night.

I'd almost write to him to come—
But then I've said I won't;
I do not care so much, but she
Shan't have him, if I don't.
Besides, I know that I was wrong,
And he was in the right;
I guess I'll tell him so—and then—
I wish he'd come to night!

WITTY AND AMUSING ANECDOTES.

[From Recollections of the Table-Talk of Samuel Rogers.]

WELLINGTON.

Speaking to me of Bonaparte, the Duke of Wellington remarked that in one respect he was superior to all the Generals who had ever existed. "Was it," I asked, "in the management and skillful arrangement of his troops?" "No," answered the Duke; "it was in his power of concentrating such vast masses of men—a most important point in the art of war."

"I have found," said the Duke, "that raw troops, however inferior to the old ones in manœuvering, are far superior to them in downright hard fighting with the enemy.—At Waterloo, the young Ensigns and Lieutenants, who had never before seen a battle, rushed to meet death as if they had been playing at cricket."

The Duke thinks very highly of Napier's History; its only fault, he says, is that Napier is sometimes apt to convince himself that a thing must be true, because he wishes to believe it. Of Southey's History he merely said, "I don't think much of it."

Of the Duke's perfect coolness on the most trying occasions, Colonel Gurwood gave me this instance: He was once in great danger of being drowned at sea. It was bed-time when the captain of the vessel came to him and said, "It will soon be all over with us." "Very well," answered the Duke, "then I shall not take off my boots."

ERSKINE.

When Lord Erskine heard that somebody had died worth two hundred thousand pounds, he observed, "Well that's a very pretty sum to begin the next world with."

"A friend of mine," said Erskine, "was suffering from a continual wakefulness; and various methods were tried to send him to sleep, but in vain. At last his physicians resorted to an experiment which succeeded perfectly: they dressed him in a watchman's coat, put a lantern into his hand, placed him in a sentry box, and—he was asleep in ten minutes,"

To all letters soliciting his "subscription" to anything, Erskine had a regular form of reply, viz: "Sir, I feel much honored by your application to me, and I beg to subscribe"—here the reader had to turn over the leaf—" myself your very obedient servant," &c.

Erskine used to say that when the hour came when the secrets of all hearts should be revealed, we should know the reason why—shoes are always made too tight.

When he had a house at Hampstead, he entertained the very best company. I have dined there with the Prince of Wales—the only time I ever had any conversation with his Royal Highness. On that occasion the Prince was very agreeable and familiar.—Among other anecdotes which he told us of Lord Thurlow, I remember these two.—The first was: Thurlow once said to the Prince "Sir, your father will continue to be a popular king as long as he continues to go to church every Sunday, and to be faithful to that ugly woman, your mother; but you, Sir, will never be popular." The other was this: while his servants were carrying Thurlow up stairs to his bedroom, just before his death, they happened to let his leg strike against the banisters, upon which he uttered the last words he ever spoke—a frightful imprecation on "all their souls."

FOX.

Fox (in his earlier days, I mean,) Sheridian Fitzpatrick, &c., led such a life! Lord Tankerville assured me that he has played cards with Fitzpatrick at Brook's from 10 o'clock at night till near 6 o'clock the next afternoon, a waiter standing by to tell them "whose deal it was," they being too sleeply to know.

After losing large sums at hazard, Fox would go home—not to destroy himself, as his friends sometimes feared, but—to sit down quietly and read Greek.

He once won about £8,000; and one of his bond-creditors, who soon heard of his good luck, presented himself, and asked for payment. "Impossible, Sir," replied Fox; "I must first discharge my debts of honor." The bond-creditor remonstrated. "Well, Sir, give me your bond." It was delivered to Fox, who tore it in pieces and threw them into the fire. "Now, Sir," said Fox "my debt to you is a debt of honor," and immediately paid him.

I saw Lunardi make the first ascent in a balloon which had been witnessed in England. It was from the Artillery ground.—Fox was there with his brother General F. The crowd was immense. Fox, happening to put his hand down to his watch found another hand upon it, which he immediately seized. "My friend," said he to the owner of the strange hand, "you have chosen an occupation which will be your ruin at last" "O, Mr. Fox," was the reply, "forgive me, and let me go! I have been driven to this course by necessity alone; my wife and children are starving at home." Fox, always tender hearted, slipped a guinea into the hand and then released it. On the conclusion of the show, Fox was proceeding to look what o'clock it was. "Good God," cried he, "my watch is gone!" "Yes," answered General F., "I know it is; I saw your friend take it." "Saw him take it! and you made no attempt to stop him?"—Really, you and he appeared to be on such good terms with each other, that I did not choose to interfere."

PALEY.

He permitted—nay, wished—his daughters to go to evening parties; but insisted that one of them should always remain at home, to give her assistance, is needed, by rubbing him, &c., in case of an attack of the rheumatic pains to which he was subject. "This," he said, "taught them natural affection."

VERNON.

Vernon was the person who invented the story about the lady being pulverised in India by a coup de soleil. When he was dining there with a Hindoo, one of his host's wives was suddenly reduced to ashes; upon which the Hindoo rang the bell, and said to the attendant who answered it "Bring fresh glasses and sweep up your mistress."

Another of his stories was this: He happened to be shooting hyenas near Carthage, when he stumbled and fell down an abyss of many fathoms' depth. He was surprised however, to find himself unhurt; for he lighted as if on a feather bed. Presently he perceived that he was gently moving upward; and having by degrees reached the mouth of the abyss, he again stood safe on terra firma. He had fallen upon an immense mass of bats, which disturbed from their slumbers, had risen out of the abyss and brought him up with them.

LADY HAMILTON.

There was something very charming in Lady Hamilton's openness of manner. She showed me the neckcloth which Nelson had on when he died; of course I could not help looking at it with extreme interest; and she threw her arms round my neck and kissed me. She was latterly in great want; and Lord Stowell never rested till he procured for her a small pension from Government.

JANE, DUCHESS OF GORDON

I knew Jane, Duchess of Gordon intimately, and many pleasent hours have I passed in her society. She used to say, "I have been acquainted with David Hume and William Pitt, and therefore I am not afraid to converse with anybody."

The Duchess told the following anecdote to Lord Stowell, who told it to Lord Dunmore, who told it to me. "The son of Lord Cornwallis (Lord Brome) fell in love with my daughter Louisa, and she liked him much. They were to be married; but the intended match was broken off by Lord C., whose only objection to it sprung from his belief that there was madness in my husband's family. Upon this I contrived to have a tete a-tete with Lord C., and said to him, "I know your reasons for disapproving of your son's marriage with my daughter now, I will tell you one thing plainly—there is not a drop of the Gordon blood in Louisa's body." With this statement Lord C. was satisfied, and the marriage took place. The duchess prided herself greatly on the success of this manoeuvre, though it had forced her to slander her own character so cruelly and so unjustly! In fact, manoeuvering was her delight.

PORSON.

Porson would sit up drinking all night without seeming to feel any bad effects from it. Horne Tooke told me that he once asked Porson to dine with him in Richmond Buildings; and, as he knew that Porson had not been in bed for the three preceding nights, he expected to get rid of him at a tolerably early hour. Porson, however kept Tooke up the whole night; and in the morning the latter, in perfect despair, said, "Mr. Porson, I am engaged to meet a "friend at breakfast at a coffeehouse in "Leicester-square." "Oh!" replied Porson, "I will go with you;" and he accordingly did so. Soon after they had reached the coffeehouse, Tooke contrived to slip out and, running home, ordered his servant not to let Mr. Porson in, even if he should attempt to batter down the door. "A man," observed Tooke, "who could sit up four nights successively might have sat up forty."

Tooke used to say that "Porson would drink ink rather than not drink at all." Indeed, he would drink anything. He was sitting with a gentleman after dinner in the chambers of a mutual friend, a Templar who was then ill and confined to bed. A servant came into the room, sent thither by his master for a bottle of embrocation which was on the chimneypiece. "I drank it an hour ago," said Porson.

When Hoppner the painter was residing in a cottage a few miles from London, Porson one afternoon unexpectedly arrived there. Hoppner said that he could not offer him dinner, as Mrs. H. had gone to town and had carried with her the key of the closet which contained the wine. Porson, however, declared that he would be contented with a mutton chop and beer from the next ale house; and accordingly staid to dine. During the evening Porson said. "I am quite certain that Mrs. Hoppner keeps some nice bottle for her private drinking in her own bedroom; so pray, try if you can lay your hands on it." His host assured him that Mrs. H. had no such secret stores; but Porson insisting that a search should be made, a bottle was at last discovered in the lady's apartment, to the surprise of Hoppner and the joy of Porson, who soon finished its contents, pronouncing it to be the best gin he had tasted for a long time. Next day Hoppner, somewhat out of temper, informed his wife that Porson had drunk every drop of the concealed dram. "Drunk every drop of it!" cried she, "my God! it was spirits of wine for the lamp!"

A HUSBAND PROPERTY.—The Free North after all, is not half as free, in some respects as the South. Only in the Slave States is it any woman's prerogative to go into the market and buy a husband on such terms, that she can compel all the world to treat him as property, while she secures the advantages of getting a chattel instead of a master. This prerogative has been exercised by a New Orleans dame, one "Margaret Adams, a sprightly f. w. c., of No. 269 Bienville street." The Bee says that on the first of March she made affidavit before Recorder Ramos, that her husband was her slave, "she having bought him for a husband," and demanded the arrest and amercement in damages of a bellicose free black named Edwin Nash who had whipped her spouse so severely that he was confined to the House.

A WHOLE FAMILY POISONED—THE ALLEGED POISONER ARRESTED.—Yesterday Constable Keeler arrested Wm. Backridge on a warrant, upon a charge of having poisoned the family of Elijah Heart, and a boarder in the house named Andrew J. Halstead, living on Erie street in the North Division. It is supposed that the poison was placed in a dish of buckwheat cakes which was partaken of at breakfast by the family, and in about half an hour thereafter all were taken severely ill. Dr. Blaney was sent for, who administered emetics, and all are now out of danger, though three of the family were too ill to attend an examination of the case yesterday.—Chi. Jour. 22.

THE SWORD CHANGED INTO THE PRUNING-HOOK.– General Codrington visited Balaklava on Friday last, and minutely inspected the floating factory and foundry in connection with the railway establishment. He appeared highly satisfied with all he saw. I dont know if the people of England are yet aware that they have here an establishment where great quantities of the Russian shot and shell are being daily converted into great railway crossing boxes and other useful iron work; a striking instance of the revolution of things, and of the turning, in one sense, on the very field of battle, of "the sword ito the pruning-hook." The English roads are in splendid condition; the main road from Balaklava to head-quarters as good, I may say, as any in England. The French roads have entirely failed, and at length we wrung from our gallant friends the admission, that there are some things in which the English excel and can even beat them.—Times Correspondent.

MURDER OF FOUR CHILDREN BY THEIR MOTHER.—Syracuse, March 24. A woman named Ward, residing near Bridgeport, Madison county, yesterday murdered her four children by cutting their throats with an axe. She then made an unsuccessful attempt to cut her own throat. The cause assigned is the neglect and brutality of her husband.

IMPORTANT IF CORRECT.—We learn, on what we believe—and have good reasons for believing—to be excellent authority, that it is in the contemplation of the British Government, so soon as the navigation opens, to station thirty regiments of the line in Canada.—Montreal Herald.

Orders have been received at Portsmouth Dockyard for the authorties to expedite with all dispatch the refitment of three steamers, the "Vulcan," "Perseverance" and "Regent," to embark troops for Colonial Service.

The General Screw Steamship Company have also received orders to prepare their large ships for the reception of horses and troops. The ships named are the Argo, Calcutta, Queen of the South, and Hydaspes, all of which would be ready for their freight by the 3rd of this month. Accommodation for the conveyance of 6000 horses to Canada is said to have been ordered to be got ready by opening of navigation.

TRUTH FOR ONCE!—It so seldom occurs that American papers will acknowledge the truth, when any question connected with the late War between England and the United States is under discussion, that we copy the following from the New York Tribune as an exception to the general rule.—This paper says:—

"About half of what the soldiery did in the war of 1812 was eminently unserviceable and discreditable to the country—Not to mention the inglorious surrender of Detroit (of which old Hull was made the scape—goat) the largest army we mustered in that war was that which invaded Canada under General Chandler, in 1823, and were repulsed by a few Canadian militia, and a tolerable brush fence at the affair of Chateaugay. In due time followed 'Blandesbury race' in which several thousands of Maryland and Virginia militia threw away their arms and fled like sheep from less than half their number of British soldiers and marines. Some of them are said to have stopped the next day, some of them when they put, left the Alleghanies behind them, and the rest are probably running yet."

News from Barbadoes.

From the Liberal.

BRIDGETOWN, February 6, 1856.

The Legislature having adjourned to meet yesterday, and it being rumored in town that His Excellency Mr. Hincks would meet the two branches, for the first time since his assumption of the Government, the members of Her Majesty's Council and the Assembly were early in attendance at the Court House, with several of the Clergy, including the Archdeacon, and officials of various grades, together with a large assemblage of private gentlemen and numerous citizens of every class; nor were there wanting a few ladies to impart additional interest to the occasion. These parties had assembled on the mere speculation that His Excellency would address the Legislature, and on the approach of every new carriage there was a rush to the door, in the hope that it would turn out to be His Excellency's. The anxious expectants were more than once disappointed, but at about a quarter to one o'clock His Excellency's carriage drove to the steps, and he alighted, accompanied only by his Private Secretary. The Colonial Secretary and the Marshal of the Council, who were in attendance to receive His Excellency, preceded him to the Council Chamber, where the members of that branch had already assembled.

In the House of Assembly there were presented:—The hon. John Thomas, Speaker; the hon. John Lealy, Attorney General; the hon. Charles Packer, Solicitor General; Samuel J. Prescod, John R. Gooding, Edward Packer, Law Gaskin, Joseph A. Haynes, James R. Holligan, Bryan T. Young, Naboth Greaves, Henry F. Harte, M. D., Alexander Corbin, M. D., John G. Grant, Haynes G. Bayley, Benjamin Alleyne, John Gittens, Robert Reece, Charles F. Lyall, Thomas Perch, Robert Drayton, and Wm. M. Howard, Esqrs.

As soon as the House was formed, the Marshal of the Council entered the Hall and announced that it was the pleasure of His Excellency that the House should join the other branch of the Legislature in the Council Chamber Honorable Members, with the Speaker at their head, at once proceeded to the Council Chamber, where they took and subscribed to the oath of allegiance. These preliminaries being finished, His Excellency addressed the two Branches in the following Speech;

Mr. President, and Honorable Gentlemen of the Council.

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Assembly.

I have met you on the present occasion in accordance with long established usage, which requires that on the arrival of a new Governor, the Members of the General Assembly should take and subscribe the oath of allegiance to Her Majesty before him in Council.

I find that without deviation from precedents established in this island, I might address you at some length on questions of public interest, but I deem it more respectful and proper that I should abstain from any allusion to topics which may be at this time the subject of your deliberations.

I shall therefore confine myself to an assurance that I shall use my utmost endeavours to maintain the good understanding which now happily subsists between the several branches of the Legislature, that I shall cordially co-operate with you in all measures calculated to advance the prosperity of the Island, and that I shall administer the trust which has been confided to me by Our Gracious Sovereign with strict and even-handed justice to all classes of her loyal subjects.

Honorable members of the Lower House then returned to their own Hall. Prayers were said by the Chaplain, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Excuses for non-attendance at the previous meeting were severally offered by the Solicitor General and Messrs. Howard and Gaskin.

WRECK OF A PASSENGER SHIP IN THE ICE.

170 LIVES SUPPOSED LOST.

Capt. Rood, of the ship 'Germania,' arrived at New York on the 24th inst., from Havre, and furnishes the following account of the sinking of the ship 'John Rutledge,' by running into an iceberg, and the rescue of one only of the ship's company:

On the 28th ult. observed a ship's boat ahead and despatched a boat in quest of it On approaching the strange boat it was found to contain, alive, Thomas W. Nye, of New Bedford, the only survivor of thirteen persons, the remainder having perished of starvation and cold; he had been in the boat nine days, and his feet and hands were very much frozen. The boat also contained the bodies of Mrs. Atkinson and three others, names unknown, all belonging to the ship 'John Rutledge, Capt. Reilley, of New York. The ship 'John Rutledge' left Liverpool for this port on January 16th, and fell in with ice on February 18th, in latitude 40 degrees 34 mins. south, longitude 46 degrees 56 mins. west. She got into a field of ice the next day, but succeeded in working clear; she subsequently, however, ran into an iceberg, stove a hole in her bow, and was abandoned at 6 o'clock p.m. Five boats followed, with the passengers and crew, and left the ship. It was the intention of Mr. Atkinson, the mate, to have left the vessel in the boat, but she broke adrift, he and several others went down. It was conjectured that the other boats, which were well manned and furnished with compasses, would pull for the Gulf Stream, as the weather was very cold. They may possibly be picked up. The compass of the second boat was accidentally broken, and it being cloudy, her crew could not shape their course.—After picking up the boat the 'Germania' stood to the northward until dark, and then lay to during the night, in the hope of discovering some of the missing boats, but as nothing could be seen of them, she bore away to the south, keeping a look-out all the time. During the forenoon a very thick storm prevailed, but the weather cleared up towards noon. A barque came out of the ice at the same time as the 'Germania;' she stood to the westward, and probably fell in with the boats of the J. R. The J. R. belonged to Howland & Bidgeway of this city, and had about 150 passengers. She left Liverpool with a crew of 26, and yet only one is known to have been saved. She was insured for $70,000, and her cargo consisted of 8 hundred tons of merchandize. Twenty five persons were on board when the last boat broke loose, and just before the ship went down.

Legislative Assembly.

SUPPRESSION OF LOTTERIES.

Hon Mr. CAMERON moved the second reading of a bill "For the Suppression of Lotteries." He said, that within the last four or five years the number of lotteries which had been advertised to take place throughout the country had been very much on the increase. It was nothing but a system of gambling, and such transactions were daily increasing. He would call attention most pointedly to foreign lotteries. By this Bill they would be put down, and proceedings might be taken before Justices of the Peace against parties who offer or sell such tickets.

Hon Mr DRUMMOND contended, that the Bill was objectionable to Lower Canada, as it affected the drawing for lots of land termed tirage au sort, aproceeding at present sanctioned by law.

Mr. BROWN could not agree with the Attorney General East. The system adverted to by the hon. gentleman was one of evils very desirable to get rid of, and he thought that the hon. gentleman for Toronto deserved great credit for introducing the Bill. In Upper Canada there was no worse system than that of lotteries, by which people were swindled out of their money. There was nothing so demoralizing to a people as that of encouraging the gambling mania, and to lead people to endeavour to achieve a fortune by the turn of the dice.

Hon. Mr. DRUMMOND insisted that it was not to be supposed that the fundamental portion of the law of Lower Canada could be destroyed in relation to the participation between heirs of property. It was provided by the law, that ten or twelve lots should be drawn by chance.

Mr. DORION (Montreal) said, The partition of such property by the law of Lower Canada was no inheritance to the heir.—He would go for the Bill, because he thought it necessary to put an end to a kind of gambling most injurious to society. The extinction of it would be a great boon to both Upper and Lower Canada. The only objection he had was, that the penalties were rather high and he would recommend a revisal of the same.

Mr. CARTIER contended that the tirage au sort process did not come under the meaning of a lottery.

Hon. Mr. CAMERON moved to refer the Bill to a select committee composed of Messrs Attorney General Drummond, Sydney Smith, Murney, Papin and the mover. The motion was carried.

The house then adjourned to Tuesday the 1st of April.

DISTRIBUTION OF THE CLERGY RESERVES.

Attorney General MACDONALD moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Clergy Reserves Act, 18 Vic. cap. 2. He explained that in that Act it was provided that the unappropriated funds on the 31st December of each year should be divided by the Receiver General among the several city and county municipalities according to their population as shown by the last census or any subsequent census to be taken for the purpose. It had since been pressed on the attention of the Government that to take the last census as showing the population at the present time would be very unfair to many municipalities; while the expense of a new census for the purpose would swallow up a large portion of the fund.—It was therefore provided by this Bill that the fund should be divided according to the number of rate-payers in each municipality, which might be assumed to be in the same proportion as the population. Another change was, that instead of confining the benefits of the fund to city and county municipalities, it was provided that the village and township municipalities should share in it. By this arrangement the common school fund, especially in the younger municipalities might be very materially assisted.

Mr. HARTMAN thought it would be a mistake to divide the fund amongst the municipalities, and in one respect, especially, did he think that this was a mistake. He had hoped that the Grammar School system of the country would be benefited by this fund The Common Schools were now supported, and the great educational wants of the country now was a higher grade of schools, something between Common School and Universities. The fund, if divided among the townships, would not be sufficient to establish Grammar Schools, but if it went to the counties, each county might establish one for every two or three townships, and the more populous counties might establish one in every township.

Hon. Mr. SPENCE said there was nothing in the bill to prevent the fund being applied to educational purposes, and he was satisfied there would be as much safety and propriety in leaving it it in the hands of town and township municipalities, as in those of county municipalities. Even if it went to the latter there was no security for the fund being appropriated to Grammar Schools, as the hon. member for York desired. It would more probably be devoted to the payment of county debts.

Mr. MACKENZIE expressed his fears that the people would, in the end, get very little of the fund, in any shape. He believed it would go to the land jobbers and speculators whom this house was particularly anxious to favour. Some six or eight weeks ago an address for a return, showing what amount had gone to the Church of England, how much to the Church of Scotland, how much to the Roman Catholics, and how much to the people. He thought the Government were to blame for having delayed this information so long.

The bill was then read a first time, and ordered to a second reading on Friday next.

THE SHRIEVALTY OF ESSEX.

Mr. RANKIN enquired of the Ministry whether a Sheriff had been appointed for the County of Essex?

Hon Attorney General MACDONALD replied in the negative.

Mr. RANKIN then moved for an Address to His Excellency for copies of all applications and recommendations for the office of Sheriff for the County of Essex.

Attorney General MACDONALD said the motion was rather unusual, but the Government had no objection to let go.

Hon. Mr. MACDONALD (Glengary) said he had never heard of a case in which the Government had agreed to a recommendation of this kind.

Mr. GAMBLE considered it would establish a very bad precedent.

After some further conversation,

Mr. RANKIN said he had reason to believe that he would be put in possession of the information he sought, and he would therefore withdraw his motion.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

SANDWICH, APRIL 4, 1856.

THE ANGLO-SAXON RACE.

A lecture was delivered on the above subject, before the Mechanic's Institute at Windsor, by Mr. Alexander Mackenzie, (a sketch of which we give below) on Tuesday evening last.

The lecturer introduced the subject by a few brief remarks on the importance of race, when considering the material and intellectual progress of the respective nations or nationalities of the human family. He gave Europe itself as a great example of what a vigorous active race could do when opposed to the myriad population of Asia and Africa, stating that Europe, with a fifth of the population, and less than a twelfth of the superficial area of the earth, governed the whole with ease.

The Anglo-Saxon race originated early in the fifth century from an amalgamation of Angles or Danes from northern Germany, and the Saxons from southern Germany, they being introduced into Britain by the more civilized Celts or natives, as hired soldiers, after the Romans evacuated the country, to assist in repelling the more barbarous tribes of the north. The new settlers soon established themselves permanently on the island, and drove the Celtic natives into Wales and the Scottish Highlands. The Anglo-Saxon race being from time to time modified slightly by an admixture of Norman blood, after the conquest of England by William of Normandy—and a gradual amalgamation of the Celtic families.

The power and glory of the rising people gradually, but surely, undermined the strongest and most formidable of the continental Nations. By their extraordinary energy, they soon acquired the dominion of the seas and commenced that system of colonisation, which made the Anglo-Saxon or English name renowned before the commencement of the present century in every corner of the world.

A brief reference to facts shows the extent and nature of the Anglo-Saxon possessions and the power it wields. The entire extent of dry land on the earth is estimated at 51,500,000 square miles, Britain rules over 9,483,000 square miles, or nearly one fourth portion of the whole earth. The population of the world is estimated at 1,800,000,000. Britain holds sway over about 200,000,000; the United States about 26,000,000; or altogether more than one fifth of the entire population of the world.

The manufacture of iron, so important in Commerce, is chiefly carried on by the different families of this race; the yearly produce of the chief producing countries being about 4,000,000 tons. Britain produces 1,954,000; the United States about 3 or 400,000; total 2,364,000; all other countries a little over one and a half millions.

The entire annual produce of coal is computed at 49,000,000 tons. Britain produces 31,500,000; the United States 4,500,000; being a total of 36,000,000, or nearly three-fourths of the whole quantity produced in the world.

In 1846, Britain had upwards of 29,000 vessels—exclusive of steam ships and the Royal Navy—engaged in commercial pursuits, with an aggregate tonage of 3,227,338. The tonnage of inland colonial and steam vessels would run up a total of nearly 4,000,000 as the aggregate tonnage. In the same year the United States had upwards of 20,000 vessels, with an aggregate tonnage of about 2,500,000; shewing a total in possession of the Anglo-Saxon race of of nearly 50,000 vessels and six and a half millions tons. All other maritime nations'had about 48,000 vessels, and 2,877,098 tons burden.

Britain and America hold one-half of the world's commercial vessels. France one seventh; Naples one-tenth; Austria one fifteenth; Sweden and Norway one-sixteenth; Sardinia one-twenty-seventh; Denmark one-thirtieth; Spain one-thirty-fourth; Holland one sixtieth.

The proportions of the world's tonnage is owned as follows: the Anglo-Saxon race nearly 7-10ths; France 1-9th; Sweden 1-17th Holland 1-34th; Russia 1-35th; Naples 1-39th; Austria 1-40th; Turkey 1-44th; Sardinia 1-48th; Denmark 1-52; Spain and Portugal each a 1-100th part; the average tonnage of each vessel belonging to the respective nations being as follows: Holland 150, Anglo-Saxon 130, Portugal 100, Sweden 66, Turkey 82, France 61, Sardinia 50, Denmark 50, Austria 33, Spain 30, Naples 22, Russia unknown.

There was no necessity for giving a comparative statement of the strength of the armed vessels of the different nations, as Britain alone was undisputed mistress of seas, and without the aid of the Anglo-Saxons in America, could meet Europe in mortal combat.

Both branches of the race own about 2000 steamships, that number being equally divided between America and Britain.

Mr. M. spoke of the colonising system of the Anglo-Saxons as the most distinguishing feature in their character, their colonies travelling eastward from the common centre and girdling the globe, all the great commercial routes being occupied at numerous points, for purposes of protection and refreshment; the two routes to the great Eastern Empire in India, and the vast colony of Australia, being secured by a chain of fortresses and settlements, round both sides of Africa, the one guarded by Gibraltar, Malta, and Aden in the Red Sea, all being the most stupendous fortresses in the world; the other route supplied by St. Helena, Ascension, Western Africa and the Cape of Good Hope.

The Anglo-Saxon Indian Empire was treated as the prevailing and most powerful of the Asiatic nations with Burmah and Persia at its mercy. Ample reasons were given to shew that the fresh and vigorous Indian dependency would stretch westward towards the Turkish Empire on the Black Sea and that on the restoration of peace, English colonies would settle at various points in Asia minor and the eastern shores of the Black Sea gradually and bestow the blessings of Anglo-Saxon rule from the Mediterranean to the Indian Ocean.

The power of self-government was treated of as being the most prominent characteristic of the race, and as being the source of their power, and in connection with, and dependence upon, Christianity the free distribution of the Bible—the real security for an increasing power, and perpetuity of dominion.

The present state of the province of Canada was given—as upon the whole, the best illustration of the self-governing capacity inherent in the race; the various municipalities apportioning and collecting their own taxes, without any necessity to resort to force, and all submitting to the rule of Parliament and the English Crown. For the sake of further illustration the late ministerial Crisis was supposed to happen amidst a Spanish people. It would have been termed a revolution; the crushing of the opposition would have been followed by the exile or execution of Senor J. A. Cameron and Senor Brown, the Globe and Colonist, suppressed, and their editors shot; a marching and countermarching of troops under opposition Chiefs and Ministerialists, the various cities pronouncing in favor of one side or the other, business paralised, property destroyed, and the establishment of a dictatorship under the successful minister with some grand title.—The Press was largely treated of as one of the most potent of Anglo-Saxon agencies in civilising the world; and as the exponent and representative of perfect freedom at home. The number of newspapers in Anglo-Saxon lands is about 3,200, France 300; all other Countries 700. The internal condition of the Anglo-Saxon nations was largely spoken of, their excellencies and defects, the present jealousies on the younger power spoken of as transient, the coming of a close union of all branches of the race, confidently predicted bringing with it a perfect supremacy over all other nations. Our limits prevent us giving more than a very meagre outline of the lecture on this interesting subject.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

The General Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the County of Essex was held at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Tuesday last the 1st inst.

His Honor Judge Chewett presided, assisted by Thomas Woodbridge, Joseph Bratt F. A. Lafferty, John McEwan, Henry Mc Kenny and Thomas Salmoni, Esquires, Justices.

The Grand Jury sworn were: Richard Barrett, Foreman, Antoine Curierre, Alexander Wallace, Moses Labadie, William Monferton, Josiah Best, John Pincomb, Robert Reid, George M. Fox, Joseph Hevon, Leandre Ouellette, Thomas A. Quick, Terrence McGuire, Anthony O'Madden, James Lafferty, and John W. Ridsdale.

The following is a list of cases.

John Solo, who had been committed to Gaol for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, was dismissed.

George Washington, (colored), convicted of stealing from John Prince, Esq., his late employer, a tea kettle, two picture frames, a pail, a funnel and a bag of flour—1 m'nth imprisonment.

Robert Morin, (colored), convicted of stealing from Ovid Pillette's Mill 110 lbs of flour—Two months' imprisonment.

Edward Eggs, a youth of about fourteen years of age, pleaded guilty to having stolen a Goose from John Thomas—Imprisoned 7 days.

Eliza Dickson and Wuliam Eggs, committed for receiving a Goose, knowing the same to be stolen—Guilty. E. Dickson one month, W. Dickson two months' imprisonment.

Charles Gray, (colored) convicted of stealing 12 bushels of wheat from Albert Lepan, of Colchester—Three months.

Mr. A. Prince for the prosecution; Mr. L. J. Fluett for the prisoner.

Hamison Williams, a colored boy about ten years of age, was convicted of stealing a silver mug from Mrs. E. Smith of Sandwich—Seven days imprisonment.

James Williams, (colored), was convicted of stealing 12 bushels of wheat from Albert Lepan, Colchester—Three months' imprisonment.

Robert Jackson, (colored), was bound over to keep the peace for one year.

John White, a respectable looking colored man, was tried for stealing a chisel, saw and plane from Hiram Pearson of Windsor, and acquitted.

A bill of indictment, brought before the Grand Jury, against John White, for stealing a plane from John Graham, was thrown out.

Charles E. Casgrain, M.D., was appointed Physician and Surgeon to the Gaol.

The Grand Jury made their presentment as follows:

The Grand Jurors of our Sovereign Lady the Queen upon their oath present,

That they have examined the Gaol and premises, and find them as satisfactory as the condition of the Gaol will permit. They think it unnecessary to make any remarks in regard to the condition of the Gaol in view of the near completion of the new one. We find the inmates kept in good order, cleanly and well satisfied. The only complaint was in regard to the serving of bread, which is served at irregular hours, much to the inconvenience of the prisoners and all connected with the Gaol.

RICHARD BARRETT, Foreman.

There being no more criminal business before the Sessions, the County Court was opened, and the following cases were tried.

ROSE vs. NEWCOMB.—An action brou't on a promissory note. Verdict for pl'tiff, £32 10s. Mr. O'Connor for plaintiff; Mr. A. Prince for deft.

RIDSDALE vs. STAFFORD—Action on notes of hand and an account. Verdict for plaintiff, £40 9s. 2d.

MCLEAN vs. NELSON.—The plaintiff in this action sued the defendant on a former occasion, and obtained a verdict for £37 10s. This amount appeared so unreasonably large, that the defendant applied for a new trial, which was granted, and when tried on this occasion, the Jury rendered a verdict of only £5 10s. This amount appeared much more in reason from the evidence which was adduced.

APPEAL CASE, BENITEAU appellant, RATELLE respondent. Beniteau was convicted before F. A. Lafferty, Esq., J. P., and ordered to pay Ratelle for 7 days' labor. Ratelle did not appear. Conviction quashed.

THE CHURCHMAN'S FRIEND.—We have received the April number of this popular little periodical. Among the contents there is a very important article on the approaching synod, which deserves attentive consideration. We are glad by the way, to observe that this Synod will comprise among its lay members many of the ablest and most influential men of the province. The Parish of St. James, Toronto, has elected Sir J. B. Robinson, Chief Justice Draper, and Clarke Gamble, Esq., for its lay delegates. Sir Allan F. MacNab, the Hon. S. Mills, and M. O'Reilley, Esq., are elected from Hamilton. London sends L. Lawrason, Esq., W. W. Street, Esq., and the Hon. J. C. Goodhue; and many other eminent men have doubtless been chosen. Sandwich will be represented by P. J. Salter, Esq., and T. Woodbridge, Esq., and Windsor by Dr. Dewson.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

THIRD DAY.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL CHAMBER, Sandwich, 13th January, 1856.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment,

The roll was called.

Present: S. S. Macdonell, Esq., Warden, and Messrs. Bondy, Brush, Cunningham, Desjardins, Flanagan Lafferty, Maloney, Malotte, Patillo, Wigle and Woodbridge.

The minutes of yesterday were read and approved.

The Gaol Committee presented their report, which was read and adopted.

Moved by Mr. Wigle, seconded by Mr. Maloney, that the sum of two pounds ten shillings be appropriated to repair the Council Chamber and Gaoler's quarters.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Lafferty, seconded by Mr. Brush, that Mr. Woodbridge be authorized to repair the roof of the Council Chamber, and present the amount of the cost thereof to this Council for payment.

The vote was taken upon the amendment which was carried.

Moved by Mr. Wigle, seconded by Mr. Maloney, that the County Clerk be instructed to furnish a copy of the Educational Manual to each Reeve, for the use of his Municipality, and a copy to each Local Superintendent.

Carried.

The second reading of the By-Law, "To appoint Messrs. Alfred Baily and Patrick Warren, Commissioners to dispose of the Timber on the Township Line between Anderdon and Malden," was read a first time.

The Council resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider said By-Law.

Mr. Brush in the chair.

The By-Law was read in Committee.

The Council resumed, and the Chairman reports By-Law without amendments.

The By-Law was read a third time.

Moved by Mr. Cunningham, seconded by Mr. Bondy, that the said by-Law be now passed.

Carried.

Moved by Mr. Flanagan, seconded by Mr. Patillo, that it is expedient to settle the salaries of County officers, and that the Council resolve itself into committee of the whole for the consideration of the same.

Carried.

Mr. Malotte in the chair.

Moved by Mr. Patillo, seconded by Mr. Maloney, that the Auditors' salaries be fixed at seven pounds ten shillings each for the ensuing year.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Macdonell, seconded by Mr. Woodbridge, that it is inexpedient to make any change in the existing salaries of County officers, the same having been already settled upon due consideration, and held as only adequate remuneration for the services performed, and the attainments required for the due performance of the duties of their offices respectively, and at a time when the cost of living was less than it is at present.

The vote was taken upon the amendment which was carried.

The Council resumed.

The chairman reports resolution regarding the salaries of County officers.

Moved by Mr. Cunningham, seconded by Mr. Lafferty, that the first day of July next, at ten o'clock, A.M., be fixed as the time of the meeting of this Council, for the purpose of equalizing the assessment valuations in the different Municipalities of the County.

Carried.

Moved by Mr. Cunningham, seconded by Mr. Maloney, that the Warden be authorized to negotiate the debentures as quickly as possible, not allowing more than ten per cent discount off the face.

Carried.

Moved by Mr. Malotte, seconded by Mr. Wigle, that the Council do now adjourn until the 1st of July next.

Carried.

ARRIVAL OF THE CANADA.

HALIFAX 28th, 8. P. M.

The Canada left Liverpool on the morning of the 5th instant, and arrived at Halifax this evening.

The Atlantic arrived out on the 12th.

Mr. Dallas immediately proceeded to the Adelphi, where a deputation (among them the Chamber of Commerce) presented him with a congratulatory address.

No excitement regarding American affairs

Nothing definite transpired respecting peace conference. All accounts agree in the almost certainty of peace, and advices from Germany and Russia bear the same tone. It is generally supposed that the treaty would be signed on Saturday. All differences are not yet adjusted.

Several important despatches respecting the Danubian principalities and Asiatic frontier are left as undecided as when Conference first met.

It is rumored that the rectification of territory and the adjustment of other unarranged differences are to be referred to Commissioners on the spot.

Sardinia will not be represented in this Commission.

Despatches from Berlin and Vienna state that Prussia has been invited to send representatives to the Conference, and that she accepts, and Baron Manteufel would leave Berlin on the 14th for Paris as Plenipotentiary.

The admission of Prussia is said to be specially based on the ground that the discussion respecting the treaty of 1841, by which the Dardanelles were closed to ships of war, is to begin forthwith.

Palmerston, however, refused to answer D'Israeli's question as to whether Prusia is wanted. He also refused to say whether Italian affairs occupied the attention of the Conference.

THE CRIMEA.

The Russian and allied Generals had met on the Traktir bridge and exchanged proposals of an armistice, and a line of neutral ground, limited by the Tchernaya, has been based between the two armies.

ASIA.

Selim Pasha was preparing to take command of the Turkish army

Salem Pasha is to be courtmartialled for the fall of Kars.

The Ottoman ministry are occupied with measures for relieving the money crisis.

The free export of breadstuffs is permitted from the southern Turkish ports, but prohibited from ports east of the Dardanelles.

THE BALTIC.

Advices state that the British flying squadron are pushing towards the Gulf of Finland

GREAT BRITAIN.

Admiral Napier had brought forward in Parliament his threatened motion for enquiry into the management of the Baltic fleet, while under his command. He contended that he was sacrificed to Sir James Graham's incapacity. Graham retorted by saying the Admiral was physically unfit; also, that his reputation was higher than his courage, and his courage than his skill.—Admiral Berkeley also attacked Napier, who retorted. The motion was eventually withdrawn.

FRANCE.

Paris correspondents continue to speak with confidence of peace, and also mention that the speculative mania increases. The more cautious fear that peace will bring about a commercial catastrophe.

SPAIN.

The Madrid Gazette officially denies that Napoleon has addressed a remonstrance to the Spanish Government respecting the international state of affairs.

RUSSIA.

Prince Gortschakoff (diplomatist) is going from Vienna to St. Petersburgh to take part in the deliberations relative to the diplomatic attitude to be taken by Russia after the conclusion of peace. Mr. Titoff returns from Stattagort for the same purpose.

SECOND DESPATCH.

PARIS, March 14, 1856.

The Congress held its sitting to-day.—The Moniteur publishes the following:—The Congress invited Prussia as the signer of the Treaty of July 13th, 1841, to send plenipotentiaries to Paris, and the King of Prussia has appointed Baron de Manteufel and Count de Hatzfeld. Baron M. has left Berlin for Paris.

VIENNA, March 14.

A new reduction of the Austrian army has been announced.

From Kiel, March 14th. we learn that the Firefly had entered that port with a despatch from the British Government, requesting commodore Watson not to engage in hostilities in the Baltic.

It was stated in well informed circles on Friday night, that Parliament will be dissolved in May.

The Sultan's brother is dead.

The Armistice was proclaimed March 1st, in the Crimea.

A despatch from Berlin, on the 12th says Coulterhoff has made known at St. Petersburg, that a definite understanding has been come to on the 5th point, and thanks to the instructions brought by Schrewaloff, peace is restored.

Some special deliberations, which are to take place between Russia and Turkey have been reserved.

Preparations are making at Moscow fo the Coronation of the Emperor, which will take place after peace is concluded.

In Parliament a question was asked, when papers in regard to the dispute of the United States, in relation to Central America, would be presented?

Lord PALMERSTON replied that he was not able to state the precise day, but it would be very soon after the Easter recess.

Mr. ROEBUCK asked whether the papers would include those relative to the recruiting question. Lord Palmerston said he could not tell at present, as no reply had been received to the last despatch by her Majesty's government.

ARRIVAL OF THE "FULTON."

NEW YORK, March 29.

The steamer Fulton arrived this morning from Havre March 12th, and Cowes, 13th.

She brings 72 passengers and $860,000 in specie.

Among her passengers is Camden C. Dike, bearer of despatches from the United States Legation at Paris.

The Fulton brings the second edition of the London Times of Wednesday.

The Vienna correspondent of the Times states that the mystery of the recent improved relations between Austria and the United States has been cleared up.

An Austro-American company is about to be formed in order to open the direct trade between the United States and Austria, and to import corn and produce direct from America, instead of from London and Liverpool. The writer intimates that a treaty of commerce between the United States and Austria will be concluded at no distant day.

Col. Hodes, British representative at Hamburg, has made representations to the Senate respecting the quantities of ammunition that left that port for Russia.

It was proved on examination that in most instances those supplies were forwarded through the account of two houses of high standing in England, in one of which a member of Parliament was interested.

The Paris correspondent of the Times states that in two points Russia makes ample concession, viz.:—The neutralization of the Black Sea and the dismantling of fortresses, and the non-reconstruction of Bomarsund

NEW YORK, March 29.

Private letters by the Illinois state that the British frigate which recently arrived at Panama from Callao, immediately on her arrival hastened back to Punta Arenas, in order to defend the country against the threatened incursions of General Walker.

A French frigate was also there acting in concert with the British force against Walker.

The steamship Ericsson sailed for Liverpool to-day in place of the Pacific. She took out 9 passengers and no specie.

BOSTON, 29th.

We learn by an arrival at Provincetown, Cape Cod, that the Canard steamer Curlew from Halifax to Bermuda, ran ashore on the North Breakwater of Bermuda, on the 18th, and sank in three minutes. The mails were lost, but the crew saved.

ARRIVAL OF THE ATLANTIC.

Peace Certain!

Louis Napoleon has a Son.

NEW YORK, April 2.—The Atlantic has arrived at this port bringing Liverpool dates March 19th.

Peace is considered as virtually concluded, and the arrival of Prussian Plenipotentiaries at Paris was alone waited to sign the protocol.

A son is born to the Emperor and Empress of France.

The British Parliament was not in session, owing to the Easter recess.

Nothing had transpired respecting American affairs.

No news of the Pacific.

Liverpool Markets.—Cotton dull, and rather easier.

Breadstuffs wholly unchanged, although a dull tone prevailed.

Sugars active and buoyant.

The Asia arrived out on the forenoon of the 18th.

LATEST.—London, Wednesday A. M.—The Paris Bulletin of yesterday says the Empress and child were doing well.

Advices from Africa to the 25th state coast to be healthy, but business dull.

There had been disturbances in the Cape coast, in which 30 natives were killed and 100 wounded.

The ships Laracen and Martha, of Liverpool, were burned at Bonny, Jan. 15.

LONDON, Tuesday evening.—English funds again flat to day, in consequence of the continued realization of stocks. Money continues in good supply. Discount easier though nothing lower than six per cent.

India mail arrived at Trista with Calcutta dates to the 9th—and Bombay 16th Feb. A proclamation issued Feb. 7th, announced the annexation of Oude, and the deposition of the King.

The Santa rebellion had been renewed, trade inactive and prices fluctuating, excepting Indigo, money easier.

The birth of the Prince of Algiers is the cause of much outward rejoicing in France, and England, addresses and congratulations continue to pour into the Tuileries. Paris was illuminated. The Pope is to be the Prince's god-father and the Queen of Sweden god-mother, flags were hung out, salutes fired in honor of the event in the principal cities of Britain.

Baron Manteufel had arrived in Paris, and it was expected the Protocol would be signed in a few days.

Secrecy as to proceedings of the conference is still observed.

Telegraphic advices from Constantinople are to the 5th inst.

The Divan owing to remonstrances of merchants had renounced the projected issue of 100,000,000 paper money.

Nestric Pacha was convicted of malversation and had been sentenced to imprisonment and to refund several hundred thousand francs.

A new detachment of Russian troops had arrived in Bessarabia.

ENGLAND.—Mr. Dallas had gone to London.

Mr. Buchanan had taken formal leave of the Queen.

Palmerston accompanied Buchanan, and on this account the English papers seen an indication that the Premier desires to stand well with the United States.

The King of Belgium had arrived in London to attend the confirmation of his God daughter, the princess royal.

The young prince of Prussia is about to visit England to be betrothed to the princess royal.

A Deputation of the friends of Poland had waited on Palmerston, begging to give instruction to the British Plenipotentiary at Paris to insist on the restoration of Poland.

The Crimea.

The Moniteur says that Marshal Pelissier has informed the Minister of War that the resolution passed by the Plenipotentiaries on the 15th of February, relative to the armistice, which is to extend to the 31st of March, was known in the Crimea on the 23rd of February. On the 29th February, at a conference held at the Tractir bridge between the chiefs of the staff of the Allied armies and General Tutchimeff, delegated by the Commander-in-Chief of the Russian army, it was decided that there should be a complete suspension of hostilities.

The Nordeutscher Zeitung, published in Berlin, corroborates the above intelligence in the following terms:—"On the 29th of February delegates from the two belligerent armies met on the so-called Stonebridge to concert measures for carrying out the armistice, conformably to the resolutions of the Paris Conferences."

The Paris Press and the United States.

The Paris Constitutionel in an article upon the difficulties between England and the United States, signed by the principal editor,—the usual form, when it is wished to be understood that the application has a semi-official character, says:

"If the United States are determined to be warlike, they will find that not only England, but France also, will be opposed to them. The Cabinets of Europe can never view with indifference the danger with which the American Government threatens the independence of the weak powers and the peace of all the world.

"It is vain for the United States to imagine that America belongs to them exclusively, and that Europe has no business whatever to intermeddle in the affairs of the American continent. This doctrine, proclaimed and accepted by some of their statesmen, is utterly untenable. The affairs of the whole world—of England of France, of Spain, of Holland—because they have both commercial and political interests to defend, numerous colonies to protect, a direct and indisputable right of interference.

"It would be well, too, that the Americans themselves, should practice what they preach, and not, as in the case of the Sound Dues, seek arbitrarily to abrogate customs in Europe which the European powers had recognized and acknowledged for centuries. The Anglo French Alliance will survive the war in the Crimea. The United States would do well, then, to be more modest, or at least, more moderate in their bearing towards England and the rest of Europe."

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

THE PARIS CONFERENCE.

The Liverpool Mercury, of the 12th instant, in its summary of the proceedings of the Peace Conference, says:—

The Congress at Paris held its seventh sitting on Monday last, and this is nearly all, if not more than all, that is positively known on the subject, notwithstanding the voluminous gossip of the Paris correspondent of the Times professes to know that the first three sittings of the Congress were "far from justifying the hopes of a pacific arrangement;" but the fifth and sixth sittings ended more satisfactorily. What was more likely than this? What was more easy to surmise? It was only natural that at the outset of the Conference the Russian Plenipotentiaries should show the boldest front—put forth the highest pretensions—resist the demands that were unpalatable and that there was the slightest chance of modifying or evading; and it was also natural that, as they found France and England could not be severed in opinion or action, they should become less pretentious and more yielding.

Count Orloff is said to have stated on Friday last, to a military man who sat near to him at a convivial entertainment, that "matters looked so well at that moment as to justify the expectation that at the next meeting they would obtain a complete and satisfactory termination." The next meeting (the 6th) took place on Saturday last; but we are now told that it did not prove so decidedly satisfactory as the two previous ones. Le Nord, which probably knows more of what is going on in the Conference than any other journal, says: "We persist in believing that the negotiations are nearly at an end; French and Russia sincerely desire peace; Turkey and Piedmont are not opposed to it; the subtleties of Austria and the obstinacy of England may somewhat retard, but will not prevent it."

PEACE PROSPECTS ON TRADE SPECULATIONS

From the Moniteur.

The prospects of peace has given rise to various speculations. The companies are under formation, and requests are daily sent to the administration. It is the duty of the Government to oppose exaggerated speculation, (entraiments,) which might compromise affairs already in hand and endanger credit. The Emperor has decided that, whatever may be the issue of the pending negotiations, the Government will maintain that reserve which it has imposed upon itself, and that no new enterprise occasioning the issue of new stock shall be authorised during the course of the present year.

THE EMPEROR ALEXANDER ON THE PROSPECTS OF PEACE.

Some time ago a number of gentlemen of Silesia sent an address to the Emperor Alexander of Russia as a testimony of their respect, and also to thank him for the pacific ideas he had lately evinced. The following is the reply of the Emperor:

"I thank you, for the good feeling and congratulation conveyed in your address, as well in your name as that of all Prussians, to whom the Christian and peaceful sentiments of their King are dear and sacred. I, too, desire that peace may be re-established and for ever secured, and I trust that God will listen to the prayers that I and all those of the same feelings as myself offer up to Him. Receive, gentlemen, all of you whose honourable names I have with pleasure seen affixed to this address, the assurance of my particular consideration.

ALEXANDER.

"ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 4, 1856."

☞ We understand that Mr. Swift of Detroit, is about running a small steamer of that name between Detroit and Sandwich She is to run five times a day as soon as the weather will permit. We have no doubt of her success.

The statistical tables of mortality shows a reduction in this country of the proportion of deaths from pulmonary diseases. Doctor Ayer attributes this result to the effect of his Cherry Pectoral. He also asserts that the cures from his Cathartic Pills give reason to believe they will, as they come into more general use, materially reduce the mortality from those particular diseases for which they are designed. From what we know of his preparations, we think he has grounds for his claims, and if he has, it is an attainment of which an Emperor might be proud. Rarely is it permitted any one man to know that his skill is bestowing health and life to the masses of his fellow man.

Such a reflection is worth working for, even though he had only the reflection for his reward.—Springfield Daily Courier.

DIED

At Sandwich, on the 29th March, Henry Hargrave, youngest son of Thomas McKee, Esquire, aged one year and three months.

SANDWICH MARKET.

"Maple Leaf" Office, 3rd April, 1856
Flour Best warranted,	$ 8 00	$ 8 50
" 2nd quality .	7 00	7 50
Buckwheat Flour,	3 00	4 00
Rye "	3 00	3 50
Timothy Seed,	4 00
Clover,	8 00
Corn Meal per 100	1 50	2 00
Corn per bushel, 56lbs.	0 51	0 00
Oats " do 34lbs.	0 37½	0 00
Potatoes do	0 44	0 50
Wheat do 60lbs,	1 00	1 25
Barley do 48lbs,	0 75	0 00
Hay per Ton	10 00	12 00
Straw per load	1 50	2 00
Wood per cord (Hard)	2 00	0 00
do Mixed	1 50	0 00
Pork per 100lbs.	6 00	6 50
Beef "	5 00	6 00

DETROIT MARKET.

Flour.	$5 00.
Wheat.	1 30.
Corn.	0 50.
Oats.	0 36.
Pork	6 50.

Detroit, 3rd April, 1856.

LANDS FOR SALE.

A SMALL FARM, being part of Lot No 37, in First Concession, Petite Cote, 40 acres, all under fence, two acres in width by twenty in depth. This lot is beautifully situated upon the road to Amherstburg, about three miles from Sandwich, it is well adapted for a residence.

Two Lots on Glengary Avenue, one house and lot on St. George's street, in the village of Windsor.

A number of Town Lots on the Pajot Farm, in the town of Sandwich.

Also part of lots Nos. 95 and 96, 1st and 2nd Con., half a mile above Windsor, two houses and barn thereon, containing 150 acres

The above lots will be sold for cash, at the very lowest figure, and parties wishing to purchase for residences or speculation, will find this an opportunity which is not often afforded. Title Indisputable.

CHAS. F. LABADIE

All parties owing the subscriber are requested to settle forthwith, or having any claims against him are requested to present them without delay, as he is about winding up his business.

C. F. L

Sandwich April, 1856.

TO BE LET FOR EIGHT YEARS,

A TWO STORY FRAME HOUSE with a Half-Acre Garden, on Lot No 4, East Side of Peter Street.

To be let subject to all Repairs and Taxes. A large reduction will be made to any person paying three years' rent in advance. For further particulars enquire of

J. GREEN,
Great Western Book and Shoe Store,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

27th March, 1856.

N.B.—Possession will be given on the first of May next.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

COUNTY OF ESSEX } By virtue of a writ to wit: } of fieri facias issued out of Court of Common Pleas at Toronto, to me directed, against the lands and tenements of Alfred Baby at the suit of James Olwell and Mathew Olwell, I have seized and taken in execution the following lands viz: water lot number three on the East, water lots numbers three, four, and fourteen on the west, and land and water lots numbers thirteen and sixteen on the north side of Sandwich Street, and Park Lots Nos. one and twelve, Field lot letter E, Village lots number nine and ten on the south side of Sandwich Street, lots numbers twenty-one and twenty-two, north side of Pitt Street, lots numbers one and two on the south side of Pitt Street, lots numbers eight and nine on the north side of Chatham Street, in Block C: lot number two on the south side of Chatham Street, lot number five on the north side of London Street, in Block B, lots three and four on the south side of London Street Block G, in the Village of Windsor in the County of Essex, forming part of the Town Plot of the said village, as laid out on the estate of the late Francois Baby, Esq., and lot number twenty-eight in the first Concession, Township of Maidstone, two hundred acres of land, all of which property I shall offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich on Saturday the twenty-eighth day of June next at twelve o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff.

Sheriff's office, Sandwich,
27th March.

BARTLEY AND PINNEY,

PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.

MAPS AND PLANS drawn in the first style. Estimates, Specifications, &c., of all kinds prepared at short notice. All work entrusted to us shall be executed with punctuality and despatch.

Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.

O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.

March 28, 1856. n5ly

Notice.

COUNTY OF ESSEX } NOTICE is hereby given to wit: } that a Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the said County, will be holden at the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, on Tuesday the first day of April next, at the hour of Ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all Coroners, Justices, Gaolers, Bailiffs, Constables, Jurors, and all others in anywise bound and are required, and enjoined to attend, to do and perform all those things which to their office belong and appertain.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich, }
1st March, 1856. }

Notice.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, } Notice is hereby given to wit: } that the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol delivery Assize and Nisi Prius, in and for the said County, will be held at the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, on Tuesday the twenty second day of April next, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all Coroners, Justices, Gaolers, Bailiffs Constables, and all others in any way concerned are required to attend, to do and perform all those things which to their office belong and appertain.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich, }
1st March, 1856. }

CARPETS. CARPETS.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

THE Subscribers have just received, ex "London," a Large Stock of which they are prepared to offer at low prices, and are well worthy of inspection.

BRUSSELS, 3 PLY, AND SCOTCH CARPETINGS

T. B. & J. HARRIS,
Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

DETROIT SEED STORE AND AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.

I would call the attention of Farmers and Gardeners to my present stock of Agricultural Implements, consisting of the most useful and latest improved kind of Ploughs, Hay and Corn Stalk Cutting Boxes, Cultivators, Seed Planters, Corn Shellers, Fan Mills, Root Drillers, Corn Planters, Cob Crushers, Churns, &c. Garden, Field, and Flower Seeds, raised by the most experienced and careful growers in this country and England, and I think purchasers may feel confident that every kind sold will prove true to their name, and give perfect satisfaction All seed offered for sale will be of the present year's growth when offered as such.

E. F. PARKER.

75 Woodward Avenue, Detroit.

S. D. ELWOOD & CO., PUBLISHERS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN

BOOKS, STATIONERY,

AND ALL KINDS OF

PAPERS,

PRINTERS AND BINDERS STOCK

MANUFACTURERS OF

BLANK BOOKS

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

Orders for Lithographed Letter and Bill Heads, Maps, Drafts, Stock Certificates, &c., &c., &c.,

EXECUTED WITH PROMPTNESS.

192 Jefferson Avenue,

S. D. ELWOOD, }
J. C. PARSONS, } DETROIT.

Feb 29th, 1856.

A RARE CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY

IS NOW OFFERED IN

E. EVARD'S GRAND GIFT ENTERPRISE AND LOTTERY, to take place at

SANDWICH,

ON THE 19th APRIL, 1856.

ALL PRIZES! NO BLANKS.

The following is a List of a few of the Prizes:

2 Shares in Sandwich Street Plank Road Company, worth	$200
A Glass Case, ...	40
A Burr Cooking Stove, . . .	40
A Buggy Harness, ...	40
Trotting Waggon, ...	20
Double Barrel Gun, ...	18
Dress Coat (new)	18
Frock	15
Single Barrel Gun, ...	15
Do do do, ...	15
Settee, ...	12
Pair of Curtains, ...	10
Lot of Dishes, ...	10
Six Shooter, ...	10
Sewing Machine, ...	10
20 Yards Carpet, ...	10
Eight Day Clock, ...	8
Do do	6
Looking Glass, ...	5
Pair of Shanghais, ...	5

Together with other articles amounting to FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

On the day of drawing, the holders of tickets will have the privilege of appointing a Committee to regulate the mode of drawing, &c., &c. If the tickets are not all sold by the day appointed for drawing, due notice will be given of the postponement in the "Maple Leaf."

Tickets, One Dollar Each.

DIVISION COURTS FOR ESSEX.

1st. Sandwich Monday, 12th May, 1856.
2nd. Amherstburg, Saturday, 12th April.
3rd. Kingsville, Wednesday, 16th do.
4th. Colchester, Monday, 14th do.
5th. Mersea, Friday, 18th do.
6th. Simon's, Middle Road, Saturday, 19th May
Sandwich 12th Feb. 1856.

SPRING CIRCUITS.

HOME CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Sir John Beverley Robinson, Bart. Monday, 17th March, Milton. Tuesday, 25th March,
Barrie. Thursday, 27th April,
Niagara. Tuesday, 22nd April,
Hamilton Tuesday, 13th May,
Sydenham Tuesday, 27th May.

EASTERN CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Draper
Brockville Monday, 31st April,
Cornwall Monday, 28th April,
Original Thursday, 24th April,
Ottawa Monday, 12th May,
Perth Thursday, 22nd May.

MIDLAND CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice McLean.
Whitby Wednesday, 26th March,
Peterborough Tuesday, 8th April,
Cobourg Monday, 14th April,
Belleville Thursday, 24th April,
Picton Tuesday, 6th May,
Kingston Tuesday, 13th May,

OXFORD CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Burns.
Brantford Tuesday, 22nd April,
Simcoe Tuesday, 29th April,
Woodstock Monday, 5th May,
Stratford Wednesday, 14th May,
Berlin Tuesday, 20th May,
Guelph Monday, 26th May.

WESTERN CIRCUIT.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Hagarty.
Goderich Tuesday, 4th March,
St. Thomas Wednesday, 12th March,
London Wednesday, 19th March,
Chatham Tuesday, 15th April,
Sandwich Tuesday, 22nd April,
Sarnia Tuesday, 29th April.

CITY OF TORONTO.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Richards.
Toronto. Monday, 5th May.

PAINT SHOP.

FRANCOIS PAYETTE having opened a Paint Shop in the Town of Sandwich, opposite the "Sandwich Exchange," will be happy to attend to the painting of houses, Graining, Glazing, Varnishing and, in fact, every description of work in his line of business with despatch, and at moderate charges.

N.B.—Buggies and Carriages painted and varnished upon reasonable terms.

Sandwich, 9th March, 1856.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

ALL Persons to whom the late Mr. John McCormick, of Point Pelée Island, deceased, stood indebted at the the time of his decease, are requested to send in their accounts forthwith to the undersigned or either of them.

MARY MCCORMICK.
DAVID MCCORMICK.
WILLIAM MCCORMICK

Point Pelée Island,
7th March, 1856.

SIMPSON'S EATING SALOON.

MR. SIMPSON would inform the Gentlemen of Sandwich and vicinity that he is prepared at all hours to furnish "Hot Meals," and those who may favor his establishment with a call, can depend upon having, if they wish, a "steak" cooked in the good old English style, with all the little etceteras.

Dinner Parties accommodated upon the shortest notice.

N.B.—A few persons can be accommodated with good clean beds.

No 253 Jefferson Avenue Detroit Mich. few doors above the Theatre.

TO RENT.

A DRUG STORE, with a large and well selected stock of Drugs and Medicines, in the Town of Sandwich. The Drugs and Medicines will be sold on reasonable terms. The selection cannot be surpassed in Upper Canada. Possession given on the first day of July next, if required. The present proprietor is about entering other business, which will prevent him attending to the Drug business, and which is the only reason for his retiring from he trade. For particulars inquire of

J. ADLEY.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

TO LET OR FOR SALE.

A Brick House and Lot, on No. 4, East side of Main Street, fronting "Maple Hotel." The above property will be leased for $150 a year; or, for particulars of sale apply to

STANISLAUS LASALINE.

Sandwich, 20th March, 1856.

Sandwich and Windsor Stage.

BY JOHN LEWIS.

THE Proprietor of this popular line has added a new Stage and first-rate horses, and will hereafter run an Hourly Stage to Windsor with speed and punctuality. He hopes to merit the patronage of the public.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

NOTICE.

A BAY PONEY came in the barn yard on the "Hand's Farm," about the 1st February last, and unless the owner comes in claim the same and pay the charges, it will be impounded and sold.

Hand's Farm, 15th March, 1856.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

THE SANDWICH MILLINERY AND DRESS MAKING Establishment will be reopened for the season.

The Proprietor having just returned from the Eastern Cities with a Large Stock of Millinery and Dress Goods of the latest style and fashion, which he offers for sale at a small advance from their original Cost.

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE
L. P. ST. AMOUR.

Sandwich, Feb 29th, 1856.

Beacon

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE CO

of London.

Incorporated under Act of Imperial Parliament, 7 and 8 Vic., Chap. 1.

CANADA BOARD.

KINGSTON.

TRUSTEES.

The Hon John A Macdonald.
James Morton, Esquire.

DIRECTORS!

M. W. Strange, Esq., Chairman.
Thos. A. Corbett, Esq., Deputy Chairman.
James Morton, Esq. John Mowatt, Esq
James Harty, Esq. A. J Macdonell, Esq.
Lewis Walbridge, Esq. T. Clarkson, Esq.

MONTREAL.

Wm. Molson, Esq. Thomas Evans, Esq.
Damase Masson, Esquire,

This Company Insures all descriptions of BUILDINGS, MANUFACTORIES, MILLS, &c. and Goods or FURNITURE in the same, against loss or damage by fire, on liberal terms. All descriptions of LIFE RISKS, taken at as low rates as are consistent with security to the assured. Losses promptly settled without reference to England.

ALEX. GORDON,
Agent at Windsor for Western Frontier
March 7, 1856.

EXECUTORS' NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to all persons indebted to the late ALPHEUS MORSE, of the Town of Sandwich, deceased and late of the Firm of MORSE AND CALVIN, Lumbermen, to make payment to the undersigned, and all persons having claims against the said A. MORSE, or MORSE AND CALVIN, are requested to present them for payment prior to the 1st day of May next to

ELECTA MORSE }
H. C. GUILLOT, } Executors.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th 1856.

J. H. ALLISON,

IMPORTER OF

IMPROVED

RAILROAD WATCHES.

Cased in beautiful styles warranted excellent time pieces. Also, Swiss full jeweled Levers of every style.

GOLD PENS.

I continue manufacturing Pens of every desirable pattern; these Pens have received

A SILVER MEDAL & DIPLOMA

At the Michigan State Fair, and are not to be surpassed by any Pens in the market.

ALSO DEALER IN

FINE JEWELRY, SILVER WARE, AND FANCY GOODS.

I have an experienced Jeweller, capable of making New Work to order,

SETTING STONES AND DIAMOND WORK, &C.,

FIRE GILDING AND GALVANIZING

Done at Short Notice.

WATCH REPAIRING.

Being a Practical Workman, all work entrusted to my care will be carefully attended to.

GOLD PENS RE-POINTED

at 50 cents all sizes. Orders sent by mail, accompanied by cash, will be promptly attended to.

J. H. ALLISON,
No. 176 Jefferson Ave.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

CIGAR FACTORY.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the inhabitants of Amherstburg and vicinity that he has opened a Cigar Factory in the above Town, where every description of the choicest kind are always on hand. He has also lately imported from Havana a large quantity of the very best Principe and every other description of Cigars, which he intends to sell at a much smaller price than can be had in Detroit. Call and see him, and he will give a puff.

JOHN N. MILLER.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

Crockery Store and China Emporium.

F. P MATHER & Co., IMPORTERS and Dealers in Crockery, China, Glass, Britannia and Silver Plated Ware, Lamps and Looking Glasses, Table Cutlery and Fancy Ware, "Sign of the Big White Pitcher," No. 224 Jefferson Avenue, Kearsley's Block, opposite Fireman's Hall, Detroit, Michigan.

Feb 29th, 1856.

Closing Up.

THE Subscriber, having determined to bring his business to a close by the first day of July next, begs most respectfully to return his grateful acknowledgments to his Customers and the Public generally for their liberal support of the past few years. He now offers his present Stock, comprising a general assortment of at reduced prices to close up. To any person desirous to engage in the business, he will dispose of the stock at cost. The residence occupied by the subscriber also. The place of business is offered for sale at a bargain (the premises comprising half an acre front by one in the rear, with three substantial buildings, and other out-houses in good order.

Dry Goods, Groceries Boots and Shoes. Crockery. Hardware &c. &c.

He would request all persons indebted to him to call and settle up, either with the cash or notes at short date, and Persons having claims will please present them for payment with as little delay as possible. From and after this date, no credit will be given to any person, as the goods will be sold at reduced prices, and for the cash only or its equivalent.

H. C. GUILLOT.

Sandwich, 14th March, 1856.

Family Store

THE Subscriber keeps constantly on hand a large and well selected assortment of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware and Crockery,

at his old stand on Bedford Street, which he will sell, at a small advance upon cost, for Cash.

A large supply of the very best Flour always on hand.

Produce and Cord Wood bought and sold.

JOSEPH MILLER.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

New Harness and Saddlery Establishment.

A. C. ELLIS,

Every description of LIGHT and FANCY BUGGY HARNESS, made in the most fashionable styles.

HEAVY HARNESSES constantly on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.

SADDLES of every description made to order on the shortest notice.

CARRIAGE and BUGGY TRIMMING done in a style not to be surpassed.

A large assortment of WHIPS always kept on hand.

In his Store, adjoining Mr Gullot's, will be found every description of Goods in his line of business. Every endeavor will be made to give entire satisfaction to his Customers.

N.B.—Cord Wood, Hides, and Produce wanted, for which the highest price will be given.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. &c. &c. AT THE REGULATOR.

THE Subscribers would invite the attention of their Friends and the Public generally to their new and complete Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c., &c., which they are now offering low for cash.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

N.B.—The highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all kinds of Produce.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1846.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, } By virtue of a writ of
TO WIT: } Fieria Facias issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex against the lands and Tenements of Alfred Baby, and to me directed, at the suit of Dennis Ouellette, I have seized and taken the following lands and tenements, viz.:

Water Lot number three on the East, and Water Lots numbers three, four and fourteen West, and Land and Water Lots numbers thirteen and sixteen, all on the North side of Sandwich Street in the Village of Windsor, and being part of the Town plot of Windsor, as laid out on the estate of the late Francis Baby, Esquire, all which property, or the interest of the said Alfred Baby in and to the same, I will offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Saturday the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, at 12 o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich,
29th February, 1856.

New Livery Stable.

JOHN LEWIS, having purchased the Livery Stable in the Town of Sandwich, formerly kept by C. F. Labadie, will carry it on in a style that has never been known in this place before. Fresh horses and new carriages are being added to this establishment every day, and persons who patronize him may expect to be furnished with "Crack Teams."

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

NOTICE.

TO ALL IT MAY CONCERN.

ALL persons owing the subscriber are hereby notified that payment must be made on or before the 15th day of April next if they wish to save the costs of collection.

TO RENT.

The House and Premises in which the subscriber lives. Terms $24 per quarter payable in advance. Possession given on the first of May next.

GEORGE HANN.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

LOTS FOR SALE IN THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.

PART of Lot No. 3 on the west side of Bedford Street, with a good Store thereon. Also, Lots 7 and 8, adjoining the residence of L. J. Huart, Esquire, with dwelling house and stables. These Lots will be sold subject to incumbrances.

For particulars apply to

J. H. WILKINSON.

Atty for J. A. Vervais.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

LOT No. Four, in the 4th Concession, Gosfield.

J. H. WILKINSON.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

FOR SALE.

(ON TIME.)

AN Eighteen-Horse Power Engine and Boiler complete. Apply to

GEO. BULLOCK.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

New Paillarding ESTABLISHMENT.

THE Subscriber begs leave to notify the Public that he will carry on business in the building lately occupied by T. Murphy, opposite the Hennell Hotel, where he intends to carry on the Tailoring Business in all its branches, and hopes by strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage.

N. B.—He will receive the Report of Fashion monthly.

Cutting done to order.

W. T. BASSANDALE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

AGRICULTURE &c.

Hints for the Season.

April throughout a large poi i on of the country, is the busy month of horticulture. Grafting may be continued, especially of apples and pears, until the leaves begin to expand, if the scions have been cut in season and properly kept. Cherries and plums should have been done last month.

Transplanting may be continued as long as trees may be obtained in good order. It often happens that persons residing in the south and west can not obtain their trees from the north until the planting season is past with them; but as long as the trees to be planted are in a dormant state, planting is safe We plant trees successfully as late as June, when they have been retarded by being kept out of the ground a long time, as when imported. The month of May is the best time in the year to plant evergreen.

Dahlias, and all bedding plants, are best put out about the latter end of May; all danger of frosts is then over, and vegetation proceeds rapidly and safely. We do quite as well with dahlias put out in June; they come into bloom at a favorable time, when the hottest weather is over. We intend to give a few hints on their management next month.

Annual Flower Seeds, to be sown in the open border, should not be done until the weather is steadily fine, and the ground dry and warm. The soil should be made as fine as possible, as the seeds are generally small and the plants delicate. The covering is an important point; it should be very light and even. A very thin coat of fine moss aids in preserving a uniform degree of heat and moisture. Transplanting annuals, either from hot beds or from the open border, should if possible be done on a moist or cloudy day; and if the sun comes out strong immediately, a slight shade should be given. In cases of drouth, watering should be well attended to. Where seed beds are watered, a finely pierced rose should be put on the spout of the watering pot, that the water may fall like a gentle rain, and not disturb the earth or seeds.

Lawns, Edging, Walks, &c., will require a dressing. A little attention now to existing defects will give satisfaction during the whole season. Ornamental shrubs or trees requiring a slight pruning to put them in good shape, should receive it now; and all climbing roses, and other plants, be neatly adjusted to their supports.

The Kitchen Garden, if looked to for a constant and liberal supply of vegetables, must receive due attention. It happens frequently with the farmer, that his kitchen garden is neglected until the press of farm work is over, and then it can only yield a few of the common vegetables about mid summer. How cheap the Farmer can have radishes, lettuce, green pease, beans, asparagus. cabbages, cauliflower, and the other luxuries that people in the city get so poor and pay so dearly for. Begin now; take the warmest and dryest border facing south for your early crops. Lettuce, pease, beans, potatoes, &c., can be planted any moment, and may have been long ago. Plant few at a time, and keep up the secession. Such articles as radishes, lettuce, and green peas, may be on the table all summer, if desired.

It would certainly pay every farmer who has a larg family, to keep one man most of the time in the garden; unless during haying and harvesting, when he might turn out. This is economy, to say nothing of the comfort, in keeping the table well supplied from the garden. Buist's book on the "Kitchen Garden" will be a great aid to those who do not keep a gardener.

Before closing our brief chapter of hints, intended merely to refresh the memory, we must say a word about liquid manure. This should be considered as an indispensable article in every garden. The drainage of the stable may be saved, or the liquid may be made in a barrel or tank with rain water and manure. All growing crops in the kitchen garden should be freely supplied two or three times a week; it forces their growth, and makes them tender and succulent. Strawberries, just after the fruit is set and until it begins to ripen, will be greatly benefited by an application two or three times a week. The great advantage of liquid manure, and what makes it act upon plants like a "charm," is that it is in a fit state to be immediately appropriated by them. Solid manures have to remain in the ground long enough to be dissolved.

Indian Meal and Corn Bread.

It is said that many more people would eat corn bread if they knew how to cook it. An "experienced house-keeper" has furnished us with some good receipts, which we commend to inexperienced house-keepers.

A bushel of corn contains more nutriment that a bushel of wheat. The latter is not generally considered fit to eat unless ground very fine and bolted. It is a mistake, however. Indian corn treated in the same way is nearly spoiled. It neuer should be ground fine. Let that be remembered. Fine meal may be eaten when fresh ground but it will not keep sweet. The broken oil globules become rancid and bitter.

Corn cakes, made of meal and water, with a little salt, mixed into a stiff dough very thoroughly, and baked on a board before a hot fire, or in a hot oven, or in little cakes on a griddle, till entirely done, are very sweet, wholesome bread.

Corn and wheat bread is wholesome and nutritious, and easily made—if you know how. Stir two teacupfuls of white meal in a pint of hot water for each loaf; free it of lumps, and let it stand twenty-four hours. Boil two or three potatoes, peel and slice, mash in a pint of water, which thicken with flour till it is stiff batter, and then add a tea-cupful of baker's yeast. You will use about one third as much meal, scalded as above, as you do of flour; knead the meal and yeast, and sponge, and add a little salt with the flour all together, and work it well and mould in pans to rise moderately, and then bake, at first in a hot oven. This bread will be moist, and more healthy than if it were all flour.

Corn meal pudding may be made of yellow meal, stirred into scalded skimmed milk till as thick as gruel, and when cool, add ginger, cinnamon, nutmeg, salt, and sweetening to suit the taste, and a little fine-cut suet, and some raisins, or dried peaches, or a fine cut apple.—It should bake an hour, or more, according to size. You who do not believe anything made of corn can be good will please try this receipt for a pudding.

Hotels, &c.

HENNELL HOUSE;

LATE FREE MASON'S TAVERN,

Sandwich.

THIS House is pleasantly situated at the terminus of the New Gravel Road from Windsor to Sandwich, and possesses all the requisites which are generally met with in first class hotels—Good Beds, superior Stabling, and unimpeachable Liquors.

From the long experience of the present proprietor in this line of business, he is enabled to meet the wishes of his patrons, in every particular, with promptness; and he will make it his study so to treat his visitors, that they may leave him with perfect satisfaction, and return with pleasure future occasions.

WM. HENNELL.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th.

SANDWICH EXCHANGE,

BEDFORD STREET, SANDWICH.

JACOB STUTTZ

IN returning thanks for past favors, begs to inform his Friends and the Public that he still keeps on hand the best of every thing to suit the taste and comfort of his customers, and trusts that by assiduity and attention to business, to merit their patronage and support.

N.B.—A Good Stable and Shed.

WESTERN HOTEL,

BY CYRUS DOBSON.

THIS Hotel, adjoining the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, has been put in firstrate repair, and the Proprietor hopes that, by strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a share of public patronage.

N.B.—There is an excellent stable attached to the premises, and an attentive ostler will always be in attendance.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

THE COTTAGE INN,

BY ALEXANDER REAUME,

THE Proprietor having lately leased the above comfortable premises, and having thoroughly repaired and refurnished the e, will be happy to attend upon the travelling public at all hours. A supply of good old Ohio and Hot Water will always be found at the Bar, with all other choice Liquors.

The COTTAGE INN has good and comfortable Stables attached.

ALEXANDER REAUME.

Anderdon, February 29th, 1856.

TRAVELLERS' HOME,

T. HALEY, PROPRIETOR,

(Formerly of Aylmer, Canada West.)

THIS House having been fitted up in the neatest and most comfortable style, the Proprietor hopes that, by keeping the choicest Liquors and a strict attention to business, to be able to give entire satisfaction to all who may give him a call. Attentive waiters and a well supplied table will always be found here.

Good Stabling and an attentive Ostler always in attendance.

N.B.—FRESH OYSTERS always on hand.

Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

PRINCE ALBERT HOTEL.

THIS Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Warner, has been thoroughly renovated, and will be kept well supplied with the very best liquors. An attentive man will always be in attendance to take charge of horses.

A private Parlor, for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen, has been fitted up.

F. X. TRUDELL,

Sandwich Street, Proprietor.

29th February, 1856.

BROOKER'S TAVERN.

WM. BROOKER is prepared to attend upon his Customers at his new and well-furnished house near the Canard Bridge, where the Traveller will have his wants attended to in regard to good liquors, and his friends may expect to find every accommodation as usual.

A supply of Groceries always kept on hand which will be sold very cheap.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROYAL EXCHANGE.

J. L. McGEE,

BEGS to announce to the Travelling Community, and Public in general, that he has opened the above new TAVERN, with good accommodations, and hopes by attention to his business, to merit a share of public patronage. A choice selection of Groceries always on hand.

Maidstone Cross, February 29th, 1856.

MANSION HOUSE.

THIS new and commodious Inn is now completely finished, and the Proprietor hopes, that by a strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to receive a continuance of the patronage which was so liberally awarded him at his old stand.

ALONZO BROWN,

Maidstone Cross, Proprietor.

7th March, 1856.

AMERICAN HOTEL.

COURT HOUSE SQUARE, LONDON, C. W.

ROBERT ARKELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and Travellers that he has taken the above Hotel, which has undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The house is in a fine open, airy and central situation, and commands a beautiful view of the valley of the Thames and surrounding country.

The Table is supplied with all the delicacies of the season. The Wines and Liquors will be of the best brands, and he trusts by assiduity and attention to the comfort af his guests to merit their patronage and support.

ROBERT ARKELL.

London, 29th Feb. 1856.

WARNER'S EXCHANGE,

AMHERSTBURG, C. W.

THE SUBSCRIBER has leased the "La Liberty Stand," second door above the Prince Albert Hotel, Murray Street, for a term of years, and has it repaired throughout, furnished with new furniture, bedding, &c., and now open for the accommodation of the travelling public, and by strict attention to business he hopes to receive a liberal share of the same.

HIS TABLE

will be well supplied with all the luxuries of the season.

HIS BAR

will always contain the choicest brands of Liquors.

His Stables and Shed are large and convenient.

Persons wishing good Board will find this a convenient place, being a central place of business.

CHARLES WARNER.

Amherstburg, March 14th, 1856.

INTERNATIONAL BILLIARD SALOON,

Windsor, C.W., opposite the Depot of the Great Western Railway.

T. M. HOWRIGAN,

Proprietor.

The above Saloon is neatly and commodiously fitted up, the Proprietor having spared no expense for the purpose of rendering it attractive to visitors.

The best of Cigars, Wines and Liquors always on hand.

Windsor, Feb. 29th, 1856.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

COURTER HOUSE

Corner of Erie and Seneca Streets,

Nearly Opposite the Buffalo & N. Falls Railroad.

B. F. POPPLE, MANAGER.

VISITORS visiting the Courter House, Buffalo, will find every convenience and attention at reasonable charges. Teetotalers visiting Buffalo, will find this Hotel calculated to meet their wishes.

Buffalo, 29th Feb. 1856.

New Wholesale GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT!

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and the Trade generally, that he has commenced business on his own account, in this City, as a

WHOLESALE GENERAL GROCER,

And is now receiving a large and carefully selected Siock of

GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, OILS, PAINTS, &c., &c., &c.

To which he confidently invites the attention of Western and City Merchants.

Premises, King Street West, opposite Messrs. McKeand, Bross & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods Warehouse.

A. I. McKENZIE.

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TO BE SOLD

CHEAP FOR CASH,

The property of a person going to England, the following Real Property, viz:

FOUR Town Lots situated in the Town of Sandwich in the County of Essex enclosed in one block with a good Cottage, Stable, and a variety of choice grafted fruits, and a good well of water, being composed of Lots Nos. 13, 14, 15, and 16, on the East side of Russell street; also Water Lot No. 17, a good site for a Steam Mill; also Lot No. 16, on the West side of Bedford Street.

Lots No. 13 east half in 2nd Con., Rochester, 100 acres, also the East half of Lot No 8, in 4th Con., Sandwich, 100 acres.

Enquire of George Bullock Esq. Sandwich.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Beecher, Rice and Ketchum.

CARPET & OIL CLOTH WAREHOUSE,

No. 142 Jefferson Avenue.

Conant Block, Detroit, Michigan.

BEECHER, HOLLISTER & WILKINS, Carpet Hall, Lake Street, Chichago, Importers of Carpets, Oil Cloths, Paper-hangings Curtain and Upholstery materials.

A. A. RICE. L. BEECHER. E. F. HOLLISTER

C. B. KETCHUM, D. WILKINS, JR

Detroit, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TILES, TILES.

THE Public are respectfully informed that M. & J. H. WHITEHOUSE are Manufacturing and have on hand a large quantity of Tiles, for Draining Cellars, Farms, &c., at their Brick Yard, Westminster, two miles from London, and a quarter of a mile from Mr. J. Nellis's Tavern, at First Toll Gate on the Hamilton Road, which they will sell at the Low Price of £4 per 1000 with Soles or Bottoms, without £2 15s. They will be found to be much cheaper than any other Material for Draining, as they facilitate greatly in the labor, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when put down will never require removing. Samples may be seen and orders received at the Store of Mr. J. Fitzell, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also Roofing Tiles and Press Bricks for fronting Buildings of a superior quality.

London, Feb. 29th, 1856.

OPPOSITION

To the Combination of Trade!!

J. W. JOHNSTON has just returned from New York, with a large and splendid stock of Gold and Diamond Jewelry, Diamond Rings and Breast Pins, Gold Watches, Lockets and Chains, Gold Pens and Pencils, Cuff Pins and Earrings; the Egyptian style just come in fashion, Pearl Earrings and Rings, Gold and Silver.

Gold and Silver Watches, Gold Thimbles; a fine assortment of Silver Ware, Tea and Table Spoons, Fruit and Butter Knives, Card Cases, Port Monies, Cake Baskets, English, French and German Fancy Goods, Pearl and Shell Card Cases, Port Monies of every description.

Ladies and Gentlemen's Dressing Cases, fine assortment Writing Desks, Pearl and Rosewood, Crosha fixins of all kinds.

COMBS.

Back, fine, coarse, and pockets combs, both horn and wood combs, the latest style of Bloomer Combs.

CLOCKS.

Clocks at $1,25, warranted good time pieces; prices at wholesale a good deal less.

ENGLISH CUTLERY.

Bowie Knifes, Razors, and a very large stock of Pocket Cutlery. Revolving Pistols, Double and Single Barreled Guns. Yankee notions and Gilt Jewelry.

A very large stock of Notions, country merchants and pedlers' attention is called to examine this stock, before purchasing elsewhere.

Pins, Needles, Thread, Buttons, Tape Bobbin, Carpet Bags, Umbrellas, Suspenders Tobacco Boxes, Hooks and Eyes, Whalebone, Feather Dusters, Horse Brushes, Shoe Brushes Tooth and Clothing Brushes, Fiddles, Accordeons, Flutinis, Indian Beads and Rings, and Pins, Gilt and Plated Watches at two dollars a piece; in fact all sorts, from a needle to an anchor, and from an anchor to a tin pail; nothing charged for looking; call and see, two doors from Griswold street, on Jefferson avenue, opposite the U. S. Court Room. J. W JOHNSTON.

MEETING OF PARLIAMENT

THE PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT assembled in Toronto, for the despatch of Business

On Friday 15th February

The Globe will contain a full report of the Debates made up each day to the hour of going to press; and will have the most reliable political intelligence at the earliest moment.

THE DAILY "GLOBE"

Will be sent four months for TWO DOLLARS.

THE TRI-WEEKLY "GLOBE"

Will be sent three months for ONE DOLLAR!

Orders should be sent in immediately so as to secure the Debates from the commencement of the Session.

GLOBE OFFICE, }
Toronto, February 14, 1856 }

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded: together with its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department: H. P. KNIGHT, JAMES SNOWDEN and D. W. RAY.

TERMS: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

N.B.—Newspapers inserting the above prospectus, and drawing attention editorially to the same, will be forwarded the ILLUSTRATED HORTICULTURIST for one year, a copy containing the advertisement should be sent in all cases to ensure attention.

Address

C. REAGLES, Publisher,

Illustrated Horticulturist

208, BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

NEW VOLUME OF THE AGRICULTURIST

SUBSCRIPTION REDUCED FROM 25 TO 50 PER CENT.

The Canadian Agriculturist

Has now reached the eighth volume, having been established by its present proprietor in 1848, and is too well known to the loading farmers of the British Provinces to need any eulogium from us. The undersigned have made arrangements with the proprietor to publish the next, and probably succeeding volumes, and have resolved to make important improvements in the work, while at the same time its price will be considerably reduced.

THE AGRICULTURIST

Is published Monthly, on good Paper, each number containing 32 pages, making at the end of the year a handsome volume of 384 pages.

EVERY NUMBER WILL BE

Illustrated with Engravings

Such as Farm Implements, Portraits of Animals, designs of Farm Buildings, New Inventions, &c., &c., interesting to the Farmer, and also portraits of some of the most Distinguished Agriculturists.

The Work will be conducted as usual by WILLIAM MACDOUGALL, Esq., who has resumed the practice of Agriculture near this city. The active promoter of the various improvements made in our Agricultural Legislation since 1847, and having also been connected with this Journal from its commencement, he requires no recommendation from us.

PROFESSOR BUCKLAND, of the Toronto University, whose labors and writings in behalf of Canadian Agriculture are known and appreciated throughout the Province, will contribute to its columns as usual.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS

Of known ability have also been engaged. Efforts will be made to extend the correspondence on subjects of a practical kind.

THE AGRICULTURIST IS NOT LIABLE TO POSTAGE.

WIMAN & Co, Publishers

Toronto, March, 1856.

TO be published monthly, price half-a dollar per annum,

The Churchman's Friend,

For the diffusion of information relative to the Church of England, her Doctrine and Ordinances. Edited by Edward H. Dewar, M.A., Rector of Sandwich, assisted by other Clergymen.

Sandwich, March 15th, 1856.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN.

ELEVENTH YEAR.

SPLENDID ENGRAVINGS AND PRIZES.

THE Eleventh Annual Volume of this useful publication commences on the 17 day of September next.

The "SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN" is an Illustrated Periodical, devoted chiefly to the promulgation of information relating to the various Mechanic and Chemic Arts, Industrial Manufactures, Agriculture, Patents, Inventions Engineering, Millwork, and all interests which the light of PRACTICAL SCIENCE is calculated to advance.

Reports of U. S. Patents granted are also published every week, including Official Copies of all the Patent Claims, together with news and information upon Thousands of other Subjects.

The ontributors to the Scientific American are among the most Eminent Scientific and practical men of the times. The Editorial Department is universally acknowledged to be distinguished, not only for the excellence and truthfulness of its discussions but for the fearlessness with which error is combated and false theories are exploded.

Mechanics, Inventors, Engineers Chemists, Manufacturers, Agricultutists, and People of every Profession if Life, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN to be of great value in their respective callings. Its counsels and suggestions will save them Hundreds of Dollars annually, besides affording them a continual source of knowledge. the experience of which is beyond pecuniary estimate.

The Scientific American is publi hed once a week; every number contains eight large quarto pages, forming annually a complete and spendid volume, illustrated with several hundred original engravings.

Specimen copies sent gratis.

TERMS.—Single subscriptions, $2 a year ot $1 for six months. Five copies for six months, $4; for a year, $8.

For further Club rates and for statement of the fourteen large Cash Prizes, offered by the publishers, see Scentific American.

Southern, Western and Canada money or Post Office Stamps, taken at par for subscriptions.

Letters should be directed (post paid) to

MUNN & CO.

128 Fulton St. New York

Messrs Munn & Co. have been, for many years extensively engaged procuring patents for new inventions, and will advise inventors without charge in regard to the novelty of their improvements.

JUST PUBLISHED,

CANADA

PHYSICAL, Economic and Social, by Adam Lillo, D.D. One Volume, 12mo, about 300 Pages. Maps of Canada East & West. Cloth 5s.; Stiff Covers 3s 9d.

MACLEAR & CO.,

Publishers, Toronto.

N. B.—Sent by Post to any part of North America or Europe, if desired.

Toronto, Feb. 29th, 1856.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

Hamilton and Toronto Branch.

ALTERATION OF TIME.

ON and after MONDAY NEXT, the 10th December, trains will run daily (Sundays excepted) between Hamilton and Toronto, as follows:

GOING WEST

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed Mail
	A M	P M	P M
Toronto, - -	8 00	3 20	10 00
Mimico, - -	8 10	3 30	10 15
Port Credit, - -	8 25	3 45	10 30
Oakville, - -	8 43	4 03	10 53
Bronte, - -	8 55	4 15	11 15
Wellington Square,	9 10	4 30	11 35
Hamilton, - -	9 30	4 50	12 00

GOING EAST.

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed Mail
	A M	P M	A M
Hamilton, -	10 40	6 10	3 10
Wellington Square,	11 00	6 30	3 35
Bronte, -	11 15	6 45	3 55
Oakville, - -	11 27	7 00	4 15
Port Credit, -	11 45	7 20	4 35
Mimico, . .	12 00	7 35	4 50
Toronto, . .	12 15	7 50	5 05

The above Trains connect at Hamilton with Trains of Great Western Railway running in connection with Trains to Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, Boston, New York, and with Michigan Central Railroad Trains at Detroit for Chicago, St Louis, &c, &c.

The 3 20 Train from Toronto meets G W R Accommodation Train going West at Hamilton, for Preston Galt, Paris, London, and intermediate Stations

Through Tickets for any of the above places can be obtained at the Ticket Office, Toronto Station

Stages run daily between Oakville, Milton, Georgetown, &c, &c, &c.

C. J. BRYDGES,

Managing Director

Great Western Railway Offices,

Hamilton, 1856.

HIDES WANTED.

ANY Quantity of Hides will be taken in for the Sandwich Tannery at either of the Saddler's Shops in Sandwich or Windsor, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

JAS. WOODBRIDGE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Patent Medicines.

THE CHEST.

Sir Astley Cooper, Bart., M. D.,

THE eminent Medical Practitioner, has left a valuable legacy to the world in his Great Preventative of Consumption, and unfailing cure for Pulmonary Diseases, without the use of Medicine. Sir Astley Cooper, Bart., invented and advised the use of the

MEDICATED FUR CHEST PROTECTOR,

To all persons of all ages and conditions, as a certain and a safe shield against those fearful diseases, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs, Colds, and other afflictions of the Lungs, which arise from the exposed state of the Chest, according to fashion and the continual changes of our climate.

"The Protector" is simply a chemically prepared fur, lined with silk and padded, which suspended from the neck, covers the chest, in so agreeable a manner, that, once worn it becomes a necessity and a comfort.

"The Protector," although but recently introduced into America is making rapid progress in the United States, the Canadas, South America, and the West Indies. It has for a long time been a staple article in England and on the continent of Europe while it has grown in many countries to the position of an article of dress.

To demonstrate these facts enquire of any English resident in your vicinity of his knowledge of the beneficial effects of wearing the Protector without recourse to doctoring of any kind.

The cost of wearing these articles is a mere trifle and one will last some years. No one who values the health of himself or his family will be without them. The Hospitals in this country are not alone recommending them. Harcourt, Bradley & Co., of London, and Manchester, England, were originally entrusted with the manufacture of the Protectors, by the lamented Dr. Cooper, and continue to manufacture according to his original instructions, and therefore recommend those who would wear "The Protectors," to see to their being genuine.

Remember this is a staple article and no Patent Medicine.

RETAIL PRICES.

Gent's Size,	- -	$1,50 each.
Ladie's do.	- -	1,00 do.
Boy's & Misses' do.	-	75 do.

HARCOURT, BRADLEY & CO.,

38 Ann Street and 102 Nassau Street, New York U. S.

Principal Warehouse, 102 Wood Street, Cheapside, London, Manufactory, 44 Market Street, Manchester, England.

H. B. & Co. are establishing Depots for the sale of "The Protector" in all parts of America. Physicians, Surgeons, Druggists, Clothiers, Dry Goods Merchants, Hatters, and Milliners, also Gentleman's Furnishing Store-Keepers are entrusted with the wholesale and retail distribution of them, and to whom most liberal terms are offered for their enterprise, and a splendid opportunity opens for safe and profitable business.

For terms, apply to

HARCOURT, BRADLEY & CO.,

38, Ann Street, New York.

DR. VERVAIS.

Pulmonic Syrup,

A NEW PREPARATION OF

COD LIVER OIL SYRUP,

FOR THE CURE OF

COLDS, COUGHS, ASTHMA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, AND ALL DISEASES OF THE LUNGS.

SINCE so many excellent Medicines have been offered to the Public, and by excellent physicans, it might be thought superfluous on my part to offer any NEW PREPARATION. But from many year's experience and practice, both in the laboratory and with my patients, I find that the above preparation is the best that has yet been offered to the public. The Chemical Composition is such that the disagreeable taste is removed without in the least diminishing the virtues of the Oil. It can be taken with perfect safety in all cases, and at all ages. without injuring the constitution. And its properties are so remarkable as instantantaneously to remove the nervous irritabliity of the Lungs, soften the Cough, and remove the dryness of the Throat and the viscid phlegm with which the passage of the Lungs are loaded. It diffuses a gentle warmth throughout the system, secures a free circulation of the blood, and opens every pore of the skin,—thus giving uiversal egress to the impurities which all systems engender, and which are the true origin of nearly all the diseases to which the human race is liable. Too much cannot be said in favor of a Medicine which will restore the languishing and dying patent from a death-bed to the best health, and make him enjoy the real blessing of a healthy constitution. We have now the radical cure, "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup,' which I not only recommend, but WARRANT IT TO CURE the diseases for which it is made, if the patient perseveres in the use of a bottle or two. The most ample experience justifies the Proprietor in speaking so candidly and confidently of his discovery, when Patients who have been suffering from severe cough, whooping-cough, colds and catarrhal affections, have with the use of a few bottles, not only been restored to their wonted health, but even felt their constitution stronger than for many years previous. All persons who have once used this Medicine have instantly ordered more for the use of themselves and friends. The Proprietor again warrants his preparation to be everything he claims for it; and he only asks the trial of a single bottle to convince every one that it is without doubt or hesitation the most palatable, speedy, and efficacious Medicine ever made use of in America. He has especially devoted 12 years to the preparation of such Medicines, and he can at last hail with pleasure and delght this wonderful preparation of the only efficacious Remedy for the cure of nearly all Diseases of the Lungs, particularly Hectic Fevers, Night Sweats, Dyspnea, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all Pains in the Chest. I have only further to add that this Compound has not been extended beyond my limits as a prescription until astonishing success attended its use in removing the diseases for which I recommended it. It became very popular, and was called for so frequently, I found it necessary to prepare it in large quantities to meet the constant demand for it. Since this Medicine is carefully compounded by myself, who am thoroughly acquainted with the medicinal qualities and effects of each article separately, and of their combined influence when chemically united and have also a perfect knowledge of the human system, and of the functions of each organ both in its healthy and diseased condition, I can therefore recommend this preparation with the greatest confidence, and am therefore fully persuaded from past experience that it will give Universal Satisfaction; but, at the same time, I do not pretend to assert, as medicines are generally foisted up to the eyes of the public, that it is a "Cure-All," nor that it is, under all circumstances, absolutely infallible. Yet I can truly say that I am acquainted with no chemical composition that acts so well for a tonic—expectorant in chronic cough, and catarrhal affection of debilitated habits, to re-establish a healthy condition of the secretery organs, to promote the dissolution of the deposite, and to give strength to the system—as this Cod-Liver Oil Syrup. Also in allaying the irritability of the muscular fibres of the bronchial tubes of the lungs and the spasmodic contraction of those tubes in the asthmatic patient, or in any case of dyspnea (tightness of breathing). Consumptive patients will find a great advantage in using this Syrup, not on account of facilitating the expectoration and giving rest, but being very nutritive in itself.

This virtue should draw the attention of the sufferer. There is no medicine which acts so quickly on the respiratory organs as this "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup," because it is received into the circulation, and determined to the lungs. The effects of the Syrup have been so successful in removing the various diseases for which I have severally recommended it, that I hereby assure the public that they need not fear either to use or recommend it; as it will, in a far greater degree, perform all that is stated in the directions accompanying the Article.

Dose for a growing up person, one teaspoonful four or five times a day.—A child of eight to twelve years, half a teaspoonful three times a day—from one to two years of age, twenty drops three or four times a day.

AYER'S PILLS

Are curing the Sick to an extent never before known of any Medicine.

INVALIDS, READ AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

JULES HAUEL, Esq., the well known perfumer, of Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, whose choice products are found at almost every toilet, says:

"I am happy to say of your CATHARTIC PILLS, that I have found them a better family medicine, for common use, than any other within my knowledge. Many of my friends have realized marked benefits from them, and coincide with me in believing that they possess extraordinary virtues for driving out diseases and curing the sick. They are not only effectual, but safe and pleasant to be taken—qualities which must make them valued by the public, when they are known."

The venerable Chancellor WARDLAW writes from Baltimore, 15th April, 1854:

"DR. J. C. AYER—Sir: I have taken your Pills with great benefit, for the listlessness, languor, loss of appetite, and Bilious headache, which has of late years overtaken me in the spring. A few doses of your Pills cured me. I have used your Cherry Pectoral many years in my family for coughs and colds with unfailing success. You make medicines which cure; and I feel it a pleasure to commend you for the good you have done and are doing."

JOHN F. BEATTY, Esq., Sec. of the Penn. Railroad Co. says:

"Pa. R. R. Office, Philadelphia, Dec. 13, 1853.

"Sir: I take pleasure in adding my testimony to the efficacy of your medicines, having derived very material benefit from the use of both your Pectoral and Cathartic Pills. I am never without them in my family, nor shall I ever consent to be, while my means will procure them."

The widely renowned S. S. STEVENS, M. D., of Wentworth, N. H., writes:

"Having used your CATHARTIC PILLS in my practice, I certify from experience that they are an invaluable purgative. In cases of disordered functions of the liver, causing headache, indigestion, costiveness, and the great variety of diseases that follow, they are a surer remedy than any other. In all cases where a purgative remedy is required, I confidently recommend these Pills to the public, as superior to any other I have ever found. They are sure in their operation, and perfectly safe—qualities which make them an invaluable article for public use. I have for many years known your Cherry Pectoral as the best Cough medicine in the world; and these Pills are in no wise inferior to that admirable preparation for the treatment of diseases."

"Acton, Me., Nov. 25, 1853.

"DR. J. C. AYER—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted from my birth with scrofula in its worst form, and now, after twenty years' trial, and an untold of amount of suffering, have been completely cured in a few weeks by your Pills. With what feelings of rejoicing I write can only be imagined when you realize what I have suffered, and how long.

"Never until now have I been free from this loathsome disease in some shape. At times it attacked my eyes, and made me almost blind, besides the unendurable pain; at others it settled in the scalp of my head, and destroyed my hair, and has kept me partly bald all my days; sometimes it came out in my face, and kept it for months a raw sore.

"About nine weeks ago I commenced taking your Cathartic Pills, and now am entirely free from the complaint. My eyes are well, my skin is fair, and my hair has commenced a healthy growth; all of which makes me feel already a new person.

"Hoping this statement may be the means of conveying information that shall do good to others, I am, with every sentiment of gratitude, Yours, &c.,

MARIA RICKER."

"I have known the above named Maria Ricker from her childhood, and her statement is strictly true.

ANDREW J. MESERVE,

Overseer of the Portsmouth Manufacturing Co."

CAPT. JOEL PRATT, of the ship Marion, writes from Boston, 20th April, 1854:

"Your Pills have cured me from a bilious attack which arose from derangement of the Liver, which had become very serious. I had failed of any relief by my Physician, and from every remedy I could try; but a few doses of your Pills have completely restored me to health. I have given them to my children for worms, with the best effects. They were promptly cured. I recommended them to a friend for costiveness, which had troubled him for months; he told me in a few days they had cured him. You make the best medicine in the world; and I am free to say so."

Read this from the distinguished Solicitor of the Supreme Court, whose brilliant abilities have made him well known, not only in this but the neighboring States.

"New Orleans, 5th April, 1854.

"Sir: I have great satisfaction in assuring you that myself and family have been very much benefited by your medicines. My wife was cured, two years since, of a severe and dangerous cough, by your CHERRY PECTORAL, and since then has enjoyed perfect health. My children have several times been cured from attacks of the Influenza and Croup by it. It is an invaluable remedy for these complaints. Your CATHARTIC PILLS have entirely cured me from a dyspepsia and costiveness, which has grown upon me for some years,—indeed, this cure is much more important, from the fact that I had failed to get relief from the best Physicians which this section of the country affords, and from any of the numerous remedies I had taken.

"You seem to us, Doctor, like a providential blessing to our family, and you may well suppose we are not unmindful of it. Yours respectfully,

LEAVITT THAXTER."

"Senate Chamber, Ohio, April 5th, 1854.

"DR. J. C. AYER—Honored Sir: I have made a thorough trial of the CATHARTIC PILLS, left me by your agent, and have been cured by them of the dreadful Rheumatism under which he found me suffering. The first dose relieved me, and a few subsequent doses have entirely removed the disease. I feel in better health now than for some years before, which I attribute entirely to the effects of your CATHARTIC PILLS. Yours with great respect,

LUCIUS B. METCALF."

The above are all from persons who are publicly known where they reside, and who would not make these statements without a thorough conviction that they were true.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO.,

Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass.

GEO. and G. A. BULLOCK, and J. A. VERVAIS, SANDWICH;

D. OULLETTE, Windsor;

And every Druggist and Merchant in Canada.

MAPLE LEAF.

"PROGRESS."

VOL. I. SANDWICH, C. W., FRIDAY, APRIL 11, 1856. NO. 7.

THE MAPLE LEAF,

IS PUBLISHED

Every Friday Morning,

BY

J. H. WILKINSON,

BEDFORD STREET,

Sandwich, Canada West.

TERMS:—Eight shillings and ninepence Cy, per annum, if paid in advance; or Ten Shillings at the end of the year,

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Six lines or under, first insertion, 2s 6d, cy
Each subsequent insertion, . . 0 7½ "

Advertisements over six lines, 4d per line for the first insertion, and one penny per line for every subsequent insertion. A liberal discount made to Merchants and others who advertise by the year.

Advertisements sent in for insertion without written directions, will be continued till forbid and the usual rates charged.

CLUBS.

Any person procuring 10 subscribers will be entitled to a copy gratis. Payment to be made in advance.

The JOB OFFICE connected with the "MAPLE LEAF" is in every respect complete for the dispatch of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

Professional Cards.

Mr. William Johnson,
Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c., &c.
Sandwich, C. W.

Mr. Charles Baby,
Attorney and Councillor at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, &c.
Office, Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. J. H. Wilkinson.
Law, Chancery, Conveyancing, and Land Agency Office,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. Louis J. Fluett,
Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, Conveyancer and Land Agent,
Sandwich.

Mr. S. S. Macdonell,
Barrister, Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, &c., &c.
Windsor, C. W.

Mr. John O'Connor, Jun.,
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c.,
Windsor, C. W.

Charles Eugene Casgrain, M.D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Office and Residence, opposite the "Mear's Hotel,"
Sandwich, Canada West.

Dr. Reynolds,
Physician and Surgeon,
Amherstburg.

John Adley,
Physician and Surgeon, &c.,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

ALEXANDER GORDON,
NOTARY PUBLIC AND INSURANCE AGENT
Sandwich & Windsor, Canada West.

John McCrae,
Auctioneer, Insurance and General Agent
Windsor, Canada West.

Bank of Upper Canada Agency,
Windsor, Canada West.
Office hours, 10, A.M., to 3, P.M.

Philip S. Donnelly,
Provincial Land Surveyor, &c.,
Moore, County of Lambton.

P. Marentette,
Gunsmith and Manufacturer of Guns.
Every description of Fire-arms repaired at his shop, on Bedford Street,
Sandwich.

L. P. St. Amour,
IMPORTER, AND WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS
CROCKERY, HARDWARE,
PERFUMERY, &c.
Sandwich, Canada West.

Sandwich Post Office.

Open daily, from Nine till Twelve, A.M., and from half-past Twelve till Four, P.M.
P. H. MORIN, Post Master.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware
Crockery, Boots & Shoes
&c. &c. &c.
Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich.

WILLIAM SWIFT,
MERCHANT TAILOR,

IS prepared to attend upon the Gentlemen of Amherstburg in his line of business, and is not afraid to assert that he will cut and fit in the latest and most fashionable Styles as well as any Tailor west of London.

Amherstburg, Feb. 29th, 1856.

George Hann,
DEALER IN FURS AND SKINS.

The highest price paid for Shipping Furs at his Fur Store in the Town of Sandwich.
15th March, 1856.

NIAGARA
MUTUAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.

GEORGE BULLOCK, Local Agent for the Townships of Sandwich, Maidstone, Rochester and Tilbury West; also the Village of Windsor. Address, Sandwich Post Office.

ROSE DALE MILLS.

THE highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Rye, Corn, or Buck Wheat, either at the Mills or at the Store of

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

JAMES JESSOPP,
CARPENTER & JOINER,

WILL always be on hand to attend to the erection of Building, and every description of Carpenter and Joiner work upon the shortest notice.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WARNER'S EXCHANGE,
AMHERSTBURG, C. W.
CHARLES WARNER, PROPRIETOR

LAFFERTY & JONES.
AUCTIONEERS AND APPRAISERS,
Amhersburg, Canada West.

Bartley and Pinney.
PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.
Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.

MR. JAS. WOODBRIDGE, JUN.,
Division Court Agent, and General Agent for Collecting Debts.
Sandwich, Canada West.

THE HOLLY-TREE INN,

A NEW STORY,

BY CHARLES DICKENS.

Concluded from our last.

There was at this time, living on a neighbouring farm, an old man of the name of Price, who had a grand-daughter to keep his house. She was called Nelly; and, besides being a small heiress, was a beauty, and something of a coquette. Nelly had a short, plump little figure; a complexion as soft and clear as a damask rose, and auburn hair. Wilfred fell in love. He was a tall, hardy, self-willed, and proud young fellow; but in Nelly's hands he was plastic as wax, and weak as water. She encouraged him, teased him, caressed him, mocked him, set him beside himself. She played off all her little witcheries and fascinations upon him; looked sweetly unconscious of their mischievous influence; and, when Wilfred stormed, and raved, she laughed in his face. He wanted to marry her immediately; she had played with him long enough, he thought; and one evening when she had been soft and coy, rather than teasing, he put his fortune to the proof. She told him flatly she did not like him—wherein Nelly told anything but the truth, as perhaps better women have done under like circumstances.

Wilfred took her reply in earnest, and went away in a rage—mad, jealous, and burning with passionate disappointment.—Hester hated Nelly, and gave her not a few hard words; for in her camp life, the mother had culled some epithets more expressive than polite, which she used with vigorous truth when her wrath was excited. She kept her son's wound raw and sore by frequent scornful allusions to his "Nelly Graces," and did her best to widen the breach between them with ample success.

Wilfred stayed away from the Prices for ten whole days.

This desertion did not suit the golden-headed but tinsel-hearted little coquette.—She contrived to meet him in a shady wood-walk, where they had often loitered together. He was out with his dog and gun; very ill at ease in mind, for his handsome face looked sullen and dangerous, and he would not see her as she passed by. Mortified and angry, Nelly went home and cried herself ill. Wilfred heard she had caught a fever, and must needs go to ask. She met him at the garden gate, with a smile and a blush; whereat Wilfred was so glad, that he forgot to reproach her. There was, in consequence, and complete reconciliation, ratified by kisses and promises—light coin with beauty Nell, but real heart-gold with poor, infatuated Wilfred. Hester almost despised her son when she heard of it.

"She is only fooling thee, lad!" said she, indignantly. "Come a richer suitor to the door, she'll throw thee over. She is only a light, false-hearted lass, not worth a whistle of thine."

Therein Hester spake truth.

Nelly played with her lover as a cat plays with a mouse. Wilfred urged their marriage. She would one day, and the next day she would not. Then arose other difficulties. Hester did not want an interloper by her fireside, and would not give up the farm to her son; in fact, she was jealous of his affection, that the thought of his marriage was hateful to her. Old Price said the young folks might settle with him, if they would; but Nelly liked the house at the Ings better, and thought Wilfred ought to take her there. When he explained that the property was his mother's for her life, she immediately accused him of not loving her, and assumed a decided coldness and repulsiveness of manner. Wilfred, both hurt and angry, tried to give her up, but his bonds were not so easily escaped. If he stayed away from her two days, on the third he was sure to be at her side, either winning her with tender words, or reproaching her with bitter ones. Nelly must have found the game a pleasant one, for she kept it up a long time, undergoing herself as many changes of hue and form as a bubble blown up into the sunshine.

Frequently, during his lengthy visits at the Glebe Farm, Wilfred had encountered a man, Joseph Rigby by name, a dale's-yeoman, and one of considerable wealth, but no education. This man was one of the last in the world to excite jealousy; but Wilfred was compelled to see that Nelly gave the course-mannered, middle-aged Rigby, more of her attention than consorted with her position as his promised wife. He charged her with the fact. At first she denied it with blushes, and tears, and loud protestations; but at last confessed that Rigby had proposed to her—she did not dare to add that she had half accepted him. They parted in mutual displeasure; and old Price said as they agreed so badly, they had better break off the match, and Nelly should marry Joseph Rigby, who was well to-do, and would know how to keep his wife in order. Wilfred went near her no more. Presently, it was rumoured in the country side that Nelly Price and Mr. Rigby were to be married after the October fairs. Hester sneered, prophesied that the rich yeoman would repent his bargain before Saint Mark's, and rejoiced greatly at her son's escape.

Meanwhile, Wilfred went about the farm and the house, silent, moody, and spiritless. He was quite changed, and, as his mother thought, for the better. Instead of associating with his former companions, he stayed much at home, and again renewed his entreaties that his mother would sell the Ings, and leave dales altogether. He wanted to emigrate. He did not care where they went, so that they got away from that hateful place. Hester was as reluctant as ever to comply; but she modified her refusal—they would try a year longer: if he were still in the same mind at the end of that period—well, perhaps she would yield to his urgent wishes.

On the morning of the Leeford Fair he left home early, and returned towards dusk—so it was said by Hester. No other person saw him until noon next day. Joseph Rigby was found murderedly, and thrown into a gully by the Leeford road, that night. There were traces of a violent struggle upon the road, and the body had been dragged some distance. It had been rifled of money and watch, but a broad engraved ring which Rigby wore on the fourth finger of his left hand, was not removed. He was known to have left market-hall at Leeford with a considerable sum in gold upon his person, for his brother-in-law had remonstrated with him about carrying so much; but the doomed man made light of his warnings. The whole country-side was up, for the murder was a barbarous one. Suspicion fell at once on Hester's son. His behaviour at Leeford had attracted observation. He had been seen to use angry gestures to Rigby, who had laughed at him, and had offered the young man his hand, as if wishing to be friends; the other had rejected it, and turned away, shaking his clenched fist. He had also been seen to mount his horse at the inn door, and ride off in the afternoon. Rigby started about an hour later, and alone. He was seen no more until his body was found in the ditch by some men going to their work in the morning.

When Wilfred was taken, he and his mother were sitting by the fire-side together; she sewing; he reading. It was towards twilight, and he had not been over the threshold all day. He was very pale, sullen, and gloomy; irritable when spoken to, and short in his answers. His mother said to him that he was very strange, and added that she wished he would give over hankering after Nelly Graceless. He laughed purposely, and did not lift his eyes from his book. There was a loud knock at the door. Hester rose and opened it. Three men pushed their way into the house, the foremost asking if her son was at home.

"Yes; he is in there, by the fire. What do you want with him?"

"You must come with us, Mr. Wilfred—nay, it's no use showing fight," cried a burly, muscular fellow, laying his hand heavily on his shoulder; for Wilfred had turned deadly pale, and had attempted to start up from the man's grasp.

"What is it for?" asked Hester, with her eyes on her son.

"God knows. I don't," said he quietly.

"Mr. Rigby was robbed and murdered last night, as he came home from Leeford Fair, and suspicion points at your lad, mistress."

said the man, who still held his hand on Wilfred's shoulder.

Hester gave utterance to no frantic denials, she laughed, even.

"Why he was at home by this hour yesterday, in this very room, at his tea. Wasn't he, Jessy?" said she, turning to the maid-servant; who, with a countenance of alarm, stood by the door.

The girl said "Yes;" then hesitated, and added that she didn't see young master when she brought in tea.

"I was up stairs," said Wilfred.

"You had better keep all that for another time and place: you must go with us now," observed the man.

Wilfred made no resistance. His mother brought him his coat, and helped him to put it on.

"Say thou didn't do it, Willy—only say so!" whispered she, fiercely,

"I didn't, mother: so help me God!" was his fervent reply.

"You hear him!" cried Hester, turning to the men; "you hear him! He never hid in his days. He might have killed Rigby in a fair fight, or in hot blood; but he is not the lad to lie in wait at night, to murder his enemy and rob him! He is not a thief, this son of mine!"

The officers urged their departure. Wilfred was placed in the vehicle which had been brought for the purpose, and driven off.

"I'll follow thee, Will!" cried his mother. "Keep up thy heart; they can't touch thee! Good bye, my poor lad!"

They were out of hearing, and Hester turned back into the house, cursing Nelly Graceless in her heart.

Wilfred was committed to take his trial at the winter gaol-delivery on a charge of wilful murder. The evidence against him was overwhelming. Hester sold the Ings and collected all the money she could, that, if gold would buy his redemption, it might be done; for herself, she had a perfect faith in his innocence, and was confident of his acquittal; but few persons shared her feelings. The best legal advice had been retained for the accused, and the trial came on shortly before Christmas. Hester was the only witness for her son. The woman Jessy's evidence damaged his cause considerably. She contradicted herself over again, and at last, flurried and confused, she burst into tears, crying out that she would say anything to get her young master off.—There was nobody to speak with certainty as to the prisoner's having been at home by a certain hour but his mother; he had put no arms into the bridle himself, the groom being absent at the fair, and Jessy could not swear that he was in to tea; she believed not; only one cup was used.

Two witnesses, labourers on a farm near the Ings, swore to having seen and spoken to the prisoner after the hour stated; they said he was riding fast, and seemed agitated, but it was too dark to see his face. Nelly Price also had her word against him; it was drawn from her reluctantly, in the midst of shamefaced tears and noisy sobs, but it quite overthrew the attempt to prove an alibi.—She stated that she had watched until dark, in the garden, for Wilfred's return from Leeford, and had not seen him go by. The prisoner never looked towards her, but murmured that he had gone home by the bridle road and Low Lane to avoid passing the Holly-Tree Farm. The former witnesses, on being recalled, said that it was on the high-way, nearly a mile from the place where the lower road branched off, and nearer to the Ings, that they encountered the accused.—These two decent men, being strictly cross-examined, never swerved from their first story in toto, and agreed in every particular. They were individuals of decent character; both had worked on the prisoner's farm, and acknowledged him to be a liberal and kind master. Their evidence was not to be shaken. As a final and damning proof of guilt, the watch of which the murdered man had been robbed was produced: it had been found concealed under the thatch of an outhouse at the Ings. At this point of the evidence the prisoner was observed to draw himself up and look round definitely,—despair gave him a fictitious strength, perhaps, or, was it conscious innocence?

Wilfred spoke in his own defence, briefly, but strongly. His life, he said, was sworn away, but he was as guiltless of the crime laid to his charge as any of those gentlemen who sat in judgment upon him. His mother, who had remained in court all the time and had never spoken except when called upon for her evidence, had preserved a stoical calmness throughout. When he ceased to speak however, she cried out in a quivering voice:

"My lad, thy mother believes thee!"

Some friend would have led her out, but she refused to go. The jury gave their verdict of guilty without any recommendation to mercy, and the sentence of death was pronounced. Then it was that Hester rose on her feet and faltered that formula of words with which she had startled me in the corridor:

"He is not guilty, my lord judge. God will right him yet. It will all come out some day. I can wait; yes, I can wait. I am more patient than death. I am more patient than injustice."

Wilfred died stubborn and unconfessing; on the scaffold, with his last breath, he persisted in asserting his innocence. His mother bade him farewell, and was carried to this inn, where she had stayed, raving in a frenzy-fit. For many months she was subject to restraint, but, recovering in some measure, she was at length set at liberty.—Her mind was still distraught, however; she wandered back to the dales and to her old home, but the new owner had taken possession, and after enduring her intrusions for some time, he was compelled to apply for her removal.

After this, her money being lost or exhausted, she strayed about the country in a purposeless way; begging or doing day's work in the field, until she strayed here again, and became the Pensioner of the Holly-Tree. The poor demented creature is always treated kindly, but her son's sentence has not yet been reversed in men's judgment. Every morning during the time the judges are in the neighbouring Assize town she waits in one of the streets through which they must pass to reach the court: and as the gilt coach, the noisy trumpets, and the decked halberdiers, go by, she scowls at them from beneath her shaggy brows, and mutters her formula of defiance. She will die saying it: comforting her poor, worn, wounded heart with its smarting balm.

Will she find, when she comes before the Tribunal of Eternal Decrees that she has leaned thus long on a broken reed, or will she find her son there, free from the guilt of blood?

The Great Judge only knows.

THE BILL.

I could scarcely believe, when I came to the last word of the foregoing recital and finished it off with a flourish, as I am apt to do when I make an end of any writing, that I had been snowed up a whole week. The time had hung so lightly on my hands, and the Holly-Tree, so bare at first, had borne so many berries for me, that I should have been in great doubt of the fact but for a piece of documentary evidence that lay upon my table.

The road had been dug out of the snow, on the previous day, and the document in question was my Bill. It testified, emphatically, to my having eaten and drunk, and warmed myself, and slept, among the sheltering branches of the Holly-Tree, seven days and nights.

I had yesterday allowed the road twenty-four hours to improve itself, finding that I required that additional margin of time for the completion of my task. I had ordered my Bill to be upon the table, and a chaise to be at the door, "at eight o'clock to-morrow evening, when I buckled up my travelling desk in its leather case, paid my Bill, and got on my warm coats and wrappers. Of course, no time now remained for my travelling on, to add a frozen tear to the icicles which were doubtless hanging plentifully about the farm-house where I had first seen Angela. What I had to do, was, to get across to Liverpool by the shortest open road, there to meet my heavy baggage and embark. It was quite enough to do, and I had not an hour too much time to do it in.

I had taken leave of my Holly-Tree friends—almost, for the time being, of my bachelorless too—and was standing for half a minute at the Inn-door, watching the ostler as he took another turn at the cord which tied my portmanteau on the chaise, when I saw lamps coming down towards the Holly-Tree. The road was so padded with snow that no wheels were audible; but, all of us who were standing at the Inn-door, saw lamps coming on, and at a lively rate too, between the walls of snow that had been heaped up on either side of the track. The chamber-maid instantly livened how the case stood, and called to the ostler: "Tom, this is a Gretna job!" The ostler, knowing that her sex instinctively scented a marriage or anything in that direction, rushed up the yard, bawling, "Next four out!" and in a moment the whole establishment was thrown into commotion.

I had a melancholy interest in seeing the happy man who loved and was beloved; and, therefore, instead of driving off at once, I remained at the Inn door when the fugitives drove up. A bright-eyed fellow, muffled in a mantle, jumped out so briskly that he almost overthrew me. He turned to apologise, and by Heaven, it was Edwin!

"Charley!" said he, recoiling. "Gracious powers, what do you do here?"

"Edwin," said I, recoiling, "Gracious powers, what do you do here?" I struck my forehead as I said it, and an insupportable blaze of light seemed to shoot before my eyes.

He hurried me into the little parlor (always kept with a slow fire in it and no poker), where posting company waited while their horses were putting to; and shutting the door, said:

"Charley, forgive me!"

"Edwin?" I returned. "Was this well? When I loved her so dearly! When I had garnered up my heart so long!" I could say no more.

He was shocked when he saw how moved I was, and made the cruel observation, that he had not thought I should have taken it so much to heart.

I looked at him. I reproached him no more. But I looked at him.

"My dear, dear Charley," said he; "don't think ill of me, I beseech you! You know you have a right to my utmost confidence, and believe me, you have ever had it until now. I abhor secrecy. Its meanness is intolerable to me. But I and my dear girl have observed it for your sake."

He and his dear girl! It steeled me.

"You have observed it for my sake, sir!" said I, wondering how his frank face could face it out so.

"Yes!—and Angela's," said he.

I found the room reeling round in an uncomfortable way, like a labouring humming-top. "Explain yourself," said I, holding on by one hand to an arm-chair.

"Dear old darling Charley" returned Edwin, in his cordial manner, "consider! When you were going on so happily with Angela, why should I compromise you with the old gentleman by making you a party to our engagement, and (after he had declined my proposals) to our secret intention? Surely it was better that you should be able honourably to say, 'He never took counsel with me, never told me, never breathed a word of it.' If Angela suspected it and showed me all the favor and support she could—God bless her for a precious creature and a priceless wife!—I couldn't help that. Neither I nor Emmeline ever told her, any more than we told you. And for the same good reason, Charley; trust me, for the same good reason, and no other upon earth!"

Emmeline was Angela's cousin. Lived with her. Had been brought up with her. Was her father's ward. Had property.

"Emmeline is in the chaise, my dear Edwin!" said I, embracing him with the greatest affection.

"My good fellow!" said he, "Do you suppose I should be going to Gretna Green with ut her?"

I ran out with Edwin, I opened the chaise-door, I took Emmeline in my arms, I folded her to my heart. She was wrapped in soft white fur, like the snowy landscape; but was warm, and young, and lovely. I put their leaders to with my own hands, I gave the boys a five pound note a-piece, I cheered them as they drove away, I drove the other way myself as hard as I could pelt.

I never went to Liverpool, I never went to America, I went straight back to London, and I married Angela. I have never until this time, even to her, disclosed the secret of my character, and the mistrust and the mistaken journey into which it led me.—When she, and they, and our eight children and their seven—I mean Edwin's and Emmeline's, whose eldest girl is old enough now to wear white fur herself, and to look very like her mother in it—come to read these pages, as of course they will, I shall hardly fail to be found out at last. Never mind! I can bear it. I began at the Holly-Tree, by idle accident, to associate the Christmas time of year with human interest, and with some inquiry into, and some care for, the lives of those by whom I find myself surrounded. I hope that I am none the worse for it, and that no one near me or afar off is the worse for it. And I say, May the green Holly-Tree flourish, striking its roots deep into our English ground, and having its germinating qualities carried by the birds of Heaven all over the world!

Poetry.

THE MISSING SHIP.

BY W. H. HOSMER.

No news from the missing ship,
With her precious freight of lives,
Though on the watch for tidings
Are husbands, lovers, wives.
The mother's mind is troubled
To learn the vessel's fate:
Safe haven may she find at last,
With her thrice precious freight.

The sea is a mighty mistress
In this dread world of ours—
Roaring in Polar regions,
Or building coral bowers,
Within her grand old chambers,
What treasures lie concealed—
The conquering fleets of Carthage,
And hosts with spear and shield.

No news from the missing ship!
Has she struck on frozen shore?
Or, by an iceberg clutched,
Sought port in the far Azores?
Or anchorage forever,
In ocean has she found?—
Vast tombs where hopes lie buried,
And Royalty discrowned!

The winds we've questioned, often
That landward wildly blow,
They only moan and whistle,
But say not yes or no!
When will the missing steamer
Approach our coast again?
Give answer, blast of midnight,
Give answer, roaring main!

Prayers for her safety, nightly
Rise from a million lips—
A glimmering of hope remains
That should not now eclipse.
May the signal-gun give token
That she is under way,
With her precious freight of human lives,
And moving up the bay!

Miscellany.

Mr. J. Bradshaw, eldest son of J. F. Bradshaw, Esq. Manager of the Bank of Upper Canada, in this city has been appointed to an Ensigney in the 32nd Light Infantry, which Regiment is now stationed in India, Lieut. E. Stuart, 1st Royals, son of the late Chief Justice Sir James Stuart, Bart, who has served in the Crimea, and was severely wounded in the attack before Sebastopol of the 8th June, arrived in Quebec on Sunday last on a visit to his family. We regret to find that Mr. Stuart still suffers from his wound, it having been thought by the Surgeons unsafe to extract the ball.—Quebec Gazette.

THE SABBATH OBSERVANCE IN BRITAIN.—The House of Commons has been deluged with petitions for and against the opening of places of public amusement on Sabbath. In the meantime, the question has been effectually set at rest by the overwhelming majority on Tuesday evening.—What say the public amusement party to the fact, that in a house of 424, they could muster only 48. One for the opening for every EIGHT against it! We should think that after such a defeat he will be a bold man who will bring forward such motions for the future. There was a decided majority of the entire members, which ought to satisfy every one as to what is the feeling in the House of Commons and there is scarcely room to doubt that the House of Lords would be found still more decided on the question. The Times has a violent article in favor of amusements. The writer no doubt assumes that, if the Times employs at hard work some scores of people on the Sabbath, a little recreation would be a very proper sequel. It is scarcely to be expected that those who set working people to labor on the day of rest, will contend very earnestly for the sacredness of that day.

THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN PRESS.—The N. Y. Albion, after a brief review of the correspondence between American and British Ministers of the enlistment question, contrasts its spirit with that which has been exhibited by the press, and says:—

"What a pattern do these diplomatists set to the men of our profession, in the amenities of controversy! They lack not point, and make a hit when and where they can. But how courteous are they, and polished. How immeasurably superior in this respect to the press at large, from the London Times downward to the New York "Sunday."—And this leads us to express wonder that Mr. Marcy could at all make reference to the tone of the British newspapers, when he must have been aware that their occasional things and vituperations are but as one drop of water in the bucket, compared to the never ceasing outflow of abuse which many of the most popular journals of this country lavish upon England, her institutions, her government, her policy, in short everything pertaining to her. Talk of an offensive or insulting article from the London Chronicle, Post, or Times. Nonsense! We could outmatch any one of such, with a dozen per day, from the editorials of the New York press alone. Why, it is no uncommon thing to find, in the Tribune, Daily Times, or Herald, two or three leading articles on the same page, attacking England through some channel, direct or indirect.—They spare neither the living nor the dead. Let a man of eminence die, and forthwith there steps forward a hireling refugee, well-posted in the tittle-tattle of high life, and prompt to defile the grave of departed worth. This does not occur once in a while, the staple of several of our neighbors is abuse of England. And yet they can gravely protest against a word now and then by way of rejoinder, and advise the English press not to engender bitterness of feeling!"

The Austrian Gazette recites the following from a private correspondent at Odessa: Not long ago, a fete was given by the Club of Nobility, to several American citizens, who are in the Russian service, and who took part in the defence of Sebastopol (mostly physicians.) At this occasion among other toasts, the following was given:—"To the strict alliance of Russia with the United States of America, for the downfall of insolent England." The toast was received repeatedly with loud acclamations.

AN INCIDENT OF WESTERN TRAVEL.

A correspondent of the Springfield Republican writing from the West, relates the following incident of travel, which occurred at a hotel in Vincennes, Indiana:

While the landlord was showing me to my room, an old gentleman entered, and asked if he could have a room with a fire, saying he was very sick with chill and fever and must have a warm bed. The landlord told him that he would prepare a room for him shortly; and after showing me to mine left me to muse over the resources of a landlord who could furnish guests with comfortable rooms with fires, when he hadn't a room in the house with less than three occupants.

In my room were two beds, and one of them was occupied by a conductor. But a few minutes elapsed after the landlord left me, before he returned and called the conductor up, telling him that it was nearly time for his train to leave. The conductor hurried down in great haste, but had hardly gone when the landlord entered with the old gentleman, shaking with the chills, and exclaiming,

"Where's your fire, landlord? It's as cold as a barn here! I shall catch my death of cold!"

"Oh," replied the landlord, in the blandest voice imginable, "I haven't a room in the whole house with a fire in it, but see what I have done! I have had your bed nicely warmed for you, so that will be as comfortable as though there was a fire, and it's much better for your health!"

The sick man looked at the cold sheets, and at the old gentleman, putting his hands under the bed cover to feel the effect produced by the landlord's patent warming pan, while the kind-hearted dispenser of comfort made his exit, leaving me to split my sides with laughter for the remainder of the night.

The story was too good to keep; and, therefore, as soon as the landlord made his appearance next morning, I pitched into him about it.

"Oh, say nothing about it," said he, keep mum, and I stand treat."

"No, you don't I replied; if your bar room has had as your house, you don't get any of it down my throat."

MARRIAGES OF ROMANCE.

Mr. Howard, First Secretary of the British legation in Paris, is about to lead to the altar the English beauty, Miss Stuart. Mr. Howard's first wife was the celebrated Bait more beauty, Miss McTavish, so well known in the gay world of Paris, a few years ago. It was this Mrs. Howard of Baltimore, who was so frequently confounded with the Mrs. Howard who lived many years with the present Emperor of France. Mr. Howard is a member of the distinguished family of that name in England, and is a man of some talent. His courage is commendable.

A French lady of great wealth, and fond of travel and adventure, was last summer in town on the borders of the Black Sea, which was surrounded by a detachment of French Zouaves. The lady was protected under interesting circumstances, by a rough Zouave for whom she at once formed an attachment. Upon the return of the Zouave's regiment recently, to Paris the lady sought out her soldier, bought a substitute to fill out his time, and after putting him a la mode married him. She shows him at the opera and amongst her friends. She appears to be perfectly satisfied with her bargain, and declares her Zouave to be the most amusing fellow in the world.—Cor. N. Y. Times.

Legislative Assembly.

MONDAY, 7th April, 1856

The Speaker took the chair at 3 o'clock.

THE CANADA COMPANY.

Mr. MACKENZIE moved a resolution relative to certain returns required from the Canada Company. He said his object was to obtain justice for a quiet, non-political part of the community, who, he conceived, were not properly treated by what he must term a mischievous company. He had introduced the same resolution in 1852, with the consent of the Government, but the returns sought had never been furnished.—He moved:—"That the clerk do request this Canada Company through its agents at Toronto or at Goderich, to transmit to the House a statement of the affairs of the said company, made up to as recent a date as possible, showing:—1. The amounts of said Land Company's assets and liabilities in Canada, and of what they severally consist. 2. The number of acres now unsold and unoccupied, and in what counties severally situated, with the aggregate sum of what the land tax paid thereon by the company, in 1849, 1850, and 1851–3. 3. The number of acres sold in each fiscal year since 1844, and at what average rates; also the number of acres in these years for which deeds have been issued to purchasers. 4. The aggregate quantity of lands sold on credit, since the corporation commenced operations, for which the purchasers have not as yet received deeds; the aggregate number of said purchasers; and the number that have left or deserted their land and improvements, or forfeited them, and been removed or sold out. 5. The number of the company's tenants now residing on leased lots, the number of acres leased, and in what counties; the aggregate of rent payable yearly by the said tenantry, and the average length of their leases; how many of the said leased tenantry left their improvements; how many have been ejected from their farm lots, and how many acres have been leased yearly since 1844. 6. A schedule of the landed estate, if any, purchased by the company, (under authority of the Imperial Act 6 George IV., cap. 75, or by any subsequent sale under such statute), from the Government, from corporations, and from individuals, other than the reserves included in the company's bargains with the Imperial Government, showing from whom bought, when, at what prices, and where situated. 7. The several rates and amounts of the dividends of gain or profit realized or made since 1844, and when said dividends were declared. 8. The aggregate nominal value of the company's capital held in Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, and the aggregate amount owned elsewhere. 9. The gross amount of donations by the company, and of stock paid in since 1827, in aid of Canadian railways, harbours, canals, bridges, or the improvement of inland navigation beyond the limits of the Huron tract, and exclusive of those expenditures on their own lands to enhance the value, which were considered by Government as payments in part of the price of said lands; with the amount of free gifts or donations in aid of British or Irish settlers, to enable them to come to the country yearly, the aggregate number of law suits now pending between their tenants or other indebted settlers, as near as can be ascertained. 11. Copy, in blank, of any printed leaves, deeds, and mortgage forms in use by the company; also, of any additions or alterations they have made by Crown to the company's letters patent, under authority of sec. 6 of the Imperial Statute 9 Geo. IV., cap. 51; being the information required by this house on the 8th day of November, 1852, no part of which the company or its agents have as yet supplied." Perhaps, said the hon. mover, it might be said that the information could not be obtained from the Company. But would it be said that any monopoly in this country was so powerful as to be able to refuse information if demanded by Parliament? He then read a statement briefly, in regard to the affairs of the Company from the London Correspondence of the Globe, and complained that the state of its affairs should be made known to England, while the people of this country, who were more deeply interested in the matter, were left in the dark.

Hon. Mr. ROBINSON said, the member for Haldimand had probably never set his foot in the county of Huron, and knew very little of what he was talking about. He did not think the Company would refuse any reasonable information that was asked. They had settled the county very rapidly, without reserving lots for themselves on which to speculate. As to the management of the Company's affairs, he had heard almost no complaints on the part of the public. For himself and for Mr. Widder he could say that every letter, from the highest individual in the country, was promptly answered. But if in any case, any poor people were oppressed by the Company, the laws of the country were open to them.—He contended that Canada Company had fulfilled all the conditions of its charter.—This was proved by the preamble of the release by the Crown to the Company in 1847. The leasing system was objected to, but the poor man generally considered that this was the most favourable for himself; and nine-tenths of the applications made to the Company were for the lease rather than the purchase of lands. He did not think the Government would be justified in calling on the Company for those returns, although, if any good reason were shown for it, the Company would not refuse to furnish them.

Mr. WILSON had done a great deal of business with the Company, and up to a recent period it was done entirely to his satisfaction. But in a recent case where a man's lease had been forfeited, the Company insisted on getting $12 an acre, instead of the original of $2, notwithstanding that many improvements had been made. He thought that a case of hardship. What he complained of was, that while parties went in under the notion of being purchasers, the Company might throw them out, in the case of a forfeiture by the non-performance of all the conditions. He thought the Company should refrain from enforcing the leases in that strict way.

Hon. Mr. ROBINSON was obliged for the hon. gentleman's testimony in favour of the Company, as he had ample experience of its working. And in the one exception he had made, he did not think the Company was to blame.

Attorney General MACDONALD said that the Government had in 1847 given the Company the complete discharge to which his hon. friend from Simcoe had alluded, and the Government could not interfere with them any more than with any independent land owner. This motion called for a full statement of their affairs from 1844. They might as well call on Mr. Cauchra, a wealthy banker of Toronto, to furnish an account of what money he had in his vaults, how many debts were due him, what bills were outstanding, whom he had sued, and whom he had let off. As to the leasing system, he considered that that had been a great relief to the poor settler.—He hoped the member for Haldimand would withdraw the motion.

Mr. FERRIES said he had paid some attention to the proceedings of the Canada Company, and he had looked upon them with a great deal of favour. Previous to the existence of the company, the immigrants to Canada did not amount to 15,000 a year. But within two or three years they had diffused so much information at home respecting Canada that the emigration was raised to 30,000 a year. And their efforts did not terminate with the sale of lands. The settlement, but continued with success that he believed the western portion of Upper Canada had been mainly settled through their exertions. Such being the fact, he did not think it became this house to harrass them by making demands for these returns, which it could be shown that parties had been deprived of their leases, without getting compensation for the improvements they had made. He did not think the house should interfere.

Solicitor General SMITH had had a great deal to do with the company, and he had never known an instance in which leases had been forfeited, that an extension had not been made of the time of payment.—The company had paid the Government £327,000, and conside ing all the good they had done, he believed it was the most advantageous bargain the country had ever made. He hoped the member for Haldimand would withdraw his motion. If he pressedit, he was sure it would not prevail.

Mr. BROWN was glad to learn that the hon. gentleman had no objection to those returns being asked for, as there was really nothing in them which the Company could desire to conceal for one moment. Reference had been made to the question of leasing. Now he must say there was something in the leasing principle which was not suited to the circumstances of Canada. A large portion of our country had been handed over to a Company, with the view of getting it settled, but he did not think the leasing was one at all advantageous to the settler. When the day came that they had to pay the principal, and accumulated interest—compound interest—many of the settlers were not prepared for it, and they lost the advantage of the improvements they had made, and he thought the House was entitled to know from the Company to what extent those leases had been given. There was another reason why this information should be given. There was at present a proposal to hand over to a Railway Company a large tract of land for settlement.—(Hear, hear.) It was stated that this proposal would be acceded to in one of the most important organs of this very day. (A laugh.) He saw one of the members of the Government laughing. He supposed it was at the proposition itself, and not at the idea of their having a Government organ. An hon. friend near him remarked that it was their organ when it was taken by the public.—(Laughter.) But it was stated by an organ of the Government that this proposition had received the assent of a majority of the Cabinet.

Mr. SPEAKER.—Order!

Mr. BROWN.—I apologize. But the hon. member for Montmorency (Mr. Cauchon) could say whether that was not the scheme he advocated. The hon. gentleman would not hesitate to say whether he did not want the North Shore Railroad sustained by large tracts of land. (Hear, hear. Now, if that was likely to come before the House, was it not well that they should know how other large tracts of land given out of the hands of the Crown Lands Department to a Corporation, had been managed for the interest of the county. (Hear, hear.) Now, for every reason why the motion should pass, and he was glad to hear that the member for Simcoe had no objection to it.

Mr ROBINSON.—I merely stated that I did not express any opinion about it. But I put it to the house whether, after getting an ample disclosure from the Government, the Company should be called upon to furnish all those returns.

Mr. MACKENZIE said, that the learned statesman, the hon. attorney General West, had not found out any of the objections which he now raised when he (Mr. Mackenzie) first moved this matter. He had voted for the information now asked. What inconsistency! Did the Executive Council of Canada when that motion was placed before them by the Premier of that day, find any fault with it? No! So too with the hon. member for Simcoe, who had been so very eloquent, and who voted for a like motion before to day. He was now a paid agent of the Company, and got £1600 a year, and of course was required to speak a little for his pay.

Hon. Mr. ROBINSON rose and declared that he would not so undertake his services.

Mr. MACKENZIE did not care. The hon. gentleman was still a hired servant of the company at the present time, and in 1852 while member for a large agricultural county, supported the motion then before the House calling for information from the Company. (Hear, hear.) Did the hon. gentleman who now represented Huron and Bruce, although he knew that there were thousands of signitures, to Petitions begging for this information, open his lips upon this occasion? Not a single word issued from him or his honorable friend either, the member for Perth. In 1852, the learned Solicitor General, then a plain member of Parliament (who was always bringing in what he called his "Buncombe Motions" upon the Independence of Parliament, &c.,) now got up and laughed at Mr. Bibby, and now how wise he was; how much of a Solon and a Solomon he has made himself since 1852. "Then the hon. member for Prince Edward's leland [Mr. Stevenson] had come to the conclusion that the House should not ask for this information, but he voted for the motion upon any other matter, he might as well sit down. The hon. gentleman behind him (Mr. M.,) had stated a case which had come to his knowledge, and had trod upon the toes of the Canada Company very gently. Was the Canada Company not the same Company have not acted disgracefully? He could bring forward, if necessary, their Agents, and he would call the attention of the House to what Dr. Van Lolt said, its former officer. (The statement of the gentleman was here taken down.) That the Company went and towards him with a strong hand in displacing him from his office, and placing in his stead Captain Strong. Also, that a Mr. Benjamin Wilson had at the time an unsettled account with the Company, and that a Mr. David Smith by an extraordinary instance of good fortune obtained employment from the Company, to perform work for them of a menial and laborious description.) Why should the house refuse to call upon this Company for the required information, from a Company that had originally got 2,500,000 acres of land for a song, and now were charging from $60 to $70? He trusted that it would not be refused.

Mr. DALY could not allow the allusions of the hon. member for Haldimand to him, to pass unnoticed. He wished to inform that hon. gentleman, that the votes which had sent him to that house he had received from settlers of the Canada Company. He had never been asked by them to bring this matter before the house, in fact he was aware that a majority of them were satisfied with the conduct of the Company towards them. The Canada Company purchased their lands for the purpose of making proceeds from the sale of them; they had leased them, and there were many cases where the Company had not been able to get payment for them. If the settlers had not confidence in the terms of the leases granted to them, they might have suffered, and the Company had notified them year after year to do so. He was not aware that any individuals in his county had been treated badly. If they had been, petitions would have been sent in. If the hon. member would go to the offices of the Company he would no doubt be able to get all the information that he wanted; but his evident object was to put the country to expense, an I the unnecessary motions as the present, and he must say he was surprised at the hon. member for Lambton going with him.

Hon. Mr. ROBINSON answered some of the remarks of the hon. member for Haldimand. It was strange that the hon. gentleman could not speak without abusing every company and its affairs. He read the opinion of the Commissioner of the Land Department on his own friends, as he said, intimating that the hon. gentleman's opinion upon Crown Lands, &c., were unworthy of notice, (Order, order.)

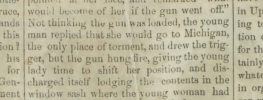
The SPEAKER called the hon. member to order. (Question, question.)

Mr. MURNEY was surprised to hear the hon. member for Perth make the statements that the company allowed parties to remain in possession of land for a long time without paying. Suppose a party accepting one of these leases, had been upon the land twelve months upon payment of something in the shape of rent, and was then told by an agent of the Canada Company could require that party to send in a new application for a higher price at a higher rate of interest, and value for the land? Because if the hon. member cannot cite a case, he (Mr. Murney) knew one of hardship to settlers.

Mr. DALY was not aware of any case in which the company had refused to give the settler the deed of his land after paying up within a few days of the time.

Mr. MURNEY was very sorry that the Company were so partial. He had seen circulars to parties, giving them notice that the Company intended to rescind their contract, and left themselves at liberty to consider any new application.

The motion was then put and carried.



Yeas - - - -	28.
Nays - - - -	67.

YEAS—Messrs. Aikins, Bell, Brown, Bureau, Christie, Drache, Delong, DeWitt, J. B. E. Dorion, A. A. Dorion, Ferguson, Ferrie, Frazer, Hartman, Hotton, R. McDonald, Mackenzie, Macmillan, Mcdougall, Mcleay, Murney, Papin, Patrick, Prevost, Rolph, Scatcher, I, and Young.—28.

NAYS—Messrs. Alleyn, Bowes, Brodeur, Cameron, Cartier, Casault, Cauchon, Cayley, Chabot, Chapais, Chisholm, Church, Conger, Cook, Cowan, Crawford, Crysler, Daly, Dufresne, J. B. Daoust Desaulniers, Dionne Dostaler, Dufresne, Evanturel, Felton, Ferres, T. Fortier, O. C. Fortier, Frurnier, Gamble, Gill, Guevremont, Labelle, Laporte, Larwill, Le Boutillier, Lemieux, Lumsden, Lyon, Macbeth, McCann, Masson, Morin, Morgangeois, J. C. Morrison, A. Morrison, Polette, Poulin, Poulliot, Powell, Price, Rhodes, Robinson, Sol. Gen. Ross, Sanborn, Shaw, Sol. Gen. Smith, S. Smith, Somerville, Southwick, Spence, Stevenson, Tache, Terrill, Thibaudeau, Turcotte, and Whitney —67.

The careless use of fire arms frequently leads to serious and fatal accidents, and the frequency of such ace dents should teach all who handle guns to use the utmost care.—The Woodstock Sentinel states that a young man named Hezen Sinclair, of West Oxford called at a School-house in the village of Salford, and began a conversation with one of the scholars, laying the muzzle of a gun he was carrying on the sill of the window. Miss Lucindia Chapel, daughter of the Rev. William Chapel, observed that the gun was pointed at her face, and remarked "what would become of her if the gun went off." Not thinking the gun was loaded, the young man replied that she would go to Michigan, the only place of torment, and drew the trigger, but the gun hung fire, giving the young lady time to shift her position, and discharged itself lodging the contents in the window sash where the young woman had been standing a few moments before.

In Rochester a few days ago, Mr. Bibby was passing along Monroe street, and was struck by a rifle ball which had been fired by a man living in Green street. The gun had been directed toward a small outhouse, but the bullet passed through the boards, pursued its course some 150 yards, grazing the head of another man, and actually hitting Mr. Bibby, the ball passing through the double thickness of his shawl, tearing up the cloth of his coat, and inflicting a very severe wound on his shoulder.—St. Catharine's Post.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

SANDWICH, APRIL 11, 1856.

OUR POSITION AND PROSPECTS.

THE Maple Leaf has become a reality; and its leaves are now scattered through the whole County, and may be found in the houses of many of our farmers, imparting to them a knowledge of life without their sphere of action; and every exertion will be made in future to render our paper worthy the confidence which has been so liberally bestowed upon us at the beginning—for the encouragement that we have received has exceeded our utmost hopes, and now that our Maple has taken deep root in the soil, we hope the nourishment which is requisite to make it a flourishing tree, will still be bestowed with a bounteous hand.

It has long been supposed that a conservative journal would not be supported in this County; but the fallacy of that doctrine is too apparent to need any argument, as we have an illustration in our case, that where moderate conservative principles are advocated, they will be encouraged. As we have marked out a course that will at all events be a consistent one, by which we are determined to pass through the stormy sea of political life, we may expect foul winds to press upon our progress, but our numerous patrons may rest assured, that so long as there is a timber left, the ship will not be deserted.

In a short time the appearance of our paper will be materially improved by a supply of new type, and a new and appropriate heading; and as we have chosen "Progress" for our motto, our readers may rest assured that there will be no evasion of it, in letter or spirit, upon our part, but on the contrary, a steady and sure improvement will be our whole aim.

Our circulation has steadily increased; and, if it were only to continue increasing as it has for the last few numbers, we will in a short time have obtained a subscription list larger than has ever been known in this county. And with such bright prospects of success, we cannot but feel gratified and happy that our humble endeavors have been received with so marked a consideration; and to our brethren of the press our thanks are particularly due for the friendly manner in which the advent of the Maple Leaf into this world was noticed, and the material aid rendered us in exchanging.

The usually quiet town of Sarnia is at present all excitement with the prospect of an early completion of the Great Western Railway Branch to that place, which will turn the quiet-loving people of Sarnia to a busy, money-making community, which, by the way, is an improvement much needed in many of our old frontier towns. Our earnest hope is, that ere long the iron horse will have roused with his shrill whistle the dormant propensities of the sluggish habitant to a due sense of his capacity for enterprise, and awaken the idea that man was not made to travel through life with the slow and non-progressive spirit of his forefathers, but to exercise the faculties that were given him in improving his condition.

We take from the Observer the following:

"We learn with much satisfaction, that the railway from Port Huron to Corunna is under contract, and that operations on that line will be actively commenced as soon as the frost is out of the ground—and as the line of railway from that point to Grand Haven is partially completed, we may reasonably calculate that in another year we shall have uninterrupted railway communication from Milwaukee to Toronto. We are also informed that the Railway Docks at Port Huron are under contract, and will be commenced as soon as the ice disappears. Four first class steamers are to be built immediately, to run between Milwaukee and Grand Haven, and are intended to run that distance (87 miles) in about four hours. The good sense of the Michigan people, and those interested in a direct and quick transit to the East and West, has at length overcome those sectional prejudices which for a time interfered with this magnificent undertaking.

The works on the Sarnia branch of the Great Western Railway are favorably progressing. The steam excavator is in full blast, removing the bank near the river,—preparing for the docks in this place; and the "navvies" are at work all along the line."

In anticipation of these improvements large sales of lands have been effected in and about Sarnia, and at prices which have heretofore been unknown in those parts.

A number of gentlemen in this town have requested us to call attention to the benefits which would result from the establishment of a Mechanic's Institute in Sandwich. They have been established in almost every Town in Upper Canada, and the Legislature, wishing to encourage them, upon the subscription of fifty pounds, will add another fifty for the purchase of a library. Now, we certainly think that there would be no difficulty whatever in raising that amount, and also in organizing such an Institute, if any person will only take upon himself the trouble of calling upon the townspeople; or perhaps it would be advisable to call a public meeting at an early day, to take such measures as are necessary for an immediate organization. Will anybody act in this matter?

Can any person tell us who has charge of the streets in Sandwich, or if there is a pathmaster? If there should be any person laying claim to that office, the greatest harm we could wish him is, that he be once securely stuck in that exceedingly pleasant-looking mudhole at the upper end of Bedford Street. We should right well like to know where all the statute labor collected in the town goes to, as we have seen no very marked improvement in our streets. With a very small sum being annually expended upon them, they could be made as good as if macadamized. It is a most disgraceful sight to see the street in the present condition; it is wholly impossible for a loaded team to get through it. We have noticed some half dozen loaded waggons and carts stuck fast and could only be extricated with the greatest difficulty, and with the assistance of rails, planks, &c., &c. This is certainly a pleasant sight for Sandwichites, who are continually boasting of their dry streets.

Since the opening of fine weather, Mr. McKenzie has again commenced operations upon the new Court House and Gaol with a goodly number of hands, and we may expect that the whole building will be completed in time for holding the Assizes next fall.

We learn by the last Planet, that Dr Cross, the able editor of that journal, has retired from the arduous duties which necessarily attend an editor's life; and the public will lose, in the retirement of the worthy doctor, an able and consistent writer.

The mail for Port Hope was very nearly being robbed a short time since of the very large sum of $14,000, while in the neighborhood of Newcastle, but fortunately the scoundrels carried off the wrong bag, leaving the bag with the above amount in the coach.

☞ A Tea Meeting will be held at the Wesleyan Chapel, in Sandwich, on Wednesday, 23rd instant, at 7 p.m. Tickets Fifty Cents. To be had of Messrs. Fluett, Ellis, Miller, John Green, or at the door.

☞ In our report last week of the proceedings of the County Council, an error occurred, to which Col Brush, Reeve for Colchester, has called our attention; it is in the motion regarding the £10,000 By-Law. It should read thus:

"Moved by Mr. Brush, seconded by Mr. Woodbridge, that the Warden do not borrow money upon the debentures to be issued under the By-Law for raising £10,000 for County Roads, until ordered by resolution of this Council."

ARRIVAL OF THE ASIA.

NEW YORK April 4.

The Asia arrived at her dock shortly after 2 o'clock. Her dates from Liverpool are to the 22nd ult.

No news of the Pacific.

It was generally believed the Treaty of Peace would be signed on Saturday, the 22nd and Monday, 24th ult. In the event of delay, the armistice would be extended to the 30th April.

No other news of importance.

The 10th meeting of the Plenipotentiaries was held on Tuesday, the 18th ult., and the Prussian Representatives took their seats.—The 11th meeting was to take place on Saturday, when the actual business of the Conference is understood to be over, and a committee of one Representative of each of the Powers is engaged in drawing up the formal Treaty of Peace. The committee consists of M. de Bourqu'ney, Lord Cowley, Count Buol, Baron Brunow, Count Cavour and Al. Mouvier.

The papers are full of gratulatory addresses respecting the infant Bonaparte.—We have also a few editorials on the subject of American affairs.

EXPORTS of breadstuffs from the Kingdom of Naples, have been resumed.

The Austrian Correspondent has the following data dated the 10th and 13th ult.:

"OMAR Pasha has arrived at Constantinople.

"Great mortality amongst the French in the Crimea.

"The health of the French at Constantinople was improving.

"The fortifications at Nicolaieff were being strengthened.

"General Lulers has ordered all officers on furlough, to return."

A letter from Kertch says, the news of the armistice produced a profound sensation of joy along the shores of the Sea of Azoff, and business became suddenly active.

The Imperial Foundry, established on the left bank of the Seine, has been closed, and this would seem to confirm the news of the intention manifested by the Court of Russia, to abandon all its maritime establishments on the Black Sea.

On the 17th all the ships and Allied batteries at Constantinople, fired a salute in honour of the birth of the French Emperor's son.

Letters from the camp in the Crimea extend from the 3d to the 9th ult., and are occupied chiefly with accounts of the matter.

General Codrington issued general orders, dated March 2d, forbidding to fire upon the enemy till the expiration of the armistice on the 31st.

The line of the aqueduct, running along the left bank of the Schernays, is the limit of separation between the English and Russian armies.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Mr. Buchanan has introduced his successor, Mr. Dallas, to the Diplomatic Corps, and, on Monday, the 17th, transferred to him the charge of the Embassy. Mr Buchanan has gone to Paris, whence he will return in a few days, and will probably return home by the steamer of 18th April.

There is a report from the Crimea that two divisions from the army—the Highlanders, and 3d or 4th division under Sir Colin Campbell—will immediately proceed to Canada.

FRANCE.

The Emperor had been the recipient of numerous congratulatory addresses on the birth of his son.

An amnesty is proclaimed to all political offenders who will return and take the required oath of allegiance.

Generas Rantion, Canrobert, and Bosquet, are raised to the rank of Marshals of France. Several Generals of Brigade are promoted to Generals of Division, and five Colonels are made Generals of Brigade. M. Fould and Admiral Hamelin received Grand Crosses of the Legion of Honour.

It is calculated, from statistical tables that the number of children born on the 16th March—to all of whom the Emperor and Empress are god father and godmother—must be about 2,500. Each child is to receive a gift of 3,000 francs. All the boys must be named Louis Eugene, and all the girls Eugenie Louise.

Prince Jerome is recovering.

SPAIN.

A despatch from Paris, dated Wednesday evening, 17th, is as follows:—"The state of Spain excites great alarm here. New Carlist attempts are preparing. The Spanish Government has been warned, and the frontiers on this side are well watched."

A despatch from Madrid, same date, says —"All is tranquil."

The Peace Conferences—Close of the War.

(From the London Post, March 15.)

We believe the Conferences of Paris are drawing rapidly to a close, and that we shall shortly have to record the signature of a definitive treaty of peace. The Plenipotentiaries, there is every reason to suppose, have proceeded according to the plan which, it may be remembered, was set forth in these columns on the occasion of their meeting. Having come to a distinct understanding upon the Vienna protocol, the representatives of the Powers interested attached their signatures formally to that document, defining the stipulations therein contained preliminaries of peace. This important step taken, the five points have been proceeded with, as we believe, in inverse order, and have been duly weighed and debated in detail. Difficulties have naturally arisen, but none that have not been susceptible of satisfactory adjustment. It was explained in the House of Commons last night that the Conference which is sitting in Paris assumbled for the distinct purpose of concluding a peace between certain belligerents, and that therefore the necessary parties to the proceeding were England, France, Sardinia and Turkey on one hand, and Russia on the other. To the representatives of these States were joined the Plenipotentiaries of Austria representing her in her double capacity of cefensive ally of Turkey and of mediator between the belligerents. We are justified in supposing that the Conference has now succeeded in its mission, and has arranged the final terms of peace. The proof of that is that Prussia has at length been formally invited to the Conference, "not to negotiate a treaty, but to accede to the result of the negotiations between the Powers which are interested in the matter." Prussia having assumed a strictly neutral positi n, it was impossible to allow her any part in the settlement of matters in which she refused to take an active interest; but an arrangement having been now brought about between the parties concerned, Prussia is admitted to sign that arrangement as a witness. Moreover, as one of the objects of the Conference is the revision of the treaties of 1840 and 1841, it has been thought expedient, just, and due to Prussia to invite her to participate in the revision of acts to which she was a party. With the terms of the treaty which is about to be signed we shall soon be acquainted. In the meantime we have but to refer to the recent speech of the Emperor Napoleon and to the precedents of Lords Palmerston and Clarendon—we have but to look at the relative positions of the western powers and of Russia—to feel a perfect confidence that the peace of Paris will be not only honorable but abundantly satisfactory in its provisions, and permanent in its effects.

ACCOUCHMENT OF THE FRENCH EMPRESS.

THE BAPTISM—PRAYER OF THE ARCHBISHOP.

The cermony of the ondoiement was performed with much pomp in the chapel of the Tuileries. Near the altar, on the Gospel side, stood Cardinals Dupont, Gousset, Bonnet and Marlot, and M. Legrand curate of St. Germain l'Auxerrols, the Imperial parish. Opposite, on the Epistle side, were the Bishop of Nancy, first chaplain of the Emperor, and his clergy. In the centre of the sanctuary, in front of Emperor's armchair was placed a covered table on white drapery bearing a splended silver gilt baptistery. Next to it were the Admirals and Marshals of France and other high dignitaries, the Grand Masters of the Imperial household, and the Masters of the Ceremonies, the Chamberlains and the Ladies of Honor of the Empress. At half past 12 o'clock the Emperor entered the chapel, accompanied by the members of the Imperial family, the Ministers, the Presidents of the Senate and Legislative body, and the Grand Master of the Ceremonies. The Bishop of Adras having goloshed the infant, the Abbe Deplace rose, and taking for his text the words of the Gospel "Benedictus qui venit in nomine Dommini," called down the blessings of the Almighty on the new born Prince, and thus concluded his invocation:

"Bestow on him the genius and magnanimity of his father and the sincere and inexhaustible charity of his mother, the sincere faith and devotion of both; and, to sum up, those wishes in one word, bestow on him a heart worthy of his destiny and of his name."

After mass the Imperial infant was brought in by his governess, when the Bishop of Nancy, assisted by the parish priest of St. Germain l'Auxerrois, proceeded to christen him. A Te Deum was afterwards chanted and the baptistery having been removed, the parish priest placed on the table the two registries in which the baptismal act of Napoleon Eugene Louis Jean Joseph, fils de France, was inscribed. The Emperor signed it on both registers, after which the same formality was gone through with by Prince Carat, the Duke of Alba, Marshal Vaillant, Minister of War; the Troplong, President of the Senate, and Count de Morny President of the Legislative body. The Domine Salvum was subsequently chanted, and, the bishop having bestowed his benediction on all present, his Majesty left the chapel, and was conducted back to his apartments by the same personages who attended him on his arrival.

SCENE IN THE LEGISLATURE.

The Senate and the Legislative body met this morning at 8 o'clock, and received a message from the Minister of State announcing to them the birth of the Imperial Prince. M de Morny communicated the event in the following terms to the Legislative body:—"Gentlemen, last night at 4 o'clock the Emperor sent one of his aides de camp to apprise the Legislative body of the safe delivery of the Empress. Her Majesty gave birth, at a quarter past 3 o'clock this morning, to an Imperial prince." (M. de Morny here interrupted by cries of "Vive l'Empereur!") "I perceive, gentlemen," continued the President, "that you share the joy of all France." (Unanimous acclamations.) "Vive l'Empereur!" "Vive l'Empereur," and "Vive le Prince Imperial." These cries were enthusiastically repeated by the Assembly, and when silence was restored the President informed the deputies that they would be received on Monday (to-morrow), at the Tuileries, by the Emperor. The chamber then adjourned.

REFLECTIONS ON THE GREAT EVENT—NAPOLEON THE FIRST AND NAPOLEON THE THIRD.

The birth of a son—the heir to his name and the inheritor of his crown—seems to complete the measure of the marvellous prosperity which has hitherto marked the eventful life of the Emperor. It wants but four days to the anniversary of another birth that was encircled with a yet more brilliant halo of glory. On the 20th of March 1811, 45 years ago, the guns of the Invalides proclaimed to this same city of Paris that the first Imperial heir was born to the throne. We are told by eye-witnesses, not much advanced in years of the joy displayed on that occasion; how the first discharged on the morning of the 20th aroused, as if with an electric shock, the population of the capital; how every one awakened by the sound jumped with breathless anxiety until the twenty-first peal was heard; how when 21 guns had been fired, which were to indicate the birth of a Princess, the anxiety of all grew to an intolerable pitch; how, when the gunners paused some minutes before the next piece was fired, hundreds of thousands held their breath; and how, when the 22nd, 23rd, 24th —for then there could be no miscreckoning —pealed, double charged, the people sprang up and gave vent to their joy in shouts of enthusiasm! It would perhaps, be too much to repeat such an outburst of exultation now. People have become blasé in revolution, so accustomed to overthrows of dynasties and to changes of government, that whatever fund of enthusiasm they might have once possessed has been pretty well exhausted. They feel, it is true they have government in their hand, and so long as life and energy are spared to the present occupant of the throne, if there is not much hope of the liberty which has been so much and so often misused, there is still less chance of anarchy.

The birth of the heir to the second Emperor will be a fact which, ocems under circumstances not less favorable than the first It is true that the first Napoleon was then in the zenith of his power—from the 20th of March, 1811, to the first disasters which awaited him beyond Niemen. The Emperor, with the State possessed by the Imperial family could at a time raise 1,000,000 souls. But it a no less true that the moment was fast approaching when his power, unexampled in modern times began to decline, until it fell to ruin. The clouds were already beginning to darken the horizon. The battle of Wagram, the conflict with Russia, which was to end in the stupendous catastrophe of Moscow, had already been sown. The father of the present ruler of France, weared with the exigencies of his imperious brother, had abdicated in despair the throne of Holland, which he was no longer hope to fill as an independent sovereign. The incorporation with the French empire of the Valois, the annexation of the Hans Towns and the Grand Duchy of Oldenbarg, the ruler of which was the brother-in-law of Alexander, and which brought the French empire to the Lubeck, which gave it a Russian frontier, awakened the jealousy of Russia an justified the suspicion that the restoration of Poland was at hand. The refusal of Napoleon to ratify the Convention of Champagny, the ukase of the Czar relaxing his prohibitions against English commerce, the resumption of the kingdom of Hanover from Jerome, were among the precursors of the storm that was to follow. Yet all these symptoms of approaching decline were, in the mind of Napoleon, more than compensated by the birth of the King of Rome on the 20th March, 1811.

The state of France at this moment is so familiar to all that is hardly necessary to allude to the difference of circumstances under which the event announced this morning takes place. The most formidable and most consistent enemy the first Emperor had long since, the friend and ally of the second Russia, then menacing the Power against which so many arms were soon to be lifted, now admits her defeat by England and France united. The second Emperor, who, who but three short years back excited mistrust abroad and at home has proved himself trustworthy, and in the terrible contest which France and England have sustained together in the noblest of causes. I believe that no just motive for complaint or suspicion has arisen. Of the future it is useless to speak. So many other fair prospects have been blighted, that it would be presumptuous to indulge in anything like prediction.

(Correspondent of the London News)

PARIS, Sunday Evening.

The Imperial infant, as I learn from a credible eye-witness, and not from the tattle of courtiers, is really as fine a boy as ever was seen. He is described as rosy, plump, well made, fully developed, and with a surprising ab ndance of chestnut colored hair.

resembling his father's. The name given to him is Napoleon Eugene Louis Jean-Joseph. He is called Napoleon and Louis after his father; Eugene from his mother Eugenie; Jean after the Pope, who is to be his god-father, and Joseph in compliment to his intended god-mother, the Queen of Sweden, whose name is Josephine.

A little before 3 o'clock this morning Her Majesty's state was such that it was thought proper to introduce into her chamber the grand dignitaries convened to be witnesses of the birth. On seeing so many persons about her bed the Empress appeared agitated, and the action of nature was awhile suspended. Terrible pains followed, and it is stated that the accoucheurs found an occasion to draw forth the exercise of all their skill and presence of mind. The birth was at last happily effected.

I have already said, on good grounds, that the child is a remarkably fine and healthy one. It is stated by some that he is as big as many a child of two months old, and that when the Emperor saw him he exclaimed, "No wonder the Empress suffered so much." Of private anecdotes about the event there are multitudes; many more have reached my ears than I have time to relate or than you could find space to print. I am told that the Emperor wept abundantly, and that, falling upon the neck of his cousin, Prince Napoleon, he said to him. "You will, I am sure, love and protect this child."

Within a few minutes of the birth of the Prince, at a quarter past three this morning, the Emperor sent messages in his own name announcing the event to the Pope, the Queen of England, the King of Piedmont, the Queen of Sweden, the Grand Duchess Dowager of Baden, and I believe, some other Courts. It is a very curious fact, as showing not only the wonders of the electric telegraph, but also the activity of great personages at hours when the world at large is wrapped in sleep, that telegraphic messages of congratulation were received in answer, before six o'clock, from the Pope, Queen Victoria, and the Queen of Sweden.

The Senate and Corps Legislative remained the whole of the day, yesterday, in their respective palaces, waiting for the announcement of the event. To beguile the tedium of the long hours of expectancy, they not only made ample provision of eatables champagne, and cigars, but sent for music, and invited their wives and daughters to keep them company.

The Municipal Council, on receiving the news, immediately voted a sum of 200,000 francs for the poor, of which 100,000 francs are to be employed in redeeming bedding pledged at the Mont de Piete, and the other 100,000 francs in paying the nurses of poor mothers who are in arrear. Such an immense number of presents for the Empress and the Imperial infant have lately been sent to Paris, that it has been found absolutely necessary to send orders to all the railway stations and diligence offices in the country, not to receive any parcel for such a destination. The money spent in paying for the carriage has been enormous.

Of course, very few could be accepted, and the greater part were returned to the senders with thanks for their offer. The carriage of all these returning parcels was paid by her Majesty. Many of the presents are of a very odd character. Among the gifts for the infant was an enormous case of honey, the carriage of which came to twenty francs. The Empress received from a woman in Souht of France an extremely dirty girdle, which she said she had worn for seven confinements; as she had had only boys, she thought the Empress would be glad to wear it for luck.

I am assured positively that the Empress did not take chloroform, and I learn on the same authority that the forceps were used

CONFERMATION OF HER ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCESS ROYAL.

Windsor, March 20.—The confirmation of her Royal Highness the Princess Royal took place this day in the private chapel at Windsor Castle.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of Oxford, Lord High Almoner; the Bishop of Chester, Clerk of the closet; the Dean of Windsor. Resident Chaplain to the Queen; the Rev. Lord Wriothesley Russell, Deputy Clerk of the Closet in Waiting; and the Rev. H. J. Ellison, Vicar of Windsor, took their seats within the rails of the Communion table shortly before twelve o'clock.

The Ministers and other company invited to witness the ceremony assembled in the Green Drawing-room at a quarter before twelve o'clock, the Ladies and Gentlemen in Waiting on the Queen and the Royal Family assembling in the corridor; the company were then conducted to their seats in the chapel.

About twelve o'clock her Royal Highness the Princess Royal entered the chapel with her father the Prince Consort, who placed her in a chair in front of the communion-table. Her Majesty the Queen and his Majesty the King of the Belgians followed, together with the rest of the Royal and illustrious personages.

His Majesty the King of the Belgians, the god-father of the Princess Royal, was conducted to a seat near the princess under the pulpit. Her Majesty the Queen was seated opposite to the King of the Belgians, while his Royal Highness Prince Albert, the Prince of Wales, the Princess Alice, Prince Alfred, the Princess Helena, and the Princess Louisa occupied seats opposite to the other members of the Royal Family. The great officers of State and the ladies and gentlemen in waiting took their seats immediately behind the Royal family. The remainder of the company invited were placed in pews on either side of the chapel.

The Princess Royal wore a rich white silk glace, with five flounces pinked, the body richly trimmed with white riband and Mechlin lace.

The King of the Belgians, the Prince Consort, and the Duke of Cambridge appeared in the Windsor uniform, and each wore the riband, badge, and star of the Most Noble Order of the Garter.

The Gentlemen of the Queen's and the Prince Consort's household wore the Windsor uniform; the members of orders of knighthood wearing their respective insignia.

The ceremony commenced by a hymn, sung by the gentlemen and boys of the Royal Chapel of St. George. Mr. W. G. Cusins, the organist of her Majesty's private chapel, presiding at the organ.

The Bishop of Oxford read the Preface, and his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury performed the ceremony and concluded the service, the Princess kneeling before his Grace. The Archbishop at the close delivered an exhortation, and part of the 268th hymn was then sung by the choir.

The ceremony being ended, the Queen and the King of the Belgians, the Princess Royal and the Prince Consort, with the Royal Family, quitted the chapel and entered the Green Drawing-room, where her Majesty received the congratulations of the distinguished company present.

Later from Hayti.—New York 10th. Late advices from Hayti mention the arrival at Port au Prince of four English and two French men of war, lately composing part of the Baltic fleet. Other war vessels were expected and it is said that from 12,000 to 14,000 French troops had landed at Guadaloupe. Much interest is excited by their movements.

Equestrianism Extraordinary.—A correspondent of Life Illustrated gives the following as a portion of the experience of a Cadet at West point:

When I came back from furlough, my class had ridden for a year—I only for a week or two. Nothing daunted, however, by this, and blindly trusting to fortune and my own powers, I buckled on a pair of rusty spurs, bound myself securely to an enormous sabre with a ponderous iron scabbard, and sallied forth. A Dragoon brought me a raw-boned vicous-looking animal, which after some preliminary difficulties, I succeeded in mounting.

'Trot!' Horse started—so did I, half off my saddle. I had never been taught to keep my heels turned well out, and accordingly my spurs went in. Horse 'went in' too. Motion peculiar. Began to suspect I was losing my balance. Sabre flew out and hit the horse on the head. In plunged my spurs deep among his ribs. Another jump. Sabre flew back and hit him on the flanks. Spurs worked convulsively among his bones —jump, thump, spur! Horse reared; seized his mane. Kicked up; caught his ears, and saved myself. It began to grow exciting. Finally, horse started off. Such a race! Pulling on the mane had no tendency to check his mad career. Rather seemed to irritate him. Had a good hold with the spurs, but did not consider myself perfectly safe. Sabre flew up and hit me in the face. Blind for a moment, and heard something drop. Looked up into the saddle and saw I was not there. Concluded it must be me on the ground. Horse standing near eating grass and looking at me with a quiet twinkle in his eye, adding insult to injury.

A buck while being measured for a pair of boots, observed: "Make them to cover the calf." "Heavens," exclaimed the shoemaker, surveying his customer from head to foot, "I have not enough leather."

We were conversing with a young lady a few evenings ago, at a literary re-union and as she had been introduced as a poetess, we of course touched on poetry. It was not many minutes before she had run through the stereotyped list of favorite authors, when she concluded with Byron, asserting her conviction that he was the greatest poet that ever wrote. We modestly hinted that we preferred according that distinguished position to Shakespeare, upon which, with an unaffected laugh at our simplicity, she cried; 'Why Shakespeare wasn't a poet his plays don't Rhyme.—Toledo Blade.

Horrible! A Boy Killed by Dogs!—The Clevelander of the 31st ult. says that, on Saturday afternoon, a small boy abont eight years of age, a son of Mr. Whitehead, on Cedar street, was attacked by two large dogs, and so torn and mutilated, that he lived but a short time after he was found. The boy had been sent to gather chips, in a vacant lot near by, and was accompanied by one of the dogs, (a stray and supposed to be a blood-hound,) which was joined by another dog; they were seen to be playing with the boy, and as is supposed, becoming enraged, attacked and mutilated him in the most shocking manner, as our informant states, tearing the flesh almost off his body. —Advertiser.

SANDWICH MARKET.

"Maple Leaf" Office, 3rd April, 1856

Flour Best warranted,	$ 8 00	$ 8 50
" 2nd quality	5 00	7 50
Buckwheat Flour,	2 00	4 00
Rye "	2 00	3 50
Timothy Seed,		4 00
Clover,		8 00
Corn Meal per 100	1 50	2 00
Corn per bushel, 56lbs.	0 51	0 00
Oats „ do 34lbs.	0 37½	0 00
Potatoes do	0 44	0 50
Wheat do 60lbs,	1 00	1 25
Barley do 48lbs,	0 75	0 00
Hay per Ton	10 00	12 00
Straw per load	1 50	2 00
Wood per cord (Hard)	2 00	0 00
do Mixed	1 50	0 00
Pork per 100lbs.	6 00	6 50
Beef " "	5 00	6 00

DETROIT MARKET.

Flour.	$5 00.
Wheat.	1 30.
Corn.	0 50.
Oats.	0 36.
Pork	6 50.

Detroit, 3rd April, 1856.

DIVISION COURTS FOR ESSEX.

1st. Sandwich Monday, 12th May, 1856.
2nd. Amherstburg, Saturday, 12th April.
3rd. Kingsville, Wednesday, 16th do.
4th. Colchester, Monday, 14th do.
5th. Mersea, Friday, 18th do.
6th. Simon's, Middle Road, Saturday, 17th, May
Sandwich 12th Feb. 1856.

NOTICE.

WILL be Sold by Public Auction at the Rosedale Mill, Township of Sandwich at 12 o'clock. noon, on Saturday the 16th inst. the following Work:—
Building a new Culvert
Making an Embankment.
Ditching and Grading a piece of Road
Plans and specifications to be seen at Mr. Bullock's Office, Sandwich.
THOS. WOODBRIDGE, Reeve.
April 10th 1856.

A RARE CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IS NOW OFFERED IN

B. RIVARD'S GRAND GIFT ENTERPRISE AND LOTTERY,

to take place at

SANDWICH,

ON THE 19th APRIL, 1856.

ALL PRIZES! NO BLANKS.

The following is a List of a few of the Prizes:

2 Shares in Sandwich Street Plank Road Company, worth	$60
A Glass Case,	40
A Burr Cooking Stove,	40
A Buggy Harness,	40
Trotting Waggon,	20
Double Barrel Gun,	20
Dress Coat (new)	18
Frock do	18
Single Barrel Gun,	15
Do do do,	15
Settee,	15
Pair of Curtains,	12
Lot of Dishes,	11
Six Shooter,	10
Box Stove,	10
20 Yards Carpet,	10
Eight Day Clock,	8
Do do	6
Looking Glass,	5
Pair of Shanghais,	5

Together with other articles amounting to FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

On the day of drawing, the holders of tickets will have the privilege of appointing a Committee to regulate the mode of drawing, &c., &c. If the tickets are not all sold by the day appointed for drawing, due notice will be given of the postponement in the "Maple Leaf."

Tickets, One Dollar Each.

TO BE LET FOR EIGHT YEARS,

A TWO STORY FRAME HOUSE with a Half-Acre Garden, on Lot No 4, East Side of Peter Street.

To be let subject to all Repairs and Taxes. A large reduction will be made to any person paying three years' rent in advance.

For further particulars enquire of
J. GREEN,
Great Western Boot and Shoe Store,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.
27th March, 1856.

N.B.—Possession will be given on the first of May next.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

County of Essex } By virtue of a writ to wit; } of fieri facias issued out of Court of Common Pleas at Toronto, to me directed, against the lands and tenements of Alfred Baby at the suit of James Olwell and Mathew Olwell, I have seized and taken in execution the following lands viz: water lot number three on the East, water lots numbers three, four, and fourteen on the west, and land and water lots numbers thirteen and sixteen on the north side of Sandwich Street, and Park Lots Nos. one and twelve, Field lot letter E, Village lots numbers nine and ten on the south side of Sandwich Street, lots numbers twenty-one and twenty-two, north side of Pitt Street, lots numbers one and two on the south side of Pitt Street, lots numbers eight and nine on the north side of Chatham Street, in Block C: lot number two on the south side of Chatham Street, lot number five on the north side of London Street, in Block E, lots three and four on the south side of London Street Block G, in the Village of Windsor in the County of Essex, forming part of the Town Plot of the said village, as laid out on the estate of the late François Baby, Esq., and lot number twenty-eight in the first Concession, Township of Maidstone, two hundred acres of land, all of which property I shall offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich on Saturday the twenty-eighth day of June next at twelve o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY.
Sheriff
Sheriffs office, Sandwich,
27th March.

BARTLEY AND PINNEY,

Provincial Land Surveyors, Civil and Topographical Engineers, Draughtsmen and Architects.

MAPS AND PLANS drawn in the first style. Estimates, Specifications, &c., of all kinds prepared at short notice. All work entrusted to us shall be executed with punctuality and despatch.

Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.
March 28, 1856. n51y

S. D. ELWOOD & CO., PUBLISHERS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN

BOOKS, STATIONERY,

AND ALL KINDS OF

PAPERS,

PRINTERS AND BINDERS STOCK

MANUFACTURERS OF

BLANK BOOKS

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

Orders for Lithographed Letter and Bill Heads, Maps, Drafts, Stock Certificates, &c., &c., &c.,

EXECUTED WITH PROMPTNESS.

192 Jefferson Avenue,

S. D. ELWOOD, } DETROIT.
J. C. PARSONS, }
Feb 29th, 1856.

Notice.

County of Essex, } Notice is hereby given to wit: } en that the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol delivery Assize and Nisi Prius, in and for the said County, will be held at the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, on Tuesday the twenty-second day of April next, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all Coroners, Justices, Gaolers, Bailiffs Constables, and all others in any way concerned are required to attend, to do and perform all those things which to their office belong and appertain.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.
Sheriff's Office, Sandwich, }
1st March, 1856. }

J. H. ALLISON,

IMPORTER OF IMPROVED

RAILROAD WATCHES.

Cased in beautiful styles warranted excellent time keepers: do. Swiss full jeweled Levers of every style.

GOLD PENS.

I continue manufacturing Pens of every desirable pattern; these Pens have received A SILVER MEDAL & DIPLOMA At the Michigan State Fair, and are not to be surpassed by any Pens in the market.

ALSO DEALER IN

FINE JEWELRY, SILVER WARE, AND FANCY GOODS.

I have an experienced Jeweller, capable of making New Work to order, SETTING STONES AND DIAMOND WORK, &C., FIRE GILDING AND GALVANIZING Done at Short Notice.

—o—

WATCH REPAIRING.

Being a Practical Workman, all work entrusted to my care will be carefully attended to.

GOLD PENS RE-POINTED

at 50 cents all sizes. Orders sent by mail, accompanied by cash, will be promptly attended to.

J. H. ALLISON,
No. 176 Jefferson Ave.
Feb. 29th, 1856.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

THE SANDWICH MILLINERY AND DRESS MAKIMG Establishment will be reopened for the season.

The Proprietor having just returned from the Eastern Cities with a Large Stock of Millinery and Dress Goods of the latest style and fashion, which he offers for sale at a small advance from their original Cost.

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE
L. P. ST. AMOUR.
Sandwich, Feb 29th, 1856.

NOTICE.

A BAY PONEY came in the barn yard on the "Hand's Farm," about the 1st February last, and unless the owner comes to claim the same and pay the charges, it will be impounded and sold.

Hand's Farm, 15th March, 1856.

CIGAR FACTORY.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the inhabitants of Amherstburg and vicinity that he has opened a Cigar Factory in the above Town, where every description of the choicest kind are always on hand. He has also lately imported from Havana a large quantity of the very best Principe and every other description of Cigars, which he intends to sell at a much smaller price than can be had in Detroit. Call and see him, and he will give a puff.

JOHN N. MILLER.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

TO RENT.

A DRUG STORE, with a large and well selected stock of Drugs and Medicines, in the Town of Sandwich. The Store will be leased for a term of years, and the Drugs and Medicines will be sold on reasonable terms. The selection cannot be surpassed in Upper Canada. Possession given on the first day of July next, if required. The present proprietor is about entering other business, which will prevent him attending to the Drug business, and which is the only reason for his retiring from he trade. For particulars inquire of

J. ADLEY.
Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

SIMPSON'S EATING SALOON.

MR. SIMPSON would inform the Gentlemen of Sandwich and vicinity that he is prepared at all hours to furnish "Hot Meals," and those who may favor his establishment with a call, can depend upon having, if they wish, a "steak" cooked in the good old English style, with all the little etceteras.

Dinner Parties accommodated upon the shortest notice.

N.B.—A few persons can be accommodated with good clean beds.

No 253 Jefferson Avenue Detroit Mich. few doors above the Theatre.

PAINT SHOP.

FRANCOIS PAYETTE having opened a Paint Shop in the Town of Sandwich, opposite the "Sandwich Exchange," will be happy to attend to the painting of houses, Graining, Glazing, Varnishing, and, in fact, every description of work in his line of business with despatch, and at moderate charges.

N.B.—Buggies and Carriages painted and varnished upon reasonable terms.

Sandwich, 9th March, 1856.

LANDS FOR SALE.

A SMALL FARM, being part of Lot No 37, in First Concession, Petite Cote, 40 acres, all under fence, two acres in width by twenty in depth. This lot is beautifully situated upon the road to Amherstburg, about three miles from Sandwich, it is well adapted for a residence.

Two Lots on Glengary Avenue, one house and lot on St. George's street, in the village of Windsor.

A number of Town Lots on the Pajot Farm, in the town of Sandwich.

Also part of lots Nos. 95 and 96, 1st and 2nd Con., half a mile above Windsor, two houses and barn thereon, containing 150 acres.

The above lots will be sold for cash, at the very lowest figure, and parties wishing to purchase for residences or speculation, will find this an opportunity which is not often afforded. Title Indisputable.

CHAS. F. LABADIE

All parties owing the subscriber are requested to settle forthwith, or having any claims against him are requested to present them without delay, as he is about winding up his business.

C. F. L
Sandwich April, 1856.

RETURN OF CONVICTIONS

For the COUNTY OF ESSEX, for the Quarter ending 1st April, 1856.

NAME OF PROSECUTOR.	NAME OF DEFENDANT.	NATURE OF CHARGE.	DATE OF CONVICTION.	NAME OF CONVICTING JUSTICE	Amount of Penalty, Fine or Damage.	Time when Paid, or to be Paid to said Justice.	To whom paid over by said Justice.	If not paid, why not and General Observations if any.
Harden Campbell,	Maria Chalton,	Assault,	31st Dec, 1855	A. Sidwill & J. G. Buchanan,	5s	15 days,	Township Treasurer
Eliza Thompson,	Thomas Sparks,	Assault and Battery.	4th January,	Thomas Woodbridge,	5s		Committed in default for 20 days.
Thomas Salmoni,	George McCoy,	Do	Do	John G. Buchanan,	30s and costs,	10 days,	County Treasurer
Moses Bezeau,	George Shapper,	Bo	24th	Thomas Woodbridge,	Costs,			Bound to keep the peace
Martin Strong,	Paschal Renaud,	Furious Driving,	26th	William Flanigan,	25s and costs		Township Treasurer
Benjamin Cunningham,	Martin Withers,	Assault,	26th	H Cuningham & F A Lafferty	2s 6d	26th January,	do
Harriet Washington,	Edward Moore,	Articles of the Peace,	26th	Thomas Wiodbridge,			Bound to keep the Peace. Pl'ff paid costs
	John B. Duvinier,				5s			Too poor, impris. 10 days.
	Matthew Moynahan, and				10s	Forthwith,	Township Treasurer
Leander Jolebois,	Thos. Haley,	Assault and Battery,	30th	Thomas Woodbridge,	10s	do	do
James Harkin,	Laurent Rabideau, Paul Rabideau, Charles Rabideau, and Mark Rabideau,	Articles of the Peace,	1st February,	Henry McKenny,				Recognizancesof the peace for 12 months.
James Harkin,	Mark Rabideau,	Assault,	2nd	De	25s	20 days,	Treas of Amherstb'g
Charles Rabideau,	James Harkin,	Assault and Battery,	7th	F A Lafferty & James Noble	5s			Appealed to Sessions.
Angus Hampstead,	Samuel Campbell,	Do	7th	Felix Lafferty,	10s	Forthwith,	Township Treasurer
Alexander Borrowman,	Jacob Hamilton,	Trespass,	7th	James Noble,	5s	do	do
Samuel Davy,	William Fines,	Assault and Battery,	17th	Cornelius R. Quick,	15s	2 weeks,	Treasurer	Not paid, left the country
James Foster,	James Dunn,	Articles of the Peace,	18th	Henry McKenny,			Recognizances of the Peace for 12 months
Henry Crosby,	Joseph Mulker,	Assault and Battery,	19th	Cornelius R. Quick,	10s	Forthwith,	Treasurer,	Paid
Dr. Campbell and Monroe Evans,	George Odit, Thomas Newcomb, George Sullivan, and David Knox,	Assault and Battery on the Sabbath day,	30th January,	Thomas Woodbridge,	£1 5s each	Forthwith,	Township Treasurer	15s unpaid
L. J. Fluett,	James Ward,	Assault,	26th February,	Do	10s	do	do	Costs paid by the Party.
H. McKenny,	P. Deslip,	Furious Driving on Highway	20th do	James Noble,	5s	do	do	Prosecutor paid costs immediately, parties set'ld
John Thayer,	John Camble,	Biting,	20th do	Ralph Foster,
Do	Oliver Wilkinson,	In the Fight holding Thayer's arm,	20th do	Ralph Foster,
Julia Crosby,	Josiah Fletcher,	Assault,	28th do	Cornelius R. Quick,	5s	Forthwith,	Treasurer,	Paid.
George Thompson,	Calvin O. Brown,	Do	29th do	Do	5s	2 weeks,	do	Paid.
James Harkin,	Laurent Rabideau,	Do	1st March,	Henry McKenny,	£2 fine, £1 8 costs	20 days,		Appealed to Qr. Sessions
Philip McGuire,	George K. Robinson,	Non-payment of Wages,	3rd do	F. A. Lafferty and Jas Noble	£7 1s 3d	9th March,	Not paid yet.	No distress to be found.
George Crawford,	Thomas Cotton,	Trespass,	4th do	Felix A. Lafferty,	1s	8 days,	Not yet paid.	To be imprisoned.
Ada Ratelle,	Leandre Beniteau,	Non-payment of Wages,	17th do	F. A. Lafferty & Thos. Boyles,	£1 15s	23rd March,		Appealed to Sessions.
Alexander Martial,	John Hutchins,	Trespass,	20th do	Cornelius R. Quick,				Dismissed.
Eliza Crayan,	Francis Crayan,	Assault,	22nd do	Thomas Salmoni,	£2 10s and costs	8 days,	Treasurer,	Not paid.
James Harkin,	Laurence Rabideau,	Do	28th do	T. Salmoni & J. G. Kolfage,				Dismissed.
James Harkin,	Michael Rabideau,	Do	28th do	do	5s and costs.	6 days,	Treasurer	Not paid.

I certify the foregoing to be a True and correct Return as taken from the several Returns of Convictions filed in this Office, for the Quarter ending April 1st, 1856

Office of the Clerk of the Peace, Sandwich, 8th April, 1856.
CHARLES BABY, CLERK PEACE ESSEX

Beacon

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE CO
of London.

Incorporated under Act of Imperial Parliament, 7 and 8 Vic., Chap. 1.

CANADA BOARD.
KINGSTON.

TRUSTEES.
The Hon John A Macdonald.
James Morton, Esquire.

DIRECTORS:
M. W. Strange, Esq., Chairman,
Thos. A. Corbett, Esq., Deputy Chairman.
James Morton, Esq. John Mowatt, Esq
James Harty, Esq. A. J Macdonell, Esq.
Lewis Walbridge, Esq. T. Clarkson, Esq.

MONTREAL.
Wm. Molson, Esq. Thomas Evans, Esq.
Damase Masson, Esquire,

This Company Insures all descriptions of Buildings, Manufactories, Mills, &c. and Goods or Furniture in the same, against loss or damage by fire, on liberal terms. All descriptions of Life Risks, taken at as low rates as are consistent with security to the assured. Losses promptly settled without reference to England.

ALEX. GORDON,
Agent at Windsor for Western Frontier
March 7, 1856.

LOTS FOR SALE IN THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.

PART of Lot No. 3: on the west side of Bedford Street, with a good Store thereon. Also, Lots 7 and 8, adjoining the residence of L. J. Fluett, Esquire, with dwelling house and stables. These Lots will be sold subject to incumbrances.

For particulars apply to
J. H. WILKINSON.
Att'y for J. A. Vervais.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

TO LET OR FOR SALE.

A Brick House and Lot, on No. 4, East side of Main Street, fronting "Mears' Hotel." The above property will be leased for $150 a year; or, for particulars of sale apply to

STANISLAUS LASALINE.
Sandwich, 20th March, 1856.

Sandwich and Windsor Stage.

BY JOHN LEWIS.

THE Proprietor of this popular line has added a new Stage and first-rate horses, and will hereafter run an Hourly Stage to Windsor with speed and punctuality. He hopes to merit the patronage of the public.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

New Tailoring ESTABLISHMENT.

THE Subscriber begs leave to notify the Public that he will carry on business in the building lately occupied by T. Murphy, opposite the Hennell Hotel, where he intends to carry on the Tailoring Business in all its branches, and hopes by strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage.

N. B.—He will receive the Report of Fashion monthly.

Cutting done to order.
W. T. BASSANDALE.
Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. &c. &c. AT THE REGULATOR.

THE Subscribers would invite the attention of their Friends and the Public generally to their new and complete Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c., &c., which they are now offering low for cash.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

N.B.—The highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all kinds of Produce.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1846.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, } BY virtue of a writ of TO WIT: } Fieria Facias issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex against the lands and Tenements of Alfred Baby, and to me directed, at the suit of Dennis Ouellette, I have seized and taken the following lands and tenements, viz.:

Water Lot number three on the East, and Water Lots numbers three, four and fourteen West, and Land and Water Lots numbers thirteen and sixteen, all on the North side of Sandwich Street in the Village of Windsor, and being part of the Town plot of Windsor, as laid out on the estate of the late Francis Baby, Esquire, all which property, or the interest of the said Alfred Baby in and to the same, I will offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Saturday the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, at 12 o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.
Sheriff's Office, Sandwich,
29th February, 1856.

New Livery Stable.

JOHN LEWIS, having purchased the Livery Stable in the Town of Sandwich, formerly kept by C. F. Labadie, will carry it on in a style that has never been known in this place before. Fresh horses and new carriages are being added to this establishment every day, and persons who patronise him may expect to be furnished with "Crack Teams."

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

Family Store

THE Subscriber keeps constantly on hand a large and well selected assortment of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware and Crockery,

at his old stand on Bedford Street, which he will sell, at a small advance upon cost, for Cash.

A large supply of the very best Flour always on hand.

Produce and Cord Wood bought and sold.

JOSEPH MILLER.
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

New Harness and Saddlery Establishment.

A. C. ELLIS.

Every description of LIGHT and FANCY BUGGY HARNESS, made in the most fashionable styles.

HEAVY HARNESSES constantly on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.

SADDLES of every description made to order on the shortest notice.

CARRIAGE and BUGGY TRIMMING done in a style not to be surpassed.

A large assortment of WHIPS always kept on hand.

In his Store, adjoining Mr Guillot's, will be found every description of Goods in his line of business. Every endeavor will be made to give entire satisfaction to his Customers.

N.B.—Cord Wood, Hides, and Produce wanted, for which the highest price will be given.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

NOTICE.

TO ALL IT MAY CONCERN.

ALL persons owing the subscriber are hereby notified that payment must be made on or before the 15th day of April next if they wish to save the costs of collection.

TO RENT.

The House and Premises in which the subscriber lives. Terms $24 per quarter payable in advance. Possession given on the first of May next.

GEORGE HANN.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

LOT No. Four, in the 4th Concession, Gosfield.

J. H. WILKINSON.
Sandwich. 29th February, 1856.

FOR SALE.

(ON TIME.)

AN Eighteen-Horse Power Engine and Boiler complete. Apply to

GEO. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

AGRICULTURE &c.

A New Food.

SUBSTITUTE FOR THE POTATOE.

Two correspondents have sent us accounts of the Chinese Yam or Japan pototoe, an excellent lately introduced into France, and also within the last year or two, into the United States. We believe a gentleman of this city imported a few roots last season, but whetherhe received them in time, or succeeded in reproducing them here, we have not learned. The following is furnished by a city subscriber, extracted we believe, from the Anglo-Saxon.

THE CHINESE YAM.

Attention, as all men know, has of late years been anxiously turned towards the discovery of a plant capable, in whole or in part, of forming a substitute for the precarious potatoe crop. Many have been suggested. The tuberous roots of the arracacha, the lesser calendule, and many more, have from time to time been brought into notice; but each in turn, when weighed in the balance of practical agriculture, has been found wanting.

The star of hope to which the eye of hungry Europe is now directed is an oriental yam, which the combined labors of the "alles" have suddenly brought forth from an inglorious obscurity of 6,000 years. Like the East and West Indian yams already known, it belongs to the genius Dioscorea —but is very different from those in its specific character. Mr. Decaisne's experiments lead to the conclusion that it would speedily become a plant of real agricultural importance in France; and professor Lindley sees no reason, judging from its geographical distribution, and its affinity to our bryony, which it much resembles—why it should not suit our climate.

The plant has large perennial rhizomes or roots, the top end of which are as thick as the fist, and which taper downwards to the thickness of the finger, descending perpendicularly to the depth of a yard, if the soil is loose enough to allow them. The haulm is annual, as thick as a goose quill, cylindrical, entwining from right to left, two yards in height, of a violet color, with small white specks; and when not artificially supported it trails on the ground, sending freely at the joints. In China, this plant has long been in extensive cultivation under the name of SATS-IS; and Mr. Montigny through whom it was introduced from Shanghai to Paris, reports it to be highly productive, and consumed as largely by Chinese as the potatoe is by Europeans.

As yet the applicability of the plant to Britain has not been practically demonstrated, but the French horticulturists, who have been at much pains to inquire into merits, have arrived at the following conclusions —1. That in the point of flavor and nutritive properties, it is equal to the potatoe and in the opinion of Professor Ducaisne superior.—2. That the yield is greater, whilst its freedom from disease renders the crop more certain.—3. That it will grow in any sandy, and what are usually considered barren soils; and this affords an excellent means of turning waste land to profit. 4. That it can be propagated with facility. 5. That it may remain in the ground several years without degenerating, but on the contrary, it increases in size, weight, and nutriment —furnishing at all seasons of the year an aliment within the reach of every one." 6. That when harvested it may be preserved in cellars or sheds, without vegetating, for many months after the potatoe has become useless for food. 7. It requires a shorter time for cooking than the potatoe, ten minutes boiling being sufficient.

Mr. Decaisne, in detailing his experiments observes: "If a new plant is to have a chance of becoming useful in rural economy it must fulfil certain conditions, in the absence of which its cultivation cannot be profitable. Now, the Chinese yam satisfies every one of these conditions. It has been domesticated from time immemorial; it is perfectly hardy in the climate of France; its root is fitted, in point of nutritive matter, estimable when raw, easily cooked either by boiling or roasting, and then having no other taste than that of flour (fecule). It is as much a ready-made bread as the potatoe, and is better than the batatas or sweet potatoe."

The system of cultivation recommended by Professor Lindley for Britain is the following, viz:—For propagation, that smallest roots are set apart, and pitted to keep them from frost. In the spring, they are taken out and placed in furrows, pretty near each other, in well prepared ground. They soon s rout and form prostrate stems, which are made into cuttings as soon as they are six feet long. As soon as cuttings are ready, a field is worked into ridges, along each of which is formed a small furrow in which the pieces of the stem are laid and then covered with a little earth, the leaves being left bare. If rainy weather follows, the cuttings strike immediately: if dry, they must be watered until they do strike. In fifteen or twenty days, the roots begin to form, and at the same time lateral branches appear, which are carefully removed from time to time, to facilitate the swelling of the roots. In general one plant produces two or three tubers (rhizomes) which are of a colour internally, but consist internally of a white, sealy, very friable, slightly milky, cellular mass, filled with flour which softens and dries in cooking it till acquires the taste and quality of a potatoe, "or which it might be mistaken"—possibly in taste, certainly not in appearance."

[To be Continued in our next.]

THOUGHTS AND WORDS.—It is much easier to think right without doing right, than to do right without thinking right. Just thoughts may, and wofully often do fail of producing just deeds; but just are sure to beget just thoughts. For when the heart is pure and straight, there is hardly anything which can mislead the understanding in matters of immediate personal concernment. But the clearest understanding can do little in purifying an impure heart, the strongest little in straightening a crooked one. You cannot reason or talk an Augean stable into cleanliness. A single day's work would make more progress in such a task than a century's words.—Hare.

"I he Mother's Breath is a blessing to a house," is said to be an Irish proverb. It is certainly a beautiful mode of expressing a great truth.

Hotels, &c.

HENNELL HOUSE,
LATE FREE MASON'S TAVERN,
Sandwich.

THIS House is pleasantly situated at the terminus of the New Gravel Road from Windsor to Sandwich, and possesses all the requisites which are generally met with in first class hotels—Good Beds, superior Stabling, and unimpeachable Liquors.

From the long experience of the present proprietor in this line of business, he is enabled to meet the wishes of his patrons, in every particular, with promptness; and he will make it his study so to treat his visitors, that they may leave him with perfect satisfaction, and return with pleasure future occasions.

WM. HENNELL.
Sandwich, Feb. 29th.

SANDWICH EXCHANGE,
BEDFORD STREET, SANDWICH.

JACOB STUTTZ

IN returning thanks for past favors, hops to inform the Public and his Friends that he still keeps on hand the best of everything to suit the taste and comfort of his customers, and trusts that by assiduity and attention to business, to merit their patronage and support.

N.B.—A Good Stable and Shed.

WESTERN HOPE,
BY CYRUS DOBSON.

THIS Hotel, adjoining the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, has been put in firstrate repair, and the Proprietor hopes that, by strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a share of public patronage.

N.B.—There is an excellent stable attached to the premises, and an attentive ostler will always be in attendance.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

THE COTTAGE INN,
BY ALEXANDER REAUME,

THE Proprietor having lately leased the above comfortable premises, and having thoroughly repaired and refurnished the same, will be happy to attend upon the trading public at all hours. A supply of old Jamaica Rum and Water will always be found at the Bar, with all other choice Liquors.

The COTTAGE INN has good and comfortable Stables attached.
ALEXANDER REAUME.
Anderdon, February 29th, 1856.

TRAVELLERS' HOME,
T. HALEY, PROPRIETOR,
(Formerly of Jylmer, Canada West.)

THIS House having been fitted up in the neatest and most comfortable style, the Proprietor hopes that, by keeping the choicest Liquors and a strict attention to business, to be able to give entire satisfaction to all who may give him a call. Attentive waiters and a well supplied table will always be found here.

Good Stabling and an attentive Ostler always in attendance.

N.B.—FRESH OYSTERS always on hand.

Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

PRINCE ALBERT HOTEL.

THIS Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Warner, has been thoroughly renovated, and will be kept well supplied with the very best liquors. An attentive man will always be in attendance to take charge of horses.

A private Parlor, for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen, has been fitted up.

F. X. TRUDELL,
Sandwich Street, Proprietor.
29th February, 1856.

BROOKER'S TAVERN.

WM. BROOKER is prepared to attend upon his Customers at his new and well-furnished house near the Canard Bridge, where the Traveller will have his wants attended to in regard to good liquors, and his friends may expect to find every accommodation as usual.

A supply of Groceries always kept on hand which will be sold very cheap.
Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROYAL EXCHANGE.

BEGS to announce to the Travelling Community, and Public in general, that he has opened the above new TAVERN, with good accommodations, and hopes by attention to his business, to merita share of public patronage. A choice selection of Groceries always on hand.

Maidstone Cross, February 29th, 1856.

MANSION HOUSE.

THIS new and commodious Inn is now completely finished, and the Proprietor hopes, that by a strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to receive a share of public patronage, which was so liberally awarded him at his old stand.

ALONZO BROWN,
Maidstone Cross, Proprietor.
7th March, 1856.

AMERICAN HOTEL,
COURT HOUSE SQUARE, LONDON, C. W.
ROBERT ARKELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and Travellers that he has taken the above Hotel, which has undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The house is in a fine open, airy and central situation, and commands a beautiful view of the valley of the Thames and surrounding country.

The Table is supplied with all the delicacies of the season. The Wines and Liquors will be of the best brands, and he trusts by assiduity and attention to the comfort of his guests to merit their patronage and support.

ROBERT ARKELL.
London, 29th Feb. 1856.

WARM HERE'S EXCHANGE,
AMHERSTBURG, C. W.

THE SUBSCRIBER has leased the "La Liberty Stand," second door above the Prince Albert Hotel, Murray Street, for a term of years, and has it repaired throughout, furnished with new furniture, bedding, &c., and now open for the accommodation of the travelling public, and by strict attention to business he hopes to receive a liberal share of the same.

HIS TABLE
will be well supplied with all the luxuries of the season.

HIS BAR
will always contain the choicest brands of Liquors.

His Stables and Shed are large and convenient.

Persons wishing good Board will find this a convenient place, being a central place of business.

CHARLES WARNER.
Amhersburg, March 14th, 1856.

INTERNATIONAL
SALOON.

Windsor, C.W., opposite the Depot of the Great Western Railway.

T. M. HOWRIGAN,
Proprietor.

The above Saloon is neatly and commodiously fitted up. the Proprietor having spared no expense for the purpose of rendering it attractive to visitors.

The best of Cigars, Wines and Liquors always on hand.
Windsor, Feb. 29th, 1856.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

COURTER HOUSE
Corner of Erie and Seneca Streets,
Nearly Opposite the Buffalo & N. Falls Railroad.
B. F. POPPLE, MANAGER.

VISITORS visiting the Courter House, Buffalo, will find every convenience and attention at reasonable charges. Teetotalers visiting Buffalo, will find this Hotel calculated to meet their wishes.
Buffalo, 29th Feb. 1856.

New Wholesale
GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT!

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and the Trade generally, that he has commenced business on his own account, in this City, as a

WHOLESALE GENERAL GROCER,

And is now receiving a large and carefully selected Stock of

GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, OILS, PAINTS, &c., &c., &c.

To which he confidently invites the attention of Western and City Merchants.

Premises, Jarvis Street West, opposite Messrs. McKeand, Bross & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods Warehouse.

A. I. McKENZIE.
Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TO BE SOLD
CHEAP FOR CASH,
The property of a person going to England, the following Real Property, viz:

FOUR Town Lots situated in the Town of Sandwich in the County of Essex enclosed in one block with a good Cottage, Stable, and a variety of choice grafted fruits, and a good well of water, being composed of Lots No. 13, 14, 15, and 16, on the East side of Russell street; also Water Lot No. 17, a good site for a Steam Mill; also Lot No. 16, on the West side of Bedford Street.

Lots No. 13 east half in 2nd Con., Rochester, 100 acres, also the East half of Lot No. 8, in 4th Con., Sandwich, 100 acres.

Enquire of George Bullock Esq. Sandwich.
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Beecher, Rice and Ketchum.

CARPET & OIL CLOTH WAREHOUSE,
No. 142 Jefferson Avenue.
Conant Block, Detroit, Michigan.

BEECHER, HOLLISTER & WILKINS.
Carpet Hall, Lake Street, Chicago, Importers of Carpets, Oil Cloths, Paper-hangings Curtain and Upholstery materials.

A. A. RICE, L. BEECHER, B. F. HOLLISTER
C. B. KETCHUM, D. WILKINS, JR.
Detroit, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TILES, TILES.

THE Public are respectfully informed that M. & J. H. WHITEHOUSE are Manufacturing and have on hand a large quantity of Tiles, for Draining Cellars, Farms, &c., at their Brick Yard, Westminster, two miles from London, and a quarter of a mile from Mr. J. Neild's Tavern. Also, on that estate on the Hamilton Road, which they will sell at the Low Price of £4 per 1000 with Sides or Bottoms, without 24 ½s. They will be found to be much cheaper than any other Material for Draining, as they facilitate greatly in the labor, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when the soil is moved never require removing. Samples may be seen and orders received at the Store of Mr. J. Neild, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also Roofing Tiles and Press Bricks for fronting Buildings of a superior quality.

London, Feb. 29th, 1856.

OPPOSITION.

To the Combination of Trade!!
J. W. JOHNSTON has just returned from New York, with a large and splendid stock of Gold and Diamond Jewelry, Diamond Rings and Breast Pins, Gold Watches, Lockets and Chains, Gold Pens and Pencils, Cuff Pins and Earrings; the Egyptian style just come in fashion, Pearl Earrings and Rings, Gold and Silver.

Gold and Silver Watches, Gold Thimbles; a fine assortment of Silver Ware, Tea and Table Spoons, Fruit and Butter Knives, Card Cases, Port Monies, Cake Baskets, English, French and German Fancy Goods, Pearl and Shell Card Cases, Port Monies of every description.

Ladies and Gentlemen's Dressing Cases, fine assortment Writing Desks, Pearl and Rosewood, Crosha fixins of all kinds.

COMBS.

Back, fine, coarse, and pockets combs, both horn and wood combs, the latest style of Bloomer Combs.

CLOCKS.

Clocks at $1.25, warranted good time pieces; prices at $2.50 each, a good deal less.

ENGLISH CUTLERY.

Bowie Knifes, Razors, and a very large stock of Pocket Cutlery. Revolving Pistols, Double and Single Barreled Guns. Yankee Notions and Gilt Jewelry.

A very large stock of Notions, country merchants and peddlers' attention is called to examine this stock, before purchasing elsewhere.

Pins, Needles, Thread, Buttons, Tape Bobbin, Carpet Bags, Umbrellas, Suspenders Tobacco Boxes, Hooks and Eyes, Whalebone, Feather Dusters, Horse Brushes, Shoe Brushes, Tooth and Clothing Brushes, Fiddles, Accordeons, Flutinis, Indian Beads and Rings, and Pins, Gilt and Plated Watches at two dollars a piece; in fact all sorts, from a needle to an anchor. Call anywhere, and try a tin pail; nothing charged for looking; call and see, two doors from Griswold street, on Jefferson avenue, opposite the U. S. Court Room.

J. W JOHNSTON.

MEETING OF PARLIAMENT

THE PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT assembled in Toronto, for the despatch of Business

On Friday 15th February

The Globe will contain a full report of the Debates made up each day to the hour of going to press; and will have the most reliable political intelligence at the earliest moment.

THE DAILY "GLOBE"

Will be sent four months for TWO DOLLARS.

THE TRI-WEEKLY "GLOBE"

Will be sent three months for ONE DOLLAR!

Orders should be sent in immediately so as to secure the Debates from the commencement of the Session.

GLOBE OFFICE,
Toronto, February 14, 1856.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens of every size, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who may boast the delightful of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove a valuable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded; together with its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and embellishment, renders it the most popular work of the kind in America.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, and published monthly, at the yearly, regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department: H. P. KNIGHT, JAMES SNOWDEN and D. W. RAY.

TERMS: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

N.B.— Newspapers inserting the above prospectus, and drawing attention editorially to the same, will be forwarded the ILLUSTRATED HORTICULTURIST for one year, a copy containing the advertisement should be sent in all cases to ensure attention.

Address
C. J. BEAGLES, Publisher,
Illustrated Horticulturist
208, BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

NEW VOLUME OF THE
AGRICULTURIST
SUBSCRIPTION REDUCED FROM
25 TO 50 PER CENT.

The Canadian Agriculturist

Has now reached the eighth volume, having been established by its present proprietor in 1848, and is too well known to the leading farmers of the Canadian Provinces, to need any eulogium from us. The undersigned have made arrangements with the proprietor to publish the next, and probably successive volumes, and have resolved to make important improvements in the work, while at the same time its price will be considerably reduced.

THE AGRICULTURIST

Is published Monthly, on good Paper, each number containing 32 pages, forming at the end of the year a handsome volume of 384 pages.

EVERY NUMBER WILL BE
Illustrated with Engravings

Such as Farm Implements, Portraits of Animals, designs of Farm Buildings, New Inventions, &c., &c., interesting to the Farmer, and portraits of some of the most Distinguished Agriculturists.

The Work will be conducted as usual by WILLIAM McDOUGALL, Esq., who has resumed the practice of Agriculture near this city. The active promoter of the various improvements made in our Agricultural Legislation since 1847, and having also been connected with this Journal from its commencement, he requires no recommendation from us.

PROFESSOR BUCKLAND, of the Toronto University, whose labors and writings in behalf of Canadian Agriculture are known and appreciated throughout the Province, will contribute to its columns as usual.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS

Of known ability have also been engaged. Efforts will be made to extend the correspondence on subjects of a practical kind.

THE AGRICULTURIST IS NOT LIABLE TO POSTAGE.

WIMAN & Co, Publishers
Toronto, March, 1856.

TO be published monthly, price half-a dollar per annum,

The Churchman's Friend,

For the diffusion of information relative to the Church of England, her Doctrine and Ordinances. Edited by Edward H. Dewar, M.A., Rector of Sandwich, assisted by other Clergymen.

Sandwich, March 15th, 1856.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN.

ELEVENTH YEAR.

SPLENDID ENGRAVINGS AND PRIZES.

THE Eleventh Annual Volume of this useful publication commences on the 17 day of September next.

The "SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN" is an Illustrated Periodical, devoted chiefly to the promulgation of information relating to the various Mechanic and Chemic Arts, Industrial Manufactures, Agriculture, Patents, Inventions Engineering, Millwork, and all interests which the light of PRACTICAL SCIENCE is calculated to advance.

Reports of U. S. Patents granted are also published every week, including Official Copies of all the Patent Claims, together with news and information upon Thousands of other Subjects.

The contributors to the Scientific American are among the most Eminent Scientific and practical men of the times. The Editorial Department is universally acknowledged to be distinguished, not only for the excellence and truthfulness of its discussions but for the fearlessness with which error is combated and false theories are exploded.

Mechanics, Inventors, Engineers Chemists, Manufacturers, Agriculturists, and People of every Profession if Life, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN to be of great value in their respective callings. Its counsels and suggestions will save them Hundreds of Dollars annually, besides affording them a continual source of knowledge. the experience of which is beyond pecuniary estimate.

The Scientific American is publi-hed once a week; every number contains eight large quarto pages, forming annually a complete and spendid volume, illustrated with several hundred original engravings.

Specimen copies sent gratis.

TERMS.—Single subscriptions, $2 a year or $1 for six months. Five copies for six months, $4: for a year, $8.

For further Club rates and for statement of the fourteen large Cash Prizes, offered by the publishers, see Scientific American.

Southern, Western and Canada money or Post Office Stamps, taken at par for sub scriptions.

Letters should be directed (post paid) to

MUNN & CO.
128 Fulton St. New York

Messrs Munn & Co. have been, for many years extensively engaged procuring patents for new inventions, and will advise inventors without charge in regard to the novelty of their improvements.

JUST PUBLISHED,

CANADA

PHYSICAL, Economic and Social, by Adam Lille, D.D. One Volume, 12mo, about 300 Pages. Maps of Canada East & West. Cloth 5s.; Stiff Covers 3s 9d.

MACLEAR & CO.,
Publishers, Toronto.

N.B.—Sent by Post to any part of North America or Europe, if desired.
Toronto, Feb. 29th, 1856.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

Hamilton and Toronto Branch.

ALTERATION OF TIME.

ON and after MONDAY NEXT, the 10th December, trains will run daily (Sundays excepted) between Hamilton and Toronto, as follows:

GOING WEST

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed Mail
	A M	P M	P M
Toronto, - -	8 00	3 20	10 00
Mimico, - -	8 10	3 30	10 15
Port Credit, -	8 25	3 45	10 30
Oakville, - -	8 43	4 03	10 53
Bronte, - -	8 55	4 15	11 15
Wellington Square,	9 10	4 30	11 35
Hamilton, - -	9 30	4 50	12 00

GOING EAST.

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed Mail
	A M	P M	A M
Hamilton, - -	10 40	6 10	3 10
Wellington Square,	11 00	6 30	3 35
Bronte, - -	11 15	6 45	3 55
Oakville, - -	11 27	7 00	4 15
Port Credit, -	11 45	7 20	4 35
Mimico, - -	12 00	7 35	4 50
Toronto, - -	12 15	7 50	5 05

The above Trains connect at Hamilton with Trains of Great Western Railway running in connection with Trains to Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, Boston, New York, and with Michigan Central Railroad Trains at Detroit for Chicago, St Louis, &c, &c.

The 3 20 Train from Toronto meets G W R Accommodation Train going West at Hamilton, for Preston Galt, Paris, London, and intermediate Stations

Through Tickets for any of the above places can be obtained at the Ticket Office, Toronto Station

Stages run daily between Oakville, Milton, Georgetown, &c, &c, &c.

C. J. BRYDGES,
Managing Director
Great Western Railway Offices,
Hamilton, 1858.

HIDES WANTED.

ANY Quantity of Hides will be taken in for the Sandwich Tannery at either of the Saddler's Shops in Sandwich or Windsor, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

JAS. WOODBRIDGE.
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Patent Medicines.

THE CHEST.

Sir Astley Cooper, Bart., M. D.,

THE eminent Medical Practitioner, has left a valuable legacy to the world in his Great Preventative of Consumption, and unfailing cure for Pulmonary Diseases, without the use of Medicine. Sir Astley Cooper, Bart., invented and advised the use of the

MEDICATED FUR CHEST PROTECTOR,

To all persons of all ages and conditions, as a certain and a safe shield against those fearful diseases, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs, Colds, and other afflictions of the Lungs, which arise from the exposed state of the Chest, according to fashion and the continual changes of our climate.

"The Protector" is simply a chemically prepared fur, lined with silk and padded, which suspended from the neck, covers the chest, in so agreeable a manner that, once worn it becomes a necessity and a comfort.

"The Protector," although but recently introduced into America is making rapid progress in the United States, the Canadas, South America, and the West Indies. It has for a long time been a staple article in England and on the continent of Europe while it has grown in many countries to the position of an article of dress.

To demonstrate these facts enquire of any English resident in your vicinity of his knowledge of the beneficial effects of wearing the Protector without recourse to doctoring of any kind.

The cost of wearing these articles is a mere trifle and one will last some years. No one who values the health of himself or his family will be without them. The Hospitals in this country are not alone recommending them. Harcourt, Bradley & Co., of London, and Manchester, England, were originally entrusted with the manufacture of the Protectors, by the lamented Dr. Cooper, and continue to manufacture according to his original instructions, and therefore recommend those who would wear "The Protectors," to see to their being genuine.

Remember this is a staple article and no Patent Medicine.

RETAIL PRICES.

Gent's Size, - -	$1,50 each.
Ladie's do. - -	1.00 do.
Boy's & Misses' do. -	75 do.

HARCOURT, BRADLEY & CO.,
28 Ann Street and 102 Nassau Street, New York U. S.

Principal Warehouse, 102 Wood Street, Cheapside, London, Manufactory, 44 Market Street, Manchester, England.

H. B. & Co. are establishing Depots for the sale of "The Protector" in all parts of America. Physicians, Surgeons, Druggists, Clothiers, Dry Goods Merchants, Hatters, and Milliners, also Gentleman's Furnishing Store-Keepers are entrusted with the wholesale and retail disposal of them, and to whom most liberal terms are offered for their enterprise, and a splendid opportunity opens for safe and profitable business.

For terms, apply to

HARCOURT, BRADLEY & CO.,
38, Ann Street, New York.

DR. VERVAIS
Pulmonic Syrup,
A NEW PREPARATION OF
COD LIVER OIL SYRUP,
FOR THE CURE OF
COLDS, CATARRH, ASTHMA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, AND ALL DISEASES OF THE LUNGS.

SINCE so many excellent Medicines have been offered to the Public, and by excellent physicans, it might be thought superfluous on my part to offer any New PREPARATION. But from many years experience and practice, both in the Laboratory and with my patients, I find that the Syrup of my preparation is the best that has yet been offered to the public. The Chemical Composition is such that the disagreeable taste is removed without in the least diminishing the virtues of the Oil. It can be taken with perfect safety in all cases, and at all times without injuring the constitution. And its properties are so remarkable as instantantaneously to remove the nervous irritability of the Lungs, soften the Gluid, and remove the dryness of the Throat and the soreness of Lungs with which the passage of the Lungs are affected. It diffuses a gentle warmth throughout the system, secures a free circulation of the blood, and opens every pore of the skin,—thus giving universal egress to the impurities which all systems engender, and which are the true origin of nearly all the diseases to which the human race is liable. Too much cannot be said in favor of a Medicine which will restore the languishing and dying patient from a death-bed to the best health, and make him enjoy the real blessing of a healthy existence. We have now the radical cure, "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup," which I not only recommend, but WARRANT IT TO CURE the diseases for which it is made, if the patient perseveres in the use of it for a few weeks or two. The most ample experience justifies the Proprietor in speaking so candidly and confidently of the discovery, when Patients who have been suffering from severe cough, whooping-cough, colds and catarrhal affections, have with the use of a few bottles, not only been restored to their accustomed health, but even felt their constitution stronger than for many years previous. All persons who have once used this Medicine have instantly ordered more for the use of themselves and friends. The Proprietor again warrants his preparation to be everything he claims for it; and he only asks the favor of a single bottle to convince every one that it is without doubt or hesitation the most palatable, speedy, and efficacious Medicine ever made use of in America. He has especially devoted 12 years to the preparation of such Medicines, and in at last hail with pleasure and delight this wonderful preparation of the only efficacious Remedy for the cure of nearly all Diseases of the Lungs, particularly Fevers, Night Sweats, Dyspnea, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all Pains in the Chest, only further to add that this Cough Syrup has not been extended beyond my own practice, or a prescription until astonishing success attended its use in removing the diseases for which I recommended it. It became popular, and was called for so frequently that I found it necessary to prepare it in large quantities to meet the constant demand for it. Since this Medicine is carefully and skillfully compounded by myself, who am thoroughly acquainted with the medicinal properties and effects of each article separately and of the combined influence when chemically united, and have also a perfect knowledge of the human system, and of the functions of each organ both in its healthy and diseased condition, I can therefore recommend this preparation with the greatest confidence, and am therefore fully persuaded from many years experience that it will give a Universal Satisfaction; but, at the same time, I do not pretend to assert, as medicines are generally foisted up to the eyes of the public, that it is a "Cure-All," nor that it is, under all circumstances, absolutely indelible. Yet I can truly say that I am successful in my chemical composition that not as well for a tonic—expectorant in chronic cough and catarrhal affection of debilitated habits, to re-establish a healthy condition of the secretory organs, to promote the dissolution of the deposite, and to give strength to the system—and to allay irritability of the mucous so in allaying the irritability of the muscular fibres of the bronchial tubes of the lungs and the spasmodic contraction of these tubes in the asthmatic patient, or in any case of dyspnea (tightness of breathing). Consumption which is the result of neglected cough, I have no hesitation in saying that my Syrup, not only has the effect of facilitating the expectoration and giving rest, but being very nutritive in itself.

This virtue should draw the attention of the sufferer. There is no medicine which acts so quickly on the respiratory organs as this "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup," I assure it is received into the circulation, and determined to the lungs. The effects of the Syrup have been so successful in removing the various diseases for which I have severally recommended it, that I hereby assure the public that they may rely on its virtues to use or recommend it; as it will, in a far greater degree, perform all that is stated in the directions accompanying the Article.

Dose for a growing up person, one teaspoonful four or five times a day.—A child of eight to twelve years, half a teaspoonful three times a day—one dose to suit ages of age, twenty drops three or four times a day.

AYER'S
PILLS
Are curing the Sick to an extent never before known of any Medicine.

INVALIDS, READ AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

JULES HAUEL, Esq., the well known perfumer, of Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, whose choice products are found in almost every toilet, writes:

"I am happy to say of your CATHARTIC PILLS, that I have found them to be perfect family medicine, for common use, than any other I have ever known. In the many families to have realized marked benefits from them, and no one of my family has required any medicine, but received virtues for driving out diseases and curing the sick. They are mild in their operation, and certain in their action—qualities which must make them valued by the public. Use my name as you please."

The venerable Chancellor WARDLAW writes from Barbadoes:

"DR. J. C. AYER:—SIR: I have taken your Pills with great benefit, for the last twenty years, for Liver Complaint, and Bilious headache, which has of late years overtaken me in the morning. A few doses of your PILLS assure it never consent to be, while my means will procure them."

The widely renowned S. S. STEVENS, D. D., of Waterbury, Ct., says:

"Having used your CATHARTIC PILLS in my practice, I certify them to be an excellent cathartic for the purposes they revive. In cases of disordered functions of the liver, causing headache, indigestion, and worse diseases, and the long train of diseases that follow, they are a surer remedy than any other. In all cases requiring a cathartic they are to be preferred. I confidently recommend these Pills to the public, at they have proved to me. I have used them in my family and in their operations, and perfectly safe—qualities which make them an invaluable article of use. I have had, for many years known your Cherry Pectoral as the best and most reliable remedy in the world; and these Pills are little inferior to that admirable preparation for the restoration of disease."

"Salem, Mo., Nov. 25, 1853.

"DR. J. C. AYER—DEAR SIR: I have been afflicted from my birth with scrofula in its worst form, and now, after twenty years' trial, and a variety of medicines used, which have been completely cured in a few weeks by your PILLS. What feelings of rejoicing I write can only be imagined when you realize what I have suffered, and long for.

"Never until now have I been free from this loathsome disease in some shape. At times it attacked my eyes, and I was for months entirely blind; then my limbs and body; at others it settled in the scalp of my head, and destroyed my hair. I have been for years entirely bald on the top of my head; it came out in my face, and kept it for months a raw sore. Your PILLS have cured me, and restored to me my once fine Martic Pile, and now am entirely free from the complaint. My wife, as well as myself, is fat, and well, and we are announced a healthy growth; all of which makes me feel like a new person.

"Hoping this statement may be the means of conveying information that will do good to others, I am, with every sentiment of gratitude, Yours, &c.,

MARIA RICKER."

"I have known the above named Maria Ricker from her childhood, and believe the statement to be correct.

ANDREW J. MESERVE,
Overseer of the Plaster Mill Manufacturing Co."

CAPT. JOEL PRATT, of the ship Martic, writes from Calcutta, April, 1854:

"Your Pills have cured me from a bilious attack which had left the derangement of the Liver, which had become very serious. I had tried in vain for relief from every remedy I could try; but a few doses of your Pills made a perfect cure of me. I have since given them to my children for worms, with the best of effect, and they never fail to cure. I recommend them to a friend for costiveness, which had troubled him for many years, and he says he has not seen the day but once. You make the best medicine in the world; and I am free to say so."

Read this from the distinguished Solicitor of the Supreme Court, before building dislikes have made him well known, not only in the State but in the neighborhood:

"New Orleans, 5th April, 1854.

"SIR: I have great pleasure in informing you that myself and family have been very much benefited by your CATHARTIC PILLS. We were afflicted, for a long time, with severe and dangerous cough, by your CHERRY PECTORAL, which we have always found to be a safe remedy. Some have several times been cured from attacks of the influenza and Croup by it. But your PILLS have relieved these complaints. Your CATHARTIC PILLS have entirely cured me from a dyspepsia of long standing, and which is grown upon me for some years,—indeed, the cure is almost miraculous. My wife has been relieved of her first child by the timely use of your PILLS. Your PILLS have relieved our children entirely to the relief of your CATHARTIC PILLS. Yours with great respect,

C. H. METCALFE."

The above are all from persons who are well known where they reside, and who would not make these statements without a thorough conviction that they were true.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass.

GEO. and G. A. BULLOCK, and J. A. VERVAIS, Sandwich;
P. OULLETTE, Windsor:
And every Druggist and Merchant in Canada.

MAPLE LEAF.

"PROGRESS."

VOL. I. SANDWICH, C. W., FRIDAY, APRIL 18, 1856. NO. 8.

THE MAPLE LEAF,

IS PUBLISHED

Every Friday Morning,

BY

J. H. WILKINSON,

BEDFORD STREET,

Sandwich, Canada West.

TERMS:—Eight shillings and ninepence Cy, per annum, if paid in advance; or Ten Shillings at the end of the year.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Six lines or under, first insertion, 2s 6d, cy
Each subsequent insertion, . . 0 7½

Advertisements over six lines, 6d per line for the first insertion, and one penny per line for every subsequent insertion. A liberal discount made to Merchants and others who advertise by the year.

Advertisements sent in for insertion without written directions, will be continued till forbid and the usual rates charged.

CLUBS.

Any person procuring 10 subscribers will be entitled to a copy gratis. Payment to be made in advance.

The JOB OFFICE connected with the "MAPLE LEAF" is in every respect complete for the dispatch of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

Professional Cards.

Mr. William Johnson,
Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c., &c.
Sandwich, C. W.

Mr. Charles Baby,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, &c.
Office, Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. J. H. Wilkinson.
Law, Chancery, Conveyancing, and Land Agency Office,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. Louis J. Fluett,
Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, Conveyancer and Land Agent,
Sandwich.

Mr. S. S. Macdonell,
Barrister, Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, &c., &c.
Windsor, C. W.

Mr. John O'Connor, Jun.,
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c.,
Windsor, C. W.

Charles Eugene Casgrain, M.D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Office and Residence, opposite the "Mear's Hotel,"
Sandwich, Canada West.

Dr. Reynolds,
Physician and Surgeon,
Amherstburg.

John Adley,
Physician and Surgeon, &c.,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

ALEXANDER GORDON,
NOTARY PUBLIC AND INSURANCE AGENT
Sandwich & Windsor, Canada West.

John McCrae,
Auctioneer, Insurance and General Agent
Windsor, Canada West.

Bank of Upper Canada Agency,
Windsor, Canada West.
Office Hours, 10, A.M., to 3, P.M.

Philip S. Donnelly,
Provincial Land Surveyor, &c.,
Moore, County of Lambton.

P. Marentette,
Gunsmith and Manufacturer of Guns.
Every description of Fire-arms repair.d at his shop, on Bedford Street,
Sandwich.

L. P. St. Amour,
IMPORTER, AND WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS
CROCKERY, HARDWARE,
PERFUMERY, &c.
Sandwich, Canada West.

Sandwich Post Office.
Open daily, from Nine till Twelve, A.M., and from half-past Twelve till Five, P.M.
P. H. MORIN, Post Master.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware
Crockery, Boots & Shoes
&c. &c. &c.
Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich.

LAFFERTY & JONES,
AUCTIONEERS AND APPRAISERS,
Amherstburg, Canada West.

Bartley and Pinney.
PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.
Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.

MR. JAS. WOODBRIDGE, JUN.,
Division Court Agent, and General Agent for Collecting Debts.
Sandwich, Canada West.

S. D. ELWOOD & CO.,
PUBLISHERS,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
BOOKS, STATIONERY,
AND ALL KINDS OF
PAPERS,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS STOCK
MANUFACTURERS OF
BLANK BOOKS
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.
Orders for Lithographed Letter and Bill Heads, Maps, Drafts, Stock Certificates, &c., &c., &c.,
EXECUTED WITH PROMPTNESS.
192 Jefferson Avenue,
S. D. ELWOOD, } DETROIT.
J. C. PARSONS, }

WILLIAM SWIFT,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
IS prepared to attend upon the Gentlemen of Amherstburg in his line of business, and is not afraid to assert that no will cut and Fit in the latest and most fashionable Styles as well as any Tailor west of London.
Amherstburg, Feb. 29th, 1856.

George Hann,
DEALER IN FURS AND SKINS.
The highest price paid for Shipping Furs at his Fur Store in the Town of Sandwich.
15th March, 1856.

NIAGARA
MUTUAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.
GEORGE BULLOCK, Local Agent for the Townships of Sandwich, Maidstone, Rochester and Tilbury West; also the Village of Windsor. Address, Sandwich Post Office.

ROSE DALE MILLS,
THE highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Rye, Corn, or Buck Wheat, either at the Mills or at the Store of
GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

JAMES JESSOP,
CARPENTER & JOINER,
WILL always be on hand to attend to the erection of Building, and every description of Carpenter and Joiner work upon the shortest notice.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WARNER'S EXCHANGE,
AMHERSTBURG, C. W.
CHARLES WARNER, PROPRIETOR
SANDWICH EXCHANGE,
Sandwich, C. W.,
JACOB STUTTZ, PROPRIETOR.

SIMPSON'S EATING SALOON.
MR. SIMPSON would inform the Gentlemen of Sandwich and vicinity that he is prepared at all hours to furnish "Hot Meals," and those who may favor his establishment with a call, can depend upon having, if they wish, a "steak" cooked in the good old English style, with all the little etceteras.
Dinner Parties accommodated upon the shortest notice.
N.B.—A few persons can be accomodoted with good clean beds.
No 253 Jefferson Avenue Detroit Mich. few doors above the Theatre.

NEW LIVERY STABLE.
JOHN LEWIS, having purchased the Livery Stable in the Town of Sandwich, formerly kept by C. F. Labadie, will carry it on in a style that has never been known in this place before. Fresh horses and new carriages are being added to this establishment every day, and persons who patronise him may expect to be furnished with "Crack Teams."

PAINT SHOP.
FRANCOIS PAYETTE having opened a Paint Shop in the Town of Sandwich, opposite the "Sandwich Exchange," will be happy to attend to the painting of houses, Graining, Glazing, Varnishing, and, in fact, every description of work in his line of business with despatch, and at moderate charges.
N.B.—Buggies and Carriages painted and varnished upon reasonable terms.

Poetry.

I WAIT FOR THEE.

The hearth is swept—the fire is bright,
The kettle sings for thee,
The cloth is spread—the lamp is bright,
The white cakes smoke in napkins white,
And now I wait for thee.

Come, come love, home, thy task is done;
The clock ticks listeningly,
The blinds are shut—the curtain down,
The warm chair to the fireside drawn,
The boy is on my knee.

Come home, love, home, his deep, fond eye,
Looks around him wistfully,
And when the whispering winds go by,
As if thy welcome step was nigh,
He crows exultingly.

In vain—he finds the welcome vain,
And turns his glance on mine,
So earnestly, that yet again
His form unto my heart I strain,
That glance is so like thine.

Thy task is done, we miss thee here,
Where'er thy footsteps roam,
No heart will spread with kindly cheer,
No beating heart, no listening ear,
Like those who wait thee home.

Ah, now along the crisp walk fast,
That well-known step doth come,
The bolt is drawn, the gate is past,
The babe is wild with joy at last,
A thousand welcomes home.

However it be, it seems to me,
'Tis only noble to be good;
Kind hearts are more than coronets,
And simple faith than Norman blood.
—TENNYSON

Cursed be the social wants
That sin against the strength of youth,
Cursed be the social lies
That warp us from the living truth;
Cursed be the sickly forms
That e'er from honest nature's rule,
And cursed be the gold that gilds
The straighten'd forehead of a fool.
—TENNYSON.

THE MILLER'S MAID.

A THRILLING STORY OF THE RHINE.

There is a lonely mill close beside the little hamlet of Udorf, near the Rhine shore, between the villages of Hersei and Ursel, on the left bank of the Boon. This mill is said to have been the scene of the following story:—

It was on Sunday morning, "ages long ago," that the miller of this mill and his whole family went forth to hear mass at the nearest church of the village of Hersei—The mill, which was also his residence, was left in charge of a servant girl named Hannchen, or Jenny, a stout-hearted lass, who had lived long in that capacity. An infant child, of an age unfit for church, was left in her charge likewise.

The girl was busily employed in preparing dinner for the return of the master and his family, when who should enter all of a sudden but a sweetheart of hers, named Henrich Bortelr. He was an idle, graceless fellow, whom the miller had forbidden the house, but whom Jenny, with the amiable perversity peculiar to her sex, only liked, perhaps, all the better because of this interdiction of acquaintance. She was glad to see him, and she told him so too; and although in the midst of the work, she not only got him something to eat at once, but also found time to sit down with him and have a gossip, while the pot boiled for the soup before him. As he ate, however, he let fall his knife.

"Pick that up, my lass," said he, in a joking way, to the good natured girl.

"Nay, Henrich," she replied, "your back should be more supple than mine, for you have less work to make it still. I labor all day long, and you do nothing: But never mind; I would go hard with me an' I refuse to do more than that for you, bad though you be."

This was spoken half sportively, and half in good earnest, for, kind-hearted as the girl was, and much as she liked the scapegrace, she was too honest and instrious herself to encourage and approve of idleness, and a suspicious course in any one else, however dear to her. She stooped down accordingly to pick up the knife. As she was in the act of rising, however, the treacherous villain drew a dagger from under his coat, and caught her by the nape of the neck, griping her throat firmly with his fingers to prevent her from screaming.

"Now, lass," he said, swearing a bad oath at the same time, "where's your master's money? Fill have it or your life, so take your choice."

The terrified girl would fain have parleyed with the ruffian, but he would hear nothing she would have to say.

"Master's money or your life, lass!" was all the answer he vouchsafed to her entreaties and adjurations; "choose at once, was the only alternative he offered her, 'the grave or the gold!"

She saw there was no mercy at his hands, and as she saw it, her native resolution awoke in her bosom. Like the generality of her sex, she was timid at trifles; a scratch was a subject of fear to her; a drop of blood caused her to faint; an unwonted sound filled her soul with fear in the night. But when her energies were aroused by an adequate cause, she proved, as her sex have ever done, that in courage, in endurance, in presence of mind, and in resources of emergency, she far surpassed the bravest and coolest men.

"Well, well, Henrich," she said resignedly, "what is to be must be; but if you take the money, I shall even go along with you.—This will be no home for me any more.—But cease your gripe of my neck a little—don't squeeze so hard; I can't move, you hold me so tight; if I cannot stir, you cannot get the money—that's clear, you know. Besides, time presses; and if it be done at all, it must be done quickly, as the family will shortly be back from Hersel."

The ruffian relaxed his grasp and finally let go his hold; her reasons were all cogent with his cupidity.

"Come, then, quick, quick, no delay; the money is in master's bed-room."

She tripped up stairs gaily as a lark: he followed closely at her heels; she led the way into her master's bed room, and pointed out the coffer in which the money was secreted.

"Here," she said, reaching an axe which lay in a corner of the room, "this will wrench it open at once, and while you are tying it up, I shall just step up stairs to my own apartment, and get a few things ready for our flight, as well as my own little savings for the last five years."

The ruffian was thrown off his guard by the openness and apparent anxiety to accompany him. Like all egotists, he deceived himself, when self-conceit was most certain to be his destruction.

"Go hasz," was all he said; the nut long.—This job will be done in a twinkling.

She disappeared at the words. He immediately broke open the chest, and was soon engaged in rummaging its contents.

As he was thus employed, however, absorbed in the contemplation of his prey and, eagerly occupied in securing it on his person, the brave-hearted girl stole down the stairs on tip-toe. Creeping softly along the passage, she speedily gained the door of the chamber unseen by him, and perhaps unheard. It was but the work of a moment for her to turn the key in the wards, and locked him in. This done, she rushed forth like one who flies for life, and gave the alarm.

"Fly! fly!" she shrieked to the child, her master's little boy, five years old, the only being in sight or sound of her; "fly! fly! to thy father! fly on your life! Tell him we shall be murdered if he hasten not back.—Fly! fly!"

The child, who was at play before the door, at once obeyed the energetic command of the brave girl, and sped as fast as his tiny legs would carry him on the road by which he knew his parents would return home.—Jenny cheered him on and inspired his little heart as he ran.

"Bless thee, boy! bless thee!" she exclaimed in the gladness of her heart; 'an' master arrives in time, I will offer up a taper on the altar of our blessed lady of Kronberg, by Boon."

She sat down on the stone bench by the mill door to ease her over excited spirit; and she wept at the thought of her happy deliverance.

"Thank God!" she ejaculated, 'thank God for our escape. Oh, the deadly villain! and I so fond of him too!"

A shrill whistle from the grated window of the chamber in which she had shut up the ruffian Henrich, caught her ear, and made her to start at once to her feet.

"Diether!" Diether!" she heard him shout, 'catch the child and come hither. I am fast. Come hither! Bring the boy here, and kill the girl!"

She hastily glanced up at the casement from where the imprisoned villain's hand beckoned to some one in the distance, and then looked after her infant emissary. The little messenger held on his way unharmed, however; and she thought to herself the ruffian was a false one raised to excite her fear and overcome her resolution. Just, however, as the child reached a hollow spot in the next field—the channel of a natural drain then dry with the heat of summer—she saw another ruffian start up from the bed of the drain, and catching him in his arms, hasten towards the mill in accordance with the directions of his accomplice. In a moment she perceived her danger, and a moment more she formed her future plan of proceeding. Retreating into the mill, she double-locked and bolted the door—the only apparent entrance to the edifice—every other means of obvious access to the interior being barred by means of strong iron gratings fixed against all the windows; and then took her post in the upper casement, determined to wait patiently either her master's return and her consequent delivery from that dangerous position, or her own death it it were inevitable.

"Never said she to herself, "never shall I have my master's house a prey to such villains, or permit his property to be carried off before my eyes by them while I have life strength to defend it.

She had barely time to secure herself within, when the ruffian from without, holding the helpless child in one hand, and a long sharp knife in the other, assailed the door with kicks, and curses, and imprecations of the most direful character.

"Confound thee," he cried applying the foulest epithets of which the free speaking Teutonic languages are so copious; "open the door, or I'll break it on ye!"

"If you can, you may," was all the noble girl replied; "God is greater than you, and in him I put my trust."

'Cut the brat's heart,' roared the imprisoned ruffian above; 'that will bring her to reason.'

Stout hearted as poor Hannchen was, she quailed at the cruel suggestion. For a moment her resolution wavered but it was only for a moment. She saw that her own death was certain if she admitted the assailant, and she knew that her master would be robbed. She had no reason to hope that the life of the infant would be spared by her compliance. It was to risk all against nothing. Like a discreet girl, she consequently held fast in her resolve to abide as she was while life remained, or until assistance should reach her.

'An' ye open not the door,' shouted the villain from without, accompanying his words with the vilest abuse and the fiercest imprecation. 'I'll hack this whelp to pieces with my knife, and then burn the mill over-head. 'Twill be a merry blaze, I trow.' 'I put my trust in God,' replied the dauntless girl: 'never shall you set your foot within these walls while I have life to prevent ye.'

The ruffian laid the infant on the sward as he sought for combustibles to execute his latter threat. In his search he espied, perhaps, the only possible clandestine entrance to the building. It was large aperture in the wall communicating with the great wheel and the other machinery of the mill, and was a point entirely unprotected, for the reason that the simple occupants had never supposed it feasible for any one to seek admission through so dangerous an inlet. Elated with his discovery, the ruffian returned to the infant and tying the hands and feet of the child, threw it on the ground even as a butcher would fling a lamb destined for the slaughter, to await his time for slaying. He then stole back to the aperture, by which he hoped to effect an entrance. All this was seen by the dauntless girl within.

In the meantime, her mind was busied with a thousand cogitations. She clearly perceived that no means would be left untried to effect an entrance, and she knew that on the exclusion of her foe, depended her own existence. A thought struck her —'It is Sunday,' said she to herself, 'the mill never works on the Sabbath; suppose I set it agoing now? It can be seen afar off; and haply my master or some of his neighbours, wondering at the sight, may hasten thither to know the cause. A lucky thought, she exclaimed; 'tis God sent it to me.

No sooner said than done. Being all her life accustomed to mill gear, it was but the work of a moment for her to set the machinery in motion. A brisk breeze, which sprung up as it were by the special interposition of Providence, at once set the sails flying. The arms of the huge engine turned round with fearful rapidity; the great wheel slowly revolved on its axle; the smaller gear turned and creaked and groaned accordingly as they came into action; the mill was in operation.

It was on that very instant that the ruffian Diether had succeeded in squeezing himself through the aperture in the wall, and getting safely lodged in the interior of the great drum-wheel. His dismay, however, was indescribable when he began to be whirled about with its rotation, and found that all his efforts to get a step to the powerful machinery which set it in motion or to extricate himself from his perilous situation, were fruitless. His cries were most appalling; his shrieks were truly fearful: his curses and imprecations were horrible to hear. Hannchen hastened to the spot, and saw him caught like a reptile, as he was, in his own trap. It need not be added that she did not liberate him. She knew that he would be more frightened than hurt if he kept within his rotary prison, and she knew, also, than unless he attempted to escape, there was no danger of his falling out of it, even though he were sensible and inanimate all the while. In the meantime the wheel went round and round with its steady, unceasing motion, and round and round went the the ruffian along with it, steadily and unceasingly too. In vain did he implore her to have pity on his hapless condition; in vain did he pray to all the powers of heaven, and adjure all the powers of hell to his aid. She would not hear nor heed him; and unheard and unheeded of them likewise, muttering curse, he was whirled round and round in the untiring wheel, until at last, feeling and perception failed him, and he saw and heard no more. He fell senseless on the bottom of the engine, and even then his inanimate body continued to be whirled round and round, as the brave girl, not daring to trust to appearances in connection with such a villian, and being therefore afraid to suspend the working of the machinery or stop the mill-gear and tackle from running at their fullest speed.

A loud knocking was shortly after heard, and she hastened thither. It was her master and family, accompanied by several of their neighbors. The unaccustomed appearance of the mill sails in swing on the Sabbath had, as she anticipated, attracted their attention, and they had hastened home from church for the purpose of ascertaining the cause of the phenomenon. The father bore his little boy in his arms; he had met the party whom the child was tied, but he was unable to obtain an account of the extraordinary circumstances that had occurred from the affrighted innocent. Hannchen, in a few words, told all; and the spirit that had sustained her so long and so well withthe emergency lasted, forsook her at once, as it passed away. She fell senseless into the arms of the miller's son, and was with difficulty removed.

The machinery of the mill was at once stopped, and the inanimate ruffian dragged forth from the great wheel. The other ruffian was brought down from his prison. Both were then bound and sent off to Boon, under a strong escort, and in due course came under the hands of the executioner.

It was not long till Hannchen became a bride; the bridegroom was the miller's son, who had loved her long, but with a passion previously unrequitted. They lived henceforward happily toget her for many years and died at a good old age, surrounded by a flourishing family. To the latest hour of her life, this true-hearted woman would shudder as she told the tale of danger and her deliverance.

LAUGHABLE STORY

The following story—we other true or false we cannot say—is the talk of a village in the parish of Halifax, in England. A certain woman felt her spouse an incumbrance, and resolved upon his disposal. She applied to the druggist of the village for sixpenny worth of arsenic; he very properly refused to sell her the article, and informed her husband of the application, at the same time inquiring of him for what purpose his wife could require such a quantity. The husband replied jocularly, that he could not tell, unless it was for the purpose of poisoning him, and told the druggist that if she applied again he must sell some harmless article in lieu of the arsenic and he would see what her objects were. She did apply again, and the wary appothecary delivered her some innocuous drinks, warning the husband of what had occurred. When he went home he found a meat pie for dinner. He pretended, at first, want of appetite, and invited his wife to help herself. She refused and at last he ate a quantity of the pie. In a little time he professed himself unwell, then feigned thirst, then alarming sickness, and finally death. The woman manifested great concern during these proceedings, but the instant death appeared to her to have occurred, she passed a rope through the chamber floor, and knit it to her supposed dead husband's neck in order that when neighbours were called in he might appear to have hanged himself. She then ran up stairs to draw up the rope. The instant she disappeared the dead man revived, released himself from the rope, and passed it round the leg of the table, and the woman hung that useful domestic article, instead of the other one—her husband. The latter also ran up stairs, inquiring of the faithless woman "what she was after, drawing the table up that way?" The affair has ended for the present in his taking the law into his own hands. He has given her "a right down good hiding."

Miscellany.

The number of convicts in the penitentiary at Kingston in 1855 was 707—656 males 14 females, and 6 military men. At the end of the year there were 557 convicts, 41 for Murder, 14 Manslaughter, 17 Rape and attempt at same, 28 for Felony, 21 for Forgery, 38 Horse stealing, 20 Robbery, 227 Larceny, and 80 for other crimes. Their nativity is as follows;—190 Irishmen, 182 Canadians, 80 Americans, 63 Englishmen, 23 Scotchmen, and 19 from 13 other countries, and their different religious belief—23 Roman Catholic, 189 Church of England, 59 Methodists, 41 Presbyterians, 15 Baptists, and 28 belonging to other denominations. There were 28 between the age of 12 and 16—20 between 16 and 20—201 between 20 and 35—and 160 between 35 and 75 years. 55 of the convicts were Teotallers, 108 moderate drinkers, 307 intemperate, 92 habitual drunkards, and 6 not reported. The whole expenses of the Penitentiary for 1855 were $55,153. 60 cts, and $37,700 were received for convict labor.—The average cost of each convict to the country is $121.—Post.

A singular episode in the business of Montreal occurred this Winter. The two extensive India Rubber factories, located in this city, entered into a competition so warm, that men's India Rubber shoes of good quality, were retailed in immense quantities at 50 cents a pair, and other sizes in proportion. It is said, that one house retailed about 10,000 pairs. The companies have, however, it is understood, made arrangements, by which this competition has ceased, and the prices, are henceforth to be kept just below the price at which importations could be made from the States.—Montreal Witness.

WHEAT.—Canadian Wheat is quoted in the Rochester markets at $1,75 per bushel, and Genesee at $1 to $1,25; before reciprocity the figures were very different. It is not a very small boast for us Canadians to be able to say our wheat stands before the far-famed and world-renowed Genesee, if it is only for one season.

STABBING AND ROBBERY.—A farmer, of the name of Stone, on leaving Elgie's Hotel about half past ten o'clock on Tuesday night last, was followed by two men, who, after a little conversation, asked him for his cash. Mr. Stone handed over a quarter, but the men insisted upon having more, and seizing him by the neck and arms, rifled his pockets of what they contained, which only happened to be about two dollars. On pretending to shoot them by a motion to draw a pistol, one of the robbers immediately stabbed Mr. Stone in the left breast, without, happily, inflicting any other than a flesh wound. The mystery of the affair is that Mr. Stone made no noise or alarm, but after receiving the stab, remonstrated with his assailants for having taken all his money from him, upon which they gave him back a quarter dollar, assuring him that they would not have stabbed him had he not feigned to shoot them. This seems to have satisfied Mr. Stone, for the night, at least, he having retired to bed without making those at the Hotel fully acquainted with this daring outrage. In the morning, his wound was dressed by a Surgeon, when it was discovered, that had the weapon entered an inch or two below, the stab would have been undoubtedly fatal. That such would have happened in our public streets, at so early an hour, is indeed alarming, and we trust the miscreants may be brought to justice in time to prevent, perhaps, worse consequences. The robbers, it is supposed, must have seen Mr. Stone change some money a short time before, and observing also that he was a little oblivious, were tempted to try their hands on him.—Barrie Advance.

GRAND TRUNK, (CANADA)

From the London Railway Times.
March 3, 1856.

The shares now stand at about fifty per cent, discount. About 3000 of these shares were sold under specific conditions some weeks back, for account of the contractors, with a stipulation that no further sales from the same source should be made during a stated period. It is reported that notwithstanding this arrangement, the market has been further supplied. Such circumstance is chiefly attributed the serious depreciation in the stock, upon the direction of which are men so eminent as Messers. Thomas Baring M. P., George Carr Glynn, M. P., Robert McCalmont, and the Solicitor General for Upper Canada. The market is now slightly firmer, owing to the rumour that in order to complete this Railway, which is of great importance to Canada, a guarantee may perhaps be granted by the Colonial Government.

FEMALE ON A BENDER.—A young lady from Philadelphia a few days since arrived in Petersburg, Va. in male attire. The Express gives the following account of the way she "went on" while there:

"She arrived in the city one day last week to all appearance a lad of some fifteen or sixteen summers, stopped a day or two, and in the meantime fell in with some extravagant young travelers, popped champagne with them, took snacks at the "Bower," and flew around in quite handsome style. Yesterday afternoon she was on the point of leaving in the Southern cars, when her father, who, having fortunately guessed her course, was in pursuit of her, and had just arrived by the Richmond train, found her seated in the smoking car of the Welden train, puffing away on a prime Havana, with her little tiny feet cocked up against the stove, and withal quite at home. On affectionate parent beholding his gentlemanly daughter thus metamorphosed, he was at loss to express himself, but finally managed to exclaim, 'da that you, Louisa?' To which the gallant runaway responded, 'This is me, father; oh! I'm so sorry I left you,' and she burst into tears. For the fair wanderer's sake we suppress names. It it needless to say they returned together.

THE WAY TO EMINENCE.—Long ago a little boy entered Harrow school. He was put into a class beyond his years, and in the meantime fell in with some extravagant young travelers, popped champagne with them, took snacks at the "Bower," and flew around in quite handsome style. Yesterday afternoon she was on the point of leaving in the Southern cars, when her father, who, having fortunately guessed her course, was in pursuit of her, and had just arrived by the Richmond train, found her seated in the smoking car of the Welden train, puffing away on a prime Havana, with her little tiny feet cocked up against the stove, and withal quite at home. On affectionate parent beholding his gentlemanly daughter thus metamorphosed, he was at loss to express himself, but finally managed to exclaim, 'da that you, Louisa?' To which the gallant runaway responded, 'This is me, father; oh! I'm so sorry I left you,' and she burst into tears. For the fair wanderer's sake we suppress names. It it needless to say they returned together.

THE WAY TO EMINENCE.—Long ago a little boy entered Harrow school. He was put into a class beyond his years, and was at the head of the school had the advantage of previous instruction, it was denied to him.—His master child him for his dullness, and all his efforts could not raise him from the lowest place on the form. But, nothing daunted, he procured the grammars and other elementary books which his classfellows had gone through in previous terms. He devoted the hours of play, and not a few of the hours of sleep, to the mastering of those; till, in a few weeks, he gradually began to rise, and it was not long before he shot ahead of all his companions, and became not only leader of the division, but the pride of Harrow. You may see the statue of that boy, whose career began with this fit of energetic applica ion, in St. Paul's cathedral; for he lived to be the greatest oriental scholar in modern Europe—it was Sir Wm. Jones.

When young scholars see the lofty pinnacle of attainment on which that name is now reposing, they feel as if it had been created there rather, than had traveled thither. No such thing. The most illustrious in the annals of philosophy, once knew no more than the most illiterate now do. And how did he arrive at his peerless dignity? By dint of diligence; by downright pains talking.—Life in Earnest.

"You bachelors ought to be taxed,' said a lady to a resolute evader of the noose matrimonial. 'I agree with you perfectly, ma'am,' was the reply, 'bachelorism certainly is a luxury.'

In choosing a friend, especially if you want a whole-souled one—look always at his under pinning—i. e. at the size of his feet. If these are large, you may be sure he don't stand upon trifles.

A SMILE.—An Indian chief, being asked his opinion of a cask of Madeira wine which had been presented to him, said he thought it was a juice extracted from women's tongues and lions' hearts, for after he had drank it he could talk for ever and fight for everybody.

SMART.—A countryman entered a daguerreotype saloon a few day since, and wished a daguerreotype of his uncle. 'I can do it, sir, but where is he?' 'Oh, he's dead!' was the simple reply, 'but I've got a description of him in an old passport.'

Mrs. Smithers says her husband was once the greatest military man in the country.—For two years he was lieutenant in the horse marines, after which he was promoted to a captaincy in a regular company of sappheads and minors.

Glimpse at the future of Canada.

In looking over our English papers by the As a we find in the British Banner, published in London, an article eulogising a limited Monarchy combining the three recognised forms—Monarchy, Aristocracy and Democracy—as the most perfect system of Government, and the best calculated to work efficiently and permanently. Looking at the past history of the world it will be found that the Monarchical form of Government constituted but short-lived exceptions. France exhibits a brilliant example of the triumph of Monarchy over Military despotism and Democracy—the present Monarch of France, notwithstanding the supposed predelection of the people of France to a Democratic Government, confidently appealed to the suffrages of the people, and was successfully greeted by the unanimous voice Vive la Empereur. The system adopted by our most gracious Sovereign, Queen Victoria, of visiting occasionally the different portions of her realm, and mingling with her her people is productive of impressing their minds, and interesting them more affectionately to the principles of Royalty. The writer in the Banner suggests the probability of a visit of Her Majesty to Canada—the importance of which can scarcely be over-estimated; and points out the present as the time 'when England's Queen could pay a visit, not only with Queenly grace but with great public advantage, to Canada. The Canadian Press, says the writer, last year urged "the propriety of an invitation from the Canadians to Her Majesty, praying a visit to her North American dominions. The spirit which promoted this is praisworthy, and there can be no doubt of the policy of its expression. It is no meet, however, that Her Majesty should cross the Atlantic upon an invitation. Let it be her own act and deed, that it may be an act of grace,—a voluntary, confiding, affectionate visit,—not a common-place compliance with a popular supplication. It admits of no doubt that the result of such a visit would be, beyond calculation, beneficial. It would impart life and joy through the whole of that vast region. It would be felt to be something more than a crowned compliment; would be viewed as a piece of maternal condescension,—a proof of deep interest in a territory which heretofore has been seen by no Royal eye. The assemblage of the Governors of the several Provinces, with the Representatives, or a portion of them, and the Magistrates of the land, would be a splendid sight; and the Addresses and Memorials which would accompany the proceedings, would operate most salutarily on the general mind. As the fountain of honour, moreover, Her Majesty might with great advantage, exert her prerogative in the way of Knighthood and Baronetcy, thus leaving behind permanent monumens of the Royal visit. Were the Queen, as had been suggested at the same time, to issue a free pardon towards rll the Exiles resulting from the Rebellion, it would be a deed for which multitudes would bless Her, and which, by restoring to their homes a large body of patriotic men, would greatly codtribute to the public weal.

As to the annexation of Canada to the United States, we need not say that such a step would increase the difficulties of any such measure; for we conceive, apart from the idea of a Royal visit, there are no tendenceis in hat direction. That Canada will one day be a distinct and independent kingdom is certain: it will follow, as a matter of course. Such independence will be alike for the good of Canada and of Great Britain. When that day shall arrive, who can tell but from the illustrious Family of Victoria may be selected the first Sovereign of Canada? What so graceful? What so graceful? What so calculated to cement the union of the two Countries?

In this day of Royal Visits, reciprocrated between European Thrones, we do trust it is not to much to expect that the Queen of England, with her Illustrious Consort, will one one day muster sufficient courage, and become the subject of sufficient curiosity, to say nothing of patriotism to pay a visit to a land which is destined, in the future, to reflect brilliancy and long the glory of England.—Woodstock Sentinel.

FIRES !

We have had a series of these unwelcome visitations in this neighbourhood during the week, some of them very destructive. The following are details of these calamities.

GALT.

On Friday night last, a fire broke out in the Stave Factory belonging to Messrs Attwood & Allan, and situated on the canal west of the Dam in this town. Upon the alarm being given, a crowd of people soon assembled, and by dint of hard work managed to get the fire completely under before the engine could be got into play. The loss to the proprietors of the Factory is trifling, and we believe is covered by insurance.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN PRESTON

On Thursday evening, 3d April, about 9 o'clock, an alarm of fire was given, when it was discovered that the roof of Mr. Charles Israel's Tavern and store was on fire, occasioned by the stove pipe. The fire Company was speedily on the spot and commenced to play with their Engine, but the building being frame the fire soon spread over the whole roof, it was therefore evident that the building could not be saved, and therefore preparations were made to save the adjoining buildings of Mr. Israel, viz: the wing and the barn, which both were connected with the main building. The shed roof between the Tavern and Barn was first cut down, while masses of snow were carried on to the roof of the wing, the fire hooks were applied, and in a short time the burning building was torn down, but not until the furniture and store goods had been carried out. By the energy of those assisting, both the Wing and Barn were saved and the fire subdued. Although water was very scarce by judicious management, it was accomplished to save part of the premises.

Mr. Israel suffers heavily, as he had not effected any insurance. Being an industrious man and an old inhabitant of Preston, he has the sympathy of the public, and no doubt will receive some aid to re-build.

DUNDAS.

The Foundry of Messrs Robert Holt & Co., here, had a narrow escape from destruction, by fire, on Monday morning. On the previous evening one of the workmen, it appears, had rather inconsiderately thrown a couple of shovels full of live coal upon that laying on the floor for use, and thus left it. The result was that the whole became ignited, and but for the timely discovery, must undoubtedly have led to the most serious consequences.

Fire in Paris.—Early on Sunday morning a fire broke out in a small building adjacent to the International Hotel, at the Depot, and extending itself westward soon wrapped the Hotel also in flames. There was fortunately but little wind, and no further mischief ensued. The "International" is entirely destroyed, as well as the house in which the fire originated. At the east end of the Hotel an apartment was appropriated to the Post Office; here, fortunately, everything was saved through the energetic exertions of Mr. Webb, the clerk in charge.—The greater portion of the household furniture of Mr. Chase, the proprietor of the Hotel, was also saved, and in pretty good order. Mr. Chase is insured; and so are the buildings. It has become evident, at one or two recent fires, that the municipal officers will find it necessary by inflicting fines to make a few examples of individuals who neglect to aid in extinguishing fires. It is as much a matter of surprise as of regret, that men can look on the work of destruction, and make no effort to mitigate the mischief.—Star.

Mr. Wm. Stockins' house, on the Town Line between Dumfries and Blenheim, was totally destroyed by fire on Friday last, entailing a loss on the proprietor of $1200.—Berlin Chronicle.

Fire in Otterville.—Just as we were going to press we received a letter from a friend in Otterville with details of a disastrous fire which occurred in that village on Monday last. It originated in the cabinet shop of C. S. Johnson, which was consumed together with a building occupied by C. Lewis, dentist. Loss on the former $2,000, the latter was insured for $400. The entire village narrowly escaped.—Woodstock Spirit.

A fire took place this morning, (Wednesday,) between two and three o'cock, on the south side of the Market Square, on the premises known as the old brewery, which was purchased a short time since by—— Tennyson, Esq., of Toronto; it consisted of a frame building, one story and a half high, occupied by Mr. Lamb, (in the employ of Messrs Scott & Fiskin,) who, we are sorry to say, has lost a considerable quantity of clothing, &c. We understand there was no insurance. The cause of the fire, as usual, is, the stove pipes were faulty.—Guelph Advocate.

Awful.—On the night of the 12th inst. the house of Mr. William Cunningham, in the Township of Esquesing, County of Halton, was totally destroyed by fire, and horrible to relate, the wife perished in the conflagration, nothing being afterwards found of her but a few bones and the heart!—When the fire was discovered the neighbors hurried to the spot, and found Cunningham inside the door, in a state of helpless intoxication. He was dragged out, and said his wife had gone to some of the neighbors, but she, poor woman, appears to have been unable to help herself for the same reason as her husband. An Inquest was held but nothing elicited further than the belief that both had been intoxicated at the time of the fire.

The Freshets.

We were visited on Tuesday last with the greatest calamity that has ever befallen our village. Last Monday and Tuesday, being very mild, the immense quantity of snow on the ground, south of the village, under the warm rays of the sun having melted, the creek passing through the village gradually rose on Tuesday, some three feet above its usual height. On Tuesday afternoon, at five o'clock, the body of water became so immense that Benson's Dam, gave way under the pressure, the water rushing with such velocity and in such large quantities, still steadily increasing, that in half an hour the bridge on King Street gave away with a tremendous crash. The large timbers from this bridge having come in contact with Mr. M. Brown's bakeshop, and a stable adjoining Jarvis' Hall, both were soon torn to pieces, destroying Mr. Brown's bakery and baking aparatus, together with a large quantity of flour, confectionary, bread, &c. A stable farther north containing two valuable horses belonging to Mr. Robt. McDonald, was next destroyed, the horses also being carried away by the current. One of the horses was saved, after having floated as far down the stream as the bridge crossing—Thames street, near Messrs. Dunn & Co's. Foundry, was demolished. The new bridge on Canterbury Street was also destroyed soon after.

The water at this time had rose eight or nine feet, inundating the lower portion of Messrs. Brett & Whittaker's tin shop, Mr. Mathews' Saloon, and Messrs. Campbell's and Buchanan's Shops adjoining, all on King Street. These buildings at one time were threatened with total destruction. As it is, the buildings for the most part are saved; but the contents are mostly destroyed, particularly the contents of Messrs. Brett & Whittaker's shop.

Messrs. McKenzie and Campbell proprietors of the Steam Planeing Machine on Charles Street, lost a large quantity of lumber—many others along the creek also lost considerable by the destruction of sheds, out-houses, &c.

At about half past six o'clock, when the excitement had reached its height, a report was spread through the vast assemblage congregated that a boy, in attempting to cross the creek on horseback, in rear of Murdock's shop, had fallen off the horse into the water, and carried down the stream. The people became much alarmed and excited, running in all directions, and asking all sorts of questions. At length the welcome announcement was made that the boy had been rescued, which was received by the crowd with three hearty cheers.

A large number of our citizens were engaged Wednesday and yesterday in removing the timber, cord-wood, lumber, &c., which had floated down the stream as far as the bridge crossing the River Thames, on Thames Street, which is the only bridge remaining, and which was several times threatened with destruction.

The loss by this calamity will fall heavily on the corporation, as well as on individuals. The following estimate may be relied on as being nearly correct:—

Estimated loss of the Corporation,		$3,000.
"	" Mr. Malcom Brown,	800
"	" Mr. Rob rt Mcdonald	400
"	" Mr. T. Jarvis	300
"	Messrs. Brett & Whittaker	400
"	Mr. Mathews (Saloon)	100
	Total.	$5,000.

The above are the principal sufferers.—We have, possibly, over estimated the loss of some, and under-estimated the loss of others; but it is impossible, at present, to give the exact figures. There are many others, whose losses range from $50 to $100.—Ingersoll Chronicle.

Public Dinner to Sir W. E. Logan.

(From the Globe)

The public complimentary dinner to Sir W. E. Logan, Vice-Provincial Geologist, and Chief Canadian Commissioner to the Paris Exhibition, came off on Saturday evening, as announced, in the St. Lawrence Hall. About 250 gentlemen sat down to dinner, at seven o'clock. The chief table was placed at the centre of the east side of the Hall; the chair being occupied by his Worship the Mayor of Toronto—having on his right His Excellency Sir E. Head, and on his left, the guest of the evening, Sir W. E. Logan. At the same table sat the other Commissioners—Alfred Perry, Esq., Charles Lindsey, Esq., and Professor Hunt; also, Hon. H. J. Boulton, Hon. Mr. Cartier, Hon. Mr. Spence, Hon. Judge Richards, Lieutenant-Colonel Irvine, Captain Retallack, R. L. Denison, Esq., and —— Murray, Esq.—Among the other gentlemen present, we observed the Hon. W. B. Robinson, M. P.P.; Hon. J. H. Cameron, M.P.P.; W. Patrick, Esq., M.P.P.; Honourable Inspector-General Cayley, M.P.P.; R. Bell, Esq., M.P.P.; Geo. Brown, Esq., M.P.P.; W. L. Mackenzie, Esq., M.P.P.; D. B. Stevenson, Esq., M.P.P.; Angus Morrison, Esq., M.P.P.; A. Rankin, Esq., M.P.P.; Hon. John Hamilton; G. W. Allan, Esq.; A. H. Armour, Esq.,; Baron de Rottenburg; W. McMaster, Esq.; L. Moffatt, Esq.; John Duggan, Esq.; George Desbarats, Esq.; Professor Buckland, Professor Chapman, Professor Wilson, Professor Cherriman; Rev. Dr. McCaul; F. C. Capreol, Esq.; D. L. Macpherson, Esq.; Thomas Worthington, Esq.; T. D. Harris, Esq.; John Cameron, Esq., Oliver Mowat, Esq.; B. Chamberlin, Esq.; E. G. Penny, Esq.; Rev. H. Hope; M. Hayes, Esq.; John Holland, Esq.; W. Langton, Esq.; D. B. Read, Esq.; John Harrington, Esq., C. S. Gzowski, Esq.; S. Fleming, Esq.; W. Sladden, Esq.; T. Brunskill, Esq.; F. H. Heward, Esq.; Rice Lewis Esq.; R. P. Crooks, Esq.; J. T. Kerby, Esq., &c., &c.

The entertainment was provided by Mr. Webb, and was served in a style that did him great credit.

Maule's Band was in attendance, and furnished excellent music. The hall was decorated with the flags of England and her allies, elegantly grouped.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

SANDWICH, APRIL 18, 1856.

THE NEW POLICE BILL.

The subject of the establishment of a general Police system through the Province has been pretty generally canvassed by the press, and the Bill for that purpose which is at present before Parliament appears to have as many advocates as opponents, although among the number that oppose the measure we find few if any who give anything like a good or sound reason against the establishment of a Provincial Police force. The only argument that we find which is brought to bear against it is, that such a system, if carried out, would tend to "sap the liberties of the people;" be a fraud upon our constitutional rights;" that the "measure would be arbitrary and tyrannical;" that a measure having for its object the suppression of crime and the keeping in awe of such characters who are disposed to disturb the peace of communities in which they reside, will certainly have a contrary effect to that which is asserted it will have by its opponents.

We are inclined to advocate the measure upon its own merits. It is not a measure which should be opposed or advocated from party purposes. Its effects will be very generally felt throughout the Province, and we feel assured that no measure has been introduced by the present Government which will become more popular, when it will have been thoroughly understood by the people.

The inhabitants upon the frontier have felt the want of some such organized police force as is contemplated by the present bill, more, perhaps than is felt in any other part of the Province. There are continually passing over from the neighboring States men whose only object is plunder, and with our present constabulary force are permitted to accomplish their object, and in many cases escape the penalty of the law from the inadequate and utterly useless system which at present exists. We could enumerate numbers of cases in support of the above, and the notorious Townsend, who for years committed the most barefaced robberies in a thickly settled country, was never arrested from the want of some established police force; and the gangs of horse-thieves which infest the frontier, and which have escaped the hand of the law, in many cases would be thoroughly rooted from the land under such a system.

We regard the Police bill now before Parliament as of the utmost importance, having for its object the peace and happiness of the subject, and involving the destruction of many crimes which, under the present system, are unable to be detected, and having a force which, at a few hours' warning, might be concentrated in order to suppress riots, which frequently occur upon the public works; and at this time, when numerous railway lines are being built, there is a double necessity for this bill becoming a law of the land.

SHRIEVALTY OF ESSEX.

This office has at length been filled, and the lot has fallen to our friend of the Windsor Herald—John McEwan, Esq.; and hereafter, instead of treating the public to spicy little articles through the columns of that journal, he will occasionally treat them to an article though more impressive, yet less agreeable, in the shape of "Summons," "Fi Fas," &c.

We wish him joy in his new office; and, from his long residence in the County, and knowledge of the people, the public, we have no doubt, will feel satisfied with the choice.

The River for the last few days has been completely filled with drifting ice. This is the first lake ice that has passed down in any quantity this spring, and we may expect in a few days to see navigation opened, as the ice appears to be very rotten, and altho' the river was filled, the ferry boats have not stopped running. The steamer Forrester made her first trip from Sarnia on Wednesday.

☞ We would call attention to the postponement of E. Rivard's Grand Lottery, which will be drawn on Tuesday, the 20th May next, as the tickets were not all sold, but will be, no doubt, by the postponed day.

The following communication from "Iota," upon the subject of our Grammar School, although agreeing in most respects with him, we do think that the fault of small attendance of children cannot be attributed to the want of ability of the present teacher, who is a classical scholar of no mean ability; and as to his fitness for teaching some of the children who attended his school at one time, we suppose he did not aspire to such a reputation, as most of the children were under six years, and he could hardly be called upon, as a Grammar School teacher, to teach children who should properly have been attending at the Common School. We hope with our correspondent that the Grammar School will not remain as a blot upon our fair fame long, but that the Trustees will bestir themselves in right good earnest to wipe the stain from the County, by inducing the County Council to take the matter up, and assist them in their good endeavors, by furnishing the needful,

To the Editor of the "Maple Leaf:

Sir,—We were much pleased with your pointed remarks, a few weeks ago, respecting the sad state of our County Grammar School, and we hope that the subject will not be allowed to rest until a reformation is effected. This school ought to be a model for others; a sort of "Normal School" for the County, in which young persons could receive a correct training as Common School Teachers. Good teachers are very much needed in this County. Our schools, with a few exceptions, are far from being in an efficient state of operation; and who can wonder, when there is such a ridiculous and shameful example where we ought to have a pattern? Our Grammar School is a disgrace to the County of Essex, and especially to the board of management. It is with them, as you have properly observed, that the great difficulty rests—the selfishness of some, and the inability and carelessness of others. These men ought to be called upon, by the Council who appointed them, "to give an account of their stewardship." They should do their duty or resign; and not play the "dog in the manger."

We see no reason in the supposition that the locality is unfavorable to prosperity. Sandwich being the county town, and a quiet, retired place, would be at once selected by disinterested parties as the best locality. The prosperity of our Grammar School will be secured as soon as proper means are employed for that end; not before. A new and more commodious school house is desirable; but, in our opinion, the reformation, in order to be thorough and lasting, should be commenced by getting a new teacher. With those who speak highly of the morals and education of our Grammar School Teacher we have no controversy. But the question is, has he natural abilities? Does he love to teach? and has he the art of getting his pupils to love to learn? Is his system and manner of instructing and correcting the most improved and popular? What we want is an earnest, enterprising, youth-loving, well-trained teacher from our Toronto Normal School, who would soon fill the old school-room with pupils, and then, as a matter of course, a better house would be provided. The £100 Government allowance will go far towards his support. His salary, however, is a secondary consideration. If he makes the school what it ought to be, he should be well paid for it. Hoping, sir, that you will continue to agitate the question until the board wake up and do their duty, I remain,

Yours respectfully,

Iota.

April 15th, 1856.

To the Editor of the "Maple Leaf:"

Dear Sir,—As a subscriber to your young and flourishing paper, may I take the liberty of asking you to furnish space in your issue of this week for the Colonist's report of Mr. Rankin's speech in the Duval case, which I enclose?

In seeking this favor at your hands, I am prompted no less by motives of friendship towards the Member for our County, whose character has been unjustly assailed in this matter, than from a love of fair play which every one in this free country is entitled to receive; the advocacy of which by your journal will I doubt not induce a favorable consideration to the subject of my request.

You will, Sir, I think, allow that a member of Parliament has as much right to freedom of opinion as a private individual: and, admitting this, I feel assured that you will not entertain the same remarkable views touching Mr. Rankin,s conduct on the occasion referred to, as those which some of your cotemporaries have on the garbled report, adopted by them, chosen to declare. It is no part of a friend to withhold wholesome advice from fear of giving offence, and I maintain that, although Mr. Rankin may have thought it necessary to pass some strictures on the indiscretion of the Ministry, on the particular occasion alluded to, while he voted with them in their extremity, he is no more fairly chargeable with inconsistency and violation of principle, than he who blames his friend for rash and inconsiderate conduct, yet does not refuse assistance to shield him from its consequences.

I pray your courtesy in this matter, and subscribe myself,

Dear Sir,

Your obedt Servt,

A Friend to Fair Play.

Mr. Rankin was quite satisfied that after the eloquent speeches which had been made by the two gentlemen who had preceded him he would cut but a poor figure. He had hitherto occupied a sort of nondescript position in the House. being neither a member of the Opposition, nor yet a decided supporter of the Ministry. However, in respect of the matter on debate, he desired to take an early opportunity of declaring his views. On one side, viz, by the mover of the motion for the address, we were told the course he had taken was quite constitutional, and then by the Attorney General East, the averse was affirmed. As to himself he had no great respect for precedents, but preferred viewing a question according to the dictates, of common justice. In the 19th century he hardly thought we were called upon to govern ourselves by old precedents. This was the age of telegraphs, railways and steamboats, and the inventors of these improvements upon old modes of progression and communication, had not been governed by precedents. When the hon. Mr. Cameron had made his motion he had accepted it as a very reasonable one under the circumstances, and he was still of that opinion, but it was not because it emanated from him, for he would have supported it if made by any other member. He believed in the sovereignty of the people, and no law could continue which was in opposition to public opinion; so, if the law were adverse to the motion, the sooner it was changed the better. If there was a law securing the independence of the Judges, and it placed them so high that they could not be asked a civil question, such a law should be repealed. He had wondered very much that such importance should have been attached to the motion, but then that was accounted for by the fact, that there was about fifty lawyers in the House, who evidently were desirous of exalting their profession to the highest pinnacle of earthly honor. Well, he was only a farmer, and could not pretend to see so clearly as these gentlemen into matters of law, but he thought he could see some way into common matters, and he thought that the demand of Government to have this motion rescinded, was a piece of very great presumption. No man was better disposed to support the Government, when he thought they were right, but he would never invariably follow them when, as in the present they were evidently wrong. Now, they came down and added injury to insult. They had insulted this House by refusing to present the address, and now they injured us, by asking us to undo what we had done.

Cries of Order! Order!

They had not presented the address, they had not obeyed their masters, for we were their masters, he was one of their masters, and as such he would always claim their respect. The Government were only the creatures of the people, and they could only expect to keep office so long as they obeyed the will of the people. They threatened to go to the country if they were defeated but he could not see that even if they were defeated upon this motion it would involve any such necessity. The fact was, they had not consulted their friends as they ought to have done, and if they had they would not have been in the position they now found themselves. But, perhaps they only resolved upon such a course within the last hour, and if so, perhaps they were excusable. If the Attorney General East had at first said that they were prepared to go into an investigation of the case, he had no doubt his hon. friend (Mr. Cameron) would have been perfectly willing to withdraw his motion. He formed no part of the hon. mover's part, it was true he had the highest respect for him, still his political views were so very different that he could not go with him on most of his measures. He had reconsidered his vote of Monday, and no consideration would make him change it. He had no wish to damage the Government, on the contrary, he was anxious they should keep their places and would think them as deserving of the severest censure if they abandoned their position. They had some important measures to put through, and he trusted they would not be so unfaithful to their trust as to leave them in their present condition. If they kept their places, as they could very well do, he would be prepared to move or second a vote of confidence in them, and would help them all he could to carry their measures. The country required these measures, and yet here was a whole month spent, and not one Bill had been passed, but the time had been spent in useless discussions.

Cries of yes, one Bill has been passed.

Mr. Rankin—Aye, an Indian squatter Bill. The hon. Attorney General East had said, that if the House wished to make an enquiry even into the conduct of the Judge, and would proceed in the proper way they would do so.

Mr. Cameron—No, no, the Attoney General had not said that.

Mr. Rankin—Well, he had said something equivalent.

Hon. Mr. Drummond explained that the Government were ready to institute an inquiry into the conduct of the Executive officers.

Mr. Rankin would repeat that, notwithstanding what had happened, or the vote that might be taken this evening, he had confidence in the ability, integrity and willingness of the ministry to discharge their duties. He did not think there were men among the opposition able to do better than the present Government, and therefore, he hoped they would keep their offices, and if they did, he thought they would be sustained by all those who hitherto had voted with them.

Legislative Assembly.

THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

The roll of members having been called, in was found that all were present except Messrs. Blanchet, Burton, Billa, Flint, Freeman, Larwill, MacNab, O'Farrell, Sydney Smith and Valois.

Hon. J. S. Macdonald then rose to submit a motion on the subject of the Seat of Government, and went over the leading arguments in favour of permanence. He was so tired of the perambulating system that, if it was not brought to an end to-night, he would vote for the Seat of Government being fixed permanently at whatever place they might be, when the perambulating system ceased. He begged to move—"That in the opinion of this house the present system of convening Parliament alternately at Toronto and Quebec should be discontinued."

Mr. Brown said.—I think my hon. friend from Glengary does not take a just view of this question. It appears to me we are not in a position at present to go to the consideration of fixing a permanent Seat of Government. We have but to look at the state of a great many very important public questions, I think, to come to the conclusion that it would be exceedingly inexpedient at this moment to take such a step, involving as it does, the immediate expenditure of a million of dollars. No one can look at the great topics now under discussion, and at the state of the public mind either in Upper or Lower Canada, without I think coming to the conclusion that the question whether the present Union can be carried on is still a matter of doubt. And, with the present demands on the finances of the country, and the instability of our present political state he considered it would be an act of great imprudence to expend £300,000," of which £225,000 would come out of the pockets of the people of Upper Canada, in erecting Parliament Buildings at Montreal. He moved in amendment:—

"That it is inexpedient to consider the question of a permanent Seat of Government during the present session."

Mr. Lorangr raised the point of order, whether a similar amendment, having been moved by Mr. Gamble when the question was formerly before the house, and negatived, it could again be put.

The Speaker said that after Mr. Gamble's motion was negatived, it was resolved that certain estimates should be pocured before further considering the question. Those estimates were now before the house, and might perhaps be considered by some members as sufficient to change their opinions as to the expediency or inexpdeiency of again considering the question this session. He threefore ruled that the amendment of the hon. member for Lambton was perfectly in order.

Mr. Loranger said the hon. member for Lambton had raised the absurd question of representation by population. When he chose to bring that question before the house, they were ready to meet him fairly, but he brought it in now as a side issue to get rid of the main question. He (Mr Loranger) repeated now what he had said in Quebec, that if a majority of this house was in favour of a permanent Seat of Government in Upper Canada, he would vote for Upper Canada. All he wanted was a permanent Seat wherever it might be. Wherever the maority of this house wished it placed he would vote for its being placed there.

Mr. Powell, in reference to the allusions made by the member for Lambton to the members for Ottawa district, said that those members were able to rise above petty local feelings, and would vote for permanent Seat of Government, whether, the majority of this house should decide for Ottawa or for some other place. He was astonished that the member for Lambton should have argued, as if the fabric of the Union was of so slight a nature, that its permanency depended on the question of the Seat of Government He believed that the Union rested on a much surer basis, and he hoped the house would not be frightened by any such bugbears raised by the member for Lambton.

Mr. Terrill had always previously given a silent vote, But he wished to state that he would vote for permanency because he considered this perambulating system was an abominable one, supported only by a selfish desire to share the spoils.

Mr. Gamble said, the question before the house, amounted simply to this, whether the Seat of Government should be permanently fixed at Montreal. But he would repeat the declaration of the hon member for Lamton that the people of Upper Canada would never consent to legislation being carried on in Lower Canada influences. (Hear hear.) To take such a step would be a death below to the Union.

Mr. Lyon argued in favour of a permanen Seat of Government, and expressed his opinion that the threatened danger to the Union was a mere bugbear. He could understand how the learned member for Toronto, who voted for Popish Institutions while in Quebec, and in Toronto was the advocate for strong Protestantism might raise an argument on account of the local influences of Lower Canada. But he could not understand how that argument should come from the member for Lambton and his friends, who had taken the same course in Quebec that they did in Toronto. For his own part he considered that of all places in Canada, Toronto was the one where there were the most influences at work interfering with fair and just legislation. (Oh! oh!) He would ratner go to Sandwich than legislate at Toronto.

Mr. Bowes said, the Government of this country should have assumed the decision of this question. One condition of the Union was, that Parliament should remain permanently in Upper Canada, and that Upper and Lower Canada should be represented by an equal number of members. He was not in favour at the present moment of Representation by Population, but should the Seat of Government be removed to Lower Canada, contrary to the arrangement under the Union, then he did not know but that he might say with the Attorney General East, that Upper Canadians would turn about for a new state of political existence. He hoped that hon. members for Lower Canada would keep faith Upper Canadians, and vote in favour of the present system until it has got such a permanent hold of the country that it could not be broken up.—He would vote therefore for the amendment of the hon. member for Lambton.

Hon. Mr. Drummond said, he was not in favour of Montreal being the permanent Seat, (hear, hear,) and let any man stand up and say he was not sincere in his choice.—His vote should be recorded in favour of a place which would be upon the line of Upper and Lower Canada, and the selection of which would tend to cement the Union, that was always his aim. He had never considered this as a local question, and he considered himself bound at this moment, in justice to the friends who had supported him upon this occasion, and the cause he was espousing, to come forward and say what site he would choose. It would be a place inhabited by French Canadians as well as other people, and in the heart of that valley which contained wealth much more abundant than that of California, if we only knew how to make use of it. He meant the Valley of the Ottawa, and St. Maurice. He would have the Seat of Government placed half way between the ocean and Lake Huron, upon that great highway which is to be made before long, and which is to conduct the teeming wealth of the West from Lake Huron to the seabord. The Valley of the Ottawa had always been tributary to the cities of Montreal and Quebec, and never to the United States. If the city of Ottawa was not to be carried by a majority, he would then vote for Montreal.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux replied to the hon. gentleman in French and said the hon. gentlemen had acted very unwisely in sending on to Montreal to know whether a less estimate could be had than £300,000.

Mr. Wilson had been surprised at the spectacle which the house had witnessed.—They found that the Attorney General East had so little confidence in the Hon. Commissioner for Public Works' estimate that he could not rely upon a statement which came from his department. (Hear hear.) If anything showed the weakness of the Government it was that. (Hear, hear,)

Mr. Larwill, in a very comical manner alluded to the useless expenditure caused by migratory Parliaments, but yet thought that the present system was about the best that could be had, and the expence must be borne by the country. ("Question, question.")

The Speaker then put Mr. Brown's Amendment, which was lost upon the following division:—Ayes 53, nayes 65.

Yeas—Messrs. Aikins, Alleyn, Biggar, Bowe, Brown, Cameron, Casault, Cauchon, Cayley, Chabot, Chapais, Chisholm, Christie, Clarke, Conger, Cook, Dionne, Evanturel, Fergusson, Foley, O. C. Fortier, Fournier, Frazer, Gamble, Gould, Hartman, Jackson, Larwill, Lemieux, Lumsden, Macbeth, Attorney General Mackenzie, Matheson, Meritt, J. C. Morrison, A Morrison, Munro, Niles Pouliot, Robinson, Roblin, Rolph, Solicitor General Ross, J. Ross Scatcherd Solicitor General Smith, J. Smith, Southwick, Spence, Stevenson, Wilson and Wright.—53.

Nays—Messrs. Bell, Bourassa, Brodeur, Bureau, Cartier, Church, Cooke, Crawford, Crysler, Daly C. Daoust, Jean B. Daoust, Darche, Delong, Desaulniers, DeWitt, Jean B. E. Dorion, A. A. Dorion, Dostaler, Attorney General Drummond, Dufresne, Egan, Felton, Ferres Ferrie, T. Fortier, Galt, Gill, Guevremont, Holton, Huot, Jobin, Labelle, Laberge, Laporte, Le Boutillier, Loranger, Lyon, J. S. Macdonald, R. McDonald, McCann, Marchildon, Masson, Mattice, Meagher, Mongenais, Papin Patrick, Poulin, Powell, Prevost, Price, Sanborn, Shaw, Somerville, Supple, Tache, Terrill, Thibaudeau, Turcotte, Whitney, Yeilding and Young—65.

The main motion was then put, and carried.

Mr. Macdonald (Glengary) then rose, congratulated house on the successful result of his motion, and said that it was now for the Government to dispose of the matter.

The house then adjourned.

ARRIVAL of the STEAMSHIP CAMBRIA.

(Per Montreal Telegraph Line)

Halifax, April 14, 2 p. m.

The royal mail steamship Cambria, from Liverpool, with dates to the 29th ult., arrived here en route for Boston to-day. She will be due at Boston on Tuesday, and her the Washington, but presents no feature of mail will probably reach New York the next day. Her new is three days later than that of decided news in regard to peace.

The difficulties alleged to have presented themselves in the Paris conference just prior to the Washington's departure are understood to have been removed, and it was confidently expected that the treaty of peace would be signed in a few days.

The Liverpool cotton market is quiet at about the same quotations as per Asia.—In breadstuffs there had been a general decline from prices of the previous Friday, more particularly in lower descriptions.—The fall in flour is equal to about 1s per bbl in wheat about 3d per bushel. In fine wheat a slight advance had been established. Corn was dull at decline advised by the Washington. The provision market was essentially unchanged. For lard there was improved demand at firmer rates.

The London money market was more stringent. Consols closed on Tuesday evening at 82⅝ a 92⅝.

ARRIVAL of the STEAMSHIP WASHINGTON.

New York, 14th, 8, a. m.

The Washington arrived at 7 o'clock this a. m., with Liverpool dates to the 24th ult.

The Peace treaty was not signed.

Matters at the Paris conference were not so harmonious owing to the difficulties interposed by Prussia; peace, however, was considered substantially certain.

The British Admiralty have sent out the steam frigates Tartarus and Desperate in search of the Pacific.

The Copenhagen correspondent of the London Times states that the Danish commissioner had submitted to the Copenhagen conference a proposal of capitalization of the Sound dues, fixing 35,000,000 rix dollars as the medium of indemnity which Denmark claims. The writer claims that the United States having declined taking part in the conference, the question would in all probability be gone into without their co-operation.

Mr. Buchanan leaves Sonthampton April 9th, in the Arago, for home. He had gone to Paris accompanied by Mr. Campbell, the American consul at London, and Mr. Croskey, consul for Southampton, and would visit the Hague.

According to the London Times, the cause of the difficulties at the Paris Conference, was a demand put forward by the Prussian Plenipotentiaries, to be admitted to sign the treaty of peace on the same footing, and in the same character, as if Prussia had been a party to the alliance throughout. It is supposed that Russia supports Prussia in these pretensions. This took place at the meeting of the 22nd.

Another meeting took place on the 26th, but nothing of its deliberations transpired.

The opinion that the Conference would ultimately resolve itself into a European Congress, is strongly entertained.

The Times Crimea Correspondent says the War party still cherish hopes that the negotiations may break down. It may suit the French to make concessions, but it ought not suit us. They doubtless considee they have done enough for honor and glory, and to revenge the reverses of 1812. They cannot afford war, and England can, and their army however numerous on paper is dwindling sadly—scurvy and fever are playing havoc among the ranks, and the mortality is said to be 120 per day.

The Allies commenced the demolition of the enelosure lines around Sebastopol.

Ismail Pasha is increasing the army of Auatolia.

Gen. Mouravieff had received reinforcements via the Caspian Sea and Tiflis.

Advices from Hamburg state that Commodore Watson held Livan and all the Russian ports in the Baltic Sea in a state of blockade.

Advices state that Dost Mahomed has taken possession of Candas, and Persian troops were marching against him.

Sir Hyde Parker commander of the English naval forces in the East Indies died at Devonport, March 21.

Sir Henry Pottinger died at Malta on the 18th.

A telegraph from Jassy states that a courier who was the bearer a formal demand for a union of the principalities addressed to Count Walkewski, had been arrested at Czarnowitsch.

LIVERPOOL MARKET.

March 22nd.—Messrs. Richardson, Spence & Co's circular says:--

"We issued a circular on Thursday last, there being no market on Good Friday.— Since then there has been great dullness in the corn trade, wheat declining 3d. to 4d. per quarter at Mark Lane yesterday, without clearance of samples. To-day the market opened very flat and although towards the close there was a slightly improved feeling, the business done was very moderate and in retail fine samples could be bought at low rates, but inferior kinds suffered a reduction of 2d. to 4d. per 70 lbs.

Flour, in consequence of the very large arrivals from Spain is nearly unsaleable at 1s. per bbl. under Tuesday's rate. Indian corn is neglected, and no buyers over 30s. per quarter. Quotations are, red wheat 9s. 6d. a 10s.; white do 10s. a 11s. 11s. 8d. for the only choice lot of white in retail, but this rate is quite exceptional. Indian corn 30s. for all kinds.

In provisions there is no change to report.

Cotton, although dull and freely supplied this week, is not lower in price, sales yesterday of 10,000 bales.

Consols closed at 92⅜

A singular case came before the Mayors Court yesterday, in which the Rev. Father Soffies was charged with using insulting language to Mrs. Rose Bouchard. It appears from the testimony, that previous to January last, one Cleophas Bouchard applied to Father Moutait, to publish the bans between himself and Rose Accordingly on the following Sunday, the bans were published for the first time. During the following week, Father Soffies heard a rumor that Bouchard had been married, and had a wife living in the Upper Peninsula. He accordingly thought best to stop the publication of the bans, and told Bouchard of the cause.— Bouchard then went with Rose to Justice Elisha Chase, and was married on the 11th day of January. Soffies in the meantime had taken upon himself the duty of inquiring into Bouchard's former marriage, and early in March received a letter from the resident priest at Ontonagon, stating that the rumor was true and that his wife still lived there. Upon the receipt of this letter, Soffies left word at the residence of Mrs. Bouchard's father, requesting him with Bouchard and his wife, to come to his room, at the residence of Bishop Lefevre. They did so on the evening of the 14th of March, and when there, Soffies shook the letter in her face, and told her that she was a "concubin et voisrein." In proof of this assertion, he gave the letter to her father, and told him that he must separate her from her husband His violent manner of administering spiritual advice, did not please the parties, and they left the father to his wrath and vexation.— Rose was excommunicated, and the story of Bouchard's bigamy became so noised abroad that at last Rose laid this complaint against Soffies. Messrs. Throop and Lothrop acted for the Plaintiff, and Messrs Gray and Terry for Defendant. The case excited considerable interest, and drew a crowd to the City Hall.

The facts as above stated, were elicited on the part of the prosecution. The defense set up was that it is the duty of the pastor of a church to investigate such cases, and admonish such wrong doers that they were sinning, and do all in their power to bring them back to the paths of rectitude. These rules and regulations of the Catholic Church, were proven by Bishop LeFevre, and Father Hennessy, who went so far, as to say, that a pastor under certain circumstances might descend to vulgar and obscene language in order properly to admonish his erring communicant.

There are some other points about the case, which we shall notice when the case is concluded. It is adjourned to 8 o'clock this this morning.—Det. Adv.

A Winter Laniscape in Russia.—Nothing interesting presenting itself, we travelled onward through towns and villages, over a dreary country, rendered many times more so by the season. All around was a vast wintry flat; and frequently not a vestige of man or cultivation was seen, not even a solitary tree, to break the boundless expanse of snow. Indeed, no idea can be formed of the plains we traversed, unless you can imagine yourself at sea, far, far from the sight of land. The Arabian desert cannot be more fearful to the eye than the appearance of this scene. Such is the general aspect of the country during the rigors of a winter, with now and then the exception of a large forest skirting the horizon for a considerable length of way. At intervals, as you shoot along, you see openings among its lofty trees, from which emerge picturesque groups of natives and their one horse sledges, whereon are placed the different articles of commerce, going to various parts of the empire. They travel in vast numbers and from all quarters, and seldom fewer than one hundred and fifty in a string, having a driver to every seventh horse. The effect of this cavalcade at a distance is very curious; and in a morning, as they advance towards you, the scene is as beautiful as striking. The sun, then rising, thrown its rays across the snow, transforming it to the sight into a surface of diamonds. From the cold of the night every man and horse is encrusted with these frosty particles; and the beams falling on them, too, seem to cover their rude faces and rugged habits with a tissue of the most dazzling brilliants; the manes of the horses and the long beards of the men, from the quantity of congealed breath, have a particularly glittering effect.

ARRIVAL OF THE BALTIC.

New York, April 17.

The Baltic is at anchor outside of the harbor.—Papers arrived at 11 and a half o'clock without previous announcement.

The treaty of peace is signed by all the plenipotentiaries.

Sunday, March 30.—Great demonstration in Paris, firing of cannon, illumination, &c. English demonstration much more quiet.— Ratifications cannot be exchanged within four weeks.

The Africa arrived out on the 81st.

Cotton stronger than at previous advices —advanced 1-8a1-14. Sales for 2 days 24,000 bales. Breadstuffs, dull, but not lower. Consols, advanced to 93 1-8.

The mails are coming up in a steam tug.

SANDWICH MARKET.

"Maple Leaf" Office, 18th April, 1856

Flour Best warranted,	$ 8 00	$ 8 50
" 2nd quality	5 00	7 50
Buckwheat Flour,	2 00	4 00
Rye "	2 00	3 50
Timothy Seed,		4 00
Clover,		8 00
Corn Meal per 100	1 50	2 00
Corn per bushel, 56lbs.	0 51	0 00
Oats " do 34lbs.	0 37½	0 00
Potatoes do	0 44	0 50
Wheat do 60lbs,	1 00	1 25
Barley do 48lbs,	0 75	0 00
Hay per Ton	10 00	12 00
Straw per load	1 50	2 00
Wood per cord (Hard)	2 00	0 00
do Mixed	1 50	0 00
Pork per 100lbs.	6 00	6 50
Beef " "	5 00	6 00

DETROIT MARKET.

Flour.	$5 00.
Wheat.	1 30.
Corn.	0 50.
Oats.	0 36.
Pork	6 50.

Detroit, 18th April, 1856.

NOTICE.

THE Court of Revision for the Township of Sandwich for the year A.D. 1856, will be held in the Council Chamber at Sandwich, on Thursday the 8th day of May next, at 10 o'clock a.m. and following days.

Sandwich, 15th April, 1856.

D. MOYNAHAN
Township Clerk.

TEA MEETING.

A SOCIAL AND RELIGIOUS TEA MEETING will be held at the Wesleyan Chapel in Sandwich, on Wednesday, 23rd April, at 7 o'clock, P. M. Several Popular Speakers are expected to address the Meeting. Interesting Sacred Music will also be given.

Tickets Fifty Cents. To be had of Messrs. Fluett, Ellis, Miller, John Green, or at the door.

Sandwich, April 10th, 1856.

NOTICE.

WILL be Sold by Public Auction at the Rosedale Mill, Township of Sandwich at 12 o'clock. noon, on Saturday the 16th inst. the following Work:—

Building a new Culvert
Making an Embankment.
Ditching and Grading a piece of Road
Plans and specifications to be seen at Mr. Bullock's Office, Sandwich.

THOS. WOODBRIDGE, Reeve.
April 10th 1856.

TO BE LET FOR EIGHT YEARS,

A TWO STORY FRAME HOUSE with a Half-Acre Garden, on Lot No 4, East Side of Peter Street.

To be let subject to all Repairs and Taxes. A large reduction will be made to any person paying three years' rent in advance. For further particulars enquire of

J. GREEN,
Great Western Boot and Shoe Store,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

27th March, 1856.

N.B.—Possession will be given on the first of May next.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

County of Essex } By virtue of a writ to wit; } of fieri facias issued out of Court of Common Pleas at Toronto, to me directed, against the lands and tenements of Alfred Baby at the suit of James Olwell and Mathew Olwell, I have seized and taken in execution the following lands viz: water lot number three on the East, water lots numbers three, four, and fourteen on the west, and land and water lots numbers thirteen and sixteen on the north side of Sandwich Street, and Park Lots Nos. one and twelve, Field lot letter E, Village lots numbers nine and ten on the south side of Sandwich Street, lots numbers twenty-one and twenty-two, north side of Pitt Street, lots numbers one and two on the south side of Pitt Street, lots numbers eight and nine on the north side of Chatham Street, in Block C: lot number two on the south side of Chatham Street, lot number five on the north side of London Street, in Block E, lots three and four on the south side of London Street Block G, in the Village of Windsor in the County of Essex, forming part of the Town Plot of the said village, as laid out on the estate of the late François Baby, Esq., and lot number twenty-eight in the first Concession, Township of Maidstone, two hundred acres of land, all of which property I shall offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich on Saturday the twenty-eighth day of June next at twelve o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY.
Sheriff

Sheriff's office, Sandwich,
27th March.

GUILLOT'S COLUMN,

FOR APRIL, 1856.

NEW

SPRING GOODS

JUST OPENED AT

Guillot's Store,

PER

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

WHICH HE NOW OFFERS AT THE

LOWEST REMUNERATING

PROFIT, FOR

CASH.

PRINTS, in Variety,

PRINTED LAWNS & MUSLINS,

SILKS, SILK PARASOLS,

BLEACHED AND UNBLEACHED

COTTONS & SHEETING

HOSIERY, GLOVES,

CLOTHING,

COATINGS, TWEEDS,

TROWSERINGS,

LINENS,

DRILLS,

KOSSUTH HATS,

COTTON WARP,

BOOTS AND SHOES,

TICKINGS,

GINGHAMS,

CARPETING,

SHAWLS, &c., &c.

TOGETHER

WITH A GOOD ASSORTMENT OF

GROCERIES. CROCKERY,

SHELF HARDWARE, NAILS

ALSO,

THE XL FLOUR,

KEPT ON HAND FOR SALE

AT CURRENT PRICES.

CLOVER AND TIMOTHY

SEED.

H. C. GUILLOT,

SANDWICH, CANADA WEST.

J. H. ALLISON,

IMPORTER OF

IMPROVED

RAILROAD WATCHES.

Cased in beautiful styles warranted excellent time-keepers: do. Swiss full jeweled Levers of every style.

GOLD PENS.

I continue manufacturing Pens of every desirable pattern; these Pens have received

A SILVER MEDAL & DIPLOMA

At the Michigan State Fair, and are not to be surpassed by any Pens in the market.

ALSO DEALER IN

FINE JEWELRY,
SILVER WARE,
AND FANCY GOODS.

I have an experienced Jeweller, capable of making New Work to order,

SETTING STONES AND DIAMOND WORK. &C.,

FIRE GILDING AND GALVANIZING

Done at Short Notice.

WATCH REPAIRING.

Being a Practical Workman, all work entrusted to my care will be carefully attended to.

GOLD PENS RE-POINTED

at 50 cents all sizes. Orders sent by mail, accompanied by cash, will be promptly attended to.

J. H. ALLISON,
No. 176 Jefferson Ave.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

TO RENT.

A DRUG STORE, with a large and well selected stock of Drugs and Medicines, in the Town of Sandwich. The Store will be leased for a term of years, and the Drugs and Medicines will be sold on reasonable terms. The selection cannot be surpassed in Upper Canada. Possession given on the first day of July next, if required. The present proprietor is about entering other business, which will prevent him attending to the Drug business, and which is the only reason for his retiring from the trade. For particulars inquire of

J. ADLEY.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

Notice.

County of Essex, } Notice is hereby givto wit: } en that the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol delivery Assize and Nisi Prius, in and for the said County, will be held at the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, on Tuesday the twenty-second day of April next, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all Coroners, Justices, Gaolers, Bailiffs Constables, and all others in any way concerned are required to attend, to do and perform all those things which to their office belong and appertain.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich, }
1st March, 1856. }

BARTLEY AND PINNEY,

Provincial Land Surveyors, Civil and Topographical Engineers, Draughtsmen and Architec

MAPS AND PLANS drawn in the first style. Estimates, Specifications, &c., of all kinds prepared at short notice. All work entrusted to us shall be executed with punctuality and despatch.

Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.

O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.
March 28, 1856. n51y

DIVISION COURTS FOR ESSEX.

1st. Sandwich Monday, 12th May, 1856.
2nd. Amhorstburg, Saturday, 12th April.
3rd. Kingsville, Wednesday, 16th do.
4th. Colchester, Monday, 14th do.
5th. Mersea, Friday, 18th do.
6th. Simon's, Middle Road, Saturday, 17th, May

Sandwich 12th Feb. 1856.

A RARE CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY

IS NOW OFFERED IN

E. RIVARD'S

GRAND GIFT ENTERPRISE

AND

LOTTERY,

to take place at

SANDWICH,

ON THE 19th APRIL, 1856.

ALL PRIZES! NO BLANKS.

The following is a List of a few of the Prizes:

2 Shares in Sandwich Street Plank Road Company, worth	$60
A Glass Case,	40
A Burr Cooking Stove,	40
A Buggy Harness,	40
Trotting Waggon,	20
Double Barrel Gun,	20
Dress Coat (new)	18
Frock do	18
Single Barrel Gun,	15
Do do do,	15
Settee,	15
Pair of Curtains,	12
Lot of Dishes,	11
Six Shooter,	10
Box Stove,	10
20 Yards Carpet,	10
Eight Day Clock,	8
Do do	6
Looking Glass,	5
Pair of Shanghais,	5

Together with other articles amounting to FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

On the day of drawing the holders of tickets will have the privilege of appointing a Committee to regulate the mode of drawing, &c., &c. If the tickets are not all sold by the day appointed for drawing, due notice will be given of the postponement in the "Maple Leaf."

Tickets, One Dollar Each.

POSTPONEMENT.

THE DRAWING of the above LOTTERY is postponed until TUESDAY, the 20th MAY next. E. R.

RETURN OF CONVICTIONS

For the COUNTY OF ESSEX, for the Quarter ending 1st April, 1856.

NAME OF PROSECUTOR.	NAME OF DEFENDANT.	NATURE OF CHARGE.	DATE OF CONVICTION.	NAME OF CONVICTING JUSTICE	Amount of Penalty, Fine or Damage.	Fine when Paid, or to be Paid to said Justice.	To whom paid over by said Justice.	If not paid, why not and General Observations if any.
Harden Campbell,	Maria Chalton,	Assault,	31st Dec, 1855	A. Sidwill & J. G. Buchanan,	5s	15 days,	Township Treasurer
Eliza Thompson,	Thomas Sparks,	Assault and Battery.	4th January,	Thomas Woodbridge,	5s		Committed in	default for 20 days.
Thomas Salmoni,	George McCoy,	Do	Do	John G. Buchanan,	30s and costs,	10 days,	County Treasurer
Moses Bezeau,	George Shapper,	Do	24th	Thomas Woodbridge,	Costs,		Township Treasurer	Bound to keep the peace
Martin Strong,	Paschal Renaud,	Furious Driving,	26th	William Flanigan,	25s and costs		do
Benjamin Cunningham,	Martin Withers,	Assault,	26th	H Cuningham & F A Lafferty	2s 6d	26th January,	Bound to keep the	Peace, Pl'tf paid costs
Harriet Washington,	Edward Moore,	Articles of the Peace,	26th	Thomas Wiloodbridge,	5s			Too poor, impris. 10 days
Leander Jolebois,	John B. Duvinier, Matthew Moynahan, and Thos. Haley,	Assault and Battery,	30th	Thomas Woodbridge,	10s 10s	Forthwith, do	Township Treasurer do	Recognizancesof the peace for 12 months.
James Harkin,	Laurent Rabideau, Paul Rabideau, Charles Rabideau, and Mark Rabideau,	Articles of the Peace,	1st February,	Henry McKenny,	25s	20 days,	Treas of Amherstb'g	Appealed to Sessions.
James Harkin,	Mark Rabideau,	Assault,	2nd	Do	5s
Charles Rabideau,	James Harkin,	Assault and Battery,	7th	F A Lafferty & James Noble	10s	Forthwith,	Township Treasurer
Agnus Humpstead,	Samuel Campbell,	Do	7th	Felix Lafferty,	5s	do	do
Alexander Borrowman,	Jacob Hamilton,	Trespass,	7th	James Noble,
Samuel Davy,	William Pines,	Assault and Battery,	17th	Cornelius R. Quick,	15s	2 weeks,	Treasurer	Not paid, left the country
James Foster,	James Dunn,	Articles of the Peace,	18th	Henry McKenny,			Recognizances of	the Peace for 12 months
Henry Crosby,	Joseph Mulder,	Assault and Battery,	19th	Cornelius R. Quick,	10s	Forthwith,	Treasurer,	Paid
Dr. Campbell and Monroe Evans,	Thomas Newcomb, George Sullivan, and David Knox,	Assault and Battery on the Sabbath day,	30th January,	Thomas Woodbridge,	£1 5s each	Forthwith,	Township Treasurer	15s unpaid
L. J. Fluett,	James Ward,	Assault,	26th February,	Do	10s	do	do
H. McKenny,	P. Deslip.	Furious Driving on Highway	20th do	James Noble,	5s	do	do
John Thayer,	John Camble,	Biting.	20th do	Ralph Foster,				Costs paid by the Party.
Do	Oliver Wilkinson,	In the Fight holding Thayer's arm,	20th do	Ralph Foster,				Prosecutor paid costs immediately, parties set'ld
Julia Crosby,	Josiah Fletcher,	Assault,	28th do	Cornelius R. Quick,	5s	Forthwith,	Treasurer,	Paid.
George Thompson,	Calvin O. Brown,	Do	29th do	Do	5s	2 weeks,	do	Paid.
James Harkin,	Laurent Rabideau,	Do	1st March,	Henry McKenny,	£2 fine, £1 8 costs	20 days,		Appealed to Qr. Sessions
Philip McGuire,	George K. Robinson,	Non-payment of Wages,	3rd do	F. A. Lafferty and Jas Noble	£7 1s 3d	9th March,	Not paid yet.	No distress to be found.
George Crawford,	Thomas Cotton,	Trespass,	4th do	Felix A. Lafferty,	1s	8 days,	Not yet paid.	To be imprisoned.
Adla Ratelle,	Leandre Beniteau,	Non-payment of Wages,	17th do	F. A. Lafferty & Thos. Boyles,	£1 15s	23rd March,		Appealed to Sessions.
Alexander Martial,	John Hutchins,	Trespass,	20th do	Cornelius R. Quick,	-			Dismissed.
Eliza Crayan,	Francis Crayan,	Assault,	22nd do	Thomas Salmoni,	£2 10s and costs	8 days,	Treasurer,	Not paid.
James Harkin,	Laurence Rabideau,	Do	28th do	T. Salmoni & J. G. Kolfage,				Dismissed.
James Harkin,	Michael Rabideau,	Do	28th do	do	5s and costs.	6 days,	Treasurer	Not paid.

I certify the foregoing to be a True and correct Return as taken from the several Returns of Convictions filed in this Office, for the Quarter ending April 1st, 1856

Office of the Clerk of the Peace, Sandwich, 8th April, 1856.

CHARLES BABY, CLERK PEACE ESSEX

Beacon

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE CO
of London.

Incorporated under Act of Imperial Parliament, 7 and 8 Vic., Chap. 1.

CANADA BOARD.
KINGSTON.

TRUSTEES.

The Hon John A Macdonald.
James Morton, Esquire.

DIRECTORS:

M. W. Strange, Esq., Chairman,
Thos. A. Corbett, Esq., Deputy Chairman.
James Morton, Esq. John Mowatt, Esq
James Harty, Esq. A. J Macdonell, Esq.
Lewis Walbridge, Esq. T. Clarkson, Esq.

MONTREAL.

Wm. Molson, Esq. Thomas Evans, Esq.
Damase Masson, Esquire,

This Company Insures all descriptions of Buildings, Manufactories, Mills, &c. and Goods or Furniture in the same, against loss or damage by fire, on liberal terms. All descriptions of Life Risks, taken at as low rates as are consistent with security to the assured. Losses promptly settled without reference to England.

ALEX. GORDON,
Agent at Windsor for Western Frontier

March 7, 1856.

LOTS FOR SALE IN THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.

PART of Lot No. 3: on the west side of Bedford Street, with a good Store thereon. Also, Lots 7 and 8, adjoining the residence of L. J. Fluett, Esquire, with dwelling house and stables. These Lots will be sold subject to incumbrances.

For particulars apply to

J. H. WILKINSON.
Att'y for J. A. Vervais.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

TO LET OR FOR SALE.

A Brick House and Lot, on No. 4, East side of Main Street, fronting "Mears' Hotel." The above property will be leased for $150 a year; or, for particulars of sale apply to

STANISLAUS LASALINE.

Sandwich, 20th March, 1856.

Sandwich and Windsor Stage.

BY JOHN LEWIS.

THE Proprietor of this popular line has added a new Stage and first-rate horses, and will hereafter run an Hourly Stage to Windsor with speed and punctuality. He hopes to merit the patronage of the public.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

New Tailoring

ESTABLISHMENT.

THE Subscriber begs leave to notify the Public that he will carry on business in the building lately occupied by T. Murphy, opposite the Hennell Hotel, where he intends to carry on the Tailoring Business in all its branches, and hopes by strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage.

N. B.—He will receive the Report of Fashion monthly.

Cutting done to order.

W. T. BASSANDALE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. &c. &c.

AT THE REGULATOR.

THE Subscribers would invite the attention of their Friends and the Public generally to their new and complete Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c., &c., which they are now offering low for cash.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

N·B.—The highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all kinds of Produce.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1846.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, } BY virtue of a writ of
TO WIT: } Fieria Facias issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex against the lands and Tenements of Alfred Baby, and to me directed, at the suit of Dennis Ouellette, I have seized and taken the following lands and tenements, viz.:

Water Lot number three on the East, and Water Lots numbers three, four and fourteen West, and Land and Water Lots numbers thirteen and sixteen, all on the North side of Sandwich Street in the Village of Windsor, and being part of the Town plot of Windsor, as laid out on the estate of the late Francis Baby, Esquire, all which property, or the interest of the said Alfred Baby in and to the same, I will offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Saturday the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, at 12 o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich,
29th February, 1856.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

THE SANDWICH MILLINERY AND DRESS MAKIMG Establishment will be reopened for the season.

The Proprietor having just returned from the Eastern Cities with a Large Stock of Millinery and Dress Goods of the latest style and fashion, which he offers for sale at a small advance from their original Cost.

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE
L. P. ST. AMOUR.

andwich, Feb 29th, 1856.

Family Store

THE Subscriber keeps constantly on hand a large and well selected assortment of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware and Crockery,

at his old stand on Bedford Street, which he will sell, at a small advance upon cost, for Cash.

A large supply of the very best Flour always on hand.

Produce and Cord Wood bought and sold.

JOSEPH MILLER.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

New Harness and Saddlery Establishment.

A. C. ELLIS.

Every description of LIGHT and FANCY BUGGY HARNESS, made in the most fashionable styles.

HEAVY HARNESSES constantly on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.

SADDLES of every description made to order on the shortest notice.

CARRIAGE and BUGGY TRIMMING done in a style not to be surpassed.

A large assortment of WHIPS always kept on hand.

In his Store, adjoining Mr Guillot's, will be found every description of Goods in his line of business. Every endeavor will be made to give entire satisfaction to his Customers.

N.B.—Cord Wood, Hides, and Produce wanted, for which the highest price will be given.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

NOTICE.

TO ALL IT MAY CONCERN.

ALL persons owing the subscriber are hereby notified that payment must be made on or before the 15th day of April next if they wish to save the costs of collection.

TO RENT.

The House and Premises in which the subscriber lives. Terms $24 per quarter payable in advance. Possession given on the first of May next.

GEORGE HANN.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

LOT No. Four, in the 4th Concession, Gosfield.

J. H. WILKINSON.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

FOR SALE.

(ON TIME.)

AN Eighteen-Horse Power Engine and Boiler complete. Apply to

GEO. BULLOCK.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

AGRICULTURE, &c.

A New Food.

SUBSTITUTE FOR THE POTATOE.

The account given below is from D. A. Ross, Esq., of Quebec, who condensed it from an American Journal. We should be glad to hear from any our readers who have attempted to cultivate this plant. The continued liability of the potatoe to disease, makes the question of a substitute interesting to all:—

THE CHINESE ORJAPAN POTATOE.

This most important esculent (Dioscorea Batatas, Dioscorea Japonica or Igname de la Chine) was first introduced into France in 1850, it having been sent to France by Monsieur de Montigny, French Consul at Shanghae, in northern China. It is in no case subject to decay, whether in the ground or out of it, and is of so hard a character as to withstand the severest winter unimpaired. It is superior in farinaceous properties to both the known species of potatoe. The "Mark Lane Express" acknowledges that it is a substitute more valuable than the ordinary potatoe.

Roots of this plant have been produced in middle and northern France, weighing from two to two and a half pounds, from tubers planted in April and dug in October. One great point of superiority possessed by it is that it may remain in the ground two or three years, always enlarging in size and equally nutritious and excellent in flavor.—

Experience has proved that when the roots are left for eighteen months in the ground, the yield is more than treble that of roots left but for one summer, and it is also considered that the roots are improved in quality.

In the spring of 1853 the largest plantation in France contained but 700 roots.—Yet such is the ease and rapidity of its propagation and increase, that it is already becoming most remarkably disseminated. Its growth is very rapid and it seems suited to any climate and to any soil although a sandy loam or sandy soil has been deemed preferable in Europe where the sun heat is so much less powerful than with us. It has been tested in America, in sandy and in stiff loam and grew vigorously in both, and from analogy it is more than probable that it will do well in inland soils.

Its roots run perpendicularly into the earth, thereby greatly enlarging its capacity to produce the greatest possible crops from a given space of ground. It has been calculated in the French Publications, from the experiments there made, that an acre will in six months produce 36,000 pounds, and in eighteen months, 120,000 lbs.

The roots, when placed in acellar, remain firm and perfect, as well as free from sprouts, and they can be kept out of the ground a year without injury or deterioration of their alimentary qualities. This property renders them invaluable for use in long sea voyages and as preventatives of scurvy. This plant is better adapted to cold than to hot climates. The root is from 15 to 25 inches long and two inches in diameter, tapering from the head, the outward appearance of the root is white variety of the sweet potatoe—skin thin, readily pealing off when cooked; flesh snow white, delicately farinaceous, with a slight almond flavor, exceedingly grateful when used in the same manner as the ordinary potatoe, and for bold nutrition and superior in quality. It can be cooked by water or steam, or roasted, and in appearance and taste is like the finest mealy varieties of common potatoe. It requires but ten minutes boiling—the ordinary potatoe requires half an hour. Ripened to a fine pure, white flour which will compare advantageously with any wheat flour.

This plant combines the advantages of immense product, diminished comparative labor, and adaptation to the soil where scarcely any other root will grow, and will remain in the ground during winter and for a period of three or more years furnishing throughout all seasons a fresh, wholesome and nutritious aliment for all classes at the cheapest rate. The acquisition of this esculent constitutes an era in Agriculture. Small sections of the root of the size of the same as potatoe sets may be planted at the first opening of spring at the distance of about three inches.

Information may be obtained on the subject of this valuable escalent from "The United States Patent Office Report" just issued "La Revue Horticole" and "Bon Jardinier" of France, and "The Mark Lane Express," and from William R. Prince Esq., of Flushing, Long Island, N. Y. the author of an interesting letter on the subject which appeared in the columns of "The New York Tribune," on the 29th December, 1855, under the caption of "The new Escelent Root," "The Chinese or Japan Potatoe" and from which the foregoing particulars have been abridged.—Canadian Agriculturist.

Plant a Grape Vine.

Every person who has the control of a square rod of round whereon plants may grow, can scarcely do better than to set a grape vine of the Concord, Isabella, or Diana varieties. The first cost is trifling, and the after care of them more of a pleasure than a task. The grape is not only palatable and nutritious for those who are well, but is exceedingly grateful to the sick, giving tone to the digestive organs, and healthy action to the whole alimentary canal.

Before setting the root, throw out the earth to the depth of two or three feet, and fill up ten inches with coarse manure of any sort—old bones, oyster shells &c., and then throw in rich loam; into this rake a few quarts of house ashes, then fill up with loam and composted manure, and the soil is ready for the root.

After the plant is set, scatter on strawy manure, or leaves, and through the summer occasionally throw upon this the contents of the tubs and slops of the K. J. Dowing, late editor of the Horticulturist, says: "I have seen the Isabella grape produce 3,000 fine clusters of well-ripened fruit in season, by the liberal use of soap-suds from the weekly wash."

The effect of soap-suds on other plants is sometimes surprising. A cypress vine which had remained stationary for a fortnight, when about two inches high, immediately commenced growing after a good watering with soap-suds, and grew about six inches the first five days.

With a little care this may all be well done by any one who has never attempted it before. Under this treatment in the course of three or four years you will be amply repaid by a most beautiful crop of luscious grapes, and a vine greatly ornamental to the ground and dwelling. He has PRUNING.—The grape vine bleeds readily. Never prune at all until the vine has grown one or two years for it needs the old and small branches in order to push forward large and vigorous roots. Late in October or in November is a proper time—never when the sap is in motion in the spring. As the fruit grows on new wood every year, in pruning it is necessary to cut back the branches to within two or three eyes of the main stem. The Cole's Fruit Book, which costs but fifty cents, and it will enable him to see the whole operation illustrated by engravings.

Never pinch off the leaves to aid the ripening of the fruit, as they are placed there for the very purpose you desire to accomplish.

Plant a grape vine, and before long some of you will be thankful to him who gave you the hint.

Horses for the Farm.

Notwithstanding the inroads made upon horse-labor by our great railroad system, the horse cotinues to be, an i will continue to be, one of the most important of domestic animals. For the past year or two the price of horses, and especially good horses, has been advancing. Indeed it is no easy task now to get a pair of working horses, combining strength, speed, hardiness, and other important qualities. Horse-breeding we believe has been, and is now, conducted in a most unskilful and deplorably careless manner. We may station ourselves on a road leading to one of our large cities, where two or three hundred teams pass and repass in a day, and out of the whole number we venture to say that one span of good farm-horses—say sixteen hands high and weighing about 1400 lbs., well proportioned, sound, strong, and hardy,—can not be selected. We have spent some time in looking up good horses, and therefore speak from experience. The majority we find to be long-legged, long-backed, narrow-chested animals, fit only for the knacker before a light carriage, and having half a dozen of them at hard work, would require a veterinary surgeon on his own establishment.—Where we do find any considerable degree of strength and robustness, we find also excessive coarseness and clumsiness. We admit some exceptions, but they are few and far between. Light, active, sprightly carriage horses, and fast goers, are not scarce. The fact is, our breeders of horses have been aiming at speed too much. The immoral race-course is ruining our horses, filling the country with a mongrel race absolutely worthless.

It is time that this matter should be urged upon the consideration of our farmers who make it a part of their business to breed horses. We know nothing about the profits of the business, but we know very well that if it pays to raise a horse that at four or five years old can command a sale for $200 it will pay to raise one that will sell readily at the same age for twice that amount.—With a good stock on hand, it is much easier and cheaper to raise a good horse than a bad one. The improved system of farming which is now being put in practice will require better horses, and farmers will find out soon that it will be much better to have one span of horses than two. How common it is every where to see four horses performing badly what two ought to do easily and well. We are sure that a breeder will consider it economy to give $400 for a pair of horses, instead of $200. Farm carts will soon be introduced extensively; and with them a good, heavy, active horse, will do more work in a day than a yoke of oxen in two; but a light legged horse is of no use in a cart.

Much can be done to improve our present race of horses, by judicious breeding. Place a mare having some desirable points with a horse whose prominent developments are such as, combined with the good parts of the mare, you wish to obtain in the foal: and in this way, if the mare is not too old, and is kept warm and comfortable during winter, doing little work, and the foal be never starved when young, a horse may be expected that will amply pay for the extra expense and trouble, costing no more to keep than one not capable of doing half the work.

Hotels, &c.

HENNELL HOUSE,

LATE FREE MASON'S TAVERN,

Sandwich.

THIS House is pleasantly situated at the terminus of the New Canal Road from Windsor to Sandwich, and possesses all the requisites which are generally met with in first class hotels—Good Beds, superior Stabling, and unimpeachable Liquors.

From the long experience of the present proprietor in this line of business, he is enabled to meet the wishes of his patrons, in every particular, with promptness; and he will make it his study so to treat his visitors, that they may leave him with perfect satisfaction, and return with pleasure on future occasions.

WM. HENNELL.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th.

SANDWICH EXCHANGE,

BEDFORD STREET, SANDWICH.

JACOB STUTTZ

IN returning thanks for past favors, begs to inform his Friends and the Public that he still keeps on hand the best of every thing to suit the taste and comfort of his customers, and trusts that by assiduity and attention to business, to merit their patronage and support.

N.B.—A Good Stable and Shed.

WESTERN HOTEL,

BY CYRUS DODSON.

THIS Hotel, adjoining the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, has been put in firstrate repair, and the Proprietor hopes that, by strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a share of public patronage.

N.B.—There is an excellent stable attached to the premises, and an attentive ostler will always be in attendance.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

THE COTTAGE INN,

BY ALEXANDER REAUME.

THE Proprietor having lately leased the above comfortable premises, and having thoroughly repaired and refurnished the same, will be happy to attend upon the travelling public at all hours. A supply of good old Ohio and Hot Water will always be found at the Bar, with all other choice Liquors.

The COTTAGE INN has good and comfortable Stables attached.

ALEXANDER REAUME.

Anderdon, February 29th, 1856.

TRAVELLERS' HOME,

T. HALEY, PROPRIETOR,

(Formerly of Aylmer, Canada West.)

THIS House having been fitted up in the neatest and most comfortable style, the Proprietor hopes that, by keeping a choicest Liquors and a strict attention to business, to be able to give entire satisfaction to all who may give him a call. Attentive waiters and a well supplied table will always be found here.

Good Stabling and an attentive Ostler always in attendance.

N.B.—FRESH OYSTERS always on hand.

Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

PRINCE ALBERT HOTEL.

THIS Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Warner, has been thoroughly renovated, and will be kept well supplied with the very best liquors. An attentive man will always be in attendance to take charge of horses.

A private Parlor, for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen, has been fitted up.

F. X. TRUDELL,
Sandwich Street, Proprietor.
29th February, 1856.

BROOKER'S TAVERN.

WM. BROOKER is prepared to attend upon his Customers at his new and well-furnished house near the Custom House, where the Traveller will have his wants attended to in regard to good liquors, and his friends may expect to find every accommodation as usual.

A supply of Groceries always kept on hand which will be sold very cheap.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROYAL EXCHANGE.

J. L. McGEE,

BEGS to announce to the Travelling Community, and Public in general, that he has opened the above new TAVERN, wit good accommodations, and hopes by attention to his business, to merit a share of public patronage. A choice selection of Groceries always kept on hand.

Maidstone Cross, February 29th, 1856.

MANSION HOUSE.

THIS new and commodious Inn is now completely finished, and the Proprietor hopes, that by a strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to receive a continuance of the patronage which was so liberally awarded him at his old stand.

ALONZO BROWN,
Maidstone Cross, Proprietor.
7th March, 1856.

AMERICAN HOTEL.

COURT HOUSE SQUARE, LONDON, C. W.

ROBERT ARKELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and Travellers that he has taken the above Hotel, which has undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The house is in a fine open, airy and central situation, and commands a beautiful view of the valley of the Thames and surrounding country.

The Table is supplied with all the delicacies of the season. The Wines and Liquors will be of the best brands, and no trusts by assiduity and attention to the comfort of his guests to merit their patronage and support.

ROBERT ARKELL.

London, 29th Feb. 1856.

CIGAR FACTORY.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the inhabitants of Amherstburg and vicinity that he has opened a Cigar Factory in the above Town, where every description of the choicest kind are always on hand. He has also lately imported from Havana a large quantity of the very best Principe and every other description of Cigars, which he intends to sell at a much smaller price than can be had in Detroit. Call and see him, and he will give a puff.

JOHN N. MILLER.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

NOTICE.

A BAY PONEY came in the barn yard on the "Hand's Farm," about the 1st February last, and unless the owner comes to claim the same and pay the charges, it will be impounded and sold.

Hand's Farm, 19th March, 1856.

LANDS FOR SALE.

A SMALL FARM, being part of Lot No 37, in First Concession, Petite Cote, 40 acres, all under fence, two acres in wild, one mile in depth. This lot is beautifully situated upon the road to Amherstburg, about three miles from Sandwich, it is well adapted for a residence.

Two Lots on Glengarry Avenue, one house and lot on St. George's street, in the village of Windsor.

A number of Town Lots on the Pajot Farm, in the town of Sandwich.

Also part of lots Nos. 95 and 96, 1st and 2nd Con., half a mile above Windsor, two houses and barn thereon, containing 150 acres

The above lots will be sold for cash, at the very lowest figure, and parties wishing to purchase for residences or speculation, will find this an opportunity which is not often afforded. Title Indisputable.

CHAS. P. LABADIE

All parties owing the subscriber are requested to settle forthwith, or having any claims against him are requested to present them without delay, as he is about winding up his business.

C. F. L

Sandwich April, 1856.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the allied sciences, with the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which a refining generation view this science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, from the Gothic to the Rural Cottage.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded, together with the really superior execution, both as regard to the engravings and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of tinted toned paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the sciences of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department: H. P. KNIGHT, JAMES SAWDEN and M. D. RAY.

Terms: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

N.B.—Newspapers inserting the above prospectus, and drawing attention editorially to the same, will be forwarded the ILLUSTRATED HORTICULTURIST for one year, a copy containing the advertisement should be sent in all cases to ensure attention.

Address

C. REAGLES, Publisher,
Illustrated Horticulturist
208, BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

NEW VOLUME OF THE

AGRICULTURIST

SUBSCRIPTION REDUCED FROM 25 TO 50 PER CENT.

The Canadian Agriculturist

Has now reached the eighth volume, having been established by its present proprietor in 1848, since which time it has been the leading farmers of the British Provinces, to need any eulogium from us. The undersigned have made arrangements with the proprietor to publish the work, and probably succeeding volumes, and have resolved to make important improvements in the work, while at the same time its price will be considerably reduced.

THE AGRICULTURIST

Is published Monthly, on good Paper, each number containing 32 pages, making at the end of the year a handsome volume of 384 pages.

EVERY NUMBER WILL BE

Illustrated with Engravings

Such as Farm Implements, Portraits of Animals, and Farm Buildings, New Inventions, &c., &c., interesting to the Farmer, and also portraits of some of the most Distinguished Agriculturists.

The Work will be conducted as usual by WILLIAM MACDOUGALL, Esq., who has resumed the practice of Agriculture near this city. The active promotor of the various improvements made in our Agricultural Legislation since 1847, and having also been connected with this Journal from its commencement, he requires no recommendation from us.

PROFESSOR BUCKLAND, of the Toronto University, whose labors and writings in behalf of Canadian Agriculture are known and appreciated throughout the Province, will contribute to its columns as usual.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS

Of known ability have also been engaged. Efforts will be made to extend the correspondence on subjects of a practical kind.

THE AGRICULTURIST IS NOT LIABLE TO POSTAGE.

WIMAN & Co, Publishers
Toronto, March, 1856.

TO be published monthly, price half-a-dollar per annum,

The Churchman's Friend,

For the diffusion of information relative to the Church of England, her Doctrine and Ordinances. Edited by Edward H. Dewart, M.A., Rector of Sandwich, assisted by other Clergymen.

Sandwich, March 15th, 1856.

New Wholesale

GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT!

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and the Trade generally, that he has commenced business on his own account, in this City, as a

WHOLESALE GENERAL GROCER.

And is now receiving a large and carefully selected Stock of

GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, OILS, PAINTS, &c., &c., &c.

To which he confidently invites the attention of Western and City Merchants.

Premises, King Street West, opposite Messrs. McKeand, Bross & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods Warehouse.

A. I. McKENZIE.

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TO BE SOLD

CHEAP FOR CASH,

The property of a person going to England, the following Real Property, viz:

FOUR Town Lots situated in the Town of Sandwich in the County of Essex enclosed in one block with a good Cottage, Stable, and a variety of choice grafted fruits, and a good well of water, being composed of Lots Nos. 13, 14, 15, and 16, on the East side of Russell street; also Water Lot No. 1, a good site for a Steam Mill; also Lot No. 16, on the West side of Bedford Street.

Lots No. 13 east half in 2nd Con., Rochester, 100 acres, also the East half of Lot No 8, in 4th Con., Sandwich, 100 acres.

Enquire of George Bullock Esq. Sandwich.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Beecher, Rice and Ketchum.

CARPET & OIL CLOTH WAREHOUSE,

No. 142 Jefferson Avenue.
Conant Block, Detroit, Michigan.

BEECHER, HOLLISTER & WILKINS, Carpet Hall, Lake Street, Chichago, Importers of Carpets, Oil Cloths, Paper-hangings Curtain and Upholstery materials.

A. A. RICE. L. BEECHER. E. F. HOLLISTER
C. B. KETCHUM, D. WILKINS, JR.

Detroit, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TILES, TILES.

THE Public are respectfully informed that M. & J. H. WHITEHOUSE are Manufacturing and have on hand a large quantity of Tiles, for Draining Cellars, Farms, &c., at their Brick Yard, Westminster, two miles from London, and a quarter of a mile from Mr. J. Nellis's Tavern, at First Toll Gate on the Hamilton Road, which they will sell at the Low Price of £4 per 1000 with Collars to Bottoms, without £2 15s. They will be found to be much cheaper than any other Material for Draining, as they facilitate greatly the labor, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when put down will never require removing. Samples may be seen and Orders received at the Store of Mr. J. Fitzell, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also Roofing Tiles and Press Bricks for fronting Buildings of a superior quality.

London, Feb. 29th, 1856.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

Hamilton and Toronto Branch.

ALTERATION OF TIME.

ON and after MONDAY NEXT, the 10th December, trains will run daily (Sundays excepted) between Hamilton and Toronto, as follows:

GOING WEST

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation		Mixed	Mail
	A M	P M	A M	P M	P M
Toronto, - -	8 00	3 20	10 00
Mimico, - -	8 10	3 30	10 15
Port Credit, -	8 25	3 45	10 30
Oakville, - -	8 43	4 03	10 53
Bronte, - -	8 55	4 15	11 15
Wellington Square,	9 10	4 30	11 35
Hamilton, - -	9 30	4 50	12 00

GOING EAST.

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation		Mixed	Mail
	A M	P M	A M	A M
Hamilton, - -	10 40	6 10	3 10
Wellington Square,	11 00	6 30	3 35
Bronte, - -	11 15	6 45	3 55
Oakville, - -	11 27	7 00	4 15
Port Credit, -	11 45	7 20	4 35
Mimico, - -	12 00	7 35	4 50
Toronto, - -	12 15	7 50	5 05

The above Trains connect at Hamilton with Trains of Great Western Railway running in connection with Trains to Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, Boston, New York, and with Michigan Central Railroad Trains at Detroit for Chicago, St. Louis, &c. &c.

The 3 P.M. Train from Toronto meets G W R Accommodation Train going West at Hamilton, for Preston Galt, Paris, London, and intermediate Stations

Through Tickets for any of the above places can be obtained at the Ticket Office, Toronto Station

Stages run daily between Oakville, Mil on, Georgetown, &c, &c, &c.

C. J. BRYDGES,
Managing Director
Great Western Railway Offices,
Toronto, March, 1856.

HIDES WANTED.

ANY Quantity of Hides will be taken in for the Sandwich Tannery at either of the Saddler's Shops in Sandwich or Windsor, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

JAS. WOODBRIDGE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Patent Medicines.

THE CHEST.

Sir Astley Cooper, Bart., M. D.,

THE eminent Medical Practitioner, has left a valuable legacy to the world in his Great Preventative of Consumption, and unfailing cure for Pulmonary Diseases, without the use of Medicine. Sir Astley Cooper, Bart., invented and advised the use of the

MEDICATED FUR CHEST PROTECTOR,

To all persons of all ages and conditions, as a certain and a safe shield against those fearful diseases, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs, Colds, and other afflictions of the Lungs, which arise from the exposed state of the Chest, according to fashion and the continual changes of our climate.

"The Protector" is simply a chemically prepared fur, lined with silk and padded, which suspended from the neck, covers the chest, in so agreeable a manner, that, once worn it becomes a necessity and a comfort.

"The Protector," although but recently introduced into America is making rapid progress in the United States, the Canadas, South America, and the West Indies. It has for a long time been a staple article in England and on the continent of Europe while it has grown in many countries to the position of an article of dress.

To demonstrate these facts enquire of any English resident in your vicinity of his knowledge of the beneficial effects of wearing the Protector without recourse to doctoring of any kind.

The use of wearing these articles is a mere trifle and one will last some years. No one who values the health of himself or his family will be without them. The Hospitals in this country are not alone recommending them. Brecourt, Bradley & Co., of London, and Manchester, England, were originally entrusted with the manufacture of the Protectors, by the lamented Dr. Cooper, and continue to manufacture according to his original instructions, and therefore recommend those who would wear "The Protector," to see to it that it is being genuine.

Remember this is a staple article and no Patent Medicine.

RETAIL PRICES.

Gent's Size, - -	$7,50 each.
Ladie's do. - -	1,00 do.
Boy's & Misses' do. -	75 do.

HARCOURT, BRADLEY & CO.,

38 Ann Street and 102 Nassau Street, New York U. S.

Principal Warehouse, 102 Wood Street, Cheapside, London, Manufactory, 44 Market Street, Manchester, England.

H. B. & Co. are establishing Depots for the sale of "The Protector" in all parts of America. Physicians, Surgeons, Druggists, Fishery, Dry Goods Merchants, Hatters, and Milliners, also Gentleman's Furnishing Store-Keepers are entrusted with the wholesale and retail distribution of them, and to whom most liberal terms are offered for their enterprise, and a splendid opportunity opens for safe and profitable business.

For terms, apply to

HARCOURT, BRADLEY & CO.,

38, Ann Street, New York.

DR. VERVAIS

Pulmonic Syrup,

A NEW PREPARATION OF

COD LIVER OIL SYRUP,

FOR THE CURE OF

COLDS, COUGHS, ASTHMA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, AND ALL DISEASES OF THE LUNGS.

SINCE so many excellent Medicines have been offered to the Public, and by excellent physicians, it, it be thought superfluous on my part to offer any NEW PREPARATION. But from many years experience and practice, both in the laboratory and with my patients, I find that the best preparation is the best that has yet been offered to the public. The Chemical Composition is such that the disagreeable taste is removed with out in the least diminishing the virtues of the Oil. It can be taken with perfect safety in all cases, and at all ages without injuring the constitution. And its properties are so remarkable as instantaneously to remove the nervous irritability of the Lungs, soften the Cough, and remove the dryness of the Throat and the viscid phlegm with which the passage of the Lungs are loaded. It diffuses a gentle warmth throughout the system, secures a free circulation of the blood, and opens every pore of the skin,—thus giving universal egress to the impurities which all systems engender, and which are the true origin of nearly all the diseases to which the human race is liable. Too much cannot be said in favor of a Medicine which will restore the languishing and dying patient from a death-bed to the best health, and make him enjoy the real blessing of a healthy constitution. We have now the radical cure, "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup," which I not only recommend, but WARRANT IT TO CURE the diseases for which it is made, if the patient perseveres in the use of a bottle or more. The most ample experience justifies the Proprietor in speaking so candidly and confidently of his discovery, when Patients who have been suffering from severe cough, whooping-cough, colds and catarrhal affections, have with the use of a few bottles, not only been restored to their wonted health, but their whole constitution stronger than for many years previous. All persons who have once used this Medicine have instantly ordered more for the use of themselves and friends. The Proprietor again warrants his preparation to be everything he claims for it; and he only asks the trial of a single bottle to convince every one that it is without doubt or hesitation the most palatable, speedy, and efficacious Medicine ever made use of in America. He has especially devoted 12 years to the preparation of such Medicines, and he can at last hail with pleasure and delight this wonderful preparation of the only effeacious Remedy for the cure of nearly all Diseases of the Lungs, particularly Hectic Fevers, Night Sweats, Dyspnea, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all Pains in the Chest. I have only further to add that this Compound has not been extended beyond my limits as a prescription until astonishing success attended its use in removing the diseases for which I recommended it. It became very popular, and was called for so frequently, I found it necessary to prepare it in large quantities to meet the constant demand for it. Since this Medicine is carefully compounded by myself, who am thoroughly acquainted with the medicinal qualities and effects of each article separately, and of their combined influence when chemically united and have also a perfect knowledge of the human system, and of the functions of each organ both in its healthy and diseased condition, I can therefore recommend this preparation with the greatest confidence, and am therefore fully persuaded from past experience that it will give Universal Satisfaction; but, at the same time, I do not pretend to assert, as medicines are generally foisted up to the eyes of the public, that it is a "Cure-All," nor that it is, under all circumstances, absolutely infallible. Yet I can truly say that I am acquainted with no chemical composition of the kind so well adapted, except in chronic cough, and catarrhal affection of debilitated habits, to re-establish a healthy condition of the secretery organs, to promote the dissolution of the deposite, and to give strength to the system—as this Cod-Liver Oil Syrup. Also in allaying the irritability of the muscular fibre of the bronchial tubes of the lungs and the spasmodic contraction of those tubes in the asthmatic patient, or in any case of dyspnea (tightness of breathing). Consumptive patients will find a great advantage in using this Syrup, not on account of it facilitating the digestion of food, but giving rest, but being very nutritive in itself.

This virtue should draw the attention of the sufferer. There is no medicine which acts so quickly on the respiratory organs as this "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup," because it is received into the circulation in the same state as it is in the lungs. The effects of the Syrup have been so successful in removing the various diseases for which I have severally recommended it, that I hereby assure the public that they need not fear either to use or recommend it; as it will, in a far greater degree, relieve all that is stated in the directions accompanying the Article.

Dose for a growing up person, one tea-spoonful four or five times a day.—A child of eight to twelve years, half a teaspoonful three times a day—from one to two years of age, twenty drops three or four times a day.

AYER'S PILLS

Are curing the Sick to an extent never before known of any Medicine.

INVALIDS, READ AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

JULES HAUEL, Esq., the well known perfumer, of Chemist Building, Philadelphia, writes: "Your Cherry Pectoral and Ague Cure are found at almost every hotel, steamboat, and store on the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers. Pills, I have found them a better family medicine, for common complaints, than any I have ever known. Many of my friends have realized marked benefits from them, and one inside with me is daily receiving that same benefit. They are not only efficient, but safe and pleasant to take. They are not only efficient, but safe and pleasant to take. They are not only efficient, but safe and pleasant to take. They are qualities which, in my opinion, are not enjoyed by the public when they are known."

The venerable Minister, the Rev. Dr. WARDLAW writes from Baltimore, 15th April, 1854:

"Sir: I have used your Pills. I have taken your Pills with great benefit, for the Restlessness, languor, loss of appetite, and Bilious derangement, which I have often experienced in the spring. A few doses of your Pills cured me. I have used your Cherry Pectoral, and find it to be the best family for coughs and colds with unfailing success. Your male medicines which you have left with me, I propose to commence for the good you have done and are doing."

JOHN F. BEATTY, Esq., Sec. of the Penn. Railroad Co. says:

"Sir: I have used your Cathartic Pills in my practice, I certify from experience that they are an invaluable purgative. In several cases of habitual costiveness, of long standing headache, indigestion, constipation, and the great variety of disorders that follow, they have done more than any other. In all cases where a purgative remedy is required, I confidently recommend them, as I find them to be far superior to any other I have ever found. They are sure to relieve speedily, and certain to cure the many ills which make them an invaluable article for public use. I have for many years used your Cherry Pectoral in my family for Cough medicine in the world; and these Pills are in no sense inferior to that admirable preparation for the treatment of diseases."

"Aiken, Mc., Nov. 25, 1853.

"Dr. J. C. AYER.—Dear Sir: I have been relieved from my birth with scrofula in its worst form. I am now about twenty years' trial, and an untold of amount of suffering. I have been under the care of a physician for weeks by your Pills. With what feelings of rejoicing I write you that I am completed when you realize what I have suffered, and how long.

"Never until now have I been free from this loathsome disease in some form or other. Your Sarsaparilla has worked with out in the least diminishing the virtues of the Oil. It can be taken with perfect safety in all cases, and at all ages without injuring the constitution. And its properties are so remarkable as instantaneously to remove the nervous irritability of the Lungs, soften the Cough, and remove the dryness of the Throat and the viscid phlegm with which the passage of the Lungs are loaded. It diffuses a gentle warmth throughout the system, secures a free circulation of the blood, and opens every pore of the skin,—thus giving universal egress to the impurities which all systems engender, and which are the true origin of nearly all the diseases to which the human race is liable. Too much cannot be said in favor of a Medicine which will restore the languishing and dying patient from a death-bed to the best health, and make him enjoy the real blessing of a healthy constitution. We have now the radical cure, "Cod-Liver Oil Syrup," which I not only recommend, but WARRANT IT TO CURE the diseases for which it is made, if the patient perseveres in the use of a bottle or more. The most ample experience justifies the Proprietor in speaking so candidly and confidently of his discovery, when Patients who have been suffering from severe cough, whooping-cough, colds and catarrhal affections, have with the use of a few bottles, not only been restored to their wonted health, but their whole constitution stronger than for many years previous. All persons who have once used this Medicine have instantly ordered more for the use of themselves and friends. The Proprietor again warrants his preparation to be everything he claims for it; and he only asks the trial of a single bottle to convince every one that it is without doubt or hesitation the most palatable, speedy, and efficacious Medicine ever made use of in America. He has especially devoted 12 years to the preparation of such Medicines, and he can at last hail with pleasure and delight this wonderful preparation of the only effeacious Remedy for the cure of nearly all

"Sandy Creek, Oswego Co., Ohio, April 5th, 1854.

"Sir: I have great satisfaction in assuring you that my mother has been entirely cured of her Dyspepsia by your medicines. My wife was cured, two years since, of a severe cough by your Cherry Pectoral, and since then has enjoyed perfect health. Your Cathartic Pills have entirely relieved me from a dyspeptic and costive habit, which has grown upon me for some years,—indeed, this cure is much more important to me than the loss of time, as I was prevented from the best Physicians which this section of the country affords, and from many of the numerous remedies I had taken.

"I am, Sir, yours, &c., LUCIUS E. MITCHELL."

"Dr. J. C. AYER.—Honored Sir: I have made a fair trial of your Cherry Pectoral, and have found it to be a most excellent cough medicine. Several persons to whom I have recommended it, have used it with perfect success. Your Cathartic Pills have relieved me, and I have subsequently found them a most valuable remedy when the bowels are deranged. I feel in better health now than for some years before. I feel confident of the beneficial effects of your Cathartic Pills. Yours with great respect, LUCIUS E. MITCHELL."

The above are all from persons who are publicly known where they reside, and to whom we can make reference statements without a thorough knowledge of the truth of the

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, MASS.

GEO. and G. A. BULLOCK, and
J. A. VERVAIS, SANDWICH;
P. OUILLETTE, Windsor:
And every Druggist and Merchan in Canada.

Refused

MAPLE LEAF.

James H. Wilkinson] "PROGRESS." [Proprietor and Publisher.

VOL. I. SANDWICH, C. W., FRIDAY, APRIL 25, 1856. NO. 9.

THE MAPLE LEAF,
IS PUBLISHED
Every Friday Morning,
BY
J. H. WILKINSON,
BEDFORD STREET;
Sandwich, Canada West.

Terms—Eight shillings and ninepence Cy, per annum, if paid in advance; or Ten Shillings at the end of the year.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Six lines or under, first insertion, 2s 6d, cy
Each subsequent insertion, . . 0 7½ "

Advertisements over six lines, 4d per line for the first insertion, and one penny per line for every subsequent insertion. A liberal discount made to Merchants and others who advertise by the year.

Advertisements sent in for insertion without written directions, will be continued till forbid and the usual rates charged.

CLUBS.

Any person procuring 10 subscribers will be entitled to a copy gratis. Payment to be made in advance.

The JOB OFFICE connected with the "Maple Leaf" is in every respect complete for the dispatch of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

Professional Cards.

Mr. William Johnson,
Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c., &c.
Sandwich, C. W.

Mr. Charles Baby,
Attorney and Councillor at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, &c.
Office, Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. J. H. Wilkinson,
Law, Chancery, Conveyancing, and Land Agency Office,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. Louis J. Fluett,
Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, Conveyancer and Land Agent,
Sandwich.

Mr. S. S. Macdonell,
Barrister, Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, &c., &c.
Windsor, C. W.

Mr. John O'Connor, Jun.,
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c.,
Windsor, C. W.

Charles Eugene Casgrain, M.D.
Physician and Surgeon,
Office and Residence, opposite the "Mear's Hotel,"
Sandwich, Canada West.

Dr. Reynolds,
Physician and Surgeon,
Amherstburg.

John Adley,
Physician and Surgeon, &c.,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

ALEXANDER GORDON,
NOTARY PUBLIC AND INSURANCE AGENT
Sandwich & Windsor, Canada West.

John McCrac,
Auctioneer, Insurance and General Agent
Windsor, Canada West.

Bank of Upper Canada Agency,
Windsor, Canada West.
Office Hours, 10, A.M., to 3, P.M.

Philip S. Donnelly,
Provincial Land Surveyer, &c.,
Moore, County of Lambton.

LAFFERTY & JONES,
AUCTIONEERS AND APPRAISERS,
Amherstburg, Canada West.

P. Marentette,
Gunsmith and Manufacturer of Guns:
Every description of Fire-arms repaired at his shop, on Bedford Street,
Sandwich.

L. P. St. Amour,
IMPORTER, AND WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS
CROCKERY, HARDWARE,
PERFUMERY, &c.
Sandwich, Canada West.

Sandwich Post Office.
Open daily, from Nine till Twelve, A.M., and from half-past Twelve till Five, P.M.
P. H. MORIN, Post Master.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware
Crockery, Boots & Shoes
&C. &C. &C.
Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich.

Bartley and Pinney,
Provincial Land Surveyors, Civil and Topographical Engineers, Draughtsmen and Architects.
Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.

MR. JAS. WOODBRIDGE, JUN.,
Division Court Agent, and General Agent for Collecting Debts.
Sandwich, Canada West.

S. D. ELWOOD & CO.,
PUBLISHERS,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
BOOKS, STATIONERY,
AND ALL KINDS OF
PAPERS,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS STOCK
MANUFACTURERS OF
BLANK BOOKS
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.
Orders for Lithographed Letter and Bill Heads, Maps, Drafts, Stock Certificates, &c., &c., &c.,
EXECUTED WITH PROMPTNESS.
192 Jefferson Avenue,
S. D. ELWOOD, J. C. PARSONS, } DETROIT.

WILLIAM SWIFT,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
IS prepared to attend upon the Gentlemen of Amherstburg in his line of business, and is not afraid to assert that he will cut and Fit in the latest and most fashionable Styles as well as any Tailor west of London.
Amherstburg, Feb. 29th, 1856.

George Hann,
DEALER IN FURS AND SKINS.
The highest price paid for Shipping Furs at his Fur Store in the Town of Sandwich.
15th March, 1856.

NIAGARA
MUTUAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.
GEORGE BULLOCK, Local Agent for the Townships of Sandwich, Maidstone, Rochester and Tilbury West; also the Village of Windsor. Address, Sandwich Post Office.

ROSE DALE MILLS,
THE highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Rye, Corn, or Buck Wheat, either at the Mills or at the Store of
GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

JAMES JESSOP,
CARPENTER & JOINER,
WILL always be on hand to attend to the erection of Building, and every description of Carpenter and Joiner work upon the shortest notice.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WARNER'S EXCHANGE,
AMHERSTBURG, C. W.
CHARLES WARNER, PROPRIETOR

HIDES WANTED.
ANY Quantity of Hides will be taken in for the Sandwich Tannery at either of the Saddler's Shops in Sandwich or Windsor, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.
JAS. WOODBRIDGE.

SIMPSON'S EATING SALOON.
MR. SIMPSON would inform the Gentlemen of Sandwich and vicinity that he is prepared at all hours to furnish "Hot Meals," and those who may favor his establishment with a call, can depend upon having, if they wish, a "steak" cooked in the good old English style, with all the little etceteras.
Dinner Parties accommodated upon the shortest notice.
N.B.—A few persons can be accommodoted with good clean beds.
No 253 Jefferson Avenue Detroit Mich. few doors above the Theatre.

NEW LIVERY STABLE.
JOHN LEWIS, having purchased the Livery Stable in the Town of Sandwich, formerly kept by C. F. Labadie, will carry it on in a style that has never been known in this place before. Fresh horses and new carriages are being added to this establishment every day, and persons who patronise him may expect to be furnished with "Crack Teams."

PAINT SHOP.
FRANCOIS PAYETTE having opened a Paint Shop in the Town of Sandwich, opposite the "Sandwich Exchange," will be happy to attend to the painting of houses, Graining, Glazing, Varnishing, and, in fact, every description of work in his line of business with despatch, and at moderate charges.
N.B.—Buggies and Carriages painted and varnished upon reasonable terms.

Poetry.

Song of Faith and Affection--Moonlight on the Sea.

BY SIDNEY DYER.

Oh, come at night when all is calm—
Then, dearest, come with me,
That we may feel the witching charm
Of moonlight on the sea.
The stars are on the deep below,
And in the skies above;
Oh, come and thus shall be the glow
That lights our world of love.

Oh, come amid the hush of night—
Then, dearest, come with me,
And you shall taste the sweet delight
Of moonlight on the sea.
No billow curls the ocean's breast,
No clould is in the sky;
Oh, come and thus shall be the rest
For which our bosoms sigh.

Oh, come in such an hour as this—
Come, dearest come to me;
There is a sweet and tranquil bliss
In moonlight on the sea.
When stars are on the deep below,
And in the skies above;
Then come, and thus shall be the glow
That lights our world of love.

—Musical World and Times.

THE BANISHED SAILOR.

BY AUSTIN C. BURDICK.

Captain Robbins told us the next story. He was a stout, powerfully built man, and had been a ship master over twenty years.

'Well, boys,' he commenced, 'my story has but little of the thrill to it, but it has a curious sort of winding up, as you shall hear. Some ten years ago—I had command then of the same ship which I now own—I cleared at Boston for Calcutta. About half of my crew were furnished by a shipping agent; and they were certainly good-looking men. I had no reason to complain of them on the score of seamanship, for they were good seamen and understood their profession.—For a week all went well, and I had begun to flatter myself that we should have no trouble on the voyage, when one of the men commenced traits of character which I did not much fancy.

His name was Mark Lofton. He was a stout, broad chested fellow, strong as an ox, and with a set of limbs which looked as if they were made of twisted ropes. His first exhibitions of evil were among the men, where he seemed inclined to provoke quarrels and fighting. I called him aft and bade him let me see no more of his mischief.—He made me no reply, and went forward with a sullen dogged look.

'Matters passed on for a week longer, and at the end of that time, as I came on deck one morning, I found a row going upon the fore-castle. I hurried forward, and found that Lofton had been kicking up a muss as usual. I inquired what had caused the disturbance, but received no answer, so I turned to a foretopman named Anderson, and ordered him to explain to me what had happened.

'Why, sir,' said he, casting a kind of fear ful glance towards the evil man, 'Lofton came up a little while ago, and found Bill sitting on his ditty bag, an' he shoved him off. Bill told him not to do that again, an' that Lofton up and hits him a kick, and was going to pitch into him, when me an' Tom interfered, Lofton swore that he'd murder us if we didn't let go of him, but we swore that he shouldn't harm Bill, for Bill was only a boy compared with him. That is where we was, sir, when you came.'

'It's a lie!' said Lofton, with his fists doubled up.

'Be careful,' said I, looking him sharply in the eye. I supposed he hated to have the men see him cowed, so he thought he'd show me a little of his spunk. At any rate, he turned full upon me and said—and he looked savage, too, when he spoke:

'Don't think I am afraid of you.'

That started me. 'Look out, I said, 'or you'll find yourself in rather rough hands.'

At that he shook his fist in my face. I wasn't a very weak man then. I was taller than Lofton, and not so stiff, and my fist was heavy. With a movement so quick that he couldn't avoid it I gave him a blow upon the side of the head, just below the ear, that felled him to the deck as though he'd been struck with a cannon ball. At first I thought he was dead, but he soon began to move, and ere long he got upon his feet. The first word that escaped from his mouth was an oath, and directed to me. I struck him again, in the same place, but heavier than before, and he fell again like dead. When he next got up he seemed inclined to fear me, and he kept his tongue to himself.

'Lofton, I said to him—and I spoke rather more kindly than I would have believed it possible for me to have spoken, 'there is no need of my saying much, for you are sensible enough to know what order and subordination there must be on board a ship. It gives me more pain to punish you than it can possibly give you to receive it. I want you to understand this. Now why can't you behave as you should? you know what your duty is, and you know how much happier you will be if you make yourself pleasant. I went on in this way some time, and when I went aft again I left him with his head down. I made no threat of any kind, but I talked just though I didn't believe he would act so any more.

After this I fairly thought that Lofton would behave himself. He was sober and regular at his duty, but he had little to say to the rest of the crew. He was sullen most of the time, and I don't think he spoke a dozen words a day, that he wasn't obliged to speak. His peculiarities attracted my attention, and once I tried to get at the secret of his strange behaviour. One night when he had the wheel, I stood by his side and asked him how long he had followed the sea. He told me ever since he could remember save at intervals which he had spent on shore. I next asked him if either of his parents was living. He said no. I was then going to ask another question, when he looked me in the face, and said he:

'There, captain, you'd better stop where you are. I see your drift, and I ain't fond of telling my own affairs.

'But you are a strange man, I cannot see through you at all,' said I.

'Well, and what's the need of your seein' through me?' he growled, giving the wheel an extra spoke a port, and heaving it back again.

I said no more to him, but went about my own business satisfied that he would do best alone.

We had reached the Cape of Good Hope, and thus far Lofton had maintained a dogged, sullen subordination since the scene to which I have referred; but after we had doubled the cape, he commenced once more to show his evil pranks. One night he knocked Bill Cookson down, and kicked up a general row. I hurried forward and put a stop to it as soon as possible: but this did not stop it, for the next day he had another fight. I told him if he did so again I would put him in irons, but he took no notice of my threat. He seemed to have become utterly reckless of all consequences and at enmity with the whole crew. In fact, he appeared to take a sort of fiendish delight in feeling that we all hated him.—He had now got so that there was no safety with him, and I carried my threat into exe cution. I put him in irons, and I had to knock him down first, I kept him confined a week; and then I let him free, but after that I went armed, for I knew not what he might do.

But even this seemed to have no influence but to make him more ugly.

The men all feared him, for he was powerful; and more than that, they feared that he would not hesitate to use a knife if provoked to it. At length I got out of patience and I found that the peace of the crew was destroyed while he remained on board. I tried to reason with the fellow, but he would only snarl and scowl at my persuasions. I was puzzled; I had tried every sort of means, and yet not a particle of impression could I have upon him. I had urged him with all the power of which I was capable, I had pointed out to him in every conceived form the real joys of life he was throwing away. In short, no father ever talked more kindly and feelingly to a child than I did to him.

But finally I gave up. One day Lofton had been worse than usual, and as he gave me a threatening answer, I simply said:—'Now, Mark, I've come to the last resort.—Let me see one other act of evil from you, and I will set you ashore upon the first land we see! I will do it as true as there is a God in heaven!'

He looked at me sharply as I spoke, but I could not see that it affected him any.—However I let him rest at that. On the very next day the men were sent aloft to shake the reefs out of the topsails. I heard an oath from the main-topsail yard, and on looking up I saw that Lofton was having a spat with Bill Cookson again. Lofton was on the Flemish horse casting loose the earing and Cookson was next to him. 'Let me alone,' I heard Cookson say, I want to do my duty.' On the next instant I saw Lofton spring in and give the youngster a blow that knocked him from the yard. Quick as I could I ordered the men in from the yard and hove the ship to. Bill was picked up, though it was a narrow chance, for the blow he had received had almost stunned him. As soon as the men had come down, I went forward with some irons and ordered Lofton to give me his hands, but he refused. I called on my men to help me, when the fellow drew his knife and swore he'd run the first man through who placed a hand on him. The words were hardly out of his mouth when my mate struck him down with a belaying pin, and in a few moments more we had him ironed; I spoke not a word, but confined him under the top gallant forecastle.

Three days from that time one of the lookouts reported land on the larboard bow. We steered for it at once, and foud it to be a small island, not more than three or four miles in diameter, and well wooded. I ordered the boats to be lowered and then put Lofton into it. It seemed hard to leave a human being in such a place, and I made up my mind that if he would only beg for mercy, and promise to behave himself, I would recant.

But he did no such thing. I went to the shore with him, and he was sullen and silent and after we landed him he spoke not a word until I had spoken first.

'You won't repent, will you?' I said.

His answer was only a volley of oaths, and I came off and left him, and ere long afterwards my ship was on her way again.—I turned to look back upon the island and saw Lofton standing nearly where I had left him. He was gazing after us, then I determined that if he would only make the least sign towards the ship I would go about and get him. But as soon as he saw that I was looking at him, he plunged into the wood. We stood on, but I must confess that the face of that lonely man haunted me. The run to Calcutta was made in safety, and on my way back I meant to stop at the island and see if Lofton was still alive but I could not find it again. I did not know its name, though of course I had its latitude and longitude, and when within a few days' sail of the island a storm came upon us, and we lost the place, so I saw him not.

'Time passed on, and nine years rolled away. Once afterwards I found the little island—it was nearly on the southern tropic—and went all over it. It was five years after I had left Lofton. I found a hut made of boughs, and other signs of humanity, but there was no human being there. I forgot to tell you that after we had set Lofton on shore, I put after him a package containing a gun, a knife, and some powder and ball. In the hut there was a rude fire-place, and the ashes and coals were still, there, though caked down by the rains which could now come through the broken roof. As I could find no further traces, I of course, supposed the man must have found some means of leaving the island.

'Last November, I anchored my ship in Port Phillip, Australia, I went there to take out provisions and clothing for the miners, and also to carry passengers. I remained at Melbourne a month. One day after I had got all loaded up for my return voyage, and was only waiting for some passengers to come down from the mountains, I received a message requesting me to call at the hotel and see a sick man. I went up at once, and the clerk of the house, who knew me and knew what I came for, conducted me up stairs, and showed me into one of the best rooms in the establishment. There sat a middle aged gentleman, who arose as I entered and asked if I was Capt. Robbins.—I told him I was, and then he turned towards a heavy curtain which formed a complete partition, and motioned for me to follow him. In there I found a bed, and upon it was a man whom I soon recognized as one I had seen before. His features were sunken and death like, and the skin as dark as an Indian's. The hair was gray; but 'twas the great black eye I recognized.

'Ah, captain,' he uttered, trying to raise himself up, but failing, 'don't you remember John Wallace?

I was upon the point of replying that I had forgotten the name, when he made a sign for the physician to leave. As soon as the man of medicine was gone, a strange light shot athwart the sick man's features, and in a low tone he said:

'But you haven't forgotten Mark Lofton?

You may believe I started. I recognized him in an instant, but how fallen and faded. He extended his hand and I took it.

'Mark,' said I, 'I am glad to see you once more, but sorry to see you so. But you've caused me many unhappy moments.'

'In wishing that I had not left you on that island.'

'Tut, tut, say no more about that. 'Twas the making of me. But you musn't expect me to talk much, for I've but precious little life in me, and must say what I've got to say first. Yes, you made me, and I've sent for you now to see you, and tell you. I knew when you first came into port, and then I hoped I should get well enough to go to the States with you.'

'I told him that he might get well as it was, and that I would wait for him, even though I was now ready to sail.'

'But suppose I couldn't pay you!' he said.

'I told him he shouldn't pay me if he couldn't.'

'Well, well,' he uttered in hollow tone, 'you won't be burdened with me. But listen, I say leaving me on that island was the making of me. For the first week of my being there I only prayed that I might at some future time get near enough to you to murder you, and during that time I lived on berries and roots. After that I began to feel lonesome, and my anger cooled down. Then I resolved to open the bundle you had done up for me, when I found the gun and ball, and powder, the first feeling of gratitude that I had experienced for years came to my soul. You may know now what I never would tell you before. When I was young, I loved a gentle girl, and she was snatched from me—ruined—by another. I met her seducer, and I shot him. I was taken up; and broke jail, and from that time I allowed my heart to sink into a hatred of everything. My parents were both dead, and I knew of no relative on the face of the earth. Ugliness became a disease, and my baser passions I ever nursed. So I lived for many years when you first knew me. But new feelings came to me in my banishment.—When I had no human being to converse with, then I began to realize how necessary companionship was to even life itself. As I became more and more lonesome, I remembered the good lessons you tried to teach me, and then I began to, acknowledge to my self that you had been forbearing and kind, even beyond my deserts.

'And so a year passed away, and at the end of that time I had actually learned all your lessons word for word, and had now continually that I had profited by them.—Prayer followed next, and then came the resolution that if ever I could get free from the island I would be a better man. You may think it strange, but I had now come to look back upon you as the only guide to my reformed life. Your lips were the only lips that had ever, since my boyhood, spoken one kind word of counsel and advice and upon your sayings my whole superstructure of character was founded. If I ever for one moment blamed you for leaving me there the thought how you bore with me, and how I trampled upon your kindness, drove such thoughts away. Ah, you have little idea what thoughts will come to a man in such loneliness.

'Four years passed away and during that time I lived on fowl's eggs and fruit, and in a hut which I built of boughs. At length a brig was becalmed off the island, and I got on board. I gave my name as John Wallace, and professed to be cast away four years before. That brig came here, and I at once made my way to the mines, which were then just opened. I followed up my resolution, and have been fortunate. But I've met one enemy now that can't be overcome. Yet, what is that?' He spoke this in a loud voice, and fairly sprang up to a sitting posture. 'What is that?' he repaired, while a bright fire burned in his eye. 'But for you I should have died a miserable, degraded being, but now I am happy and contented. The lesson was a hard one, but nothing could have turned a heart like mine. I have seen my God, and in my soul I know all my sins are forgiven; washed away by the blood of the Lamb!'

He fell back exhausted, and at that moment the doctor came in. Lofton tried to speak again but he was too weak. The physician told me to come again in the morning. I returned to the ship; and on the next morning, went back to the hotel. I met the doctor, and he told me my friend was dead. I went up to look at him, and those dark, sunburnt features did wear a smile in their last silent repose.

'He was a noble good man,' uttered the doctor, as we stood looking on the sleeper.

'He was,' I returned.

'And yet a strange man,' doctor added. 'He had told me all, and his attachment to you is surely a singular one, or, at least, fostered under singular circumstances.

So we conversed some time on the strange subject, and at length, as I announced that I must return, the doctor took me to the adjoining apartment where there was a large trunk with my name on it.

'There,' he said, 'that trunk is yours.—And there is a letter which, you will observe was signed in the presence of a justice and three witnesses.'

I opened the letter, it was quite long; and had been written by his attorney, at Lofton's dictation. It reiterated the thanks I had already bestowed upon me, and informed me that the trunk, and all that was in it, save one small package was mine; and that upon that package I should find directions for its disposition. And last, I was forbidden to open the trunk until I passed the Cape of Good Hope. I waited to follow Mrrk Lofton's remains to the grave, and then I set sail.

I have been many times anxious to leave the Cape behind me, but never so anxious as then. But the time at length came, and on the morning that my ship struck the Atlantic, I opened the trunk. I found a lot of old papers at the top, and below them I came to a Bible. Next I came to a lot of canvass bags, and they were filled with gold. At the bottom was an iron bound box, and upon it was a letter directed to me. I took it up, and saw upon the top of the box, written the named of "William Cookson." Bill was at that moment within three feet of me, my first mate! We read the letters together—one for him, and one for me—and in them Lofton hoped that the remembrance here bestowed, might at least be some little sign of his well wishes for an honest man whom he had once so deeply wronged.

In my letter I was desired to get the box to Cookson if he was living, and if he was dead I was to divide it amongst such of the crew of the old ship as were known to me.

I will only add, that Mark Lofton had left me forty seven thousand dollars and to Bill, twelve thousand. My mate and I had some strange feelings at that moment, and when we spoke the name of him who had thus enriched us, our hands involuntarily met in a tremulous embrace, and warm tears trembled upon our eye lids.

You now know why I have given up going to sea any more. You can see how natural it was that Cookson and I should enter into partnership in the shipping business; and you also will understand why we have called our new ship the Mark Lofton.

Miscellany.

A Marrying Man.—A few days ago Judge Perrin, of this city, married a man for the fifth time. A singular feature in the case is that the fifth wife was also the third wife. The third marriage not proving a happy one, the third parties were separated and were divorced. The man married again, and when death claimed his fourth wife, the disconsolate widower returned to No. 3, and wooed and won her.—Judge Perrin thinks he has tied them up effectually this time. The lucky man had the impudence to claim a reduction of the marriage fee in consequence of the large business he was doing in that line.—Covington Journal.

A Man of Taste.—A stout red faced gentleman, in a white beaver, blue coat, and buff vest, bet a £10 note that he could close his eyes, and by taste name any kind of liquor in the house. The bet was taken, and the process of winning or losing commenced forthwith. 'This is genuine port,' said the fat gentleman, tasting from a wine glass.' 'And this--this is whisky,' and so on through the hotel's 'manifest,' A wag then poured a few drops of water into the glass and handed it to the connoisseur.—This is—ah—this (tasting it)—by Jupiter! gentlemen, I shall lose the bet, I never tasted this liquor before.'

Well Done, Canada.—We learn with great pleasure that Samuel Morse, Esq., of this town, the successful competitor at the Paris Exposition, has received an order from a New York house for six of his improved ploughs, to be sent to Austria.—Halton Journal.

A young couple were sitting together in a romantic spot, with birds and flowers about them, when the following dialogue ensued:

"My dear, if the sacrifice of my life would please you, most gladly would I lay it at your feet." "Oh, you are too kind! But it just reminds me that I wish you would stop using tobacco." My love, I can't; it is a habit to which I am wedded." "Very well, sir, since that is the way you lay down your life for me, and as you are already wedded to tobacco, I'll take good care that you never are wedded to me, as it would be bigamy."

European Intelligence.

FURTHER BY THE BALTIC.

CONCLUSION OF PEACE.

(From the London Gazette Extra, April 1.)

Foreign Office, March, 31, 1856.

A despatch has been received from the Earl of Clarendon, Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, dated Paris, March 30, announcing the signature of peace at 2 o'clock on that day, at the Foreign Office, in Paris.

The Plenipotentiaries of Great Britain, of Austria, of France, of Prussia, of Russia, of Sardinia, and of Turkey, have affixed their signatures to the treaty, which puts an end to the war, and which, while definitely settling the Eastern question, establishes the tranquility of Europe on solid and durable bases.

The exchange of the ratifications will take place at Paris in four weeks, or sooner if possible; until that time the stipulations of the treaty cannot be made public.

Paris, March 30, 1856.

At half-past two o'clock to-day the Prefect of Police had the following announcement placarded:

Congress of Paris, March 30.

Peace was signed to-day, at 1 o'clock, at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

The Plenipotentiaries of France, of Austria, of Great Britain, of Prussia, of Russia, of Sardinia and of Turkey affixed their signatures to the treaty which puts an end to the present war, and which in settling the Eastern question, places the peace of Europe upon a firm and durable basis.

Pietri, Prefect of Police.

SPEECH OF THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON.

The Times Paris correspondent writes that, when the news of the signing of the treaty was announced to the Emperor, he expressed himself to the following effect: He thanked the plenipotentiaries for having come in person to him with such agreeable tidings. He observed that the result of their labors during the Conferences was the complete realization of the speech delivered by Lord Clarendon in the House of Lords, and that the peace which the allies were determined on concluding was one which carried with it no humiliation to Russia, and which did not compromise the dignity or independence of any one. It was in fact such as a great nation might propose or accept without degradation; and it therefore had all the elements of solidity and durability And he added that so favorable a result was, in a great measure, owing to the conciliatory spirit and the moderation which marked the policy of England, and which was particularly felt in the course of the present Conferences

The same writer says there are other questions of paramount interest pending, and it would not be proper for the Plenipotentiaries to leave without taking them into consideration:—"I understand that Lord Clarendon has no intention of quitting Paris for the moment. I believe I am not in the slightest degree mistaken when I state that the best feeling prevails here among all classes, and almost all parties, at the conduct of England throughout: and the impression is that the peace will be found honorable for all concerned, and satisfactory."

The Post Paris correspondent writes:—"If we make up the accounts, perhaps the contract is in favor of Russia, to whom more has been given up than she has renounced. Such a result is naturally the case, because it was never the intention of England and France to punish Muscovite aggression with conquest involving loss of territory, or permanent occupation."

SIGNING OF THE PEACE TREATY IN PARIS—INCIDENTS AND REMINISCENCES.

[Paris (March 30) Correspondence of London Post.]

The guns of the Invalides announced at two o'clock this day that a treaty of peace had been signed. The document was prepared and ready for execution on Saturday, so that the Plenipotentiaries had nothing to do but attach their names to the articles with the historical pen of the eagle's wing, decorated with jewels, which the Empress had thought proper to command. The event had been so confidently expected, that it appeared to produce little effect in Paris. The promenaders of the Champs Elysees, it being a bright sunny day, were legion, and might be heard to exclaim, "Aves-vous entendu le canon? La paix est signee."—There will be illuminations at the hotels of the foreign Ambassadors, probably to-night, and I presume a general illumination will take place to morrow evening.

The Plenipotentiaries were all in full uniform when they signed the treaty, of which here were seven copies, obliging altogether twenty-eight signatures. The event was not only made known from the Invalides, but also by bills posted up at various corners of the streets, the text of which will be found in your telegraphic column. The signature was known at an early hour by the agents of the Bourse who promenade the Boulevards on all days of the week, as well as Sundays, for the purpose of buying and selling. I understand the funds had not risen much, nor were they likely to do so, as the money market had long since discounted the peace signature.

It will be remembered that it was on the 30th of March that Paris fell into the hands of the allies, in 1814. The anniversary finds the representatives of the old enemies of this country to day (viz, March 30, 1856) united to give the world repose, presided over by a Napoleon. The official announcement says that the Plenipotentiaries of France, Austria, Great Britain, Prussia, Russia, Sardinia and Turkey affixed their signatures to the treaty which puts an end to the present war, and which, in settling the question of the East, places the repose of Europe on solid and durable bases.

Let us hope that such will be the case; at all events, as far as human anticipation can go, we may not expect to see Turkey again causing Europe to make a battle-field of her territory. If the questions of the Principalities are settled with satisfaction, we have no right to grumble about the terms of the treaty. Having agreed to make peace when we did, more than the treaty contains could not have been expected; and if there be any dissatisfaction expressed here or elsewhere, such must be based on a regret that we did not go on with the war instead of accepting the Russo-Austrian propositions.

I understand that the treaty will be despatched without delay to the capitals of the various contracting Powers, in order to receive the sovereign ratification. The terms may then be published; the full details, and indeed, complete text of the treaty, cannot be made known until the commissions have made their reports—that is to say, until the frontier questions have been clearly defined, and the organization of the Principalities decided upon. This may occupy many weeks. It is, however, simply a work of time.

The evacuation of the Crimea will take place, I learn, after the ratification of the treaty. The Russsians are to reduce Nicolaieff to a commercial port, to accomplish which orders have already been given—so say the Russian authorities.

The Emperor sent General Nay, his aid-de-camp, to Lord Clarendon, Count de Cavour, as well as to Count Orloff, to thank them for the salutes of artillery and the illuminations by which the birth of the Prince Imperial was celebrated in the Crimea.

The health of the Empress goes on improving every day, but there is no day yet fixed for her Majesty's leaving her room, but that will not be long delayed. As the baptism of the Prince Imperial must, according to the programme published, follow the above event, it is calculated that it will take place on the second fortnight in April. At that period the ratifications of the treaty may not have been exchanged, but the adhesion of all the high contracting parties will be known by telegraph, so that the rejoicings for the baptism will be also those for peace, and as the members of the Congress will be still in Paris, in order to make the ratification, their presence will give to the baptismal fetes the character of European ceremony.

Whilst the Plenipotentiaries were engaged in signing the treaty, under the presidency of M. Walewski, his lady, the Countess, was bringing an infant into the world. The numerous English friends of the Countess will be glad to hear that she is doing very well.

THE OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT IN ENGLAND.

(From the London Post, April 1.)

Yesterday morning, a little before 10 o'clock, about 1,000 persons had collected in front of the Mansion House, in the expectation that the Lord Mayor would make an official announcement that the war was at an end. His Lordship then presented himself in the balcony, and addressing the persons assembled, said that he had just received the following communication from the Right Hon. Baronet the Secretary of State for the Home Department, which his Lordship read with much gravity and emphasis:—

HOME OFFICE, MARCH 31, 1856.

MY LORD. I have the honor to acquaint your Lordship that a despatch has been this morning received from the Earl of Clarendon, her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, dated Paris, March the 30th, announcing that a definitive treaty for the restoration of peace, and for the maintenance of the integrity and independence of the Ottoman empire, was yesterday signed at Paris by the plenipotentiaries of her Majesty, of the Emperor of the French, of the King of Sardinia, and of the Sultan, and also of the emperor of Austria and of the King of Prussia, on the one part: and of the Emperor of all the Russias on the other. I have the honor to be, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient, humble servant,

E. GREY.

The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor.

ARRIVAL OF THE AFRICA.

NEW YORK, April 19.

The Africa reached her dock about half-past five o'clock, with Liverpool dates to the 5th instant.

The news is generally unimportant.

The Peace Conference continued its sittings at Paris, considering the minor details.

Peace had been proclaimed at St. Petersburg, and was favourably received.

The Conference was not expected to get through its labour for a month or more.

The U. S. Mediterranean squadron was about to cruise on the coast of Spain.

MARKETS.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.—The Brokers' Circular reports market current at an advance of 1/8 @ 1/4 of a penny.

BREADSTUFFS—Generally unchanged.—Market quiet. Western Canal flour, 30s@34s; Ohio, 35s @ 36s; white, yellow, and mixed corn, steady.

Weather had been favourable.

London market active.

Iron in good demand at £8 2s. 6d @ £8. 5. per bar

Money Market unchanged.

Provisions generally quiet and unchanged.

Consols closed at 93 @ 93 1-8.

The Conferences had one or two informal meetings to settle up details.

The Africa brings about 100 passengers.

The following from Lloyds' List may or may not have reference to the Pacific:—

FEGUERA, March 24.

The Skipouth arrived here. On coming off the Newfoundland coast, fell in with ice to the distance of 200 miles, and saw the light of a steamer in the ice.

The above vessel left St. John's Newfoundland, 13h Feb.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

SANDWICH, APRIL 25, 1856.

MAGISTERIAL DISMISSAL.

It is our duty to notice and lay before the public one of the most arbitrary and unjust transactions of which perhaps any Government could be guilty. A proceeding so extraordinary that even the gentlemen who were discharged from the commission of the peace referred to below in the several communications which we copy in full that the public may be informed of the true merits of the case, had no knowledge whatever that any proceeding was taken in the matter, after the Government had called upon those gentlemen for an explanation of the circumstances connected with the charge brought against them in the petition of the negro Garrett, those gentlemen immediately giving, as they thought and as the public will think, a most satisfactory answer to the charge, explaining that they had done all in the matter of the arrest of Lawton that could be done; but the Government taking the word of a negro in preference to that of two of the oldest magistrates in the County of Essex—magistrates whose conduct have always been noted for integrity and honor in the discharge of their duties as such. That they should have been discharged upon the mere assertion of this fellow Garrett, without further proof whatever is at once arbitrary, and would be more suited to the despotic rule of Russia than to the freedom which has always been our boast.

Now let us look into the Secretary's letter and the statute to which he refers, namely, 12th Vic. ch. 19. He says, "You had no power to arrest the colored man Lawton, for a crime committed in the United States, unless under the statute above, and then only on a specific application for his extradition under the Ashburton Treaty." It was under the above act that the magistrates acted, and if the "Honorable Secretary," or whoever had the disposal of the petition had taken the pains to read the above Act, 12th Vic. ch. 19, he would have found that they acted quite legally, and that the arrest of Lawton was in accordance with the above statute, and instead of the Magistrates being accused of ignorance of their duties, the "Honorable Secretary" has shown the grossest and unwarrantable ignorance of the law of the land. If he had taken the trouble to examine the statute to which he refers in his letter of dismissal, he would have found it thus enacted in sec. 1st: "That it shall be lawful for any of Her Majesty's Justices in this Province, and they are hereby severally vested with power, jurisdiction and authority upon complaint made upon oath or affirmation, charging any person found within the limits of this Province, with having committed within the jurisdiction of the United States of America, or any of such States, any of the crimes enumerated or provided for by the said treaty, to issue his warrant for the apprehension of the person so charged that he may be brought before such Justice of the Peace to the end that the evidence of criminality may be heard and considered," &c. And by referring to the Ashburton Treaty, we find that the crimes enumerated are in Article X.: "Murder, or Assault with intent to commit murder, or Piracy, or Arson, or Robbery, or Forgery, or the utterance of forged paper." Now what was the crime for which a warrant was issued by the Magistrates for the apprehension of Lawton? Why, for robbery committed in the State of Michigan, and the warrant was issued upon the deposition of one Osborne, and in strict accordance with the statute which the "Secretary" states they had broken, and by referring to the deposition below and the Magistrates answer to the petition, it will be found that there was a denial of the charges brought against them in the petition, and that they were quite unfounded, and that the magistrates were unjustly discharged from the commission of the Peace. It has been stated to us that this matter was pressed before Government for party reasons by persons who should be exceedingly careful how representations so utterly at variance from the facts are made, and should it turn out to be the case, the parties may expect that the public will be made aware of the whole truth through the columns of this journal. We are determined where a measure of this kind affecting the whole community is carried in a spirit so utterly at variance with justice to expose the parties who originated it to the public, who are the best arbitrators in a matter of such importance.

To the charge of not pressing an inquiry into the conduct of the constable for the escape of the prisoner Lawton, we have only to refer to the letter of Mr. Woodbridge below, which explains clearly that he was not to blame.

No. 1.

To His Excellency the Governor General in Council, &c., &c.

The Petition of Henry Garrett humbly and respectfully represents:

That on or about the 29th day of December, on the information and complaint of one George Osborne, an American citizen resident in the City of Detroit, or elsewhere in the United States, a warrant for the apprehension of Archy Luster (a colored man resident at Windsor, C.W.) was issued by Thomas Woodbridge and John A. Wilkinson, Esquires, Justices of the Peace for the County of Essex. That the said Magistrates ordered one Samuel Port, a constable, to execute the warrant, and that in obedience to the instructions he had received the said constable proceeded to Windsor and arrested the said Archy Luster, handcuffed him, and in his own (the constable's) sleigh, accompanied by two American citizens from Detroit, drove to Sandwich. That on arriving there, (after dark) the sleigh was driven to a public house. That here the constable left the prisoner in company of the two Americans, and intimated his intention to proceed in search of the Magistrates. That while the constable was absent, the two Americans forced the prisoner, who was still handcuffed, into the sleigh, and drove across the river on the ice to the American side. That on the following day the horse and sleigh were returned to the constable. That your petitioner has repeatedly applied to the Magistrates to investigate the circumstances of this case, and call upon the constable either to produce the prisoner or hold him answerable for not doing so; but up to this date they have declined taking any action in this matter, alleging that it is not their duty to act except upon the sworn complaint of some one acquainted with the facts. That your petitioner is informed and believes that the prisoner who was kidnapped in the manner above described, was a fugitive from slavery, and that the charge against him was a mere device by which to get him into the hands of his pursuers, That the only address which could be obtained by lodging a complaint before the magistrates above mentioned would in all probability be some trifling punishment inflicted upon the constable. That your petitioner has a higher object in view than the gratification of a spirit of resentment, and he confidently relies upon the belief that your Excellency and your Honorable Council will at once perceive that if Magistrates suffer conduct, such as he has described on the part of constables acting under their orders to pass unnoticed, there must at once be an end to that happy feeling of security which the colored inhabitants of this Province have hitherto enjoyed under the Government of Her Majesty. Your petitioner therefore humbly prays that your Excellency in Council will be graciously pleased to order an inquiry to be made into the circumstances of this case, and as in duty bound your petitioner will ever pray.

(Signed) HENRY GARRETT.

January 29th, 1856,

No. 2.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

Sir,

I beg leave to acknowledge the receipt of the petition alluded to in yours of the 22nd instant.

In reply I beg to state for the information of His Excellency that the following are the facts of the case alluded to in the petition.

On the 29th day of December last, one George Osborne, of the County of Washentaw in the State of Michigan, Deputy Sheriff, came to me to obtain a warrant to apprehend Archy Lawton (not Luster) a colored man who had made his escape from the custody of said Sheriff, charged with horse stealing, and upon his presenting a requisition bearing the seal and signature of the Governor of the State of Michigan, wherein was set forth the nature of the crime committed by the said Archy Lawton, and after taking an affidavit to the facts, Mr. Wilkinson and myself issued a warrant directed to Samuel Port, Constable for this County to apprehend the said Archy Lawton, and bring him before us the said Justices That on the 15th day of January last, one week from the date of the warrant, on my arriving at my office about three o'clock in the afternoon, (not after dark, as in the petition), Samuel Port had been there with the prisoner in question. I waited for his return, and shortly after this, Port, the constable, came and told me he had been for Mr. Wilkinson, he, Port was alone. I then ordered him to bring the prisoner. He soon returned, and said the prisoner was gone and the men too. I then told him he must search for him, as it was not dark then. On my afterwards learning the prisoner was not found, I inquired of the Chairman of the Quarter Sessions what I could do, as I had no proof of any conniving or intentional neglect of the constable. That gentleman said that I could do nothing as he considered the remedy was by civil action. I also consulted the statutes on such a case, and found I could not do any thing without a complaint upon oath touching the guilt or innocence of the constable. That about three or four days after the occurrence, the petitioner came to lay a complaint to me which I at once proceeded to take. Upon inquiry he said he was in London, C.W., at the time alluded to, and knew nothing of the matter but what he had heard, neither could he produce any evidence of the escape or how it occurred. I then pointed out to the petitioner the course the law laid down in such cases, and furnished him with the names of the parties concerned, and dates, in fact I gave him all the advice I could on the subject to assist, and this communication from His Excellency the Governor General is the first I have heard of it since to which I most cheerfully respond, and should His Excellency require any further information, I shall be happy to give it, but I believe I have stated all I know in respect to the charges against myself.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

THOMAS WOODBRIDGE.

To the Hon. the Provincial Secretary,
Toronto.

No. 3.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
TORONTO, April 21st, 1856.

GENTLEMEN.

I am commanded by His Excellency the Governor General, to inform you that His Excellency has had under his consideration the Petition of Henry Garrett, [a copy of which was transmitted to you in my letter of the 22nd Feb. last,] together with the several letters and papers forwarded by you to me for His Excellency's information in connection therewith.

His Excellency directs me now to inform you that he is advised that you had no power to arrest the colored man Lawton, referred to in the Petition for a crime committed in the United States, unless under the Statute 12th Victoria, Chapter 19, and then only on a specific application for his extradition under the Ashburton Treaty.

Had you taken the trouble to consult the above mentioned Statute [as, in a matter of such importance, it was your duty to do] you could not have failed to see that neither the warrant from the authorities in Michigan, nor the deposition of Osborne the complainant, showed that Lawton had committed any crime for which he could be surrendered to the authorities of the United States.

It appears therefore that Lawton was illegally arrested, and improperly put into the hands of the pursuing parties, and His Excellency considers that your conduct, even if it were caused from ignorance or carelessness, was highly reprehensible, and that your supineness in not pressing an enquiry into the complaint made to you by Henry Garrett, and into the conduct of the constable concerned, was equally so.

Under these circumstances, His Excellency is forced to the conclusion that your further continuance on the commission of the Peace would not be conducive to the ends of justice. His Excellency has accordingly directed your removal from the commission of the Peace by the usual "Writ of discharge."

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
Your most obedt. Servant,
[Sg'd] GEORGE C. CARTIER,
Secretary

Thos Woodbridge, Esq. J.P.
John A. Wilkinson, Esq. J.P.
Sandwich, U. C.

THE Assizes for the County of Essex opened in this Town, on Tuesday the 22nd instant, by Mr. Justice Haggerty. The following gentl men acting as associates: Judge Chewett, James King, François Carron, and John Fenis, Esquires.

HENRY C. BEECHER, Esq., Queen's Counsel.

The following is a list of the Grand Jurors sworn in:

Thomas Woodbridge, Foreman; John Arner, John Bell, Dennis Downing, John Fisher, John C. Fox, George Hobbs, John McLean, William Sanford, Theodore Wigle, Philip Wright, Alexander Duff, Matthew Fenis, Michael G. Fox, John Arner, Abner Lidwell, Laurent Reaume, Windle W. Wigle, and James Woodbridge.

His Lordship, in addressing the Grand Jury, commenced by explaining to them their various duties in regard to many of the cases that would be brought before them. And then referred to the necessity for securing the classification of prisoners, so that persons committed for minor offences might not be allowed to associate with old and hardened offenders, as well as for the provision for juveniles, who should be kept from the evil influences which necessarily attend the association of youth with criminals, and the beneficial results which would follow the establishment of houses of correction for such offenders. His Lordship also spoke at some length upon the folly of Municipal Councils attempting to practice economy when erecting public buildings, especially Gaols, which if not properly built in the first instance, and sufficient room allowed, the consequence is, that in a very short time the County will be called upon to expend double the amount which would at first have been required, which is a mistaken economy. As an example of this the Chatham Gaol was given, which though built very recently was quite insecure, as many prisoners had of late made their escape, and parties from without might easily effect an entrance, thereby rendering the building useless for the purpose for which it was intended. His Lordship expressed the hope that the new Gaol now building for this County would be built in a manner that would render it secure, and that the Council will not fall into the same error that many others have done,

The number of records upon the docket is unusually large. The first case tried was:

WM. SANDFORD vs. THEODORE WIGLE,—An action for slander. Verdict for defendant.

Teakle vs. Larwill,—An action on promissory note. Undefended. Verdict for plaintiff, £38 14s. 4d.

Municipal Council of Sandwich vs. L. P. St. Amour, Treasurer and Sureties. Verdict for plaintiffs, £402 3s. 2d, Langlois vs. Langlois.—This was an action of Trespass, wherein there was a dispute of boundary line. Verdict for plaintiff with one shilling damages.

Richmond vs. Ferriss,—Ejectment. Verdict for defendant.

Reaume vs. Guischard—Ejectment. Verdict for plaintiff, 1s. damages.

McLeod vs. Herson, et al. Assessment. Verdict for plaintiff, £211 8s. 6d.

Elliot et al vs. Harris. Assessment. Verdict for plaintiff, £54.

Larne vs. Taylor. Replevin. Undefended. 1s damages.

Legislative Assembly.

DEBATE ON THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

Mr. POWELL said that the only objection to moving one amendment upon another was, that it was apt to make great confusion but that objection could not apply when these amendments were only the substitution of one name for another.

The SPEAKER said that there was no rule on the subject, and that it was a matter entirely for the house to decide.

Mr. RANKIN then moved in amendment, that Toronto should be the Seat of Government. Although Toronto (he continued) might not at present be the most central position, yet when they considered the immense tract of country that was about to be opened for settlement, it was evident that in a short time it would be, if not the geographical centre, the centre of the largest population. Another argument was, that they were now here, and by keeping this as the Seat of Government an immense saving in the cost of moving would be made. Whenever the question came up he would always move for the Seat of Government being kept where it then happened to be.—As, however, in a short time they would be able to go from Toronto to the more remote parts of the country in twenty-four hours, the practical position made every little difference. He could not understand the course the Government had pursued on this matter. If there was any point on which they should be able to agree, this was one, and their not being able to take any decided course showed that they were unfit to hold office any longer. He was well aware that the tone of the remarks he was now making was not consistent with the manner in which he had spoken of the Ministry on some former occasions, but it would be remembered that he had always maintained an independent position, and never allowed himself to be described as a follower of the Government, and though he had supported some of their measures, he had never regarded them as men of a high order of talent, and anything of a complimentary nature which he had said about them was well known to have been said in irony. He would still support such measures as he approved of, regardless of the quarter from whence they emanated. In looking at the conduct of the Government lately, he could not help thinking of a certain exhibition in Trafalgar Square, called the "Happy Family," which consisted of a collection of animals, naturally the most hostile to each other, but which has been taught to appear before the public as the most harmonious in the world. But one could not help feeling that when the public eye was off them they would indulge in a few scratches and bites, and he thought the the Ministry were somewhat in the same position, for, notwithstanding their professions of perfect harmony, no great question came up on which they had not some difference of opinion, and he had no doubt that in private, like the happy family, they indulged in some of those contests of which the house sometimes saw the symptoms. He was proceeding with some general reflections on the conduct of ministers, when he was called to order by the Speaker. He then said that a more fitting opportunity would probably occur before long, to discuss the merits of the ministry, and of that he would not fail to avail himself. He then moved that Toronto is a most desirable place at which to establish the permanent Seat of Government in Canada.

Mr. J. A. McDONALD ridiculed the remarks of the last speaker, who had been describing happy families, and such exhibitions, with such wit and gusto as would lead people to imagine that he must have been a showman himself, but he had not said anything of various other exhibitions that had been seen in London, such as Ojibbeway Indians. He confessed, also, that he had gone so far as to compliment the government; but that had only been done in irony, and probably the motion he had just made was in irony too. He could not believe, however, that the hon. member was quite so bad as he had represented himself to be, and he thought that the remark must have been an after-thought, for the hon. gentleman could never have been so insincere as to have voted on many occasions with the majority of the House contrary to his own convictions. He then moved in amendment to Mr. Rankin's motion, that all after the word that be expunged, and the following substituted "That it is expedient that all the motions be voted upon in the order in which they are placed in the hands of the Speaker.

This motion was objected to and—

The SPEAKER ruled that it was out of order, on the ground that it required that the motion first placed in the hand of the Speaker should be the first put, while by the rules of the house, the amendment last moved must be first put.

Mr. RANKIN understood the Attorney General West to allude to the exhibition of Ojibbeway Indians, but that was a respectable affair compared with the exhibition of ravenous animals to which he had compared the ministry, for it was well known that they were all plotting and counter-plotting against each other. He had previously believed the ministry to be possessed of the feelings of men of honour, but he found that there was among that ministry one person whom he could never regard with any feeling but that of unmitigated contempt. He never could regard with any other feeling any person who was guilty of a violation of truth. There was a person in the ministry whose conduct he could not describe in any language that would not be unparliamentray. The individual to whom he alluded was the Attorney General West.

At this moment the house rose, it being six o'clock.

Upon the SPEAKER taking the chair at nearly eight o'clock, he rose and said, he thought it to be his duty to call the attention of the house to the possibility of a collision taking place between the two hon. members who were engaged in controversy when he left the chair; and he thought, in order to prevent anything unpleasant taking place, that both gentlemen should be put under custody of the Sergeant at Arms. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. CHISHOLM said, if the language that was used by the hon member for Essex, before the house adjourned, was to be permitted upon the floor of that house, collisions would take place constantly, and in the house itself he thought it was right to call upon that hon member to retract those words, or that that they be taken down.—Neither of the hon. members were now present, and it became the house to vindicate its own privilege, and to send for both of the hon.gentlemen and place them in the custody of the Sergeant at Arms. The interval which had elapsed between the adjournment and now, should have led the hon. member for Essex to have retracted.

Mr. MURNEY deemed it right for any hon. member in the Opposition to state what he pleased, in a political way, to the hon gentlemen on the other side, and to do as the hon member for Essex had fairly done.—(Hear, hear.) How had that hon member been met? Why in a spirit of ridicule, and with the determination of insulting him.—(Hear, hear.)

The SPEAKER said, it was not right to increase the pain of the house by such remarks. He himself had not acted very promptly in calling the Attorney General to order when he addressed the house, because he thought that the hon gentleman did not go beyond what he (the Speaker) thought was Parliamentary language.

Other hon members rising to speak were met with cries of chair, chair, hear, hear.

The SPEAKER continued.—To prevent further difficulty he must beg of the hon member for Essex to retract the words he used.

Mr. MURNEY thought it to have been a desire upon the part of the Attorney General to insult the hon member for Essex personally.

Solicitor General SMITH rose to a point of order. (Confusion.)

The SPEAKER requested the hon. gentleman to state it.

Solicitor General SMITH said the hon member was not speaking in his right place in the house. [The hon member for South Hastings having spoken from the desk occupied by Mr. A. A. Dorion]

Mr. MURNEY (with warmth) replied, that he was in his place; he was in the House.

The SPEAKER said, we have no rules here, as in the House Commons, to compel members to speak within an inch of their proper seat.

Mr. MURNEY was quite willing to submit to the superior judgement of the Speaker. But he had listened with great pain to the speech of the Hon Attorney General West but he (Mr. Murney) claimed for himself the right to say in that house all he wished with respect to the hon. gentlemen opposite, as to their political acts, and he dared their right to oppose this.

The SPEAKER said, if the house was to go on with this controversy, more trouble would ensue. He would propose a plan which would incur no blame to either of the hon gentlemen, namely, that they should be both placed under the custody of the Serjeant-at-Arms—(hear, hear, and sensation)—when, probably, the house would be in a better position to judge of their conduct, and it could adjudicate upon it. That would be the better way, without now discussing which was in the right and which the wrong.

Mr. J. S. McDONALD said, the favourable opinion expressed by the Speaker of the conduct of the Attorney General West had evidently raised an issue. The Speaker had stated, that he thought the Attorney General used no language which was not parliamentary. It appeared to him (Mr. J. S. M.) with due deference to the Speaker, that he had raised this issue, and he (Mr. M.) agreed that after what had transpired, the house should take upon itself to stop any resort to measures which might be disastrious.

Hon. Mr. DRUMMOND said there was no danger.

Mr. J. A. MACDONALD said it was the duty of the house, now, to take the matter up. The Speaker ought to have remained, under any circumstances, before the house adjourned, and have taken down the words of the hon. members, if he thought that they ought to have been taken down. As much as he (Mr. M.) was sorry that the words had been used upon both sides, he found that there was now room open for discussion, in consequence of the Speaker's declaration.

Hon. Mr. DRUMMOND thought the proper course was, to require the words used by the hon member for Essex to be taken down by the clerk. It was not too late, as no other hon gentleman had got the floor on the debate. The hon. member for Essex had been stopped in the middle of his speech by the adjournment. No other proceeding had taken place between the time when these words were spoken, because the Speaker had very near cut off the last word. The house at the time felt that the language uttered was that species of language which never should have been made use of on the floor of that house, but it was impossible for any hon. member to bring any motion before the chair. He therefore conceived that now was the only time when the house should call that hon gentleman to account. He would not discuss whether there had been any provocation or not. He was not in a position to discuss that, as the Attorney General was his colleague, but so far as he could see, there was nothing at all calculated to assail the personal character of the hon member for Essex, or anything said intending to attach a reproach to him in anything which the Hon Attorney General had said. The Attorney General rose to repel an insult of a very gross character, directed not only against him, but the whole of the Ministry.

The SPEAKER said he thought that the hon member for South Hastings (Mr Murney) was going beyond what was necessary He (the Speaker) had proposed a mode of settling the matter, and if it was not acceptable to the house, then the house must adopt some course of itself. He (The Speaker) claimed to be entirely free from bias in the matter, and he would that the mode proposed from the chair was the proper one to bring this question before the House in a manner and at a time when this House should be in a more fit situation to adjudicate upon it. Chair, chair.

Hon Mr. DRUMMOND had no intention to interfere with the chair. He was much pleased that the chair should have thought proper to adopt this course. Hear, hear.—But he was under the impression that the Attorney General had returned into the house, and that the Speaker would have expected that a different course would be adopted. He thought that the Speaker had come to that conclusion because that neither of these hon gentlemen were present.

Hon. Mr CAMERON should think that there was no necessity for any such course to be adopted. The Hon. Attorney General West was now in the house, the other hon gentleman was not, and he was satisfied that there could be no imputations cast upon either of them if the house would call upon the hon. Attorney General to give the pledge that no further proceedings should be taken by him. Both hon gentlemen ought to be required to do this, and the hon. Attorney General ought not to be given into custody, He was certain that the hon member for Essex would immediately be in his seat, and give the like pledge too; for it would not be conceived that any one pledge should be taken by one hon gentleman or the other, particularly after being brought before the attention of the house, which woul lead to consequences subversive of the honour and dignity of that house.—Hear, hear. The course which had been taken in the House of Commons on several occasions was, that the hon gentlemen should take the pledge which the house was called upon to require.

Hon. Mr. DRUMMOND did not think that any pledge should be required from the Attorney General West, but the hon gentleman should be now required to remain in the house until the other hon member came in. Hear, hear. It was not right that a pledge should be given by the Attorney General, which would expose him to his accusers.

Mr. POWELL thought the hon member for Toronto had very properly stated the true position of things. He (Mr. P.) had sent for the hon member for Essex, and he doubted not but he would be immediately here.

Mr. MERRITT concurred in the manner that this subject had been brought forward, and in the expressions made by the Speaker and the Attorney General East. These words could now be taken down, and they ought to be. He heard the language of the hon gentleman in question with great pain, and the course to pursue was, to take down the words used by the hon. member for Essex, and make him apologize for the expressions he had used.

Hon. Mr. DRUMMOND said, he had submitted to the house the course which the Speaker had pointed out, and he thought that that was the present course. When the hon. member for Essex appeared in the house, then would be the time to consider whether there should be a motion made to take down his words or not. He thought that the house should proceed with the original debate, and stop on the arrival of the hon. member for Essex.

Attorney General DRUMMOND said it is impossible to take down these words unless the member for Essex was in his place. The house was informed by the member for Carleton that the member for Essex will in a short time be in his place, and then the words could be taken down. It is quite clear that the adjournment at six o'clock does not deprive the house of the power of taking the words down; but perhaps taking up any other matter of business would prevent it, and therefore he would propose that the Speaker should leave the Chair for ten minutes, and allow the member for Essex an opportunity of appearing in his place. It is a most important matter, and should be terminated at once.

Hon. J. H. CAMERON thought it impossible to take down the words two hours after they had been uttered from the recollection of hon. members, when no two of them could agree upon what words should be taken down. There are abundance of precedents which can be brought to show that when the words are taken down, they are taken down on the spot or not at all. And the very fact mentioned by the Attorney General East, that the member for Essex will be in his place in a few minutes, and that the house must then trust to his willingness to repeat those words, is a clear proof that they cannot be taken down. Whenever a similar case has occurred in the House of Commons, it is quite clear that the words should be taken down on the moment, or that the Speaker, at the instance of any member, can call on the members concerned to give a pledge to the house, and there is an end of the matter. He would venture to assert that no six members present could agree as to the words spoken by the member for Essex; and if the house should go into a discussion as to what the words were, the whole question is to be opened again. The rule observed should be that the words should be taken down while fresh in the memory of every member present, and not after a length of time had elapsed. As an instance of the necessity of this course, he would mention that he had spoken to gentlemen sitting immediately around him, and no two could agree as the words really used.

Hon. J. S. MCDONALD quoted from the proceedings of the House of Lords and the House of Commons, to adduce authorities for the purpose of showing that the words must be taken down immediately on their being spoken, and that if any speech were made, or business intervened, it could not be done. He would not conceal from himself that when the member for Essex was speaking, and before he had proceeded so far as to mention the name of the Attorney General West, objection might have been taken to his language; but he was permitted to go on, no objection was made, and the authorities from which he quoted were quite conclusive that objection ought to have been taken at once. Now he would say that since the house had adjourned at six o'clock, he and two or three others had endeavoured to ascertain what were the words used by the member for Essex, and they could not agree. But he would join any member in the house in exacting from the member for Essex and the Attorney General West a pledge that these proceedings should go no further.

Hon J. S. MACDONALD saw the Attorney General West is his place, and hoped he would not leave it.

The SPEAKER said that from what had already taken place, he believed it would be his duty, and the duty of the house to resume the discussion on the motion before the chair. The house would take care that before it adjourns, those hon gentlemen would be required to carry out what he believed to be the wishes of the house. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. POWELL rose amid renewed confusion.

The SPEAKER.—The house will resume the discussion.

SEAT OF GOVERNMENT DEBATE RESUMED.

Mr LORANGER said the Commission for Crown Lands (Mr. Cauchon,) had made a statement unbecoming his position in this house, and as a member of the government when he said that this question of the Seat of Government should be fixed by the Royal Prerogative. He considered it unworthy of a member of the Canadian Parliament and of the Canadian Government, to say that Canada had not a sufficient amount of discretion to fix its own Seat of Government It would be saying to the world at large that they were only children, that they were still under tutelage, and could not manage their own business, but must refer it to England. It would be giving the lie to their liberties, the lie to their privileges, the lie to their constitution, to acknowledge their own weakness, by leaving this to the Imperial Government. If a member of the Provincial Government, he would have been ashamed to have made so humiliating a proposition. But, coming to the immediate question before the chair, he regretted to find that there were members of this house, who were in the minority the other evening on the question of the permanence of the Seat of Government, who desired to defeat the vote of the house, by voting against every place that might be proposed.

Mr. LYON had thought there were but three cities in this Province which properly speaking were rivals for the honour of being the Seat of Government. Montreal, Ottawa and Kingston. But as the list had been extended, by Quebec and Toronto being added to the list, he deemed it proper to add Hamilton also, which in his opinion was far better entitled to the honour. He moved, therefore, that the word Hamilton be inserted in lieu thereof.

Hon. Mr. CAUCHON in reply to the hon. member for Laprairie, defended his proposition for leaving the question to be decided by the Royal Prerogative, which would only be exercised, however, he said, in accordance with the wishes of the majority of the house.

In reply to Mr. POWELL,

Mr. SPEAKER stated, that if all the amendments were negatived, and the original resolution carried as to the manner in which the house should proceed to decide the question of the Seat of Government, any name previously negatived by the house would not be prevented from being offered again.

Mr. POWELL then moved that the word Hamilton, in the last amendment, be struck out, and the word Quebec substituted.—(Laughter). He had no hesitation in saying that he was not only in favour of Ottawa was not successful, there was no place, excepting, perhaps, Montreal—(laughter)—that he would so soon see the Seat of Government as Quebec.

Mr. TURCOTTE, in reply to the Commissioner of Crown Lands, said that the personage to whom the Imperial Government would reply for advice in a question like this was known to be one who had no predilection for the French Canadian race.

The SPEAKER reminded the hon member that it was out of order to speak of the Governor General in the house.

Mr. TURCOTTE said that the loyalty of the French Canadians was such, that the last gun which would be fired in Canada.—He desired that the Seat of Government should be fixed in some place where there would be some sympathy for French Canadians, and where their language would be understood. How would those hon members who were in favour of Toronto, like to be placed in a city where, outside the walls of the house, there would not be one word of their language understood. They should fix upon some place where both languages would be understood.

Mr. ROBINSON said that all the hon. member had said with regard to Upper Canada was equally applicable to Lower Canada, so far as Upper Canadian members were concerned. Although he must say that the Upper Canadian members were much less conversant with the French language than the Lower Canadians were with the English. He was quite prepared to vote in favour of Quebec whenever the question came up.

Mr. DUVERNAY, though not in favour of the alternate system, accepted it while waiting for a new state of political existence which would be forced upon him by the politics of the hon. member for Lambton.

Mr. PAPIN was always in favour of Montreal, but he would vote for Quebec, as it was impossible to get a majority in favour of Montreal, and he thought it more advantageous for Lower Canada that the Seat of Government should be at Quebec, then that it should not be in Lower Canada at all.

Mr. POULIOT said that if Quebec was not chosen, he thought they should refer the matter to the Queen in Council.

Mr. DUFRESNE was in favour of Montreal but would vote for Quebec for the sake of establishing a permanent of government.

Mr. LARWILL moved in amendment, that no particular place should now be chosen, but that the matter be referred to the municipalities to give their opinion as to whether a permanent seat of government should be established or not, and if so, where? He contended that there had been no expression of public opinion, and that as most of the members resided either in Quebec, Montreal, Kingston or Toronto, and all had their interests centered in one or other of those places, their opinions were not disinterested, and that, therefore, the voice of the people should be taken upon the question.

The SPEAKER decided that as the question of permanency had been decided, the motion was out of order.

Solicitor General ROSS said, it was most extraordinary that no hon. member had moved in favour of the locality in which hon. members respectively resided. What they were bound in justice to do was to vote for that place which they thought to be most conducive to the interests of the whole Province. Being of this opinion he went for Quebec—(hear, hear,)—and for many reasons, not because he resided there, but he thought it was the safest Seat for the Government, especially in view of the breaking out of hostilities at any time either with the United States or any foreign power.

The SPEAKER said that there were four amendments, and that he believed it would be his duty to explain to the House how the vote would be taken. The last motion submitted to the chair was the motion of Mr. Powell, in amendment to the motion of Mr. Lyon, that the word "Hamilton" be expunged, and "Quebec" substituted. The motion put to the House will be, whether "Quebec" be substituted instead of "Hamilton." Then the other amendments will follow in succession.

The vote was then taken on Mr. Powell's amendment, which was carried—yeas, 69; nays, 47.

The SPEAKER said, the motion before the House will, then, read thus: "Mr. Lyon moves that the word 'Toronto,' in the amendment, be expunged, and the words 'city of Quebec' be substituted in lieu thereof." The question is, shall the words "city of Quebec" be substituted?

Mr. BROWN said, an onlooker might imagine, by the last vote, that the question had been decided in favour of Quebec. But, to relieve the minds of such parties, he would say there was not the slightest notion of having the seat of Government fixed at Quebec. (Hear, hear.) The questions now to be put was for Quebec, instead of Toronto. If decided in the affirmative, that would not settle it for Quebec, but it would settle it against Toronto.

Mr. BOWES said that, if the original motion was finally carried, all those places lost now might be moved again.

The question being then put, as between Quebec and Toronto, it was decided in favour of Quebec by 71 to 56.

The next vote was between Quebec and Kingston, and again resulted in favour of Quebec by 67 to 54.

The vote being next taken between Quebec and Montreal, was decided in favour of Quebec by 65 to 55.

The question being next put between Quebec and Ottawa.

Mr. POWELL said that, although the amendment in favour of Quebec was his own, he must vote against it, when pitted against Ottawa. He would rather sacrifice his consistency than vote against his native place, which he might mention contained a population among whom the French Canadians would find many who spoke their language, and shared their sentiments.

On a division Quebec was carried over Ottawa by 77 to 43.

Mr. POWELL then moved in amendment that the Seat of Government be permanently fixed in Upper Canada.

Mr. MERRITT hoped that the vote would be taken without any reference to national feeling. It was now a fair vote between Quebec and all Canada.

Mr. POWELL said that he found hon. members from Lower Canada who were pledged to vote for Ottawa voting consistently in favour of Quebec, and he would not withdraw his motion on any consideration.

Mr. PAPIN said that several of the Ottawa members who had promised to vote for Montreal had voted for Quebec.

Mr. TERRILL said that it came with a bad grace from a member who had voted and spoken against his own motion, to taunt Lower Canada members with inconsistency.

Mr. DRUMMOND, in putting any amendment, Mr. Powell's motion was put and lost on the following division:—

The question was then put upon the first amendment to the main motion of Mr. Drummond.—Yeas 61 Nays 59.

Mr. BROWN said he thought it was that time that this farce should come to an end. (Hear, hear.) And he rose now to secure that end by moving the previous question. (Oh! oh!) The only proposition which could now be put to the house was this, "Shall the permanent Seat of Government be fixed at Quebec?" (Hear, hear.) He did not think it necessary to enlarge upon this question. Hon. gentlemen must see that in the present state of this country, and considering the number of important issues before Parliament, that it would be altogether inexpedient to choose as the permanent Seat of the Legislature and Government, (oh! oh! yes!) a city 600 miles to the eastward of the centre of population of United Canada. The hon. member for Montmorenci cried "oh! oh!," but he begged to call the hon. member's attention to this point in the vote he was about to give. It was one thing for Upper Canadians to go back to Quebec for four years upon the alternate system, but it was quite a different thing to go down there permanently under all the influences which pervaded that city.—(Hear, hear.) Does the hon. Commissioner of Crown Lands think it would be fair to keep it in Toronto now? The hon. member would not say so; then how could he vote to take the Parliament down to Quebec for a permanency? To hon. members from Upper Canada he would say, look at the Public Accounts laid before the house this night, and observe the immense proportion of Customs Revenue derived from Upper Canada to that Lower Canada, and you will never vote for Quebec as the permanent seat. (Hear, hear.) If they looked to the future advantage of the country, or even at its present state, such a decision would be most unfair and inexpedient. He moved the previous question.

Seconded by Mr. AIKINS.

Mr. J. S. MACDONALD moved an adjournment amid great confusion.

Hon. Mr. CAUCHON replied to the remarks of Mr. Brown, and thought that if the hon. member voted for Quebec this moment, it would serve better the wishes of the hon. member for Lambton than any vote that could be given.

Mr. A. A. DORION moved that the debate be adjourned to this day—(No, no, and other cries.)

A discussion arose as to the admissibility of Mr. Dorion's motion.

The SPEAKER decided it was in order according to the rules of the house.

The SPEAKER put the motion to adjourn the debate which was lost: Yeas 40, Nays 78.

The SPEAKER said, the motion of the Attorney-General Drummond had been amended by the motion declaring the city of Quebec the most eligible place for the seat of Government. To this main question, the previous question had been moved, and the vote would be taken on that.

The previous question was then carried.

Mr. A. DORION moved the adjournment of the debate, and that the debate be resumed to-morrow.

Hon. J. H. CAMERON.—That is not in order.

The SPEAKER ruled it out of order.

The SPEAKER.—The question is on the motion whether the city of Quebec is the most eligible place for the seat of Government.

The motion was carried—yeas, 63; nays, 56.

Mr. FELTON said he could not help congratulating his Quebec friends on the result, for which they might thank the hon. member for Lambton.

Mr. BROWN said that he and his friends who took the same view as he did, were better satisfied that the question should be put upon the footing of having the permanent Seat of Government at Quebec, than at any other place in Lower Canada. The question was thus put in the strongest possible light. (Hear, hear.) But, if the Government came down and asked the house to vote £200,000 or £300,000 for public offices at Quebec, as a permanent Seat of Government, they would thereby bring another important question to an issue, which had been coming on for some time.

The house then adjourned shortly before two o'clock.

Appointments.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Toronto, April 19th, 1856.

His Excellency the Governor General has been pleased to make the following appointments, viz:

The Honorable Etienne Paschal Taschè to be Speaker of the Legislative Council of the Province of Canada in the room of the Hon. John Ross, resigned.

Joseph Curran Morrison, Esq., Q.C., to be a Member of the Executive Council for the Province of Canada.

Jonathan Wigfield, of Mersea, Gentleman, and John Wright, of Colchester, Gentleman, to be Preventive Officers in Her Majesty's Customs.

The following is a list of prisoners tried and convicted at the last Chatham Assizes:

John Maloney, for stabbing with intent to murder. The plea of insanity was urged by the prisoner. Sentence—Death.

Douglass Walker, manslaughter—7 years imprisonment in the Provincial Penitentiary.

Joseph Elesby, Larceny—2 years in the Provincial Penitentiary.

John McQuinn, misdemeanor—6 months imprisonment.

Peter and John Trasler—Peter, 6 years in the Provincial Penitentiary, and 3 do. on another conviction.

John, 4 years in the Provincial Penitentiary, and 2 do. on another conviction.

John McDougall, for Felony—10 years in the Provincial Penitentiary. A conviction for Jail-breaking was not pressed by the Crown.

Sherman Mallett, the approver, was sentenced to 2 years in the Provincial Penitentiary on a charge of Horse stealing, to which he had pleaded guilty.

SANDWICH MARKET.

"Maple Leaf" Office, 25th April, 1856

Flour Best warranted,	$ 7 00	$ 8 50
" 2nd quality	5 00	0 50
Buckwheat Flour,	2 00	4 00
Rye "	2 00	3 50
Timothy Seed,		4 00
Clover,	1 25	8 00
Corn Meal per 100	1 50	2 00
Corn per bushel, 56lbs.	0 51	0 00
Oats " 34lbs.	0 37½	0 00
Potatoes do	0 37	0 00
Wheat do 60lbs,	1 00	1 25
Barley do 48lbs,	0 75	0 00
Hay per Ton	10 00	12 00
Straw per load	1 50	2 00
Wood per cord (Hard)	2 50	0 00
do Mixed	1 50	0 00
Pork per 100lbs.	7 00	0 00
Beef " "	7 00	0 00

DETROIT MARKET.

Flour,	$5 60.
Wheat,	1 30.
Corn,	0 50.
Oats,	0 36.
Pork	6 50.

Detroit 25th April, 1856.

ROSE DALE MILL.

THIS Mill will stop Grinding on Monday 5th May next, for the purpose of taking out the Engine. Persons requiring Gristing done had better have is done before that time, as the Sandwich Mill will not start till two weeks afterwards.
April 25th, 1856.

STRAYED.

CAME into the possession of the under signed, about 1st February last, a BAY COLT, about one year old. Has a white spot on the near hind foot. The owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take it away.
WM. CLARKSON.
Malden Road, April 22nd, 1856.

NOTICE.

WILL be Sold by Public Auction at the Rosedale Mill, Township of Sandwich at 12 o'clock. noon, on Saturday the 16th inst. the following Work:—
Building a new Culvert
Making an Embankment.
Ditching and Grading a piece of Road
Plans and specifications to be seen at Mr. Bullock's Office, Sandwich.
THOS. WOODBRIDGE, Reeve.
April 10th 1856.

BARTLEY AND PINNEY,

PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.

MAPS AND PLANS drawn in the first style. Estimates, Specifications, &c., of all kinds prepared at short notice. All work entrusted to us shall be executed with punctuality and despatch.
Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY, C. PINNEY.
March 28, 1856. n5ly

EXECUTOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to all persons indebted to the late ALPHEUS MORSE, of the Town of Sandwich, deceased, and late of the Firm of MORSE AND CALVIN, Lumbermen, to make payment to the undersigned, and all persons having claims against the said A. MORSE, or MORSE AND CALVIN, are requested to present them for payment prior to the 1st day of May next to
ELECTA MORSE, } Executors
H. C. GUILLOT, }
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

TO BE LET FOR EIGHT YEARS,

A TWO STORY FRAME HOUSE with a Half-Acre Garden, on Lot No 4, East Side of Peter Street.
To be let subject to all Repairs and Taxes. A large reduction will be made to any person paying three years' rent in advance.
For further particulars enquire of
J. GREEN,
Great Western Boot and Shoe Store,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.
27th March, 1856.
N.B.—Possession will be given on the first of May next.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

COUNTY OF ESSEX } By virtue of a writ to wit; } of fieri facias issued out of Court of Common Pleas at Toronto, to me directed, against the lands and tenements of Alfred Baby at the suit of James Olwell and Mathew Olwell, I have seized and taken in execution the following lands viz: water lot number three on the East, water lots numbers three, four, and fourteen on the west, and land and water lots numbers thirteen and sixteen on the north side of Sandwich Street, and Park Lots No. one and twelve, Field lot letter E, Village lots numbers nine and ten on the south side of Sandwich Street, lots numbers twenty-one and twenty-two, north side of Pitt Street, lots numbers one and two on the south side of Pitt Street, lots numbers eight and nine on the north side of Chatham Street, in Block C; lot number two on the south side of Chatham Street, lot number five on the north side of London Street, in Block E, lots three and four on the south side of London Street West, in the Village of Sandwich in the County of Essex, forming part of the Town Plot of the said village, as laid out on the estate of the late François Baby, Esq., and lot number twenty-eight in the first concession, Township of Maidstone, two hundred acres of land, all of which property I shall offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich on Saturday the twenty-eighth day of June next at twelve o'clock noon.
W. D. BABY,
Sheriff
Sheriff's office, Sandwich,
27th March.

NOTICE.

THE Court of Revision for the Township of Sandwich for the year A.D. 1856, will be held in the Council Chamber at Sandwich, on Thursday the 8th day of May next, at 10 o'clock a.m. and following days.
Sandwich, 15th April, 1856.
D. MOYNAHAN
Township Clerk

GUILLOT'S COLUMN.

FOR APRIL, 1856.

NEW

SPRING GOODS

JUST OPENED AT

GUILLOT'S STORE

PER

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

WHICH HE NOW OFFERS AT THE LOWEST REMUNERATING PROFIT, FOR

CASH.

PRINTS, in Variety,

PRINTED LAWNS & MUSLINS,

SILKS, SILK PARASOLS,

BLEACHED AND UNBLEACHED

COTTONS & SHEETING

HOSIERY, GLOVES,

CLOTHING,

COATINGS, TWEEDS,

TROWSERINGS,

LINENS,

DRILLS,

KOSSUTH HATS,

COTTON WARP,

BOOTS AND SHOES,

TICKINGS,

GINGHAMS,

CARPETING,

SHAWLS, &c., &c.

TOGETHER

WITH A GOOD ASSORTMENT OF

GROCERIES. CROCKERY,

SHELF HARDWARE, NAILS

ALSO,

THE XL FLOUR,

KEPT ON HAND FOR SALE

AT CURRENT PRICES.

CLOVER AND TIMOTHY

SEED.

H. C. GUILLOT,

SANDWICH, CANADA WEST.

RETURN OF CONVICTIONS

"For the COUNTY OF ESSEX, for the Quarter ending 1st April, 1856.

NAME OF PROSECUTOR.	NAME OF DEFENDANT.	NATURE OF CHARGE	DATE OF CONVICTION	NAME OF CONVICTING JUSTICE	Amount of Penalty, Fine or Damage.	Fine when Paid, or to be Paid to said Justice.	To whom paid over by said Justice.	If not paid, why not and General Observations if any.
Harden Campbell,	Maria Chaloner,	Assault,	31st Dec. 1855	A. Sidwell & J. G. Buchanan,	5s	15 days,
Elias Thompson,	Thomas Sparks,	Assault and Battery.	4th January,	Thomas Woodbridge,	5s	10 days,
Thomas Salmon,	George McCoy,	Do	Do	John G. Buchanan,	30s and costs.
Moses Bezaire,	George Shepper,	Do	Do	Thomas Woodbridge,	Costs,
Martin Stone,	Eustace Prudhomme,	Do	24th	William Ritenburg,	25s and costs
Martin Wigmore,	Edward Meloche,	Furious Driving,	26th	A. Sidwell & J. Askin,	40s
Harriet Washington,	John B. Davinier, Mathew Moynahan, and Thos. Habley,	Articles of the Peace,	26th	Thomas Woodbridge,	5s
Lemuler Jolicoeur,	Laurent Rabidoux, Paul Rabidoux, Charles Rabidoux, and Mark Rabidoux,	Assault and Battery,	30th	Thomas Woodbridge,	10s	10 days,
James Harkin,	Mark Rabidoux,	Articles of the Peace,	1st February,	Henry McKenny,	5s
Charles Rabidoux,	James Harkin,	Assault,	2nd	Do	10s
Agnus Hampstead,	Samuel Campbell,	Assault and Battery.	5th	F. A. Lafferty & James Noble	25s	20 days,
Alexander Borrowman,	Jacob Hamilton,	Do	7th	Felix Lafferty,	10s
Samuel Casey,	Matthew Pratt,	Trespass,	7th	James Noble,	5s
Henry Crosby,	Joseph Meloche,	Assault and Battery,	12th	Cornelius St. Quick,	10s
Dr. Campbell and Monroe comp.	George Odin, Thomas Noble, George Sullivan, and Mark Rabidoux,	Assault and Battery,	14th	Cornelius St. Quick,	10s
James Ward,	Sylvain Dupuis,	Assault,	20th January,	Thomas Woodbridge,	10s	£1 5s each
L. L. Fleuri,	Patrick Dwyer,	Furious Driving on Highway	26th February,	Do	10s	5s
H. W. Peuch,	James Noble,	Assault,	20th	James Noble,	5s
John Harper,	John Gamble,	Trespass,	20th	Ralph Foster,
Do	Julia Crosby,	Assault,	20th	Do
George Thompson,	Josiah Fletcher,	Do	28th	Do
James Harkin,	Calvin O. Brown,	Do	29th	Do
Charles Gardner,	Lauren Eadeleen,	Non payment of Wages,	1st March,	Cornelius St. Quick,	5s
Augustus Cleveland,	Dwyer K. Eadeleen,	Do	3rd	Do	5s
Asila Rateliff,	Beaufre Bealeau,	Non-payment of Wages,	3rd	Do	5s
Alexander Martial,	John Hopkins,	Trespass,	17th	Do	5s
Eliza Cryan,	Francis Cryan,	Assault,	20th	Do	5s
James Harkin,	Lawrence Rabidoux,	Do	22nd	Do
Do	Michael Rabidoux,	Do	28th	Do
Do	Oliver Wilkin on,	Do	28th	Do
Do	Josiah Fletcher,	Assault,	28th	Do
Do	Calvin O. Brown,	Do	29th	Do
James Harkin,	Lauren Eadeleen,	Non payment of Wages,	1st March,	Do
Charles Gardner,	Dwyer K. Eadeleen,	Do	3rd	Do
Augustus Cleveland,	Beaufre Bealeau,	Non-payment of Wages,	3rd	Do
Asila Rateliff,	John Hopkins,	Trespass,	17th	Do
Alexander Martial,	Francis Cryan,	Assault,	20th	Do
Eliza Cryan,	Lawrence Rabidoux,	Do	22nd	Do
James Harkin,	Michael Rabidoux,	Do	28th	Do
Do	Julia Crosby,	Assault,	28th	Do
George Thompson,	Josiah Fletcher,	Do	28th	Do
James Harkin,	Calvin O. Brown,	Do	29th	Do
Charles Gardner,	Lauren Eadeleen,	Non payment of Wages,	1st March,	Do
Augustus Cleveland,	Dwyer K. Eadeleen,	Do	3rd	Do
Asila Rateliff,	Beaufre Bealeau,	Non-payment of Wages,	3rd	Do
Alexander Martial,	John Hopkins,	Trespass,	17th	Do
Eliza Cryan,	Francis Cryan,	Assault,	20th	Do
James Harkin,	Lawrence Rabidoux,	Do	22nd	Do
Do	Michael Rabidoux,	Do	28th	Do
Do	Julia Crosby,	Assault,	28th	Do
George Thompson,	Josiah Fletcher,	Do	28th	Do
James Harkin,	Calvin O. Brown,	Do	29th	Do
Charles Gardner,	Lauren Eadeleen,	Non payment of Wages,	1st March,	Do
Augustus Cleveland,	Dwyer K. Eadeleen,	Do	3rd	Do
Asila Rateliff,	Beaufre Bealeau,	Non-payment of Wages,	3rd	Do
Alexander Martial,	John Hopkins,	Trespass,	17th	Do
Eliza Cryan,	Francis Cryan,	Assault,	20th	Do
James Harkin,	Lawrence Rabidoux,	Do	22nd	Do
Do	Michael Rabidoux,	Do	28th	Do
Harden Campbell,	Maria Chaloner,	Assault,	31st Dec. 1855	A. Sidwell & J. G. Buchanan,	5s	15 days,
Elias Thompson,	Thomas Sparks,	Assault and Battery.	4th January,	Thomas Woodbridge,	5s	10 days,
Thomas Salmon,	George McCoy,	Do	Do	John G. Buchanan,	30s and costs.
Moses Bezaire,	George Shepper,	Do	Do	Thomas Woodbridge,	Costs,
Martin Stone,	Eustace Prudhomme,	Do	24th	William Ritenburg,	25s and costs
Martin Wigmore,	Edward Meloche,	Furious Driving,	26th	A. Sidwell & J. Askin,	40s
Harriet Washington,	John B. Davinier, Mathew Moynahan, and Thos. Habley,	Articles of the Peace,	26th	Thomas Woodbridge,	5s
Lemuler Jolicoeur,	Laurent Rabidoux, Paul Rabidoux, Charles Rabidoux, and Mark Rabidoux,	Assault and Battery,	30th	Thomas Woodbridge,	10s	10 days,
James Harkin,	Mark Rabidoux,	Articles of the Peace,	1st February,	Henry McKenny,	5s
Charles Rabidoux,	James Harkin,	Assault,	2nd	Do	10s
Agnus Hampstead,	Samuel Campbell,	Assault and Battery.	5th	F. A. Lafferty & James Noble	25s	20 days,
Alexander Borrowman,	Jacob Hamilton,	Do	7th	Felix Lafferty,	10s
Samuel Casey,	Matthew Pratt,	Trespass,	7th	James Noble,	5s
Henry Crosby,	Joseph Meloche,	Assault and Battery,	12th	Cornelius St. Quick,	10s
Dr. Campbell and Monroe comp.	George Odin, Thomas Noble, George Sullivan, and Mark Rabidoux,	Assault and Battery,	14th	Cornelius St. Quick,	10s
James Ward,	Sylvain Dupuis,	Assault,	20th January,	Thomas Woodbridge,	10s	£1 5s each
L. L. Fleuri,	Patrick Dwyer,	Furious Driving on Highway	26th February,	Do	10s	5s
H. W. Peuch,	James Noble,	Assault,	20th	James Noble,	5s
John Harper,	John Gamble,	Trespass,	20th	Ralph Foster,
Do	Julia Crosby,	Assault,	20th	Do
George Thompson,	Josiah Fletcher,	Do	28th	Do
James Harkin,	Calvin O. Brown,	Do	29th	Do
Charles Gardner,	Lauren Eadeleen,	Non payment of Wages,	1st March,	Cornelius St. Quick,	5s
Augustus Cleveland,	Dwyer K. Eadeleen,	Do	3rd	Do	5s
Asila Rateliff,	Beaufre Bealeau,	Non-payment of Wages,	3rd	Do	5s
Alexander Martial,	John Hopkins,	Trespass,	17th	Do	5s
Eliza Cryan,	Francis Cryan,	Assault,	20th	Do	5s
James Harkin,	Lawrence Rabidoux,	Do	22nd	Do
Do	Michael Rabidoux,	Do	28th	Do
Do	Julia Crosby,	Assault,	28th	Do
George Thompson,	Josiah Fletcher,	Do	28th	Do
James Harkin,	Calvin O. Brown,	Do	29th	Do
Charles Gardner,	Lauren Eadeleen,	Non payment of Wages,	1st March,	Do
Augustus Cleveland,	Dwyer K. Eadeleen,	Do	3rd	Do
Asila Rateliff,	Beaufre Bealeau,	Non-payment of Wages,	3rd	Do
Alexander Martial,	John Hopkins,	Trespass,	17th	Do
Eliza Cryan,	Francis Cryan,	Assault,	20th	Do
James Harkin,	Lawrence Rabidoux,	Do	22nd	Do
Do	Michael Rabidoux,	Do	28th	Do

I certify the foregoing to be a True and correct Return as taken from the several Returns of Convictions filed in this Office, for the Quarter ending April 1st, 1856.
CHARLES BABY, CLERK PEACE ESSEX.
Office of the Clerk of the Peace, Sandwich, 8th April, 1856.

Beacon

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE CO of London.

Incorporated under Act of Imperial Parliament, 7 and 8 Vic., Chap. 1.

CANADA BOARD.

KINGSTON.

TRUSTEES.

The Hon John A Macdonald.
James Morton, Esquire.

DIRECTORS:

M. W. Strange, Esq., Chairman,
Thos. A. Corbett, Esq. Deputy Chairman.
James Morton, Esq. John Mowatt, Esq
James Harty, Esq. A. J Macdonell, Esq.
Lewis Walbridge, Esq. T. Clarkson, Esq.

MONTREAL.

Wm. Molson, Esq. Thomas Evans, Esq.
Damase Masson, Esquire,

This Company Insures all descriptions of BUILDINGS, MANUFACTORIES, MILLS, &c. and GOODS or FURNITURE in the same, against loss or damage by fire, on liberal terms. All descriptions of LIFE RISKS, taken at as low rates as are consistent with security to the assured. Losses promptly settled without reference to England.

ALEX. GORDON,
Agent at Windsor for Western Frontier
March 7, 1856.

LOTS FOR SALE IN THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.

PART of Lot No. 3: on the west side of Bedford Street, with a good Store thereon. Also, Lots 7 and 8, adjoining the residence of L. J. Fluett, Esquire, with dwelling house and stables. These Lots will be sold subject to incumbrances.
For particulars apply to
J. H. WILKINSON.
Att'y for J. A. Vervais.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

TO LET OR FOR SALE.

A Brick House and Lot, on No. 4, East side of Main Street, fronting "Mears' Hotel." The above property will be leased for $150 a year; or, for particulars of sale apply to
STANISLAUS LASALINE.
Sandwich, 20th March, 1856.

Sandwich and Windsor Stage.

BY JOHN LEWIS.

THE Proprietor of this popular line has added a new Stage and first-rate horses, and will hereafter run an Hourly Stage to Windsor with speed and punctuality. He hopes to merit the patronage of the public.
Sandwich, 13th March, 1856.

New Tailoring ESTABLISHMENT.

THE Subscriber begs leave to notify the Public that he will carry on business in the building lately occupied by T. Murphy, opposite the Hemsell Hotel, where he intends to carry on the Tailoring Business in all its branches, and hopes by strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage.
N. B.—He will receive the Report of Fashion monthly.
Cutting done to order.
W. T. BASSANDALE.
Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. &c. &c. AT THE REGULATOR.

THE Subscribers would invite the attention of their Friends and the Public generally to their new and complete Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c., &c., which they are now offering low for cash.
GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.
N.B.—The highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all kinds of Produce.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1846.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, } By virtue of a writ of
TO WIT: } Fieria Facias issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex against the lands and Tenements of Alfred Baby, and to me directed, at the suit of Dennis Ouellette, I have seized and taken the following lands and tenements, viz.: Water Lot number three on the East, and Water Lots numbers three, four and fourteen West, and Land and Water Lots numbers thirteen and sixteen, all on the North side of Sandwich Street in the Village of Windsor, and being part of the Town plot of Windsor, as laid out on the estate of the late Francis Baby, Esquire, all which property, or the interest of the said Alfred Baby in and to the same, I will offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Saturday the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, at 12 o'clock noon.
W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.
Sheriff's Office, Sandwich,
29th February, 1856.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

THE SANDWICH MILLINERY AND DRESS MAKIMG Establishment will be reopened for the season.
The Proprietor having just returned from the Eastern Cities with a Large Stock of Millinery and Dress Goods of the latest style and fashion, which he offers for sale at a small advance from their original Cost.
NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE
L. P. ST. AMOUR.
andwich, Feb 29th, 1856.

Family Store

THE Subscriber keeps constantly on hand a large and well selected assortment of
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware and Crockery,
at his old stand on Bedford Street, which he will sell, at a small advance upon cost, for Cash.
A large supply of the very best Flour always on hand.
Produce and Cord Wood bought and sold.
JOSEPH MILLER.
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

New Harness and Saddlery Establishment.

A. C. ELLIS.

Every description of LIGHT and FANCY BUGGY HARNESS, made in the most fashionable styles.
HEAVY HARNESSES constantly on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.
SADDLES of every description made to order on the shortest notice.
CARRIAGE and BUGGY TRIMMING done in a style not to be surpassed.
A large assortment of WHIP'S always kept on hand.
In his Store, adjoining Mr Guillot's, will be found every description of Goods in his line of business. Every endeavor will be made to give entire satisfaction to his Customers.
N.B.—Cord Wood, Hides, and Produce wanted, for which the highest price will be given.
Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

NOTICE.

TO ALL IT MAY CONCERN.

ALL persons owing the subscriber are hereby notified that payment must be made on or before the 15th day of April next if they wish to save the costs of collection.

TO RENT.

The House and Premises in which the subscriber lives. Terms $24 per quarter payable in advance. Possession given on the first of May next.
GEORGE HANN.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

LOT No. Four, in the 4th Concession, Gosfield.
J. H. WILKINSON.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

FOR SALE.

(ON TIME.)

AN Eighteen Horse Power Engine and Boiler complete. Apply to
GEO. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

Agriculture and Science.

At this season of the year, no subject requires more attention than that of fencing, more particularly in this section of the country, where fencing materials are becoming very high; and as the law regarding the running at large of cattle such as to require the most substantial description of fences to be erected—if Township Councils could only be impressed with the good results which would follow the passing of stringent By-Laws for preventing the running at large of cattle in the great saving to the farmer that would be made in fencing besides in relieving the anxiety which necessarily must be endured from the knowledge that breezy cattle may at any moment break into and destroy, in one night, the fruits of a whole season's labor.

It has been found from experience, that the restraining of cattle has to be adopted in old settled Townships, and that it is impossible to improve the stock, if otherwise and we hope the day is not far distant when all the Townships in the County of Essex will have adopted this course; and so soon as that will have been accomplished, we will mark an improvement in the stock, and not until then.

It is quite useless for agricultural societies to import stock, as no general benefit will be derived from it unless the degenerators of stock are first removed. The Township Societies should move to accomplish this end and force it upon the Councils.

We propose giving to the Agriculturist a series of articles upon this subject, and will commence this week with the proceedings of the Agricultural and Horticultural Central Club, established a short time since in Toronto, which we take from the Canadian Agriculturist.

The Agricultural Horticultural Central Club.

SUBJECT—Fencing.

The first General Meeting of this newly organized body was held in one of the rooms of the City Hall House, in this City, on the 4th instant. There was a large attendance of farmers, gardeners, professional men and amateurs. G. W. Allan, Esq., (late Mayor) as President of the Club, occupied the Chair. William McDougall, Esq., Editor of the Agriculturist, opened the discussion. As the subject was,—"The best methods of fencing, adapted to the wants of Canada."

Mr. McDougall said he regretted some person better fitted for the task, had not been chosen to introduce to that intelligent assembly the important subject they had met to discuss. But as he never could shrink from any duty that might be imposed upon him, where the interests of Agriculture are concerned, he would briefly submit a few thoughts and statements for the consideration of the meeting, in the hope that they would be supplemented by more valuable information than he was able to impart.

After congratulating the Chairman and gentlemen present on the very auspicious commencement of their labors, and declaring that no questions could be more interesting, more patriotic, or more generally useful than those which would come under the notice of the Club, he said he would pass as rapidly as possible over the notes he had prepared, in order to give all the gentlemen present—and he was happy to see so large a number—an opportunity of expressing their views. The subject for present discussion is of a very practical character. It affords little scope for learned research, or scientific disquestion. It is nevertheless of great importance to the farmer, and any improvement that will lessen the expense, increase the efficiency, or render more durable, structures which in our system of mixed husbandry cannot be dispensed with, is well worthy the attention of a Farmers' and Gardeners' Club. I shall submit the question for consideration under the following general heads:—

1. The necessity for fences in Canada.
2. Capital invested in them, &c.
3. Dead fences.
4. Live fences.
5. Conclusion, and attempt to answer the question.

1. That it would be impossible to do without fences in a country where each 200 acres, often each 100, or less, belong to a different proprietor, and where the soil is, with scarcely any exception, adapted to the production of grain, no one, with any show of reason, can affirm. In many parts of Europe, where large estates are owned by a single proprietor, and where only a portion—and that perhaps a small one—is arable, the rest being pasturage, fences are "few and far between." The in-field and out-field system of enclosure may be practicable under such circumstances. The land which adjoins the habitation of the owner, and which produces the grain and vegetables for himself and dependents, and fodder for his cattle in winter, is enclosed; but as stock are never permitted to enter the in-field while the crops are growing, interior division fences are not required. Fencing is there reduced to its minimum. Again, where the land is parcelled out in small quantities to different proprietors as in the eastern parts of France, fences are seldom seen. The owners are too poor to spare the land which would be occupied by them, or the money and labour that would be required to construct and repair them. A ditch, a row of trees, a few march stones, or particular single trees, serve to mark the boundaries of these small estates, and stock, if kept at all, must be confined, and their food brought to them. It is cheaper under such circumstances, to fence in the cattle, than crops. In some parts of the valley of Connecticut, a system of non-fencing has been practised for many year. The annual overflow of that river completed its adoption, and it is said the system proved so economical, that it has extended to the uplands in the vicinity, and some American writers strongly recommend the same system for other parts of the country. To preserve the crops, all animal running at large are placed under the care of a responsible person, who gives bonds to the town, or as we would say here, the township, to make good any injury they may commit every owner of animals pays this person so much per week for taking care of them. It is," says the Editor of the American Agriculturist, "a pleasing sight to see a large herd of cows under the superintendence of one man, a couple of boys and two dogs, quietly browsing over open fields through the day, and as they return to the village, regularly stop at the doorsteps of their respective owners for the night, and again gather together the next morning to renew their feeding abroad."

I need not stop to argue that such a system would be impracticable in most parts of this country. The social habits of the people as well as the nature of husbandry universally practised, would not tolerate it.—The modern improved system of agriculture demands the presence of stock. No farm can long maintain its fertility without a fair proportion of the domestic animals. "Where no" says Mr. Stephens, "it was perceived that grain was more productively raised by the meliorating influence of grass on the soil; that grass land supported more stock when occasionally cropped with corn, and that the exavise of stock could manure land better than the art of man, the system of out-field and in-field was broken up. The ancient ring-fence that only surrounded the cultivated land, was then removed to the boundaries of the possession, and in its stead were constructed suitable enclosures, for the different crops raised in regular succession."—As we have now described several any practicable plan by which a dozen head of cattle, four or five great nuisances and a very small profit,—can be kept upon an ordinary farm without fences, and as these animals cannot be dispensed with, it follows, that fences in this country at least, are a necessary evil.

2. We must then, direct our attention to the possibility of alleviating the burden of the evil since we cannot remove it altogether. Now, sir, it appears to me, that we make many more fences than even our system of mixed husbandry requires. If one-fourth or even one-sixth of the fencing now considered necessary on our farms were dispensed with, it would save millions of dollars to the country. Perhaps sir, some members of this club never sat down and calculated the probable cost of the fences of Upper Canada! I have done so, and the amount is startling. Take the common rail fence as the standard. A farm of 200 acres, supposing, as the law requires, that your neighbors make half of the division fence, will take 560 rods to enclose it. I speak now of lots laid out as in the adjoining townships, for in all the old townships, with a more irregular shape which has been adopted in the later surveys, would not require so much. If half the lot, or 100 acres, is cleared and divided into fields of, say 10 acres, with a lane through the middle, 800 rods more must be added to the 560 rods of fence, or an ordinary 200 acre lot. A good rail fence should be nine rails high, including riders, with 2 stakes at each corner. Two lengths or panels will lay a rod. 1000 rails and stakes will make about 45 rods of fence; therefore 30,000 will be required for each 200 acre farm, half being wood-land, in the ordinary way. A man will lay up and complete about 10 rods a day. Of course a man can do much more, but I speak of what usually is done.

Suppose the rails to cost, when delivered on the ground, 4s. per thousand, we have for rails, stakes, &c. $90

Labour of putting up 136

Total $1,036

In this calculation nothing is allowed for clearing stumps, logs or stones from the land for ploughing, harrowing, &c. According to the last census there were in Upper Canada, 3,697,724 acres under cultivation. Leaving woodland out of the question, and assuming that it would cost $800 only, to fences alone, in Upper Canada! It may be said that Canadian fences are not at all equal to my standard, and that timber being on the spot, and of little value at the time, the rails, did not cost $36 per 1000. But many thousand rods of fence have cost much more than I assume, and if you consider the number of times these fences have been renewed since the first erection, you find that I am under rather than over the mark, as to the amount now invested in the fences of Upper Canada. In 25 years, or less, they will have been been replaced at a cost that will approach $55,000,000! And thus, sir, will the fences go on; every quarter of a century this enormous sum must be re-invested where it yields no interest but is soon lost forever. If then we can introduce more durable structures; if we can reduce the number of fences on a farm, or substitute living fences for dead ones, even though they may cost a little more at the outset, what an immense benefit will be conferred upon the agriculture of Canada!

3. Dead fences—are universally resorted to in this country for the purpose of protection. The few hedges that live fences in the common rail, of pine, oak, basswood or cedar is the cheapest and best material within the farmer's reach, and the only question is, as to the best mode of placing it in the fence. On the subject of cutting and splitting rails; the season of the year; the age of the moon, &c., &c., there is extant a good deal of what would be called "learning," if it related to similar notions two thousand years old. I have known Dutch farmers, for instance, split rails when giving leases, that basswood should be split in March and the bark immediately peeled off. Experience, no doubt, has shown this to be a wise practice. Summer is also preferred for cutting other kinds of timber. It is believed to be more lasting than when cut during winter. The fence when first put is very unsightly—no object to the eye, but when well made is, in my opinion, the fence "best adapted to the wants" of the man who is clearing up a new farm. Another form of rail fence is sometimes used, and though less capable of resisting lateral pressure than the worm fence, it is in some situations preferable to it. The rails are laid between two posts, which should be of oak or cedar, driven into the ground, and held together at the top by a piece of plank, with two large holes through which the ends of the posts are thrust. The top rails should rest on the block. The advantages of this plan are obvious. The fence is straight, and therefore requires less timber, and occupies less ground. There is no harbor for weeds, and it is more agreeable to the eye than the crooked fence. The objections are equally obvious. Being kept upright by the stakes alone, and offering a large surface to the wind, it is very liable to be blown down. The stakes will spread when the ground is saturated with water, and let down the rails. An improvement, I think, might easily be made upon this fence, and though I have never seen it adopted, I intend to try a few rods in an exposed situation next season. I propose to make the block, which is usually laid under the end of each bottom rail, perform a double office. First, keep the rail from the ground, and the stakes from spreading. This could be accomplished by boring two large holes through the block to receive the ends of the stakes, allowing them to pass into the ground. A third object would be attained by this arrangement.—You would give your fence a lateral basis equal to the length of the block. Its power of resisting lateral pressure, whether of wind or animals, would be at least doubled, probably trebled. A cheap machine has been invented, to prepare the stakes as well as the holes, which I understand can be adjusted to any power, and operates with great expedition. I would bore two holes in the ground block for each post, mortising out the obstructing wood between, so as to leave the posts as large as possible in and near the ground. By using durable wood, and a larger and longer block than is commonly employed for the purpose, I think a very neat, substantial, straight rail fence can be constructed, that will cost but little, if any more, than a good worm fence. The "post and rail" fence is another variety worthy of notice. This has been much improved in the vicinity of Cobourg. Poles and sawed rails are used. The latter are made of a diamond shape, the ends rounded by machinery and placed in the posts in such a manner, as to present one of the acute angles to the descending rain. One advantage of this fence is, that any kind of hardwood may be used for the rails. The objection is that like all other post fences, it is expensive—liable to be deranged by frost—and when the rails begin to warp, they will, I fear, offer a great temptation to pigs to push them, so as to form a short cut. "Board and board" fence is liable to similar objections, and, at the present price of lumber is even more costly. But there is a way of avoiding the evil of winter "heaving"—a serious matter in all low soils—and, at the same time, dispensing with the post auger. Then, with a plough, you pass up and down each side of the posts, throwing the furrows toward them for a space of four or five feet. The process is repeated, until you have raised a bank at least eighteen inches high, and made two corresponding ditches, one on each side of the posts. The spade is now used to level inequalities, and cut through any small ridges that may cross the line of fence. You may then nail your boards to the posts; if ten or twelve inches wide, three will be sufficient. Sow over each bank with grass seed, and you will have not only a good fence that will not be disturbed by frost, but you will also have a ditch at the side or each field, carry off surplus winter that may flow in that direction—a benefit second only to the fence itself.

[To be Continued.]

COOL.—Barney Lynch, who was sent to the Town House to-day, for stealing overcoats, went into the hall of a house on Morgan street, one day last week, stole an umbrella, and then took it around to the back door of the house, and sold it to the woman of the house for twenty-five cents. Barney is decidedly a cool individual, even for this time of year.—Hartford Times.

Hotels.

WARNER HOUSE

EXCHANGE,

AMHERSTBURG, C. W.

THE SUBSCRIBER has leased the "La Liberty Stand," second door above the Prince Albert Hotel, Murray Street, for a term of years, and has it repaired throughout, furnished with new furniture, bedding, &c., and now open for the accommodation of the travelling public, and by strict attention to business he hopes to receive a liberal share of the same.

HIS TABLE

will be well supplied with all the luxuries of the season.

HIS BAR

will always contain the choicest brands of Liquors.

His Stables and Shed are large and convenient.

Persons wishing good Board will find this a convenient place, being a central place of business.

CHARLES WARNER.

Amherstburg, March 14th, 1856.

INTERNATIONAL

BILLIARD

SALOON.

Windsor, C.W., opposite the Depot of the Great Western Railway.

T. M. HOWRIGAN,

Proprietor.

The above Saloon is neatly and commodiously fitted up, the Proprietor having spared no expense for the purpose of rendering it attractive to visitors.

The best of Cigars, Wines and Liquors always on hand.

Windsor, Feb. 29th, 1856.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

COURTER HOUSE

Corner of Erie and Seneca Streets,

Nearly Opposite the Buffalo & N. Falls Railroad.

B. F. POPPLE, MANAGER.

VISITORS visiting the Courter House, Buffalo, will find every convenience and attention at reasonable charges. Tectotalers visiting Buffalo, will find this Hotel calculated to meet their wishes.

Buffalo, 29th Feb. 1856.

Hotels, &c.

HENNELL HOUSE,

LATE FREE MASON'S TAVERN,

Sandwich.

THIS House is pleasantly situated at the terminus of the New Gravel Road from Windsor to Sandwich, and possesses all the requisites which are generally met with in first class hotels—Good Beds, superior Stabling, and unimpeachable Liquors.

From the long experience of the present proprietor in this line of business, he is enabled to meet the wishes of his patrons, in every particular, with promptness; and he will make it his study so to treat his visitors, that they may leave him with perfect satisfaction, and return with pleasure future occasions.

WM. HENNELL.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th.

SANDWICH EXCHANGE,

BEDFORD STREET, SANDWICH.

JACOB STUTTZ

IN returning thanks for past favors, begs to inform his Friends and the Public that he still keeps on hand the best of every thing to suit the taste and comfort of his customers, and trusts that by assiduity and attention to business, to merit their patronage and support.

N.B.—A Good Stable and Shed.

WESTERN HOTEL,

BY CYRUS DOBSON.

THIS Hotel, adjoining the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, has been put in firstrate repair, and the Proprietor hopes that, by strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a share of public patronage.

N.B.—There is an excellent stable attached to the premises, and an attentive ostler will always be in attendance.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

THE COTTAGE INN,

BY ALEXANDER REAUME.

THE Proprietor having lately leased the above comfortable premises, and having thoroughly repaired and refurnished the same, will be happy to attend upon the travelling public at all hours. A supply of Cool Old Ohio and Hot Water will always be found at the Bar, with all other choice Liquors.

The COTTAGE INN has good and comfortable Stables attached.

ALEXANDER REAUME.

Anderdon, February 29th, 1856.

TRAVELLERS' HOME,

T. HALEY, PROPRIETOR,

(Formerly of Aylmer, Canada West.)

THIS House having been fitted up in the neatest and most comfortable style, the Proprietor hopes that, by keeping the choicest Liquors and a strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage which he may give him a call. Attentive waiters and a well supplied table will always be found here.

Good Stabling and an attentive Ostler always in attendance.

N.B.—FRESH OYSTERS always on hand.

Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

PRINCE ALBERT HOTEL.

THIS Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Warner, has been thoroughly renovated, and will be kept well supplied with the very best liquors. An attentive man will always be in attendance to take charge of horses.

A private Parlor, for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen, has been fitted up.

F. X. TRUDELL,

Sandwich Street, Proprietor.

29th February, 1856.

BROOKER'S TAVERN.

WM. BROOKER is prepared to attend upon his Customers at his new and well-furnished house on the Tecumseh Bridge, where the Traveller will have his wants attended to in regard to good liquors, and his friends may expect to find every accommodation as usual.

A supply of Groceries always kept on hand which will be sold very cheap.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROYAL EXCHANGE.

J. L. McGEE,

BEGS to announce to the Travelling Community, and Public in general, that he has opened the above new TAVERN, with good accommodations, and hopes by attention to his business, to merit a share of public patronage. A choice selection of Groceries always on hand.

Maidstone Cross, February 29th, 1856.

MANSION HOUSE.

THIS new and commodious Inn is now completely finished, and the Proprietor hopes, by strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to receive a continuance of the patronage which was so liberally awarded him at his old stand.

ALONZO BROWN,

Maidstone Cross, Proprietor.

7th March, 1856.

AMERICAN HOTEL.

COURT HOUSE SQUARE, LONDON, C. W.

ROBERT ARKELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and Travellers that he has taken the above Hotel, which has undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The house is in a fine open, airy and central situation, and commands a beautiful view of the valley of the Thames and surrounding country.

The Table is supplied with all the delicacies of the season. The Wines and Liquors will be of the best brands, and he trusts by assiduity and attention to the comfort of his guests to merit their patronage and support.

ROBERT ARKELL.

London, 29th Feb. 1856.

CIGAR FACTORY.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the inhabitants of Amherstburg and vicinity that he has opened a Cigar Factory in the above Town, where every description of the choicest kind are always on hand. He has also lately imported from Havana a large quantity of the very best Principe and every other description of Cigars, which he intends to sell at a much smaller price than can be had in Detroit. Call and see him, and he will give a pull.

JOHN N. MILLER.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

NOTICE.

A BAY PONEY came in the barn yard on the "Hand's Farm," about the 1st February last, and unless the owner comes to claim the same and pay the charges, it will be impounded and sold.

Hand's Farm, 15th March, 1856.

LANDS FOR SALE.

A SMALL FARM, being part of Lot No 37, in first Concession, Petite Cote, 40 acres, all under fence, two acres in width by twenty in depth. This lot is beautifully situated upon the road to Amherstburg, about three miles from Sandwich, it is well adapted for a residence.

Two Lots on Glengary Avenue, one house and lot on St. George's street, in the village of Windsor.

A number of Town Lots on the Pajot Farm, in the town of Sandwich.

Also part of lots Nos. 95 and 96, 1st and 2nd Con., half a mile above Windsor, two houses and barn thereon, containing 150 acres

The above lots will be sold for cash, at the very lowest figure, and parties wishing to purchase for residences or speculation, will find this an opportunity which is not often afforded. Title indisputable.

CHAS. F. LABADIE

All parties owing the subscriber are requested to settle forthwith, or having any claims against him are requested to present them without delay, as he is about winding up his business.

C. F. I.

Sandwich April, 1856.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been severely felt by the growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens with directions how adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded: together with its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department: H. P. KNIGHT, JAMES SAWARDS and D. W. RAY.

TERMS: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance: a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

N.B.— Newspapers inserting the above prospectus, and giving attention editorially to the same, will be forwarded the ILLUSTRATED HORTICULTURIST for one year, a copy containing the advertisement should be sent in all cases to insure attention.

Address

C. REAGLES, Publisher,

Illustrated Horticulturist

208, BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

NEW VOLUME OF THE

AGRICULTURIST

SUBSCRIPTION REDUCED FROM 25 TO 50 PER CENT.

The Canadian Agriculturist

Has now reached the eighth volume, having been established as a private proprietary in 1848, and is too well known to the leading farmers of the British Provinces, to need any eulogium from us. The undersigned has made arrangements with the proprietor to publish the next, and probably succeeding volumes, and have resolved to make important improvements in the work, while at the same time its price will be considerably reduced.

THE AGRICULTURIST

Is published Monthly, on good Paper, each number containing 32 pages, making at the end of the year a handsome volume of 384 pages.

EVERY NUMBER WILL BE

Illustrated with Engravings

Such as Farm Implements, Plans of Animals, designs of Farm Buildings, New Inventions, &c., &c., interesting to the Farmer, and also portraits of some of the most Distinguished Agriculturists.

The Work will be conducted as usual by WILLIAM MACDOUGALL, Esq., who has resumed the practice of Agriculture near this city. The active promoter of the various improvements made in our Agricultural Legislation since 1847, and having also been connected with the Journal from its commencement, he requires no recommendation from us.

PROFESSOR BUCKLAND, of the Toronto University, whose labors and writings in behalf of Canadian Agriculture are known and appreciated throughout the Province, will contribute to its columns as usual.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS

Of known ability have also been engaged. Efforts will be made to extend the correspondence on subjects of a practical kind.

THE AGRICULTURIST IS NOT LIABLE TO POSTAGE.

WIMAN & Co, Publishers

Toronto, March, 1856.

TO be published monthly, price half-a dollar per annum,

The Churchman's Friend,

For the diffusion of information relative to the Church of England, her Doctrine and Ordinances. Edited by Edward H. Dewar, M.A., Rector of Sandwich, assisted by other Clergymen.

Sandwich, March 15th, 1856.

New Wholesale

GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT!

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and the Trade generally, that he has commenced business on his own account, in this City, as a

WHOLESALE GENERAL GROCER,

And is now receiving a large and carefully selected Stock of

GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, OILS, PAINTS, &c., &c., &c.

To which he confidently invites the attention of Western and City Merchants.

Premises, King Street West, opposite Messrs. McKeand, Bross & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods Warehouse.

A. I. McKENZIE.

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TO RENT.

A DRUG STORE, with a large and well selected stock of Drugs and Medicines, in the Town of Sandwich. The Store will be leased for a term of years, and the Drugs and Medicines will be sold on reasonable terms. The selection cannot be surpassed in Upper Canada. Possession given on the first day of July next, if required. The present proprietor is about entering other business, which will prevent him attending to the Drug business, and this is the only reason for his retiring from he trade. For particulars inquire of

J. ADLEY.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

J. H. ALLISON,

IMPORTER OF

IMPROVED

RAILROAD WATCHES.

Cased in beautiful styles warranted excellent time-keepers: do. Swiss full jeweled Levers of every style.

GOLD PENS.

I continue manufacturing Pens of every desirable pattern; these Pens have received

A SILVER MEDAL & DIPLOMA

At the Michigan State Fair, and are not to be surpassed by any Pens in the market.

ALSO DEALER IN

FINE JEWELRY,

SILVER WARE,

AND FANCY GOODS.

I have an experienced Jeweller, capable of making New Work to order,

SETTING STONES AND DIAMOND WORK, &c.,

FIRE GILDING AND GALVANIZING

Done at Short Notice.

WATCH REPAIRING.

Being a Practical Workman, all work entrusted to me will be carefully attended to.

GOLD PENS RE-POINTED

at 50 cents all sizes. Orders sent by mail, accompanied by cash, will be promptly attended to.

J. H. ALLISON,

No. 176 Jefferson Ave.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

Hamilton and Toronto Branch.

ALTERATION OF TIME.

ON and after MONDAY NEXT, the 10th December, trains will run daily (Sundays excepted) between Hamilton and Toronto, as follows:

GOING WEST

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed Mail *
	A M	P M	P M
Toronto,	8 00	3 20	10 00
Dundas,	8 10	3 30	10 15
Port Credit,	8 25	3 45	10 30
Oakville,	8 43	4 03	10 48
Bronte,	8 55	4 15	11 15
Wellington Square,	9 10	4 30	11 35
Hamilton,	9 30	4 50	12 00

GOING EAST.

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed Mail
	A M	P M	A M
Hamilton,	10 40	6 10	3 10
Wellington Square,	11 00	6 30	3 35
Bronte,	11 19	6 49	3 55
Oakville,	11 27	7 00	4 15
Port Credit,	11 45	7 20	4 35
Mimico,	12 00	7 35	4 50
Toronto,	12 15	7 50	5 05

The above Trains connect at Hamilton with Trains of Great Western Railway running in connection with Trains to Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, Boston, New York, and with Michigan Central Railroad Trains at Detroit for Chicago, St Louis, &c, &c.

The 3 20 Train from Toronto meets G W R Accommodation Train going West at Hamilton, for Preston Galt, Paris, London, and intermedia te Stations

Through Tickets for any of the above places can be obtained at the Ticket Office, Toronto Station

Stages run daily between Oakville, Milton, Georgetown, &c, &c, &c.

C. J. BRYDGES,

Managing Director

Great Western Railway Offices,

A RARE CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY

IS NOW OFFERED IN

E. RYAN'S

GRAND GIFT ENTERPRISE

AND

LOTTERY,

to take place at

SANDWICH,

ON THE 19th APRIL, 1856.

ALL PRIZES! NO BLANKS.

The following is a List of a few of the Prizes:

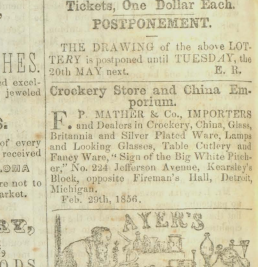
2 Shares in Sandwich Street Plank Road Company, worth	$60
A Glass Case,	40
A Burr Cooking Stove,	40
A Buggy Harness,	40
Trotting Waggon,	20
Double Barrel Gun,	20
Dress Coat (new)	18
Frock do	18
Single Barrel Gun,	15
Do do do,	15
Settee,	15
Pair of Curtains,	12
Lot of Dishes,	11
Six Shooter,	10
Box Stove,	10
20 Yards Carpet,	10
Eight Day Clock,	8
Do do	6
Looking Glass,	5
Pair of Shanghais,	5

Together with other articles amounting to FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

On the day of drawing, the holders of tickets will have the privilege of appointing a Committee to regulate the mode of drawing, &c., &c. If the tickets are not all sold by the day appointed for drawing, due notice will be given of the postponement in the "Maple Leaf."

Tickets, One Dollar Each.

POSTPONEMENT.



THE DRAWING of the above LOTTERY is postponed until TUESDAY, the 20th MAY next.

E. R.

Crockery Store and China Emporium.

F. P. MATHER & Co., IMPORTERS and Dealers in Crockery, China, Glass, Britannia and Silver Plated Ware, Lamps and Chandeliers, Table Cutlery and Fancy Ware, "Sign of the Big White Pitcher," No. 224 Jefferson Avenue, Kearsley's Block, opposite Fireman's Hall, Detroit, Michigan.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

CATHARTIC PILLS

OPERATE by their powerful influence on the Internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action. They remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, and, by restoring their irregular action to health, correct, wherever they exist, those derangements as are the first causes of disease. Such is the power of these Pills, that the Professors, Physicians, and Patients, has shown cures of dangerous diseases almost beyond belief, were they not substantiated by persons of such exalted character and characters as to forbid the suspicion of untruth. Their certificates are published in my American Almanac, which the Agents below named are pleased to furnish free to all inquiring.

Adapted to give Immediate relief in their use in the complaints which they have been found to cure.

FOR COSTIVENESS.—Take one or two Pills, for such quantity as to gently move the bowels. Costiveness is frequently the forerunning cause of FEVER, and the cure of one compliant is the cure of both. No person can feel well while under a costive habit of body. Force it should be, as it can be, promptly relieved.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, which is sometimes the cause of Costiveness, and sometimes the effect, take such doses—from one to four—as to stimulate the stomach and liver into healthy action. They will do it, and the heartburn, bodyfever, and sunburn of dyspepsia will promptly disappear. When it has gone, don't forget to take Pills.

FOR A FOUL STOMACH, or Morbid Inaction of the Bowels, which generally produces a severe attack of dyspepsia and bad health, take from four to eight Pills at first, and smaller doses afterwards, until activity and strength is restored to the system.

FOR NERVOUSNESS, SICK HEADACHE, NAUSEA, Pain in the Stomach, Bowels, or Side, take from five to eight pills on going to bed. If they do not operate sufficiently, take more the next day until they do. These complaints will be cured at once from the system. Don't wear these and their kindred disorders because your physician or friend is.

FOR SCROFULA, ERYSIPELAS, and all Diseases of the Skin, take the Pills freely and frequently, to keep the bowels open. The cures of these have usually soon begun to diminish and disappear. Many dreadful ulcers and sores have been healed up by the purging and purifying effect of these Pills, and some disgusting diseases would seemed to saturate the whole system have completely yielded to their influence, leaving the sufferer in perfect health. Patients! your duty to society forbids that you should parade yourself around the world covered with pimples, blotches, ulcers, sores, and all or any of the various diseases of the skin that your system wants cleansing.

FOR LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSENTERY, or BILIOUS DISORDER, they are the best medicine ever discovered. They should be taken freely and frequently, and the impurities which sow the seeds of incurable disease will be carried off and the system like chaff before the wind. By this property they do as much good in severe sickness as by the remarkable cures which they are making every where.

LIVER COMPLAINT, JAUNDICE, and all Bilious Affections arise from some derangement—either torpidity, congestion, or inflammation of the liver. Torpidity and congestion vitiate the bile and render it unfit for digestion. This is dissolves to the health, and the constitution is frequently undermined by no other cause. Indigestion is the symptom. Obstruction of the duct which carries off the bile into the stomach causes the bile to overflow into the blood, producing severe jaundice, with a long and dangerous train of evils. Costiveness or alternately costiveness and diarrhœa, prevails. Sometimes there is severe pain in the side; the skin and the white of the eyes become a greenish yellow; the stomach and bowels become sore to the touch; the whole system irritable, with a tendency to fever, which may terminate in nervous prostration, bilious diarrhœa, dysentery, &c. A medium dose of three or four Pills taken straight, followed by two or three in the morning, and repeated for a few days, will remove the cause of all these troubles. It is wicked to suffer from these complaints when they can be cured.

RHEUMATISM, GOUT, and all Inflammatory Forms are rapidly cured by the purifying effects of these Pills upon the blood. Take them according to the directions which they afford to the vital principle of Life. For these and all kindred complaints, one should be taken in mild doses, to move the bowels gently, but freely.

AS A DINNER PILL they are the best ever used. The Pill can be made more powerful, if necessary, and certainly none has been made more effectual to the purpose for which a dinner pill is employed.

PREPARED BY

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.,

Practical and Analytical Chemists,

LOWELL, MASS.,

AND SOLD BY

GEO. and G. A. BULLOCK, and J. A. VERVAIS, Sandwich;

D. OULLETTE, Windsor:

And every Druggist and Merchant in Canada.

MAPLE LEAF.

James H. Wilkinson] "PROGRESS." [Proprietor and Publisher.

VOL. I. SANDWICH, C. W., FRIDAY, MAY 2, 1856. NO. 10.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

IS PUBLISHED

Every Friday Morning,

BY

J. H. WILKINSON,

BEDFORD STREET,

Sandwich, Canada West.

TERMS:—Eight shillings and ninepence Cy, per annum, if paid in advance; or Ten Shillings at the end of the year.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Six lines or under, first insertion, 2s 6d, cy Each subsequent insertion, . . . 0 7½ "

Advertisements over six lines, 4d per line for the first insertion, and one penny per line for every subsequent insertion. A liberal discount made to Merchants and others who advertise by the year.

Advertisements sent in for insertion without written directions, will be continued till forbid and the usual rates charged.

CLUBS.

Any person procuring 10 subscribers will be entitled to a copy gratis. Payment to be made in advance.

The JOB OFFICE connected with the "MAPLE LEAF" is in every respect complete for the dispatch of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

Professional Cards.

Mr. William Johnson,
Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c., &c.
Sandwich, C. W.

Mr. Charles Baby,
Attorney and Councillor at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, &c.
Office, Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. J. H. Wilkinson.
Law, Chancery, Conveyancing, and Land Agency Office,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. Louis J. Fluett,
Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, Conveyancer and Land Agent,
Sandwich.

Mr. S. S. Macdonell,
Barrister, Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, &c., &c.
Windsor, C. W.

Mr. John O'Connor, Jun.,
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c.,
Windsor, C. W.

Charles Eugene Casgrain, M.D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Office and Residence, opposite the "Mear's Hotel,"
Sandwich, Canada West.

Dr. Reynolds,
Physician and Surgeon,
Amherstburg.

John Adley,
Physician and Surgeon, &c.,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

ALEXANDER GORDON,
NOTARY PUBLIC AND INSURANCE AGENT
Sandwich & Windsor, Canada West.

John McCrae,
Auctioneer, Insurance and General Agent
Windsor, Canada West.

Bank of Upper Canada Agency,
Sandwich, Canada West.
Office hours, 10, A.M., to 3, P.M.

Philip S. Donnelly,
Provincial Land Surveyor, &c.,
Moore, County of Lambton.

LAFFERTY & JONES,
AUCTIONEERS AND APPRAISERS,
Amherstburg, Canada West.

P. Marentette,
Gunsmith and Manufacturer of Guns.
Every description of Fire-arms repaired at his shop, on Bedford Street,
Sandwich.

L. P. St. Amour,
IMPORTER, AND WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS
CROCKERY, HARDWARE,
PERFUMERY, &c.
Sandwich, Canada West.

Sandwich Post Office.

Open daily, from Nine till Twelve, A.M., and from half-past Twelve till Five, P.M.
P. H. MORIN, Post Master.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware
Crockery, Boots & Shoes
&C. &C. &C.
Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich.

Bartley and Pinney,
PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.
Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.

MR. JAS. WOODBRIDGE, JUN.,
Division Court Agent, and General Agent for Collecting Debts.
Sandwich, Canada West.

S. D. ELWOOD & CO.,
PUBLISHERS,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
BOOKS, STATIONERY,
AND ALL KINDS OF
PAPERS,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS STOCK
MANUFACTURERS OF
BLANK BOOKS
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.
Orders for Lithographed Letter and Bill Heads, Maps, Drafts, Stock Certificates, &c., &c., &c.,
EXECUTED WITH PROMPTNESS.
192 Jefferson Avenue,
S. D. ELWOOD, } DETROIT.
J. C. PARSONS, }

WILLIAM SWIFT,
MERCHANT TAILOR,

IS prepared to attend upon the Gentlemen of Amherstburg in his line of business, and is not afraid to assert that he will cut and Fit in the latest and most fashionable Styles as well as any Tailor west of London.
Amherstburg, Feb. 29th, 1856.

George Hann,
DEALER IN FURS AND SKINS.
The highest price paid for Shipping Furs at his Fur Store in the Town of Sandwich.
15th March, 1856.

NIAGARA
MUTUAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.

GEORGE BULLOCK, Local Agent for the Townships of Sandwich, Maidstone, Rochester and Tilbury West; also the Village of Windsor. Address, Sandwich Post Office.

ROSE DALE MILLS,

THE highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Rye, Corn, or Buck Wheat, either at the Mills or at the Store of
GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

JAMES JESSOP,
CARPENTER & JOINER,

WILL always be on hand to attend to the erection of Building, and every description of Carpenter and Joiner work upon the shortest notice.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WARNER'S EXCHANGE,
AMHERSTBURG, C. W.
CHARLES WARNER, PROPRIETOR

HIDES WANTED.

ANY Quantity of Hides will be taken in for the Sandwich Tannery at either of the Saddler's Shops in Sandwich or Windsor, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.
JAS. WOODBRIDGE.

SIMPSON'S EATING SALOON.

MR. SIMPSON would inform the Gentlemen of Sandwich and vicinity that he is prepared at all hours to furnish "Hot Meals," and those who may favor his establishment with a call, can depend upon having, if they wish, a "steak" cooked in the good old English style, with all the little etceteras.
Dinner Parties accommodated upon the shortest notice.
N.B.—A few persons can be accommodated with good clean beds.
No 253 Jefferson Avenue Detroit Mich. few doors above the Theatre.

NEW LIVERY STABLE.

JOHN LEWIS, having purchased the Livery Stable in the Town of Sandwich, formerly kept by C. F. Labadie, will carry it on in a style that has never been known in this place before. Fresh horses and new carriages are being added to this establishment every day, and persons who patronise him may expect to be furnished with "Crack Teams."

PAINT SHOP.

FRANCOIS PAYETTE having opened a Paint Shop in the Town of Sandwich, opposite the "Sandwich Exchange," will be happy to attend to the painting of houses, Graining, Glazing, Varnishing, and, in fact, every description of work in his line of business with despatch, and at moderate charges.
N.B.—Buggies and Carriages painted and varnished upon reasonable terms.

Poetry.

The King of the North.

BY AMANDA T. JONES.

The winter—the mirth-chilling winter—hath passed
From our home, on his icy track, away;
And hushed is the shout of the whirling blast
And the sound of his wild and solemn lay.

He has gone to the north—the brave old north—
Where glimmer his crystal palace-halls;
Where never was heard the song of bird,
Or the sound of rushing waterfalls.

Where stars gleam bright in the pallid night.
He stalks along like a sentry old,
He smileth not—he weepeth not,
For his brow and his heart are icy cold.

But the glance of his eye is wild and high,
And the sound of his voice is clear and strong
And the cast grows chill as he passeth by,
For he chanteth a bold and terrible song.

"I sweep o'er the earth, bringing wailing and woe,
And my sounding wings are broad and fleet;
Woe, woe to the flowers the young summer hath left,
I crush them all with my snow-white feet.

The clouds that lie in the far blue sky,
If I but pass with my chilling breath,
Rush down to earth from their house on high,
As white as the brow of the angel Death.

And the cheek of the coward man is pale,
And he shrinketh back from bold embrace
I laugh when I see his frail heart quail,
And I mock him in his dwelling-place.

But better I love the brave old north,
Where glimmer my crystal palace-halls;
Where never is heard the song of bird,
Or the sound of rushing waterfalls.

And there in the long, long winter night,
I stalk like a sentry grim and old,
And I watch the quivering northern light
But my brow and my heart are icy cold."
Ladies Repository.

A Trinity College Student!

FIFTY YEARS AGO.

It was a lovely morning; a remittance had arrived in the very nick of time; my two horses were in excellent condition; and I resolved, with a College chum, to put in execution a long-cherished scheme of driving to London tandem fashion. We sent our horses forward, got others at Cambridge, and tossing Algebra and Anarchasis to the dogs, started in high spirits. We ran up a number in fine style—went ball pitch to the play—and, after a quiet breakfast at St. James's, set out with my two horses upon a dashing drive through the west end of the town. We were turning down the Haymarket, when whom, to my utter horror and consternation, should I see crossing to meet us, but my old warm-hearted, but severe and peppery, uncle, Sir Thomas ——.

To escape was impossible. A cart before, and two carriages behind, made us stationary; and I mentally resigned all idea of ever succeeding to his five thousand per annum. Up he came. "What! Phil, can I believe my eyes? George! what the ——do you do here? Tandem, too, by ——'

(I leave blanks for the significant accompaniments dropped from his mouth like pearls and rubies in the fairy tale, when he was in a passion.) I have it, thought I, as an idea crossed my mind, which I resolved to follow. I looked right and left, as if it was not possible it could be me he was addressing. "What! you don't know me, you young dog! Don't you know your uncle? Why, sir, in the name of common sense—pshaw! you've done with that—Why, in——name, ain't you at Cambridge?'

'At Cambridge, sir?' said I.

'At Cambridge, sir,' he repeated, mimicking my affected astonishment. 'Why, I suppose you never were at Cambridge!—Oh! you young spendthrift; is this the manner you dis ose of my allowance? Is this the way you read hard? you young prodigate, you young——, you ——.'

Seeing he was getting energetic, I began to be apprehensive of a scene, and resolved to drop the curtain at once. 'Really, sir,' said I, with a brazen a look as I could summon upon an emergency, 'I have not the honor of your acquaintance.' His large eyes assumed a fixed stare of astonishment as I continued, 'I must confess you have the advantage of me. Excuse me; but to my knowledge I never saw you before.' A torrent I perceived was coming. 'Make no apologies, they are unnecessary. Your next endeavor will, I hope, be more fortunate, though hunting up your country cousin in London is like looking for a needle in a bundle of hay. Bye, bye, old buck.' The cart was now removed, and I drove off, not but without seeing him, in a paroxysm of rage, half frightful, half ludicrous, toss his hat on the ground, and exclaim, 'He disowns me! the jackanapes! disowns his own uncle, by ——!'

My poor chum, Phil Chichester's look of amazement is the finished stroke of impudence, is present, at this instant, to my memory. I think I see his face, which at no time had more expression than a turnip, assume that air of a pensive simpleton which he so often and so successfully exhibited over an incomprehensible problem in 'Principel.' 'Well! you have done it. Dished completely. What could induce you to be such a blockhead!' said he.

'The family of blockheads, my dear Phil, I replied, 'is far too creditably established in society to render their alliance disgraceful. I'm proud to belong to so prevailing a party.'

'Pshaw! this is no time for joking.—What's to be done?'

'Why, when does a man want to joke, Phil, but when he is in trouble? However, adieu to joking, and hey for Cambridge instantly.'

'Cambridge?'

'In the twinkling of an eye—not a moment to be lost. My uncle will post there with four horses instantly and my only chance of avoiding that romantic misfortune of being cut off with a shilling is to be there before him.'

Without settling the bill at the inn, or making a single arrangement, we dashed back to Cambridge. Never shall I forget the mental anxiety I endured on my way there. Everything was against us. A heavy rain had fallen in the night, and the roads were wretched—the traces broke—turnpike gates were shut—droves of sheep and carts impeded our progress; but in spite of all these obstacles we reached the College in less than six hours. Alas Sir Thomas was there before!' said I to the porter, with an agitation I could not conceal.

'No, sir.'

Phil thanked God and took courage.

'If he does tell him so and so,' said I giving veracious Thomas his instructions, and putting a guinea into his hand to sharpen his memory. 'Phil my dear fellow, don't show your face out of College for this fortnight. You twig.' God bless you!'

I had hardly time to to get to my room, to have my toga and trencher beside me, Newton and Aristotle before me opties, mechanics, and hydrostatics, strewed around in learned profusion, when my uncle drove up the gate.

'Porter, I want to see Mr. ——,' said he, 'is he in the room?'

'Yes, sir; I saw him take a heap of books there ten minutes ago.'

This was not the first bouncer the Essence of Truth as Thomas was known through College, had told for me; not the last he got well paid for.

'Ay! very likely; reads very hard, I dare say!'

'No doubt of that, I believe, sir,' said Thomas, as bold as brass.

'You audacious fellow! how dare you look in my face and tell me such a deliberate falsehood! You know he's not in College.'

'As in College! sir, as I hope——'

'None of your hopes or fears to me.—Show me his rooms. If two hours ago I did not see——. See him; yes, I've seen him, and he's seen the last of me.'

He had now reached my rooms; and never shall I forget his look of astonishment, of savage wonder, bordering on incredulity, when I easily came forward, took his hand, and welcomed him to Cambridge. 'My dear sir, how are you? What lucky wind has blown you here?'

'What, George! who—what—why I can't believe my eyes!'

'Why not? I am to see you?' I continued; 'how kind of you to come! how well you're looking!'

'How people may be deceived! My dear George, (speaking rapidly) I met a fellow in a tandem, in the Haymarket, so like you in every respect, that I hailed him at once.—The puppy disowned me, and began to cut a joke—and drove off. Never was more taken off my stilts. I came down directly, with four posthorses, to tell your tutor—to tell the master—to tell all the College, that I would have nothing more to do with you; that I would be responsible for your debts no longer; to enclose you fifty pounds, and disown you forever.'

'My dear sir, how singular!'

'Singular! I wonder at perjury no longer; for my part, I would have gone into any quantity of paste, and taken my oath it was you. I never saw such a likeness.—The air, the height, the voice, all but the manner, and—that was not yours. No no, you never won'd have treated your old uncle so.'

'How rejoiced I am that ——'

'Rejoiced! so am I. I would not but have been undeceived for a thousand guineas. Nothing but seeing you here, so quiet, so studious, surrounded by problems, would have convinced me. Egad! I can't tell you how I was startled. I have been told some queer stories, to be sure, about your Cambridge etiquette. I heard that two Cambridge men, one of St. John's, the other of Trinity, had met on the top of Vesuvius, and that, though they knew each other by sight and reputation, yet, never having been formally introduced, like two simpletons, they looked each other in silence, and left the mountain separately and without speaking; and that cracked fellow commoner, Meadow, had shown me a caricature, taken from life representing a Cambridge man drowning, and another gownsman standing on the brink, exclaiming, "Oh, that I had not without seeing him, in a paroxysm of rage, half frightful, half ludicrous, toss his hat on the ground, and exclaim, 'He disowns me! the jackanapes! disowns his own uncle, by ——!'

My poor chum, Phil Chichester's look of amazement is the finished stroke of impudence, is present, at this instant, to my memory. I think I see his face, which at no time had more expression than a turnip, assume that air of a pensive simpleton which he so often and so successfully exhibited over an incomprehensible problem in 'Principel.' 'Well! you have done it. Dished completely. What could induce you to be such a blockhead!' said he.

'The family of blockheads, my dear Phil, I replied, 'is far too creditably established in society to render their alliance disgraceful. I'm proud to belong to so prevailing a party.'

'Pshaw! this is no time for joking.—What's to be done?'

'Why, when does a man want to joke, Phil, but when he is in trouble? However, adieu to joking, and hey for Cambridge instantly.'

'Cambridge?'

'In the twinkling of an eye—not a moment to be lost. My uncle will post there with four horses instantly and my only chance of avoiding that romantic misfortune of being cut off with a shilling is to be there before him.'

Without settling the bill at the inn, or making a single arrangement, we dashed back to Cambridge. Never shall I forget the mental anxiety I endured on my way there. Everything was against us. A heavy rain had fallen in the night, and the roads were wretched—the traces broke—turnpike gates were shut—droves of sheep and carts impeded our progress; but in spite of all these obstacles we reached the College in less than six hours. Alas Sir Thomas was there before!' said I to the porter, with an agitation I could not conceal.

'No, sir.'

Phil thanked God and took courage.

'If he does tell him so and so,' said I, giving veracious Thomas his instructions, and putting a guinea into his hand to sharpen his memory. 'Phil my dear fellow, don't show your face out of College for this fortnight. You twig.' God bless you!'

I had hardly time to to get to my room, to have my toga and trencher beside me, Newton and Aristotle before me opties, mechanics, and hydrostatics, strewed around in learned profusion, when my uncle drove up the gate.

'Porter, I want to see Mr. ——,' said he, 'is he in the room?'

'Yes, sir; I saw him take a heap of books there ten minutes ago.'

This was not the first bouncer the Essence of Truth as Thomas was known through College, had told for me; not the last he got well paid for.

'Ay! very likely; reads very hard, I dare say!'

'No doubt of that, I believe, sir,' said Thomas, as bold as brass.

'You audacious fellow! how dare you look in my face and tell me such a deliberate falsehood! You know he's not in College.'

'As in College! sir, as I hope——'

'None of your hopes or fears to me.—Show me his rooms. If two hours ago I did not see——. See him; yes, I've seen him, and he's seen the last of me.'

He had now reached my rooms; and never shall I forget his look of astonishment, of savage wonder, bordering on incredulity, when I easily came forward, took his hand, and welcomed him to Cambridge. 'My dear sir, how are you? What lucky wind has blown you here?'

'What, George! who—what—why I can't believe my eyes!'

'Why not? I am to see you?' I continued; 'how kind of you to come! how well you're looking!'

'How people may be deceived! My dear George, (speaking rapidly) I met a fellow in a tandem, in the Haymarket, so like you in every respect, that I hailed him at once.—The puppy disowned me, and began to cut a joke—and drove off. Never was more taken off my stilts. I came down directly, with four posthorses, to tell your tutor—to tell the master—to tell all the College, that I would have nothing more to do with you; that I would be responsible for your debts no longer; to enclose you fifty pounds, and disown you forever.'

'My dear sir, how singular!'

'Singular! I wonder at perjury no longer; for my part, I would have gone into any quantity of paste, and taken my oath it was you. I never saw such a likeness.—The air, the height, the voice, all but the manner, and—that was not yours. No no, you never won'd have treated your old uncle so.'

'How rejoiced I am that ——'

'Rejoiced! so am I. I would not but have been undeceived for a thousand guineas. Nothing but seeing you here, so quiet, so studious, surrounded by problems, would have convinced me. Egad! I can't tell you how I was startled. I have been told some queer stories, to be sure, about your Cambridge etiquette. I heard that two Cambridge men, one of St. John's, the other of Trinity, had met on the top of Vesuvius, and that, though they knew each other by sight and reputation, yet, never having been formally introduced, like two simpletons, they looked each other in silence, and left the mountain separately and without speaking; and that cracked fellow commoner, Meadow, had shown me a caricature, taken from life representing a Cambridge man drowning, and another gownsman standing on the brink, exclaiming, "Oh, that I had but the honor of being introduced to that man, that I might have taken the liberty of saving him." But, b—t it, thought I, he never would carry it so far with his own uncle! I never heard your father was a gay man,' continued he musing; 'yet as you are thought light, the likeness here I moved instantly. 'But it's impossible, you know its impossible. Come my dear fellow, come! I must get some dinner. Who could he be? Never were two people more alike!'

We dined at an inn and spent the evening together; and, instead of the fifty, the 'neat fifty,' he generously gave me a draft for three times the amount. He left Cambridge the next morning, and his last words were as he entered his carriage, 'My brother was a handsome man; and there was a lady somebody, who, the world said, was partial to him. She may have a son. Most surprising likeness. God bless you.—Read hard, you young dog; remember.—Like as two brothers!' I never saw him again.

His death, which happened a few months afterwards, in consequence of his being 'lit in a bet contracted when he was 'a little elevated,' left me heir to his fine estate; I wish I could add, to his many and noble virtues. I do not attempt to palliate deception. It is always criminal. But, I am sure, no severity, no reproaches, would have had half the effect which his kindness, his confidence, and his generosity wrought on me. It reformed me thoroughly and at once. I did not see London again till I had graduated, and if my degree was unaccompanied by brilliant honors, it did not disgrace my uncle's liberality, or his name. Many years have elapsed since our last interview; but I never reflect on it without pain and pleasure—pain, that our last interview on earth should have been marked by the grossest deception; and pleasure, that the serious reflections it awakened cured me forever of all wish to deceive, and made the open and straight-forward path of life that of AN OLD STUDENT.

A Colored Duel.

A duel between two colored gemmen—a regular built affair, conducted according to the most strict and punctilious provisions of the code of honor—came off last week. The fight took place with pistols of the most approved fashion, at sunrise, on a small branch of the Metarrie road. We do not know what the origin of the difficulty was, except, that one of the parties, to use the phrase of one of the spectators, 'was crossed in lub by de odder, and dat him hona must hab sat-faction.'

We have learned from one who was present at the combat the particulars as they transpired. They are as follows:

After having taken their stands, one of the seconds noticed that, owing to the positions, the sunbeams sat his principal twinkling and rolling his eyes. This was sufficient ground for interfering, and he calls out the other second with:

'I say I puts my weto on dat posishun —it's again the rules ob all de codes ob honah dat I know. De inaction ob de sun shines rader too sewere, and makes my principal roll him eyes altogedder too much.'

'Wy, wy, look here, didn't we chuck up a dollar for de choice of ground, and didn't I get him myself?'

'Yes, I know you did; but den fair play is a jule, and I'se no notion of seeing my friend composed upon, and lose all the 'vantage.'

'Well, I'se no notion as you is, and 'sists on settling the the matter just as we is—and——'

At the juncture a friendly cloud settled the matter at once, by stepping in between the sun and the belligerents.

The first two causes took their position, and all the little preliminaries being settled, each one took his pistol, ready cocked, from the second. Both manifested a terrible degree of spunk, although a sort of blueish paleness spread itself over their black cheeks.

The second who was to give out the fatal order which might send them out of this world, now took his ground. Raising his voice he began:

'Gemmen, your time 'am eum.'

Both signified their assent.

'Is you ready? Fiah! one—two—three.'

Bang, pop, went both pistols at once, one ball raising the dust in the middle of the road, while the other took a 'slanting deular' course among the by-standers, fortunately without hitting any one.

It was now time to interpose and one of the seconds set himself about it. After a little conversation the challenged darkey stepped forward and said to his antagonist;

'Nigga, is you satisfied?'

'I be.'

'So is I, and I's glad to get off so. Next time they catches dis child out on such a foolish exhibition as dis, dey will fetch me, dat dey will do, for sartin.'

'Dem's my sentiments edzackly,' retorted the other. 'When your onmortal inturment of darkness is cut off, I declare I thought I was a gon child; but I'se so happy now —gosh, let's shake hands, and go back to our avocation.'

In five minutes time all hands—enemies, black friends, white and all—were on the road home to work, perfectly satisfied with the great sport of the morning.

Fossil Remains of two Indians Found near Napanee.

The matter so long in dispute by Geologists, as to the existence of petrified remains of the human species has happily and finally been set at rest, through a discovery made near Napanee yesterday, by a party of laborers employed in excavating the deep cut of the Grand Trunk Railroad, preparatory to its crossing the river at that town. It was so late last night when the intelligence reached us, that we fear we shall be incorrect in penning all the particulars.

Yesterday, shortly before noon, as a party of quarry men were preparing a blast in a limestone rock on the Fredricksburg side of the Napanee River, the foreman, Mr. Randall Smith, thought he perceived something like a previous excavation in the solid rock filled up with stony refuse. Setting his men to work with pickaxes and shovels he soon found his surmise to be correct, for after removing a portion of the debris, he came to two large stone coffins, in perfect preservation, which he caused to be carefully removed to the level ground. Without attempting to open them, he hastened to the village for aid, and there he fortunately met with Mr. Edward Tompkins, one of the Assistant Engineers of the Railroad Contractors, and who still more fortunately for science, chances to have made Geology his study. Returning to open one of the stone coffins, or sarcophagi, which with much difficulty and after much labor they effected, when to their great astonishment, they found the remains of an Indian man in a thorough state of petrifaction!, Elated as they might well be, with this important discovery, Messrs. Smith and Tompkins procured one of the Railway trucks, and loading it with the precious freight, came post haste to Kingston, where they arrived late in the evening, and immediately communicated with the Railroad Authorities here. These gentlemen caused the other coffin to be opened, wherein was found a fossil man in every respect as perfect as when deposited in his stoney prison some thousand years ago. It was promptly determined to 'use no time in forwarding the coffins and their contents to Toronto, there to be seen and examined by the Assembled Wisdom of the Province, as also by Sir William Logan, the celebrated Geologist, now on a visit to the Canadian Capital. Late as the hour was, the news spread like wildfire, and many gentlemen came down in haste to the workshops of the Railroad Contractors to see the coffins, &c. Among others came his Worship the Mayor, who learning of the intention to send these curiosities forthwith off, begged the respite of a single day, in order to gratify the inhabitants of Kingston with a view prior to their removal. His request was kindly granted; the coffins and their contents were carefully removed to the City Hall, where upon a temporary platform, they will be open to public inspection all this day. The sight must be highly interesting for it solves an important problem in Geology. Messrs. Smith and Tompkins intend to proceed to morrow to Toronto, via Cape Vincent, (if the ice be good,) or otherwise by the stage route. The whole world is interested, and Mr. Randal Smith will rendr his name famous.—Kingston Whig 6th.

Miscellany.

PRESENCE OF MIND.—Two boys—perhaps about five years of age—got into a mass in Washington Street yesterday, and 'went in.' After tugging and pulling at each others hair, and 'slashing about in a general way they went down. The one at the bottom getting the worst of it, cried out, 'Hold on John, there's a perliceman!' His adversary looked over his left shoulder for the policeman; but he never made a greater mistake in all his life—for, quick as flash, the boy beneath him hove him over, and was himself on top, playing away like blazes. 'I say, Jim,' said the pummelled, that wasn't fair.' Holler enough then,' said the boy above, 'holler enough, and I'll let you up.' Enough it is then—but if you hadn't talked about the perlice I'd a licked you to thunder! said the satisfied urchin, as he rose to his feet and picked up his hat from the gutter.—Albany State Register, 25.

EFFECTS OF FASHIONABLE BONNETS.—An eminent medical gentleman in London, writing to a friend in Bristol, says:—'I have to lament the great increase, among the female part of my practice, of the dolourous in the forehead, loss of sight, and great suffering in the ear, induced I firmly believe, from the absurd fashion of wearing bonnets on the neck, instead of the head. During my attendance upon two young ladies with the tic dolouroux in the forehead, and several others with similar complaints. It is high time that the frivolous bonnet of the present day should be done away with."

Young Canada is growing rapidly.—Every day we meet with proofs of this encouraging fact. Here is an instance of rapid development: Have you been to the——Library? a son asked his father, a few days ago. 'No, I have not, replied the father.—You had better call and see it, the youth continued; just mention my name to the Librarian, and he will show you every attention.

Orloff, one of the Russian Plenipotentiaries, is about 70 years of age. He is about six feet high. His strength is Herculean.—An anecdote is published, stating that at a dinner at his house, a lady guest admiring a magnificent boquet, Count Orloff was about to offer it her, when he found the boquet was wet; he took a silver-gilt plate, twisted it into a boquet holder, presented it to the lady with the flowers.

A Chinese in Australia was a witness at an inquest. He was asked how he took an oath? He said, "On the tock." The Magistrate then inquired what he meant by being a Christian? The witness answered, "Oh, wearing a cost like yours; and being a great swell."

The generous conduct of the British Government in sending two steamers in search of the missing Pacific has been warmly responded to by the United States press.—The New York Times says that this mark of friendship "will cause a thrill of grateful satisfaction in the breast of every American," and that "whether the search be successful or not it will not be forgotten in the United States." This is as it should be. The only contest between us should be a generous rivalry in acts of friendship, or an amicable strife for eminence in the fields of literature, arts and commerce.—Coborg Star.

SINGULAR DISCOVERY.—The last number of the Californian says: A party of eight men started on Thursday last, on a prospecting tour, the result of which was one of the most important discoveries made in the country. In crossing Table Mountain they observed that in many places the ground seemed hollow, and in one place on striking on the ground with a sledge the echo was given back with such distinctness that led them to believe that there would be little difficulty in breaking through. Having procured proper implements, they set to work. After going to the depth of four feet one of the party, who was using a crowbar, was seen suddenly to fall upon his face; upon examination a hole was found about four inches wide, through which the bar had slipped and sunk into the bowels of the mountain. The aperture was immediately enlarged, but it was found that owing to the brittleness of the rock, it was exceedingly dangerous working around it. The parties have taken up about three thousand feet around the hole, and are busy getting windlasses, &c., to prospect it further. A correspondent states that both gold and coal have been found there, and promises us further information.

A large dog, in a rabid state, ran down Younge Street, on Monday last, causing great alarm, and unfortunately in his career biting several persons. He then rushed along King St., all leaving his way with great alacrity, except one poor man whose name we have not learned, whom the savage brute rushed upon, brought to the ground, and actually worried before he was rescued. After some delay a gentleman came fearlessly up at great risk to himself, and succeed, by a well aimed blow, in knocking the ferocious animal senseless; another one or two finished him. At the Council on the same evening, Alderman Dempsey brought the matter under the Mayor's notice, and we trust that some action will be immediately taken, as the swarm of dogs that literally crowd our streets are a perfect nuisance—and a dangerous one too.—Globe.

END OF THE MAINE LAW.—A bill repealing the Maine Liquor Law in the State of Maine and enacting a stringent License Law in its stead, has passed the Assembly by a vote of 183 against 63. The bill, after passing both branches of the Legislature, has received the assent of the Governor.

"What can a man do," asked a green 'un "when the sheriff is seen coming up to him with a writ in his hand?" "Apply the remedy," said another gruffly, "and you've the remedy! what kind of remedy?" "Heeling remedy, you goose—run like a quarter horse."

PERILOUS SITUATION—A MAN ON A CAKE OF ICE IN THE RIVER.—There was a great excitement caused in the city this morning by a report that a man was on a cake of ice in the river near the Falls, beyond recognition of human form. Hundreds of people rushed to the river bank on both sides below the Falls, to ascertain the truth of the rumor. It turned out that a man was on a small cake of ice grounded in the river a short distance below the Falls, about one hundred feet from the shore. The water was rushing with fury him on either side towards the rapids and Lower Falls, over which he would speedily pass, if the ice upon which he stood should become dislodged. His perilous position, and the imminent danger of his being speedily carried away, caused intense excitement among the people upon shore. It was discovered that the unfortunate man had but one arm, which of course prevented him from swimming to the shore, as a strong man might have done. Liberal sums were offered by citizens for a boat, or any person who would rescue the man.

After an hour and a quarter of intense anxiety, the man was rescued by means of a rope which was carried to him from the shore by a plank pushed into the stream from the shore above. He was drawn ashore amidst the cheers of the multitude. He proved to be Jacob Shuter, who resides on North Clinton street. He says he was gathering drift wood, and stepped upon the ice beside the water to seize a stick, when the ice broke away and floated him into the stream.

European Intelligence.

Foreign Correspondence.

THE PEACE CONFERENCES.

It is stated that the Russian plenipotentiaries did not withdraw the retention of the military arsenal of Nicolaieff, nor any of the military establishments in the Black Sea or the Sea of Azoff. Sebastopol will not be rebuilt. All the Russian forts in the Black Sea, from the Caucasus to the limit of the Russian territory, not far from Batoum, will be destroyed and never re-established. The Russian forts to the south of the Caucasus are be retained. The Asiatic frontier, between Russia and Turkey, will be rectified without injury to either, and in such a manner as to put an end to all dangerous discussions. It is clearly understood that the Russians give up their recent conquests from Turkey, and re-enter immediately in their own territory.

Turkey has demanded an indemnity for the expenses of the war, and has revived old claims for compensation for the repeated occupations of the Principalities by the Russians. The Russian Plenipotentiaries have opposed this claim, and the Congress has not yet come to a decision upon it.

The fortifications on the Aland Islands are not to be rebuilt. There are to be no fortified barracks, entrenched posts, or redoubts.

As to the Principalities, nothing has yet been decided, excepting that a "new organization" is to be given, and that it is believed the Plenipotentiaries will choose three of their body as commissioners, to proceed to the Principalities and make inquiries on the spot as to the best solution of the question. Whether the withdrawal of the Austrian troops should be postponed until peace and order in those countries shall be secured has not yet been decided.

As regards the withdrawal of the Austrian troops from the Principalities, a telegraphic despatch announces that it has actually commenced. This however, requires confirmation.

The Moniteur publishes the following official notification:—

For the time during which they must await the ratification of the treaty of peace, France, Great Britain, Sardinia and Turkey, on the one part, and Russia, on the other part, have concluded an armistice. It has been consequently agreed that the prizes made subsequently to the signature of peace shall be restored, that orders should be given for the immediate raising of the existing blockades, and that the prohibitive measures taken in Russia against the exportation, during the war, of Russian produce, especially of breadstuffs, should also be revoked without delay. Consular acts and the formalities required of navigators and merchants will be provisionally carried out by the agents of those Powers that consented to take charge officially, during the war, of the interests affecting the subjects of the belligerent States.

The Paris correspondent of the Post says the telegraph is constantly employed on the Italian question, between Rome, Naples, Vienna, and Paris. Count Cavour's propositions being now referred to those Courts, and an answer received, France and England will make a decision.

The Le Nord believes that the exchange of ratifications will be effected by the 20th. The commission of Austrian and Russian officers to rectify the Moldavian frontier are in Paris awaiting orders.

AFFAIRS IN THE CRIMEA.

The dates received from Constantinople are to March 31. The Russian palace there at present occupied as a French hospital, was placed at first for the return of the Embassy. The health of the French troops, both in the hospitals and in the Crimea, had improved.

It is now said that Austria, which has hitherto shown reluctance to evacuate the Principalities, has yielded to the remonstrance of the Congress.

AFFAIRS IN TURKEY,

The Turkish government expresses its anxiety to be relieved of the presence of the allies, and that it is quite able to maintain internal order and the defence of the frontier without the aid of foreign troops. The Divan is planning for the erection of permanent garrisons at important points of the empire.

Lord Stratford de Redcliffe will continue as the British Minister at Constantinople. Omar Pasha is restored to favor, and resumes the command of the army of Anatolia.

RUSSIA.

The naval armistice was officially published at St. Petersburg, April the 7th. After ratification all ships seized will be released.

The energies of the Russian government are said to be now devoted to three subjects, viz:—

First—Alliance with France.

Second—Completion of the railways.

Third—The manufacture of Russian feelings in the continent, especially in Germany.

GREAT BRITAIN.

A British order in council raises the blockade of all the Russian ports, and permits the free resumption of commerce in all articles.

The grand naval review by Queen Victoria, of all the ships that can be collected together, is postponed till the 22nd or 23rd inst., by which time the treaty of peace will have been signed.

The Crimean Inquiry Commission continues its sittings. Lord Lucan was on trial.

Steamers are being fitted out to bring home the army from the Crimea.

FRANCE.

Expeditions against Madagascar and the Kabples are decided upon. Permission will be sought to send troops through Egypt to the former, and the latter will serve as a cause of the Emperor's visit to Algeria, although he will not himself command the army.

There is some speculation as to who will be sent as Minister to St. Petersburg.—Marshal Vaillant is spoken of for France, also Canrobert and Bosquet; and Gen. Marmora for Sardinia.

The Moniteur contains the following:—In consequence of the unfavorable accounts from Paraguay relative to the treatment of the emigrants, the French government has suspended the granting of passports thereto, and colonists are recommended to wait until the duration of the foreigners there shall be placed under regulation.

SPAIN.

Disturbances had occurred in Valencia respecting the conscription, and the city and province in consequence had been placed under martial law.

AUSTRIA.

A grand Council of Bishops will assemble in a few days to discuss the concordat The Council represents twenty five millions of Catholics, Latin, Greek and Armenian. The principal object of the Council is to restore the clerical marriage courts according to the canon law, and to reorganize the whole body of the clergy on fundamental church principles. The concordat abrogates the lower clergy's right of appeal from the Bishop to the Emperor, and hence it is not popular with the inferior priesthood.

DENMARK.

Copenhagen advices states that the English Cabinet have officially notified to the Danish government their refusal to agree to the capitalization of the Sound dues, and the determination of Great Britain to await other and more acceptable propositions.—Russia and Oldenburg set the example a few weeks since. The question of the settlement makes no progress, and will probably stand over till it is seen what action the United States will take.

BELGIUM.

The breadstuffs markets generally were declining.

GERMANY.

The Citizens' Assembly of Hamburg have for the third time rejected the new constitution proposed by the Senate.

ITALY.

The Sardinian and Piedmontese corn markets generally were lower.

Latest by Magnetic Telegraph.

HEALTH OF THE CRIMEAN ARMY.

The Gazette contains a despatch from General Sir W. Codrington to Lord Panmure, enclosing a report of Dr. Hall on the sanitary state of the army, for the week ending March 22nd. Notwithstanding the recent arrivals of several drafts of recruits and the cold winds which have prevailed, Dr. Hall reports that the increase of admissions to the hospital has only been small. Taking the whole force in the Crimea, out of 16 deaths one took place in the Land Transport Corps, and out the 16 three were from the direct effect of drunkenness. The Cavalry Division on the Bosphorus is also very healthy.

FRANCE.

The Moniteur contains returns which show that up to April 1st, the quantities of beet-root sugar manufactured in 1856 was 40,183,000 kilogrammes more, and that the quantity sold for consumption or b nded in Government stores was 29,285, 1l kgrammes more than up to the same time in the previous year.

A letter from Toulon states that all of the Russian prisoners who were re mining in that port have, within the last week been embarked for Odessa. They were about 100 in number, of whom three were officers.

Two vessels at Marseilles are loading for the Black Sea and one for the Baltic.

THE ITALIAN QUESTION.

The Paris correspondent of the Times asserts that the Congress is still occupied with the Italian question, though it is not well known what can be done beyond giving advice to the Pope and the King of Naples.

AN EXCUSE.

The Russian diplomatists in Paris have excused themselves attending the ball given by the Turkish plenipotentiary on the plea that one of their attaches had the measles.

ANOTHER CONCORDAT.

A concordat between Russia and Rome is spoken as very shortly to appear.

THE PRINCIPALITIES.

The Vienna correspondent of the Times writes:—The Moldavo-Wallachian question is satisfactorily settled by the Treaty of Peace signed on the 30th of March, but the parties that have made peace have agreed to send a commission into the two Principalities. On its arrival the commission will proceed to form two general Divans; the one for Wallachia, and the other for Moldavia whose members are to be elected by the people. As soon as the Divans are duly formed they will proceed to draw up new organic statutes, and propose such reforms as may appear requisite and desirable. When the project of national Divans is completed it will be sent to Constantinople, and, after being revised by the representatives of the powers, the new constitution will be granted to the Principalities by their Suzerain, the Sultan.

PRUSSIA.

The Staats Anzeiger contains an official notice, dated the 3rd inst., repealing the prohibition of the export of horses from Prussia.

AUSTRIA.

The Emperor has pardoned 62 political offenders who, in 1849 and 1850, were sentenced by the military courts to terms of imprisonment varying between 10 and 20 years.

The official Wiener Zietung anounces that the grand cross of the Order of St. Stephen has been given to Count Buol-Schauenstein, "for his long, faithful, and distinguished services, and his co-operation in the conferences, which led to the peace concluded on the 30th of March."

The Peace Sensation in St. Petersburg.—Grand Military Display.

A letter from St. Petersburg, under date March 31, says as follows:—

A telegraphic despatch from Paris received at 12 o'clock last night at the Imperial Chancellerie brought the pleasing tidings of the conclusion of peace. The Journal de St. Petersburg published about midnight an extraordinary supplement to this effect:—A telegraphic despatch from the Aide-de-Camp General Court Orloff has announced to the Emperor that a treaty of peace was signed at Paris the 18th (30th) March at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

The clubs, the cafes, the public throughfares were, during the whole of the day, encumbered by an immense crowd all anxious to learn particulars. The sensation is immense and perfectly indescribable. The journals of this morning have published the news in large letters at the head of their columns.

At midday I assisted at one of the finest military spectacles that could be given to the public. A grand review took place of the whole of the reserve corps and the Guard before the Czar, and the officers of St. Petersburg, to which were added the cadets and militia. The Emperor arrived on the ground, accompanied by the Grand Dukes, his brothers, and rode slowly along the lines of the troops, who amounted to at least 25,000 men. The guns of the fortress and the bells of the churches hailed the official announcement of the treaty of peace.—His Majesty and Grand Dukes were received with real enthusiasm, and when the cortege had returned to the palace the soldiers had much difficulty in keeping back the crowds that gave expression to their joy and gratitude by the loudest cries. This evening there is a reception at the Winter Palace, and to-morrow a Te Deum will be executed in the chapel. You will see then that peace has been hailed by the people of St. Petersburg with great demonstrations of joy.

The active naval force of Great Britain is said to consist of

Line-of-battle ships,	42
Heavy frigates,	66
Corvettes,	123
Gun boats,	220
Mortar vessels,	100
Troop frigates,	10
Transports,	340
Total,	801

And nearly the whole of this gigantic force is composed of screw or paddle-pot ships, beside an immense reserve. The gun boats armed with 68 and 32 pounder pivot guns, and 24-pounder brass howitzers. The whole fleet of gunboats was to be reviewed, in connection with liners and frigates, at Spithead by the Queen on or about the 10th of April. The subject is not new to our readers, but that of screw gun despatch vessels, equally elegant and powerful. These average a speed of 16 knots an hour, and mount five of the heaviest pivot guns.

THE BRITISH ARMY.

From the Times' Correspondent.

CAMP BEFORE SEBASTOPOL, MARCH 25.

The intelligence of the Empress's accouchwas known throughout the allied camp early on Monday morning, and was received with great enthusiasm and satisfaction by our allies and ourselves; built must be admitted that the subject is not one to our hearts, but here is one which must naturally ever hold the first place in the thoughts of an army. Is it peace or war? Of course, the former is regarded as almost certain, but there is an uneasy feeling that it may not last long, and that the object of European politics is contests for its continuance. In the three armies there are many men who find the approach of peace with irrepressible delight, not because they are any particular philanthropists, or exhibit any decided symptoms of the morbus Britghii, but because, having served their time some cases hardly gained, rank and reputation, they are content with the laurels they have won, and sigh after the delights of civilized and peaceful society because they have discovered amid the rude epreuves of war, and keep the secret to themselves, that they mistook their purpose when they bought commissions in the army in its active character. What can a Marshal who has won the highest honours which can be bestowed on a French subject desire more ardently than that he should keep that which he has got, and not run the risk of shattering his brilliant fame against some knotty Muscovite position? The chefs d'escadron and commandants who want to be colonels, the captains who wish for one more stripe of lace, the lieutenants who hunger after their companies, and the sous-officiers and volunteers who long for their epaulettes—all, in fact, who long for promotion in the profession they have chosen, utter but one voice, and that is for war, and what is true of that class of men in the French army is very generally applicable to our own. Of the three armies, that to which peace is most distasteful of any rate least welcome, is the Sardinian, and whatever may be the reason for their opinion they seem to think that Russia has escaped from the punishment due to her audacity and insolence, by yielding just in the same way that a pugnacious bully will turn down in the ring when he finds he has provoked a thrashing. The military spirit of this little army is only equalled by its efficiency in every department. Mr. Bull, who possibly of late years may have become acquainted with it in existence of a small force, a single of Northern Italy called Piedmont, but who assuredly never heard of it "during the Peninsular," will no doubt be surprised when he hears that the Board of able and intelligent officers appointed to report on the huts, hospitals, stables, &c., throughout the allied camp, consisting of Lieutenant-Colonel Halliwell, Major Montagu, R. E., Major Eager, 31st Regiment, and Dr. Paynter, have, in almost every single instance, come to the conclusion that the Sardinian army excels not only the French but the En. lish in the comfort in which its men live and appear. In one respect it must be admitted that the Sardinians have had a great advantage over us; they are encouraged to work for themselves, and in making their huts they had facilities of ground and abundance of brushwood, of which we were debarred. But the question is should we have used them had we got them? I confess it was not without pain that I saw on the plain of the Tchernaya the other day the French busy at work on one side cutting down timber and toiling with it slowly up the hill on which their camp stands, and the Russians availing themselves of the armistice to collect grass for fuel and for thatching, while our big fellows were loitering about doing nothing. But what will you? How expect a man to work who is discouraged? He does it! Why I know a colonel of a cavalry regiment, who, finding he had some good shoemakers among his men, set them to work to make foot gear for the soldiers, and drew on himself a sharp rebuke from the authorities in consequence, their attention having been drawn to the extraordinary proceeding by an indignant shoe contractor. When I visited Aldershots Camp I was amused to see the soldiery playing gracefully about the huts, while a workman at 5s. a-day was laying drainage pipes, assisted by a gentleman who mixed his mortar for him in consideration of the sum of 3s. a-day. Now, the Sardinians not only build their own huts but drain their camp. We have sent out huts ready-made, and most of them will never be worth removing. The sums thus lost to the country will be enormous, but perhaps it will be better to leave them, if they cannot be sold to some enterprising contractor, than to attempt to carry them away. If the war continues, we shall not, with all our deficiencies, however, fear comparison with either of our allies. Our cavalry is in splendid condition, our artillery is perfect, the horses fit for anything, the men old soldiers, the officers able, zealous, and experienced; our infantry rapidly improving leavened by the remains of the noble army of 1854, and the arrangements of the Land Transport Corps so well organized as to insure our mobilization, should it be required to take the field.

What a change has taken place since this time twelvemonth in the aspect of the army! Just as the rows of graves, which were then black unsightly mounds, are now green with verdure, and giving early promise of rich vegetation, so our regiments, broken by war and disease and by brief, the siege the last, now, no longer a cheerful military appearance, which makes us forget the past and gives assurance that the recruits in their rank will soon be soldiers. The dull booming of the bombardment, with its fitful throbs, has ceased, and every morning the air is cut sharply by the crash of the bands as the regiments march forth for drill and exercise, and the plain flashes with countless bayonets, as the sun glances between the dark rows of the huts, and sends its rays on the parade-grounds. We have perfected the machine for its uses just as they in all probability will cease to exist. All we to lay it by to rust, to decay, and to grow rotten again; or, by a judicious selection of parts, to have it ready to our hands as nearly as possible fit for work, should it be unfortunately required? Great Britain is no stock-jobbing nation, either to maintain the costly implement in working order, or to abandon the trust confided to all great nations by the very strength and wealth with which Providence has gifted them, and permit the the strong hand to rule the destinies of the world.

(Via Montreal Telegraph Line.)

ARRIVAL OF THE PERSIA.

New York, April 29.

The Steamship Persia arrived off the light ship at a quarter past 9 last evening, and remains over night and reached her dock at 9 o'clock. She made the passage in about 9½ days. Her dates from Liverpool and London are to April the 19th.

The Ericsson sailed from Liverpool on the morning of the 9th. News unimportant. The chief features are the closing of the Paris Conference—the postponement of the debate in Parliament until the return of Lord Clarendon—the banquet given in London to Mr. Dallas—the explanation by Lord Panmure why troops were sent to Canada—and the slight defeat met by the government in the vote against the grant to Maynooth College, and the strengthened rumours in consequence that Parliament will shortly be dissolved.

Breadstuffs depressed. Flour declined 6d a 1s. Wheat declined 3d. Corn unchanged. Weather favorable. Beef quiet. Pork and Bacon firm. Lard in demand at slight decline.

Money light. Discounts range at 5 a 7 per cent. Consols 93½ a 93¾. Americ can securities generally quiet.

The Moniteur announces that the Conference closed its sittings on Thursday. All the ratifications to be exchanged at the end of the month. Immediately after the promulgation of the general treaty, the protocols will be published, and make known the labours of the Conference in detail. The questions considered at the last sittings were—1st, The free navigation of the Danube; 2nd, Interior regime of the Principalities, and the arrangement of frontiers; 3rd, Situations of Christians in Turkey. For these purposes, Commissioners are appointed.

It is reported in Paris that diplomatic movements of importance are on foot respecting Italy.

An Austrian ambassador is to go to Rome immediately on a special mission.

It is rumored that the mission refers to the Concordat, but Italian papers say it refers to the general state of Italy.

Count Cavour is at Naples, immediately after the exchange of ratifications, to see his son, who was wounded in the Crimea.

ENGLAND.

The Lord Mayor entertained Mr. Dallas on Thursday at the Mansion House, in honor of his arrival as Minister from the United States. 200 guests were there. The Lord Mayor toasted Mr. Dallas, prefacing it with a speech full of generous sentiments towards America, and regretting that any question should ever arise between the two countries which should threaten the peace of Christendom.

The Mayor's toast was, "The health of Mr. Dallas, and the prosperity of the Great Republic to which he has the honour to belong."

Mr. Dallas made a felicitous reply, reciprocating the generous sentiments of the Lord Mayor, and declaring that he was not authorized to feel, and did not feel, any desire other than that of giving his best eulogies and exertions unreservedly to the restoration of the most harmonious sentiments and friendly relations. Other speeches were made after. Mr. Dallas gave the health of the Lady Mayoress. The Lord Mayor responded, telling Mr. Dallas that he was authorized by the Lady Mayoress to say, that if his diplomacy equalled his gallantry there could be no fear of success in his mission.

In the House of Lords in reply to the Earl of Derby a question as to reaching reports that large bodies of troops and quantities of ammunition were about to be despatched to Canada, said it was true that the Government contemplated doing so, but the impression that they were to be sent for purposes of aggression was unfounded. The troops were intended replacing troops, reinforcements of war and stores in place of those previously withdrawn for Crimean service.

FRANCE.

A splendid fete was given at Paris, on Monday, in honor of the Plenipotentiaries.

HAVRE, April 18th.—Breadstuffs declined in all the markets. Provisions declined owing to heavy receipts.

LATEST.

PARIS, Thursday.

Count Cavour leaves this p. m., for London for a few days, and then will return via Paris to Turin.

The Cabinet of Vienna is bent on accepting every corner of Italy where political excitement can be got up as an excuse for their presence.

Events in Italy are daily increasing in interest.

It is quite possible the Duke of Tuscany will be again compelled to demand German troops and additional Austrian troops are under orders for Roman States. Garrisons in Lombardy are to be increased.

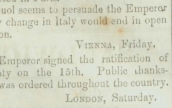
Austria evidently intends to permanently occupy as much of Italy, in order to insult and intrigue against Sardinia. In fact, Austria is at war with Piedmont, although their armies are not face to face, and it is impossible to say what event may bring about a fresh struggle. That struggle cannot long be delayed. Austria, however, will strive to put off a quarrel on the field, until the policy and attitude of France and England in regard to the wars in Italy no longer coincide.

A tendency towards division had already commenced in Paris.

M. Buol seems to persuade the Emperor that any change in Italy would end in open revolution.

VIENNA, Friday.

The Emperor signed the ratification of the treaty on the 15th. Public thanksgiving was ordered throughout the country.



LONDON, Saturday.

A report has been circulated by an evening journal, that Lord Palmerston and Mr. Labouchere are about to retire, and Sidney Herbert and Sir James Graham take the Government. There is not the slightest foundation in the report.

LONDON, Friday, P.M.

English funds remain steady and without animation. Discount market easier.

The Persia made the trip from Liverpool to the bar in nine days, ten hours, and fifteen minutes. On the night of the 19th, off Inskad, she passed the Canada, bound to Liverpool; also, on the 20th, in lat. 43, long. 48, passed the Cambria, bound east.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

SANDWICH, MAY 2, 1856.

By the recent vote in the Legislative Assembly upon the "Seat of Government" question, the eyes of Upper Canadians have been pretty well opened to what they may expect at the hands of Lower Canadian members, for upon that question they voted to a man for Quebec, which is hundreds of miles from a point that would be central in United Canada, in preference to some point that is as nearly as possible upon the dividing line between the Provinces. Kingston, we have always considered the proper place for the permanent capital of Canada; and from its position no doubt can be entertained of its fitness. We have next to look to the members from the Upper Province who voted for Quebec. These members having acted against every principle of right in this matter, should be censured by every well wisher to this portion of the Province. We are at a loss to imagine what excuse these gentlemen can make for their most extraordinary vote, without it is for the purpose of endeavoring to make permanent that rule which has always been to the Upper Province a most serious drawback to their advancement; for it is well known that Lower Canada is far inferior to Upper Canada in point of enterprise and advancement; and is it fair or just that the seat of Government be established in the least enterprising section of the country, to leave out of the question the subject of its being entirely at the extreme end of civilization in this Province? We answer, and the whole community will answer, in the negative.

It now becomes the duty of Upper Canadians to demand that they shall be represented in Parliament according to population, and this is the only way in which the Upper Province will be able to hold its own, unless the union of the British North American Colonies can be accomplished. Petitions should be forwarded from every township and town, demanding it as a right, and a right which the inhabitants are determined to obtain; for surely they have endured the rule of Lower Canada long enough, and with a surprising amount of patience; but this can be endured no longer. Constituencies should require their respective representatives to advocate some or both of these measures, and this should be done before the means have been granted for the erection of permanent buildings in Quebec. Had this choice been made in view of the Union of the Provinces, it would have been well enough, for in that case there is no doubt that Quebec would be the most suitable, as it would then be the most central position, but the choice of that place was not made in anticipation of this end.

Upper Canada, with a population of over two hundred and fifty thousand more than Eastern Canada, may reasonably ask for representation according to population, and if Lower Canada attempt to deny this right, it will then become the duty of the Western representatives to insist upon it.

It remains to be seen whether a majority will be found in this House to vote the means for erecting the Government buildings permanently in Quebec; there were a number of Upper Canadian members absent at the time, and we hope those members who betrayed the trust which was reposed in them will repent them of their evil ways, and come forward like men, and prove that they are not lost to every sense of patriotism.

THE ASSIZES.

Continued from last week.

Reported for the Maple Leaf.

Knowleton vs. G. W. Railroad.—For delay in conveying Fruit Trees from Suspension Bridge to Detroit. Verdict for plaintiff, £100 damages.

Harris vs. Nelson—For false arrest. Plaintiff non-suited.

Nelson vs. Daby, Sheriff.—Verdict for plaintiff, £28 14s. 2d. Subject to opinion of Court below.

Wilkes vs. Salmoni. Assessment. Verdict for plaintiff, £89.

Ile vs. Morse et al. Verdict for defendants.

Bell vs. Peel. Verdict for defendant.

Rathbeanne vs. Harkins.—Ejectment. Verdict for plaintiff, 1s. damages.

Bartlett vs. Municipality of Amherstburg. Verdict for plaintiff, $107.

Howrigan vs. Phelps. Verdict for plaintiff, £2 damages.

Harris vs. Nelson. Verdict for plaintiff, £250.

Parent vs. Maisonville—Slander. Verdict for Plaintiff, £2.

Salmoni vs. Eberts, et al. Plaintiff nonsuited.

Waters vs. Daly. Verdict for plaintiff, £1 damages.

Salmoni vs. Anderson. Plaintiff nonsuited.

Hains vs. Flood. Verdict by consent, 1s. damages.

Rankin vs. G. W. Railroad.—Ejectment. Verdict for defendants, with leave to move.

Craig et al vs Carroll. Verdict for defendant, 10s.

SENTENCES.

Elkeiney Dibble—Larceny. 4 years in Provincial Penitentiary.

George Scott—Arson; attempting to burn a house in Windsor. Acquitted.

William Jackson pleaded guilty to stealing boots of Caleb Knight. 6 months in Gaol.

Daniel P. Butter—Uttering base gold coin, 2 years in Penitentiary.

Luther Clark—Obtaining goods under false pretences. Bad Bank Bills. 2 years in Penitentiary.

John Jackson.—Prison Breach. Verdict, Guilty. No sentence.

George Robinson—Horse stealing. Not Guilty.

Queen vs Patrick Daley—Misdemeanor. Not Guilty.

The following is a copy of the Presentment of the Grand Jury of the County of Essex:

The Grand Jurors of our Sovereign Lady the Queen, at the Grand Inquest of the County of Essex, on their oath present:

That in pursuance of the instructions received by them in the able and eloquent charge delivered to them by the Honorable Mr. Justice Hagarty, and also in the discharge of their duties, they have inspected the old Gaol and Court House as well as that now in progress of erection, and that they find the old Gaol in as good order as can be expected under the circumstances attending the erection of the new buildings, which interfere somewhat with the yard and outworks of the old Gaol; but any evil arising from this cause they trust will be speedily removed by the completion of the other works. The prisoners appear well satisfied with the treatment they receive from their present Gaoler, and only one complaint was made to the Grand Inquest by a Debtor who thought he had not received sufficient attention from the Physician. The Grand Inquest have, however, investigated the matter of complaint, and do not find reason to censure that officer; they nevertheless consider that it is highly necessary for the Medical Officer to make a report at stated periods of the sanitory state of the Gaol, and to keep in the Gaol a correct report or register of the persons requiring medical treatment.

In considering that portion of His Lordship's charge relating to the new buildings, the Grand Inquest find that the subject of classification of prisoners has not escaped the attention of the local authorities, and that the old Gaol will be set apart as a House of Correction for young offenders and females, but they consider that a proper yard is much required where convicts might be made to saw wood and perform such other light work as may be required for the use of the Gaol.

A female named Rebecca Jones, who is a lunatic, has been confined here for some time, and although application has been made to the proper authorities for admitting her into the Provincial Lunatic Asylum, the County is obliged to bear the inconvenience and expense of her maintenance, in consequence of want of room (so reported.) The Grand Inquest think it would be only equitable that if the Institution is not sufficiently extensive to accommodate all applicants, those who are borne at the expense of the Counties should have prior claim to those who may be termed private patients.

The Grand Inquest cannot separate without expressing their gratification that Her Majesty has been pleased to call the able and talented gentleman, Mr. Justice Hagarty, to the Bench of Canada; the loyal sentiments of that gentleman are sufficiently appreciated by the profession to ensure such an administration of Justice by him which must be highly satisfactory to the country at large.

Signed on behalf of the Grand Jury,

THOS. WOODBRIDGE, Foreman.

☞ The steamer Pearl will run regularly between Detroit, Sandwich and Amherstburg, leaving Detroit at 5, p.m., and returning, leaves Amherstburg at 7 a.m.

Persons going to Amherstburg, will find this the most comfortable and convenient route. She is commanded by Captain Sloane.

☞ A Fire broke out in the premises owned by Mrs. Cole in Windsor, on Monday morning last, and destroyed three houses all belonging to her. This fire will be a severe los to Mrs. Cole, as she depended mostly upon the rents coming from them for her living. We have been informed that there was no insurance upon any of the buildings at the time. It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

☞ On Monday last the steamer Northerner was run into by the steamer Forest City, on Lake Huron and immediately sunk. There were a great many passengers on board the Northerner when she went down, but fortunately they were all saved, with one exception.

The Northerner was partly owned by Mr. Paxton of Amherstburg, and it is with regret that we have to notice his loss.

☞ Phillips, Sampson & Co., Publishers, Boston, are issuing from their press a number of the newest and most popular works, including Standard, Classical, School and Miscellaneous books. Booksellers and others will find it to their advantage to purchase at this extensive establishment, where the terms will be found as low as any other city in the United States.

Catalogues may be seen at this office.

PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

WEDNESDAY, 23rd April, 1856.

3rd Order.—Committee of the Whole on the Legislative Council Bill.

Hon. PETER MCGILL in the Chair.

The amendments introduced in the bill were then taken up seriatim.

1st clause struck out. This clause read thus:—"No Legislative Councillor shall hereafter be appointed by the Crown."

Hon. Mr. DEBLAQUIERE inquired the reason for striking out the clause.

The CHAIRMAN answered.—It had been deemed unparliamentary and disrespectful to Her Majesty, and as it was not requisite to the completeness of the bill it had been unanimously struck out by the Special Committee.

Agreed to.

2nd clause amended by striking out the words in the third line "twenty-four for Upper Canada and twenty-four for Lower Canada," and substituting the following, "in the proportion, and at the time, and in the manner hereinafter provided."

Agreed to.

3rd clause was amended by the addition of the following words, "to reunite the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, and for the government of Canada."

Agreed to.

4th Clause amended by leaving out the words, "subject to the exceptions provided by this act, and the Council shall be renewed by one-fourth of the number of such elective members two years."

Agreed to.

5th Clause amended by increasing the qualifications from £1000, to £2000, and by the addition of the words "or possess in his own name or his lands and tenements, as aforesaid, to the value aforesaid, be within the limits of the electoral division for which he shall seek to be, or shall have been elected.

Hon. Mr. DEBLAQUIERE said the clause did not secure a permanent qualification.—The owner might qualify one day and dispossess himself of the property the next. By the law in England, a member of the House of Commons sitting without being at the time qualified, was subject to a penalty for every day he so sat of £500, and he thought some such condition should have been introduced in the Bill. He also objected to the amount of the qualification, which should have been £4000 or £5000. It was a mockery to propose a ruling men to this House worth £1000.

Hon. Mr. Ross said his hon. friend was mistaken as to his first objection, for the Bill distinctly enacted that no member should "sit or vote" unless he were possessed of property to the value of £2,000. So when he dispossessed himself of the property, he vacated his seat.

Hon. Mr. DEBLAQUIERE.—But where is the security if he does sit?

Hon. Mr. Ross.—He can be tried by the Committee on Privileges.

Hon. Mr. DEBLAQUIRE.—This would throw the onus upon the House of turning prosecutors; it was better to adopt a clear defining clause.

Hon. Mr. HOULTON concurred in the objection. In the other House, they had a court regularly constituted to try such things; we had not. In England, the penalty spoken of had been enforced, and we should see that something analogous was provided in this Bill. No room must be left for fraud or deception. He also thought the qualification too small, and would go for making it at least £2,000.

Hon. Mr. TACHE (Speaker)—The 13th clause gave us all the power necessary to eject a person not qualified.

Hon. Mr. DEBLAQUIRE also pointed to the 13th clause as quite sufficient to remove a member sitting without qualification. The penalty of £500 in England was superadded as a punishment, not to make the member vacate, and if it was thought desirable some such clause might be introduced.

Hon. Mr. MORIN.—Such a penalty might lead to vexatious complaints from persons disposed to annoy the elected members.—He had desired to introduce some words which would make the qualification continuous, but after having consulted a high legal authority as to the effect of the words "sit and vote," and having been assured they were sufficient to eject a member sitting without qualification, he had been satisfied. We had, therefore, just as good means of unseating a member as the other House, and we required none other.

Hon. Mr. DEBLAQUIERE.—The objection about members being liable to be harrassed had no weight, for the onus of proof as in all cases of accusation, would rest with the person bringing the charge.

Hon. Mr. DEBLAQUIERE moved that a penalty of £100 per day be imposed upon every member sitting without one qualification.

Put and lost.

Hon. Mr. BOURRET had objection to the latter part of the 4th clause, and wished to strike out the words compelling residence, or the possession of property in the electoral division for which a member might sit, and moved an amendment to that effect, which was put and lost.

5th clause—Passed as amended.

6th clause—Passed without amendment.

7th clause:

Hon. Mr. BOURRET moved that the following words be added, "and that every member shall be a member for eight years."

Motion put and lost. Clause carried.

All the other clauses excepting the 22nd, (new bill, 23 in the old,) which was reserved, were then passed, vernine contradicente.

The Buffalo Republic relates a case of connubial perfidiousness and attempt at elopement, which may be true, tho' we have not succeeded in discovering who were the parties. The story runs thus—time, last Thursday—place, all along the G. W. Railway from Detroit to Chatham. It appears that a couple came hurriedly on board the steamer Transit, just as she started from the wharf on the Detroit side of the river, and from their strange actions attracted the particular notice of some of the passengers. As the train was leaving Windsor, and had got under considerable headway, a woman who had crossed the river on the other boat, sprang on the rear car, and ran through the coaches until she found the aforesaid couple, quietly seated side by side. She then commenced upbraiding the man with running away from his lawfully wedded wife, and insisted that he sho'd leave the cars and go back with her. This the husband stoutly refused to do. The wife then appealed to Conductor Cook, and produced the necessary vouchers of her identity. Mr Cook, with his accustomed good sense, decided that a woman was entitled to her husband, and informed the man that he would be compelled to deliver him over to the custody of his better half. By this time the passengers had crowded around, and the scene became extremely ludicrous. The man declared he would not have his dulcinea, and she persisted in retaining him. The tears and entreaties of the wife were too much for the sympathetic Conductor; he pulled the check string, stopped the train, ejected the husband from the car, and delivered him to his wife, several of the passengers holding the other woman, who made the most desperate endeavors to follow. The train had by this time passed Bell River, some twenty miles east of Windsor. The man tried hard to get on the cars after they were in motion, but was unable to do so, in consequence of the tight grasp of the wife on his coat tails. The last that was seen of the pair they were rolling down the bank, closely locked in each other's embrace. The crest fallen female who was the cause of this catastrophe, having no money to pay her fare, was thrown upon the tender mercies of the conductor.—She said she wished to go to Paris, and Mr. Cook fearing if he left her at Chatham, the man might find her again, generously bro't her to the desired point, thinking it wise to separate the deluded pair as far as possible.

POISONING CHILDREN IN ROCHESTER.—The Rochester papers publish some horrible accounts of the supposed poisoning of children in that city by their unnatural parents. Two cases have occurred within a few days, which afford strong evidence for believing that infanticide was attempted, and in one instance fully accomplished. The Union of yesterday states that a little girl died suddenly on Cornhill a few days since, was speedily buried, and the parents moves eastward with all their effects on the night of the burial. The circumstances excited suspicion, and the attention of a coroner was called, but the family had left for parts unknown, and the investigation was not proceeded with as it would have involved much expense. Had not the suspicion been verified upon investigation, the expense would mainly have fallen upon the coroner, for the Board of Supervisors are not very liberal in such matters.—Detroit Advertiser.

Extensive Fire in Lower Town. --Several Houses and Stores Destroyed.

(From the Quebec Chronicle.)

QUEBEC, April 21, 1856.

Between four and five o'clock on Saturday afternoon, considerable alarm and confusion was caused in Champlain Street, owing to the sudden outbreak of a fire, which continued to rage for several hours, and was attended with a great loss of property. The disaster originated in a two-story stone and wooden store, situated on Drome's wharf, owned by A. Joseph, and which of late has been used as a warehouse by Walker & Berry. When the discovery was made, the fire had penetrated the roof, and was rushing through with such impetuosity, as to threaten with destruction not only the building wherein it began, but also the adjacent houses in that densely populated neighbourhood fronting on Champlain Street. The police, and various persons in the vicinity, at once made a strong and vigorous attempt to get some of the many marine stores in the buildings and warehouses removed to the next wharf, in which endeavour they succeeded. Without delay, the engines were in attendance; but there being no fire plugs at hand, and before water could be drawn from the river, the flames had made fearful havoc, for it had not only taken possession of the store and all it contained, but had also extended to the nearest house on the street, owned and occupied by Richard Morris. From the mains on the Cape, a good supply of water was for a time procured, and the firemen here set their engines to play, but the force of the water which was brought over the rock, burst the hose, and the devouring element continued to extend, firing in succession the range of two story stone houses, known as Gibb & Shaw's buildings, and the Tweddel's buildings on the river side of the street. At the same time, the flames broke out in Messrs. Tweddel's forge and finishing shop, and other buildings in rear of those last mentioned; and the front of three houses on the opposite side of the street, occupied by Mr. Armstrong, shipsmith, Mr. Tate, grocer, and Mrs. Callerper, tavern keeper, were in a blaze. The conflagration had now reached to a cross street, and might have been checked had proper exertions been made. The sparks falling were, however, allowed to remain on the roofs of the adjoining property, consisting of five three-story stone houses between Reynard's buildings, and before long it was also on fire.—Had it not been for the want of water and a sufficiently powerful engine, there is not the least doubt the whole of the last-mentioned buildings, in which some fifty poor families resided, would have been saved.—The work of destruction continued, and as late as eleven o'clock the fire was far from being entirely extinguished, although all danger of any further mischief was fortunately at an end.

A MYSTERY.—At midnight, on the 25th instant, Mr. Moore, the occupant of a shanty, situated on the lot at the corner of Simcoe and Front Streets, heard a noise near his domicile which he deemed rather suspicious, and, the following morning, he made a very remarkable discovery. On leaving his home, that eventful morning, the first object which met his gaze, made his blood run cold. In the vicinity of that blessed spot where all his household joys were concentered—and which, in all probability, he was wont to regard as the best imitation of Paradise he was likely to find in this wicked world—there lay; what, do you think? A bundle! Having summoned courage enough to make a closer inspection, the good man made another discovery, which was, that the said bundle contained a wig, a pair of braces, a pair of neck-ties—one of which was considerably the worse for wear—a pair of inside continuations, and a stone!

Feeling perfectly satisfied that some foul play must have taken place, Mr. Moore informed the Police of the circumstance, and Constable Webster proceeded to the spot, but no further discoveries of interest were made.

Any parties wishing to see the above mentioned articles, with a view to identification, will be indulged with an inspection by applying at the City Hall Police Station.—Leader.

NICARAGUA—ENGLAND AND FRANCE.—The Washington Star says it is understood among the foreign Ministers at Washington, that England and France have determined to have Walker removed by hook or crook, and that they are prepared to drive him out of Nicaragua, unless that can be done by the Central American States without their open interference in their behalf. It is also believed that by this time other battles have been fought in Nicaragua, and that the means brought against Walker were sufficient to crush him. It is thought there are at least 15,000 men in arms against Walker, comprising the troops of all the Central American States. He has no natives of Nicaragua under his command, except here and there a nominal officer or official, who is really his prisoner. The Star doubts whether any despatches have been received by the Government concerning Walker's defeat.

CURIOUS WORK OF CALIGRAPHIC ART.—There is now in New York a curious work of caligraphic art, being no less than a complete transcription of the Holy Bible on a surface about the size of an ordinary mantle pier glass, the words of the same being so ingeniously arranged and grouped as to form the representation of a beautiful temple, while at the same time no one word is omitted, no sentence transpose, and the several chapters follow each other in proper order. At first view, the spectator only perceives a well arranged architectural drawing, delicate and exact, but, on close examination (some persons requiring the aid of a magnifying glass) every part of the elevation, each window and door-way, each apparent line and curve of column, cornice, and entablature, every thing in short about the picture, except perhaps, a slight shading is resolved into distinct and regular handwriting. This wonderful production was executed by a Polish gentleman by the name of David Davidson, who finished his task a few weeks since, after two years and seven months of constant labor—he having, moreover, so imperfect a knowledge of our language that the accuracy of the text must have depended almost entirely upon his fidelity as a copyist. A gentleman and lady of Boston recently paid a visit to Mr. D.'s rooms, in New York, and becoming much interested in his performance, obtained the promise of a specimen. Within a few days they received from him what appeared to be their own names prettily written on ornamental paper, one of which names was found to embody the book of Ruth, while the other contained the chapters of Jonah.—Boston Transcript.

TEST OF WISDOM.—'A professor of universal knowledge' had put up his sign near the palace of an an Oriental Prince, who suddenly came in upon the pretender, and put his wisdom to test.

'So thou knowest all things,' said the king; 'then tell to-morrow morning, these three things only, or thou shalt lose thy head: First, how many baskets of earth there are in yonder mountain. Secondly, how much is the king worth? and, thirdly, what is the king thinking of at the time?'

The professor was distressed beyond all measure, and in his apartments, rolled upon the carpet in agony, for he knew that he must die on the morrow.

His servant learned the trouble, and offered to appear before the king and take his chance of answering his questions.

The next morning, the servant, clothed in his master's robes, presented himself to his appearance, and the King proceeded:

'Tell me how many baskets of earth are in yonder mountain?'

'That depends upon circumstances. If the baskets are as large as the mountain, one it will hold; if half as large, two; if a quarter, four; and so on.'

The king had to be satisfied and proceeded:

'Now tell me how much the king is worth?'

"Well, your Majesty, the King of heaven and earth was sold for thirty pieces of silver, and I conclude you are worth one piece!"

This was so witty an escape that the king laughed and went on.

'Now, once more: tell me what I am thinking of.'

'You are now thinking that you are talking with the Professor, whereas it is only his servant.'

'Well done,' said the king, 'you shall have your reward, and your master shall not lose his head.'

☞ Our readers are well aware that we have never advertised patent medicines—but we now publish an advertisement of Ayer's Pills, not because we are paid for it alone, but because we honestly believe that Dr. Ayer is one of the best Physicians and Chemists of the age, and because we know from experience that his Cherry Pectoral is the best medicine for a Cough that was ever invented. We have been cured by it of a severe Bronchitis, and have given it to our family with unfailing success for Colds, Coughs, Whooping Cough, Croup, &c. Our neighbors who have tried the Pills represent them as an extraordinary good medicine.—Democrat, McArthur, Vinton Co., Ohio.

SANDWICH MARKET.

"Maple Leaf" Office, May 2nd, 1856

Flour Best warranted,	$ 7 00	$ 0 50
" 2nd quality	5 00	0 50
Buckwheat Flour,	2 00	4 00
Rye "	2 00	3 50
Timothy Seed,		4 00
Clover,	1 25	8 00
Corn Meal per 100	1 50	2 00
Corn per bushel, 56lbs.	0 51	0 00
Oats " do 34lbs.	0 37½	0 00
Potatoes do	0 37	0 00
Wheat do 60lbs,	1 00	1 25
Barley do 48lbs,	0 75	0 00
Hay per Ton	10 00	12 00
Straw per load	1 50	2 00
Wood per cord (Hard)	2 00	0 00
do Mixed	1 50	0 00
Pork per 100lbs.	7 00	0 00
Beef " "	7 00	0 00

DETROIT MARKET.

Flour.—$4.25.
Wheat.—$1.
Corn.—47c for small lots.
Oats.—36 @ 37½ cts.
Corn.
Cheese.—best quality 15 cts.
Eggs.—12 cts. ℘ doz.

DIVISION COURTS FOR ESSEX.

1st. Sandwich, 12th July, 1856.
2nd. Amherstburg, 12th June.
3rd Kingsville, 16th June.
4th. Colchester, 14th June,
5th. Mersea, 18th June.
6th. Simon's, Middle Road, 17th July.

FARM FOR SALE.

NO. 293, on Sandwich Street, Maidstone Cross, consisting of 48 acres, 35 acres cleared and under fence, a good Dwelling House and two good Barns. The property is situated at the corner of the Plank and Stage Roads.

The purchaser can be supplied with every requisite implemeht for agricultural purposes, which are now on the Farm.

Apply on the Farm to
April 18, '56: JOHN GEARY.

NOTICE.

THE Court of Revision for the Township of West Tilbury, for the year A. D. 1856, will be held in the School House on Lot No, 6, in Broken Front in said Township, on Tuesday, the 6th day of May next. Court to open at 10 o'clock, A.M.

WILLIAM NICHOLSON,
West Tilbury, Township Clerk.
29th April, 1856.

ROSE DALE MILL.

THIS Mill will stop Grinding on Monday 5th May next, for the purpose of taking out the Engine. Persons requiring Gristing done had better have it done before that time, as the Sandwich Mill will not start till two weeks afterwards.

April 25th, 1856.

STRAYED.

CAME into the possession of the undersigned, about 1st February last, a BAY COLT, about one year old. Has a white spot on his near hind foot. The owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take it away.

WM. CLARKSON.
Malden Road, April 22nd, 1856.

BARTLEY AND PINNEY,

PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.

MAPS AND PLANS drawn in the first style. Estimates, Specifications, &c., of all kinds prepared at short notice. All work entrusted to us shall be executed with punctuality and despatch.

Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.
March 28, 1856. n51y

TO BE LET FOR EIGHT YEARS,

A TWO STORY FRAME HOUSE with a Half-Acre Garden, on Lot No 4, East Side of Peter Street.

To be let subject to all Repairs and Taxes. A large reduction will be made to any person paying three years' rent in advance.

For further particulars enquire of
J. GREEN,
Great Western Boot and Shoe Store,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.
27th March, 1856.

N.B.—Possession will be given on the first of May next.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

COUNTY OF ESSEX } By virtue of a writ to wit; } of fieri facias issued out of Court of Common Pleas at Toronto, to me directed, against the lands and tenements of Alfred Baby at the suit of James Olwell and Mathew Olwell, I have seized and taken in execution the following lands viz: water lot number three on the East, water lots numbers three, four, and fourteen on the west, and land and water lots numbers thirteen and sixteen on the north side of Sandwich Street, and Park Lots Nos. one and twelve, Field lot letter E, Village lots numbers nine and ten on the south side of Sandwich Street, lots numbers twenty-one and twenty-two, north side of Pitt Street, lots numbers one and two on the south side of Pitt Street, lots numbers eight and nine on the north side of Chatham Street, in Block C: lot number two on the south side of Chatham Street, lot number five on the north side of London Street, in Block E, lots three and four on the south side of London Street Block G, in the Village of Windsor in the County of Essex, forming part of the Town Plot of the said village, as laid out on the estate of the late François Baby, Esq., and lot number twenty-eight in the first Concession, Township of Maidstone, two hundred acres of land, all of which property I shall offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich on Saturday the twenty-eighth day of June next at twelve o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY.
Sheriff
Sheriff's office, Sandwich,
27th March.

NOTICE.

THE Court of Revision for the Township of Sandwich for the year A.D. 1856, will be held in the Council Chamber at Sandwich, on Thursday the 8th day of May next, at 10 o'clock a.m. and following days.

Sandwich, 15th April, 1856.
D. MOYNAHAN
Township Clerk

GUILLOT'S COLUMN,

FOR APRIL, 1856.

NEW

SPRING GOODS

JUST OPENED AT

GUILLOT'S STORE

PER

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

WHICH HE NOW OFFERS AT THE LOWEST REMUNERATING PROFIT, FOR

CASH.

PRINTS, in Variety,

PRINTED LAWNS & MUSLINS,

SILKS, SILK PARASOLS,

BLEACHED AND UNBLEACHED

COTTONS & SHEETING

HOSIERY, GLOVES,

CLOTHING,

COATINGS, TWEEDS,

TROWSERINGS,

LINENS,

DRILLS,

KOSSUTH HATS,

COTTON WARP,

BOOTS AND SHOES,

TICKINGS,

GINGHAMS,

CARPETING,

SHAWLS, &c., &c.

TOGETHER

WITH A GOOD ASSORTMENT OF

GROCERIES. CROCKERY,

SHELF HARDWARE, NAILS

ALSO,

THE XL FLOUR,

KEPT ON HAND FOR SALE

AT CURRENT PRICES.

CLOVER AND TIMOTHY

SEED.

H. C. GUILLOT,

SANDWICH, CANADA WEST.

RETURN OF CONVICTIONS

For the COUNTY OF ESSEX, for the Quarter ending 1st April, 1856.

NAME OF PROSECUTOR.	NAME OF DEFENDANT.	NATURE OF CHARGE.	DATE OF CONVICTION.	NAME OF CONVICTING JUSTICE	Amount of Penalty, Fine or Damage.	Fine when Paid, or to be Paid to said Justice.	To whom paid over by said Justice.	If not paid, why not and General Observations if any.
Harden Campbell,	Maria Chalton,	Assault,	31st Dec, 1855	A. Sidwill & J. G. Buchanan,	5s	15 days,	Township Treasurer
Eliza Thompson,	Thomas Sparks,	Assault and Battery.	4th January,	Thomas Woodbridge,	5s		Committed in	default for 20 days.
Thomas Salmoni,	George McCoy,	Do	Do	John G. Buchanan,	30s and costs,	10 days,	County Treasurer
Moses Bezeau,	George Shapper,	Do	24th	Thomas Woodbridge,	Costs,			Bound to keep the peace
Martin Strong,	Paschal Renaud,	Furious Driving,	26th	William Flanigan,	25s and costs		Township Treasurer
Benjamin Cunningham,	Martin Withers,	Assault,	26th	H Cuningham & F A Lafferty	2s 6d	26th January,	do
Harriet Washington,	Edward Moore,	Articles of the Peace,	26th	Thomas Wiodbridge,			Bound to keep the	Peace, Pl'tf paid costs
Leander Jolebois,	John B. Duvinier, Matthew Moynahan, and Thos. Haley,	Assault and Battery,	30th	Thomas Woodbridge,	5s 10s 10s	 Forthwith, do	 Township Treasurer do	Too poor, impris. 10 days
James Harkin,	Laurent Rabideau, Paul Rabideau, Charles Rabideau, and Mark Rabideau,	Articles of the Peace,	1st February,	Henry McKenny,				Recognizancesof the peace for 12 months.
James Harkin,	Mark Rabideau,	Assault,	2nd	Do	25s	20 days,	Treas of Amherstb'g
Charles Rabideau,	James Harkin,	Assault and Battery,	7th	F A Lafferty & James Noble	5s			Appealed to Sessions.
Agnus Humpstead,	Samuel Campbell,	Do	7th	Felix Lafferty,	10s	Forthwith,	Township Treasurer
Alexander Borrowman,	Jacob Hamilton,	Trespass,	7th	James Noble,	5s	do	do
Samuel Davy,	William Pines,	Assault and Battery,	17th	Cornelius R. Quick,	15s	2 weeks,	Treasurer	Not paid, left the country
James Foster,	James Dunn,	Articles of the Peace,	18th	Henry McKenny,			Recognizances of	the Peace for 12 months
Henry Crosby,	Joseph Mulder,	Assault and Battery,	19th	Cornelius R. Quick,	10s	Forthwith,	Treasurer,	Paid
Dr. Campbell and Monroe Evans,	George Oditt, Thomas Newcomb, George Sullivan, and David Knox,	Assault and Battery on the Sabbath day,	30th January,	Thomas Woodbridge,	£1 5s each	Forthwith,	Township Treasurer	15s unpaid
L. J. Fluett,	James Ward,	Assault,	26th February,	Do	10s	do	do
H. M'Kenny,	P. Deslip.	Furious Driving on Highway	20th do	James Noble,	5s	do	do
John Thayer,	John Camble,	Biting,	20th do	Ralph Foster,				Costs paid by the Party.
Do	Oliver Wilkinson,	In the Fight holding Thayer's arm,	20th do	Ralph Foster,				Prosecutor paid costs immediately, parties set'ld
Julia Crosby,	Josiah Fletcher,	Assault,	28th do	Cornelius R. Quick,	5s	Forthwith,	Treasurer,	Paid.
George Thompson,	Calvin O. Brown,	Do	29th do	Do	5s	2 weeks,	do	Paid.
James Harkin,	Laurent Rabideau,	Do	1st March,	Henry McKenny,	£2 fine, £1 8 costs	20 days,		Appealed to Qr. Sessions
Philip McGuire,	George K. Robinson,	Non-payment of Wages,	3rd do	F. A. Lafferty and Jas Noble	£7 1s 3d	9th March,	Not paid yet. No	distress to be found.
George Crawford,	Thomas Cotton,	Trespass,	4th do	Felix A. Lafferty,	1s	8 days,	Not yet paid. To	be imprisoned.
Adla Ratelle,	Leandre Beniteau,	Non-payment of Wages,	17th do	F. A. Lafferty & Thos. Boyles,	£1 15s	23rd March,		Appealed to Sessions.
Alexander Martial,	John Hutchins,	Trespass,	20th do	Cornelius R. Quick,				Dismissed.
Eliza Crayan,	Francis Crayan,	Assault,	22nd do	Thomas Salmoni,	£2 10s and costs	8 days,	Treasurer,	Not paid.
James Harkin,	Laurence Rabideau,	Do	28th do	T. Salmoni & J. G. Kolfage,				Dismissed.
James Harkin,	Michael Rabideau,	Do	28th do	Do do	5s and costs.	6 days,	Treasurer	Not paid.

I certify the foregoing to be a True and correct Return as taken from the several Returns of Convictions filed in this Office, for the Quarter ending April 1st, 1856.
CHARLES BABY, CLERK PEACE ESSEX
Office of the Clerk of the Peace, Sandwich, 8th April, 1856.

Beacon

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE CO of London.

Incorporated under Act of Imperial Parliament, 7 and 8 Vic., Chap. 1.

CANADA BOARD.
KINGSTON.
TRUSTEES.
The Hon John A Macdonald.
James Morton, Esquire.
DIRECTORS:
M. W. Strange, Esq., Chairman,
Thos. A. Corbett, Esq., Deputy Chairman.
James Morton, Esq. John Mowatt, Esq
James Harty, Esq. A. J Macdonell, Esq.
Lewis Walbridge, Esq. T. Clarkson, Esq.

MONTREAL.
Wm. Molson, Esq. Thomas Evans, Esq.
Damase Masson, Esquire,

This Company Insures all descriptions of BUILDINGS, MANUFACTORIES, MILLS, &c. and GOODS OF FURNITURE in the same, against loss or damage by fire, on liberal terms. All descriptions of LIFE RISKS, taken at as low rates as are consistent with security to the assured. Losses promptly settled without reference to England.

ALEX. GORDON,
Agent at Windsor for Western Frontier
March 7, 1856.

LOTS FOR SALE IN THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.

PART of Lot No. 3: on the west side of Bedford Street, with a good Store thereon. Also, Lots 7 and 8, adjoining the residence of L. J. Fluett, Esquire, with dwelling house and stables. These Lots will be sold subject to incumbrances.

For particulars apply to
J. H. WILKINSON.
Att'y for J. A. Vervais.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

TO LET OR FOR SALE.

A Brick House and Lot, on No. 4, East side of Main Street, fronting "Mears' Hotel." The above property will be leased for $150 a year; or, for particulars of sale apply to

STANISLAUS LASALINE.
Sandwich, 20th March, 1856.

Sandwich and Windsor Stage.

BY JOHN LEWIS.

THE Proprietor of this popular line has added a new Stage and first-rate horses, and will hereafter run an Hourly Stage to Windsor with speed and punctuality. He hopes to merit the patronage of the public.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

New Tailoring ESTABLISHMENT.

THE Subscriber begs leave to notify the Public that he will carry on business in the building lately occupied by T. Murphy, opposite the Hennell Hotel, where he intends to carry on the Tailoring Business in all its branches, and hopes by strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage.

N. B.—He will receive the Report of Fashion monthly.

Cutting done to order.
W. T. BASSANDALE.
Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. &c. &c. AT THE REGULATOR.

THE Subscribers would invite the attention of their Friends and the Public generally to their new and complete Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c., &c., which they are now offering low for cash.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

N.B.—The highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all kinds of Produce.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1846.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, } BY virtue of a writ of TO WIT: } Fieria Facias issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex against the lands and Tenements of Alfred Baby, and to me directed, at the suit of Dennis Ouellette, I have seized and taken the following lands and tenements, viz.:

Water Lot number three on the East, and Water Lots numbers three, four and fourteen West, and Land and Water Lots numbers thirteen and sixteen, all on the North side of Sandwich Street in the Village of Windsor, and being part of the Town plot of Windsor, as laid out on the estate of the late Francis Baby, Esquire, all which property, or the interest of the said Alfred Baby in and to the same, I will offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Monday the ninth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, at 12 o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.
Sheriff's Office, Sandwich,
29th February, 1856.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

THE SANDWICH MILLINERY AND DRESS MAKIMG Establishment will be reopened for the season.

The Proprietor having just returned from the Eastern Cities with a Large Stock of Millinery and Dress Goods of the latest style and fashion, which he offers for sale at a small advance from their original Cost.

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE
L. P. ST. AMOUR.
andwich, Feb 29th, 1856.

Family Store.

THE Subscriber keeps constantly on hand a large and well selected assortment of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware and Crockery,

at his old stand on Bedford Street, which he will sell, at a small advance upon cost, for Cash.

A large supply of the very best Flour always on hand.

Produce and Cord Wood bought and sold.

JOSEPH MILLER.
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

New Harness and Saddlery Establishment.

A. C. ELLIS.

Every description of LIGHT and FANCY BUGGY HARNESS, made in the most fashionable styles.

HEAVY HARNESSES constantly on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.

SADDLES of every description made to order on the shortest notice.

CARRIAGE and BUGGY TRIMMING done in a style not to be surpassed.

A large assortment of WHIPS always kept on hand.

In his Store, adjoining Mr Guillot's, will be found every description of Goods in his line of business. Every endeavor will be made to give entire satisfaction to his Customers.

N.B.—Cord Wood, Hides, and Produce wanted, for which the highest price will be given.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

NOTICE.

TO ALL IT MAY CONCERN.

ALL persons owing the subscriber are hereby notified that payment must be made on or before the 15th day of April next if they wish to save the costs of collection.

TO RENT.

The House and Premises in which the subscriber lives. Terms $24 per quarter payable in advance. Possession given on the first of May next.

GEORGE HANN.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

LOT No. Four, in the 4th Concession, Gosfield.

J. H. WILKINSON.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

FOR SALE.

(ON TIME.)

AN Eighteen-Horse Power Engine and Boiler complete. Apply to

GEO. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

Agriculture and Science.

The Agricultural and Horticultural Central Club.

SUBJECT—Fencing, Continued

I consider this a cheap, durable, and efficient fence, and intended to make 100 rods of it as soon as the frost leaves the ground. This plan has been practised in the neighborhood of Port Hope, with great success. I saw, last fall, in that vicinity, and also in neighborhood of Peterborough, long stretches of fence on this plan and was assured that it could be as cheaply made as any other description of post and board fence, and that frost never disturbed it. Its immunity from the effects of frost—the great enemy of all fences that penetrate the soil—depends upon an obvious principle: all the water being carried away from the posts, no sensible expension of the soil takes place in freezing, and they are consequently not lifted from their bed.

I shall not attempt to describe those varieties of rail fence which belong to the "fancy" class. These can be constructed of any shape that the fancy of the owner may suggest, and cost any sum the length of his purse may warrant; but they are not within the purview of our present question.—The wire fence belongs in my opinion to the fancy category. It has not yet proved itself worthy of adoption as a field-fence.—The stone wall fence ought not perhaps, to be passed over in a review of those adapted to the wants of Canada. Where stone is abundant, and land dear, it may be advantageously employed—In other cases it will be found expensive. It must have a good foundation, or the frost will soon crumble it to the ground.

4. Live fences must be looked to as our ultimate resort. It is in this direction that we ought to search for information, if we would confer real and lasting benefit upon our country. Feeling that facts and practical result would be more useful and more interesting than mere opinion, I took the liberty of addressing a few questions to gentlemen in different parts of the Province, who had attempted to grow hedges, and who, I was aware had had experience in the business in the old country. The time was rather limited for an extended enquiry of this sort, but I succeeded in obtaining answers from several gentlemen, whose statements are, I believe, worthy of your attention.

To Query No. 1.—I have no decided preference for any description of fence yet introduced amongst us. I have adopted the post and board fence generally throughout my farm; but it is objectional it on account of the heavy expense attending its erection, its want of durability and its liability to be easily broken down by horses that are pastured in the contiguous fields. The English Quickset or Hawthorn, I have planted freely upon my farm, but with an unsatisfactory result, for reasons which I shall assign in Query No. 4.

The rail or zig-zag fence is still more objectionable from its unsightly appearance and great waste of land, and from encouraging growth of every kind of noxious weed and brushwood, the seeds and roots of which are annually distributed all over the land to the great detriment of the farmers' interest.

Query No. 2.—I approve of Live or Quickset Fences, wherever they can be introduced by the farmer, without inordinate labour. The Hawthorn, which has become a charm to English scenery, and proves so valuable and durable a fence, does not sustain its character or thrive well in Canada, nor is it to be depended upon as a durable fence, for the following reasons:—In the second or third year's growth after having planted, the plant is attacked by a small glutinous insect, (the one so well known for its ravages on the pear and cherry trees,) devouring the whole of the leaves, and checking its growth. It is next subject to the depredation of a smaller but more destructive insect than the one just noticed, which, I am told, is well known in the United States, and is called the American Spider. As it settles and multiplies on the stem and branches of the plant, it has exactly the appearance of hoar frost, and if allowed to remain undisturbed, will kill the plant down to the earth. I have tried all the known remedies for the cure of this evil; such as the application of plaster, lime, and fine road dust, after a shwer or rain or before the due is off in the morning, but without avail.—The only sound water is the only effectual remedy, but time and labour preclude any costly an application upon a large scale.—The plant also suffers severely some winters from the ravages of field mice in frequently cutting it down to the root. For these reasons I have abandoned the use of the English Quickset, as unsuitable for a permanent fence in this climate.

Query No. 3.—Those who are disposed to use the English Hawthorn, as a fence, must prepare the land, by trenching and manuring well. The plants should be set in a perfectly straight line, four inches apart. Some, I know, prefer a double line, setting one between each space of the front line, but I have a decided preference to the single line. It is difficult to weed between the double line of plants, and unless they are kept perfectly clean from the weeds and grass, they choke up and are prevented from throwing out shoots, and thickening at the bottom, and without a good thick bottom, a quickset hedge is of very little use. With attention to dubbing the single line it will early make a firm and as good a resisting fence as the double, and with one half the labour. I have on my orchard a hedge raised from the single line of young plants, (planted in the spring of 1845, which now stands six feet high, and is three feet thick, close to the ground, through which even a chicken cannot creep. This fence has been frequently gapped by field mice and the insects described in Query No. 2. From the want of previous experience, the height this hedge has been allowed to attain, is too great proportion to the stamina of the plant, and the consequence is, it is unable to sustain the pressure of the heavy falls of snow during the winter, leaving it in a ragged condition in the spring, and much damaged in symetrical appearance. I would strongly urge, therefore, a free use of the dubbing shears for the first years of its growth, and not allow the hedge to exceed three or four feet in height, until the plant has gained a sufficient girth to support it against any casual pressure.

Queries Nos. 4 and 5.—Are answered in the foregoing remarks.

Query No. 6.—I have had no experience in cultivating the "Osage Orange," but have heard that it is greatly prized in the West for the purpose of fences, but in England it has been tried and has failed.

Query No. 7.—I have never kept strict account of the cost of planting a Quickset Hedge per rod. I have put in as high as $3 per 1,000 for the sets and have purchased them as low as $1 per 1,000 and in both cases have planted the sets 4 inches apart Independent of the labor, then, in preparing the land and planting the sets, the cost in either instance can be easily ascertained. The same remarks apply to the number of plants to the rod of 16½ feet, and three plant to the foot. But any farmer who is desirous of raising live fences upon on extensive scale, I would advise to import the berries by the bushel after they have been pulped in a mill, and sow them in drills in spring after they will be fit for transplanting into hedge rows, at the cost of 6d., or 1s. at most for 1,000 plants. But the great cost of raising hedge fences, consists in the length of time the plant takes to form a fence, and the careful watching and weeding it requires during that time, and in replacing any dead sets, and in erecting an external fence of some kind to keep off cattle and sheep until the plant has attained to a sufficient vigor to protect itself. And the farmer who is not prepared to incur this cost and trouble of performing all that faithful, I would strongly advise not to meddle with planting hedges, as without the requirements I have mentioned, he could not succeed in raising a hedge fence of any value.

Query No. 8.—As regards the comparative merits of Quickset Hedge, and a "post-and-board" fence, I have not made it a consideration.

Query No. 9.—I have raised the native thorn from the seed, and have planted it alternately in hedge rows with the English quickset, but have now tried it exclusively in forming a hedge. The opportunity, however, which that mode afforded me of observing its fitness for fence purposes, leaves no doubt on my mind of its being incomparably superior to the English thorn in every respect, in this Province. It is entirely free from the diseases commonly had insects on the English thorn. It is a hardier plant and has a larger and stronger stem for resisting cattle, and likely to endure, when once well-formed, for generations, and kept in order with no greater trouble than a rigzag or any other fence, without the same decay. It is surprising that the native thorn has not been long since brought into general use as a fence, and any farmer who is desirous of fencing off his fields with quickset fence, cannot, in my opinion, do better than confine his selection to the native plant.—He need not travel off his own arm in search of the material. All that he has to do is to collect the ripe berries in the fall, put them in a heap in the earth during the winter, that they may ferment and pulp. Take them up and sow them in drills in the spring and in two years from that date they will be fit for transplanting into hedge rows The usual care must then be taken of them, and the only enemy to be dreaded is the field mouse. I have now given you all information my confined experience permits, upon the distinct and relative qualities of the English and Canadian thorn, as applicable to hedge fences. When I was last in land in the winter of 1854–5, I purchased 2,000 beech seedlings, at the cost of 4s. 6d. per thousand. These I brought out with me and planted them in hedge rows on the garden. When I have the land prepared, I purpose to plant them alternately in hedge rows with the native thorn, from which I anticipate a better and more permanent fence than from the thorn alone.—Time will tell whether I am right.

When I was in England during the winter of 1854–5, I observed one hundred iron hurdles to be made for me as an experiment to see whether they could be introduced with advantage into this Province, to average 50lbs. each, to be six feet long and to have connecting pins three inches long passing through a wrought iron fastened with a nut. All included at the price of 5s. sterling each, and made of the best malleable wrought iron.

I suppose that by a fair representation to Government of the intention of the importation, it would have permitted the entry of the hurdles at the lowest scale of duty 2½ per cent.; but it appears that in that supposition I was mistaken, for after two humble applications I was denied the privilege, and compelled to pay the highest rate, 12½ per cent. This charge, together with the freight being levied by measurement instead of weight, as it ought to have been, made it rather too costly an experiment to be repeated. But still under these untoward circumstances, the hurdles laid down at Toronto did not stand me in more than 12s 6d each. The importation injured not the regular merchant, for they never import hurdles, nor could they do it to sell them to the farmer at such a price as would induce him to purchase, and leave at the same time a remunerative profit to the importer. It would be a great wrong to the mechanic as upon inquiry, I found I could not get them in the city under 25s. each, a price which at once precluded the use of them—and even at the price probably of inferior iron. And as it affected the revenue it would have been a positive advantage, as 2,; per cent. on that description would be added. I am firmly of opinion that iron hurdles made of the very best material, averaging 50 lbs. each and complete in all respects, can be imported and laid down upon the wharf in Toronto at a cost not exceeding 5s. each, at a duty of 24 per cent., and the freight paid by weight instead of measurement. At that price I should consider these hurdles well worth the attention of the farmer as a convenient and durable fence. And to that end I would strongly urge the "Agricultural Society" to memorialize the Upper Province next to admit hurdles into the Province duty free.—Canadian Agriculturist.

In Westmoreland it is usual, at Christmas, for farmers to kill a sheep for their own use, on which occasion, when the butcher inquires if they want any meat again Christmas, the reply is, 'Nay, I think not: I think of killing myself.' A butcher called on a farmer of his acquaintance in the usual manner, saying, 'Will you want a bit of meat, or ye'll kill yersel', this Christmas I 'ken not,' replied the farmer, 'whether I'se kill mysel' or tak' a side o' me feyther.' —Carlisle Patriot.

Hotels, &c.

HENNELL HOUSE,

LATE FREE MASON'S TAVERN,

Sandwich.

THIS House is pleasantly situated at the terminus of the New Gravel Road from Windsor to Sandwich, and possesses all the requisites which are generally met with in first class hotels—Good Beds, superior Stabling, and unimpeachable Liquors.

From the long experience of the present proprietor in this line of business, he is enabled to meet the wishes of his patrons, in every particular, with promptness; and the will make it his study so to treat his visitors, that they may leave him with perfect satisfaction, and return with pleasure future occasions.

WM. HENNELL.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th.

SANDWICH EXCHANGE,

BEDFORD STREET, SANDWICH.

JACOB STUTTZ

IN returning thanks for past favors, begs to inform his Friends and the Public that he will be happy to attend upon the traveling public at all hours. A supply of good old Ohio and Hot Water will always be found at the Bar, with all other choice Liquors.

The COTTAGE INN has good and comfortable Stables attached.

ALEXANDER REAUME.

Anderdon, February 29th, 1856.

TRAVELLERS' HOME,

T. HALEY, PROPRIETOR,

(Formerly of Aylmer, Canada West.)

THIS House having been fitted up in the neatest and most comfortable style, the Proprietor hopes that, by keeping the choicest of Liquors and a strict attention to business, to be able to give entire satisfaction to all who may give him a call. Attentive waiters and a well supplied table will always be found here.

Good Stabling and an attentive Ostler always in attendance.

N.B.—FRESH OYSTERS always on hand.

Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

PRINCE ALBERT HOTEL.

THIS Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Warner, has been thoroughly renovated, and will be kept well supplied with the best liquors. An attentive man will always be in attendance to take charge of horses.

A private Parlor, for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen, has been fitted up.

F. X. TRUDELL,

Sandwich Street, Proprietor.

29th February, 1856.

BROOKER'S TAVERN.

WM. BROOKER is prepared to attend upon his Customers at his new and well-furnished house near the Canard Bridge, where the Traveller will have his wants attended to in regard to good liquors, and his friends may expect to find every accommodation as usual.

A supply of Groceries always kept on hand which will be sold very cheap.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROYAL EXCHANGE.

J. H. McGEE,

BEGS to announce to the Travelling Community, and Public in general, that he has opened the above new TAVERN, with good accommodations, and hopes by attention to his business, to merit a share of public patronage. A choice selection of Groceries always on hand.

Maidstone Cross, February 29th, 1856.

MANSION HOUSE.

THIS new and commodious Inn is now completely finished, and the Proprietor hopes, that by a strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a continuance of the liberal support which was so liberally awarded him at his old stand.

ALONZO BROWN,

Maidstone Cross, Proprietor.

7th March, 1856.

AMERICAN HOTEL.

COURT HOUSE SQUARE, LONDON, C. W.

ROBERT ARKELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and Travellers that he has taken the above Hotel, which has undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The house is in a fine open, airy and central situation, and commands a beautiful view of the valley of the Thames and surrounding country.

The Table is supplied with all the delicacies of the season. The Wines and Liquors will be of the best brands, and he trusts by assiduity and attention to the comfort of his guests to merit their patronage and support.

ROBERT ARKELL.

London, 29th Feb. 1856.

WARM BERTH

EXCHANGE,

AMHERSTBURG, C. W.

THE SUBSCRIBER has leased the "La Liberty Stand," second door above the Prince Albert Hotel, Murray Street, for a term of years, and has it remodled throughout, furnished with new furniture, bedding, &c., and now open for the accommodation of the traveling public, and by strict attention to business he hopes to receive a liberal share of the same.

HIS TABLE

will be well supplied with all the luxuries of the season.

HIS BAR

will always contain the choicest brands of Liquors.

His Stables and Shed are large and convenient.

Persons wishing good Board will find this a convenient place, being a central place of business.

CHARLES WARNER.

Amherstburg, March 14th, 1856.

INTERNATIONAL

BILLIARD SALOON,

Windsor, C.W., opposite the Depot of the Great Western Railway.

T. M. HOWRIGAN,

Proprietor.

The above Saloon is neatly and commodiously fitted up. The Proprietor having spared no expense for the purpose of rendering it attractive to visitors.

The best of Cigars, Wines and Liquors always on hand.

Windsor, Feb. 29th, 1856.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

COURTER HOUSE

Corner of Erie and Seneca Streets,

Nearly opposite the Buffalo & N. Falls Railroad.

B. F. POPPLE, MANAGER.

VISITORS visiting the Courter House, Buffalo, will find every convenience and attention at reasonable charges. Teetotalers visiting Buffalo, will find this Hotel calculated to meet their wishes.

Buffalo, 29th Feb. 1856.

Beecher, Rice and Ketchum.

CARPET & OIL CLOTH WAREHOUSE,

No. 142 Jefferson Avenue.

Conant Block, Detroit, Michigan.

BEECHER, HOLLISTER & WILKINS, Carpet Hall, Lake Street, Chichago, Importers of Carpets, Oil Cloths, Paper-hangings Curtain and Upholstery materials.

A. A. RICE. L. BEECHER. E. F. HOLLISTER

C. B. KETCHUM, D. WILKINS, JR

Detroit, Feb. 26th, 1856.

TILES, TILES,

THE Public are respectfully informed that M. & J. H. WHITEHOUSE are Manufacturing and have on hand a large quantity of Tiles, for Draining Cellars, Farms, &c., at their Brick Yard, Westminster, two miles from London, and a quarter of a mile from Mr. J. Nellis's Tavern, at First Toll Gate on the Hamilton Road, which they will sell at the Low Prices of £2 per M. with Soles or Bottoms, without £2 15s. They will be found to be much cheaper than any other Material for Draining, as they facilitate greatly the labor, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when put down will never require removing. Samples may be seen and orders received at the Store of Mr. J. Farell, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also Roofing Tiles and Press Bricks for Paving Buildings of superior quality.

London, Feb. 29th, 1856.

DETROIT SEED STORE

AND

AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.

I would call the attention of Farmers and Gardeners to my present stock of Agricultural Implements, consisting of the most useful and latest improved kind of Ploughs, Cultivators, Seed Drills, Horse Hoes, Cultivators, Seed Planters, Corn Shellers, Fan Mills, Root Pullers, Corn Planters, Cob Crushers, Churns, &c. Garden, Field, and Flower Seeds, raised by the most experienced and careful growers in this country and England, and I think purchasers may feel confident that every kind sold will prove true to their names, and give perfect satisfaction All seed offered for sale will be of the present year's growth when offered as such.

E. F. PARKER.

75 Woodward Avenue, Detroit.

JUST PUBLISHED,

CANADA

PHYSICAL, Economic and Social, by Adam Lilie, D.D. One Volume, 12mo, about 300 Pages. Maps of Canada East & West. Cloth 8s.; Silt Covers 3s 9d.

MACLEAR & CO.,

Publishers, Toronto.

N.B.—Sent by Post to any part of North America or Europe, if desired.

Toronto, Feb. 29th, 1856.

CARPETS. CARPETS.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

THE Subscribers have just received, ex "London," a Large Stock of which they are prepared to offer at low prices, and are well worthy of inspection.

BRUSSELS, 5 PLY, AND SCOTCH CARPETINGS

T. B. & J. HAIRRIS,

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

EXECUTOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to all persons indebted to the late ALPHEUS MORSE, of the Town of Sandwich, deceased, and late of the Firm of MORSE AND CALVIN, Lumbermen, to make payment to the undersigned, and all persons having claims against the said A. MORSE, or MORSE AND CALVIN, are requested to present them for payment prior to the 1st day of May next to

ELECTA MORSE, } Executors

H. C. GUILLOT, }

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

CIGAR FACTORY.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the inhabitants of Amhersburg and vicinity that he has opened a Cigar Factory in the above Town, where every description of the choicest kind are always on hand. He has also lately imported from Havana a large quantity of the very best Principe and every other description of Cigars, which he intends to sell at a much smaller price than can be had in Detroit. Call and see him, and he will give a puff.

JOHN N. MILLER.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

NOTICE.

A BAY PONEY came in the barn yard on the "Hand's Farm," about the 1st February last, and unless the owner comes to claim the same and pay the charges, it will be impounded and sold.

Hand's Farm, 15th March, 1856.

LANDS FOR SALE.

A SMALL FARM, being part of Lot No 37, in First Concession, Petite Cote, 40 acres, all under fence, two acres in orchard and in a high state of cultivation. Also a Brick House, two stories high, with a good cellar, and is well adapted for a residence.

Two Lots on Glengary Avenue, one house and lot on St. George's street, in the Village of Windsor.

A number of Town Lots on the Pajot Farm, in the town of Sandwich.

Also part of lots Nos. 95 and 96, 1st and 2nd Con., half a mile above Windsor, two houses and barn thereon, containing 150 acres.

The above lots will be sold for cash, at the very lowest figure, and parties wishing to purchase for residences or speculation, will find this an opportunity which is not often afforded. Title Indisputable.

CHAS. P. LABADIE

All parties owing the subscriber are requested to settle forthwith, or having any claims against him are requested to present them without delay, as he is about winding up his business.

C. P. L.

Sandwich April, 1856.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been acknowledged. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. There also assigned to the useful part of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, both rural and suburban.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded together with its really superior execution in Black and Tint, Westminster, two miles from London, and a quarter of a mile from Mr. J. Nellis's Tavern, at First Toll Gate on the Hamilton Road, which they will sell at the Low Prices of £2 per M. with Soles or Bottoms, without £2 15s. They will be found to be much cheaper than any other Material for Draining, as they facilitate greatly the labor, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when put down will never require removing. Samples may be seen and orders received at the Store of Mr. J. Farell, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also Roofing Tiles and Press Bricks for Paving Buildings of superior quality.

London, Feb. 29th, 1856.

DETROIT SEED STORE

AND

AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.

I would call the attention of Farmers and Gardeners to my present stock of Agricultural Implements, consisting of the most useful and latest improved kind of Ploughs, Cultivators, Seed Drills, Horse Hoes, Cultivators, Seed Planters, Corn Shellers, Fan Mills, Root Pullers, Corn Planters, Cob Crushers, Churns, &c. Garden, Field, and Flower Seeds, raised by the most experienced and careful growers in this country and England, and I think purchasers may feel confident that every kind sold will prove true to their names, and give perfect satisfaction All seed offered for sale will be of the present year's growth when offered as such.

E. F. PARKER.

75 Woodward Avenue, Detroit.

JUST PUBLISHED,

CANADA

PHYSICAL, Economic and Social, by Adam Lilie, D.D. One Volume, 12mo, about 300 Pages. Maps of Canada East & West. Cloth 8s.; Silt Covers 3s 9d.

MACLEAR & CO.,

Publishers, Toronto.

N.B.—Sent by Post to any part of North America or Europe, if desired.

Toronto, Feb. 29th, 1856.

CARPETS. CARPETS.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

THE Subscribers have just received, ex "London," a Large Stock of which they are prepared to offer at low prices, and are well worthy of inspection.

BRUSSELS, 5 PLY, AND SCOTCH CARPETINGS

T. B. & J. HAIRRIS,

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

EXECUTOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to all persons indebted to the late ALPHEUS MORSE, of the Town of Sandwich, deceased, and late of the Firm of MORSE AND CALVIN, Lumbermen, to make payment to the undersigned, and all persons having claims against the said A. MORSE, or MORSE AND CALVIN, are requested to present them for payment prior to the 1st day of May next to

ELECTA MORSE, } Executors

H. C. GUILLOT, }

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WIMAN & Co, Publishers

Toronto, March, 1856.

TO be published monthly, price half-a-dollar per annum,

The Churchman's Friend,

For the diffusion of information relative to the Church of England, her Doctrine and Ordinances. Edited by Edward H. Dewar, M.A., Rector of Sandwich, assisted by other Clergymen.

Sandwich, March 15th, 1856.

New Wholesale

GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT!

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and the Trade generally, that he has commenced business on his own account, in this City, as a

WHOLESALE GENERAL GROCER,

And is now receiving a large and carefully selected Stock of

GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, OILS, PAINTS, &c., &c., &c.

To which he confidently invites the attention of Western and City Merchants.

Premises, King Street West, opposite Messrs. McKeand, Bross & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods Warehouse.

A. I. MCKENZIE.

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TO RENT.

A DRUG STORE, with a large and well selected stock of Drugs and Medicines, in the Town of Sandwich. The Store will be leased for a term of years, and the Drugs and Medicines will be sold on reasonable terms. The selection cannot be surpassed in Upper Canada. Possession given on the first day of July next, if required. The present proprietor is about entering other business, which will prevent him attending to the Drug business, and which is the only reason for his retiring from he trade. For particulars inquire of

T. ADLEY.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

J. H. ALLISON,

IMPORTER OF

IMPROVED

RAILROAD WATCHES.

Cased in beautiful styles warranted excellent time-keepers: do. Swiss full jeweled Levers of every style.

GOLD PENS.

I continue manufacturing Pens of every desirable pattern; these Pens have received

A SILVER MEDAL & DIPLOMA

At the Michigan State Fair, and are not to be surpassed by any Pens in the market.

ALSO DEALER IN

FINE JEWELRY, SILVER WARE, AND FANCY GOODS.

I have an experienced Jeweller, capable of making New Work to order,

SETTING STONES AND BLAND WORK, &C.,

FIRE GILDING AND GALVANIZING

Done at Short Notice.

WATCH REPAIRING.

Being a Practical Workman, all work entrusted to my care will be carefully attended to.

GOLD PENS RE-POINTED

at 50 cents all sizes. Orders sent by mail, accompanied by cash, will be promptly attended to.

J. H. ALLISON,

No. 176 Jefferson Ave.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

Hamilton and Toronto Branch.

ALTERATION OF TIME.

ON and after MONDAY NEXT, the 10th December, trains will run daily (Sundays excepted) between Hamilton and Toronto, as follows:

GOING WEST

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed	Mail
	A M	P M	P M	P M
Toronto, -	8 00	3 20	10 00
Mimico, -	8 10	3 30	10 15
Port Credit, -	8 25	3 45	10 30
Oakville, -	8 43	4 03	10 53
Bronte, -	8 55	4 15	11 15
Wellington Square,	9 10	4 30	11 35
Hamilton, -	9 30	4 50	12 00

GOING EAST.

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed	Mail
	A M	P M	A M	A M
Hamilton, -	10 40	6 40	3 10
Wellington Square,	11 00	6 30	3 35
Bronte, -	11 15	6 45	3 55
Oakville, -	11 27	7 00	4 15
Port Credit, -	11 45	7 20	4 35
Mimico, -	12 00	7 35	4 50
Toronto, -	12 15	7 50	5 05

The above Trains connect at Hamilton with Trains of Great Western Railway running in connection with Trains to Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, Boston, New York, and with Michigan Central Railroad Trains at Detroit for Chicago, St Louis, &c, &c.

The 3 20 Train from Toronto meets G W R Accommodation Train going West at Hamilton, for Preston Galt, Paris, London, and intermedia te Stations

through Tickets for any of the above places can be obtained at the Ticket Office, Toronto Station

Stages run daily between Oakville, Milton, Georgetown, &c, &c, &c.

C. J. BRYDGES,

Managing Director

Great Western Railway Office,

A RARE CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY

IS NOW OFFERED IN

E. HAYWARD'S GRAND GIFT ENTERPRISE AND LOTTERY, to take place at

SANDWICH,

ON THE 19th APRIL, 1856.

ALL PRIZES! NO BLANKS.

The following is a List of a few of the Prizes:

2 Shares in Sandwich Street Plank Road Company, worth		$80
A Glass Case,		40
A Burr Cooking Stove,		40
A Buggy Harness,		40
Trotting Waggon,		20
Double Barrel Gun,		20
Dress Coat (new)		18
Frock do		18
Single Barrel Gun,		15
Do do do,		15
Settee,		15
Pair of Curtains,		12
Lot of Dishes,		11
Six Shooter,		10
Box Stoves,		10
20 Yards Carpet,		10
Eight Day Clock,		8
Do do		6
Looking Glass,		5
Pair of Shinghais,		5

Together with other articles amounting to FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

On the day of drawing, the holders of tickets will have the privilege of appointing a Committee to regulate the mode of drawing, &c., &c. If the tickets are not all sold by the day appointed for drawing, due notice will be given of the postponement in the "Maple Leaf."

Tickets, One Dollar Each.

POSTPONEMENT.

THE DRAWING of the above LOTTERY is postponed until TUESDAY, the 20th MAY next.

E. R.

Crockery Store and China Emporium.

F. P. MATHER & Co., IMPORTERS and Dealers in Crockery, China, Glass, Britannia and Silver Plated Ware, Lamps and Looking Glasses, Table Cutlery and Fancy Ware, "Sign of the Big White Pitcher," No. 142 Jefferson Avenue, Keamey's Block, opposite Fireman's Hall, Detroit, Michigan.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

CATHARTIC PILLS

OPERATE by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action. They remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, from whatever cause, and restore action to health, correct, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first cause of disease. An extensive trial of their virtues, by Professors, Physicians, and Patients, has shown cures of dangerous diseases almost beyond belief, were they not substantiated by persons of such exalted position and character as to forbid the suspicion of untruth. Their certificates are published in my American Almanac, which the Agents below named are pleased to furnish to all who call for them.

Annexed we give Directions for their use in the complaints which they have been found to cure.

FOR COSTIVENESS.—Take one or two Pills, or such quantity as to gently move the bowels. Costiveness is formed by a sluggish or inactive state of Pilns, and the cure of one complaint is the cure of both. No person can feel well while under a costive habit of body. Hence it should be, as it can be, promptly relieved.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION is sometimes the cause of Costiveness, and always uncomfortable, take mild doses, one to four—to stimulate the digestive organs and liver into healthy action. They will do it, and the heartburn, boldness, and nausea of dyspepsia will be speedily dispelled. They always don't forget what cured you.

FOR A FOUL STOMACH, or Morbid Inaction of the Bowels, which produces general depression of the spirits and bad health, take from four to eight Pills at first, and two a day afterwards, until activity and strength is restored to the system.

FOR HEADACHE, arising from a FOUL STOMACH, NAUSEA, Pain in the Stomach, Back, or Side, take from four to eight Pills on going to bed. If they do not operate sufficiently to cure, take more the next day they do. These complaints will be swept out from the system, and the most direct and fatal kindred disorders because your stomach is foul.

FOR SCROFULA, ERYSIPELAS, and all Diseases of the Skin, take the Pills in small doses, and freely, to keep the bowels open. The eruptions will generally soon begin to disappear. Persevere, for many dreadful ulcers and sores have been healed up by this treatment, after all other means of cure failed. Some disgusting diseases which seemed to require the whole system have completely yielded to their influence, leaving the sufferer in perfect health. Patients' your duty to society forbids that you should parade yourself before the world covered with pimples, blotches, ulcers, sores, or with any of the unclean diseases of the skin, because your disease can be cured.

TO PURIFY THE BLOOD, they are the best medicine ever discovered. They should be taken freely and frequently, and the impurities which taint the seeds of incurable diseases will be swept out of the system and they will not be developed. In this way they do as much good in preventing sickness as by the remarkable cures which they are making every where.

LIVER COMPLAINT, JAUNDICE, and all Bilious Affections arising from a disordered liver, torpidity, congestion, or obstructions of the Liver. Torpidity and congestion will cause the bile and render it unfit for digestion. This is the source of ill health, and the constitution is frequently undermined by these diseases before the evil reaches the system. Obstruction of the duct which empties the bile into the intestines causes the bile to overflow into the blood. This produces Jaundice, with a long and dangerous train of evils. Costiveness, or internally costive diseases are generally involved. Feverish symptoms, languor, low spirits, weariness, vapors, and indisposition to exertion, with sometimes inability to sleep, and sometimes the reverse—at others somnolence is the severe pain in the side; the skin and eyes assume a yellow hue; nausea, sometimes in the stomach and; the bowels sore to the touch; the whole system is deranged with a tendency to fever, which may turn to bilious fever, bilious colic, bilious diarrhœa, dysentery, &c. A medium dose of these or four Pills taken on going to bed, and one or two in the morning, and repeated a few days, will remove the complaint entirely. Bear in mind a little suffer such pains when you can cure them for 25 cents.

RHEUMATISM, GOUT, and all Inflammatory Diseases are speedily cured by the purifying influence of these Pills upon the blood and the stimulus which they afford to the digestive organs. For these and all kindred complaints they should be taken in mild doses, to move the bowels gently, but freely.

As a DINNER PILL this is the best ever used or known. No Pill can be made more pleasant to take, and certainly none has been made more effectual to the purpose for which a dinner pill is employed.

PREPARED BY

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.,

Practical and Analytical Chemists,

LOWELL, MASS.,

AND SOLD BY

GEO. and G. A. BULLOCK, and J. A. VERVAIS, Sandwich;

D. OULLETTE, Windsor;

And every Druggist and Merchantin Canada.

MAPLE LEAF.

DIEU ET MON DROIT

James H. Wilkinson] "PROGRESS." [Proprietor and Publisher.

VOL. I. SANDWICH, C. W., FRIDAY, MAY 9, 1856. NO. 11.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

IS PUBLISHED

Every Friday Morning,

BY

J. H. WILKINSON,

BEDFORD STREET,

Sandwich, Canada West.

TERMS.—Eight shillings and ninepence Cy, per annum, if paid in advance; or Ten Shillings at the end of the year.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Six lines or under, first insertion, 2s 6d, cy
Each subsequent insertion, . . . 0 7½ "

Advertisements over six lines, 4d per line for the first insertion, and one penny per line for every subsequent insertion. A liberal discount made to Merchants and others who advertise by the year.

Advertisements sent in for insertion without written directions, will be continued till forbid and the usual rates charged.

CLUBS.

Any person procuring 10 subscribers will be entitled to a copy gratis. Payment to be made in advance.

The JOB OFFICE connected with the "MAPLE LEAF" is in every respect complete for the dispatch of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

Professional Cards.

Mr. William Johnson,
Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c., &c.
Sandwich, C. W.

Mr. Charles Baby,
Attorney and Councillor at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, &c.
Office, Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. J. H. Wilkinson.
Law, Chancery, Conveyancing, and Land Agency Office,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. Louis J. Fluett,
Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, Conveyancer and Land Agent,
Sandwich.

Mr. S. S. Macdonell,
Barrister, Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, &c., &c.
Windsor, C. W.

Mr. John O'Connor, Jun.,
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c.,
Windsor, C. W.

Charles Eugene Casgrain, M.D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Office and Residence, opposite the "Mear's Hotel,"
Sandwich, Canada West.

Dr. Reynolds,
Physician and Surgeon,
Amherstburg.

John Adley,
Physician and Surgeon &c.,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

ALEXANDER GORDON,
NOTARY PUBLIC AND INSURANCE AGENT
Sandwich & Windsor, Canada West.

John McCrae,
Auctioneer, Insurance and General Agent
Windsor, Canada West.

Bank of Upper Canada Agency,
Windsor, Canada West.
Office Hours, 10, A.M. to 3, P.M.

Philip S. Donnelly,
Provincial Land Surveyor, &c.,
Moore, County of Lambton.

LAFFERTY & JONES,
AUCTIONEERS AND APPRAISERS,
Amherstburg, Canada West.

P. Marentette,
Gunsmith and Manufacturer of Guns.
Every description of Fire-arms repair. d at his shop, on Bedford Street,
Sandwich.

L. P. St. Amour,
IMPORTER, AND WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS
CROCKERY, HARDWARE,
PERFUMERY, &c.
Sandwich, Canada West.

Sandwich Post Office.

Open daily, from Nine till Twelve, A.M., and from half-past Twelve till Five, P.M.

P. H. MORIN, Post Master.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware
Crockery, Boots & Shoes
&c. &c. &c.
Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich.

Bartley and Pinney.
PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.
Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.

MR. JAS. WOODBRIDGE, JUN.,
Division Court Agent, and General Agent for Collecting Debts.
Sandwich, Canada West.

S. D. ELWOOD & CO.,
PUBLISHERS,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
BOOKS, STATIONERY,
AND ALL KINDS OF PAPERHS,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS STOCK
MANUFACTURERS OF
BLANK BOOKS
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.
Orders for Lithographed Letter and Bill Heads, Maps, Drafts, Stock Certificates, &c., &c., &c.,
EXECUTED WITH PROMPTNESS.
192 Jefferson Avenue,
S. D. ELWOOD, } DETROIT.
J. C. PARSONS, }

WILLIAM SWIFT,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
IS prepared to attend upon the Gentlemen of Amherstburg in his line of business, and is not afraid to assert that he will cut and Fit in the latest and most fashionable Styles as well as any Tailor west of London.
Amherstburg, Feb. 29th, 1856.

George Hann,
DEALER IN FURS AND SKINS.
The highest price paid for Shipping Furs at his Fur Store in the Town of Sandwich.
15th March, 1856.

NIAGARA
MUTUAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.
GEORGE BULLOCK, Local Agent for the Townships of Sandwich, Maidstone, Rochester and Tilbury West; also the Village of Windsor. Address, Sandwich Post Office.

ROSE DALE MILLS,
THE highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Rye, Corn, or Buck Wheat, either at the Mills or at the Store of
GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

JAMES JESSOP,
CARPENTER & JOINER,
WILL always be on hand to attend to the erection of Building, and every description of Carpenter and Joiner work upon the shortest notice.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WARNER'S EXCHANGE,
AMHERSTBURG, C. W.
CHARLES WARNER, PROPRIETOR

HIDES WANTED.
ANY Quantity of Hides will be taken in for the Sandwich Tannery at either of the Saddler's Shops in Sandwich or Windsor, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.
JAS. WOODBRIDGE.

SIMPSON'S EATING SALOON.
MR. SIMPSON would inform the Gentlemen of Sandwich and vicinity that he is prepared at all hours to furnish "Hot Meals," and those who may favor his establishment with a call, can depend upon having, if they wish, a "steak" cooked in the good old English style, with all the little etceteras.
Dinner Parties accommodated upon the shortest notice.
N.B.—A few persons can be accommodated with good clean beds.
No 253 Jefferson Avenue Detroit Mich. few doors above the Theatre.

NEW LIVERY STABLE.
JOHN LEWIS, having purchased the Livery Stable in the Town of Sandwich, formerly kept by C. F. Labadie, will carry it on in a style that has never been known in this place before. Fresh horses and new carriages are being added to this establishment every day, and persons who patronise him may expect to be furnished with "Crack Teams."

PAINT SHOP.
FRANCOIS PAYETTE having opened a Paint Shop in the Town of Sandwich, opposite the "Sandwich Exchange," will be happy to attend to the painting of houses, Graining, Glazing, Varnishing, and, in fact, every description of work in his line of business with despatch, and at moderate charges.
N.B.—Buggies and Carriages painted and varnished upon reasonable terms.

Poetry.

The Woods.

Wonderous are ye, worshipful and solemn,
Glorious sylvan temples, echoing flaws;
Cluster'd roof, and interlacing column,
Pavement tesselate with golden stains;

Incense from unnumber'd censers stealing
Through your cloister'd aisles and archways dim;
Tuneful winds, with organ-voices pealing,
Chanting softly now a choral hymn;

Oriel-openings, though your shimmering vistas,
Letting in the promise of the sky
On the trembling leaves, by sunbeams kiss'd, as
By bright Angels blessing from on high!

White-robed thoughts with gentle ministrations
Ever at your peaceful altars wait;
Earnest musings, holy aspirations,
Enter still your ever-open gate.

For all periods ye have celebration;
Matins, vespers, vigils for the night;
Fragrant dew for fitting consecration;
Autumn's generous Communion-rite;

Wailing tempests, that with pomp funereal
In dim sunny shroud dead winter bring;
Joyous Summer's flowery hymeneal;
Pure baptisms of the early Spring.

Thro' your shadowy precincts as we wander,
Buried memories lying 'mid the gloom,
Reverently, with inward glance, we ponder
The dim writing on each silent tomb.

And ye tell us of the slow unfolding,
Slow decay of leaf, and tree, and year;
And ye hint a kindred closeness holding
To the selfsame fate each various sphere.

And ye point us to the long enchaining
Linking generations into one;
Still the mighty Growths of Ages waning,
Still the Forest towering to the Sun!

This the text and sum of your instruction;
All things surely tend to their destruction;
All things rise as surely from decay.

Blessed he ye for the timely preaching
Of your ancient pulpits, drear and hoar;
The prophetic and most hopeful teaching
Of your youth renew'd for evermore!

Intellect in Rags.

Two pronl children, a boy and a girl, were tripping along the streets of Boston one sunshiny day, on their way to school, chatting as they went, and apparently enjoying themselves right merrily.

They moved slowly onward, their white brown head bent downwards, their bright eyes searching for hidden pavestones: yet ever and anon some quick laugh at the ludicrous figures that flitted across their path, would cover their smooth cheeks with dimples.

"Don't you hate such dirty places, Julia?" said the boy, as a few drops, not of crystal, stained the glossiness of his rich attire; "don't you wish that school was at the other end of the lane?"

"It's perfectly horrible," answered the beautiful young creature, with a light laugh; "dear, do look at these creatures they can have no sensibility or refinement, they dirty, how contemptible they are—well, thank goodness that we were born rich."

"Stop! Jule, hush! yonder is something to excite our laughter, I warrant you—Ha! ha! a boy larger than myself, and he appears to be picking out the letters on that scrap of paper—bah!"

"Stop, Arthur, do, and let us hear him; we can wait a moment."

A few paces before them sat a boy of some thirteen years, hatless, shoeless, and with very scant frock and trousers, the latter a mass of patches. His hair, tangled and thick, hung over his downcast eyes, and his hands, stained and rough with labor, grasped a little torn piece of newspaper, which he had evidently picked up out of the mud.—So absorbed was he in his task that he did not notice the fair and high bred young strangers who stood regarding him with thoughtless but subdued mirth.

Hark! the boy, leaning his brown face on his clenched hands, murmurs unconsciously aloud—"b-l-e-n—no, not that;—yes, no" a deep drawn sigh, then again—"b-l-e-n."—then again a long pause "Oh dear, have I forgotten; I never shall be able to read like Barney."

As the poor child exclaimed thus, he lifted his eyes sorrowfully from the tattered bit of printing; his gaze fell upon the listeners, whose beautiful his curled with a scornful smile. A flush of crimson startled his swarthy cheeks, mounting to the top of his forehead, as he threw off the mass of tangled curls, and his bold black eyes fell before their familiar stare.

"Ha! ha!" said the richly clad youth carelessly, "I've got a brother only five years old at home, who can read better than that. A big boy like you ought at least to know your letters. Why can't you go to school?"

"To school," echoed Julia sneeringly, "do you suppose he could get into a decent school? his name ought to be patch work; ha! ha! poor thing," she continued with mock pity, "our stable boy dresses better than that."

The lad, at her tone of commiseration, sprang to his feet, and bent upon the brother and sister such a glance of defiance, indignation and scorn, that they instinctive ly hurrie.l onward; thought the girl turned once more mockingly round and gave utterance to a light, bantering laugh.

The parlors of a stately mansion on Beacon Street, Boston, were brilliantly illuminated. The owner of the princely tenement had issued cards for a fashionable soiree: the hour had arrived, and the guests were assembling.

The rich and the great were there, but conspicuous among all, and conversing with the ex-President of the United States, the elder Adams, stood a noble looking man, in the bloom and vigor of manhood. His was the beautiful intellectual countenance, of the Irish Celt, and his high attitude was commanding yet extremely graceful.

"All the evening," murmured a fashionable, yet lovely lady, to Mr. Adams, as he turned towards her, "have I sought to gain an introduction to Mr. E.'s distinguished guest; but he has been surrounded, now however, he stands alone. I should esteem it a rare honor to meet with him, but for a moment."

"You shall have the pleasure," said the ex-president, smiling; and turning, he presented the beautiful and facinating wife of a millionaire to the talented stranger.

"We have met before madam," said the gentleman bowing low, to conceal a strange expression that stole over his features.

"I have forgotten," the lady made answer in her sweetest tones.

"I have not—we have met before: just twenty years ago," he continued still keeping his piercing eyes upon her face—"we met in a little lane, a narrow, repulsive place, where the cries of hunger resounded often upon the still air, and where rags, misery and filth met the traveller at every step."

He paused—and she gazed more curiously upon him.

"Perhaps you do not remember the time—the place—perhaps you do not remember how two pampered children of wealth passed along that lane—it may be you forget the poor outcast, grasping at science (though then scarcely conscious,) with his untutored mind. The laugh of derision that was then flung upon this lonely outcast—for I am that child—roused the latent fire of ambition within my breast; and," he continued more softly, "I thank you for the taunt, and the scornful words; they were ever my incentives in my upward path to honor; I had but to think of them, and my soul was nerved anew. I thank you for them;" and a triumphant smile illuminated his splendid countenance.

"The lady, faint and mortified, glided away from her rebuker, and in less than an hour sat humbled and weeping, in her own proud mansion. She had wished, nay, commanded, just one little word from the being who in her haughty childhood she had derided and despised for his poverty - and she had been repaid with contempt, thought smoothly worded and delicately expressed by the neglected boy, whose name now rang the world through.

Have a care, then sons and daughters of plenty.

Scorn not the child of poverty, who with pensive eye and lifted hands, toils up the rugged heights of Parnassus, uncared for and unaided. Though clothed in rags he may gain the dizzy height, while you decked in the meaner paraphernalia of wealth, humbly, grope, along the mountain's base and under the very feet of him whom you disdained.

A RAINY DAY.

The man who does not admire and welcome a rainy day is unworthy at umbrella, and ought to be sentenced to wash in hard water all the days of his life. We confess to even an affection to a thorough soaking day, and never feel so happy as when we see it raining cats and dogs when we get up in the morning. We shall never forget the divine satisfaction we felt last April two years during a shower of rain that lasted exactly fifty-six hours. We raveled in it, that is to say out of it, in a comfortable parlor, writing sonnets to sunshine, and ditties to dust. We began at last to think with Leigh Hunt and Horace Greeley, 'that the natural state of man was watery.'

But we are not only fond of a rainy day, but we want the human race, our readers, to be of the same opinion. Let us sum up a few of its advantages.

In the first place it fills the water tanks and washes the streets, setting a good example to Ebling. The real virtue, however, of a rainy day, is the opportunity it affords for the exercise of the domestic virtues—the beauty, heightened by virtue, and commanding our esteem and love, while it draws our observation. Colors artfully spread upon canvass may entertain the eye, but not the heart; and she who takes no care to add to the natural graces of her person any exercise of virtues, but by the lustre of her mind which shone in them and gave them the power of charming.

Grace was all her steps, heaven in her eye. In all her gestures dignity and love.

TURKISH JUSTICE.—A Turkish slater being at work on the roof of a house, fell into the street, upon a wealthy old man, whom he killed, without any serious injury to himself. The sons of the deceased caused him to be arrested and conducted before the cadi, with whom he used all his influence to have the poor man condemned; and though the innocence of the latter was clearly established, nothing would serve him but the law of retaliation. The cadi accordingly sentenced the slater to be placed exactly on the spot where the old man was at the moment of the accident—"and you" said he to the son, "will go on the roof of the house, fall down on the slater, and kill him if you can."

In the circuit Court, Rochester, a short time ago, a verdict of $2,250 was rendered against a young man named Alpheus Hayden, for slandering the private character of a young lady whom he had been "sparking," named Julah Silence. A quite ordinary sir of opinion that it would have been better for Mr. Hayden had he kept Silence.

BUTTER FROM A TREE.—On the banks of the river Niger, in Africa, they have a tree called the Shea, from which excellent butter is obtained. The tree is like our oak, and the fruit some resembles the Spanish olive. The kernel of the fruit is dried in the sun and then boiled, and the butter thus obtained is whiter, firmer, and of a richer flavor than that which is obtained from the cow, besides keeping sweet a year without salt. The boiling and preparation of this article is one of the leading objects of African industry, and constitutes the main article of their inland commerce.—Detroit Advertiser

VERMONT WIT.—We have seen a good deal of humor oozing out, from time to time, up among the Great Mountains.

The last drop that has reached us, came from a small village nor far from Bennington. Old Stokes, after years of toil, got possession of a granite ledge.

He was in the habit of buying his powder, with which he quarried his ledge, of one Jonas Archibald, who sold tape, groceries, and other varieties, in what was dignified by the rural maids and matrons as 'the village store.'

Archibald was a good deal of a boaster about his wares, and one evening, while a crowd was sitting round the stove in the tavern bar-room, discussing matters in general, he addressed Stokes with, 'Well, old Stokes, how did you like that powder of mine, that's pretty good powder, aint it?—I paid a tarnal high price for it in Boston!' 'Well,' responded Stokes, 'it's pretty good —but I came near losing that last keg.' 'Ah! indeed! how's that?' said the other, putting on a look of concern. 'Why,' returned old Stokes, 'the confounded keg catch'd afire, and I had to run thirty rods down to the brook, for water—so it most all burnt up.

The trader thereupon took out his watch, said that it was getting rather late, and he'll wed, somehow or other, he'd be going.

A FAST WAITER.—One day when Alek Williams, an incorrigible wag from Detroit, was dining at the Astor House, he sent a waiter for a piece of roast beef. The boy was absent so long that Williams supplied himself with a knife and fork. In the course of time the boy came with the beef. Willia ms turned, looked at him a moment, and then asked with well affected surprise:

'Are you the boy that I sent for the beef?'

'Yes, sir,' replied the boy, promptly.

'Is it possible,' said Williams, 'why how you've grown; I shouldn't have known you.'

On another occasion he was asked by some of his friends in the city, why he did not call to see them. Call to see you! replied Williams; why how could I? I got here in the morning, went to the Astor House and went up stairs and up stairs, and when I got to my room the gong sounded for breakfast. Well, I went down; and when I had got my breakfast I started up stairs again, and went up stairs and up stairs and up stairs, and just as I got up the gong sounded for dinner, so I went down and took some dinner, and then I went up stairs and up stairs and up stairs, and when I got to my room, the gong sounded again for tea. I hurried down to get my tea, and then I went up stairs, again, and up stairs, and up stairs, and up stairs, and when I got there lang me if it was not twelve o'clock. Now I would like to know what time I had to go a visiting.'

BRIGANDAGE IN SPAIN.—A Madrid journal says,—"As a gentleman of property in Madrid was, on the 31st January last, returning from one of his estates with a large sum of money, he, though armed himself, and accompanied by two men on horseback, who were also armed, was suddenly surrounded by a numerous band of brigands, who, after driving away his attendants, bound him hand and foot, stole all his money, and then carried him off to a cavern in the midst of a forest. A day or two after they wrote to his wife to say that they would give him up if she would send a sum of 10,000 piasters (53,000f.) to a particular place; and that if she did not, they would put him to death. The lady immediately despatched the money by a faithful servant, but since then she has received no tidings either of the man or of her husband. The band of brigands, is suppose.l to be one which, some months ago, completely sacked a village called Torre de Escobon-Ambron, in the province of Toledo, and barbarously murdered a number of its inhabitants."

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT.—On Tuesday last, Richard Sheridan and Wm. Gardner, both well known in this city, were drowned while out duck shooting near Land's old Wharf. It appears that they had fired at a flock, and were pursuing them, when by some mishap they both fell out of the canoe, and before assistance could arrive, both sunk The body of Sheridan was found next morning, but as yet Gardiner's has not been recovered. The parties being so well known a large number of persons went in search of the bodies, and every exertion was made all day yesterday, and it is hoped that the remaining one will be got to-day. An Inquest was held on the body of Sheridan, before Hy. B. Bull, Esq., Coroner, and a verdict of accidental drowning returned.—Ham, Gaz

A STEAMSHIP ATTACKED BY A SWORD FISH.—During the last passage of the steamer Cortes from this port, a large sword fish was observed alongside the vessel. For a moment the gladiator of the deeped seemed to contemplate the huge proportions of the vess l, evidently speculating upon the chances of battle, then suddenly it darted toward the side of the vessel and plunged its beak into the planking just above the copper. It struggled fiercely to be free, but to no purpose, until the motion of the vessel as she rolled over to the other side with the sea swell, caused a severance of the blade, and his fishship, wounded and disarmed in the first charge, retired from his field. The piece of the beak which was left in the side of the vessel measured eighteen inches in length. It was removed with difficulty.—San Francisco Herald, March 10.

Mr. Thomas Morrison of Lachute, Argenteuil, in a letter to the Montreal Gazette, relates that he has a cow, now seven years old in spring, which has 17 calves, and avers that, however wonderful, it is true. Twice she had four calves, twice she had three, once two, and once only one.

The New York Crystal Palace is advertised for sale, by auction, on the 22nd of May next. A fine chance for a glass house or somebody.

A REMARKABLE FAMILY.—There is now residing in this town an old lady—Mrs. Poll Beeman—a history of whose family presents the most striking instance of prolonged life that we ever knew or heard of. She is now in the ninety-second year of her age. The decease of her partner, Tracy Beeman, occurred but a short time since.—He was two years her senior, and they had lived together in the same farm house, sixty-nine years. They had a family of nine children, the eldest of whom is now seventy-three, and was married when he was fourteen. Of the grand-children, there are now forty nine, the oldest of whom is aged fifty six years. There are also one hundred and fifty-six great grand children, and eighteen great great grand children. A few are dead, but the family seems blessed with an iron constitution, and most of them are yet living and well. We doubt if there is another case in this country where a venerable mother can call two hundred and thirty of her lineal pedigree around her Thanksgiving dinner table.—Valley Messenger, Birmingion, Ct.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.—At a very early hour on Saturday morning a respectable farmer named Bacon left his home in London Township with the intention of taking a few purchases to the city and return the same day. He has not been heard of since. From the circumstances that he was of remarkably temperate habits and that he always carried large sums of money on his person the belief obtains that he has been foully dealt with. So prevalent is this suspicion that as many as forty persons left their work on Monday last and searched the woods through which he would have to pass on his way to town; but no traces of him were found. His daughters and some of of his neighbors had an interview with the Mayor yesterday in hope of obtaining the assistance of the police in the prosecution of the search. It is thought that Mr. Bacon had $500 in his possession when he left home.—Prototype.

A SHARP DODGE.—Fyler, who murdered his wife some time since near Syracuse, N. Y., is playing a sharp game upon the counsel who defended him. It appears that the agreement between them was, in case Fyler was saved from hanging, his counsel was to have $5000. Of this amount $1000 was paid in cash, and the remainder secured by a mortgage on his farm. The counsel put in a plea of insanity. The mortgage is about due, and the holders, on proposing to foreclose it, were met with the defence, that if the maker of it was insane when the murder was committed, could he have been sane at the time of giving the mortgage? It looks as though the lawyers were caught this time.

MALONEY REPRIEVED.—We have received, from reliable quarters, intelligence that His Excellency has been pleased to commute the above criminal's sentence, which was death, to imprisonment in the Provincial Penitentiary for the term of ten years. Maloney may sincerely thank Mr. Scoble for the humane exertions which that gentleman has manifested towards securing a commutation of the verdict passed upon him at the late Assizes.—Chatham Planet.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.—The direct public debt of Canada to the 31st of January, 1856 was £7,213,9419; the indirect liabilities amounted to £6,489,609. Total liabilities £14,343,458. Of this amount a sum, equal to £5,083,574 has been invested in Railways.

The Welland Canal was opened on Monday last for the passage of vessels through its entire length. Gravelly Bay is open; but the ice is still firm at the Lower end of Lake Erie and about Buffalo. Lake Ontario is perfectly free from ice in this quarter. None has come down yet from the Upper Lake.—Mail.

Miscellany.

IN A FIX.—A porter in a Buffalo dry goods shop, on Saturday placed himself in a position of great embarrassment by not remembering the old adage, "use your eyes but not your fingers." A police officer dropping in at the shop where he was acquainted, asked and received permission to leave a pair of hand cuffs until he should call for them. The porter curious to experience the sensation of "eyes," and their effect upon human action, locked the bracelets upon his own wrists and for some moments, pondered over the moral lesson suggested. The mental process concluded, he desired relief from his thraldom, but he had miscalculated the intention of hand cuffs, which, like bad habits are easier put on than off. In fine, the lamentable truth was made apparent to his mind, that he was in a bad fix. In a perspiration he started for the Police office, which was closed, like an express train he sped from station house to station house but no key would fit the lock. He became half mad with rage and disappointment; his back itched and he could not scratch it; his hat was wrong and he couldn't set it aright; his suspender unbuttoned and he was forced to call in the aid of friends to truss him up. Night drew on apace and yet the horrid incubus clung to the poor porter, the heaviest load his had ever been forced to carry. What would his wife say? How could he explain this awkward state of facts to the partner of his bosom and the little ones at home, who had never seen their parent handcuffed before? He must find the owner of the article some what would, yet he did not know his name or where he lived, and there are so many persons in the city! The fretted porter founed and fermented, yet could not burst his bonds. Then he became calmer and sighed, and then he started on a wild chase after the much desiderated policeman. Late in the night he discovered his residence, but the officer on his key were out of town.—There, in despair, the poor man found his way to his own home, where the wife of his bosom put him to bed and comforted him with remarks upon the impropriety of meddling, Sunday was spent in vain efforts at getting the ornaments off and it was not until Monday morning that the return of the policeman enabled the porter to divest himself of his badge of ignominy.

An Inch of Rain on the Atlantic.

We have been struck with the passage of Lieut. Maury's Physical Geography of the Sea," in which he computes the effect of a single inch of rain falling upon the Atlantic Ocean. The Atlantic includes an area of 25 millions of square miles. Suppose an inch of rain to fall upon one-fifth of that vast expanse. It would appear, says our author, "three hundred and sixty thousand millions of tuns; and the salt which, as water, is held in solution in the sea, and which, when the water was taken up as vapor, was left behind to disturb equilibrium, weighed sixteen millions more tuns, or nearly twice as much as all the ships in the world could carry at a cargo each. It might fall in a day; but occupy what time it might in falling, this rain is calculated to exert so much force—which is so inconceivably great—in disturbing the equilibrium of the ocean.—If all the water discharged by this Mississippi River during the year were taken up in one mighty measure and cast into the ocean at one effort, it would not make a greater disturbance in the equilibrium of the sea than would the fall of the rain supposed. And yet so gentle are the operations of nature, that movements so vast are unperceived."—Scientific American.

Woman's true Beauty.

It is a low and degrading idea of that sex which was created to refine the joys and soften the cares of humanity by the most agreeable participation, to consider them merely as objects of sight. This is abridging them of their natural extent of power, to put them upon a level with our pictures. How much nobler is the contemplation of beauty, heightened by virtue, and commanding our esteem and love, while it draws our observation. Colors artfully spread upon canvass may entertain the eye, but not the heart; and she who takes no care to add to the natural graces of her person any exercise of virtues, but by the lustre of her mind which shone in them and gave them the power of charming.

Grace was all her steps, heaven in her eye. In all her gestures dignity and love.

TURKISH JUSTICE.—A Turkish slater being at work on the roof of a house, fell into the street, upon a wealthy old man, whom he killed, without any serious injury to himself. The sons of the deceased caused him to be arrested and conducted before the cadi, with whom he used all his influence to have the poor man condemned; and though the innocence of the latter was clearly established, nothing would serve him but the law of retaliation. The cadi accordingly sentenced the slater to be placed exactly on the spot where the old man was at the moment of the accident—"and you" said he to the son, "will go on the roof of the house, fall down on the slater, and kill him if you can."

In the circuit Court, Rochester, a short time ago, a verdict of $2,250 was rendered against a young man named Alpheus Hayden, for slandering the private character of a young lady whom he had been "sparking," named Julah Silence. A quite ordinary sir of opinion that it would have been better for Mr. Hayden had he kept Silence.

BUTTER FROM A TREE.—On the banks of the river Niger, in Africa, they have a tree called the Shea, from which excellent butter is obtained. The tree is like our oak, and the fruit some resembles the Spanish olive. The kernel of the fruit is dried in the sun and then boiled, and the butter thus obtained is whiter, firmer, and of a richer flavor than that which is obtained from the cow, besides keeping sweet a year without salt. The boiling and preparation of this article is one of the leading objects of African industry, and constitutes the main article of their inland commerce.—Detroit Advertiser

VERMONT WIT.—We have seen a good deal of humor oozing out, from time to time, up among the Great Mountains.

The last drop that has reached us, came from a small village nor far from Bennington. Old Stokes, after years of toil, got possession of a granite ledge.

He was in the habit of buying his powder, with which he quarried his ledge, of one Jonas Archibald, who sold tape, groceries, and other varieties, in what was dignified by the rural maids and matrons as 'the village store.'

Archibald was a good deal of a boaster about his wares, and one evening, while a crowd was sitting round the stove in the tavern bar-room, discussing matters in general, he addressed Stokes with, 'Well, old Stokes, how did you like that powder of mine, that's pretty good powder, aint it?—I paid a tarnal high price for it in Boston!' 'Well,' responded Stokes, 'it's pretty good —but I came near losing that last keg.' 'Ah! indeed! how's that?' said the other, putting on a look of concern. 'Why,' returned old Stokes, 'the confounded keg catch'd afire, and I had to run thirty rods down to the brook, for water—so it most all burnt up.

The trader thereupon took out his watch, said that it was getting rather late, and he'll wed, somehow or other, he'd be going.

A FAST WAITER.—One day when Alek Williams, an incorrigible wag from Detroit, was dining at the Astor House, he sent a waiter for a piece of roast beef. The boy was absent so long that Williams supplied himself with a knife and fork. In the course of time the boy came with the beef. Willia ms turned, looked at him a moment, and then asked with well affected surprise:

'Are you the boy that I sent for the beef?'

'Yes, sir,' replied the boy, promptly.

'Is it possible,' said Williams, 'why how you've grown; I shouldn't have known you.'

On another occasion he was asked by some of his friends in the city, why he did not call to see them. Call to see you! replied Williams; why how could I? I got here in the morning, went to the Astor House and went up stairs and up stairs, and when I got to my room the gong sounded for breakfast. Well, I went down; and when I had got my breakfast I started up stairs again, and went up stairs and up stairs and up stairs, and just as I got up the gong sounded for dinner, so I went down and took some dinner, and then I went up stairs and up stairs and up stairs, and when I got to my room, the gong sounded again for tea. I hurried down to get my tea, and then I went up stairs, again, and up stairs, and up stairs, and up stairs, and when I got there lang me if it was not twelve o'clock. Now I would like to know what time I had to go a visiting.'

BRIGANDAGE IN SPAIN.—A Madrid journal says,—"As a gentleman of property in Madrid was, on the 31st January last, returning from one of his estates with a large sum of money, he, though armed himself, and accompanied by two men on horseback, who were also armed, was suddenly surrounded by a numerous band of brigands, who, after driving away his attendants, bound him hand and foot, stole all his money, and then carried him off to a cavern in the midst of a forest. A day or two after they wrote to his wife to say that they would give him up if she would send a sum of 10,000 piasters (53,000f.) to a particular place; and that if she did not, they would put him to death. The lady immediately despatched the money by a faithful servant, but since then she has received no tidings either of the man or of her husband. The band of brigands, is suppose.l to be one which, some months ago, completely sacked a village called Torre de Escobon-Ambron, in the province of Toledo, and barbarously murdered a number of its inhabitants."

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT.—On Tuesday last, Richard Sheridan and Wm. Gardner, both well known in this city, were drowned while out duck shooting near Land's old Wharf. It appears that they had fired at a flock, and were pursuing them, when by some mishap they both fell out of the canoe, and before assistance could arrive, both sunk The body of Sheridan was found next morning, but as yet Gardiner's has not been recovered. The parties being so well known a large number of persons went in search of the bodies, and every exertion was made all day yesterday, and it is hoped that the remaining one will be got to-day. An Inquest was held on the body of Sheridan, before Hy. B. Bull, Esq., Coroner, and a verdict of accidental drowning returned.—Ham, Gaz

A STEAMSHIP ATTACKED BY A SWORD FISH.—During the last passage of the steamer Cortes from this port, a large sword fish was observed alongside the vessel. For a moment the gladiator of the deeped seemed to contemplate the huge proportions of the vess l, evidently speculating upon the chances of battle, then suddenly it darted toward the side of the vessel and plunged its beak into the planking just above the copper. It struggled fiercely to be free, but to no purpose, until the motion of the vessel as she rolled over to the other side with the sea swell, caused a severance of the blade, and his fishship, wounded and disarmed in the first charge, retired from his field. The piece of the beak which was left in the side of the vessel measured eighteen inches in length. It was removed with difficulty.—San Francisco Herald, March 10.

Mr. Thomas Morrison of Lachute, Argenteuil, in a letter to the Montreal Gazette, relates that he has a cow, now seven years old in spring, which has 17 calves, and avers that, however wonderful, it is true. Twice she had four calves, twice she had three, once two, and once only one.

The New York Crystal Palace is advertised for sale, by auction, on the 22nd of May next. A fine chance for a glass house or somebody.

A REMARKABLE FAMILY.—There is now residing in this town an old lady—Mrs. Poll Beeman—a history of whose family presents the most striking instance of prolonged life that we ever knew or heard of. She is now in the ninety-second year of her age. The decease of her partner, Tracy Beeman, occurred but a short time since.—He was two years her senior, and they had lived together in the same farm house, sixty-nine years. They had a family of nine children, the eldest of whom is now seventy-three, and was married when he was fourteen. Of the grand-children, there are now forty nine, the oldest of whom is aged fifty six years. There are also one hundred and fifty-six great grand children, and eighteen great great grand children. A few are dead, but the family seems blessed with an iron constitution, and most of them are yet living and well. We doubt if there is another case in this country where a venerable mother can call two hundred and thirty of her lineal pedigree around her Thanksgiving dinner table.—Valley Messenger, Birmingion, Ct.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.—At a very early hour on Saturday morning a respectable farmer named Bacon left his home in London Township with the intention of taking a few purchases to the city and return the same day. He has not been heard of since. From the circumstances that he was of remarkably temperate habits and that he always carried large sums of money on his person the belief obtains that he has been foully dealt with. So prevalent is this suspicion that as many as forty persons left their work on Monday last and searched the woods through which he would have to pass on his way to town; but no traces of him were found. His daughters and some of of his neighbors had an interview with the Mayor yesterday in hope of obtaining the assistance of the police in the prosecution of the search. It is thought that Mr. Bacon had $500 in his possession when he left home.—Prototype.

A SHARP DODGE.—Fyler, who murdered his wife some time since near Syracuse, N. Y., is playing a sharp game upon the counsel who defended him. It appears that the agreement between them was, in case Fyler was saved from hanging, his counsel was to have $5000. Of this amount $1000 was paid in cash, and the remainder secured by a mortgage on his farm. The counsel put in a plea of insanity. The mortgage is about due, and the holders, on proposing to foreclose it, were met with the defence, that if the maker of it was insane when the murder was committed, could he have been sane at the time of giving the mortgage? It looks as though the lawyers were caught this time.

MALONEY REPRIEVED.—We have received, from reliable quarters, intelligence that His Excellency has been pleased to commute the above criminal's sentence, which was death, to imprisonment in the Provincial Penitentiary for the term of ten years. Maloney may sincerely thank Mr. Scoble for the humane exertions which that gentleman has manifested towards securing a commutation of the verdict passed upon him at the late Assizes.—Chatham Planet.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.—The direct public debt of Canada to the 31st of January, 1856 was £7,213,9419; the indirect liabilities amounted to £6,489,609. Total liabilities £14,343,458. Of this amount a sum, equal to £5,083,574 has been invested in Railways.

The Welland Canal was opened on Monday last for the passage of vessels through its entire length. Gravelly Bay is open; but the ice is still firm at the Lower end of Lake Erie and about Buffalo. Lake Ontario is perfectly free from ice in this quarter. None has come down yet from the Upper Lake.—Mail.

Newfoundland Seal Fishery.

SHIPWRECK AND AWFUL SUFFERING AT SEA —TEN LIVES LOST—NARRATIVE OF CAPTAIN RUDOLF.

From the Montreal Herald, of Friday.

We have by private hand news from St. John's to the 19th instant. The seal fishery had so far been pretty good. About forty (one-fourth of the whole fleet) had arrived, with about 100,000 seals. It was feared, however, that the remainder would meet with but indifferent fortune. A dreadful shipwreck had occurred to a vessel commanded by Captain Rudolf, well known among us, an account of which we give below, from a letter written by the master after his arrival.

The British Barque Blake, of 800 tons, Edward Rudolf, Master, belonging to Messrs, Firnie, Brother & Co., of Liverpool, England, sailed from Ship Island Harbor, State of Mississippi United States, with a cargo of Pitch Pine deals, bound to Cork for orders, in fine trim, and beautiful order, on the 8th of Feb. last, with a fine fair wind and weather, with every hope of making a good and prosperous passage. The weather continued fine and making fine progress on our way, sighted Bermuda on the 18th day after leaving—all well—ship tight and in splendid order—until the 4th day of March, when the weather began to change, commencing to blow from the South East with rainy squally weather. 5th—hauled to the South West, blowing a strong gale and a heavy sea running, finding the ship making a little water, pumps being attended to every watch. 6th and 7th—the gale increasing and sea running very high and crossed, wind blowing from South West to West North West, causing the ship to labour heavily, and kept one pump constantly going, running under double reefed maintopsail, and close reefed fore topsail, and forsail.—8th and 9th, gale still continuing, and veering more to northward, with very heavy squalls, causing a great crossed sea, making the ship labour, and straining fearfully—at this time both pumps going constantly, running under reefed maintopsail, and tried to fore-reach her under the two closed topsails; but finding her straining and laboring more, owing to crossed sea, caused by the sudden changes of the gale from West to North alternately, was obliged to run her, finding the ship making water fast, and gaining upon us, having three feet water in the hold. 10th and 11th—gale continuing, squalls more violent and frequent, attended with hail and snow, and very cold, water gaining rapidly on the pumps—6 feet in the hold. 12th—blowing a terrific gale from W. N. W., with a very heavy sea running; thirteen feet water in the hold; men getting worn out, being at the pumps three days and nights constantly, without sleep or rest, water rising fast, and the ship getting heavy and difficult to steer; at 6 p. m. she broached too, shipped a sea which carried away the man at the ice wheel, binnacle, skylights, life and jolly boats and all the bulwarks; took the foresail in, and rounded her to under the close reefed maintopsail, when the sheet parted and the sail blew to pieces—she lay very broad to the sea which made a clean breach over her, carrying away spars on deck, water casks, galley, long boat, top gallant forecastle, breaking in the poop, and washing away the cabin and everything on deck; got the main trysail set, and tried to cut away the foremast, but it was impossible to get there—ship being now water-logged, and blowing a terrible gale with violent squalls, and sea making a clean breach over her, all hands clinging to the weather rigging and in the maintop, everything being washed away from the main deck. 13th—blowing a perfect hurricane, with terrific squalls of hail, sleet, and snow, from Northwest, and fearfully cold; at 11 a.m. was struck by a terrific squall and a tremendous heavy sea at the same time, which capsized the ship, washing away 7 men, poop deck, burst up the main decks, washed off all the hatches, carrying away every morsel of provisions there was on board the ship, and all spare sails. She lay in this state about 2 hours, while the hurricane blew piercing cold, nearly perishing the remainder of the crew, when she carried away all three lower masts at the heads, bowsprit short off at the stem. She righted slowly, having a list; it formed a weather-poop bulwarks aft. We were obliged to hold on and make ourselves fast to prevent being washed away by the sea, which was constantly breaking over us. In this miserable position we remained until the 18th, gale still continuing and sea breaking over us (being about lat 43:15 N. long 38:30 W.), and unable to move from this place for fear of being washed away. Thus being 5 days without a morsel of food or a drink of water, without rest, and constantly drenched with seas. 18th, gale and sea more moderate—at the risk of our lives, attempted to get forward for a drink of water, in which we succeeded, but spoilt the cask of water in the attempt—this day one of the seamen died from cold, hunger and fatigue; we put him overboard; this afternoon gale began to moderate, got some pieces of canvass to lay upon, and all huddled together in a heap to keep ourselves warm. 20th, this being the seventh day without anything, the weather still very rough and cold, I caught a half drowned rat, which I immediately cut up and shared out to each one; it was a delicious morsel! The eighth day we were able to get forward and get a small cask of water from the hold—brought it aft and lashed it to the stanchions, this being the only thing we had to depend upon.—Ninth day—no sail could yet be discerned upon the horizon: all eyes daily and nightly stretched to catch a glimpse of some friendly sail. Hunger now began to tell heavily upon us all, and its ravages were plainly discerned! Tenth day—what a joyous sound was heard this morning, as the watch at daylight cried out, "Sail, ho! and two!" Every heart leaped with joy, but only to bear a heavier disappointment; the two vessels passed us, one to windward and the other to leeward, without taking any notice of us Oh! this dissappointment was heart-breaking, and starvation staring us in the face, and the cries and moans of the men around me, calling on their God to help them. Oh! the scene was awful and horrible—it cannot be described by pen, and in my situation I had to hold up against everything, to shew them that they must not give way to it. Many times I had to to set my heart as hard as iron to bear up against the moans and cries of the men, and their appeals to me of what should they do; when I could have lain down and given way to grief and sorrow far deeper than their own, to see those men, once so strong and robust, now nothing better than smacking their lips, and dreaming of being at some friendly table, eating and enjoying themselves in some of their dozing sleeps, as they would fall off from fatigue and exhaustion, only to be awakened by a wash of a sea, to behold their most deplorable state. Then the moans from the poor fellows become heart-rending—they by this time began to get flighty, from weakness, and sores breaking out all over us, from being constantly wet with salt water. In this way we continued until the thirteenth day, when we saw another vessel pass us, and take no notice of us. The wailings and moanings were too awful to be described upon this day—thirteen days without a morsel of food of any kind to put to our lips. Another seamen died this day from starvation, but we did not put him overboard; we reserved him for our own use, and in this state we lingered for four days more, living upon the body of our dead companion; but I must say very sparingly indeed, for the thought of it was almost as bad as death. Through these four awful days I do not see how we ever lived, not having a dry place to lay, and the sea constantly washing over us, and as some of us would drop off in our dozing dreams, dreaming of feasting at some friendly table; in a few minutes would be awakened by the wash of the sea, then seeing our situation and also the dead body swinging in the pale moonlight, the moans and cries were apalling, until Saturday morning the 29th March, when we bore the heaviest and greatest dissappointment by a large ship passing us about two miles to windward, and not seeing us, being too early in the morning. This being the seventeenth day since we capsized, and nothing to eat but the body of our shipmate, none of us able to move hardly from weakness and fatigue, and all our hopes gone. I laid myself down when this ship passed and shut my eyes, and gave up all hopes of ever seeing land again. I was about resigning myself to my fate, when about two hours after I heard the cries of great joy from all, "sail oh, sail oh"—repeated several times, and in such a strain as never will be erased from my memory. She proved to be the schooner "Pigeon," Capt. Knight, of St. John's, Newfoundland, from Lisbon, bound to St. John's, it blowing strong from W.S.W., with a good sea on at the time, had some difficulty in removing us from the wreck in our miserable state. On the 9th day after being picked off—being short of water and some other necessaries, fell in with the packet ship "Mercury," Capt. John L. French, from New York, bound to Havre, who kindly supplied us with water, and also with clothing, and many other little comforts for the sick. On the 15th day of April, the "Pigeon" arrived at St. John's, where we were safely landed by Capt. Knight. When taken off the wreck our clothes were completely rotten, from being wet so long, and could be picked off by pieces, and after returning thanks to Almighty God for our safe deliverance from so awful a death, we next returned our heartfelt thanks to Capt. Knight and his crew, for the great risk they ran in taking us from the wreck, and for their great kindness and attention to us in our most miserable state on the passage from the wreck to St. John's. Long may they live to enjoy all the comforts and happiness of this life; and may not the slightest shadow of the least of our sufferings ever be cast on any of their voyage through life.

The following is a list of the survivors:—

Wynne Duggan, mate, Swansea.
James Cosgrove, 2nd mate, Liverpool.
John George Rudolf, 3rd mate, Halifax.
John George Paterson, seaman, Trieste.
Joseph Barber, seaman, Genoa.
John Kiezar, seaman, Germany.
William Thomas, cook, Halifax.

LIST OF THOSE WHO PERISHED.

Washed away:—
John Phillips, carpenter Dundee.
Thomas Leach, seaman, Dublin.
Henry Eagleston, seaman, New York.
Joseph Thomson, seaman, " John Crimmons, seaman, " William Brown, seaman "
Charles Beck, seaman, Baltimore.
Jonathan Roberts, Steward, Liverpool.

DIED FROM FATIGUE, COLD AND STARVATION.

Richard Foss, seaman, Bridgport, Wales;
Jos Ariva, seaman, Callao.

EDWARD RUDOLF, Master.

St. John's N. F., April 15, 1856.

Can this Canada really be the same Canada, the same land of endless discontents and miseries that burst out into armed rebellion less than 20 years ago, and was only prevented by the sternest acts of military repression from throwing itself into the arms of the American Union, and following in 1837 the example of 1776? Can this be the Canada whose Assemblies were for ever stopping the supplies, impeaching their Governors, passing mutinous and even treasonable addresses, and abandoning themselves to be led at will by the most empty and most furious of demagogues? Can this be the Canada, poor and desert—without capital and without credit—whose scanty population required an army to keep them down whose fortresses could not be entrusted except to British troops—whose counsels must not be swayed except by British statesmen? The land is the same and the people are the same; the difference is in us—in our rule of action—in our laws and system of government. Step by step has the Liberal party won for Canada, in spite of the most determined opposition, the liabilities and privileges which have made her happy, great, and prosperous. The act for uniting the two provinces and constituting a single Legislature for both was shorn of many of its most valuable provisions by the Tory party of that day, and parliament has ever since been employed in conceding, piece meal, rights which ought never for a moment to have been withheld. The power of dealing with the Civil List was conceded in 1847, but it was only after a long and eager struggle that Parliament could be prevailed upon to grant the much desired right of dealing with questions of religious endowments according to colonial rather than Imperial ideas, involved in the passing of the bill to secularize the Clergy Reserves.—London Times.

Death of Capt. W. J. Hickes.

It is our most melancholy duty to record the sudden death of Captain W. J. Hickes, Superintendent of the Toronto Branch of the Great Western Railway. On Thurdsy morning as he was standing near one of the switches at the station in this city, he was struck by the locomotive Panther, knocked down, and immediately life was extinct.—The injuries received were very severe, the skull was broken, one arm and one leg dreadfully lacerated, besides other injuries.

An Inquest was held in the afternoon by H. B. Bull, Esq., Coroner, and after hearing the evidence of the driver of the Engine and other parties, no doubt could be intertained that the fatal occurrence was accidental, and a verdict was returned to the effect that the deceased came to his death through being run over by the Panther, and that he was at that time in the discharge of his duty.

The deceased was a man whom we have had the pleasure of being acquainted with for many years, and a more noble hearted gentleman, as well as sincere Christian and friend, we have seldom met with. In the family circle, his loss is irreparable; he leaves three children, and the partner of his bosom, to weep and mourn the untimely end which an Almighty ruler in his wisdom, has seen fit to inflict.—Gazette.

ROYAL VISIT.—It is rumored in England that Her Majesty the Queen, has serious intentions of paying a visit to British North America. The English journals favor the idea very much, and in truth the facilities for passing to the Western Continent are now so great, and Her Majesty has proved herself so good a traveller, that a Royal visit to Canada may be set down as a very probable event. Socially and politically such a visit would be of great importance to the Provinces, and no where within her wide dominions would Queen Victoria meet with a more joyous and loyal reception than in Canada.—Niagara Mail

SANDWICH ISLANDS.—The Honolulu "Friend" states that the progress of the flood of lava towards Hilo, continues unabated. The inhabitants look on with bewilderment, and are taking no means to divert the fiery element from its course. The "Friend" says:—

"Every day darkens the prospect of Hilo. The stream comes in great force some two miles a week. Three or four miles will bring it through the woods. It follows water channels, dries up aqueous matter, and forms fiery cascades of terrible sublimity.—It heads straight down upon us, and nothing but the hand of Omnipotence can save our town and bay. Our expulsion seems every day more a solemn reality. Molten fires are gleaming, trees are falling, the jungle is consuming in steam clouds.

BALLS AT PARIS—QUEER PHANTASIES.—At a ball lately given by Madame la Comtesse Tascher de la Pagerie, a number of hired professional dancers executed Styrian dances, the Tarantula, and Sicilienne. Afterwards came in eight bottles of champagne, each the size of a man, and performed a minuet with great cleverness. Suddenly the bottles opened, and gave egress to eight sailors, who danced a lively nautical jig.

The ball was remakable for its splendor and originality, but is surpassed by one of similar character, related as having taken place in the hotel of an illustrious family in the Faubourg St. Germain, where, among the curious phantasies presented, was the following: While the guests were still admiring the superb decorations and arrangements of the rooms, four cooks, clothed in the mode of the reign of Louis XV.—powdered heads, &c., you understand—entered the largest saloon, bearing a gigantic lobster, cooked, and decorated with the huge leaves of a salad. They placed it in grand pomp upon a large table and disappeared. Shortly after, by the same entrance, came a fisherman, bearing a lobster of the same size, but alive and uncooked, which he retained with difficulty from its struggles in his arms. Just as he reached the centre of the apartment, the lobster escaped from his grasp and running backwards towards the table, commenced the most touching pantomine at the sight of his companion, boiled red, and to all appearances quite defunct. He embraced and caressed him, and made every possible demonstration of afflicting woe.—All at once, as if by miracle, the cooked lobster slowly raised himself and sat upright and at length appeared completely restored to life. His comrade pantomimed the utmost joy, and, aiding him to descend to the floor, both danced a lively measure, and retreated amorously out of the room!—Paris Cor. Boston Post.

The War Strength of Europe and America.

Now that the struggle has closed, we may look at the position of the combatants as each sheaths the sword, and at the position of others, who, during the late juncture, never drew it. And in the sixteenth annual report of the Registrar General, there is a curious paper, prepared during the last year, exhibiting the comparative strength, for military ends, of the Seven Great powers of the world. It would seem that, nine-tenths of the men in active service in all the European Armies, are between the ages of twenty and forty inclusive, and that the total population of the countries indicated, amounts to two hundred and thiry nine millions which is nearly a fourth of the population of the globe. These data given, it appears that, if each of the seven States was to send into the field "only one man in ten between these ages, the seven armies would give a total of nearly three millions and a half," and in the following proportions;—England, 411,148; France, 554,146; Turkey, 478,449; Austria, 524,261; Prussia, 253,589; Russia, 912,741 United States, 316,003 Of course we find nothing here of the forces which Sardinia, Spain, Portugal, Denmark, Sweden, Holland and Belgium could raise. We know, however, that they could swell considerably, the figures sat down Probably it would not be too much to expect, that they could on an emergency, bring into the field, troops sufficient to bring the above total, up to 4,000,000; a terrific army this, of fighting men.

During the late war, a great deal of nonsense was spoken about the difficulty which Britain had, or was supposed to have had, in finding soldiers. Doubtless, she cannot raise armies as quickly as France, Prussia, Turkey, or Austria raises them; and we would be sorry if she could. But she does not produce soldiers with which these countries produce them, first, because all her people are free, and all her enlistment is voluntary and second, because her people, brave though they are, nevertheless more inteligent, industrious commercial, than the inhabitants of the other leading European nations. The people of Britain are given to business rather than bloodshed, and her young men find trade more profitable and pleasant than fighting. Hence, they are not ready to leave the workshop and the farm, for pursuits so opposite to all their habits. There is, however, no lack of men. What is wanted is, an occasion demanding their services. The people must be roused, before they will freely offer themselves for the battles of their country. The war spirit must be fairly kindled. Then, whenever it is, Britain knows no scarcity of warriors. During the commotions which ravaged Europe at the begining of this century, she had men enough, both at home and in the field. Every able-bodied man was under arms in some fashion or other. The whole of the United Kigdom was one vast camp. And what was done then, could if the melancholy necessity existed, be done again.

The efforts of Britain during the Napoleon wars, were prodigious; and had she put forth the like during the Eastern war, in proportion to her present population, she would have sent forth to meet the foe or to guard her possessions, a force of not less than 790,867 soldiers, "or nearly 340,000 more than were voted by the House of Commons, for the service of the current year."—During former wars she employed mercenaries; she has taken many such into her pay now; the step, however, was only a relief to her own people. Had the late struggle continued then, as the rapidly increasing number of recruits proved, she would always, as the demand became greater, have found ever swelling batalions of her own gallant sons proud to wield her sword. There is no lack of military spirit; and the fact that she could raise an army of 411,148 men, if only one in ten, between the ages of twenty and forty were to go out, proves that she has as little lack of combatants. Give Britain time, and a great occasion; she can then bring into the field armies, fitted to cope with whatever any other power in the old or new world can bring against her. Of course we have spoken of troops which she is able to embody.—We have, however, in estimating her military power, to reckon her fleets; and when we remind our readers of the fact that, there at at this moment, ready for action, 42 huge line of battle ships, 56 heavy frigates, 123 corvettes, 220 gunboats, 100 mortar vessels 10 troop frigates, and 340 transports, giving a total of 881 ships, almost all of which are fitted with screws of paddles, we have an exhibition of the power of our empire which startles even ourselves, explains the anxiety of the Czar for peace, and gives an excellent guarantee that for some time to come, we are not likely to be very seriously molested by any one else,

We have hitherto spoken of the man-power of the Mother Country; let us look at her money power. When we do so, we find that there is no land so able to endure the charges of a war. "English 3 per cent Consols are now worth 93½; that is, the promise of England to pay £1 a year in perpetuity, sells for £31 2s. French 3 per cent., were lately worth 69f. 75c.; that is, the promise of France to pay £1 a year in perpetuity, sells for £23 2s. *R*ussia 4½ per cents. were lately worth 91; that is the same promise made by Russia, sells for £20. Austrian 5 per cents. were lately worth 68½; that is, the promise made by Turkey, sells £13 4s. The money power of Britain gives her an endurance which really renders war with her, all but hopeless. We commend these facts to croakers; if anything can quiet such, these will. Of course the British people are aware of them already; and we can well comprehend why they were so willing to go on with the war, and are so cool in their estimate of the value of peace, We add that, in stating the numbers which Britain could raise, we spoke of regular troops, exclusive of militia altogether. She has in pay at present, 136,323 militiamen; and it is besides to be understood that, besides these, she could at this time raise, by enlisting for regular army one in ten between the ages mentioned, the number already named 411,148.

In the above estimate, Russia is set down as capable of bringing into the field 912,741 ,and the United States, 316,003 men of the usual ages. The figures assigned to the former power are no doubt correct; the war has shwn, however, that the vastness of her territory reduces them to less, much less, than one half. The north is the populous of the Russian empire; and if an enemy attack it in the south, as at the Crimea, these hordes are about useless. Give Britain two years' longer fighting, and she will bring against Russia in the Crimea, as many men as Russia can bring against her.—Globe.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

SANDWICH, MAY 9, 1856.

MINISTERIAL TYRANNY.

The above is the title of an ably-written article upon the subject of the late Magisterial dismissal in the London "Herald," which we give in full, as it proves most decidedly that the Government in this matter acted in a manner that was at once arbitrary, uncourteous, and with the utmost ignorance.

Lawton, the pretended fugitive from slavery, has been tried in the city of Cleveland in the State of Ohio, and convicted for horse stealing, and has been imprisoned in the Penitentiary for seven years, so that proves the falsity of one of the main points in the petition of the negro Garrett upon which the magistrates had been discharged

We have a little tale to tell for the benefit of those who believe that of old courteous, kind, and constitutional statesmen, Lower Canadian members of this government are most courteous, kind and judicious. We know there is a strong opinion of this sort abroad; and that much is said about the conservative character of certain men of the French School. Among these worthies the civil Secretary, a lawyer surnamed Cartier, is put very prominently forward, and the manner in which he makes use of the time during which he is "dressed in a little brief authority," is pretty well shown by the story we are about to lay before our readers. We speak from official documents and from knowledge of the parties concerned, and there is no chance of our being mistaken.

On the 29th of January last, one Henry Garrett, sent a petition to the Executive requesting the dismissal from the Commission of the peace of two Magistrates of the County of Essex; Thomas Woodbridge, and John A. Wilkinson. Esqs. The complaint set forth in the petition was to this effect.

That one Luster, or Lawton, a colored man having been arrested under a warrant issued by these Magistrates "on the information and complaint of one George Osborne," for an offence (horse stealing) alleged to have been committed in the United States, the Bailiff having him in charge left him in the hands of the Americans who had kidnapped the prisoner to the other side, and the Magistrates, so said the petition, had not been sufficiently active in bringing the Bailiff to justice for his apparent neglect, or counivance in the matter.

It must be remembered that the petition did not complain of any illegality or impropriety in the arrest—it simply pointed to what was supposed to be the neglect of the Bailiff in not holding the prisoner fast enough, and the neglect to punish the Bailiff.

The petition being brought to the attention of the Magistrates, they answered the point raised by it, namely, their condition in reference to the Bailiff, by saying, that they could not proceed against him, except on an information as in ordinary cases, and no complaint had been made, and they had no evidence of his guilt in the matter of the escape. They also stated, that they had consulted the Chairman of quarter Sessions, (the Judge of the County Court,) who told them there was no remedy in the absence of a complaint, except by civil action.

On the 21st of April, the very civil Secretary, M. Cartier, sends to the two gentlemen in question, a letter dismissing them from the magistracy. This notable epistle is couched in severe and sarcastic language. and gives, as a reason for the dismissal, something quite different from and inconsistent with the complaint of the petition and which the parties had, up to the time of the dismissal, no opportunity of meeting in any way. The main ground taken by the Secretary is, that the man was wrongly arrested, not that he was wrongly allowed to escape. Now this is a charge which was not advanced in the petition, and the merit of which had never been touched upon in the correspondence. In fact the gentlemen are attempted to be degraded on a charge on which they have never been put on their defence—a charge which they hear of for the first time in the letter of dismissal.

No case has occured so abominably and radicallg unjust as this since the cowardly desmissal of Mr. Dixon on an unsustained complaint put forward by parties whose names were refused to him.

The Secretary gives the magistrates the very original piece of information that the man could only be arrested under the 12 vic; ch: 18; and he adds the sneering observation that had they "taken the trouble to consult" the statue they would have seen that the deposition was not sufficient to warrant thearrest. Now this view was notsuggested by the petition and the magistrates had no opportunity to meet it. Nor does Mr. Cartier say in what respect the deposition is insufficient. There is only one point where the magistrates may possibly have erred in their view of the Ashburton treaty though they exercised a sound discretion, and we have some doubts if this, the only debateable point in the case, was seen by the learned Secretary. It is this. The statue (passed to carry out the Ashburton treaty) embraces the crime of Robbery. The charge here was horse stealing. Magistrates are laymen, not lawyers; and very naturally suppose that horse stealing is robbery. Common sense certainly tells us the crimes are are identical. But we believe it is decided that the treaty does not embrace horse stealing, but its interpretation is confined to the legal meaning of the word—stealing, srom the person, or with violence.

There can be no doubt however that the framers of the treaty used the term in its ordinary acceptation, and it was very natural for magistrates to construe it accordingly for they can hardly be blamed for being no better posted in the "Reported Cases" than Mr. Cartier is in the English language or in the principles of English Law or in the art of framing official letter in a civil manner.—Admitting then that the arrest of the vagabond in question (who, we are told is now in custody under some half dozen indictments, and was no more a runaway slave as some suppose, than the Secretary is a runaway Chairman) was not strictly in accordance with some painful judicial decision based upon a narrow technical interpretation of words contrary to the intent of those who used them, and of which decision not one magistrate or member of Parliament in ten was aware—admitting this, for the sake of argument, what would have been the consequence of the arrest, had the Bailiff not been outwitted by the Yankee Complainant and Constables, and with which matter the magistrates had as much to do as had the Secretary, or the man in the moon? Why, the fellow would have been detained till the pleasure of the executive should be known. The executive would have found the technical difficulty in their way (that is if any one of them happened to smoke it, which is by no means certain) and reluctantly ordered his discharge. If in such a case the justices erred, it was on the safe side. There might be no remedy for the consequences of refusing such a warrant in a doubtful case; while to grant it left the man still the benefit of Executive leniency and forced interpretations of plain English. And for thus acting the magistrates are dismissed! We say no more of the affair of the constables, for no shadow of a case is made to connect the magistrates with that in the remotest degree.

We have now only to say a few words as to whom these gentlemen are. They are the oldest and most efficient Justices of the Peace in their County; and their dismissal has evoked unqualified indignation.—Mr. Wilkinson has served his country many years in various stations and could well be satisfied to take the rest of an old soldier for the remainder of his days; but an insulting and undeserved dismissal is not the sort of thing to let an old servant leave his work with, Mr. Woodbridge has for a long time performed the chief magisterial work of his neighbourhood, and, being a Reeve, still does duty; thus, fortunately, nullifying as far as the public service goes, the absurd dismissal; and he was chosen, almost as a matter of course, foreman of the Grand Jury at the recent Assizes.

It is in some quarters supposed that the member for Essex is responsible for this affair. We hold that the Government is alone responsible. They cannot shift ouns in any such way. The dismissal came after Mr. Rankin had gone into decided opposition; and it is much more likely that Ministers have been desirous of getting him into a scrape, than that he has thrust himself into a false position with two of his constituants and their numerious friends; one, if not both of the magistrates having been among his firmest supporters.—London Herald.

SYNOD OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The Synod convened by the Bishop of Toronto assembled in that city on Thursday last. There were present about 130 clergymen and 250 lay delegates, including a great number of the most eminent men in Canada. A great deal of warm discussion took place, mostly upon the question of how the future Bishops of the new dioceses should be elected; whether, namely, they should be elected by the clergy, and that election should be confirmed or negatived by the laity; or whether the choice might originate with the laity. Speeches of marked ability were delivered by lay delegates, especially by the Hon. J. H. Cameron and Judge Boswell, who advocated the former method, and by H. C. Baker, Esq., M. P. Farrell, and Judge Stevenson, who contended for the equal right of the laity. After a long and warm discussion, which was renewed on Friday, it was unanimously resolved to postpone the decision, and leave it to each of the proposed new dioceses to adopt that course which they should severally prefer. A petition to the Governor General, and the two Houses of Parliament was also adopted; and it was resolved that it should be presented by the whole synod in a body.

The procession, headed by the Venerable Bishop, attended by all his clergy in their robes, and followed by a throng of the most distinguished citizens of Canada, is described as having been a very imposing one; and we should imagine that even those who belong to other religious communities must have been impressed with a sense of the enormous moral weight and influence of such a body, and must have wished them God speed in their efforts to promote religion, virtue and peace in our common country. We should imagine that there are not many minds so narrow and so little as those of Mr. George Brown, whose paper describes the scene in a sneering spirit unworthy of a Christian, and Mr. W. Lyons Mackenzie, who stood at the corner of a street to see the procession pass, with a dark scowl upon his face, and then hurried by the back way into the *H*ouse of Assembly, and began talking on some routine business, in order that he might indulge his petty spite by keeping the aged servant of God standing at the Bar of the House, and inflicting upon a large and unwilling auditory a long tirade of his usual nonsense. Among other important results of this Synod, the speedy division of the diocese, and the election of a bishop for this Western portion may be considered certain. Two committees were also appointed, one for the purpose of preparing a synopsis of the business to be laid before the next synod, and another for the purpose of preparing and reporting a body of laws and canons. On this latter committee we observed the name of the Rev. E. H. Dewar, Rector of Sandwich, together with the Provost of Trinity College, Chief Justice Macaulay, the Archdeacon of York, and the Rev. Messrs. Beavin, Grasett, and Blake.

The following choice specimen of literature was handed to us the other day, having been found posted upon a certain school-door in this township, and supposed to have been written by an enlightened Trustee of No. 7 school section. The original deserves framing, and should be sent to Dr. Ryerson for his edification.

Notice

Will hav Publice schools Mathing on the 26th of April inst., at the school house No. 7 on the Township of Sandwich. at 4,oclock, A, to the Trustee wiling Raturn his Count for the yeare 1855.

Sandwich Aprils 16th 1856.

☞ In our report of cases tried at the Assizes, by some mistake or other the suit "Harris vs. Nelson" was wrongly reported, and should have been Harris vs. Wilson. Verdict for plaintiff, £150.

☞ The body of Mr. John L. Degaw, who was drowned, some time since, below Sandwich, while duck shooting, was recovered on Sunday last; the body having risen to the surface of the water.

☞ On Saturday last, a person by the name of Archibald McKay was found dead a short distance above Windsor.

William Lang is the name of a trumpeter lad who went to the Crimea at the age of thirteen. He was frightened at the whistling of the cannon balls on the banks of the Alma for the spece of half an hour, but never has been afriad of them since. The night after the battle he was found by an officer lying under a bush half dead from exhaustion; he was wrapped in a horse rug and carried to the camp where he speedily recovered. He sounded his trumpet at Balaklava, at Inkermann, and during the whole sege of Sebastopol. His comrades give him the highest praise for his intrepedity. He would ride through a storm of shot to carry provisions to men in the trenches; and when he could be spared he attended the sick with all the care of a Nightingale.—He returns to his native town of Woolwich decorated with the medal with four clasps, the youngest, but not the least gallant hero of the late war.

LOSS OF A STEAMER AND 300 LIVES

On Wednesday advices were received at Lloyd's of the total loss of the Chilian war steamer Casador, under date Valparaiso, February the 14th. It seems this magnificent vessel, built in the port of London at a cost of £100,000, was on her passage from Valparaiso to Constitution with a large amount of specie on board, when on the 30th of January, being within a few hours of her destination, during a terrible gale she went broadside on the Carranga rocks, eighteen miles S. W. of Constitution. A fearful scene now ensued amongst those on board, numbering 200 souls, including Englishmen and other Europeans. The gallant ship withstood some time the fury of the wind and waves, during which about seventyfive persons contrived to climb high up on the reef, when suddenly she broke in two and sliding of the rocks, each half in opposite directions, 415 persons instantly perished. Those who gained the rocks were, after several hours of intense sufferings, rescued and taken into Constitution. They describe the yells of the 300 human beings, as the vessel parted, as horrifying and most appalling. The total loss by this vessel, including the gold on board, is £150,000.

LAMBETH.

THE OLD MAID AND HER CATS.—Mr. William, the inspector of nuisances of the parish of St. George the Martyr, Southwark, attended to complain of the continuance of the nuisance at the residence of Miss Elizabeth Rushton, a maiden lady residing in Cross street in the parish. Mr. William said that on Monday week he summond Miss Rushton to this court, to show cause why she should not be called on to remove a most intolerable nuisance, and, the charge having been clearly established against her, the presiding magistrate (Mr. Elliott) directed that the nuisance should be removed within seven days. On that morning he (Mr. William) visited the house to ascertain whether or not the magistrate's directions had been complied with. and, found that, though the filth on the floors of the parlours and bed-room had been removed, the cats still remained, and, no doubt, while ten such animals were kept, the place would very soon be as bad as ever. The real cause of the nuisance was the cats, and, as long as they were kept it was hopeless to get rid of it.—Mr. Norton observed that he should much prefer the applicant seeing his colleague, Mr. Elliott, who had heard the case, on the subject, but as the nuisance was not removed he had better take the order. The order for the removal of the nuisance, in concurrence with the decision of Mr. Elliott, was then made out, and placed in the hands of the proper officer for carrying out.

DARING HIGHWAY ROBBERY BY A FEMALE.—Margaret Smith, a tall, powerful-looking woman, was charged with the following daring highway robbery:—Mr. John Orange, a surgeon, residing at 11, Mazepond Southwark, said that, on Sunday morning, between the hours of twelve and one, he was crossing from Charlotte-street, Blackfriars-road, towards Union-street, on his way home, when the prisoner came up to him and asked him to accompany her to her lodgings. He told her that he wanted to have nothing to do with her, and pushed her off, when she suddenly rushed upon him, put her hands in his waistcoat pocket, and stole two florins and three shillings.—He, however, seized hold of her, and said he should give her in charge for robbing him, when she exclaimed, "You dare not, on account of the exposure." While they were struggling, another female came up and endeavoured to rescue her, and at the same time witness saw the prisoner throw some silver on the ground. The other female picked up a shilling and gave it to him, and said that, if he did not release her companion immediately, she would call her man to him. Witness, however, was determined to give the prisoner into custody, consequently he held her until a constable came up, when she was secured and taken to the station house. He lost all his money, except the shilling which the prisoner's companion pick-up. The latter made her escape as the constable came in sight. The prisoner here said that the gentleman gave her a shilling, after walking down a bye street with her; and he then gave her in charge for robbing him.—Mr. Orange denied that assertion.—He did not walk with her, or leave the main street, for a moment; but he did all he could to avoid her. In fact, a more bare-faced robbery he never heard of. Mr. A'Beckett asked whether the prisoner was known?—The constable stated that she walked the streets all hours of the night and and morning; but he did not know whether she had been in custody before for felony. Mr. A'-Beckett said that there could be no doubt but a very daring robbery had been committed; and prisoner afterwards pleading guilty, he committed her to the house of correction for three months, with hard labour, under the New Criminal Justice act. —Lloyd's Weekly London Newspaper.

BENEFICENCE OF HER MAJESTY.—In addition to the numerous instances in which her Majesty has extended her benevolent aid to relieve the calamities of soldiers wounded in the east, she within the last few weeks give an order to Mr. Gray, of Cork-street, to supply an artificial limb to Isaac Church, of the grenadier guards, who lost an arm at Inkerman, and appointed him a porter at Windsor castle. The same gentleman has also, by royal order, constructed an artificial limb for Douglas Gardiner, of the Scots Greys, who lost a leg at Balaklava.—The inhabitants of Oswestry had partly subscribed to alleviate the loss of Gardiner, but the subscription not being sufficient to defray the expense, her Majesty at once made up the difference required from her own purse. Michael Magrane, who is decoated with three medals and four clasps, has by the royal bounty, also been furnished with an artificial limb on the principle of the inventor, and will obtain a situation in the custom-house.—Lloyd's Weekly London Newspaper.

THE IMPERIAL INFANT.—It is gravely stated in several of our contemporaries, on the faith of information received from reliable sources in Paris, that Louis Napoleon has given positive instructions to the nurse that she is not, on any account, to kiss the imperial baby—Lloyd's Weekly London Newspaper.

FALL OF THE MONTMORENCI BRIDGE.—The Quebec Colonist says that J. T. Taschereau, Esq., Advocate, has entered an action of damages, against the directors of the Turnpike Trust, on behalf of the orphan children of Cote, (six in number) who was killed by the falling of the Suspension Bridge at Montmorenci. The damages are laid at £4,000.

VICTORIA BRIDGE.—At a meeting held yesterday in Westminister, Mr. McKerlie in the chair, the proposed by-law in aid of the Victoria Bridge was negatived by a decided majority.

ARRIVAL OF THE NORTH AMERICAN.

QUEBEC, May 7, 1845.

The steamship North American passed Kannoraska at 10 this a.m. Will be at Quebec about 3 p.m.

The Canadian steamship North American arrived at this port at a quarter to 7 o'clock this evening.

The French Army are being placed on a peace footing.

There is still no profit in the transmission of gold either way between England and the United States.

LATEST NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

LONDON, Tuesday Evening 22d.

The Globe states that Lord Clarencon has declined the honour of a Marquesate offered to him by Her Majesty.

FRANCE.

PARIS, Monday Evening.

Trade improving. In corn little variation, but generally tending downward.

AUSTRIA.

VIENNA, April 18th.

It is stated that 1,000,000 cwt. of nails, and 190,000 cwt. of axletrees, ties, &c., can be manufactured in Austria annually.

By telegraphic despatch we learn that the King of Prussia ratified the treaty of peace on Friday last, and that the Turkish ratification left Constantinople on the 14th inst.

CRIMEA.

Letters from the Camp have been received to the 8th inst.

The preparations for the departure of the army continues actively.

Letters had been received at Tiflis, shewing George Williams had recovered, and was forwarded to Rezum, near Moscow, so that it was not necessary for Dr. McAlroy to go to Tiflis, nor did the Russians seem to have wished that he should pass their lines.

The armistice was established in Asia.

The following is from a supplementary report of the Liverpool Courier, dated Wednesday, April 23rd:—

RUSSIA.

The Militia is disbanded.

The Admiralty has ordered all the light houses to be lighted, and all the buoys to be laid down in the Gulfs of Bothinia and Finland, and in the Baltic and White Seas.

LATEST COMMERCIAL NEWS,

LIVERPOOL, Tuesday, evening.

In consequence of the advices from America by the Canada, the Cotton market opened yesterday with increased animation, and a general advance of 1s. 8d. per lb. was realized. To-day, the demand has been moderately active with a sufficient supply, and prices firm at the advance of yesterday; sales 10,000 bales, including 3,000 on speculation.

BREADSTUFFS.—The decline which we have noticed for some weeks in the corn market still continues, and the fine seasonable weather which prevails throughout the country, promising rapid vegetation, is likely to operate further to depress value.

The English markets have been liberally supplied with the leading articles of the trade during the past week, and advices from Scotland and Ireland present the same feature.

At London, on Monday, the supply was moderate, prices being the same as on the previous Monday.

Flour declined 1s per sack and bbl.

Robert Makin & Sons, in their circular of to-day, say that the trade here, on Friday, has shown little variation, and wheat and flour have been steady, while Indian corn, being more in request, has experienced a further improvement of 6d per quarter.—Upon a numerous attendance of buyers at our Corn Exchange this morning, foreign wheat was in good request, and a fair amount of sales was effected to consumers, at the full prices of this day. Farmers' wheat, with a good supply from the growers, sold freely at one penny per 70 lbs over late prices. All good qualities of barrel flour were in demand, and acquired an improvement of 6d to 1s, while sack flour maintained previous rates. Oats, oatmeal, and barley moved off slowly, without change in value.

At Manchester higher prices are again asked, and business is limited in consequence but buyers are willing to operate, to a moderate extent, at last week's rates, but not to advance. Manufacturers are still well engaged, but for new orders they find it difficult to get more than the full rates current last Tuesday. At Glasgow the last week has been marked by an active speculative movement in the pig iron market.

Consols closed on Tuesday at 93 for money and 93½ for May 8th.

The final payments of the Consol Loan and Exchequer Bill Fund, amounting together to £15,000,000, falls due on Thursday.

EMBEZZLEMENT OF £5,000.—John Moah, receiver of Inland revenue, convicted of embezzling £5,000., the property of the crown, was brought up for sentence. In a very impressive address Justice Williams sentenced him to transportation for fourteen years. The prisoner received his sentence without any appearance of emotion.—Lloyd's Weekly London Newspaper.

FORTY-NINE YEARS IN BED.—An English paper, the Doncaster Gazette, in announcing the death of Wm. Sharpe, at Werlde, says that he went to bed in 1807, and never got out of it till he died there in 1856 a still life of 49 years. When he was thirty he went one bright morning to the church to be married. His affianced came not, her father having an invincible repugnance to Mr. Wm. Sharpe as a son-in-law.—The mortified groom went home, undressed, got into bed, pulled the blankets over his head, and for forty-nine years obstinately refused to get up, and clothe himself and go to work.

SANDWICH MARKET.

	May 9th 1856
"Maple Leaf" Office, Flour Best warranted	$ 7 00 $ 7 50
" 2nd quality	5 00 5 50
Buckwheat Flour,	2 00 0 00
Rye "	2 00 2 50
Timothy Seed,	4 00
Clover, "	7 00
Corn Meal per 100	1 50 2 00
Corn per bushel, 56lbs.	0 51 0 00
Oats " do 34lbs.	0 37½ 0 00
Potatoes do	0 37 0 00
Wheat do 60lbs,	1 00 1 25
Barley do 48lbs,	0 75 0 00
Hay per Ton	10 00 12 00
Straw per load	1 50 2 00
Wood per cord (Hard)	2 00 0 00
do Mixed	1 50 0 00
Pork per 100lbs.	7 00 0 00
Beef " "	7 00 0 00

DETROIT MARKET.

Flour.—$5.25.

Wheat.—$1.

Corn.—47c for small lots.

Oats.—36 @ 37½ cts.

Cheese.—best quality 15 cts.

Eggs.—12 cts. ₱ doz.

DIVISION COURTS FOR ESSEX.

1st. Sandwich, 12th July, 1856.
2nd. Amherstburg, 12th June.
3rd Kingsville, 16th June.
4th. Colchester, 14th June,
5th. Mersea, 18th June.
6th. Simon's, Middle Road, 17th July.

Canada Western Assurance
COMPANY.
Chartered by Act of Parliament.
Capital £100, 000.
in Shares of £10 each.
HOME OFFICE,
TORONTO.
President . . I. C. Gilmor, Esq.
Vice-President : . T. Haworth, Esq.
Secretary & Treasurer : R. Stanton, Esq.
Solicitor : . A. Morrison, Esq.
DIRECTORS.
John Howcutt, Esq., GeorgeMichie, Esq.,
Rice Lewis, Esq., W. Henderson, Esq.,
M. P. Hayes, Esq., Hugh Miller, Esq.,
James Beaty, Esq.
Application for Fire Risks received at the Home Office, Toronto, on Wellington Street, opposite the Commercial Bank.
OFFICE HOURS, 10 A. M. TO 3 P. M.
Marine Risks Taken.
ISAAC C. GILMOR,
President.
ROBERT STANTON,
Secretary & Treasurer.
JOHN McCRAE, Agent at Windsor.

Equitable Fire Insurance Compy
OF LONDON.
CAPITAL, £5,000,000 STERLING.
DIRECTORS.
Archibald C. Barclay, Esq., Chairman.
Hugh Croft, Esq. Charles Bennett, Esq.
John Shaw, Esq. E. S. Symes, Esq.
John Moss, Esq. R. Gough, Esq.
Augustus Vinge, Esq Charles Seward, Esq.
Clement Tabor, Esq. F. Morris, Esq.
ACTUARY.
W. S. B. Wöllhouse, Esq. F.R.A.S., &c.
SECRETARY.
W. H. PRESTON, Esq.
LOCAL DIRECTORS AT MONTREAL—Office, 17, Great St. James Street.
Wm. Lunn, Esq. Hon. W. Morris.
John Torrance, Esq. J. G. Mackenzie, Esq
J Fotheringham, Esq E. R. Fabre, Esq.
A. LaRoche, Esq. A. T. Galt, Esq.
Benj. Holmes, Esq. T. Hart, Esq.
GENERAL AGENT B.N.A. COLONIES,
Charles F Tilstone.
JOHN MACRAE,
Agent for Windsor and vicinity.

DISSOLUTION.

THE COPARTNERSHIP heretofore existing between the undersigned, under the name and style of Hunt, St. Louis and Co., is this day dissolved by mutual consent. The business of the late firm will be settled by C. H. and D. St. Louis.

WM. HUNT.
C. H. ST LOUIS.
D. ST. LOUIS.

Sandwich, 1st March, 1856.

COPARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

THE Undersigned have this day formed a Co-Partnership under the name and style of C. H. and D. ST. LOUIS, for the purpose of doing business in the Retail Dry Goods, Grocery, Provision, Produce and General Merchandise line, as successors to Hunt; St. Louis & Co., at the Old Stand, opposite the Court House in the Town of Sandwich.

C. H. ST. LOUIS.
D. ST. LOUIS.

Sandwich, 1st March, 1856.

In connection with the above C. H. and D. St. Louis would inform the Inhabitants of Sandwich, its vicinity, and their customers generally that they have received this day, via Great Western Railway, a well-assorted stock of Merchandize in the line which they will dispose of on liberal terms for cash or Produce.

Sandwich. 8th May, 1856.

MORE GOOD NEWS
FOR THE PEOPLE OF SANDWICH
AND ITS VICINITY.
L. P. St. Amour
Begs leave to inform the Public, that he has returned from the EASTERN MARKETS,
where he has purchased an extensive Stock of Goods of the latest and newest Styles, and will sell them at such prices as cannot but suit his numerous Customers
L. P. St. Amour is now opening, and will continue to open for the next month, a great variety of Goods.
No. 1, CHEAP HOUSE.

FARM FOR SALE.

NO. 293, on Sandwich Street, Maidstone Cross, consisting of 48 acres, 35 acres cleared and under fence, a good Dwelling House and two good Barns. The property is situated at the corner of the Plank and Stage Roads.

The purchaser can be supplied with every requisite implemeht for agricultural purposes, which are now on the Farm.

Apply on the Farm to
April 18, '56. JOHN GEARY.

NOTICE.

THE Court of Revision for the Township of West Tilbury, for the year A. D. 1856, will be held in the School House on Lot No. 6, in Broken Front in said Township, on Tuesday, the 6th day of May next. Court to open at 10 o'clock. A.M.

WILLIAM NICHOLSON,
West Tilbury, Township Clerk.
29th April, 1856.

ROSE DALE MILL.

THIS Mill will stop Grinding on Monday 5th May next, for the purpose of taking out the Engine. Persons requiring Gristing done had better have it done before that time, as the Sandwich Mill will not start till two weeks afterwards.

April 25th, 1856.

STRAYED.

CAME into the possession of the under signed, about 1st February last, a BAY COLT, about one year old. Has a white spot on his near hind foot. The owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take it away.

WM. CLARKSON.
Malden Road, April 22nd, 1856.

BARTLEY AND PINNEY,
PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.
MAPS AND PLANS drawn in the first style. Estimates, Specifications, &c., of all kinds prepared at short notice. All work entrusted to us shall be executed with punctuality and despatch.
Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.
March 28, 1856. n51y

SHERIFF'S SALE.

COUNTY OF ESSEX } By virtue of a writ to wit; } of fieri facias issued out of Court of Common Pleas at Toronto, to me directed, against the lands and tenements of Alfred Baby at the suit of James Olwell and Mathew Olwell, I have seized and taken in execution the following lands viz: water lot number three on the East, water lots numbers three, four, and fourteen on the west, and land and water lots numbers thirteen and sixteen on the north side of Sandwich Street, and Park Lots Nos. one and twelve, Field lot letter E, Village lots numbers nine and ten on the south side of Sandwich Street, lots numbers twenty-one and twenty-two, north side of Pitt Street, lots numbers one and two on the south side of Pitt Street, lots numbers eight and nine on the north side of Chatham Street, lot number five on the north side of London Street, in Block E, lots three and four on the south side of London Street Block G, in the Village of Windsor in the County of Essex, forming part of the Town Plot of the said village, as laid out on the estate of the late François Baby, Esq., and lot number twenty-eight in the first Concession, Township of Maidstone, two hundred acres of land, all of which property I shall offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich on Saturday the twenty-eighth day of June next at twelve o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY.
Sheriff

Sheriffs office, Sandwich, 27th March.

TO BE LET FOR EIGHT YEARS, A TWO STORY FRAME HOUSE with a Half-Acre Garden, on Lot No 4, East Side of Peter Street.

To be let subject to all Repairs and Taxes. A large reduction will be made to any person paying three years' rent in advance.

For further particulars enquire of

J. GREEN,
Great Western Boot and Shoe Store,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

27th March, 1856.

N.B.—Possession will be given on the first of May next.

OPPOSITION

To the Combination of Trade!!

J. W. JOHNSTON has just returned from New York, with a large and splendid stock of Gold and Diamond Jewelry, Diamond Rings and Breast Pins, Gold Watches, Lockets and Chains, Gold Pens and Pencils, Cuff Pins and Earrings; the Egyptian style just come in fashion, Pearl Earrings and Rings, Gold and Silver.

Gold and Silver Watches, Gold Thimbles; a fine assortment of Silver Ware, Tea and Table Spoons, Fruit and Butter Knives, Card Cases, Port Monies, Cake Baskets, English, French and German Fancy Goods, Pearl and Shell Card Cases, Port Monies of every description.

Ladies and Gentlemen's Dressing Cases, fine assortment Writing Desks, Pearl and Rosewood, Crosha fixins of all kinds.

COMBS.

Back, fine, coarse, and pockets combs, both horn and wood combs, the latest style of Blocher Combs.

CLOCKS.
Clocks at $1,25, warranted good time pieces; prices at wholesale a good deal less.

ENGLISH CUTLERY.

Bowie Knifes, Razors, and a very large stock of Pocket Cutlery. Revolving Pistols, Double and Single Barreled Guns. Yankee notions and Jewelry.

A very large stock of Notions, country merchants and pedlors' attention is called to examine this stock, before purchasing elsewhere.

Pins, Needles, Thread, Buttons, Tape Bobbin, Carpet Bags, Umbrellas, Suspenders Tobacco Boxes, Hooks and Eyes, Whalebone, Feather Dusters, Horse Brushes, Shoe Brushes Tooth and Clothing Brushes, Fiddles, Accordeons, Flutinis, Indian Beads and Rings, and Pins, Gilt and Plated Watches at two dollars a piece; in fact all sorts, from a needle to an anchor, and from an anchor to a tin pail; nothing charged for looking; call and see, two doors from Griswold street, on Jefferson avenue, opposite the U. S. Court Room. J. W. JOHNSTON.

GUILLOT'S COLUMN,
FOR APRIL, 1856.
NEW
SPRING GOODS
JUST OPENED AT GUILLOT'S STORE
PER
GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY
WHICH HE NOW OFFERS AT THE LOWEST REMUNERATING PROFIT, FOR CASH.
PRINTS, in Variety,
PRINTED LAWNS & MUSLINS,
SILKS, SILK PARASOLS,
BLEACHED AND UNBLEACHED
COTTONS & SHEETING
HOSIERY, GLOVES,
CLOTHING,
COATINGS, TWEEDS,
TROWSERINGS,
LINENS,
DRILLS,
KOSSUTH HATS,
COTTON WARP,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
TICKINGS,
GINGHAMS,
CARPETING,
SHAWLS, &c. &c.
TOGETHER
WITH A GOOD ASSORTMENT OF
GROCERIES, CROCKERY,
SHELF HARDWARE, NAILS
ALSO,
THE XL FLOUR,
KEPT ON HAND FOR SALE
AT CURRENT PRICES.
CLOVER AND TIMOTHY
SEED.
H. C. GUILLOT,
SANDWICH, CANADA WES

RETURN OF CONVICTIONS

For the COUNTY OF ESSEX, for the Quarter ending 1st April, 1856.

NAME OF PROSECUTOR.	NAME OF DEFENDANT.	NATURE OF CHARGE.	DATE OF CONVICTION	NAME OF CONVICTING JUSTICE	Amount of Penalty, or Damages.	To whom paid over by said Justice.	If not paid, why not and General Observations.
Lindon Campbell, Eliza Thompson, Thomas Salmon, Messrs Brooks, Martin Spragg, Hopkins Bingham, Harriet Washington,	Leander Jobbins,	Assault and Battery,	30th	Thomas Woodbridge,	5s 10s	Township Treasurer	Fine when Paid. Paid to said Justice.
	Laurent Rabideau, Pau[illegible] Rabideau, & Mark Rabideau,	Assault and Battery,	30th	Thomas Woodbridge,	5s 10s	Township Treasurer
James Herrin, James Herrin, Charles Babideau, Agnus Hempstead, Alexander Berrowman,	Mark Rabideau,	Assault,	2nd	F A Lafferty & James Noble	25s	Township Treasurer	6th January,
	James Herrin,	Assault and Battery.	7th	Felix Lafferty,	5s	Township Treasurer	10 days,
	Samuel Campbell,	Do	7th	Do	10s	Township Treasurer
	Jacob Hamilton,	Trespass,	14th	F. A Lafferty & Thos. Boyles,	£1 18s	Township Treasurer	30th January,
Dr. Campbell and Monroe Evans,	George Odin, Thomas Nor[illegible]	Assault and Battery on the Sabbath day,	30th January,	Thomas Woodbridge,	£21 5s each	Township Treasurer
	Joseph Mulder,	Assault,	20th February,	Jeanne Noble,	10s	Township Treasurer
	Isaac Dupres,	Trespass,	18th	Henry McKenny,	15s	Township Treasurer
	Jacob Hamilton,	Assault and Battery,	10th	Cornelius R. Quick,	10s	Township Treasurer
C. Campbell and James Ward,	James Ward,	Assault Livingston Highway,	20th February,	Ralph Foster,	5s	Township Treasurer
	C. Duchy,	Hiring in the Fight holding Thay[illegible]	30th	Do	5s	Township Treasurer
	Oliver Wilkinson,	Assault,	20th	Do	10s	Township Treasurer
John Crosby,	Josiah Pelcher,	Do	20th	Do	10s	Township Treasurer
George Thompson,	Calvin O. Brown,	Do	29th	Do	10s	Township Treasurer
James Herrin,	Laurent Rabideau,	Assault,	31st March,	Henry McKenny,	25s	Township Treasurer
Philip McGuire,	Thomas Robinson,	Non-payment of Wages,	4th	Do	5s	Township Treasurer
Alexander Martin,	George C. Robinson,	Trespass,	4th	Do	10s	Township Treasurer
Alexander Martin,	Leander Rabideau,	Non-payment of Wages,	4th	Do	5s	Township Treasurer
Alexander Martin,	John Hutchins,	Trespass,	17th	Do	10s	Township Treasurer
Elias Crayen,	Francis Crayen,	Assault,	20th	Do	10s	Township Treasurer
James Herkin,	Laurence Rabideau,	Do	22nd	Do	10s	Township Treasurer
James Herkin,	Michael Rabideau,	Do	25th	Do	10s	Township Treasurer
			26th	Do	10s	Township Treasurer

I certify the foregoing to be a True and correct Return as taken from the several Returns of Convictions filed in this Office, for the Quarter ending April 1st, 1856.

CHARLES BABY, CLERK PEACE ESSEX

Office of the Clerk of the Peace, Sandwich, 8th April, 1856.

Beacon
FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE CO of London.
Incorporated under Act of Imperial Parliament, 7 and 8 Vic., Chap. 1.
CANADA BOARD.
KINGSTON.
TRUSTEES.
The Hon John A Macdonald.
James Morton, Esquire.
DIRECTORS:
M. W. Strange, Esq., Chairman,
Thos. A. Corbett, Esq., Deputy Chairman,
James Morton, Esq. John Mowatt, Esq
James Harty, Esq. A. J Macdonell, Esq.
Lewis Walbridge, Esq. T. Clarkson, Esq.
MONTREAL.
Wm. Molson, Esq. Thomas Evans, Esq.
Damase Masson, Esquire,
This Company Insures all descriptions of BUILDINGS, MANUFACTORIES, MILLS, &c. and GOODS or FURNITURE in the same, against loss or damage by fire, on liberal terms. All descriptions of LIFE RISKS, taken at as low rates as are consistent with security to the assured. Losses promptly settled without reference to England.
ALEX. GORDON,
Agent at Windsor for Western Frontier
March 7, 1856.

LOTS FOR SALE IN THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.

PART of Lot No. 3: on the west side of Bedford Street, with a good Store thereon. Also, Lots 7 and 8, adjoining the residence of L. J. Pinett, Esquire, with dwelling house and stables. These Lots will be sold subject to incumbrances.

For particulars apply to

J. H. WILKINSON.
Att'y for J. A. Vervais.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

TO LET OR FOR SALE.

A Brick House and Lot, on No. 4, East side of Main Street, fronting "Morse Hotel." The above property will be leased for $150 a year; or, for particulars of sale apply to

STANISLAUS LASALINE.

Sandwich, 20th March, 1856.

Sandwich and Windsor Stage.
BY JOHN LEWIS.
THE Proprietor of this popular line has added a new Stage and first-rate horses, and will hereafter run an Hourly Stage to Windsor with speed and punctuality. He hopes to merit the patronage of the public.
Sandwich, 18th March, 1856.

New Tailoring ESTABLISHMENT.
THE Subscriber begs leave to notify the Public that he will carry on business in the building lately occupied by T. Murphy, opposite the Hennell Hotel, where he intends to carry on the Tailoring Business in all its branches, and hopes by strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage.
N. B.—He will receive the Report of Fashion monthly.
Cutting done to order.
W. T. BASSANDALE.
Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. &c. &c.
AT THE REGULATOR.
THE Subscribers would invite the attention of their Friends and the Public generally to their new and complete Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c., &c., which they are now offering low for cash.
GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.
N.B.—The highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all kinds of Produce.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1846.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, } BY virtue of a writ of
TO WIT: } Fieria Facias issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex against the lands and Tenements of Alfred Baby, and to me directed, at the suit of Dennis Ouellette, I have seized and taken the following lands and tenements, viz.:

Water Lot number three on the East, and Water Lots numbers three, four and fourteen West, and Land and Water Lots numbers thirteen and sixteen, all on the North side of Sandwich Street in the Village of Windsor, and being part of the Town plot of Windsor, as laid out on the estate of the late Francis Baby, Esquire, all which property, or the interest of the said Alfred Baby in and to the same, I will offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Monday the ninth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, at 12 o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff's Office, Sandwich, Sheriff Essex.
29th February, 1856.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

THE SANDWICH MILLINERY AND DRESS MAKING Establishment will be reopened for the season.

The Proprietor having just returned from the Eastern Cities with a Large Stock of Millinery and Dress Goods of the latest style and fashion, which he offers for sale at a small advance from their original Cost.

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE
L. P. ST. AMOUR.
Sandwich, Feb 29th, 1856.

Family Stores
THE Subscriber keeps constantly on hand a large and well selected assortment of
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware and Crockery,
at his old stand on Bedford Street, which he will sell, at a small advance upon cost, for Cash.
A large supply of the very best Flour always on hand.
Produce and Cord Wood bought and sold.
JOSEPH MILLER.
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

New Harness and Saddlery Establishment.
A. C. ELLIS,
Every description of LIGHT and FANCY BUGGY HARNESS, made in the most fashionable styles.
HEAVY HARNESSES constantly on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.
SADDLES of every description made to order on the shortest notice.
CARRIAGE and BUGGY TRIMMING done in a style not to be surpassed.
A large assortment of WHIPS always kept on hand.
In his Store, adjoining Mr Gallier's, will be found every description of Goods in his line of business. Every endeavor will be made to give entire satisfaction to his Customers.
N.B.—Cord Wood, Hides, and Produce wanted, for which the highest price will be given.
Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

NOTICE.

TO ALL IT MAY CONCERN.

ALL persons owing the subscriber are hereby notified that payment must be made on or before the 15th day of April next if they wish to save the costs of collection.

TO RENT.

The House and Premises in which the subscriber lives. Terms $24 per quarter payable in advance. Possession given on the first of May next.

GEORGE HANN.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

LOT No. Four, in the 4th Concession, Gosfield.

J. H. WILKINSON.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

FOR SALE.

(ON TIME.)

AN Eighteen-Horse Power Engine and Boiler complete. Apply to

GEO. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb. 1856.

Agriculture and Science

Thick and Thin Sowing.

The proper quantity of seed to sow per acre is a matter of much importance in agriculture, and consequently much difference of opinion exists on the subject. In Great Britain the point of thick and thin sowing has perhaps been more discussed than with us; and after so much investigation, each system has its strenuous and perfectly satisfied advocates. Before the days of DAVIS, MECHI, HUXTABLE, and other new lights, the amount of seed sown in England was generally, of wheat, three bushels; barley, three and a half; and oats, four. These gentlemen, however, showed that by under draining, subsoiling, and high manuring, a large crop of wheat might be obtained from one peck of seed per acre. This was considered a wonderful result, and the number of bushels of wheat that would be saved to the country by the adoption of their sowing system was calculated, and a great parade made of the result. But while it was true that a good crop could be obtained from a peck of seed per acre, if it all grew and did well, it was found that in a certain number of acres there was invariably some that did not do well, from the seed not germinating, water-killing, &c., and that the loss sustained by such failures more than counter balanced the profit by saving seed; and the conclusion arrived at was, that it is necessary to sow much thicker than the actual requirements of the plants demand, on purpose to insure a good crop in all cases; so that, as is usually the case, the "happy medium" is generally adopted, and two bushels of wheat per acre would be about the average quantity of seed sown in Great Britain. It is generally considered that from a peck to a half bushel less seed is required when drilled in, than when sown broadcast. In Canada, especially in the lower Province, much more seed is sown per acre, of wheat, barley, and oats, than with us; and indeed we have often thought our farmers are much too sparing of seed, especially of oats and barley. When wheat is drilled in, we consider that one and a half bushels per acre are sufficient if the soil is rich and the seed well put in; but when sown broadcast, we should always prefer two bushels, and in many instances two and a half bushels would be none to much. A less quantity of seed would often produce as good a crop, but we consider it best not to run the risk of losing half, or even a part of the crop, for the sake of an extra peck or two or seed per acre.

Some difference of opinion exists among farmers, as to whether rich or poor soils require the most seed. It is argued on the one hand, that if the soil is fertile, the plant will grow much stronger and branch out considerably; and if there is too much seed sown, the plants will still branch out and by being too thick on the ground they will grow up fine, and the crop will be laid.—Others say that if the soil is poor, or destitute of a sufficient amount of fertilizing matter, it is certainly bad policy to increase the number of plants to consume it—for as much wiser plan would be to have fewer plants, and let each of these have sufficient food and be properly matured from lack of the necessary ingredients. This appears good reasoning, and is perhaps correct in the case assumed; but it is not the true point at issue. If the soil does not contain sufficient ingredients for a crop of wheat, it should not be sown at all; for it is very doubtful if, in such a case, the plants would thrive and do well, even though they were planted so far apart as to give them the required amount of ingredients in the soil.

The point to decide is, whether a soil that will produce a crop of wheat of twenty or twenty-five bushels per acre, requires more or less seed than one that will produce thirty-five or forty bushels per acre. In such a case, we decidedly think that the rich land would require the least seed, for the reason that it would grow so much stronger and bushier than on the comparatively poor soil.

How to Wash Flannel.

Some women possess quite a knack in washing flannel so as to prevent it fulling. It is not the soapsuds nor rinsing waters that thicken up flannel in washing, but the rubbing of it.—Cloth is fulled by being "pounded and jounced" in the stocks of a fulling-mill with soapsuds. The action of rubbing flannel on a washboard is precisely the same as that of a fulling-mill. Flannel therefore should always be washed in very strong soapsuds, which will remove the dirt and grease by squeezing, better than hand rubbing will in weak soapsuds. It should also be rinsed out of the soap in very warm water, and never in cold, as the fibres of the wool do not shrink up as much in warm as in cold water, after coming out of the warm soapsuds. Great care should be taken to rinse the soap completely out of the flannel. This advice will apply to the washing of blankets the same as it does of flannel.

Curing Jaundice.

M. Bernard, a French chemist, has, it is said, demonstrated by several experiments, that the white of eggs can only be assimilated or converted into food for the human body through the intervention of the liver. Guided by this fact, Dr. Giesler, of Goettingen, has suggested its employment in the treatment of jaundice. If the digestion of the albumen of eggs tend to rouse the action of the liver, it will necessarily relieve the secretion of bile and cure the jaundice.

To Make Glossy Shirt Bosoms.—Those ladies who wish to see their lords wearing nice, glossy shirt bosoms, will do well to observe the following receipt: "Take two ounces of white gum arabic, powder it in a pitcher, and pour on it a pint or more water, according to the degree of strength you desire, and then, having covered it let it set all night. In the morning filter it carefully from dregs into a clean bottle, cork it and keep for use. To a tablespoonful of gum water stirred into a pint of starch made the usual way, will give to either white or printed shirts a look of newness that nothing else can restore to them after washing."

Coloring of Stone.

Building stone may be tinted in different shades by impregnating it with metallic salt and then adding a reagent. By means of salts of lead and copper, with sulphuretted hydrogen, grays, browns and blacks may be produced. Copper and ferrocyanide of potassium give a red tint. If porous limestones are boiled in solutions of metallic sulphates, carbonic acid is evolved, and the metallic oxyd, combined with sulphate of lime is deeply fixed in stone. In this manner, sulphate of iron gives rusty tints, sulphate of copper a fine green, sulphate of manganese a brown, and mixed sulphates of iron and copper, a chocolate. The double sulphates thus formed increase the hardness of stone.—London Artizan.

How Much Seed to the Acre.—This question can not be answered definitely, as the opinions of the farmers differ materially; and then the climate and soil have much to do with the quantity. The quantity of seed sown broadcast to the acre is about as follows:

Wheat, per acre,	1½ to 2	bushels
Barley,	1 to 2½	do
Oats	2 to 4	do
Rye	1½ to 2	do
Buckwheat	¾ to 1½	do
Millet	1 to 1½	do
Indian Corn	1 to 2	do
Beans	2 to 3	do
Peas	2½ to 3½	do
Hemp	1 to 1½	do
Flax	¾ to 2	do
Thimothy,	12 to 24	quarts
Mustard	8 to 20	do
Herd's grass, (red top)	12 to 16	do
Flat Turnips	2 to 3	pounds
Red Clover,	10 to 16	do
White Clover	3 to 4	do
Kentucky blue grass	10 to 15	do
Orchard Grass	20 to 30	do

The quantity per acre, when planted in rows or drills is about this—

Broom Corn.	1 to 2	bushels
Beans,	1½ to 2	do
Peas,	1½ to 2	do
Peanuts	1 to 2	do
Onions	4 to 5	pounds
Carrots	1 to 2½	do
Parsnips	4 to 5	do
Beets	4 to 5	do

This table should be preserved by young men for reference.

An old maid, who hates the male sex most vehemently, cut a female acquaintance who complimented her on the buoyancy of her spirits.

It is well to leave something for those that come after us, as the gentleman said when he threw a barrel in the way of a constable who was chasing him.

To cure poverty—sit down and growl about it. By so doing, you'll be sure to get rich and make yourself particularly agreeable to everybody.

If you wish to know whether a clergyman is really good or not, don't consult his congregation, but his servant girl. If a man has the devil in him, there is nothing that will so promptly bring it out as a badly cooked sirloin. It is not the pulpit that tries a man's piety, but his kitchen range.

"Shall I help you to sliph?" said a young gentleman addressing a young lady who was preparing to descend from a carriage. "Thank you sir," she said sweetly, "but I don't smoke."

A damsel was asked—"When a gentleman and lady quarrel, and each considers the other at fault, which of the two ought to be the first to advance towards a reconciliation?" Her answer was—"the best-bred and wisest of the two."

A premium was lately offered by an American Agricultural society for the best mode of irrigation; and the latter word, by a mistake of the printer, having been changed to irritation, a man sent his wife to claim the prize.

Why are the ladies of the present day like the lillies of the scriptures? Because they toil not, neither do they spin, yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

If you wish to attract attention, go into church, some Sunday, after the services have begun, in a pair of new squeaking boots, and parade up the broad aisle.

A lady made a complaint to Frederick the Great, King of Prussia. 'Your Majes, ty,' said she, 'my husband treats me badly.' 'That is none of mine business, replied the king.' 'But he speaks ill of you, said the lady.' 'That,' he replied, 'is none of your business."

An Irish land-agent was passing a stone-breaker one day near Kilkenny, when a fragment of stone flew off and struck him a sharpish blow. 'Devil take you!' exclaimed he impatiently. 'By St. Patrick,' retorted the macadamizer, 'if the devil were here just now, he certainly would take me for the first of the two, and no mistake.' 'How so?' 'Why you see, he's sure of your honor at any time.'

Troubles are like hornets, the less ado you make about them the better, for your outcry will only bring the whole swarm upon you.

It is said that no man who has paid regularly for his newspaper, has ever been known to be bitten by a mad dog.

A. Posse.—An artist, who has been employed to construct an angel for the spire of a church in a neighboring town, finished the work with a pair of shoes on. Some one undertook to point out the error to him, and asked, "Who ever saw an angel with brogans on?" The artist regarded the work for a moment with an air of mortification, but recovering himself rejoined, "You may be right, but who ever saw one without?"

The poorest man becomes a landlord at last. Six feet of ground is always allotted to him who never owned an inch of ground in his life. Truly; but before he can become a tenant for life, he must yield up his life interest.

The Hopeful Son.—Mother—Did I not tell you not to trouble those pies again?

Hopeful Son.—I ain't had no trouble with 'em; I am a eatin 'em as peaceful as can be.

Some paper says that we should only elect 'tried men' to office; to which the Albany Knickerbocker replies, 'That is being done in this county. One of the candidates for the Assembly has been 'tried' four times —three times for swindling, and once for bigamy.'

Hotels, &c.

HENNELL HOUSE

Late Free Mason's Tavern,
Sandwich.

THIS House is pleasantly situated at the terminus of the New Gravel Road from Windsor to Sandwich, and possesses all the requisites which are generally met with in first class hotels.—Good Beds, superior Stabling, and unimpeachable Liquors.

From the long experience of the present proprietor in this line of business, he is enabled to meet the wishes of his patrons, in every particular, with promptness; and he will make it his study to attend his visitors, that they may leave him with perfect satisfaction, and return with pleasure on future occasions.

WM. HENNELL.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th.

SANDWICH EXCHANGE,

BEDFORD STREET, SANDWICH.

JACOB STUTTZ

IN returning thanks for past favors, begs to inform his Friends and the Public that he still keeps on hand the best of every thing to suit the taste and comfort of his customers, and trusts that by assiduity and attention to business, to merit their patronage and support.

N.B.—A Good Stable and Shed.

WESTERN HOTEL,

BY CYRUS DOBSON.

THIS Hotel, adjoining the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, has been put in first-rate repair, and the Proprietor hopes that, by strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a share of public patronage.

N.B.—There is an excellent stable attached to the premises, and an attentive ostler will always be in attendance.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

THE COTTAGE INN,

BY ALEXANDER REAUME,

THE Proprietor having lately leased the above comfortable premises, and having thoroughly repaired and refurnished the same, will be happy to attend upon the travelling public at all hours. A supply of good old Ohio and Hot Water will always be found at the Bar, with all other choice Liquors.

The COTTAGE INN has good and comfortable Stables attached.

ALEXANDER REAUME.

Anderdon, February 29th, 1856.

TRAVELLERS' HOME,

T. HALEY, PROPRIETOR,

(Formerly of Aylmer, Canada West.)

THIS House having been fitted up in the neatest and most comfortable style, the Proprietor hopes that, by keeping the choicest Liquors and a strict attention to business, to be able to give entire satisfaction to all who may give him a call. Attentive waiters and a well supplied table will always be found here.

Good Stabling and an attentive Ostler always in attendance.

N.B.—FRESH OYSTERS always on hand.

Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

PRINCE ALBERT HOTEF.

THIS Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Warner, has been thoroughly renovated, and will be kept well supplied with the very best liquors. An attentive man will always be in attendance to take charge of horses.

A private Parlor, for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen, has been fitted up.

F. X. TRUDELL,
Sandwich Street, Proprietor.
29th February, 1856.

BROOKER'S TAVERN.

WM. BROOKER is prepared to attend upon his Customers at his new and well-furnished house near the Canard Bridge, where the Traveller will have his wants attended to in regard to good liquors, and his friends may expect to find every accommodation at home.

A supply of Groceries always kept on hand which will be sold very cheap.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROYAL EXCHANGE.

J. McGEE,

BEGS to announce to the Travelling Community, and Public in general, that he has opened the above new TAVERN, with good accommodations, and hopes by attention to his business, to merit a share of public patronage. A choice selection of Groceries always on hand.

Maidstone Cross, February 29th, 1856.

MANSION HOUSE.

THIS new and commodious Inn is now completely finished, and the Proprietor hopes, that by a strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to receive a continuance of the patronage which was so liberally awarded him at his old stand.

ALONZO BROWN,
Maidstone Cross, Proprietor.
7th March, 1856.

AMERICAN HOTEL.

COURT HOUSE SQUARE, LONDON, C. W.

ROBERT ARKELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and Travellers that he has taken the above Hotel, which has undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The house is in a fine open airy and central situation, and commands a beautiful view of the valley of the Thames and surrounding country.

The Table is supplied with all the delicacies of the season. The Wines and Liquors will be of the best brands, and he trusts by assiduity and attention to the comfort of his guests to merit their patronage and support.

ROBERT ARKELL.

London, 29th Feb. 1856.

WAREHOUSE EXCHANGE,

AMHERSTBURG, C. W.

THE SUBSCRIBER has leased the "La Liberty Stand," second door above the Prince Albert Hotel, Murray Street, for a term of years, and has it repaired throughout, furnished with new furniture, bedding, &c., and now open for the accommodation of the travelling public, and by strict attention to business he hopes to receive a liberal share of the same.

HIS TABLE

will be well supplied with all the luxuries of the season.

HIS BAR

will always contain the choicest brands of Liquors.

His Stables and Shed are large and convenient.

Persons wishing good Board will find this a convenient place, being a central place of business.

CHARLES WARNER.

Amherstburg, March 14th, 1856.

INTERNATIONAL

BILLIARD SALOON.

Windsor, C.W., opposite the Depot of the Great Western Railway.

T. M. HOWRIGAN,

Proprietor.

The above Saloon is neatly and commodiously fitted up, the Proprietor having spared no expense for the purpose of rendering it attractive to visitors.

The best of Cigars, Wines and Liquors always at hand.

Windsor, Feb. 29th, 1856.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

COURTER HOUSE

Corner of Erie and Seneca Streets,
Nearly Opposite the Buffalo & N. Falls Railroad.

B. F. POPPLE, MANAGER.

VISITORS visiting the Courter House, Buffalo, will find every convenience and attention at reasonable charges. Tecotatalers visiting Buffalo, will find this Hotel calculated to meet their wishes.

Buffalo, 29th Feb. 1856.

Beecher, Rice and Ketchum.

CARPET & OIL CLOTH WAREHOUSE,

No. 142 Jefferson Avenue.
Conant Block, Detroit, Michigan.

BEECHER, HOLLISTER & WILKINS,
Carpet Hall, Lake Street, Chicago, Importers of Carpets, Oil Cloths, Paper-hangings Curtain and Upholstery materials.

A. A. RICE. L. BEECHER. B. F. HOLLISTER
C. B. KETCHUM. D. WILKINS, JR

Detroit, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TILES, TILES,

THE Public are respectfully informed that M. & J. H. Whitehouse are Manufacturing and have on hand a large quantity of Tiles, for Draining Cellars, Farms, &c., at their Brick Yard, Westminster, two miles from London, and a quarter of a mile from Mr. J. Nellis's Tavern, at First Toll Gate on the Hamilton Road, which they will sell at the Low Price of £2 per 1000 for Soles or Bottoms, without £2 15s. They will be found to be much cheaper than any other Material for Draining, as they facilitate greatly the Ploughing, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when put down will never require removing. Samples may be seen at the Subscriber's Agent at the Store of Mr. J. Fitzsell, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also Roofing Tiles and Press Bricks for fronting Building of a superior quality.

London, Feb. 29th, 1856.

DETROIT SEED STORE
AND
AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.

I would call the attention of Farmers and Gardeners to my present stock of Agricultural Implements, consisting of the most useful and latest improved kind of Ploughs, Hay and Corn Stalk Cutting Boxes, Cultivators, Seed Planters, Corn Shellers, Fan Mills, Root Pullers, Corn Planters, Cob Crushers, Churns, &c. Garden, Field, and Flower Seeds, from the most experienced and careful growers in this country and England, and I think purchasers may feel confident that every kind sold will prove true to their name, and give perfect satisfaction. All seed offered for sale will be of the present year's growth when offered as such.

E. F. PARKER.

75 Woodward Avenue, Detroit.

JUST PUBLISHED,

CANADA PHYSICAL,

Economic and Social, by Adam Lilie, D.D. One Volume, 12mo, about 300 Pages. Maps of Canada East & West. Cloth 5s.; Stiff Covers 3s 9d.

MACLEAR & CO.,
Publishers, Toronto.

N. B.—Sent by Post to any part of North America or Europe, if desired.

Toronto, Feb. 29th, 1856.

CARPETS. CARPETS.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

THE Subscribers have just received, ex "London," a Large Stock of which they are prepared to offer at low prices, and are well worthy of inspection.

BRUSSELS, 5 PLY, AND SCOTCH CARPETINGS

DINGMAN & HARRIS,
Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

EXECUTOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to all persons indebted to the late ALPHEUS MORSE, of the Town of Sandwich, deceased, and late of the Firm of MORSE AND CALVIN, Lumbermen, to make payment to the undersigned, and all persons having claims against the said A. MORSE, or MORSE AND CALVIN, are requested to present them for payment prior to the 1st day of May next to

ELECTA MORSE,
H. C. GUILLOT, } Executors
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

CIGAR FACTORY.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the inhabitants of Amherstburg and vicinity that he has opened a Cigar Factory in the above Town, where every description of the choicest kind are always on hand. He has also lately imported from Havana a large quantity of the very best Principe and every other description of Cigars, which he intends to sell at a much smaller price than can be had in Detroit. Call and see him, and he will give a puff.

JOHN N. MILLER.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

NOTICE.

A BAY PONEY came in the barn yard on the "Hand's Farm," about the 1st February last, and unless the owner comes to claim the same and pay the charges, it will be impounded and sold.

Hand's Farm, 15th March, 1856.

LANDS FOR SALE.

A SMALL FARM, being part of Lot No 37, in First Concession, Petite Cote, 40 acres, all under fence, two acres in width by twenty in depth. This lot is beautifully situated upon the road to Amherstburg, about three miles from Sandwich, it is well adapted for a residence.

Two Lots on Glengarry Avenue, one house and lot on St. George's street, in the village of Windsor.

A number of Town Lots on the Pajot Farm, in the town of Sandwich.

Also part of lots Nos. 95 and 96, 1st and 2nd Con., half a mile above Windsor, two houses and barn thereon, containing 150 acres

The above lots will be sold for cash, at the very lowest figure, and parties wishing to purchase for residences or speculation, will find this an opportunity which is not often afforded. The Deeds and Plans are at

CHAS. P. LABADIE

All parties owing the subscriber are requested to settle forthwith, or having any claims against him are requested to present them without delay, as he is about winding up his business.

C. P. L

Sandwich April, 1856.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural and Rapid Advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of models of cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a foot of ground on this earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinarily low price at which it is afforded, together with its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with January, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department:—D. B. Knight, James Vick, and A. W. Ray.

Terms: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

N.B.—Newspapers inserting the above prospectus and drawing attention editorially to the same, will be forwarded the Illustrated Horticulturist for one year, a copy containing the advertisement should be sent in all cases to ensure attention.

Address

C. REAGLES, Publisher,
Illustrated Horticulturist
208, Broadway, New York.

NEW VOLUME OF THE

AGRICULTURIST

SUBSCRIPTION REDUCED FROM 25 TO 50 PER CENT.

The Canadian Agriculturist

Has now reached the eighth volume, having been established by its present proprietor in 1848, and is too well known to the leading farmers of the British Provinces, to need any eulogium from us. The undersigned has made arrangements with the proprietor to publish the next, and probably succeeding volumes, and have resolved to make important improvements in the work, while at the same time its price will be considerably reduced.

THE AGRICULTURIST

Is published Monthly, on good Paper, each number containing 32 pages, making at the end of the year a handsome volume of 384 pages.

EVERY NUMBER WILL BE

Illustrated with Engravings

Such as Farm Implements, Portraits of Animals, Designs for Farm Buildings, New Inventions, &c., &c., interesting to the Farmer, and also portraits of some of the most Distinguished Agriculturists.

The Work will be conducted as usual by WILLIAM MACDOUGALL, Esq., who has resumed the practice of Agriculture near the city. He has visited Europe to see those improvements made in our Agricultural Legislation since 1847, and having also been connected with this Journal from its commencement, he requires no recommendation from us.

PROFESSOR BUCKLAND, of the Toronto University, whose labors and writings are well known to Canadian farmers, has kindly and appreciated throughout the Province, will contribute to its columns as usual.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS

Of known ability have also been engaged. Efforts will be made to extend the correspondence on subjects of a practical kind.

THE AGRICULTURIST IS NOT LIABLE TO POSTAGE.

WILMAN & Co, Publishers
Toronto, March, 1856.

To be published monthly, price half-a-dollar per annum,

The Churchman's Friend,

For the diffusion of information relative to the Church of England, her Doctrine and Ordinances. Edited by Edward H. Dewar, M.A., Rector of Sandwich, assisted by other Clergymen.

Sandwich, March 15th, 1856.

New Wholesale GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT!

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and the Trade generally, that he has commenced business on his own account, in this City, as a

WHOLESALE GENERAL GROCER.

And is now receiving a large and carefully selected Stock of

Groceries, Teas, Wines, Liquors, Oils, Paints, &c., &c., &c.

To which he confidently invites the attention of Western and City Merchants.

Premises, King Street West, opposite Messrs. McKeand, Bross & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods Warehouse.

A. J. McKENZIE.

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TO RENT.

A DRUG STORE, with a large and well selected stock of Drugs and Medicines, in the Town of Sandwich. The Store will be leased for a term of years, and the Drugs and Medicines will be sold on reasonable terms. The selection cannot be surpassed in Upper Canada. Possession given on the first day of July next, if required. The present proprietor is about entering other business, which will prevent him attending to the Drug business, and which is the only reason for his retiring from the trade. For particulars inquire of

J. ADLEY.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

J. H. ALLISON,

IMPORTER OF

IMPROVED

RAILROAD WATCHES.

Cased in beautiful styles war-anted excellent time keepers: do. Swiss full jeweled Levers of every description.

GOLD PENS.

I continue manufacturing Pens of every desirable pattern; these Pens have received

A SILVER MEDAL & DIPLOMA

At the Michigan State Fair, and are not to be surpassed by any Pens in the market.

ALSO DEALER IN

FINE JEWELRY, SILVER WARE, AND FANCY GOODS.

I have an experienced Jeweller, capable of making New Work to order.

SETTING STONES AND DIAMOND WORK, &C.,

FIRE GILDING AND GALVANIZING

Done at Short Notice.

WATCH REPAIRING.

Being a Practical Workman, all work entrusted to my care will be carefully attended to.

GOLD PENS RE-POINTED

at 50 cents all sizes. Orders sent by mail, accompanied by cash, will be promptly attended to.

J. H. ALLISON,
No. 176 Jefferson Ave.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

Hamilton and Toronto Branch.

ALTERATION OF TIME.

ON and after MONDAY NEXT, the following Alteration will take place in the Time of the Trains (Sundays excepted) between Hamilton and Toronto, as follows:

GOING WEST

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed Mail
	A M	P M	P M
Toronto,	8 00	3 20	10 00
Mimico,	8 10	3 30	10 15
Port Credit,	8 25	3 45	10 30
Oakville,	8 43	4 03	10 53
Bronte,	8 55	4 15	11 15
Wellington Square,	9 10	4 30	11 35
Hamilton,	9 30	4 50	12 00

GOING EAST.

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed Mail
	A M	P M	A M
Hamilton,	10 40	6 10	3 10
Wellington Square,	11 00	6 30	3 35
Bronte,	11 16	6 45	3 55
Oakville,	11 27	7 00	4 15
Port Credit,	11 45	7 20	4 35
Mimico,	12 00	7 35	4 50
Toronto,	12 15	7 50	5 05

The above Trains connect at Hamilton with Trains of Great Western Railway running in connection with Trains to Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, Boston, New York, and with Michigan Central Railroad Trains at Detroit for Chicago, St Louis, &c, &c.

The 3 20 Train from Toronto meets G W R Accommodation Train going West at Hamilton, for Preston Galt, Paris, London, and intermediate Stations

Through Tickets for any of the above places can be obtained at the Ticket Office, Toronto Station

Stages run daily between Oakville, Milton, Georgetown, &c, &c, &c.

C. J. BRYDGES,
Managing Director
Great Western Railway Offices,

A RARE CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY

IS NOW OFFERED IN

B. RIVARD'S GRAND GIFT ENTERPRISE AND LOTTERY,

to take place at

SANDWICH,

ON THE 19th APRIL, 1856.

ALL PRIZES! NO BLANKS.

The following is a List of a few of the Prizes:

2 Shares in Sandwich Street Plank Road Company, worth	$60
A Glass Case,	40
A Box Cooking Stove,	40
A Buggy Harness,	40
Trotting Waggon,	20
Double Barrel Gun,	20
Dress Coat (new)	18
Frock Coat, do	18
Single Barrel Gun,	18
Do do do	15
Setter,	15
Pair of Curtains,	12
Lot of Dishes,	11
Six Shooter,	10
Box Stove,	10
29 Yards Carpet,	10
Eight Day Clock,	8
Do do	6
Looking Glass,	5
Pair of Shanghais,	5

Together with other articles amounting to FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

On the day of drawing, the holders of tickets will have the privilege of appointing a Committee to regulate the mode of drawing, &c., &c. The Tickets are all sold by the Proprietor, and notice of the postponement will be given of the postponement in the "Maple Leaf."

Tickets, One Dollar Each.

POSTPONEMENT.

THE DRAWING of the above LOTTERY is postponed until TUESDAY, the 20th MAY next.

E. R.

Crockery Store and China Emporium.

F. P. MATHER & Co., IMPORTERS and Dealers in Crockery, China, Glass, Britannia and Silver Plated Ware, Lamps and Looking Glasses, Table Cutlery and Fancy Ware, "Sign of the Big White Pitcher," No. 224 Jefferson Avenue, Kearsley Block, opposite Firemen's Hall, Detroit.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

CATHARTIC PILLS

OPERATE by their powerful influences on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate the healthy action of the system, thereby the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, and restore them to their proper action in health and correct, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first causes of disease. A thorough trial of their virtues, by Physicians, Physicians, and Patients, has shown cures of dangerous diseases exceeding belief, where they were supposed by persons of such exalted position and character as to forbid the suspicion of untruth. Their certificates are published, in my American Almanac, which the Agents below named are pleased to furnish free to all inquiring.

Annexed we give Directions for their use in the complaints which they have been found to cure.

For Costiveness, Indigestion, Jaundice, and a such quantity as to gently move the bowels. Costiveness is frequently the aggravating cause of Piles, and the cure of one complaint is the cure of both. No person can feel well who neglects a regular habit of body. Keep it so, and be sure, you can be, promptly relieved.

For Dyspepsia, which is sometimes the cause of Costiveness, and always uncomfortable, take all doses—from one to four—to stimulate the stomach into healthy action. They will do it, and the Sweetness, headache, and soreness of dyspepsia will quickly disappear. Which is the case, don't forget what cured you.

For a Foul Stomach, or Morbid Inaction of the Bowels, which proceeds from general depression of the spirits and bad health, take from four to eight Pills at first, and smaller doses afterwards until order and strength is restored to the system.

For Nervousness, Headache, Nausea, Pains in the Stomach, Back, or Side, take from four to eight pills on going to bed. If they do not operate sufficiently, take more next day until they do. These complaints will be swept out from the system. Don't ever trifle with these kindred diseases after your stomach is foul.

For Scrofula, Erysipelas, and all Diseases of the Skin, they should be taken freely to keep the bowels open. The eruptions will generally soon begin to disappear. Persevere, and the whole system have completely yielded to the influence, leaving the disease in perfect health. It is your duty to society to forbid that you should parade yourself around the world covered with pimples, blotches, sores, and all sorts of the unclean diseases of the skin, because you system wants cleansing.

For Purifying the Blood, they are the best medicine ever discovered. They should be taken freely and frequently, and the impurities which are the seeds of incurable diseases will be swept out of the system like chaff before the wind. No one can realize how much good in preventing sickness is to be the remarkable cures which they are making every where.

Liver Complaint, Jaundice, and all Bilious Affections arise from some derangement of the digestive function, or obstructions of the Liver. Torpidity and congestion vitiate the bile and render it unfit for digestion. This is directly opposed to health, and the constitution is frequently undermined by no other cause. Nausea, sick headache, constipation of the bowels, and the impurities which the bile into the stomach causes the bile to overflow into the blood. This produces Jaundice. A long and dangerous train of evils. Costiveness, a prostration of the digestive powers, and many of Feverish symptoms, languor, low spirits, weariness, restlessness, and melancholy, with sometimes a sense of fullness, and sometimes great distress, sometimes there is severe pain in the side; the stomach is foul, and in most cases becomes grossly so; the stomach scid; the bowels sore to the touch; the whole system irritable, with a tendency to inflammation; the blood impure; bilious colic, bilious diarrhœa, dysentery, &c. A medium dose of three or four Pills taken at night, and a dose or two in the morning, and repeated a few days, will remove the cause of all these troubles. It is not to be supposed that such complaints will cure themselves. Try them and be convinced.

Rheumatism, Gout, and all Inflammatory Diseases are rapidly cured by the purifying effects they have upon the blood and the stimulus which they afford to the vital principles of life. For this and kindred complaints they should be taken in mild doses, to move the bowels gently, but freely.

As a Dinner Pill, this is found unequalled and certainly none has been made more effective for the purpose for which a dinner pill is employed.

PREPARED BY

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
LOWELL, MASS.,
AND SOLD BY

GEO. and G. A. BULLOCK, and J. A. VERVAIS, Sandwich;
D. OULLETTE, Windsor;
And every Druggist and Merchant in Canada.

MAPLE LEAF.

James H. Wilkinson] "PROGRESS." [Proprietor and Publisher.

VOL. I. SANDWICH, C. W., FRIDAY, MAY 16, 1856. NO. 12.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

IS PUBLISHED

Every Friday Morning,

BY

J. H. WILKINSON,

BEDFORD STREET,

Sandwich, Canada West.

TERMS:—Eight shillings and ninepence Cy, per annum, if paid in advance; or Ten Shillings at the end of the year.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Six lines or under, first insertion, 2s 6d, cy Each subsequent insertion, . . 0 7½

Advertisements over six lines, 4d per line for the first insertion, and one penny per line for every subsequent insertion. A liberal discount made to Merchants and others who advertise by the year.

Advertisements sent in for insertion without written directions, will be continued till forbid and the usual rates charged.

CLUBS.

Any person procuring 10 subscribers will be entitled to a copy gratis. Payment to be made in advance.

The JOB OFFICE connected with the "MAPLE LEAF" is in every respect complete for the dispatch of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

Professional Cards.

Mr. William Johnson,
Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c., &c.
Sandwich, C. W.

Mr. Charles Baby,
Attorney and Councillor at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, &c.
Office, Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. J. H. Wilkinson.
Law, Chancery, Conveyancing, and Land Agency Office.
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. Louis J. Fluett,
Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, Conveyancer and Land Agent,
Sandwich.

Mr. S. S. Macdonell,
Barrister, Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, &c., &c.
Windsor, C. W.

Mr. John O'Connor, Jun.,
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c.,
Windsor, C. W.

Charles Eugene Casgrain, M.D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Office and Residence, opposite the "Mear's Hotel,"
Sandwich, Canada West.

Dr. Reynolds,
Physician and Surgeon,
Amherstburg.

John Adley,
Physician and Surgeon, &c.,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

ALEXANDER GORDON,
NOTARY PUBLIC AND INSURANCE AGENT
Sandwich & Windsor, Canada West.

John McCrae,
Auctioneer, Insurance and General Agent
Windsor, Canada West.

Bank of Upper Canada Agency,
Windsor, Canada West.
Office Hours, 10, A.M., to 3, P.M.

Philip S. Donnelly.
Provincial Land Surveyor, &c.,
Moore, County of Lambton.

LAFFERTY & JONES.
AUCTIONEERS AND APPRAISERS,
Amherstburg, Canada West.

P. Marentette,
Gunsmith and Manufacturer of Guns.
Every description of Fire-arms repair'd at his Shop, on Bedford Street,
Sandwich.

L. P. St. Amour,
IMPORTER, AND WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS
CROCKERY, HARDWARE,
PERFUMERY, &c.
Sandwich, Canada West.

Sandwich Post Office.
Open daily, from Nine till Twelve, A.M., and from half-past Twelve till Five, P.M.
P. H. MORIN, Post Master.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware
Crockery, Boots & Shoes
&c. &c. &c.
Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich.

Bartley and Pinney,
PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS,
Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.

MR. JAS. WOODBRIDGE, JUN.,
Division Court Agent, and General Agent for Collecting Debts.
Sandwich, Canada West.

S. D. ELWOOD & CO.,
PUBLISHERS,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
BOOKS, STATIONERY,
AND ALL KINDS OF
PAPERS,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS STOCK
MANUFACTURERS OF
BLANK BOOKS
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.
Orders for Lithographed Letter and Bill Heads, Maps, Drafts, Stock Certificates, &c., &c., &c.,
EXECUTED WITH PROMPTNESS.
192 Jefferson Avenue,
S. D. ELWOOD, } DETROIT.
J. C. PARSONS, }

WILLIAM SWIFT,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
IS prepared to attend upon the Gentlemen of Amherstburg in his line of business, and is not afraid to assert that he will cut and Fit in the latest and most fashionable Styles as well as any Tailor west of London.
Amherstburg, Feb. 29th, 1856.

George Hann,
DEALER IN FURS AND SKINS.
The highest price paid for Shipping Furs at his Fur Store in the Town of Sandwich.
15th March, 1856.

NIAGARA
MUTUAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.
GEORGE BULLOCK, Local Agent for the Town ships of Sandwich, Maidstone, Rochester and Tilbury West; also the Village of Windsor. Address, Sandwich Post Office.

ROSE DALE MILLS,
THE highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Rye, Corn, or Buck Wheat, either at the Mills or at the Store of
GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

JAMES JESSOP,
CARPENTER & JOINER,
WILL, always be on hand to attend to the erection of Building, and every description of Carpenter and Joiner work upon the shortest notice.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WARNER'S EXCHANGE,
AMHERSTBURG, C. W.
CHARLES WARNER, PROPRIETOR

SIMPSON'S EATING SALOON.
MR. SIMPSON would inform the Gentlemen of Sandwich and vicinity that he is prepared at all hours to furnish "Hot Meals," and those who may favor his establishment with a call, can depend upon having, if they wish, a "steak" cooked in the good old English style, with all the little etceteras.
Dinner Parties accommodated upon the shortest notice.
N.B.—A few persons can be accommodated with good clean beds.
No 253 Jefferson Avenue Detroit Mich. few doors above the Theatre.

NEW LIVERY STABLE.
JOHN LEWIS, having purchased the Livery Stable in the Town of Sandwich, formerly kept by C. F. Labadie, will carry it on in a style that has never been known in this place before. Fresh horses and new carriages are being added to this establishment every day, and persons who patronise him may expect to be furnished with "Creek Teams."

PAINT SHOP.
FRANCOIS PAYETTE having opened a Paint Shop in the Town of Sandwich, next door to L. P. St. Amour's Store, will be happy to attend to the painting of houses, Graining, Glazing, Varnishing, and, in fact, every description of work in his line of business with despatch, and at moderate charges.
N.B.—Buggies and Carriages painted and varnished upon reasonable terms.

SANDWICH BREWERY.
ALE, BEER AND PORTER
MANUFACTURED BY
TROWNSELL, LEECH AND O'CALLAGHAN.
N.B.—CASH PAID FOR BARLEY.

Poetry.

The Song of the Camp.

A CRIMEAN INCIDENT.

BY BAYARD TAYLOR.

The touching incident on which the following verses are founded is, doubtless, fresh in the memory of many of our readers.—They were written for the New York Tribune, and appeared in that paper a few days ago.

"Give us a Song!" the soldiers cried,
The outer trenches guarding,
When the heated guns of the camps allied
Grew weary of bombarding.

The dark Redan, in silent scoff,
Lay, grim and threatening, under;
And the tawny mound of the Malakoff
No longer belched its thunder.

There was a pause. The guardsman said:
"We storm the forts to-morrow;
Sing while we may, another day
Will bring enough of sorrow."

They lay along the battery's side,
Below the smoking cannon—
Brave hearts, from Severn and from Clyde,
And from the banks of Shannon.

They sang of love, and not of fame;
Forgot was Britain's glory:
Each Learl recalled a different name,
But all sang "Annie Laurie."

Voice after voice caught up the song,
Until its tender passion
Rose like an anthem, rich and strong—
Their battle-eve confession.

Dear girl, her name he dared not speak,
Yet, as the song grew louder,
Something upon the soldier's cheek
Washed off the stains of powder.

Beyond the darkening ocean burned
The bloody sunset's embers,
While the Crimean valleys learned
How English love remembers.

And once again a fire of hell
Rained on the Russian quarters,
With a scream of shot, and burst of shell,
And bellowing of the mortars.

And Irish Nora's eyes are dim,
For a singer, dumb and gory:
And English Mary mourns for him
Who sang of "Annie Laurie."

Ah, soldiers! to your honored rest
Your truth and valor bearing;
The bravest are the tenderest—
The loving are the daring.

They Shall not Blush for their Father.

Two men entered into an agreement to rob one of their neighbors. Everything was planned out. They were to enter his house at midnight, break open his chest and drawers and carry off all the silver and gold they could find.

'He is rich and we are poor,' said they to each other by way of encouragement in the evil they were to perform. 'He will never miss a little gold, while the possession will make us happy. Besides, what right has one man to have all the world's goods?'

Thus they talk together. One of these men had a wife and children, but the other had none in the world to care for but him self. The man who had children went home and joined his family, after agreeing upon a place of meeting with the other at the darkest hour of the coming night.

'Dear father,' said one of the children, climbing upon his knee.' 'I am glad you have come home.'

The presence of the child troubled the man and he tried to push him away, and he laid his face against his cheek and said in a sweet and gentle voice—

'I love you father!'

Involuntarily the man drew his innocent and loving one to his bosom and kissed him.

There were two elder children in the man's dwelling, a boy and a girl. They were poor, and these children worked hard daily to keep up the daily supply of bread, made deficient more through idleness in the father than lack of employment, these children came home soon after their father's return and brought home their earnings for the day.

'Oh, father,' said the boy, such a dreadful thing has happened! Henry Lee's father was arrested to-day for robbing; they took him out of our shop when Henry was there, and carried him off to prison. I was sad when I saw Henry weeping, and hang his head for shame of his own father. Only think of that!'

'Ashamed of his father,' thought he.—'And will my children hang their heads also, in shame? No, no; that shall never be.'

At the hour of midnight, the man who had no children to throw around him a sphere of better influence, was sitting at the place of rendezvous waiting for him whose children had grieved him, but he waited long in vain. Then he said—

'I will do the deed myself, and take the entire reward.'

And he did according to his word, when the other man went forth to his labor on the next day, he learned that his accomplice had been taken in the act of robbery and was was already in prison.

'Thank Heaven for virtuous children!' said he with fervor. They have saved me. Never will I do an act that will cause them to blush for their father.'

The Richmond Slave Market.

The city of Richmond is the greatest slave market in the world. The king of Abyssinia has seen fit to abolish the slave-trade throughout his dominions; but in this professedly Christian land, everything is done to encourage and protect it. The slave auction marts here are crowded each day with buyers, and with human beings of every shade and color, to be sold. In no city at the South has the market been so large. Virginia is endeavoring to grow rich on the sales of her own children.

I give a brief sketch of one or two scenes I witnessed to-day! Here is a row of well-dressed girls, from 15 to 20 years of age, awaiting their turn to ascend the auction block or table, while a group of men and boys are being sold. They are surrounded by a group of sensual looking men, young and old asking them all sorts of immodest questions—feeling their ancles, arms, bosoms—while the poor slave girls have no power of resistance. Their turn comes to be placed under the auctioneer's hammer. Nora is called. She ascends the steps, dressed with artistic skill, to set off her fair form; flowing sleeves, soon to be thrown back to display the gracefully rounded arm; a nicely-wrought stomacher of whitest cambric; her raven hair trimmed with ribbons; a slight dash of African blood in her cheeks only increases her beauty; lecherous looking men gather closer, anxious to secure the prize, and the auctioneer begins—"What is bid, gentlemen, for this beautiful girl!—Only 16; sold for no fault; brought up in a genteel family; right and title good; warranted sound every way. What is the bid, gentlemen? Six hundred dollars I hear! six! six! six! six!—"Fifty!" "Thank you; six hundred and fifty dollars is bid.—"Seven hundred I hear—seven, seven, seven, going for seven hundred dollars; seven—!" "Twenty-five!" "Seven hundred and twenty-five!—seven" "Fifty!"—"Seven, fifty—do I hear any more?" Why, gentlemen mark her beautiful form? See her well shaped foot and gracefully turned ancle!"—at the same time raising her clothes above her knees. Now the bidding reaches $900, and she is then taken down; the men are made to fall back, and a path is opened to the farthest side of the building; and between those files of men she is made to walk briskly backward and forward. "Hold up your head, miss, walk as if you were going to church to meet your beau! See there, gentlemen, there is muscle for you; the real Baltimore clip! step as light as antelope's. What is the bid gentlemen?" While she is thus walking the gauntlet, any one that chooses may stop her and handle any part of her body; ask for any question; then, for the last time she ascends the stand, and is knocked down for $1,000. This course is pursued till all are disposed of. The men and boys are taken into another room and stripped naked, that their muscular developments may be better seen; and if they have any wounds.

Oh! the harrowing sights of sales of mothers, in tears, with infants nursing on their bosoms, and other children standing by their sides, holding to their hands or aprons.

The Lovers's Leg.

The following story, which is calculated to make each particular hair to stand like quills upon the fretful porcupine, is said to have happened in St. Lawrence county, in this State, and is given on the authority of a gentleman of undoubted veracity:

'A young man addicted to intemperate habits, during one of his periodical 'sprees' took a sudden notion to pay a visit to his 'sweetheart.' On the evening alluded to, the young lady and a female associate were the only occupants of the house where she resides. About ten o'clock in the evening the young man arrived at the house, considerably worse from the use of beverages. His strange manner in approaching the door excited the suspicions of the young ladies, who supposed the house was attacked by robbers. He knocked at the door, and demanded admission: but his voice not being recognized from the thickness of his tongue, the ladies refused to immediately accede to the demand. Determined to force an entrance, he commenced a series of assaults upon the barrel and bolted door by kicking and pounding. After a number of desperate kicks, the pannel of the door gave way, and the leg of the besieger went through the aperture and was immediately seized by one of the ladies and and firmly held, while the other, armed with a saw, commenced the work of amputation! The grasp was firmly maintained, and the saw vigorously plied, until the leg was completely severed from the body! With the loss of his leg, the intoxicated wretch fell back, and in that condition lay the remainder of the night.—In the meantime the ladies were frightened almost to death. With the dawn of morning the revelation was made, that one of the ladies had participated in the amputation of her lover's leg! The wretched man was still alive. His friends were immediately sent for, and he was conveyed to his home, where, with proper treatment he gradually and miraculously recovered, and is now alive and well. We hardly credit, says the editor of the journal from which we quote, the latter part of the story, and contend that the man must have bled to death on the spot, insisting, indeed, that it could not be otherwise. But we were mistaken.—The leg was a wooden on.'

Miscellany.

A BIG MOSQUITO.—And so you're going out to the East Hingies, my darlin. Mrs. Malrooney? said an Irish crone to the young wife of a soldier about to embark for Madras. 'I've been in them parts myself, & well do I remember the terments I went through night and day with the muskatoes. They had long suckers hanging down from their heads and they'll draw the life blood out of ye before you can say 'pays!' This terrifying account lived in the memory of the young woman; the vessel made Madras roads, the decks were soon crowded, all hands delighted at the sight of land—Mrs. Malrooney smong the rest, but her joy was of short duration, for on shore she perceived an elephant; horror struck she approached the mate, exclaimed with unfilled hand, 'Holy Mother! is that a muskato?'

"ONLY CLEANING HIS GUN."—The Colonist says:—We understand that while the Congregation of the Rev. M. Johnson's Church on the corner of James and Louisa Street, were engaged in divine service on last Sunday, two shots were fired at the church, and the balls struck in the walls, in one instance close to where a man was at the time standing. Mr. Hugh Miller, Druggist, hastened to the Police Office, and caused a diligent search to be made for the offender, which resulted in the arrest of a tavern-keeper named Kelly. We understand that he admits having fired the shots, but states that he was 'cleaning' his gun.

EARTHQUAKE.—At about half past 12 o'clock yesterday (Thursday), a smart shock of an earthquake was distictly felt by the inhabitants of this place. Its duration was about ten seconds, sufficiently long and loud to create uneasy fellings in those, who knew what it was. The atmosphere was hazy at the time but perfectly calm, thereby allowing the vibration in the houses and earth to be more clearly defined.—Aylmer Times.

By Telegraph, we have just received news that the "Ploughboy" was run on the rocks at Saugeen Harbour, and supposed to be a total loss. She was owned by Messrs. McLeod & Park, of Amherstburg, and E. B. Warn, of Detroit. The Ploughboy was built in this Town five years ago by Messrs. W. & W. Eberts.—Chatham Planet.

STEAMER BROTHERS SUNK.—On Sunday last the Steamer Brothers, owned by Mr. Charles Davis, of this Town, loaded with bricks was wrecked near the light-house at the mouth of the River Thames, while on her way to Windsor. Great exertions are now being made to recover both the wreck and the cargo.—Chatham Planet.

A DIABOLICAL ACT.—The Intelligencer says—Previous to the steamer City of the Bay leaving the wharf at Kingston, on the 28th instant some wretch effected an entrance to the steamer's engine, and took the valves from the force pumps (which feed the boiler) away thus rendering the boat liable to be blown to atoms at any moment, and every soul sacrificed. It is difficult to believe that such fiends exist, who would thus wantonly attempt to destroy the lives of their fellow-men and cause useless expense amount of property for apparently nothing less than revenge. Mr. Henry Corby, on the part of the owners of the boat has offered a reward of £25/, for the discovery of the parties implicated in this most atrocious act. We trust they may be brought to justice.

Since the late fights in Nicaragua Walker's newspaper organ at Granada has become very eager for peace. It addresses an earnest homily to the Costa Ricans on that subject upon the text. "They who draw the sword shall perish by the sword." It is a pity the filibusters had not duly considered that text before going to Nicaragua.

The same paper we observe, denounces the Europeans in the service of Costa Rica as "miscreant foreigners!" What sort of a foreigner is general Walker and the bulk of the so-called Nicaragnan army.

COLLINGWOOD LINE COMPLETED.—The Oswego Times says:

We are gratified to learn from an authentic source, that the arrangements for a daily line of steamers between Collingwood, Chicago, and the ports on Lake Michigan have been perfected. The same boats that ran in the line last year—the Key Stone State, Lady Elgin, Queen City, Louisiana, and Niagara, will run this season, with the addition, of the Buckeye State, now building on the Michigan Central line, between Buffalo and Detroit. Other steamers are to run between Collingwood, Mackinac and Green Bay, connecting with steamers Aquilla, Ajax, and Pioneer, and the propeller Buffalo, which will form a line the coming season between Green Bay, Oshkosh and Fond du Lac, on the newly opened ship channel, by Lake Winnebago, Fox and Wisconsin rivers connecting the navigation of Lake Michigan with the Mississippi. The experiment of last year proves that the Oswego and Collingwood route will be the great thoroughfare between the East and the west, and that a better line of boats will be required on this Lake than ran between here and Toronto last season.—Chro. News.

LUMBER PROSPECTS.—The prospects of good prices in Quebec this season are cheering, but owing to the low ess of the water in all the small steamers,—at least on the South side of the Ottawa,—it is apprehended that much valuable timber will not reach the market. There has been no rain of any consequence during the whole month of April. If, however, a wet season should set in, all danger may yet be averted.

It is said that a raft of white pine sold last autumn in Quebec for 7d. per foot has been re-sold this spring for 9d.

PIEDMONT AND AUSTRIA.—The following is an extract from the Paris correspondence of Le Nord the Russian journal of Brussels:—

"Dining a few days ago with a high personage of the Court, Count Cavour did not conceal his complaints against the Conference for refusing to interfere in the affairs of Italy against Austria, which power had in its favor the majority of the plenipotentiaries. He ended with saying that there will be revolutions in Italy before the year is out. The minister of Victor Emmanuel, adds Le Nord, uttered his prophecy with some show of reserve. The moment a Piedmontese army from the Crimea is about to enter the Gulf of Spezzia, Austria brings her troops to the frontiers of Piedmont.—England will sustain Piedmont. France also would cordially interfere with the object of reconciling the revolution with the interests of the Pope. Austria who left Russia to combat singly with the allied powers, could not, in the case of a conflict in Italy, rely upon Russia.

At the Hotel Montreuil, in Paris, four rogues not long ago treated themselves to a sumptuous dinner, and when they did not mean to pay. Having called the waiter, and asked for the bill, one thrust his hand into his pocket, as if to draw out his purse; the second prevented him', declaring he would pay; the third did the same. Tne fourth forbade the waiter taking any money from either of them, but all at once disappeared. As none would yield, one said, The best way to decide is to blindfold the waiter, and whoever he first catches shall settle the bill.' This proposition was accepted, and while the waiter was groping his way round the room, they slipped out of the house one after another.

London is now the greatest city in the world and far surpasses all the great cities of antiquity. According to Gibbon the population of ancient Rome in the heighth of its magnificence was 1,600,000; Nineveh is estimated to have had 600,000; and Dr. Mcdhurst supposes that the population of Pekin is about 2,000,000. The population of London, according to recent statistics, amounts to 2,550,000—414,722 having been added to it during the last ten years. The census shows that it contains 307,722 inhabited, and 10,386 uninhabited houses.

LOVE AND LAW IN TURKEY.—A young man desperately in love with a girl at Stancho eagerly sought to marry her, but his proposals were rejected. In consequence of his disappointment, he bought some poison and destroyed himself. The Turkish constable arrested the father of the young woman's death, under the fifth species of homicide; he became, therefore, amenable for the act of suicide. When the case came before the magistrate, it was urged literally by the accusers, that if he, the accused, had not a daughter, the deceased would not have been disappointed and died. Upon all these counts he was mulcted to pay the price of the young man's life, which was fixed at eighty piastres and was accordingly exacted.—From the Household Words.

LORD ELGIN.—The Colonist remarks:—For some time past we have noticed that the Earl of Elgin is put forward by some friendly newspaper in Great Britain as a fitting person to fill every important situation that becomes vacant under the British Crown. We were told successively that he was to be Governor General of India, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, even Prime Minister, and at length some way, to turn the thing into ridicule, insinuated that he was to take the chief command in the Crimea. But the latest canard we have heard of his Lordship is that he is to be appointed to the vacant Governorship of the Colony of Victoria. It is a poor business for "my wife's uncle," to be thus waiting for chances.

AN ARAB LION HUNTER.—A rival to Gerard, the famous lion killer, has arisen in Algeria. He is an Arab named Baba Hassein of Lambesa. His last exploit was the killing of a lion and lioness. In the night of the 21st ult, after a heavy fall of snow, he went into the mountains of Aures, armed, not like Gerard, with an excellent double-barrelled Devisme's rifle pistol, and a poignard, but with two simple artillery carbines and a butcher knife; and before long he fell in with a lioness and a lion.—He killed the former, and wounded the latter in its foot. The lion limped off, but Baba Hassein followed him, and seeing him in a clump of bushwood, again fired, and wounded him between the shoulders. The lion then threw himself on the ground in an agony of pain, with blood flowing profusely from the wound. The Arab sent him another shot, and then went up to him and put an end to his sufferings by plunging his knife into his throat. The man afterwards had the lion and lioness conveyed to Batna. The former weighed nearly 6 cwt. and measured nearly 10 feet; and the latter was also a magnificent animal. Baba Hassein had previously killed three lions.—Guligani's Messenger.

AN AMUSING MISTAKE.—A gentleman of Dount was going out in his carriage to make some calls with his wife, when he discovered that he had left his visiting cards. He ordered his footman, recently come in to his service, to go to the mantlepiece in his sitting-room, and bring the cards he should see there. The servant did as he was ordered, retained the articles to be used as he was directed, and off started the gentleman, smiling in the footman with confidence wherever the "not at homes" occurred. As these were very numerous, he turned to his servant with the question—

"How many cards have you left?"

"Well, sir," says the footman, very innocently, "there's the king of spades, the six of hearts, and the ace of clubs."

"The deuce!" exclaimed his master.

"That's gone," said John.

A western editor whose subscribers complained very loudly that he did not give them news enough for their money, to do them that if they did not find enough in the paper they had better read the Bible which he had no doubt would be news to most of them.

Some Students completely turned the tables on the police at Paris recently. A disturbance occurred at a lecture, and the police agents, who were present in plain clothes, made a mark with chalk on the backs of the most uproarious of the students so that they might be arrested when they left the hall. The students detected the manœuvre, and slyly chalked the police agents. When the officers left the place the Sergens de Ville, arrested them, lodged them in prison, and kept them for a day and a night.

A writer in the Household Words thus describes the Sultan of Turkey:

He is a dark, wearied looking man, in appearance about forty, tho' in a reality some years younger. He is dressed in a dark blue frock-coat, with a Russian collar. The sleeves and the collar of it are embroidered with gold and diamonds; but his coat and trousers are much too large for him. He wears no ornament but the Nishan, a large medal of gold, set with diamonds and heavy Turkish sabre, set with diamonds also, but dirty. On his head is a red cap, and on his feet a pair of black French boots with varnished tops, but so large, it is marvellous how he walks in them. This is Abdul Mejid, the Sultan of Turkey. As an ambassador and his suite approach it is painful to see the embarrassment of the monarch. It seems to amount to constitutional nervousness, and is evidenced many ways. His eyes wander here and there, like those of a school boy called upon to repeat a lesson which he does not know. He changes his feet continually, and makes spasmodic efforts with his hands. I am sure his beard, a very fine one, is very uncomfortable to him, and that he does not like to lead a heavier shirt on I am still more sure that he is heartily ambassadored to death.

GOD DISPOSES.—The New York Evening Post remarks:

There is one circumstance connected with Napoleon's family, which historians have not yet observed, but which is well worth mention. Napoleon the great set aside his best friend and counselor Josephine, to obtain an heir to the throne of France. In marries the daughter of Austria, and he has had a son. That birth was the culminating point of his power and his dignity. From thence he did nothing but descend. He died in exile—his son also. Who succeeded to his name, his fame his power! It was not Hortense, who was the child of Josephine! In the person of the daughter of the French we find not the offspring of Napoleon the Great, but the offspring of his discarded wife. What an illustration of the truth of the adage! That it is man who proposes, but God who disposes!

The effects of coffee upon the human system are said, by a writer in Blackwood's Magazine, to consist in making the brain more active, soothing the body generally, making the change waste of matter much slower than usual, and the demand for food in consequence much less. These results are produced by the combined effects of a volatile oil, a species of tannia, and a substance called theine or colleine, common to both tea and coffee. It is also thought that the lessening of the general bodily waste which would follow the consumption of a daily allowance of coffee, would cause a saving of starch and glue equal to the cost of the coffee.

STEAM POWER ECLIPSED.—The London Morning Chronicle announces an important discovery. It is stated that a great experiment "was recently tried at Vincennes, in the presence of General Lahitte and the officers of the fort. The secret of compressing and governing electricity is at length discovered, and the power may therefore now be considered, as the new motive power onward to be used.—A small mortar was fired by the inventor at the rate of one hundred shots a minute—without flashing, smoke, or noise. The same power can, it seems, be adapted to every system of mechanical invention, and there will be no spare code steam requiring neither machinery nor combustion. A vessel propelled by this power is said to skim the waters like a bird, and to fear neither storm nor hurricane. The inventor has already petitioned for a line of steamers from L'Orient to Norfolk, in the United States, which passage he promises to accomplish in eight and forty hours!"

AFFRAY AT A WEDDING.—A very singular affray occurred on Wednesday night, at the residence of a blooming young widow lady up town. The lady it appears was about to give two different individuals, and appointed the same hour for the consummation of her vows with each. The grooms met before the altar where each insisted upon his right of priority. Weapons were drawn and there appeared more probability of a funeral than a wedding in the house. The police interfered and both the claimants were lodged in the city prison. Claimant "Number One" was released upon bail, and married the widow, while the other was lamenting his hard fate in confinement. Claimant "Number Two" took passage for Nicaragua.—S. F. Herald

Great Failure in London C. W.

Dr. Kermott.

On Tuesday last a rumor ran through the city that the house of Kermott & Co., had stopped payment. People, however, on that day, mentioned the circumstance cautiously, and most persons who communicated the intelligence did so with a warning not to mention the name of the informant. On the following day, Wednesday, however, the news was general, and little knots of people might be seen gathered about the corners of the streets, and talking with much excitement about the great "burst up." Kermott, known as Doctor Kermott, however, walked about the streets with a bold and frank air, and when addressed by importunate and angry creditors, listening to what they had to say with the greatest patience, assured them that all would be right; and that he was merely suffering from a temporary pressure, owing to the stringency of the money market and the unaccommodating spirit of the banks. Meantime the monied partner, an old gentleman named Anson Strong, was appealed to, entreated, and threatened successively by the creditors, and he, after much compunction, "confessed judgement" for a considerable amount of real estate, his private and partnership property. Kermott was speedily served with a capias, but was speedily bailed out by two of the creditors, again he received a capias, and again was he bailed by the same gentlemen. This game failing, "the doctor" was let lone, and the railway station well watched, but the sharp worthy was still "too much" for his creditors. On Monday morning the bird had flown; Kermott was nowhere to be fuond, and how he had escaped none could tell.

Kermott & Co.'s failure is variously estimated; in all probability two hundred thousand dollars are the nearest mark; the private debts of the doctor, however are known to be very large, and it is only to be hoped that the liabilities of the firm are not more than those recorded in their books; in other words, that there is no paper out in the name of the firm of which Strong and Ogg knew nothing! How much Kermott has saved out of the wreck is only known to himself. For months he must have calculated on the failure, and yet in the most heartless manner he seduced his friends to loan their names repeatedly; banks were latterly weary of him, but on the paper which he obtained he easily got funds here, in Toronto, or in Hamilton, at the rate of three and a half per cent per month. In this manner he staved off the evil day, but by the method of postponement swindled his creditors the more.

Kermott was a native of New Brunswick, a waggon maker by trade, and followed his calling for years in the County of York, some miles north of Toronto. Subsequently he opened a tavern, and while following this occupation, a man one night came in his house with a number of horses which he was driving to a distant town, for the purpose of selling. The man got intoxicated and stayed at the tavern for several days in a state of semi-drunkenness, and while in this condition desired to make his departure. He had no money, however, and, as the story goes, Kermott took advantage of the muddled intellect of his guest, and proposed to him that he, Kermott, should sell the horses, pay himself, and hand the balance over to its owner. The fellow consented, and accordingly Kermott disposed of the horses, but never returned to his tavern where he left the swindled sot waiting for him. We believe this cheat was perpetrated in the States. Subsequently he was tried for forgery before the late Judge Sullivan, but acquitted on legal points at the direction of his lordship. Whether on account of the horse stealing affair, or some other, it is believed that Kermott is liable to be arrested at the other side, and the knowledge of this circumstance prevented many from believing that he would attept to escape to there.

Kermott resided in London for a period of over four years. In the name of the firm he launched largely into land speculation, and also did much on his own account, in the same time. He lived too in great style, and the theme of many, was the manner in which he had got on. With regard to his apparent success, the doctor once made a speech at a public dinner, in which he said "Some people state that I am worth $400,000; well, perhaps I am, and the same parties ask whether I had any capital or not when I commenced business in London. I say I had, gentleman, no lack of capital—but it was in brass;—I had brass, gentlemen, and there's nothing like it —believe me, 'tis a better metal to possess than silver or gold."

The local debts were chiefly contracted by parties who endorsed for the accomplished trickster. So late as last week, he got a gentleman to put his name on a note for a large amount, after he had franked him on a pleasure trip.—Middlesex Prototype.

IS THE SON OF LOUIS NAPOLEON HEIR TO THE FRENCH EMPIRE.

The New York Evening Post copies a treaty never before published in this country which was signed at Warsaw, in March 1852, by diplomatic representativas of Austria, Prussia, and Russia, by which they stipulated with each other that no descendant of Louis Napoleon should be regarded as the heir apparent to his crown. The empire, according to this arrangement, was to be Louis Napoleon's only for life, when he died, Russia, Austria, and Prussia pledged their word to each "to restore the legitimate heir to the throne," and to recognise no other, The following is a portion of the treaty:

"In the name of the Holy Trinity—

Their Majesties the Emperor of Austria, the King of Prussia, and the Emperor of Russia, considering that the laws of succession in the throne form the basis of European order, and that in this respect a community of reponsibility and interest exists betw en all European States;

For these and many other resons which it is superfluous to recount, the signers of this compact regard it as their duty, unanimously to assert beforehand, the attitude which they would assume in case any of the following contingencies should arise.

If Prince Louis Bonaparte, now President of the French Republic, should be named Emperor for life, by the voice of universal suffrage the powers will only recognize this new from of the elective empire, after having demanded from Prince Louis Bonaparte explanatior of the signification of this new title, ana after having drawn from him the pledge, first that he will respect existing treaties; second that he will not seek any increase of territory; and third, that he will forebear any pretension to found a dynasty.

In case Prince Louis Bonaparte should declare himself hereditary Emperor, the powers will not recognize the new Emperor, but will send to the French and all other governments a protestation, grounded on principles of public right, and the literal interpretation of treaties. They will then, according to circumstances, consult upon new measures.

In the case that the rising of the people or army shall overthrow the government of Prince Louis Bonaparte, or in case he should die, the powers pledge themselves to favor the restoration of the heir to the legitimate throne by all means in their power, and to recognize in future no dynasty but that of the Bourbons."

A new phase of the Central American embroglio has just appeared. Some apocraphal correspondence, which is alleged to have fallen into the hands of that model regenerator of mankind, WALKER of fillibustering notoriety, is held to establish that Lord CLARENDON, of the British Foreign Office, has supplied the Government of Costa Rica with two thousand muskets to be used in its defence against the assaults of a marauding force. From this circumstance, some American journals rush to the conclusion that, instead of merely fighting an insignificant power, the redoubtable WALKER is in reality at war with Great Britain. Some of them, however, admit that there is considerable danger that the whole pretended discovery may be a clumsy forgery. The very appearance of the correspondence in question was enough to throw the United States Senate into a paroxism of indignation. Mr. WELLER was more than half persuaded that a genuine mare's nest had been found; he was quite inclined to adopt the notion that there was proof positive, new and damnable, of British interference in the forbidden affairs of Central America. DOUGLAS was fully convinced that the whole thing was only a part of that systematic violation of treaties which he ascribed to Great Britain, at all times and in every part of the globe. The more candid of the American journals, however, are evidently ashamed of this treatment of the question by Senator DOUGLAS; and the New York Times is led to confess that it cannot "guess" in what part of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty "any provision against such "acts as this charged upon Lord CLAREN-"DON is to be found." DOUGLAS is for war forthwith; the New York journal thinks the casus belli has not been well made out, and is content to act upon the more pacific advice of Senator SEWARD to wait till it be shown whether the published correspondence be genuine or not. A declaration of war is therefore not yet made. Let drooping stocks look up and gloomy minds get cheerful.

Colonial Constitutions.

Mr. Murray, the London publisher, has just issued a work by Mr. Arthur Mills, on the various governments of the British dependencies. We find it thus received in one of our English weeklies. The subject will interest not a few of our readers.—Albion.

The English nation has been conquering and colonising for nearly three hundred years, and though some of its colonies have been lost, and others ruined, the result is, that it possesses more than a seventh of the habitable globe. Considering these circumstances, it is remarkable that we have had no Colonial History. The gradual acquisition of India has been frequently described upon an elaborate plan; attention has been bestowed, also, on the North American Colonies and on separate territories on the East, West and South; but the great historical series, with its fascinating episodes of discovery, settlement, conflict, has been completely and unaccountably neglected. For a summary we still depend on Heeran, for Martin's unwieldy complications are neither readable nor trustworthy. Mr. Arthur Mills, studying this undeveloped subject, presents a dry, but systemmatic epitome of the Constitutional History of the British Dependencies, and of the political relations actually existing between them and the political executive in London. This volume though in no sense supplying the place of a Colonial History, is a well-arranged manual, clear, concise and authentic. In an introductory chapter the open questions of policy connected with our Colonial system are recapitulated, with comparative notes, from ancient and modern annals in illustration of certain parallels which Mr. Mills undertakes to justify or destroy. He next reviews historically the relations between the Home and Colonial Governments, as effected by original charters, by conquests, cessions, or discoveries, separates those dependencies possessing Constitutions from those under the control of councils, companies or military governors, and analyses the power of the local assemblies, the remnants of prerogative, and other details connected with Colonial policy and administration. Upon this well-prepared basis, Mr. Mills proceeds to examine in several groups, the political condition of the European, Asiatic, African, American, and Australirn dependencies of Great Britain, regarding Mauritius and St. Helena as African, and the Antilles and the Falkland Isles as American dependencies.

Six reasons have been given why a State should retain its colonies; that it may levy tribute from them; that they may contribute to its defence in time of war; that they may increase its agricultural and mineral riches; that they may furnish it with markets; that they may nurse a school of seamen engaged in the carrying trade; that they may draw off its redundant or criminal transportation. Which of these advantages, asks Mr. Mills, does Great Britain derive from her present colonial policy? When she once attempted to tax her colonies, she lost them. Even her Eastern conquests yield nothing to the imperial revenue. In time of war, she has invariably had to defend her transmarine settlements, and it was a new phase in her history, that during the Russian conflict, Canada and Australia offered to strengthen her arms by contributions of men and money. The territorial revenues have been, for the most part, surrendered to the control of the Local Legislatures. The advantages of exclusive commerce with the Colonies are being gradually given up in favour of the more generous and far-sighted policy of free trade. Differential duties, one by one, are abolished, so that Brazil and the United States will, in process of time, stand to Great Britain exactly in the same relation, commercially, as Canada or Jamaica. In the same way, the repeal of the Navigation Laws has destroyed the privilege of an exclusive carrying trade. As fields of emigration, notwithstanding the happy situation and unsurpassed resources of Canada, and the golden perspective of Australia, these colonies do not compete successfully with the United States. The majority of emigrants, instead of becoming colonists, carrying few English rights beyond the seas, have preferred to become citizens of America.

The results of a more liberal policy in the British Colonies have yet to be ascertained. As to the transportation of convicts, it is a plan violently in dispute, being by some regarded as the propagation of a curse, by others as the legitimate use of a colony.—The British dependencies, then, involve, on the whole, an expenditure of imperial revenues, amounting to three millions sterling annually, will confer, in future, no patents of exclusive commerce, have not attracted so many emigrants as the United States of North America, and cannot long form receptacles of our criminal population. In what, then, consists their value? Whatever may be said, their progress has been simultaneous with that of the political and commercial prosperity of the Empire, while other nations, losing their colonies, have lost at the same time their rank, their influence, all that made them flourish in peace or war.—As long as Portugal held her chain of forts and factories along the coast of India and Africa, and in the Malayan Archipelago, she rivalled in power and opulence the fore most states of the world, and it was not the extravagant expansion, but the vicious organization of her empire that sapped its basis, and led to its prostration. Arbitrary force, monopoly, and bigotry, were the principles of Portuguese rule: and as long as the world was satisfied with bigotry, monopoly, and arbitrary force, less than forty thousand soldiers of Portugal held in subjection the whole coast of the ocean from China to Morocco, and extorted tribute from a hundred and fifty sovereign princes.—Now, the Azores and Madeira, Angola and Mozambique, an Indian and a Chinese factory, and a few slave-depots in Africa, are the relics of that corrupt dominion. Spain, at first more politic, but as absolute, as avaricious, and as fanatical, was not enfeebled by the expansion of her forces, or by the possession of the South American Territories, but by the decay of her political faculties, which struck a lethargy into the limbs of the Empire. The French and the Dutch have both lost their principal colonies; but they never adopted a policy like that which is now the recognised basis of the British Colonial system. They treated their Colonists as subjects, without the claims of citizenship, and the Colonists, amid the collisions of the maritime powers, did not adhere to the parent State with that tenacity with which almost every British dependency, during the last general war, adhered in content and tranquillity to the British Empire.

Thirty-eight Colonial Governments are subordinated to the Colonial Office, three in Europe, three in Asia, eighteen in Africa, seventeen in America, six in Australia, in addition to others peculiarly constituted.—They are distributed into dependencies possessing representative institutions under grants or Charters, as Jamaica, and all the older West Indian Colonies, the North American Colonies, excepting Canada and Newfoundland, the Cape of Good Hope, and Malta, dependencies obtained by conquest, known as Crown Colonies and governed by the Crown, as Gibraltar, Heligoland, Labuan, Ceylon, Mauritius, Natal, Kaffraria, Trinidad, St. Lucia, and dependencies provided by Act of Parliament with separate constitutions, as Canada, Newfoundland, the Australian colonies, New Zealand, the Western African Settlements, St. Helena, the Falkland Isles, Hong Kong, and the territories of the East India Company. Mr. Mills devotes to each of these Constitutions a separate chapter or explanatory section, enabling the student of colonial politics to understand, at a glance, the results of all the legislation that has taken place, for the establishment of local assemblies and executives, either grafted upon the privileges conferred by ancient Charters, or conceded to young communities, animated by a popular spirit, conscious of their importance and disdainful of arbitrary control.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

SANDWICH, MAY 16, 1856.

The Government, after wading thus far through the session of troubles, has at length got fairly into a bed of quick sands which will most likely have the effect of smothering the curious mixture which compose the Coalition, for in it may be found every shade of political humbug from the rank radical to the high conservative; and with such a strange composition one can hardly wonder that a sad fix should be the fate which awaits them. Having patched and spliced almost every measure which has passed and become law, to suit, of course, the views of both radicals and clear grits' rouges and conservatives, we may expect a beautiful system of accommodation in our next statute book, a fine composition of milk and water laws. But the great stumbling block in the way at present is the Grand Trunk affair; although the present ministry should not be blamed for the unfortunate position in which the vince is placed through the recklessness of Mr. Hincks in this undertaking, but for this they are to blame, for not taking a bold stand as in the case of the other Provinces where the works were taken from the contractors so soon as the cry of no funds was made by them, and we doubt not that it would have been better to have done so in Canada, for others could easily be found to undertake the construction of the Grand Trunk with the Provincial guarantee.

Lotteries in general we have always disapproved of, but when one comes recommended as Bates' Tirage does, we cannot help passing over our scruples. The names are a sufficient guarantee that there will be nothing unfair, and that the property which is to be drawn for is very valuable we cannot doubt, for a number of gentlemen have informed us who are thoroughly acquainted with the lands, and if persons are not satisfied, by calling on Mr. McEwan every information will be given. Five dollars invested in a ticket may return a handsome little fortune. We would advise those who wish tickets to procure them at once, as we have only a few remaining on hand.

Tickets to be had at this office, and see advertisement in another column.

☞ Mr. Caley's new tariff will not come into effect until the 5th July next.

WHEAT.—We are happy to hear that the fall wheat is looking remarkably well in this county, although the season is somewhat backward, yet from almost all the townhsips we have had flattering accounts. The prospect is at present that there will be a larger crop than usual.

BREEDING FISH.—The Sandusky Register says immense numbers of White Fish last fall were cleaned on the dock, and the offal and spawn thrown into the Bay. This spawn has now hatched, and now around the docks may be seen millions of miniature white fish. Here is a fact in the breeding of fish which the knowing ones ought to investigate; for if fish can be cleaned, and from the spawn hatching can be induced, what is the use of all the artificial arrangements now proposed to propagate fish?

DIED.—On Thursday week last, in the City of Detroit, Mr. Charles Kennedy, aged 45, brother of H. Kennedy, Esq., of Windsor. The deceased was much respected.

☞ Those who are fond of Malt Liquor, would do well to try half a barrel of the true and genuine article, which will always be found on hand at the Sandwich Brewery, which has been thoroughly repaired and placed in good working order. The present proprietors appear determined to manufacture an article which will give satisfaction.

☞ Mr. George Malotte is authorized to receive subscriptions for the "Maple Leaf" in the lower Townships; and such of our friends who have not already become subscribers, will have an opportunity of doing so in a few days when Mr. Malotte passes through.

ARRIVAL OF THE AMERICA.

Three days' Later from Europe.

HALIFAX, May 8, 1856.

The Royal Mail steamship America, Captain Wickman, from Liverpool on the afternoon of Saturday, 27th April, arrived here at 11 o'clock this morning.

On the 27th of April at 8½ p.m., the America passed the steamship Asia off Mizen Head, bound into Liverpool. On the 3rd of May at 10½ a.m., passed the brig Sally of Harrington, twenty-one days from Liverpool.

The America sailed at 1¾ p.m., with a light southerly wind, for Boston, where she will be due about midnight on Friday.

The Collins steamship Atlantic arrived out at Liverpool at 14 45 on the afternoon of Wednesday 23rd of April.

THE CENTRAL AMERICAN QUESTION.

The London Morning Star, an organ of the Manchester party, says: "We are told that at a meeting of the Cabinet on Tuesday, the 22nd, at which Lord Clarendon was present for the first time since his return from Paris, the answer to the United States was agreed upon. On some points connected with the Central American question, the British Government are prepared to give way, but they will not recall Mr. Crampton, and they are also prepared to commuuicate to the United States Government that they are unanimous in their determination to continue him in his present position as British Minister at Washington."

THE TREATY OF PEACE.

The London Daily News has succeeded in obtaining a copy of the text of the Peace document which is considered authentic.—It contains thirty-four articles.

The First restores perpetual friendship between Great Britain, Sardinia, Turkey, France and Russia.

Second: All territories conquered or occupied during the war shall be reciprocally evacuated as soon as possible.

Third: Russia restores to Turkey, Kars and all other parts of the Ottoman Territory.

Fourth: The Allies restore to Russia the towns and ports of Sebastopol, Balaklava, Kamiesch, Eupatoria and Kertsch.

Articles fifth, sixth seventh and eighth are wanting.

Ninth: The Sultan communicates to the powers his firman, granting equally to Christians, which the contracting powers much approve of, but divest themselves of all right thereby to interfere in the internal administration of the Government of the Ottoman Empire.

Tenth: The Convention of 13th July, 1841, closing the Bosphorus and Dardanelles is reaffirmed.

Eleventh: The Black Sea is neutralized and forever forbidden to ships of war of every power, adjoining or distant, with the exceptions specified in articles 14th and 19th.

Twelfth: Trade shall be free in the Black Sea waters, and ports subject only to police regulations, Russia and Turkey admitting Consuls to all ports on its shores.

Thirteenth: The Black Sea being neutralized, strongholds become useless: consequently Turkey and Russia agree neither to construct nor preserve any military maritime arsenals on the coast.

Fourteenth: The Convention regulating the force of ships for coast services is concluded individually between Turkey and Russia, but is appended to this treaty, and cannot be altered without general assent.

Fifteenth: The act of the Congress of Vienna relative to river navigation is applied to the Danube and its mouths, and its freedom becomes a part of the law of Empire.

Sixteenth: To carry article fifteen into effect France, Austria, Great Britain, Prussia, Russia and Turkey, appoint each a delegate to put the river in a navigable state from Isatchi to Sza.

Seventeenth: Austria, Bavaria, Turkey and Wurtemburg, add each a delegate to the Principalities commission to form a permanent commission to keep the river navigable and superintend its police.

Eighteenth: The named general commission will be dissoved in two years and the permanent commission take its place.

Nineteenth: Each of the contracting powers may station two small ships at the mouth of the Danube.

Twentieth: Russia assents to the rectification of the Bessarabian frontier. The new frontier starts from the Black Sea, one mile east of Lake Bonono Sola, to the Ackerman Road, along which it extends to the Valley of Trajan, passing south of Belgrade, and reascends to the river Yalpack to Savatsika, and terminates at Kamara on the river Pruth. Elsewhere it is unchanged.

Twenty-first: This ceded territory is annexed to Moldavia.

Twenty-second: Moldavia and Wallachia continue under the sovereignty of Turkey, with the guarantee of all the contracting Powers that no Power shall claim the individual right of interference.

Twenty-third: The Porte guarrantees to the Principalities the continuance of the freedom of religion and commerce. The contracting Powers appoint a commission to meet immediately at Bucharest to report on the present condition and wants of the Principalities.

Twenty fourth: The Porte will immediately convoke a Divan in each Principality to learn the wishes of the people as to their definite organization.

Twenty-fifth: Minutes thereof shall be sent to Paris, where the Constitution shall be framed, which the Porte shall promulgate.

Twenty-sixth: The Principalities shall maintain a militia, and may construct works of defence approved by the Porte.

Twenty-seventh: If the internal tranquility of the Principalities be disturbed the Porte must consult the contracting Powers, and cannot employ armed intervention without their consent.

Twenty-eighth: Servia continues a dependency of the Porte, under the guaranty of the Powers, and retains its national administration, and freedom of religion and trade.

Twenty-ninth: The right of garrison in Servia is reserved to the Porte, but no armed intervention is permitted without the consent of the Powers.

Thirtieth: Russia and Turkey retain their possession in Asia, precisely as before the war; but their frontiers are to be marked out by survey.

Thirty-first: The evacuation of Turkey by the allied and Austrian forces shall take place as soon as convenient. The time and manner of such evacuation shall be the subject of private arrangement between each of the powers and Turkey.

Thirty-second: Until new arrrngements shall be made, trade shall go on as before the war.

Thirty-third: A convention (contents secret,) concluded between France, England and Russia, respecting the Aland Isles, shall be appended to this treaty.

Thirty-fourth: The ratifications shall be exchunged at Paris within four weeks.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The London Sun publishes the treaty of peace with a mourning border, and heads an editorial respecting the fleet, "Our glory and our shame," exciting thereby much indignation among contemporaries.

Lord Clarendon laid on the table of the Lords, and Palmerston on the Commons' the correspondence relating to Central America, and stated that the enlistment papers would be ready in a few days.

Lord Lyndhurst has given notice of a motion to enquire into the condition of Italy, and Lord Malmesbury for a vote of censure on the Government for the fall of Kars.

The ship Orion at Liverpool, saw ice April 6, in lat. 42. lon. 38, and a large number of spars drifting about, which had been sometime in the water.

FRANCE.

An Imperial decree orders a further reduction of the army. It is rumored that Lord Cowley will be British Minister at St. Petersburg, and that Lord Stanhope will succeed him at Paris.

Count Morney goes an ambassador to Russia to attend the Czar's coronation.

TURKEY.

The French have evacuated Kinburn.—The French and Sardinians are already embarking from the Crimea.

RUSSIA.

Prince Gortschakoff, from Vienna, succeeds, Count Nesselrode as Minister.

The army is being reduced.

Cronstadt is expected to be free from ice by the 13th to 20th of May, and Riga by the 25th of April at the latest.

PERSIA.

All difficulty with England is in the way of settlement. Accounts from Teheran say that the Americans are endeavoring to procure a treaty of commerce with the United States.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

LIVERPOOOL COTTON MARKET.—The Brokers' Circular reports an active market, and an advance in prices as compared with the quotations of the previous Friday, of ⅛d ℔ lb. the improvement being prinicipally in the middling qualities. The official quotations are: New Orleans Middling, 67-16d; Fair, 7d; Uplands Middling, 6¼c; Fair, 6⅝d; Mobile, middling, 6¼c; Fair 6½; Ordinary to Good, 5½ a ⅝d; Inferior, 4¼ a 5¼. The sales of the week amounted to 89,000 bales, of which speculators took 33,000 and exporters 7,000 on on speculation and for export, the market closing quiet at the above prices.

The stock in port was estimated at 514,500 bales, of which 308,500 was American. The trade was supposed to have a good supply on hand.

STATE OF TRADE IN MANCHESTER.—Buyers of goods and yarns were demanding a reduction from the current rates, but no concession had been made.

LIVERPOOL BREADSTUFFS MARKET.—The brokers' circular reports the market for Flour stiffer and prices a trifle higher than at the departure of the Persia. It calls Western Canal 26s to 32s; Ohio, 34s a 35s 6d. Wheat quiet at former rates. Corn 1s a 1s 5d higher; all descriptions selling at 29s a 30s, the quantity on immediate offer being small. Messrs. Brown, Shipley & Co. quote Philadelphia and Baltimore at 32s a 34s, Canadian 29s 6d a 30s 6d: Ohio 35s; White Wheat 10s a 10s 6d; Red 9s 2d a 9s 9d. Some circulars quote White Wheat at 9s 8d a 11s, and Red 9s a 10s.

LONDON MARKETS.—Messrs. Barings Bro. & Co. report Sugars firm and a large business doing at 6d. advance. Office unchanged. Breadstuffs in moderate demand at previous rates. Flour 32s. a 38s.; white wheat, 65s. a 69s; Red 63s. a 67s. Tea dull at 9⅝d a 9d. for Congon. Linseed Oil—sales at 29s. but quoted at the close at 30s. Rice dull. Tallow—Sales Y. C. at 47s. on the spot, and 46s. 6d. to arrive. Spirits Turpentine a shade lower; sales at 52s—Iron Market firm for Bars and Rails; Bars quoted at £8,5s. a £8, 7s 6d. Rails, £87s. 6d. a £8 10s. Scotch Pig a shade lower; sales at 73s. 6d. English Tin, Lead and Spelter firm at former rates.

HAVRE MARKETS.—The sales of Cotton for the week ending April 22nd inclusive were 12,000 bales, and the imports of the same period were 2,000 bales; stock on hand, 105,000 bales. New Orleans tres ordinaire quoted at 95f. Breadstuffs unchanged; moderated business. Provisions dull, but no change in quotations. Lard 69½@71f. Sugar. 60f. on the spot and to arrive. Whalebone firm, with an upward tendency. North-Western. 300f 90c: Polar, 400f. 17c. The reports from the manufacturing districts of France are less favorable, and a general dullness prevails.

THE LATEST LIVERPOOL MARKETS.—Liverpool, Saturday, 26th, 12m. The sales of Cotton to-day are estimated at about 8,000 bales, without any change in quotations.

BREADSTUFFS in moderate demand at the quotations.

FURTHER BY THE CANADIAN STEAMSHIP AMERICAN AND HERMANN.

THE EAST.

The last mail from the East states that the insurgents against the Porte in Arabia have suffered so much from cholera as almost to put down the insurrection. The reports affirm that 13,000 have died out of an insurgent tribe of 45,000.

Letters from the camp in the Crimea have been received to the 8th instant.—The preparations for the departure of the army continue actively, and already several hundreds of the Army Water Corps have been shipped at Balaclava, and have gone on their way homewards. It is said that the Guards are to be the first to embark at Balaclava for England. The troops at Kinburn, Eupatoria and Kertch will leave immediately. A system of passes has been organized to facilitate the communications between the Russians and the allied armies. Large numbers of Russians visit the English Camp, indulge very freely in liquor, and are soon staggering about in all directions.

The correspondent of the Morning Herald says:

"Russians are now seen all over the camp of the Allies, riding along our roads, making purchases at Little Kamiesch, dining with us, and sleeping in our huts. The Commandant of Bil-boquet breakfasted yesterday with the Zouaves,—five of which corps had, the day before, paid a visit to that battery. The theatre at Kamiesch, on Sunday, was well attended by Russian officers. At head quarters, some "notables" have dined with General Codrington, one of whom is said to have been Luders himself. The French held a grand review, the day before yesterday, of the first and second divisons, near Traktir; and here, again, there was a large muster of Russian officers."

It is calculated that the Russians fired about 30,000 tons of iron at the armies of the Allies before Sebastopol. It is certain that we gave them about 11,000 in return, and possibly the French fired about 20,000 tons: so that between 60,000 and 70,000 tons weight of iron must be lying about on he plateau before Sebastopol.

We learn from St Petersburgh, that by an Imperial order, the army is replaced on the peace footing. The troops in the Crimea are hereafter to form two armies—one under the command of General Gortschakoff, and the other under that of General Luders

A despatch from General Pelissier, dated Sebastopol, April 18, is as follows:—"Yesterday, I reviewed the entire army of the Crimea. General Luders, a considerable number of Russian officers, Generals Codrington and De La Marmora, were present at this military fete. The epidemic has ceased in the Crimea."

To accelerate the evacuation, a portion of the English fleet, originally intended for the Baltic, was expected at Constantinople. The papers state that two regiments of English cavalry would leave in May for the East Indies, and that two divisions, under General Campbell, would be sent to Canada."

DESPATCHES FROM GENERAL CODRINGTON.

The London Gazette contains despatches from General Codrington, dated the 7th and 8th inst., with enclosures.

General Codrington forwards a letter from Prince Bebatoff, at Tiflis, showing that General Williams had recovered, so it was not necessary for Dr. M'Illree to go to Tiflis; nor did the Russians seem to have wished that he should pass their lines. The armistice was established in Asia. General Codrington speaks in the highest terms of Dr. M'Illree's rervices.

Dr. Hall reports the sanitary condition of the army of the week to the 7th as very satisfactory. The ratio of sick had not increased, but the weather had been sometimes very severe.

The Court Journal says that the entrance of the Guards into London will be made the occasion of the first distribution of the new Order of Valour—"The Victoria Cross"—with which it is likely Her Majesty will, in person, decorate the soldiers of those Regiments who may have been previously declared entitled to the honour.

CHANGES AT THE HORSE GUARDS.—It is confidently belived in military circles that Lord Panmure, the Secretary of State for War, and Field Marshal Lord Hardinge, Commander-in Chief, will resign their appointments soon after the breaking up of the Military Court of Inquiry.—United Service Gazette.

THE NAVAL REVIEW AT SPITHEAD.

The two days which the "Hermann" passed at Southampton, on her return from Bremen, were days of intense excitement and amusement to all on board, owing to the grand naval review which took place off Spithead, and to which every train brought gaping "John Bulls," with their wives and children until, though a vast number spent the night in the steamers in the dock, sleeping room became so scarce in the city, that in many cases a guinea was paid for permission to sleep on the floor. Indeed, we have heard that persons coming in the late trains were forced to pass the night wandering through the streets.

The fleet, as the Hermann passed through it on the night of the 21st, on her way from Bremen, presented a truly brilliant spectacle, consisting as it did of some one hundred of England's screw steamships, drawn up in parallel lines of four or five miles in length, flanked on either side by an indefinite number of her new steam gun boats. As the Hermann passed between these two long lines of Old England's "wooden walls," whose solemn silence was only broken by the two bells announcing 1 o'clock A. M., passing from ship to ship until lost in the distance, a most vivid idea of the power and vigilance of our "mother country" was impressed upon all who had remained upon deck.

The morning of the 23rd opened beautifully—a circumstance which favoured the English superstitious notion that good weather always attends Victoria—and the crowds of strangers increased until the docks and all the neighbouring streets were swarming with life. Some thirty iron screw steamships, of the largest of England's merchant marine, lay in the dock—some engaged by government for the Houses of Parliament, others for distinguished officers and the nobility, others still, in the service of speculators. All were crowded before ten a.m., and had left the dock, on their way down the beautiful Southampton water. The screw steamship Himalaya, one of the government vessels, and one of the largest in the world, must have had a thousand passengers on board; and some of the vessels in the hands of speculators, must have yielded, for passage money alone, at a guinea a head, a very handsome profit. The Hermann followed some three hours later, having waited until 1½ p.m. for her mails.—The passengers had a fine opportunity of witnessing a portion of the review, (as she passed down on her way to sea,) which was just at its height; since the Queen's arrival had been delayed by an accident to a train on the road, which delayed that to which the royal car was attached—which detention, we presume, must have interfered with the proceedings of the day, as the attack was not made upon South Sea Castle which was to be the grand feature in the review.

On arriving at the scene of the naval display the two long lines were in motion, passing in regular order down the Solent to the spot where the royal yacht and others were laying; as as the ships successively reached the pivot-ships, each column, after passing between them, turned outwards round these ships, starboard column turning to starboard and the port column to port, manning the rigging, cheering and saluting the royal yacht as she passed. When the Hermann took her departure the whole fleet were pouring forth their broadsides.

FURTHER BY THE ATLANTIC.

New York, May 12.

PEACE TREATY.

The peace treaty has been officially published. It is the same as that already published, but the missing articles 5, 6, 7, and 8, are now added.—Articles 5 and 6 provide a general amnesty and exchanging of prisoners, while articles 7 and 8, admit Turkey to the public law and political system of Europe,—secure her independence and territorial integrity, and engage each contracting power in the event of any serious misunderstanding with the Porte, not to proceed to force till they have given the other powers an opportunity of mediating.

GREAT BRITAIN.

In the House of Lords, the treaty of peace was to be taken into consideration, on Monday, 5th May.

Sunday, 4th May, was appointed a day of thanksgiving for the restoration of peace.

Col. French asked the Government whether the islands at the mouth of the Danube which were not ceded with Bessarabia by Russia in 1839, after the treaty of adrianople, were now to be restored to Turkey?

Lord Palmerston said he would enquire into the subject, and give an answer at an early day.

Lord Clarendon addressed Lord Lyndhurst with respect to the Austrian occupation of Italy, and asked him to postpone it for the present. The request was made on public grounds alone.

Lord Lyndhurst consented to postpone the motion.

Mr. Whiteside, in the Commons, moved that the capture of Kars and surrender of the army which defended it, were in great measure owing to the want of energy on the hart of her Majesty's Administration.—Mr. Whiteside supported his motion in a very effective speech. After an evening's delate the motion was adjourned.

CRIMEA.

One-half of the Sardinian soldiers had already left.

Marshal Pelissier was to return home at the end of the month.

General Luders and Pelissier had exchanged visits of courtesy.

The weather was cool and the health of the troops improving.

SYRIA.

Serious disturbances had occurred at Naplous.

As Rev. Mr. Hyde, missonary, was leaving Naplous, a half witted Arab, who was considered holy, demanded alms, and on being refused, seized his gun, which unfortunately exploded, and killed the man.

The Arab population immediately rose, and plundered the house of the English Consul.

The English school and a Greek church were torn down, and the disturbance ended by killing the father of the Russian Consul, who was trying to defend the property of the English. Mr. Hyde took refuge in the Governor's house, and was brought to Jerusalem by an escort of cavalry, sent for him by the Pacha.

The north of Syria is in a very disturbed state.

INDIA AND CHINA.

Despatches have been received. The Santhall rebellion is quite subdued and all is quiet. The King of Oude had left on his way to England.

Persia is quiet.

Trade in India had improved.

The Chinese imperial troops have sustaind a defeat, and the insurrection is active at Shanghai.

REVOLTING AND UNNATURAL. TREATMENT.

One of the most cruel and heartless cases that it has ever been our fate to be made acquainted has recently taken place. One afternoon, about a week ago, as Mr. Charles Wood was on his way to Chatham, and nearly a half a mile West of the Village of Buxton, on the Middle Road, his attention was drawn to two young children of the respective ages of seven and ten years, who were slowlyand tiresomely approaching Buxton. Upon taking them into his carriage he ascertained that they had been deserted by their worse than brutal parents. It appears that the parents had left Windsor on the morning of the previous day and had proceeded as far as West Tilbury, near Simonton's Tavern, when night overtaking them they camped in the woods at the roadside. At early dawn on the following day, while the children were yet asleep, their unnatural parents harnessed their horses and drove away, leaving their almost helpless offspring some distance from any habitation, to care for themselves as best they could. The little boys were immediately brought to Chatham by the above named humane gentleman, from hence they were taken by other parties towards London with the hope that their parents might be overtaken and made to suffer a merited punishment at the hands of law and justice.—Planet

The Queen's Birthday.—In various parts of the country, we hear of intended preparations for celebrating the anniversary of the birth of our Most Gracious Queen with becoming respect. There is as yet no visible sign of a general movement for keeping up the well known loyal character of the inhabitants of this city. We understand the Artillery Company intend turning out in full force, and the thunder of their guns will reverberate through the air and do honor to the day. The members of the two Volunteer Rifle Companies are also anxious to join in a proper manifestation, but it is very doubtful if their arms and accoutrements will arrive in time. We have no doubt they would otherwise make an imposing display. It is to be hoped the Fire Companies and other organized bodies will not be backward.—Ham. Gazette.

First Arrival at Quebec.—The Queen of the Lakes, the first vessel from the sea, arrived at Quebec on the 28th ultimo.

SANDWICH MARKET.

"Maple Leaf" Office,	May 16th	1856
Flour Best warranted,	$ 7 00	$ 7 50
" 2nd quality	5 00	5 50
Buckwheat Flour,	2 00	0 00
Rye "	2 00	2 50
Timothy Seed,		4 00
Clover,		10 00
Corn Meal per 100	1 50	2 00
Corn per bushel, 56lbs.	0 51	0 00
Oats „ do 34lbs.	0 37½	0 00
Potatoes do	0 37	0 00
Wheat do 60lbs,	1 00	1 25
Barley do 48lbs,	0 75	0 00
Hay per Ton	10 00	12 00
Straw per load	1 50	2 00
Wood per cord (Hard)	2 00	2 25
do Mixed	1 50	0 00
Pork per 100lbs.	7 00	0 00
Beef " "	7 00	0 00

DETROIT MARKET.

Flour.—$5.25.
Wheat.—$1.
Corn.—47c for small lots.
Oats.—36 @ 37½ cts.
Cheese.—best quality 15 cts.
Eggs.—12 cts. ℔ doz.

DIVISION COURTS FOR ESSEX.

1st. Sandwich, 12th July, 1856.
2nd. Amherstburg, 12th June.
3rd Kingsville, 16th June.
4th. Colchester, 14th June,
5th. Mersea, 18th June.
6th. Simon's, Middle Road, 17th July.

AUCTION.

WILL be sold without reserve, by Public Auction, at the store of Mr. William G. Duff, commencing on the 20th instant, and on the following days until all his large Stock, consisting of

DryGoods, Crockery & Hardware

is all disposed of.

Terms of Sale :—All sums under £5, cash ; £5 to £10, three months ; £10 to £20, six months ; £20 and upwards, nine months' credit, with approved notes.

LAFFERTY & JONES, Auctioneers.
Amherstburg, 13th May, 1856.

All orders left with the undersigned, will be punctually attended to, and on the most liberal terms.

LAFFERTY & JONES.

THE QUESTION
IS NOW SETTLED
WHERE THE CHEAPEST
GOODS
CAN BE BOUGHT
IT IS AT
NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE,
Which has obtained universal
SUCCESS

The Proprietor offers for sale, at a small advance from the original cost,

A LARGE STOCK OF DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
HARDWARE,
CROCKERY, READY-MADE
CLOTHING,
Boots Shoes

AND A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF MILLINERY AND DRESS
TRIMMINGS,
BONNETS
In great varieties,
JUST OPEN AND FOR SALE
CHEAP FOR CASH
NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE.
L. P. ST. AMOUR

The safest and most valuable Scheme ever offered to the Public.

BATES'
TIRAGE AU SORT,
VALUE $64,000!
Tickets Five Dollars Each.
A Prize to every 20th Ticket!

DRAWING TO TAKE PLACE AT
Brockville, C. W., on the 28th Inst.

TOTAL SUMMARY OF PRIZES.

1	Prize of	£3,125	0	is	£3,125	0
1	do	1,027	10	is	1,027	10
1	do	1,025	0	is	1,025	0
1	do	900	0	is	900	0
1	do	850	0	is	850	0
1	do	625	0	is	625	0
1	do	350	0	is	350	0
1	do	212	10	is	212	10
1	do	187	10	is	187	10
1	do	125	0	is	125	0
1	do	100	0	is	100	0
1	do	82	10	is	82	10
1	do	67	10	is	67	10
2	do	65	0	is	130	0
1	do	60	0	is	60	0
2	do	55	0	is	110	0
4	do	50	0	is	200	0
2	do	45	0	is	90	0
1	do	40	0	is	40	0
27	do	37	10	is	1,012	10
10	do	35	0	is	350	0
3	do	32	10	is	97	10
13	do	30	0	is	390	0
4	do	27	10	is	110	10
42	do	25	0	is	1,050	0
2	do	22	10	is	45	0
21	do	20	0	is	420	0
22	do	17	10	is	385	0
20	do	15	0	is	300	0
44	do	12	10	is	550	0
48	do	10	0	is	480	0
11	do	8	0	is	88	0
87	do	7	10	is	652	10
20	do	6	5	is	125	0
2	do	6	0	is	12	0
51	do	5	0	is	255	0
60	do	3	10	is	210	0
128	do	1	5	is	160	0
640	Prizes.			Value,	£16,000	0

The Property proposed in this Scheme forms part of the most valuable property in Canada West, well adapted for Mill Sites, Farm Lots and Residences; the titles to the property are indisputable.

The drawing will take place under the superintendence of a Committee of Gentlemen of the highest respectability, character and standing in society, who will see that everything connected with this drawing is fairly and honestly attended to, and no person need fear but that his rights will be honourably and justly looked after by them.

The plans of the property, and all information thereof, and Tickets, can be had by applying to the Agents,

JOSIAH BRAY,
Hamilton.
JOHN McINTOSH,
Ancastor.

The following gentlemen, of the city have allowed their names to be mentioned as Referees, regarding the character and standing of the parties connected with the above scheme:

Thos. Lee, Esq., Bank of Montreal.
A. Stuart, Esq., Clerk of the Crown, &c,
C. Freeland, Esq., Commission Merch't
W. Leggo, Esq., Barrister.
J. Stewart, Esq., M'Nab st. Foundry
Hamilton, April, 1856.

FOR SALE.

THAT beautiful Cottage and about half an acre of ground, in the Town of Sandwich, being part of Lot No. 1, on the East side of Bedford street. This cottage is well adapted for a gentleman's residence, having excellent stables and coach house attached, and a few choice fruit trees are also upon the lot.

Terms easy, and will be made known by application to Mr. William Cowan, Sandwich, or Mr, Miles Cowan, Windsor.

MARY HALL.
Sandwich, 13th May, 1856.

STEAM COMMUNICATION BETWEEN
Liverpool and Canada.

Under Contract with the Provincial Government of Canada,
FOR THE CONVEYANCE OF MAILS

THE MONTREAL OCEAN STEAMship Company's First Class powerful Screw Steamships,

NORTH AMERICAN,
ANGLO SAXON,
INDIAN,
CANADIAN,
SARDINIAN,

Are intended to sail fortnightly during the ensuing season from LIVERPOOL for QUEBEC and MONTREAL.

The NORTH AMERICAN will leave Liverpool on WEDNESDAY the 23rd April next, and will leave Quebec, on her return voyage, on SATURDAY, the 24th May. The others will follow in regular succession

These steamers have been built expressly for the trade. They have splendid accommodation for passengers of all classes, and combining every requisite to insure quick passages.

For terms of freight or passage apply to Edmonstone, Allan & Co, Montreal.

Geo. Burns, Symes & Co., Quebec.
James & Alex. Allan, 82 St Enoch Square, Glasgow
Allan & Gillespie, Liverpool
Montgomery & Greenhorne, London.
John Glass, Ontario Hall, Toronto.
May 13th, 1856.

Canada Western Assurance
COMPANY.
Chartered by Act of Parliament.
Capital £100, 000.
in Shares of £10 each.
HOME OFFICE,
TORONTO.

President : I. C. Gilmor, Esq.
Vice-President : T. Haworth, Esq.
Secretary & Treasurer : R. Stanton, Esq.
Solicitor : A. Morrison, Esq.

DIRECTORS.
John Howcutt, Esq., GeorgeMichie, Esq., Rice Lewis, Esq., W. Henderson, Esq., M. P. Hayes, Esq., Hugh Miller, Esq., James Beaty, Esq.

Application for Fire Risks received at the Home Office, Toronto, on Wellington Street, opposite the Commercial Bank.

OFFICE HOURS, 10 A. M. TO 3 P. M.

Marine Risks Taken.

ISAAC C. GILMOR,
President.
Robert Stanton,
Secretary & Treasurer.
JOHN McCRAE, Agent at Windsor.

Equitable Fire Insurance Compy
OF LONDON.
CAPITAL, £5,000,000 STERLING.

DIRECTORS.
Archibald C. Barclay, Esq., Chairman.
Hugh Croft, Esq. Charles Bennett, Esq.
John Shaw, Esq. E. S. Symes, Esq.
John Moss, Esq. R. Gough, Esq.
Augustus Vinge, Esq Charles Seward, Esq.
Clement Tabor, Esq. P. Morris, Esq.

ACTUARY.
W. S. B. Wolhouse, Esq., F.R.A.S., &c.

SECRETARY.
W. H. PRESTON, Esq.

LOCAL DIRECTORS AT MONTREAL—Office, 17, Great St. James Street.
Wm. Lunn, Esq. Hon. W. Morris.
John Torrance, Esq. J. G. Mackenzie, Esq
J Fotheringham, Esq E. R. Fabre, Esq.
A. LaRoche, Esq. A. T. Galt, Esq.
Benj. Holmes, Esq. T. Hart, Esq.

GENERAL AGENT B.N.A. COLONIES,
Charles F Tilstone.
JOHN MACRAE,
Agent for Windsor and vicinity.

DISSOLUTION.

THE COPARTNERSHIP heretofore existing between the undersigned, under the name and style of Hunt, St. Louis and Co., is this day dissolved by mutual consent. The business of the late firm will be settled by C. H. and D. St. Louis.

WM. HUNT.
C. H. St LOUIS.
D. ST. LOUIS.
Sandwich, 1st March, 1856.

COPARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

THE Undersigned have this day formed a Co-Partnership under the name and style of C. H. and D. ST. LOUIS, for the purpose of doing business in the Retail Dry Goods, Grocery, Provision, Produce and General Merchandise line, as successors to Hunt; St. Louis & Co., at the Old Stand, opposite the Court House in the Town of Sandwich.

C. H. St. LOUIS.
D. St. LOUIS.
Sandwich, 1st March, 1856.

In connection with the above C. H. and D. St. Louis would inform the Inhabitants of Sandwich, its vicinity, and their customers generally that they have received this day, via Great Western Railway, a well-assorted stock of Merchandise in the line which they will dispose of on liberal terms for cash or Produce.

Sandwich, 8th May, 1856.

HIDES WANTED.

ANY Quantity of Hides will be taken in for the Sandwich Tannery at either of the Saddler's Shops in Sandwich or Windsor, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

JAS. WOODBRIDGE.

GUILLOT'S COLUMN,
FOR APRIL, 1856.

NEW
SPRING GOODS
JUST OPENED AT GUILLOT'S STORE
PER
GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY
WHICH HE NOW OFFERS AT THE LOWEST REMUNERATING PROFIT, FOR CASH.
PRINTS, in Variety,
PRINTED LAWNS & MUSLINS,
SILKS, SILK PARASOLS,
BLEACHED AND UNBLEACHED
COTTONS & SHEETING
HOSIERY, GLOVES,
CLOTHING,
COATINGS, TWEEDS,
TROWSERINGS,
LINENS,
DRILLS,
KOSSUTH HATS,
COTTON WARP,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
TICKINGS,
GINGHAMS,
CARPETING,
SHAWLS, &c., &c.
TOGETHER
WITH A GOOD ASSORTMENT OF
GROCERIES. CROCKERY,
SHELF HARDWARE, NAILS
ALSO,
THE XL FLOUR,
KEPT ON HAND FOR SALE
AT CURRENT PRICES.
CLOVER AND TIMOTHY
SEED.
H. C. GUILLOT,
SANDWICH, CANA DA

For the COUNTY OF ESSEX, for the Quarter ending 1st April, 1856.

NAME OF PROSECUTOR.	NAME OF DEFENDANT.	NATURE OF CHARGE.	DATE OF CONVICTION.	NAME OF CONVICTING JUSTICE	Amount of Penalty, Fine or Damage.	Fine when Paid, or to be Paid to said Justice.	To whom paid over by said Justice.	If not paid, why not and General Observations if any.
Harden Campbell,	Maria Chalton,	Assault,	31st Dec, 1855	A. Sidwill & J. G. Buchanan,	5s	15 days,	Township Treasurer
Eliza Thompson,	Thomas Sparks,	Assault and Battery.	4th January,	Thomas Woodbridge,	5s		Committed in	default for 20 days.
Thomas Salmoni,	George McCoy,	Do	Do	John G. Buchanan,	30s and costs,	10 days,	County Treasurer
Moses Bezeau,	George Shapper,	Do	24th	Thomas Woodbridge,	Costs,			Bound to keep the peace
Martin Strong,	Paschal Renaud,	Furious Driving,	26th	William Flanigan,	25s and costs		Township Treasurer
Benjamin Cunningham,	Martin Withers,	Assault,	26th	H Cuningham & F A Lafferty	2s 6d	26th January,	do
Harriet Washington,	Edward Moore,	Articles of the Peace,	26th	Thomas Woodbridge,			Bound to keep the	Peace Pl'tf paid costs
Leander Jolebois,	John B. Duvinier, Matthew Moynahan, and Thos Haley,	Assault and Battery,	30th	Thomas Woodbridge,	5s 10s 10s	Forthwith, do	Township Treasurer do	Too poor, impris. 10 days
James Harkin,	Laurent Rabideau, Paul Rabideau, Charles Rabideau, and Mark Rabideau,	Articles of the Peace,	1st February,	Henry McKenny,				Recognizances of the peace for 12 months.
James Harkin,	Mark Rabideau,	Assault,	2nd	Do	25s	20 days,	Treas of Amherstb'g
Charles Rabideau,	James Harkin,	Assault and Battery.	7th	F A Lafferty & James Noble	5s			Appealed to Sessions.
Agnus Humpstead,	Samuel Campbell,	Do	7th	Felix Lafferty,	10s	Forthwith,	Township Treasurer
Alexander Borrowman,	Jacob Hamilton,	Trespass,	7th	James Noble,	5s	do	do
Samuel Davy,	William Pines,	Assault and Battery,	17th	Cornelius R. Quick,	15s	2 weeks,	Treasurer	Not paid, left the country
James Foster,	James Dunn,	Articles of the Peace,	18th	Henry McKenny,			Recognizances of	the Peace for 12 months
Henry Crosby,	Joseph Mulder,	Assault and Battery,	19th	Cornelius R. Quick,	10s	Forthwith,	Treasurer,	Paid
Dr. Campbell and Monroe Evans,	George Oditt, Thomas Newcomb, George Sullivan and David Knox,	Assault and Battery on the Sabbath day,	30th January,	Thomas Woodbridge,	£1 5s each	Forthwith,	Township Treasurer	15s unpaid
L. J. Fluett,	James Ward,	Assault,	26th February,	Do	10s	do	do
H. M'Kenny,	P. Deslip.	Furious Driving on Highway	20th do	James Noble,	5s	do	do
John Thayer,	John Camble,	Biting,	20th do	Ralph Foster,				Costs paid by the Party.
Do	Oliver Wilkinson,	In the Fight holding Thayer's arm,	20th do	Ralph Foster,				Prosecutor paid costs immediately, parties set'ld
Julia Crosby,	Josiah Fletcher,	Assault,	28th do	Cornelius R. Quick,	5s	Forthwith,	Treasurer,	Paid.
George Thompson,	Calvin O. Brown,	Do	29th do	Do	5s	2 weeks,	do	Paid.
James Harkin,	Laurent Rabideau,	Do	1st March,	Henry McKenny,	£2 fine, £1 8 costs	20 days,		Appealed to Qr. Sessions
Philip McGuire,	George K. Robinson,	Non-payment of Wages,	3rd do	F. A. Lafferty and Jas Noble	£7 1s 3d	9th March,	Not paid yet.	No distress to be found.
George Crawford,	Thomas Cotton,	Trespass,	4th do	Felix A. Lafferty,	1s	8 days,	Not yet paid.	To be imprisoned.
Adla Ratelle,	Leandre Beniteau,	Non-payment of Wages,	17th do	F. A. Lafferty & Thos. Boyles,	£1 15s	23rd March,		Appealed to Sessions.
Alexander Martial,	John Hutchins,	Trespass,	20th do	Cornelius R. Quick,				Dismissed.
Eliza Crayan,	Francis Crayan,	Assault,	22nd do	Thomas Salmoni,	£2 10s and costs	8 days,	Treasurer,	Not paid.
James Harkin,	Laurence Rabideau,	Do	28th do	T. Salmoni & J. G. Kolfage,				Dismissed.
James Harkin,	Michael Rabideau,	Do	28th do	Do do	5s and costs.	6 days,	Treasurer	Not paid.

I certify the foregoing to be a True and correct Return as taken from the several Returns of Convictions filed in this Office, for the Quarter ending April 1st, 1856.
Office of the Clerk of the Peace, Sandwich, 8th April, 1856.

CHARLES BABY, CLERK PEACE ESSEX

Beacon
FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE CO
of London.

Incorporated under Act of Imperial Parliament, 7 and 8 Vic., Chap. 1.

CANADA BOARD.
KINGSTON.
TRUSTEES.
The Hon John A Macdonald.
James Morton, Esquire.

DIRECTORS:
M. W. Strange, Esq., Chairman,
Thos. A. Corbett, Esq., Deputy Chairman.
James Morton, Esq. John Mowatt, Esq
James Harty, Esq. A. J Macdonell, Esq.
Lewis Walbridge, Esq. T. Clarkson, Esq.

MONTREAL.
Wm. Molson, Esq. Thomas Evans, Esq.
Damase Masson, Esquire,

This Company Insures all descriptions of Buildings, Manufactories, Mills, &c. and Goods or Furniture in the same, against loss or damage by fire, on liberal terms. All descriptions of Life Risks, taken at as low rates as are consistent with security to the assured. Losses promptly settled without reference to England.

ALEX. GORDON,
Agent at Windsor for Western Frontier
March 7, 1856.

LOTS FOR SALE IN THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.

PART of Lot No. 3: on the west side of Bedford Street, with a good Store thereon. Also, Lots 7 and 8, adjoining the residence of L. J. Fluett, Esquire, with dwelling house and stables. These Lots will be sold subject to incumbrances.

For particulars apply to
J. H. WILKINSON.
Att'y for J. A. Vervais.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

TO LET OR FOR SALE.

A Brick House and Lot, on No. 4, East side of Main Street, fronting "Mears' Hotel." The above property will be leased for $150 a year; or, for particulars of sale apply to

STANISLAUS LASALINE.
Sandwich, 20th March, 1856.

Sandwich and Windsor Stage.
BY JOHN LEWIS.

THE Proprietor of this popular line has added a new Stage and first-rate horses, and will hereafter run an Hourly Stage to Windsor with speed and punctuality. He hopes to merit the patronage of the public.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

New Tailoring
ESTABLISHMENT.

THE Subscriber begs leave to notify the Public that he will carry on business in the building lately occupied by T. Murphy, opposite the Hennell Hotel, where he intends to carry on the Tailoring Business in all its branches, and hopes by strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage.

N. B.—He will receive the Report of Fashion monthly.

Cutting done to order.
W. T. BASSANDALE.
Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. &c. &c.
AT THE REGULATOR.

THE Subscribers would invite the attention of their Friends and the Public generally to their new and complete Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c., &c., which they are now offering low for cash.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

N.B.—The highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all kinds of Produce.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1846.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, TO WIT: BY virtue of a writ of Fieria Facias issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex against the lands and Tenements of Alfred Baby, and to me directed, at the suit of Dennis Ouellette, I have seized and taken the following lands and tenements, viz.:

Water Lot number three on the East, and Water Lots numbers three, four and fourteen West, and Land and Water Lots numbers thirteen and sixteen, all on the North side of Sandwich Street in the Village of Windsor, and being part of the Town plot of Windsor, as laid out on the estate of the late Francis Baby, Esquire, all which property, or the interest of the said Alfred Baby in and to the same, I will offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Monday the ninth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, at 12 o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY,
Sheriff Essex.
Sheriff's Office, Sandwich,
29th February, 1856.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

THE SANDWICH MILLINERY AND DRESS MAKIMG Establishment will be reopened for the season.

The Proprietor having just returned from the Eastern Cities with a Large Stock of Millinery and Dress Goods of the latest style and fashion, which he offers for sale at a small advance from their original Cost.

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE
L. P. ST. AMOUR.
Sandwich, Feb 29th, 1856.

Family Store

THE Subscriber keeps constantly on hand a large and well selected assortment of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware and Crockery,

at his old stand on Bedford Street, which he will sell, at a small advance upon cost, for Cash.

A large supply of the very best ... always on hand.

Produce and Cord Wood bought and ...

JOSEPH MILL...
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

New Harness and Saddlery Establishment.

A. C. ELLIS.

Every description of LIGHT and FA... BUGGY HARNESS, made in the ... fashionable styles.

HEAVY HARNESSES constantly on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.

SADDLES of every description made to order on the shortest notice.

CARRIAGE and BUGGY TRIMMING ... in a style not to be surpassed.

A large assortment of WHIPS also kept on hand.

In his Store, adjoining Mr Guillot's ... be found every description of Goods in ... line of business. Every endeavor w... made to give entire satisfaction to his customers.

N.B.—Cord Wood, Hides, and Pr... wanted, for which the highest price wi... given.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

NOTICE.

TO ALL IT MAY CONCERN.

ALL persons owing the subscriber ... hereby notified that payment mu... made on or before the 15th day of April if they wish to save the costs of collecti...

TO RENT.

The House and Premises in which the ... scriber lives. Terms $24 per quarter ... able in advance. Possession given o... first of May next.

GEORGE HA...
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

LOT No. Four, in the 4th Conces... Gosfield.

J. H. WILKINSO...
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

FOR SALE.
(ON TIME.)

AN Eighteen-Horse Power Engine ... Boiler complete. Apply to

GEO. BULLO...
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

Agriculture and Science.

Quick Return of Deep Drains.

At a recent meeting of the London Society of Arts, Mr. H. S. Thompson gave a very lucid illustration of the greater quickness of the deeper drain; and as his experiments throw considerable light upon the relations of air, soil and rain water, we subjoin a condensed statement of his description:—

It has for some time been known to practical men that deep drains begin to run, after rain, sooner than shallow ones:—a fact that has engaged the attention of the scientific drainer, but seldom, if ever, fully and satisfactorily explained. Mr. Thompson, with a view of solving the phenomenon, had several glass tubes made of different lengths, filled with soil, and tested the times at which they began to drip when water was poured on the soil at the top of the tubes at the same moment. If the soil was dry, the short tubes, which represented shallow drains, began to run first; but if water was again poured on the tubes before that previously poured on had all passed through, they began to drip again immediately that the second quantity of water was poured on and without waiting for the water last used to pass through the soil. This was owing to the elasticity of the air confined between the free water at the bottom and that at the top of the column of earth, and in this case all the tubes, of whatever length, began to drip at the same moment. If, however, the tubes, after the first application of water, were allowed to remain some weeks, the short tubes discharged the whole of the free water, but the long ones, representing deep drained land, still retained a little free water at the bottom of the column of earth and when water was again poured on at the top this free water was immediately discharged, or the deep drain began to run;—whereas the short tube, or shallow drain, having discharged all its free water, did not begin to drip for some time;—in fact, more till the water had percolated through the column of soil. This simple explanation seems fully to meet the case, and shows that there is no danger of making land too dry, as some have supposed by deep draining. Every additional foot of soil drained by the deep drain affords no less than 1200 tons of active earth per statute acre for the sustenation of plants.

Butter Making.--Sweet Cream.

A writer in the Ohio Farmer, discussing the propriety of allowing cream to turn sour before it is churned, says:

"If milk be churned as soon as drawn from the cows, an l butter be separated, the buttermilk will be found to contain acid though it may not taste very sour. Whether this lactic acid is a cause or an effect of the separation of the butter, has not been satisfactorily settled; but that it is always present after butter has been churned is a well ascertained fact, and this fact all scientific books on the dairy assert. Johnson, Ballantyne, Ayton and Traill, all teach that "butter made from sweet cream is therefore unprofitable."

We do not quite agree with this. We cannot imagine why the presence of a minute portion of lactic acid should be presumed without evidence to promote the gathering of the butter. That should be proved ere it is put forth. We know that nice tests often discover the presence of lactic acid in new milk, as the best reason for believing that the process of churning, by which the temperature of portions of the milk must be somewhat affected, should tend to increase the amount of acid. We are not satisfied that the presence of lactic acid is either the cause or the effect of the separation of the butter. Nor does the fact that sweet cream requires longer churning than sour cream, if it be a fact, show that it is less economical. The quickest process is not always the best. Besides, our scientific men are not the best authority on such questions. We should much prefer the opinions of judicious dairymaids. We have facts, from such sources, which we would offset against a host of mere chemists, though ever so "scientific." Ask the dairyman and women of Orange county, so widely distributed for its good butter, and the information they would give would not strengthen the doubts which this writer suggests.

We do not believe that the presence or the absence of lactic acid can have any effect on the "quantity" of butter. The butter is there confined in sacks and lactic acid, cannot increase it, nor can butter produce lactic acid. Science cannot b gin to give a reason why it should be supposed to do so. Facts show that the best butter, the butter that with a given amount of washing will retain its sweetness the longest is from sweet cream.

But we doubt whether sweet cream requires more labor to "produce" butter than sour cream. Each little sack must be beaten, and its contents gathered. We can see how the presence of very sour milk might hasten the process of gathering or collecting the butter, after it has "come;" but this is not what the chemists mean to say; and whatever they mean, their opinion is of no more value than that of any mere professor of science, who may be fond of his own theory. Such questions are for actual practical churners to determine, who use various kinds of churns and various qualities of milk and of cream, and so far as our experience which is not small, and our enquiries which have been extensive, can elucidate this question, the conviction is full and complete, in our minds, that it is desirable to have sweet cream for butter that is to be kept a long time. Sour milk does not of necessity make sour butter, but the presence of sour particles in the butter made from sour cream cannot be certainly avoided by almost any amount of washing and there may be enough present, after very frequent washings, to convert the whole, ere long, into a rancid mass. Hence we go for sweet cream.—Ex

A WIFE'S REVENGE.—A shipwright at North Shields recently took a rope's end and thrashed his wife. The next day the wife took a pie to the docks for her husband's dinner, but on removing the lid, instead of finding a beef-steak or mutton chop, he found a portion of the rope with which he had ill-used her, and on remonstrating with his wife for such conduct, she coolly replied, that if the rope's end was good for her, it should not be bad for him.

MORE GOOD NEWS
FOR THE PEOPLE OF SANDWICH
AND ITS VICINITY.

L. P. St. Amour

Begs leave to inform the Public, that he has returned from the

EASTERN MARKETS,

where he has purchased an extensive Stock of Goods of the latest and newest Styles, and will sell them at such prices as cannot but suit his numerous Customers.

L. P. St. Amour is now opening, and will continue to open for the next month, a great variety of Goods.

No. 1, CHEAP HOUSE.

FARM FOR SALE.

NO. 293, on Sandwich Street, Maidstone Cross, consisting of 48 acres, 35 acres cleared and under fence, a good Dwelling House and two good Barns. The property is situated at the corner of the Plank and Stage Roads.

The purchaser can be supplied with every requisite implement for agricultural purposes, which are now on the Farm.

Apply on the Farm to
April 18, '56: JOHN GEARY.

STRAYED.

CAME into the possession of the under signed, about 1st February last, a BAY COLT, about one year old. Has a white spot on his near hind foot. The owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take it away.

WM. CLARKSON.
Malden Road, April 22nd, 1856.

BARTLEY AND PINNEY,

PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.

MAPS AND PLANS drawn in the first style. Estimates, Specifications, &c., of all kinds prepared at short notice. All work entrusted to us shall be executed with punctuality and despatch.

Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.
March 28, 1856. ly

SHERIFF'S SALE.

COUNTY OF ESSEX } By virtue of a writ to wit; } of fieri facias issued out of Court of Common Pleas at Toronto, to me directed, against the lands and tenements of Alfred Baby at the suit of James Olwell and Mathew Olwell, I have seized and taken in execution the following lands viz: water lot number three on the East, water lots numbers three, four, and fourteen on the west, and land and water lots numbers thirteen and sixteen on the north side of Sandwich Street, and Park Lots No. one and twelve, Field lot letter E, Village lots numbers nine and ten on the south side of Sandwich Street, lots numbers twenty-one and twenty-two on the north side of Pitt Street, numbers one and two on the south side of Pitt Street, lots numbers eight and nine on the north side of Chatham Street, in Block B lot number two and south side of Chatham Street, lot number five on the north side of London Street, in Block E, lots three and four on the south side of London Street Block G, in the Village of Windsor in the County of Essex, forming part of the Town Plot of the said village, as laid out on the estate of the late Francois Baby, Esq., and lot number twenty-eight in the first concession, Township of Maidstone, two hundred acres of land, all of which property I shall offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich on Saturday the twenty-eighth day of June next at twelve o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY.
Sheriff
Sheriff's office, Sandwich,
27th March.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

ALL Persons to whom the late Mr. John McCormick, of Point Pelée Island, deceased, stood indebted at the time of his decease, are requested to send in their accounts forthwith to the undersigned or either of them.

MARY MCCORMICK,
DAVID MCCORMICK,
WILLIAM MCCORMICK.
Point Pelee Island,
7th March, 1856.

OPPOSITION

To the Combination of Trade!!

J. W. JOHNSTON has just returned from New York, with a large and splendid stock of Gold and Diamond Jewelry, Diamond Rings and Breast Pins, Gold Watches, Lockets and Chains, Gold Pens and Pencils, Gilt Dress and Earrings; the Egyptian style just come in fashion, Pearl Earrings and Rings, Gold and Silver.

Gold and Silver Watches, Gold Thimbles; also an assortment of Silver Ware, Tea and Table Spoons, Fruit and Butter Knives, Card Cases, Port Monies, Cake Baskets, English, French and German Fancy Goods, Pearl and Shell Card Cases, Port Monies of every description.

Ladies and Gentlemen's Dressing Cases, fine assortment Writing Desks, Pearl and Rosewood, Crosbie's fixture of all kinds.

COMBS.

Back, fine, coarse, and pockets combs, both horn and wood combs, the latest style of Bloomer Combs.

CLOCKS.

Clocks at $1.25, warranted good time pieces; prices at wholesale a good deal less.

ENGLISH CUTLERY.

Bowie Knifes, Razors, and a very large stock of Pocket Cutlery. Revolving Pistols, Double and Single Barreled Guns. Yankee notions and Gilt Jewelry.

A very large stock of Notions, country merchants and pedlers' attention is called to examine this stock, before purchasing elsewhere.

Pins, Needles, Thread, Buttons, Tape Bobbin, Carpet Bags, Umbrellas, Suspenders Tobacco Boxes, Hooks and Eyes, Whalebone, Feather Dusters, Horse Brushes, Shoe Brushes Tooth and Clothing Brushes, Fiddles, Accordeons, Flutinis, Indian Beads and Rings, and Pins, Gilt and Plated Watches at two dollars a piece; in fact all sorts, from a needle to an anchor, and from an anchor to a tin pail; nothing charged for looking; call and see, two doors from Griswold street, on Jefferson avenue, opposite the U. S. Court Room.

J. W. JOHNSTON.

Hotels, &c.

HENNELL HOUSE,

LATE FREE MASON'S TAVERN,
Sandwich.

THIS House is pleasantly situated at the terminus of the New Gravel Road from Windsor to Sandwich, and possesses all the requisites which are generally met with in first class hotels.—Good Beds, superior Stabling, and unimpeachable Liquors.

From the long experience of the present proprietor in this line of business, he is enabled to meet the wishes of his patrons, in every inst ance, with promptness; and he will make it his study so to treat his visitors, that they may leave him with perfect satisfaction, and return with pleasure future occasions.

WM. HENNELL.
Sandwich, Feb. 29th.

SANDWICH EXCHANGE,

BEDFORD STREET, SANDWICH.

JACOB STUTTZ

IN returning thanks for past favors, begs to inform his Friends and the Public that he still keeps on hand the best of everything to suit the taste and comfort of his customers, and trusts that by assiduity and attention to business, to merit their patronage and support.

N.B.—A Good Stable and Shed.

WESTERN HOTEL,

BY CYRUS DOBSON.

THIS Hotel, adjoining the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, has been put in firstrate repair, and the Proprietor hopes that, by strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a share of public patronage.

N.B.—There is an excellent stable attached to the premises, and an attentive ostler will always be in attendance.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

THE COTTAGE INN,

BY ALEXANDER REAUME,

THE Proprietor having lately leased the above comfortable premises, and having orthoughly repaired and refurnished the same, will be happy to attend upon the travelling public at all hours. A supply of good old Ohio and Hot Water will always be found at the Bar, with all other choice Liquors.

THE COTTAGE INN has good and comfortable Stables attached.

ALEXANDER REAUME.
Anderdon, February 29th, 1856.

TRAVELLERS' HOME,

T. HALEY, PROPRIETOR,
(Formerly of Aylmer, Canada West.)

THIS House having been fitted up in the neatest and most comfortable style, the Proprietor hopes that, by keeping the choicest Liquors and a strict attention to business, to be able to give entire satisfaction to all who may give him a call. Attentive waiters and a well supplied table will always be found here.

Good Stabling and an attentive Ostler always in attendance.

N.B.—FRESH OYSTERS always on hand.

Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

PRINCE ALBERT HOTEL.

THIS Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Warner, has been thoroughly renovated, and will be kept well supplied with the very best liquors. An attentive man will always be in attendance to take charge of horses.

A private Parlor, for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen, has been fitted up.

F. X. TRUDELL,
Sandwich Street, Proprietor.
29th February, 1856.

BROOKER'S TAVERN.

MR. BROOKER is prepared to attend upon his Customers at his new and well-furnished house near the Canada Bridge, where the Traveller will have his wants attended to in regard to good liquors, and his friends may expect to find every accommodation as usual.

A supply of Groceries always kept on hand which will be sold very cheap.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROYAL EXCHANGE.

J. L. McGEE,

BEGS to announce to the Travelling Community, and Public in general, that he has opened the above new TAVERN, with good accommodations, and hopes by attention to his business, to merit a share of public patronage. A choice selection of Groceries always on hand.

Maidstone Cross, February 29th, 1856.

MANSION HOUSE.

THIS new and commodious Inn is now completely finished, and the Proprietor begs leave to say a strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to receive a continuance of the patronage which was so liberally awarded him at his old stand.

ALONZO BROWN,
Maidstone Cross, Proprietor.
7th March, 1856.

AMERICAN HOTEL.

COURT HOUSE SQUARE, LONDON, C. W.

ROBERT ARKELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and Travellers that he has taken the above Hotel, which has undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The house is in a fine open airy and central situation, and commands a beautiful view of the valley of the Thames and surrounding country.

The Table is supplied with all the delicacies of the season. The Wines and Liquors will be of the best brands, and his trusty by assiduity and attention to the comfort of his guests to merit their patronage and support.

ROBERT ARKELL.
London, 29th Feb. 1856.

WARNER'S

EXCHANGE,

AMHERSTBURG, C. W.

THE SUBSCRIBER has leased the "Liberty Stand," second door above the Prince Albert Hotel, Murray Street, for a term of years, and has it repaired throughout, furnished with new furniture, bedding, &c., and now open for the accommodation of the travelling public, and by strict attention to business he hopes to receive a liberal share of the same.

HIS TABLE

will be well supplied with all the luxuries of the season.

HIS BAR

will always contain the choicest brands of Liquors.

His Stables and Shed are large and convenient.

Persons wishing good Board will find this a convenient place, being a central place of business.

CHARLES WARNER.
Amherstburg, March 14th, 1856.

INTERNATIONAL

BILLIARD

SALOON

Windsor, C.W. opposite the Depot of the Great Western Railway.

T. M. HOWRIGAN,

Proprietor.

The above Saloon is neatly and commodiously fitted up. The Proprietor having spared no expense for the purpose of rendering it attractive to visitors.

The best of Cigars, Wines and Liquors always on hand.

Windsor, Feb. 29th, 1856.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

COURTER HOUSE

Corner of Erie and Seneca Streets,

Nearly Opposite the Buffalo & N. Falls Railroad.

B. F. POPPLE, MANAGER.

VISITORS visiting the Courter House, Buffalo, will find every convenience and attention at reasonable charges. Teetotalers visiting Buffalo, will find this Hotel calculated to meet their wishes.

Buffalo, 29th Feb. 1856.

Beecher, Rice and Ketchum.

CARPET & OIL CLOTH WAREHOUSE,

No. 142 Jefferson Avenue.
Conant Block, Detroit, Michigan.

BEECHER, HOLLISTER & WILKINS,
Carpet Hall, Lake Street, Chisbacq, Importers of Carpets, Oil Cloths, Paper-hangings Curtain and Upholstery materials.

A. A. RICE, L. BEECHER, E. F. HOLLISTER
C. B. KETCHUM, D. WILKINS, JR
Detroit, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TILES, TILES,

THE Public are respectfully informed that M. & J. H. WHITEHOUSE are Manufacturing and have on hand a large quantity of Tiles for Draining Purposes, which facilitate greatly in the labor, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when put down will never require removing. Samples may be seen and orders received at the Store of Mr. J. Fitzell, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also Roofing Tiles and Press Bricks for fronting Buildings of a superior quality.

London, Feb. 29th, 1856.

DETROIT SEED STORE

AND

AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.

I would call the attention of Farmers and Gardeners to my present stock of Agricultural Implements, consisting of the most approved and improved kinds of Ploughs, Hay and Corn Stalk Cutting Boxes, Cultivators, Seed Planters, Corn Shellers, Fan Mills, Root Pullers, Corn Planters, Cob Crushers, Churns, Sets of Garden, Field, and Flower Seeds, raised by the most experienced and careful growers in this country and England, and I think purchasers may feel confident that every kind sold will prove true to their name, and give perfect satisfaction All seed offered for sale will be of the present year's growth when offered as such.

E. F. PARKER.
75 Woodward Avenue, Detroit.

JUST PUBLISHED,

CANADA

PHYSICAL, Economic and Social, by Adam Lille, D.D. One Volume, 12mo, about 300 pages. Map of Canada East & West. Cloth 8s. ; Stiff Covers 3s 9d.

MACLEAR & CO.,
Publishers, Toronto.

N.B.—Sent by Post to any part of North American or Europe, if desired.

Toronto, Feb. 29th, 1856.

CARPETS. CARPETS.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

THE Subscribers have just received, ex "London," a Large Stock of BRUSSELS, 3 PLY, AND SCOTCH CARPETTINGS which they are prepared to offer at low prices, and are well worthy of inspection.

T. B. & J. HARRIS,
Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

EXECUTOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to all persons indebted to the late ALPHEUS MORSE, of the Town of Sandwich, deceased, and late of the Firm of MORSE AND CALVIN, Tanblermen, to make payment to the undersigned, and all persons having claims against the said A. MORSE, or MORSE AND CALVIN, are requested to present them for payment prior to the 1st day of May next by

ELECTA MORSE, }
H. C. GUILLOT, } Executors
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

CIGAR FACTORY.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the inhabitants of Amherstburg and vicinity that he has opened a Cigar Factory in the above Town, where every description of the choicest kind are always on hand. He has also lately imported from Havana a large quantity of the very best Principe and every other description of Cigars, which he intends to sell on a much smaller price than can be had in Detroit. Call and see him, and he will give a puff.

JOHN N. MILLER.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

NOTICE.

A BAY PONEY came in the barn yard on the "Hand's Farm," about the 1st February last, and unless the owner comes to claim the same and pay the charges, it will be impounded and sold.

Hand's Farm, 15th March, 1856.

LANDS FOR SALE.

A SMALL FARM, being part of Lot No 37, in First Concession, Petite Cote, 40 acres, all under fence, two acres in width by two and a half in depth. This lot is beautifully situated upon the road to Amherstburg, about three miles from Sandwich, it is well adapted for a residence.

Two Lots on Glengary Avenue, one house and lot on St. George's street, in the village of Windsor.

A number of Town Lots on the Pelot Farm, in the town of Sandwich.

Also part of lots Nos. 95 and 96, 1st and 2nd Con., half a mile above Windsor, two houses and barn thereon, containing 150 acres

The above lots will be sold for cash, at the very lowest figure, and parties wishing to purchase for residences or speculation, will find this an opportunity which is not often afforded. Title Indisputable.

CHAS. F. LABADIE

All parties owing the subscriber are requested to settle forthwith, or having any claims against him are requested to present them without delay, as he is about winding up his business.

C. F. L

Sandwich April, 1856.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rood of ground, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded, together with the really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

The Illustrations will be engraved and printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with the January number, thus facilitating greatly in the labor, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when put down will never require removing. Samples may be seen and orders received at the Store of Mr. J. Fitzell, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also Roofing Tiles and Press Bricks for fronting Buildings of a superior quality.

London, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TERMS: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

N.B.—Newspapers inserting the above prospectus and Editorial upon it favorably to the same, will be forwarded the ILLUSTRATED HORTICULTURIST for one year, a copy containing the advertisement should be sent in all cases to ensure attention.

Address
C. REAGLES, Publisher,
Illustrated Horticulturist
208, BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

NEW VOLUME OF THE

AGRICULTURIST

SUBSCRIPTION REDUCED FROM
25 TO 50 PER CENT.

The Canadian Agriculturist

Has now reached the eighth volume, having been established by the present proprietor in 1848, and is too well known to the leading farmers of the British Provinces, to need any eulogium from us. The undersigned have in arrangements with the proprietor to publish the next, and probably succeeding volumes, and have resolved to make important improvements in the work, while at the same time its price will be considerably reduced.

THE AGRICULTURIST

Is published Monthly, on good Paper, each number containing 32 pages, making at the end of the year a handsome volume of 384 pages.

EVERY NUMBER WILL BE

Illustrated with Engravings

Such as Barn Implements, Portraits of Animals, designs of Farm Buildings, New Inventions, &c., &c., interesting to the Farmer, and also portraits of some of the most Distinguished Agriculturists.

The Work will be conducted as usual by WILLIAM MACDOUGALL, Esq., who has resumed the editorship of Agriculture near this city. The active promoter of the various improvements made in our Agricultural Legislation since 1847, and having also been connected with the Journal from its commencement, he requires no recommendation from us.

PROFESSOR BUCKLAND, of the Toronto University, whose labours and writings in behalf of Canadian Agriculture are known and appreciated throughout the Province, will contribute to its columns as usual.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS

Of known ability have also been engaged. Efforts will be made to extend the correspondence on subjects of a practical kind.

THE AGRICULTURIST IS NOT LIABLE TO POSTAGE.

WIMAN & Co, Publishers
Toronto, March, 1856.

TO be published monthly, price half a dollar per annum,

The Churchman's Friend,

For the diffusion of information relative to the Church of England, her Doctrine and Ordinances. Edited by Edward H. Dewar, M.A., Rector of Sandwich, assisted by other Clergymen.

Sandwich, March 15th, 1856.

New Wholesale

GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT!

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and the Trade generally, that he has commenced business on his own account, in this City, as a

WHOLESALE GENERAL GROCER.

And is now receiving a large and carefully selected Stock of

GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, OILS, PAINTS, &c., &c., &c.

To which he confidently invites the attention of Western and City Merchants.

Premises, King Street West, opposite Messrs. McKenzi, Bros & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods Warehouse.

A. I. MCKENZIE.
Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TO RENT.

A DRUG STORE, with a large and well selected stock of Drugs and Medicines, in the Town of Sandwich. The Store will be leased for a term of years, and the Drugs and Medicines will be sold on reasonable terms. The selection cannot be surpassed in Upper Canada. Possession given on the first day of July next, if required. The present proprietor is about entering other business, which will prevent him attending to the Drug business, and which is the only reason for his retiring from he trade. For particulars inquire of

T. RADLEY.
Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

J. H. ALLISON,

IMPORTER OF

IMPROVED

RAILROAD WATCHES.

Cased in beautiful styles warranted excellent time keepers: do. Swiss full jeweled Levers of every style.

GOLD PENS.

I continue manufacturing Pens of every desirable pattern; these Pens have received

A SILVER MEDAL & DIPLOMA

At the Michigan State Fair, and are not to be surpassed by any Pens in the market.

ALSO DEALER IN

FINE JEWELRY,
SILVER WARE,
AND FANCY GOODS.

I have an experienced Jeweller, capable of making New Work to order,

SETTING STONES AND DIAMOND WORK, &C.,
FINE GILDING AND GALVANIZING

Done at Short Notice.

WATCH REPAIRING.

Being a Practical Workman, all work entrusted to my care will be carefully attended to.

GOLD PENS RE-POINTED

at 50 cents all sizes. Orders sent by mail, accompanied by cash, will be promptly attended to.

J. H. ALLISON,
No. 176 Jefferson Ave.
Feb. 29th, 1856.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

Hamilton and Toronto Branch.

ALTERATION OF TIME.

ON and after MONDAY NEXT, the 10th December, trains will run daily (Sundays excepted) between Hamilton and Toronto, as follows:

GOING WEST

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed	Mail
	A M	P M	P M	A M
Toronto,	8 00	3 20	10 00
Mimico,	8 10	3 30	10 15
Port Credit,	8 25	3 45	10 30
Oakville,	8 43	4 03	10 53
Bronte,	8 55	4 15	11 15
Wellington Square,	9 10	4 30	11 35
Hamilton,	9 20	4 50	12 00

GOING EAST

STATIONS	Express	Accommodation	Mixed	Mail
	A M	P M	A M	A M
Hamilton,	10 40	6 10	3 10
Wellington Square,	11 00	6 30	3 35
Bronte,	11 15	6 45	3 55
Oakville,	11 27	7 00	4 15
Port Credit,	11 42	7 20	4 35
Mimico,	12 00	7 35	4 50
Toronto,	12 15	7 50	5 05

The above Trains connect at Hamilton with Trains of Great Western Railway running in connection with Trains to Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, Boston, New York, and with Michigan Central Railroad Trains at Detroit for Chicago, St Louis, &c, &c.

The 9 20 Train from Toronto meets G W R Accommodation Train going West at Hamilton, for Preston Galt, Paris, London, and intermediate Stations

Through Tickets for any of the above places can be obtained at the Ticket Office, Toronto Station

Stages run daily between Oakville, Milton, Georgetown, &c, &c, &c.

C. J. BRYDGES,
Managing Director
Great Western Railway Offices,

A RARE CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY

IS NOW OFFERED IN

E. EVANS'S

GRAND GIFT ENTERPRISE

AND

LOTTERY,

to take place at

SANDWICH,

ON THE 19th APRIL, 1856.

ALL PRIZES! NO BLANKS.

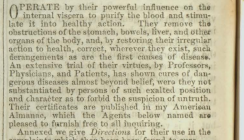
The following is a List of a few of the Prizes:

2 Shares in Sandwich Street Plank Road Company, worth	$60
A Glass Case,	40
A Burr Cooking Stove,	40
A Buggy Harness,	40
Trotting Waggon,	20
Double Barrel Gun,	20
Dress Coat (new),	18
Frock do	18
Single Barrel Gun,	15
Do do do,	15
Settee,	15
Pair of Curtains,	12
Lot of Dishes,	11
Lot Shooter,	10
Box Stove,	10
20 Yards Carpet,	10
Eight Day Clock,	8
Do do	6
Looking Glass,	5
Pair of Shanghais,	5

Together with other articles amounting to FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

On the day of drawing, the holders of tickets will have the privilege of appointing a Committee to regulate the mode of drawing, &c., &c. If the tickets are not all sold by the day appointed for drawing, due notice will be given of the postponement in the "Maple Leaf."

Tickets, One Dollar Each.



POSTPONEMENT.

THE DRAWING of the above LOTTERY is postponed until TUESDAY, the 20th MAY next. E. R.

Crockery Store and China Emporium.

F. P. MATHIER & Co., IMPORTERS, and Dealers in Crockery, China, Glass, Britannia and Silver Plated Ware, Lamps and Looking Glasses, Table Cutlery and Fancy Ware, "Sign of the Big White Pitcher," No. 224 Jefferson Avenue, Kercher's Block, opposite Fireman's Hall, Detroit, Michigan.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

CATHARTIC PILLS

OPERATE by their powerful influence on the digestive organs, to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action. They remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, and, by restoring their irregular action to health, correct, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease. An extensive trial of their virtues, by Professors, Physicians, and Patients, has shown cures of dangerous diseases almost beyond belief, were they not substantiated by persons of such exalted position and character as to forbid the slightest suspicion of untruth. Their certificates are published in my American Almanacs, which the agent below named are pleased to furnish free to all inquiring.

Annexed we give Directions for their use in the complaints which they, most commonly cure.

FOR COSTIVENESS.—Take one or two Pills, or such quantity as is usually necessary to move the bowels. Costiveness is frequently the aggravating cause of Piles, and the cure of one complaint is the cure of both. Don't neer to feel well while under a costive habit of body. Hence it should be, as it can be, promptly relieved.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, which is sometimes the cause of Costiveness, and always unconfortable, take mild doses of these Pills to four—to stimulate the stomach and liver into healthy action. They will do it, and the heartburn, headache, and soulness of dyspepsia will rapidly disappear. When it has gone, don't forget what cured you.

FOR LIVER COMPLAINT, HEADACHE, NAUSEA, Pain in the Stomach, Back, or Side, take from four to eight pills on going to bed. If they do not operate sufficiently, take more the next day until they do. Those complaints will be swept out from the system. Do not neglect a cold, or any kindred disorders because your stomach is foul.

FOR SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS, and all Diseases of the Skin, take the Pills freely and frequently, to keep the bowels open. The eruptions will generally begin to disappear, and shortly vanish. Many dreadful ulcers and sores have been healed up by the purging and purifying effect of these Pills, and some disgusting diseases which seemed to saturate the whole system have completely yielded to their influence, leaving the sufferer in perfect health. Patients! your duty to society forbids that you should parade yourself around the world covered with pimples, blotches, ulcers, sores, and all or any of the unclean diseases of the skin, because your system will vanish them.

TO PURIFY THE BLOOD, they are the best medicine ever discovered. They should be taken freely and frequently, and the impurities which sow the seeds of miserable disease will be swept out of the system, like chaff before the wind. By their power they do as much good in preventing sickness as by the remarkable cures which they are making every where.

FOR LIVER COMPLAINT, JAUNDICE, and all Bilious Affections arise from some derangement—either torpidity, congestion, or obstructions of the Liver. Torpidity and congestion will make the bile and render it unfit for digestion. This is disastrous to the health, and the constitution is frequently undermined by no other cause. Indigestion is the symptom. Obstruction of the duct which empties the bile into the intestines causes the bile to overflow into the blood. This produces Jaundice, with a long and dreadful train of evils. Costiveness, or alternately costiveness and diarrhœa, often results. Feverish symptoms, languor, low spirits, weariness, restlessness, and melancholy. The bile also renders its subject so sleepy, and sometimes great drowsiness; and frequently, in the latter stages of the disease, the skin and the white of the eyes become a greenish yellow: the stomach acids; the bowels sore to the touch; the whole system is thrown into a fever. This fever, which may turn to bilious fever, bilious colic, bilious diarrhœa, dysentery, &c., is needless, for some of these or four Pills taken at night, followed by two or three in the morning, and repeated a few days, will remove the cause, and all these troubles. There is no need to suffer such pains when you can cure them for 25 cents.

Let no one be discouraged from trying these Pills by Proprietary Do-nothings. No Pill can be made more pleasant to take, and certainly none has been made more effectual to the purpose for which a dinner pill is employed.

PREPARED BY

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.,

Practical and Analytical Chemists,

LOWELL, MASS.,

AND SOLD BY

GEO. and G. A. BULLOCK, and J. A. VERVAIS, Sandwich;

D. OULLETTE, Windsor:

And every Druggist and Merchant in Canada.

MAPLE LEAF.

DIEU ET MON DROIT

James H. Wilkinson] "PROGRESS." [Proprietor and Publisher.

VOL. I. SANDWICH, C. W., FRIDAY, MAY 23, 1856. NO. 13.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

IS PUBLISHED

Every Friday Morning,

BY

J. H. WILKINSON,

BEDFORD STREET;

Sandwich, Canada West.

TERMS:—Eight shillings and ninepence Cy, per annum, if paid in advance; or Ten Shillings at the end of the year,

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Six lines or under, first insertion, 2s 6d, cy Each subsequent insertion, . . 0 7½ "

Advertisements over six lines, 4d per line for the first insertion, and one penny per line for every subsequent insertion. A liberal discount made to Merchants and others who advertise by the year.

Advertisements sent in for insertion without written directions, will be continued till forbid and the usual rates charged.

CLUBS.

Any person procuring 10 subscribers will be entitled to a copy gratis. Payment to be made in advance.

The JOB OFFICE connected with the "MAPLE LEAF" is in every respect complete for the dispatch of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

Professional Cards.

Mr. William Johnson,
Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c., &c.
Sandwich, C. W.

Mr. Charles Baby,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, &c.
Office, Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. J. H. Wilkinson.
Law, Chancery, Conveyancing, and Land Agency Office,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. Louis J. Fluett,
Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, Conveyancer and Land Agent,
Sandwich.

Mr. S. S. Macdonell,
Barrister, Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, &c., &c.
Windsor, C. W.

Mr. John O'Connor, Jun.,
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c.,
Windsor, C. W.

Charles Eugene Casgrain, M.D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Office and Residence, opposite the "Mear's Hotel,"
Sandwich, Canada West.

Dr. Reynolds,
Physician and Surgeon,
Amherstburg.

John Adley,
Physician and Surgeon, &c.,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

ALEXANDER GORDON,
NOTARY PUBLIC AND INSURANCE AGENT
Sandwich & Windsor, Canada West.

John McCrae,
Auctioneer, Insurance and General Agent
Windsor, Canada West.

Bank of Upper Canada Agency,
Windsor, Canada West.
Office Hours, 10, A.M., to 3, P.M.

Philip S. Donnelly,
Provincial Land Surveyor, &c.,
Moore, County of Lambton.

LAFFERTY & JONES,
AUCTIONEERS AND APPRAISERS,
Amherstburg, Canada West.

P. Marentette,
Gunsmith and Manufacturer of Guns. Every description of Fire-arms repair d at his shop, on Bedford Street, Sandwich.

L. P. St. Amour,
IMPORTER, AND WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS
CROCKERY, HARDWARE,
PERFUMERY, &c,
Sandwich, Canada West.

Sandwich Post Office.
Open daily, from Nine till Twelve, A.M., and from half-past Twelve till Five, P.M.
P. H. MORIN, Post Master.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware Crockery, Boots & Shoes
&c. &c. &c.
Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets, Sandwich.

Bartley and Pinney,
PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.
Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.

MR. JAS. WOODBRIDGE, JUN.,
Division Court Agent, and General Agent for Collecting Debts.
Sandwich, Canada West.

S. D. ELWOOD & CO.,
PUBLISHERS,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
BOOKS, STATIONERY,
AND ALL KINDS OF
PAPERS,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS STOCK
MANUFACTURERS OF
BLANK BOOKS
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.
Orders for Lithographed Letter and Bill Heads, Maps, Drafts, Stock Certificates, &c., &c., &c.,
EXECUTED WITH PROMPTNESS.
192 Jefferson Avenue,
S. D. ELWOOD, } DETROIT.
J. C. PARSONS, }

WILLIAM SWIFT,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
IS prepared to attend upon the Gentlemen of Amherstburg in his line of business, and is not afraid to assert that he will cut and Fit in the latest and most fashionable Styles as well as any Tailor west of London.
Amherstburg, Feb. 29th, 1856.

George Hann,
DEALER IN FURS AND SKINS.
The highest price paid for Shipping Furs at his Fur Store in the Town of Sandwich.
15th March, 1856.

NIAGARA
MUTUAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.
GEORGE BULLOCK, Local Agent for the Townships of Sandwich, Maidstone, Rochester and Tilbury West; also the Village of Windsor. Address, Sandwich Post Office.

ROSE DALE MILLS,
THE highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Rye, Corn, or Buck Wheat, either at the Mills or at the Store of
GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

JAMES JESSOP,
CARPENTER & JOINER,
WILL always be on hand to attend to the erection of Building, and every description of Carpenter and Joiner work upon the shortest notice.
Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WARNER'S EXCHANGE,
AMHERSTBURG, C. W.
CHARLES WARNER, PROPRIETOR

SIMPSON'S EATING SALOON.
MR. SIMPSON would inform the Gentlemen of Sandwich and vicinity that he is prepared at all hours to furnish "Hot Meals," and those who may favor his establishment with a call, can depend upon having, if they wish, a "steak" cooked in the good old English style, with all the little etceteras.
Dinner Parties accommodated upon the shortest notice.
N.B.—A few persons can be accommodated with good clean beds.
No 253 Jefferson Avenue Detroit Mich. few doors above the Theatre.

NEW LIVERY STABLE.
JOHN LEWIS, having purchased the Livery Stable in the Town of Sandwich, formerly kept by C. F. Labadie, will carry it on in a style that has never been known in this place before. Fresh horses and new carriages are being added to this establishment every day, and persons who patronise him may expect to be furnished with "Crack Teams."

PAINT SHOP.
FRANCOIS PAYETTE having opened a Paint Shop in the Town of Sandwich, next door to L. P. St Amour's Store, will be happy to attend to the painting of houses, Graining, Glazing, Varnishing, and, in fact, every description of work in his line of business with despatch, and at moderate charges.
N.B.—Buggies and Carriages painted and varnished upon reasonable terms.

SANDWICH BREWERY.
ALE, BEER AND PORTER
MANUFACTURED BY
TROWNSELL, LEECH AND O'CALLAGHAN.
N.B.—CASH PAID FOR BARLEY.

Poetry.

The Music of the Rill.

BY JOHN BOOKER.

'Twas in summer—glorious summer,
Far beyond the sandy town;
Weary with a long day's ramble,
Through the fern and blooming bramble,
Needing rest, I sat me down.
Beetling crags hung high above me,
Ever looking grandly rude;
Still there was some trace of mildness
In this scene so wierd-like wildness
Might be sought for solitude.

Birds and flowers—song and beauty—
Seemed this rugged realm to fill;
That which was my soul's entrancing
Was the music and the glancing
Of a rock-born plashing rill.
Lingering there I was delighted,
Musing on the days gone by,
Watching its bright spray-pearls sprinkled,
And each silvery tone that tinkled
Touched some chord of memory.

'Twas as though sweet spirit voices
Threw a spell around me there;
Now in lightest notes of gladness,
Now in deeper tones of sadness,
Were a whispering in mine ear.
Memory here, imagination,
Seemed to have usurped my will;
And my thoughts kept on a dreaming,
Till the bright stars were a gleaming
To the music of the rill.

What a world of strange reflections
Came upon me then unsought!
Strange this sounds should find responses,
Where e'en mystery ensconces—
In the corridors of thought!
Then emotions were awakened,
Making my heart wildly thrill,
As I lingered there and listened,
Whilst the dew around me glistened,
To the music of the rill.

Affecting Reminiscence.

Mr. Mannering and his wife, were sitting by the cheerful fireside, alone. He looked older a little, but time had laid very light hands upon him. The iron gray of his hair had turned to silver, and that ripe, mature expression reigned over his noble countenance which marks unerringly the perfection of manhood. Susie was close behind him; and his arm encircled her waist, and his hand clasped her's, not as if the wild intoxicating ecstacy of new love, but as if his whole heart with all its admiration and confidence, were immovably anchored upon her.

Susie looked older, but her hair was just as smooth and bright, and her eyes just as black and loving as when he had made her his bride. She wore deep mourning more becoming to her beauty, perhaps than any other dress; but it was the outward sign and symbol of her inward sorrow. Mr. and Mrs. Mannering were childless. Paul, the first born, in the bloom and loveliness of his third summer, had been transplanted from his mother's bosom to an angel in heaven.—Little Susie, the sweet daguerrotype of her mother, came to cheer the household for a few short months, and then too faded away, and they wept over her tiny coffin. Susie Mannering had surrendered her children without a murmur, but she wildly prayed that her husband might live to close her eyes and stand by her grave; the whole wealth of her heart, the whole treasury of her affections, she desired nothing to love, nothing on which to bestow her devotion, but her husband and heaven.

Mr. Mannering looked in her face with a serious smile and said—

'Susie, have I ever pained you, or made you unhappy since our marriage?'

'You are the noblest, dearest, best of husbands, and I the happiest of wives,' she replied evasively.

'That does not answer my question.—Tell me, Susie, I have a particular motive for asking.'

'Not this many years,' she said smiling, while her radiant face confirmed the truth of what she said.

'Well, Susie, did you ever know that I was passionately fond of billiards during my bachelorhood.'

'Not from any such communication that you ever made me,' she replied archly.

'Did you ever know I played after we were married, and our little Paul was born.'

'Husband,' said Susie, 'do you remember one night when our baby had a paroxysm of croup, and one Saturday night?'

'Most painfully well, Susie, what then?'

'That Saturday night beloved, I heard that you allowed yours if an habitual indulgence in what I had always instinctively regarded as very vicious and sinful. In a word I feared you were a gambler. My whole soul revolted. You had never overpowered me by your confidence to contradict it, although I believe it false. You have been absent late at night. O, husband, that night I was more unhappy than ever before; or that I have ever tasted deep and bitter sorrow since. When I kissed and caressed our dear little Paul, and Susie, and they were buried away out of my sight, I know that they had gone to the bosom of Jesus. But that night, somehow, I felt that if you, my best loved, for well as I love my son I loved you better. I felt as if you were on the brink of a fearful danger, and I was powerless to warn or save you.'

'I was on the brink of a fearful danger, Susie, and your gentleness, your indescribable sweetness saved me. I have said 'Get thee behind me' to many a temptation, because your image stood before me, in your heavenly purity and Truth.

'I came home and found you asleep, Susie you looked to me like a white-robed angel; just from Heaven, to enfold in your arms my beautiful child. Such a sight, sweet wife—I will not talk of it—it unmanned me then, and will be one of the very last memories to fade out from my heart. You opened your eyes and welcomed me with caresses. You uttered no word of reproof, reproach or distrust; you only asked me if I loved you, and then you gently fell on my bosom.'

Remorse kept me awake till morning. I had trenched upon holy time. I had trampled on my own principles, Clayton's face haunted me. I had committed a whole catalogue of sins and the stirrings of conscience were keen and piercing.

You nursed me all day, O how tenderly, and I only covenanted with myself and God never to give you like occasion again. At night I went to call on Clayton at his hotel. He was sitting alone in an upper room. A bottle of brandy and a suspicious looking vial stood on the table before him, and he was hastily penning a letter.

He scarcely noticed my entrance, but soon finished his writing, and deliberately folded the paper and said:

'Mannering, you and I have been friends from boyhood, I desire one last favour of you. This is a letter to my injured wife, I want you to deliver it yourself: and tell her I could not survive both disgrace and ruin. God will bless you if you be kind to her, she added with almost suffocating emotion.'

I took the vial in my hand and playfully shook its contents, though there was a dreadful fluttering at my heart.

'Why, dear Clayton,' said I; 'What sort of a fifth act have I stumbled upon?—You are not going to make off with your self? What sort of essence have you here?'

Clayton gazed very earnestly into my face for a few moments, and then took the vial out of my hand.

'It is a desperate act' he said 'and I take a plunge into a horrible darkness, Mannering. But I am a desperate man—certain disgrace and ruin awaits me. I have squandered my own fortune—my wife was an heiress and now she is a beggar. It is a craven thing to tell you but a man may be pardoned the disclosures he may make in his last hours. The money you won from me the last night, I secretly borrowed from the vaults of the bank where I am employed with the vain hope that one more indulgence of my passions would relieve my fallen fortunes. It is gone and I am a dead man!

He raised the vial to his lips, but with a strength augmented by the horror I felt, I snatched it from him, before he had tasted its subtle contents, and dashed it against a brick wall that flanked the opening window. Clayton bowed his head upon the table.

'Well, this is truly a tragic way to make yourself agreeable,' said I feigning a composure I was very far from feeling. 'You are a mad man, but not a dead man. Shame upon you to add insult to injury, by making your wife the widow of a cowardly suicide!'

I put the money I had won, with an additional sum, into his passive hand.

'Replace the first moment where it rightfully belongs, Clayton,' I said, 'before a discovery of the fraud can possibly be made. And now you and I will pledge ourselves, after this most farcical of farces. What do you say?'

His hand instinctively extended itself towards the decanter.

'No, no, Clayton,' I replied to his movement. 'That is your worst enemy, and will be your destroyer, unless you break all friendship with it. Now, let us solemnly, as husbands, as fathers, as citizens, abjure all association henceforth with brandy and games of chance.'

'The convulsive energy with which he griped my hand was like the pressure of a vice.

'You have saved me,' he said, and I will promise you anything.'

Susie had listened with absorbing interest to this narration. 'And did he restore happiness to his wife, and keep his pledge, as my noble husband has done?'

'Yes dearest—neither of us has since set our foot within the precincts of temptation. He is now president of the bank he robbed, and I sufficiently happy and honoured by being your husband.'

The Razor.

Each hair is furnished with a distinct gland, elaborately and beautifully complete. Under the facial are innumerable nerves immediately connected with various organs of the senses, ramifying in every direction, and performing most important functions. This hair, when in full growth, forms a natural protector to the nerves, and also, holds, as it were, in suspension, a quantity of warm air, through which the cold air, in breathing passes, and so becoming rarified or tempered, enters the lungs without giving to their delicate texture that severe shock which arises from the sudden admission of cold, so often the forerunner of fatal disorders. And one putting his fingers under the hair of his head will here feel warm air. The hair also wards off east winds, and profits the organs of touch and other parts, and so tends to preserve these useful and ornamental appendages, the teeth.

It is said that an intimate connection exists between the moustache and the nerves of the eye, and that many diseases of the eye are traceable to shaving. Who has not felt his eyes smart under the application of a dull razor?

May not shaving, by depriving the lungs of the male of their natural protection, and exposing them to the uninterrupted action of cold air, tending to weakness being transmitted in an increasing proportion from generation to generation, at length inducing consumption and consumptive tendency?

Persons who wear their hair under their chins do not, except in a rare case, suffer from sore throats.

There is in the crypt of Hyde Church a vast pile of bones, which were gathered many years after a battle fought upon the sea-shore between the Danes and Saxons, about one thousand years since; and among them the skulls of aged warriors, finely developed, the teeth in many of which are so perfect, so beautifully sound, and so firmly imbedded in their sockets, that you cannot move them. The owners of these teeth wore beards; and the writer remembers witnessing several years ago some excavations on the site of the old priory at Spalding, when many stone coffins were dug out, whose inmates had almost without exception, sound, entire, and elegant sets of teeth.—Did not beard grow on their chins?

Shaving occupies on an average, fifteen minutes. A man who shaves every morning for fifty years, thus employs in that time upwards of 380 days, of 12 hours each. Is this a proper application of our fleeting moments?

The face exposed to a microscope immediately afterwards presents a most unsightly appearance, the dumps assuming the forms of narrow bones sawn transversely.

Did not the teachers of the faculty approve of moustaches—and are they not of opinion that they play a most important part in the animal economy? Is it not probable, that by unduly stimulating the growth of hair by shaving, we draw too largely on, and so cause an unnatural action of the nerves, producing an injurious effect, no matter how slight on the brain?

Did not patriarchs and sages of old wear beard and they were remarkable for longevity, as well as for being exceedingly fine looking fellows?

Is not shaving a bore—and does not a man, while undergoing the operation, look extremely ridiculous? And if it is right to rasp the chin why not the eyebrows and the head also?

Does it not appear foolish to shave on a cold morning that which nature has provided to protect us against the cold? Do we not dispise and hold to cheaply a benificient arrangement, and infringe a natural law, when we put off what Providence says so plainly shall grow?—for the more a man shaves the more the hair grows, even to the hour of his death. The head shall become bald, but the face never!

In conclusion, when man was created he had given him a beard, and who will dare to say it was not a good gift? Turn to the first chapter of Genesis and you will find that God saw everything that he had made, and behold it was very good!—London News.

Miscellany.

A Snake Story.

"During the Florida war," said the speaker, 'I was with the American army. One day I shouldered my gun and went in pursuit of game. In passing through a swampy, I saw something a few feet ahead, lying on the ground, which had every appearance of a log, it being some forty feet in length, and about one foot in diameter. So positive was I that it was nothing but a log, that I paid no attention to it; the fact is, I would have sworn before a court of justice that it was a log, and nothing else. You see, I never heard of snakes growing to such huge dimensions, and the fact is, I never should have believed it, if I had. Well, between me and the log, as I took it to be, was a miry place which it was necessary for me to avoid. I therefore placed the but of my gun on the ground ahead of me, and springing upon it, lit right on the top of—what do you suppose?

'A boa constrictor,' said one.

'No.'

'An anaconda,' said another.

'No.'

'What could it have been,' said a third.

'Just what I supposed it to be—a log,' said the wag.—Southern paper.

SIZE OF OUR GREAT LAKES.—The latest measurements of our fresh water seas are these:—The greatest length of Lake Superior is 335 miles; its greatest breadth is 160; mean depth 988 feet; elevation 627 feet; area, 32,000 square miles. The greatest length of Lake Michigan is 360 miles; its greatest breadth 168 miles; mean depth 900 feet; elevation 587 feet; area, 20,000 square miles. The greatest length of Lake Huron is 200 miles; its greatest breadth is 160 miles; mean depth 900 feet; elevation 574 feet; area, 20,000 square miles. The greatest length of Lake Erie is 250 miles; its greatest breadth is 80 miles; its mean depth is 84 feet; elevation 555 feet; area, 6000 square miles. The greatest length of Lake Ontario is 180 miles; its greatest breadth is 65 miles; its mean depth is 500 feet; elevation 562 feet; area, 6000 square miles. The total length of all five is 1585 miles, covering an area altogether of upward of 80,000 square miles.—International Journal.

Marshal Pellissier has been presented with a magnificent sword—a toledo blade —by the Spanish officers who were sent out to the Crimea by their Government, to witness the operations of the Eastern war.

The advertiser columns of the London Times are estimated to yield the establishment the enormous sum of $3,000,000 per annum. One firm alone pays the Times as high as $150,000 a year for advertising, and there are several business establishments that pay it over $50,000 a year for advertising alone.

Dr. Brandreth his commenced working a silver mine at Singsing. It is an old one first opened before the revolution, but the doctor is opinion that the precious ore is there undeveloped.

The garrisons are to be hereafter, two Regiments at Quebec, one at Montreal, one at Kingston and the Canadian Rifles at Toronto. Lieutenant General Eyre to be Commander of the Forces in British North America, and there will be two Major Generals or Brigadier Generals under him, one quartered in Canada and another in New Brunswick or Nova Scotia. General Eyre's head quarters will be either at Quebec or Montreal, the selection being left to the gallant officer himself.—Quebec Mercury.

ABOUT DE QUINCEY.—It is related, as an instance of De Quincey's carelessness in money matters, that having been once arrested for a debt of twenty pounds in Edinburg, he was dragged to jail, where he remained for two weeks. During the period of his incarceration his daughter frequently visited him, and one day brought him a waistcoat, the one he then wore being somewhat shabby. After De Quincey had taken off his old vest, his daughter carelessly examined the pockets discovered a bank note for thirty pounds, of the existence of which her father had no knowledge whatever, and with which, of course, the twenty-pound debt was instantly discharged.

De Quincey, when he writes, flings each sheet as soon as finished over his shoulder, and never sees them again. His daughter gathers up the scattered leaves, arranges and correct them and hawk them amongst the magazine editors for sale. For a long time De Quincey's nervousness from opium was so great that he was obliged to walk fourteen miles a day in order to procure two hours' sleep at night. The way in which this was accomplished was curious. The dreamer had a mile measured on a neighboring road, and at one extremity placed a heap of seven stones. When the journey was to commence De Quincey took up a stone and carried it to the other end of the mile, then returned for another, until the pile was exhausted. This necessity of carrying the stones prevented De Quincey from forgetting the number of miles he had walked, which would otherwise be highly probable.

CANADIAN ENTERPRISE.—The North American, the first of Edmonstone, Allan & Co.'s, steamers, is expected to reach Montreal early in the course of this evening.—The public are already familiar with a description of this fine vessel. But she possesses an interest beyond that of mere curiosity, however laudable. She is a proof that Canada possesses within herself capital and enterprise, which, if properly encouraged, will make her, to a great extent independent of extor'de aid. The North American must not be regarded as simply the property of her enterprising owners; she is more. She is an evidence to Canadians that their own resources are fully adequate to their wants, and that it merely requires judicious encouragement and support to create and foster this and other commendable enterprises.—Pilot, 9th.

GROWING POWER OF THE PRESS.—During the whole of the late Naval Review at Spithead in England, the Cuckoo, one of Her Majesty's Steam Vessels was appropriated by the Admiralty to the use of the members of the Press. The power it has gained by its fearless exposures of the conduct of the late war, and the immense influence its general tone exercises on the people at large, has led, without a doubt, to this naval innovation on aristocratic exclusiveness.

CHOLERA IN THE HAIR.—A foreign letter in the Bath Tribune, has the following:

"An anecdote is told of an English barber, who observed to a customer that there was 'cholera in the hair.' 'Then I hope you are somewhat particular about the brushes you use.' 'Oh!' said the barber, 'I don't mean the 'air of the 'ead, but the hair of the *hat*mosphere."

CAN a man be shaved in his absence?—certainly, if a man and wife are one flesh and the lady goes to a linendraper's.

A lady walking on Broadway a short time ago, a gentleman's button caught in the fringe of her shawl. Some moments elapsed before the parties were separated.

'I am attached to this woman,' said the gentleman, good humoredly, while he was industriously trying to get loose.

'The attachment is mutual, sir,' was the good humored reply.

LIABILITY AND RELIABILITY.—How desirable it is too, that liability should be reliably limited. What fun it should be, if all the various speculative Joint Stock Companies which are springing into existence every day were not liable to smash!

THE ROSE AND THE MISLETOE.—A remarkably intelligent young botanist of our acquaintance asserts it as his conviction, strengthened by his public observation, not the less than by his private experience, that plants have a decided influence upon the actions of mankind in general, and of womankind, perhaps in particular. In illustration to this axiom, he adduces, with some shrewdness the indisputable fact, that many a delicate young lady who would shrink, with maiden modesty, from being kissed under the misletoe, has yet not the slightest objection to that ceremony if it be performed under the rose.

ECONOMY IN DRESS.—A lady's dress is becoming wonderfully simplified—for instance, putting on her bonnet and taking it off her head again are done now by one and the same movement.

Mr. Wakely, the Middlesex Coroner, and Mr. Manning, a Solicitor, both of whom were intimately acquainted with the late John Sadlier, have removed the doubts cast on the reality of his suicide by the Nation newspaper. Mr. Wakely states that he minutely examined the body, and Mr. Manning mentions other circumstances which beyond a doubt identify Sadlier with the corpse found on Hampstead Heath.

A CONSIDERATE HUSBAND.—A gay fellow who has taken lodgings at a public house, and got considerably in debt, absented himself and took new quarters. This so outraged the landlord that he commissioned his wife to go and dun him—which the debtor having heard of declared publicly that if she came he would kiss her. 'Will he?' said the lady, 'will he?' Give me my bonnet, Molly, I will see whether my fellow on earth has such impudence.' 'My dear,' said the cooling husband, 'pray do not be so rash; you do not know what a man may do when he is in a passion.'

QUICK JUSTICE.—Michael Quinlin who committed a robbery of $35 at the Railway Station on Friday, and was taken after arrested by one of the Police and committed for trial,—was placed in the dock just before the termination of the Assizes on Saturday, tried, and sent for three years to the Penitentiary. All within twenty four hours.

TROOPS FOR LONDON.—We have been informed, on what we regard reliable authority, that the 19th regiment is under orders for Canada, and will be stationed in this city.

The Norfolk Messenger states that Mr. Isaac Hennigs, of that town has invented a Machine for planting corn, beans, peas, &c., far superior to any other instrument now in use, and that he has had it patented.

A BEAUTIFUL INCIDENT.—A lady lately visiting New York City, saw one day on the sidewalk a ragged cold and hungry little girl, gazing wistfully at some cake in a shop window. She stopped and taking the little one by the hand, led her into the store, though she was aware that bread might be better than cake yet desiring to gratify the shivering and forlorn one she bought and gave her the cake she wished. She then went to another place where she procured her a shawl and other articles of comfort.—The grateful little creature looked the lady full in the face and said 'are you God's wife?'

SMALL POX, Yellow Fever, and Measles, are now very prevalent at Quarantine New York.

A young man who was convicted of bigamy at Newburyport, Mass, last spring, upon serving out his term of punishment, was met at the railway station by his first wife, who took him to a clothing store and gave him a new rig, then presented to him $300 she had earned since he had deserted her, and they departed for their former home in New Hampshire. If he isn't faithful to her the rest of his life he ought not to live long.

MRS. LINFORD ON THE MARRIAGE STATE.—Mrs. Linford delivered a lecture in New York on the Marriage State. The Times says that she began at the beginning of the subject and remained there till the close when she announced that she had established an institution for the purpose of teaching young servant girls how to become mothers —such as children ought to have.

It is said that the Sheriff of Franklin county in the State of Alabama, lately hung a man who had received a respite from the Governor of the State. He pronounced the document a forgery and disregarded it; but it was genuine, and the sheriff is to be tried for murder.

Since 1853, 12 American steamships have been lost at sea, costing 2,550 human lives and 7,250,000 dols. worth of property.

SACRILEGE.—On the night of Friday last, the Episcopalian Church in this Town was broken into—the melodeon used in the service, and which cost about £25, being feloniously stolen. No trace of the depredators has as yet been had. It is supposed they were led to commit the act of villany, by the hope of finding the silver communion service,—which, however, had been removed to a place of greater security, some time before; and that they only had recourse to the melodeon from the lack of some more easily convertible article.—Observer.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A respectable young man named Porter, residing near Clearville, in Vaughan, was accidentally killed last Saturday night. He had returned late in the evening from shooting ducks, and his wife retired, he was endeavouring to find a candle, holding the loaded gun in his hand, when by some accident it went off, lodging the contents in his breast. He lingered for six hours in great pain and anxiety, some time before; and that they only had recourse to the melodeon from the lack of some more easily convertible article.—Observer.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A respectable young man named Porter, residing near Clearville, in Vaughan, was accidentally killed last Saturday night. He had returned late in the evening from shooting ducks, and his wife retired, he was endeavouring to find a candle, holding the loaded gun in his hand, when by some accident it went off, lodging the contents in his breast. He lingered for six hours in great pain and anxiety, some time before; and that they only had recourse to the melodeon from the lack of some more easily convertible article.—Observer.

A CONSIDERATE HUSBAND.—A gay fellow who has taken lodgings at a public house, and got considerably in debt, absented himself and took new quarters. This so outraged the landlord that he commissioned his wife to go and dun him—which the debtor having heard of declared publicly that if she came he would kiss her. 'Will he?' said the lady, 'will he?' Give me my bonnet, Molly, I will see whether any fellow on earth has such impudence.' 'My dear,' said the cooling husband, 'pray do not be so rash; you do not know what a man may do when he is in a passion.'

QUICK JUSTICE.—Michael Quinlin who committed a robbery of $35 at the Railway Station on Friday, and was taken after arrested by one of the Police and committed for trial,—was placed in the dock just before the termination of the Assizes on Saturday, tried, and sent for three years to the Penitentiary. All within twenty four hours.

TROOPS FOR LONDON.—We have been informed, on what we regard reliable authority, that the 19th regiment is under orders for Canada, and will be stationed in this city.

The Norfolk Messenger states that Mr. Isaac Hennigs, of that town has invented a Machine for planting corn, beans, peas, &c., far superior to any other instrument now in use, and that he has had it patented.

A BEAUTIFUL INCIDENT.—A lady lately visiting New York City, saw one day on the sidewalk a ragged cold and hungry little girl, gazing wistfully at some cake in a shop window. She stopped and taking the little one by the hand, led her into the store, though she was aware that bread might be better than cake yet desiring to gratify the shivering and forlorn one she bought and gave her the cake she wished. She then went to another place where she procured her a shawl and other articles of comfort.—The grateful little creature looked the lady full in the face and said 'are you God's wife?'

SMALL POX, Yellow Fever, and Measles, are now very prevalent at Quarantine New York.

A young man who was convicted of bigamy at Newburyport, Mass, last spring, upon serving out his term of punishment, was met at the railway station by his first wife, who took him to a clothing store and gave him a new rig, then presented to him $300 she had earned since he had deserted her, and they departed for their former home in New Hampshire. If he isn't faithful to her the rest of his life he ought not to live long.

MRS. LINFORD ON THE MARRIAGE STATE.—Mrs. Linford delivered a lecture in New York on the Marriage State. The Times says that she began at the beginning of the subject and remained there till the close when she announced that she had established an institution for the purpose of teaching young servant girls how to become mothers —such as children ought to have.

It is said that the Sheriff of Franklin county in the State of Alabama, lately hung a man who had received a respite from the Governor of the State. He pronounced the document a forgery and disregarded it; but it was genuine, and the sheriff is to be tried for murder.

Since 1853, 12 American steamships have been lost at sea, costing 2,550 human lives and 7,250,000 dols. worth of property.

SACRILEGE.—On the night of Friday last, the Episcopalian Church in this Town was broken into—the melodeon used in the service, and which cost about £25, being feloniously stolen. No trace of the depredators has as yet been had. It is supposed they were led to commit the act of villany, by the hope of finding the silver communion service,—which, however, had been removed to a place of greater security, some time before; and that they only had recourse to the melodeon from the lack of some more easily convertible article.—Observer.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A respectable young man named Porter, residing near Clearville, in Vaughan, was accidentally killed last Saturday night. He had returned late in the evening from shooting ducks, and his wife retired, he was endeavouring to find a candle, holding the loaded gun in his hand, when by some accident it went off, lodging the contents in his breast. He lingered for six hours in great pain and anxiety, some time before; and that they only had recourse to the melodeon from the lack of some more easily convertible article.—Observer.

A CONSIDERATE HUSBAND.—A gay fellow who has taken lodgings at a public house, and got considerably in debt, absented himself and took new quarters. This so outraged the landlord that he commissioned his wife to go and dun him—which the debtor having heard of declared publicly that if she came he would kiss her. 'Will he?' said the lady, 'will he?' Give me my bonnet, Molly, I will see whether any fellow on earth has such impudence.' 'My dear,' said the cooling husband, 'pray do not be so rash; you do not know what a man may do when he is in a passion.'

QUICK JUSTICE.—Michael Quinlin who committed a robbery of $35 at the Railway Station on Friday, and was taken after arrested by one of the Police and committed for trial,—was placed in the dock just before the termination of the Assizes on Saturday, tried, and sent for three years to the Penitentiary. All within twenty four hours.

TROOPS FOR LONDON.—We have been informed, on what we regard reliable authority, that the 19th regiment is under orders for Canada, and will be stationed in this city.

The Norfolk Messenger states that Mr. Isaac Hennigs, of that town has invented a Machine for planting corn, beans, peas, &c., far superior to any other instrument now in use, and that he has had it patented.

A BEAUTIFUL INCIDENT.—A lady lately visiting New York City, saw one day on the sidewalk a ragged cold and hungry little girl, gazing wistfully at some cake in a shop window. She stopped and taking the little one by the hand, led her into the store, though she was aware that bread might be better than cake yet desiring to gratify the shivering and forlorn one she bought and gave her the cake she wished. She then went to another place where she procured her a shawl and other articles of comfort.—The grateful little creature looked the lady full in the face and said 'are you God's wife?'

SMALL POX, Yellow Fever, and Measles, are now very prevalent at Quarantine New York.

A young man who was convicted of bigamy at Newburyport, Mass, last spring, upon serving out his term of punishment, was met at the railway station by his first wife, who took him to a clothing store and gave him a new rig, then presented to him $300 she had earned since he had deserted her, and they departed for their former home in New Hampshire. If he isn't faithful to her the rest of his life he ought not to live long.

MRS. LINFORD ON THE MARRIAGE STATE.—Mrs. Linford delivered a lecture in New York on the Marriage State. The Times says that she began at the beginning of the subject and remained there till the close when she announced that she had established an institution for the purpose of teaching young servant girls how to become mothers —such as children ought to have.

It is said that the Sheriff of Franklin county in the State of Alabama, lately hung a man who had received a respite from the Governor of the State. He pronounced the document a forgery and disregarded it; but it was genuine, and the sheriff is to be tried for murder.

Since 1853, 12 American steamships have been lost at sea, costing 2,550 human lives and 7,250,000 dols. worth of property.

SACRILEGE.—On the night of Friday last, the Episcopalian Church in this Town was broken into—the melodeon used in the service, and which cost about £25, being feloniously stolen. No trace of the depredators has as yet been had. It is supposed they were led to commit the act of villany, by the hope of finding the silver communion service,—which, however, had been removed to a place of greater security, some time before; and that they only had recourse to the melodeon from the lack of some more easily convertible article.—Observer.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A respectable young man named Porter, residing near Clearville, in Vaughan, was accidentally killed last Saturday night. He had returned late in the evening from shooting ducks, and his wife retired, he was endeavouring to find a candle, holding the loaded gun in his hand, when by some accident it went off, lodging the contents in his breast. He lingered for six hours in great pain and anxiety, some time before; and that they only had recourse to the melodeon from the lack of some more easily convertible article.—Globe

We were not a little astonished last week to hear of the dismissal of two of the oldest and most energetic magistrates, J. A. Wilkinson and Thomas Woodbridge Esquires, from the Commissions of the Peace in this County, on grounds which to us seem altogether untenable. At that time we had no personal interest or correspondence established, on which rested the cause of dismissal, but having now given the subject careful consideration, we are compelled to say, that a more high-handed and arbitrary step, on the part of the Government, has rarely if ever come before the public. The facts of the case are these:—A negro recently committed a felony in the neighboring Republic, and afterwards made his escape to this Province: Information were laid and warrants issued in accordance with the laws of the States, and a constable was sent over from Detroit with the proper documents for endorsation here, and the same having been duly attended, a warrant was issued by Messrs. Wilkinson and Woodbridge for the apprehension of the offender, who was to have been brought before those gentlemen for examination according to the terms of the Ashburton Treaty. The warrant was placed in the hands of an old and well known constable, Samuel Port, who arrested the fellow at or near Pike Creek, above Windsor, and who put him down to Sandwich in company with the American constable, and another person who was there to identify the criminal. On arriving at Sandwich, Port immediately proceeded in search of the Magistrate from whom he received his warrant, leaving his prisoner with the American until his return. He had not been long absent, when he returned, (after finding the Magistrates,) for his prisoner, who could not be found. It appears that while Port was thus necessarily absent, the Americans having no doubts about the identity of the prisoner, and thinking doubtlessly, that it would save considerable time and expense to carry their good bird across the river at once, touched up their livery horse, and in a few minutes were out of the jurisdiction of the Province. There was a negro named Garrett, a resident of London, C. W., without any personal knowledge of the facts, but probably instigated by some other equally intelligent person of his own color, gets up a petition to His Excellency, the Governor General, setting forth that this same Lawton was a negro was a refugee from slavery, that the al legal crime was only got up as a pretext for getting him sent back to his master; that the Magistrate and Constable connived at the kidnapping, and that he could obtain a no redress from the Magistrates, who refused to concur with his "demand" that the prisoner should be brought before them for examination. This petition we learn from good authority, was presented by this Garrett in person, to His Excellency, he having for some means or other imposed upon the credulity of Mr. Rankin, to procure him an introduction. In relation to Mr. Rankin's name as coupled with this transaction, we do so with regret, for we can scarcely believe Mr. Rankin would lend himself to such a transaction, unless grossly imposed upon.—Be that as it may, Garrett obtained the much desired interview, and upon the information with such success, that a communication was addressed to Messrs Wilkison and Woodbridge requesting an explanation, which was given in so complete and full a manner as should have been amply satisfactory to any impartial or unprejudiced mind.

In this explanation they repudiate any idea of connivance or kidnapping, and had the negro Lawton been brought before them the probability is that he would have been committed to Sandwich gaol in order that the decision of the Crown might be obtained in accordance with the terms of the Ashburton Treaty. With regard to the punishment of the Constable for neglect of duty, it is very clear that the Magistrates had no power in the case unless a complaint on oath, by parties injured, or cognisant of the facts, were made to the same before the final mandate from the Crown was instructed by the County Judge to whom they applied for advice, before this inquiry was instituted.—Under these circumstances any reasonable being would have dismissed the complaint and not the Magistrates; such however, was not the case, for although a mail or two of communication was received by these magistrates, that His Excellency had thought fit to remove them from the Commission of the Peace; not because the prisoner had escaped; not because the Constable had been negligent, and was still unpunished, but because by certain Statute to which the Secretary alluded, had escaped the notice of the Magistrates, and because according to the ideas of the Hon. Secretary found no doubt from exparte statements of the case by Garret, they had no business to arrest Lawton. The Secretary, or those who persuaded the Government to adopt the course they have done towards these Magistrates, must surely have been under the influence of an after-dinner nap. Who ever heard before this of people being punished for doing things they are not accused of, and of course punished for what they have been guilty of doing? If the Magistrates really had no jurisdiction nor right to apprehend the man, but which it is not proved yet, the examination of the case, which always forms the anterior steps to committment, might have been discovered, and then, if, instead of discharging the prisoner, they had committed him to goal, the party aggrieved would have had a fair ground for an action for damages. Magistrates are not lawyers, and when they do over-run their authority, there are plenty of legal gentlemen ready to take up the case of a complainant, and the Courts of law are always so tenacious of "the liberty of the subject," that they cannot act in any very arbitrary manner without being brought to account in a far better manner than by the ungracious act of the Crown in dismissing them. And in this sort of case, how does the Government placed itself in the estimation of the intelligent people of this County? Is it at all an enviable position, is it one that will gain them a single iota of respect they have hitherto commanded? We opine the latter is the condition in which they have placed themselves. Mr. Wilkinson is an aged man, who after having devoted the prime of his life to his Sovereign, retired many years since to seek a home in this county, where he might enjoy that peace and quiet he had well earned. He became respected by all with whom he associated, and received his reward by being made the Representative of this County in the U. C. Parliament, as well as being one of the oldest Magistrates on the Commission; and will his friends and neighbors feel their respect for him in any degree lessened by his dismissal; we know they will not; it is not in the power of the Government to disgrace him. Then, in regard to Mr. Woodbridge, how is the Government situated; Mr. W. is Reeve of his Municipality, and as such, was a much a Magistrate as ever he was, and from his position he cannot be dismissed. He will keep his seat among his brother Magistrates, and keep it with the same respect he ever did; and what is more his friends and constituents will again return him to the position he now holds.

We are surprised that Government should notice the absurd position the colored population and those who advocate their cause are eternally running. Every negro who commits a crime, however heinous, and makes his escape from justice to this Country, is protected from the punishment he so richly deserves, by the cry of "refugee" from slavery. Refugee forsooth! as a refugee, we have no desire to hold protection from him. By being among us, he has nothing to fear, and it is not for us, to send him back to slavery, albeit he might have been far better off with his master than he is now; but in extending our protection we should be very scrupulous how we open the door to every ruffian and villain whose crimes drive him to seek shelter under the flag of the Lion. How often do we see the majority of our courts crowded with delinquent negroes, and it has been said from the bench, by one of the highest authorities of the land, that the bulk of business transacted in our courts is caused by the colored population. The Craigleith land building fever with the case of Lawton, is amply proved by the circumstance, that he has been tried and convicted of the crime for which he was arrested here, and is now receiving his reward in the State Prison of Ohio. Had Lawton been a white man instead of a negro, we very much question if anybody would have troubled their heads about his extradition; and Mr. Secretary would have been relieved from the disagreeable task of dismissing two highly respectable Magistrates from the Commission of the Peace.—Amherstburg Telegraph Troops for Canada.

The following despatch was laid before the house yesterday:—

DOWNING STREET,

No. 79. May 2, 1856.

Governor Sir Edmund Head, Bart.,
&c., &c., &c.

SIR,—You are aware that the Treaty of Peace provides for the prompt evacuation by her Majesty's forces of foreign territories at present held by them; and that, among other arrangements for the distribution of the army on its return from active service, orders have been given that five regiments shall be selected to be stationed in British North America, of which three are allotted to Canada.

2. Such an amount of force is not of a character to afford much room for misconception as to the purpose of her Majesty's Govern ment, but still I think it better to address to you a few remarks in explanation of that purpose.

3. Earl Grey's despatch to Lord Elgin of the 14th March, 1851, laid down the principles which were then adopted by her Majesty's Government in regard to their colonial policy, considered in a military point of view: and in reserving to the mother country the duty of maintaining Garrison for fortresses of chief importance, such as Quebec, intended to co-operation in the first instance, for the auxiliary sources of defence. The vigour with which at this moment a militia force is being organized, justifies our continuing to place, as we do place, the fullest reliance on this policy.

4. It is not, of course, to be expected that the force of the garrisons alluded to should be at all times of an unvarying strength. It may vary occasionally from military or political reasons. During the war just ended, when the chief military strength of the Empire had to be concentrated for the operations in the East, Regiments stationed in Canada were withdrawn; and my predecessor, Sir George Grey, explained in a despatch, dated 11th August, 1851, increased responsibility was thrown upon the Province. That emergency has now happily passed away; but although the regular soldiers in Canada may be from time to time, as any particular time, the policy of her Majesty's Government continues the same, and they desire to place their main dependence on the well proved loyalty and courage of her Majesty's Canadian subjects to repel any hostile aggression, should the occasion ever unfortunately occur; although it is not part of her Majesty's Government would not fail to give to the Province the full support of the whole power of the British Empire.

5. You will take care that no misapprehension on this subject shall exist in Canada, which might produce any relaxation of the honourable exertions which the Province is now making to establish a suitable military organization. I have had the greatest satisfaction in submitting to her Majesty the accounts which you have transmitted to me of the zeal and energy with which all classes of her Canadian subjects have come forward to carry into effect the provisions of the new militia act, and I trust that the result will be, that this local force will speedily be placed on a footing of permanent efficiency.

I have, &c.,
(Signed) H. LABOUCHERE.

PUBLIC WORKS OF CANADA.—Under this heading the Boston Atlas thus eloquently discourseth:—

"We published an article a few days since, giving some account of the public works of Canada, their past history, and the proposition brought forward and advocated by the Hon. John Young, for their enlargement and an addition to their number by the construction of the Caughawa Canal, to connect the St. Lawrence, at Montreal, with Lake Champlain. The papers now announce the conception and probable success of a stupendous railway project, having for its object the connection of Lake Huron, thro' the valley of the Ottawa, with Montreal and Quebec, by an almost direct line.

With a population of some 3,000,000 people, Canada has the princely domain of 180,405,210 acres. These lands are rich in minerals, in forests, and in all the requirements of agriculture. The valley of the Ottawa alone, has a sufficient quantity of lumber to supply the markets of the world for a century. The mines of Lake Superior are, as yet, scarcely known in their richness and extent, but so far as explorations have been found, both in quality and quantity of ore to rival the best in the country.

Through the efforts of the present Commissioner of Crown Lands, Hon. Joseph Cauchon, much has been done to bring these lands and their value into notice. Surveys have been made, by his orders, of large tracts which were previously comparatively unknown, but which are now deemed some of the most valuable lands in the whole Province. In his desire to open up the lands of Canada to emigration, the Commissioner has found their inaccessibility to be his greatest obstacle. It matters little how rich or how beautiful lands are, they cannot be made attractive to emigration till they are also made easy of access, with a good outlet to market for their products.—Observing the success of the land grant in aid of the railways in the State of Illinois, and the rapid settlement of the central portion of that State, in consequence, Mr. Cauchon, we are glad to learn by his report, has decided to recommend to Parliament the grant of a charter for a line of railway from Quebec, via the north shore of the St. Lawrence, touching at Three Rivers, at the mouth of the River St. Maurice, to Montreal, thence through the valley of the Ottawa to Bytown and thence to Lake Huron, Penetanguishene or Georgian Bay, a distance of five hundred miles, though a very rich, fertile and desirable country—well wooded and well watered—accompanied by a grant of three million acres of land to aid in its construction,

In the wisdom of such a step on the part of the Commissioner can scarcely be controverted, especially with the experience so freshly in mind which has been afforded by the Grand Trunk scheme. In that instance, the country traversed is nearly all accessible by water or other railway routes, and instead of being valued for in crown lands, must be secured in Provincial bonds, to an amount much greater than was at first supposed: whereas, in the project now proposed, the route is new to every one, but the lumberman and the trapper, excepting that portion between Montreal and Ottawa, the lands are unexceptionable, and having no other outlet to the markets of the lakes and the sea, must contribute of their products to the support of the road. While such a traffic alone would afford ample business for the line, the fact that such a route would be the most direct one between Europe and the Western States, and also between the Lake Superior region and New York and Boston, as well as Montreal and Quebec, would add immensely to its through business.

We must say that we regard this enterprise with more favour, as promising the greatest results, and most magnificent returns, of any other railway project ever broached in Canada. If it be carried through, as we doubt not it may be, it will add more to the wealth and population of Canada, to the sales of her lands and the quantity of her products, than any other of her public works, and will not only benefit the mother, or to the traffic of her canals. Although the Canadians may now think this a bold move on the part of Mr. Cauchon, we incline to the opinion that they will live to see his sagacity vindicated and the Province enriched through its results.

Should the northern route to the Pacific ocean ever be constructed, this line will be a direct extension of it from Lake Superior, east. Such a route would also be much the shortest of any talked of, from China and Japan to London, via the American Continent.

Ship Building in Canada.

A return to an address from the Legislative Council affords some interesting figures upon this subject. The number of vessels built in Canada in 1850 was 87, the average tonnage being 382. The number registered was 244. In 1851, the number built was 181, less than in the preceding year, and the average tonnage was 532. In 1852 there was a further decrease in the number built, there being but 71, and the average tonnage 485. In 1853 there was a large increase, the number built having reached 138, average tonnage 430. In 1854 the number fell off again to 118, average tonnage, 454. While in 1855 the number was 137, with an average tonnage of 513. The greater number of vessels were built in 1850. In 1850, there were built 73 vessels the average tonnage being 439. In 1851, 68 vessels, average tonnage 550. In 1853, 50 vessels, average tonnage 990—the largest average within the last six years. In 1854, 39 vessels, average tonnage 1,000. Last year, 1855, number of vessels 75, average tonnage 439. Although in 1853 there were fewer vessels built than during any other year since 1850, the tonnage was much greater, being 49,541 against 47,308 in 1854, the next largest.

Fortunate Arrest in Detroit of Counterfeiters of Canada Money.

From the Detroit Tribune.

Yesterday afternoon, between 3 and 4 o'clock a series of very important arrests were made in this city, in which almost the entire Police force were engaged. All the particulars that are proper to publish at present are as follows:—On the 11th of Feb. last, J. B. Whiting the jailer executive officer of the Queen's Bench at Montreal, discovered the manufactory of counterfeit money, and further that they were about to issue certain counterfeits of divers banks and that a large quantity of this money would be sent to this city and distributed through trusty agents in this and other States. He immediately set to work to find out who the agents were, and to lay plans whereby they could be brought to justice and from that time to this, in connection with Police Justice Bagg, he has been at work indefatigably.

He has also succeeded in exceedingly well executed counterfeit on the Providence Bank, Rhode Island—a $1 bill—was issued by the gang and circulated all over the country. It was rapidly taken and is no doubt in wide circulation now. The head quarters of the gang is about 20 miles from the city of Montreal. He also by after learned that there would soon be issued a counterfeit $10 on the City Bank of Montreal, very fairly executed, and from the fact that counterfeits on Canada banks are of very rare occurrence, well calculated to deceive and be widely circulated.

Last Saturday night he received information that $50,000 of this money had arrived in town, and was shortly to be distributed. Measures were immediately taken to nip the scheme in the bud. Plans having been matured, and officers designated to make arrests in different localities about half past three yesterday afternoon, most of the arrests were made, Junior Whiting, officer Alijah Joy, of the D. & M. Railway, and Special constable Searle proceeded to an office kept by John Stewart, on Atwater Street, opposite Barchy's Foundry. This was one story a lumber and general business office. Here they found, as they expected to do so, 'Stewart' in the very act of distributing counterfeit bills. Augustus Sess-Nelson Smith, Nathan Ward, and Stephen Burnham. They were all taken into custody at once. On 'Stewart' was found $8,580 of this money which was secured. He has kept a saloon on the corner of Jefferson Avenue and First st., and has been employed in this agency for some little past. Junior Whiting then came down to Baker's tavern, on the corner of Bates and Atwater sts., and went into the bar room and told Mr. B. that he desired to search his house by authority of a warrant which he had and while there talking with him, 'Nathaniel Hall' came in and inquired for 'Gus Sesser.' Mr. Whiting told him he was on his way to jail where he ought to be also, and immediately invited him to step into another room where he searched him. A $5 bill counterfeit, on the Boston Bank and heavy ring shot were found upon him. He was sent to jail. The tavern was searched but nothing was found.

Mr. Whiting and officers Love, Ray and F. C. Chambers, a special, then proceeded to the house of William Gunning (formerly a clerk at C. P. Woodruff's Hardware store) on Labrosse street, between Sixth and Seventh street, and arrested him. A search of the premises revealed nothing, but this morning there was found, secreted in a wood pile in the rear of the house, between $300 and $400 in bogus two and a half dollar gold pieces, of which spurious coin, considerable was in circulation.

In the evening, officers J. Stadley, Mizner, Eglington, and Sparling proceeded to the house of J. Parrish in Hamtrammack, which they searched, but without finding anything. He was taken to jail and searched. On him was only found, however, some bogus silver and gold coin.

A pedlar of cutlery and various notions, who kept a wagon on the dock near Chas. Savanack's eating house, and opposite the Central Depot, named Wm. Hall, was also arrested by officers Mizner and Dings.

Officer Dings and D. Colbeck, three officers proceeded to the house of Joshua Armstrong on Labross Street, Fourth and Fifth, to arrest him. Officer Dings went up into the second story, and told him his errand and taking him by the arm led him down stairs, but he reached the front door where the other officers were waiting, he freed himself from the grasp of the officer and ran like a deer down the street and into the orchard on the Woodbridge farm, pursued by all the officers.

He refusing to stop when ordered to do so, and making the best kind of time, in fact, "rather" better than the officers, they fired at him and at the third shot he halted and surrendered at discretion—nothing was found on his person or in his house. During the day, however, he had been seen at Stewart's office, at Baker's tavern and in other localities, which excited suspicion, and led the officers to believe that possibly some of the money might be in his possession.

These are all the arrests made. In the early part of the day considerable money was paid out by Stewart, to sub-agents, who came and received it in couples. They came and received a share, who reside in Indiana and who left the city immediately for that State. The money came earlier than was expected, or there would have been a larger number of receivers in the city and a larger number of arrests made. As it is a pretty fair haul has been made, and all the leaders of the gang. These are all the facts that can at present be given to the public. The matter has been shrewdly and successfully managed, and the entire community have reason to be thankful for their escape from sets as loss by taking these dangerous counterfeits. The following is a general description: They are on the 'City Bank of Montreal' and purport to be paid at its branches at Toronto, Three Rivers and Quebec. The vignette at the top and middle of the bill is the Royal Arms of England, and the date under this is 1st January, 1856, and bet ween, and a little below the signatures is a steamboat. On the right is the bust of a woman, on the left that of a man in a square medallion. And in this connection is a sure guide for detecting the bad bills. Over and under this medallion are the words 'Incorporated by act of Parliament.' Notice that Parliament when correctly spelled has an A after "li"—In the counterfeit there is no A, it being carelessly left out. By this means the counterfeits can be readily detected.

The denomination is $10 paper medium. We caution our readers all over this state, especially in the Northern and interior portions of it, not to take any tens on that bank. The public in Indiana and Illinois should beware as it will be circulated largely there.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

SANDWICH, MAY 23, 1856.

Want of Confidence in the Administration.

On Wednesday of last week when Mr. Caley made his motion to go into Committee of the whole to consider of a supply to Her Majesty, there was a debate opened upon the inexpediency of granting fifty thousand pounds towards erecting permanent buildings at Quebec by Mr. Brown and other members of the opposition following in his wake. Mr. Brown's motion was to the effect that the Speaker do not leave the chair, but that it be resolved that the selection of Quebec as a permanent seat of Government was occasioned by the failure of the Administration to submit a definite proposition to Parliament for the selection of a proper seat and that it is inexpedient to make an appropriation for Public Buildings at Quebec. This notion was ruled out of order by the Speaker "as it declared that a prefious vote of the House was in consideration of the Government as the House was considered never to be in error." The Government was then pretty plainly notified that it was the intention of the opposition to move a vote of want of confidence; and on Thursday Mr. Holton moved that the speaker do not leave the chair, but that it be resolved that the course of the Administration in reference to the seat of Government and to other important questions has been such as to disappoint the first expectations of the great majority of the people of this Province. A very spirited and determined debate was continued until Tuesday last before a division could be had upon the question, and as a matter of course from the time that elapsed from the opening of the debate to its close, all absent members were called to the House and as will be seen by the votes recorded there were very few members absent. The Government however, mustered their whole forces on Tuesday, and such was the spirit with which the debate was carried on that the House sat from three o'clock P. M. on Monday till four o'clock A. M. on Tuesday, when it took a recess of a quarter of an hour. It again sat until noon, and after an intermission of an hour the session was resumed, which was continued until twelve o'clock on Tuesday evening before the vote was taken. As may be supposed, the excitement just before the division was intense. The Government was, however, sustained by a large majority, seventy voting for, and forty-seven against. This result was hardly expected, as it was supposed that the already tottering and feeble Government was in the last and expiring agonies of dissolution, but alas, such is the fear of future punishment as a general election, that members would rather sacrifice principle and everything else for the sake of power, knowing right well that so lost have they become in public opinion, that their chances of re-election would be poor indeed, hence it is that you find that some of our conscientious and straightforward members abusing the ministry in every possible way and in no measured terms either, suddenly wheeling about and voting to keep those very men in power. What can be expected from such a Parliament, composed of men wholly without principle? of course we do not include the whole of the ministry, as there are some old and tried men who have served their country long and faithfully. The worthy Premier, we hope, will long continue at the head of affairs, and did hope that ere long there would have been an election, and that Sir Allan would then have been able to form a ministry such as would give satisfaction to the Country.

The following is the division:—

YEAS.—Messrs. Aikins, Bell, Bigger, Burasssa, Brown, Bureau, Cameron, Christie, Chapais, Daoust, Larwin, Delong, De-Witt, J. B. E. Dorion, Flint, Foley, Frazer, Freeman, A. A. Dorion, Galt, Gould, Hartman, Holton, Jackson, Jobin, Laberge, J. S. Macdonald, R. Macdonald, Mackenzie, Matice, Merritt, Munro, Murney, Niles, Papin, Patrick, Powell, Rankin, Ralph, Sanborn Scatcherd, Sidney Smith, Jas. Smith, Southwick, Valois, Wilson, and Wright—47.

NAYS:—Messrs. Alleyn, Bellingham, Bowes, Brodeur, Burton, Cartier, Cassault, Cauchon, Cayley, Chabot, Chapais, Chisholm, Church, Clarke, Conger, Crawford, Crysler, Daly, J. B. Daoust, Desaulniers, Dionne, Dostaler, Attorney General Drummond, Dufresne, Evanturel, Fellows, Felton, Forres, T. Fortier. O. C. Fortier, Fournier, Gamble, Gill, Guevermont, Labelle, Laporte, Larwill, Le Boutillier, Lemieux, Lumsden, Macbeth, Attorney General Macdonald, McCann, Marchildon, Masson, Meagher, Mongenais, J. C. Morrison, A. Morrison, O'Farrell, Polette, Pourlin, Pouliot, Price, Rhodes, Robinson, Roblin, Solicitor General Ross, Shaw, Solicitor General Smith, Strimmerville, Spence, Stevenson, Supple, Tache, Terrul, Thibaudeau, Turcotte, Whitney, and Yielding—79.

The Canadian Naturalist and Geologist is the title of a new magazine devoted to the Natural History and Geology of British America. Billing Esq., Ottawa, the first and second numbers of which are upon our table, and have afforded us no small degree of pleasure in their perusal. The subjects treated upon are those which every person must take delight in. This work fills up a great blank that has always existed in the literature of the country, and the talented editor is entitled to the greatest praise in contributing to the wants of the people in furnishing information upon the Geological discoveries of the country. Our Natural History is ably treated of, and we will refer to the work at some future time, when we will be able to do it more justice than we can at present.

Mr. Henry Rusell at Toronto is agent for Western Canada.

Arrival of the Asia.

SANDY HOOK, 15th.

The steamship Asia, from Liverpool on morning of Saturday, 3rd instant, arrived in our harbour this evening. The Asia is either at anchor or aground in the lower bay and as she has fired several guns and blown off steam—the presumption is that she is aground.

The news is three days later than that received by the Atlantic, but presents no feature of decided import. In the British Parliament, the adjourned debate on Mr. Whiteside's motion, of a vote of censure on the government, for the fall of Kars, had been pressed to a division, when the motion was lost by a majority against it of 127.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

Breadstuffs advanced slightly.

Money market stringent. Consols closed 92¾

THE PEACE CONGRESS.

The news by this arrival is unimporat, but the official reports of the proceedings of Congress have been received.

The most interesting feature of the business took place after the treaty was signed, and immediately previous to the breaking up of the Conference, in the shape of an interchange of opinion on subjects of European interests.

Count Walewski invited the plenipotentiaries to this interchange of sentiment, and himself went over the ground, referring to the disturbed condition of Greece and Italy, and recommending that suggestions to rule more mildly should be conveyed to the Italian Governments. In this recommendation the plenipotentiaries more or less heartily agreed, Sardinia excepted.

Count Cavour on behalf of Sardinia demanded that a secular government be established in the Roman legation and that the Austrian troops be withdrawn, in as much as their presence in Italy disturbs the political equilibrium and constitutes a real danger to Sardinia. This speech led to some sharp words between the Austrian and Sardinian representatives, but it ended in nothing.

Count Walewski threw a cunning bait to entrap the Congress into a measure of repression against the Belgian press, but Lord Clarendon refusing to hold forms to lend the influence of England to any measure tending to check freedom of opinion, Walewski backed out of the proposal in the best manner he could.

The plenipotentiaries then discussed and assented to a new declaration of maritime law, providing that neutral flag shall make a free cargo, except contraband of war; that commercial cargoes shall be free, even under an enemy's flag; that blockades, to be accepted, must be effective, and that privateering shall be abolished. To these important principles the plenipotentiaries give the adhesion of their governments, Russia qualifying her assent in the matter of privateering.

MONTREAL, 16th.

About 2 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in an outbuilding between the Richard and St. Catherine streets west of DeBlleury street. The contiguous buildings being of wood and a great scarcity of water, the flames spread with rapidity. A large number of houses have been destroyed and many poor families rendered houseless. At the time we write (half past 3, a. m.) the fire has not been quite got under. The firemen used every means at their disposal to stay the devouring element, but the cry was "No Water." The fire originated in a stable where three men, by a careless act, had entered with a lighted candle. 10 dwelling houses have been consumed, half of Compton Row in Edward street, and the dwellings and outhouses forming the Square between the Row and St. Catherine street.

A Ship Struck by a Water-Spout

Mr. Heaton, an officer on board of H. M. S. Electra, and a nephew of Lord Hennike, gives the following account, of the striking of the ship by a Water-spout on the 21st November last, on her passage from Melbourne:—

The day before yesterday we encountere l a most extraordinary danger—one that few ships have ever witnessed; that is, were caught in a water spout. The day had been pretty fine, and we had been compelled to take in sail several times, and, therefore, we who were below were not surprised to find the ship keel gradually over; but when she went further, and the deck became almost perpendicular, we could see that something had happened, and the common order of sail, and I felt a sort of faint, sick feeling of anticipation and vague dread that almost stilled the prayer that rose to my lips. The suspense was horrid, and the dread of being strangled below by the rush of water, gav me strength, and I climbed over the others and managed to reach the deck. There everything was in confusion, no one was giving intelligible orders, and the ship was lying over on her broadside, with all of one side buried in the water, ropes and sails flapping about, and men standing aghast, with despair in their faces.

I noticed one man in particular, who was sitting on the deck, seemingly in a state of utter idiotcy, with his hands clenched, and his face livid, deaf to all that was passing around him. The sight of so much anarchy restored my self possession, and I began to drive the men to the ropes to haul down the after sails, and in the course of minutes we work the ship slowly righted. The captain's gig was stove in by the water, and the davits (strong curved pillars of iron, as thick as my leg,) had been beat double by the pressure. It seems that a whirling mass of water had been seen approaching from the north, and before anything could be done it was put upon her, bearing down and whisking her round and under water, while the whirlwind by which it was of course accompanied and caused, pressed her over by sails and increased the danger. It was indeed a fearful minute, and nothing but God's hand could have saved us, for man was utterly power less, against the tremendous manifestation of our Creator's might.

As soon as I could get by myself, I returned him thanks for mercifully sparing myself and my shipmates, and saving us in our extreme peril. This was really a very uncommon adventure, for though ships frequently see water-spouts (I have seen many) it does not happen once in 500 times that it strikes a vessel. I have never heard of an accident occurring to a vessel struck by another, for it is so very appalling, for the very reason that it is so very unusual, as no one knows how to avoid its effects after it is upon them; though there is a way of prevention before hand by firing a gun at it, when the concussion of the air caused by the explosion is said to break the spout before it is near enough to do any damage. But in our case it moved too swiftly for that; and all our guns are firmly lashed, on account of the bad weather we encounter hereabouts, so that it would have been a matter of time to clear one away.

Arrival of the Canada.

Halifax, May 20.

The steamship Canada, from Liverpool, May 10th arrived here at 8 30 P. M., and sailed for Boston at 10, where she will be due on Thursday.

The Washington arrived at Southampton May 4th, and the Cambria, and Baltic at Liverpool 5 P. M. same day.

The clipper ship Racer had gone ashore on Arklow Bank, and would probably prove a total wreck. Crew and all the passengers, numbering over 500, were saved.

Great Britain.—The Queen held a Court at Buckingham Palace on the 7th, for the purpose of receiving the address on the Peace question from the House of Lords and the House of Commons. The deputations came in great state, and numbered nearly 100 persons. The Queen briefly acknowledged the address, and expressed her satisfaction at the re-establishment of peace on a basis securing its performance. Both Houses of Parliament have recorded a vote of thanks to the army and navy.

A pension of £1,000 sterling, for life, was to be settled on Gen. Williams who is also created a Baronet by the title of Sir Wm. F. Williams of Kars.

Lord Elgin postponed his motion of enquiry respecting the troops ordered to North America till after the holidays.

Lord Brougham gave notice of motion requiring Parliament to express its disapproval of the policy of granting Maritime rights, so long held as the Congress of Paris pledged Great Britain to do.

To celebrate the Peace the Queen has created Baronets to the Minister, the whole tone of the speeches on the occasion was congratulatory respecting the peace.

A regiment of German rangers at Plymouth, had mutinied, the ringleaders were arrested. He complained that the drill was too severe. The Imperial Prize will not till the end of the war. The regiments in the Crimea under orders for Canada are the 97th, 73d, 62d, and 63d, Infantry under the command of Eyre.

France.—A bill was introduced into the Chamber, on Wednesday, the Foreign Minister, in answering the question in regard to the speech of Count Walewski in the Press of Belgium, replied that that speech had not been officially communicated to the government. When that communication should be made the answer would be ready, and would be communicated to all the governments, and would formally maintain the rights of a constitutional and independent country.

From Washington.

A special despatch to the N. Y. Times, under date of Sunday last, says that the duty was laid off on those statements that Crampton is dismissed, which was generally believed. The dispatches from England declining to recall him were received on Saturday. They are conciliatory in tone, but persist in presuming Crampton's assertion, that what he did in the enlistment business was done with the knowledge and consent of Mr. Marcy as evidence that he is not guilty of violating our law, and ought not to be recalled.

These dispatches have not been considered in Cabinet yet, but would on Monday, and Crampton dismissed. Thus far, however, his diplomatic relations are unchanged.

Mr. Cass, on Monday, was to make a speech in the Senate, denying into the statements of Crampton's letter, published in the Union of Saturday.

Secretary Marcy will take no public notice of Mr. Crampton's letter to the latter Cramption, saying that he conceded in private conversation, British sovereignty in the Belize.

There seems to have been an explanation of the circumstances leading to the recent interference with the Orizaba passengers by the British officers at Greytown on the 13th ult., of which the public hitherto was ignorant. Information has been laid before Commodore Vandelbilt, and Joseph L. White's party in New York, sent a special messenger out in the Orizaba, to inform the British commander in the waters of San Juan of the purpose of the party filibustering on board, and to invite his interposition to prevent their landing.

Unfortunately, the revelation casts a shade of suspicion on Capt Tinkle; and also, who instead of resisting the interference of Capt. Tarleton, rather invited him to proceed with a search. He has put in this affidavit in regard to the facts until some time after his return, and then only by request of the owners of the Orizaba.—He will, of course, take some measures to show that he was not himself aware of the presence on board the ship of this secret agent of Vanderbilt & White, and of the purpose of his mission. Developements of this sort naturally make the Department of State suspicious of the whole Nicaragua steamer business.

This messenger slipped off from the steamer in a small boat the instant she reached San Juan, proceeded on board the Eurydice and delivered his message True, this fact cannot excuse the British Captain Tarleton for his proceeding in the premises,—but it shows that his conduct was induced, in some measure, at least, by this information, and would to make it very certain that he would not make a "dry haul." I understand that the President and Secretary of State are much incensed at this conduct of Vanderbilt & White.

The official notice usually published, announcing the recognition of foreign representatives to this government, has not yet been made in the case of the new Minister from Nicaragua, and the editorial columns of the Union are still silent on the subject.

Mr. Crampton and Mr. Clayton.

The London papers of Monday, April 28th, sketch the contents of a "Blue-Book" of 300 pages, concerning the Central American dispute, which has just been presented to Parliament. The larger portion of the volume has been at various times before the public; nor would the present issue of it have come more than leave the question where it was known to be—that is to say with a still open offer of arbitration—had it not been for a new and personal complication. But for this, the Enlistment difficulty, and the actual state of affairs in Nicara-gus, would have engrossed all our thoughts. As it is, we are suddenly and painfully arrested by a question of personal veracity.

The concluding despatch—there are 139 of them—refers particularly to the island of Rantan. It contains an extract of a letter from Mr. Crampton to Lord Clarendon, dated Washington, March 31, last past, in which the following words occur:—

It will be within your Lordship's recollection that Mr. Clayton was informed, by Sir Henry Bulwer, before the Treaty of 1850 was signed, that Ruatan was de jure and de facto a British possession; and Mr. Clayton has, on various occasions since, in conversation with me, stated that he considered Ruatan as much a British possession as Jamaica, or any other British West Indian Islands.

This is plain speaking; and though, what one diplomatist thought, or another said, might not settle a controverted point, such a direct assertion has naturally enough been held in England to fortify the position assumed by our authorities. But to the great surprise of a cry one, Mr. Clayton has denied in the most emphatic manner that he ever uttered the words that Mr. Crampton so distinctly charges him with having uttered, or ever gave the slightest ground for being so charged. This denial was publicly and indignantly made in the Senate of the U. S., on Wednesday last, and in terms that fell little short of an accusation of manifest falsehood levelled by Mr Clayton at Mr. Crampton. Two Senators, Mr. Crittenden and Mr. Fish, seemed in a manner to corroborate Mr. Clayton's statement; so that we are driven to conclude one or two things—either, that Mr. Crampton has been labouring under the strangest possible hallucination—or, that Mr. Clayton's moods and conversation are singularly varied, according to time and special influences. We say this, in the absence of any explanation from our own representative, which might put a different face upon the whole affair; nor would it be delicate for us to speak at greater length. Moreover, events follow each other so quickly that already the interest in this personal squabble is merged in that attending later occurrences.

Dreadful Accident on the Panama Railroad.

500 PERSONS KILLED AND 100 BADLY WOUNDED.

NEW YORK, May 16.

The Tribune contains the following account from an eye witness, of the railroad accident at Panama, dated Aspinwall, 7th: 'Yesterday A. M., the passengers who left New York April 21 started from this place for Panama in three separate trains. The first contained the mails, and the others passengers and baggage. The two last were filled with passengers. After proceeding a little over half way to Panama, the engine of the freight train ran off the track in such a position that it could not be replaced without a good deal of delay. The conductors of the passenger trains ran back to Aspinwall. We were about two miles of this place when a terrible crash occurred.—I was seated in one of the rear cars, and immediately looking out of the window, I could see the cars rushing one upon another, until nine in number were demolished:—Every car was crowded, containing at least six hundred passengers. At present it is impossible to estimate the number of killed and wounded and their names. There was not les than 500 persons in the cars which were shivered to atoms. It must be a low estimate to say that 50 were killed and at least 100 badly wounded. It seems almost miraculous that so many escaped with their lives."

WASHINGTON, May 15.

Yesterday afternoon, Secretary Marcy sent for Mr. Marcoletta, and informed him, as an act of courtesy, of the determination of the Administration to receive M. Vigil, as the accredited minister Nicaragua. Mr. Marcoletta complained of the proceeding as a violation of the law of nations, entering his solemn protest against the proceeding, and informed Mr. Marcy, that he should prepare an expose of all the facts to be communicated to all the diplomatic corps near this government.

VINDICATION OF THE LATE LORD RAGLAN.—As peace gives leisure for inquiry, so does it clear up many misrepresentations about the war. The English army, which some journalists delighted to disparage, will come out with higher reputation when the truth is known. It is now ascertained that at the battle of the Alma, not 6,000 troops were left in Sebastopol. The Russian Plenipotentiaries have stated this at the Conference. Lady Raglan has a letter in her possession, proving that Lord Raglan sent to St. Arnaud when the battle was gained to say that he was pushing on to enter Sebastopol, and that the French Commander-in-Chief refused to support him, and required him to move on to Balaklava. Had Lord Raglan been commander of both armies, we should have been in Sebastopol at the very opening of the campaign. We are further in a condition to state that, four times over, Lord Raglan ordered the bombardment of Odessa, when he found the enemy drawing strength from it. The order was telegraphed to Paris, and four times Napoleon prohibited it. We can also state that, at the battle of Tchernaya, the English General sent to the French Commander to say that he would seize the bridge over the river, and intercept the retreat of 25,000 Russians who the Russian Plenipotentiaries now say were completely disorganized. The French Commander again refused the offer, and allowed the Russians to escape. The matters must be cleared up.—Morning Chronicle.

The Tickets in Bates' Tirage au Sort are going off rapidly. We have countenanced this Lottery from its commencement circumstances. Mr. Bates was a contractor on the Brockville and Ottawa Railroad, and owing to the loss of one of the contractors, James Sykes, Esq., in the ill-fated Arctic, the work turned out a failure and Mr Bates become a ruined man. Finding it impossible so to dispose of his property as to pay his creditors immediately—$60,000 are not got every day in hard cash—Mr. Bates determined to offer it by Lottery. It is the last effort of a ruined man to save his creditors, and if ever the end justified the means it will be in the present case. Mr. Bates has the highest testimonials to the character of himself and his scheme—there is one prize for every twentieth ticket—the highest prize is a Grist Mill renting for £100 a year—and the total amount offered is $64,0 0. Tickets cost $5 each and a few may yet be had at this office. The drawing takes place at Brockville on the 28th inst.—Berlin Chronicle.

The Chicago papers of Thursday last bring the details of a fiendish attempt made on Tuesday, to destroy the evening express train out of Chicago. Some wretch placed a pile of ties and rails across the track and chained them down. A freight train, which happened to be behind time, coming first to the obstruction, was dashed into pieces, not a car remaining whole. The engineer and fireman were badly hurt, and sixteen valuable horses instantly killed.

ARMS FOR THE MILITIA.—One hundred and twenty-four cases of minie rifles, carbines, pistols, and swords, were brought out by the North American, for the Militia.

ROBBING IN CHATHAM.—A robbery of a very serious nature took place in this town on the night of Monday last, the 12th inst. Mr. Forsyth had retired to bed at the hour of 10 or shortly after. After having composed himself to sleep, the thief or thieves entered his bedroom and took from his trousers about one hundred and fifty dollars. No clue has yet been found to the author or authors of this robbery.—Chatham Planet

About five hundred Mormons arrived the other day at Boston. 184 are from Scotland, while many are from Germany and Wales. Some of the emigrants have large families of children, and a considerable portion are persons under eighteen years of age.

John Langworth, a young man sentenced to two years imprisonment in the Provincial Penitentiary, at the Court of Quarter Sessions, for the crime of horse stealing, made his escape from the Penitentiary, on Monday evening last. Nothing is known of his whereabouts as yet, but the Police are on the lookout.

In the list of the people robbed in the riot at Panama, we notice the name of A. J. McDonald, of Canada West, who lost $1,400 in money, and $1,869 in clothing and jewelry, altogether amounting to $3,269.

Vesuvius is again unusually active, and promises an approaching eruption. Not merely smoke, but stones and flames are thrown out, and those who have been up the mountain speak of hearing subterranean sounds.

The whole number of births, marriages and deaths in Scotland during the year 1855 were as follows: Births 94,498, marriages 19,639, and deaths 62,154. This is the proportion of one birth annually for every 32, one death for every 48, and one marriage for every 153 persons in the estimated population.

LUCKY ESCAPE.—A correspondent of the New Orleans Crescent, named P E Toothy, who accompanied Walker's expedition to Nicaragua in the capacity of reporter for the paper, was taken prisoner by the Costa Ricans and condemned to death, but on ascertaining his connection with the press his sentence was commuted to imprisonment.

TIMBER FROM TORONTO.—A raft of 104 white pine masts and 370 square red pine logs, owned by Mr. Jacob Baker of Toroi to is now building in Toronto and is to go to Quebec. The quantity of timber brought from the north and now lying in the water in Toronto bay is estimated to be worth $70,000. It was brought down by the Northern Railway, and is evidently only the commencement of a great business.

Adventure of Two Juveniles.

A short time ago, two boys, named Henry Dubois and Thomas Gardiner, obtained a room at the Phenix Hotel, Albany, and their conduct attracting the attention of the landlord, he gave information to the Chief of Police, who had them arrested, and upon examination they "owned up" to the following facts. Dubois in his fifteenth year, resides in New York, was employed by Samuel G. Wheeler, and was induced to run away by Thomas Gardiner, who stated he had a certain sum of money in his possession, which he had stolen from his employer. Thomas Gardiner stated he was in his fourteenth year, lives in New York, that he had stolen $715 in bills and a draft for $85 75 cents, from a notary named Turney, which had been paid to him (Gardiner) by Mr. George Manson, to take up a note that was due. Has spent about $200, lost about $100 out of his pocket, and was robbed of the balance. No evidence appeared against them, and they were given over in charge of the Chief until their friends in New York can be apprized of their whereabouts. They are described as fine intelligent looking boys; but they are on a fair way to the State Prison, if good counsels do not produce a change very shortly.

Bishop Atterbury happened to say in the House that 'he had prophesied a certain thing would be attempted in that session, and he was sorry to find he had been a true prophet.' Lord Coningsby, who spoke after the Bishop, 'desired the House to remark that the Bishop had set himself up as a prophet; but he could only liken him to that furious prophet Balaam, who was reproved by his own ass.' The Bishop replied with great wit and calmness to this rude attack, and concluded thus—'Since the noble Lord hath discovered in our manners such a similitude, I am well content to be compared to the prophet Balaam; but, my Lords, I am at a loss how to make out the other part of the parallel; I am sure that I have been reproved by nobody but his Lordship!'—King's Anecdotes.

AMMUNITION FOR CANADA.—It is stated by a well informed English paper that the one of-battle ships which will convey troops from the Crimea to Canada will also bring a large quantity of ammunition. This plan will furnish a plentiful supply in this Province, and will obviate the expense of transport to convey it back to Great Britain.

POSTSCRIPT.

The Ministry have resigned! and Colonel Tache is reported to have been requested to form a new one.

SANDWICH MARKET.

"Maple Leaf" Office, May 16th		1856
Flour Best warranted,	$ 7 00	$ 7 50
" 2nd quality	5 00	5 50
Buckwheat Flour,	2 00	0 00
Rye "	2 00	2 50
Timothy Seed,		4 00
Clover,		10 00
Corn Meal per 100	1 50	2 00
Corn per bushel, 56lbs.	0 51	0 00
Oats " do 34lbs.	0 37½	0 00
Potatoes do	0 37	0 00
Wheat do 60lbs,	1 00	1 20
Barley do 48lbs,	0 75	0 00
Hay per Ton	10 00	12 00
Straw per load	1 50	2 00
Wood per cord (Hard)	2 00	2 25
do Mixed	1 50	0 00
Pork per 100lbs.	7 00	0 00
Beef " "	7 00	0 00

DETROIT MARKET.

Flour.—$5.25.
Wheat.—$1.
Corn.—47c for small lots.
Oats.—36 @ 37½ cts.
Cheese.—best quality 15 cts.
Eggs.—12 cts. ₱ doz.

DIVISION COURTS FOR ESSEX.

1st. Sandwich, 12th July, 1856.
2nd. Amherstburg, 12th June.
3rd Kingsville, 16th June.
4th. Colchester, 14th June,
5th. Mersea, 18th June.
6th. Simon's, Middle Road, 17th July.

NOTICE.

ON the 22nd inst., I lost a note of hand for two hundred dollars, drawn by S. Lasaline, and payable to Patrick N. Pajot, or bearer on demand, this is to forbid any person purchasing said Note of hand as the same has been already paid.

N. B.—Any person finding it will oblige the undersigned by handing the same to him.

P. N. PAJOT.

Sandwich, 23rd May 1856.

AUCTION SALE
OF HORSES AND CATTLE.

WILL be sold on FRIDAY, the 6th JUNE next and following day, at STUTTZ'S HOTEL, in the Town of SANDWICH, C. W., a number of

Horses Colts Cows Sheep
A NEW DOUBLE CARRIAGE, SLEIGH
Buggies! Harness

and a great variety of other articles, which will be sold without reserve.

A number of the horses are superior for Carriage other purposes. Two thoroughbred Colts and a number of Brood Mares, together with a few BLOOD CATTLE.

Parties will be permitted to enter Cattle and Stock for Sale, by application to the undersigned the day previous to sale.

TERMS:

$29 and under, cash; from 20 to $40, three months, and all over $40, six months' credit, with approved joint notes. No property can be removed from the ground until settled for.

Full particulars may be obtained upon application to J. H. WILKINSON, Sandwich, or

P. H. MORIN, Auctioneer.

Sandwich, 23rd May, 1856.

FOR SALE.

PART of Lot No. 4, on the East side of Pajot Street, and fronting upon the Huron Church Line, upon the PAJOT FARM in the Town of Sandwich, containing nearly half an acre.

There are a few choice FRUIT TREES upon this Lot, and a more suitable place for a residence could not be found.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Apply to

STANISLAS LASALIN,

Sandwich, May 20th, 1856.

AUCTION.

WILL be sold without reserve, by Public Auction, at the store of Mr. William G. Duff, commencing on the 20th instant, and on the following days until all his large Stock, consisting of

DryGoods, Crockery & Hardware

is all disposed of.

Terms of Sale:—All sums under £5, cash; £5 to £10, three months; £10 to £20, six months; £20 and upwards, nine months' credit, with approved notes.

LAFFERTY & JONES, Auctioneers.

Amherstburg, 13th May, 1856.

All orders left with the undersigned, will be punctually attended to, and on the most liberal terms.

LAFFERTY & JONES

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. &c. &c.
AT THE REGULATOR.

THE Subscribers would invite the attention of their Friends and the Public generally to their new and complete Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. which they are now offering low for cash.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

N.B.—The highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all kinds of Produce.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1846.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

THE SANDWICH MILLINERY AND DRESS MAKING Establishment will be reopened for the season.

The Proprietor having just returned from the Eastern Cities with a Large Stock of Millinery and Dress Goods of the latest style and fashion, which he offers for sale at a small advance from their original Cost.

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE

L. P. ST. AMOUR.

Sandwich, Feb 29th, 1856.

THE QUESTION
IS NOW SETTLED
WHERE THE CHEAPEST
GOODS
CAN BE BOUGHT
IT IS AT
NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE.
Which has obtained universal
SUCCESS

The Proprietor offers for sale, at a small advance from the original cost,

A LARGE STOCK OF DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
HARDWARE,
CROCKERY, READY-MADE
CLOTHING,
Boots & Shoes
AND A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF MILLINERY AND DRESS
TRIMMINGS,
BONNETS
In great varieties,

JUST OPEN AND FOR SALE CHEAP FOR CASH

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE.

L. P. ST. AMOUR

THE SAFEST AND MOST VALUABLE SCHEME EVER OFFERED TO THE PUBLIC.

BATES'
TIRAGE AU SORT,
VALUE $61,000!
Tickets Five Dollars Each.
A Prize to every 20th Ticket!
DRAWING TO TAKE PLACE AT
Brockville, C. W., on the 28th Inst.

TOTAL SUMMARY OF PRIZES.

1	Prize of £3,125	0 is	£3,125	0
1	do 1,027	10 is	1,027	10
1	do 1,025	0 is	1,025	0
1	do 900	0 is	900	0
1	do 850	0 is	850	0
1	do 625	0 is	625	0
1	do 350	0 is	350	0
1	do 212	10 is	212	10
1	do 187	10 is	187	10
1	do 125	0 is	125	0
1	do 100	0 is	100	0
1	do 82	10 is	82	10
1	do 67	10 is	67	10
2	do 65	0 is	130	0
1	do 60	0 is	60	0
2	do 55	0 is	110	0
4	do 50	0 is	200	0
2	do 45	0 is	90	0
1	do 40	0 is	40	0
27	do 37	10 is	1,012	10
10	do 35	0 is	350	0
3	do 32	10 is	97	10
13	do 30	0 is	390	0
4	do 27	10 is	110	10
42	do 25	0 is	1,050	0
2	do 22	10 is	45	0
21	do 20	0 is	420	0
22	do 17	10 is	385	0
20	do 15	0 is	300	0
44	do 12	10 is	550	0
48	do 10	0 is	480	0
11	do 8	0 is	88	0
87	do 7	10 is	652	10
20	do 6	5 is	125
2	do 6	0 is	12	0
51	do 5	0 is	255	0
60	do 3	10 is	210	0
128	do 1	5 is	160	0
640	Prizes.		Value, £16,000	0

The Property proposed in this Scheme forms part of the most valuable property in Canada West, well adapted for Mill Sites, Farm Lots and Residences; the titles to the property are indisputable.

The drawing will take place under the superintendence of a Committee of Gentlemen of the highest respectability, character and standing in society, who will see that everything connected with this drawing is fairly and honestly attended to, and no person need fear but that his rights will be honourably and justly looked after by them.

The plans of the property, and all information thereof, and Tickets, can be had by applying to the Agents,

JOSIAH BRAY, Hamilton.
JOHN McINTOSH, Ancaster.

The following gentlemen, of the city have allowed their names to be mentioned as Referees, regarding the character and standing of the parties connected with the above scheme:

Thos. Lee, Esq., Bank of Montreal.
A. Stuart, Esq., Clerk of the Crown, &c.
C. Freeland, Esq., Commission Merch't
W. Leggo, Esq., Barrister.
J. Stewart, Esq., M'Nab st. Foundry
Hamilton, April, 1856.

FOR SALE.

THAT beautiful Cottage and about half an acre of ground, in the Town of Sandwich, being part of Lot No. 1, on the East side of Bedford street. This cottage is well adapted for a gentleman's residence, having excellent stables and coach house attached, and a few choice fruit trees are also upon the lot.

Terms easy, and will be made known by application to Mr. William Cowan, Sandwich, or Mr. Miles Cowan.

MARY HALL.

Sandwich, 13th May, 1856.

STEAM COMMUNICATION BETWEEN
Liverpool and Canada.

Under Contract with the Provincial Government of Canada,
FOR THE CONVEYANCE OF MAILS

THE MONTREAL OCEAN STEAMship Company's First Class powerful Screw Steamships,

NORTH AMERICAN,
ANGLO SAXON,
INDIAN,
CANADIAN,
SARDINIAN,

Are intended to sail fortnightly during the ensuing season from LIVERPOOL for QUEBEC and MONTREAL.

The NORTH AMERICAN will leave Liverpool on WEDNESDAY the 23rd April next, and will leave Quebec, on her return voyage, on SATURDAY, the 24th May. The others will follow in regular succession

These steamers have been built expressly for the trade. They have splendid accommodation for passengers of all classes, and combining every requisite to insure quick passages.

For terms of freight or passage apply to EDMONSTONE, ALLAN & Co, Montreal.
GEO. BURNS, SYMES & Co., Quebec.
JAMES & ALEX. ALLAN, 82 St Enoch Square, Glasgow
ALLAN & GILLESPIE, Liverpool
MONTGOMERY & GREENHORNE, London.
JOHN GLASS, Ontario Hall, Toronto.

May 13th, 1856.

Canada Western Assurance
COMPANY.
Chartered by Act of Parliament.
Capital £100, 000.
in Shares of £10 each.
HOME OFFICE,
TORONTO.

President . I. C. Gilmor, Esq.
Vice-President : T. Haworth, Esq.
Secretary & Treasurer : R. Stanton, Esq.
Solicitor : A. Morrison, Esq.

DIRECTORS.

John Howcutt, Esq., GeorgeMichie, Esq., Rice Lewis, Esq., W. Henderson, Esq., M. P. Hayes, Esq., Hugh Miller, Esq., James Beaty, Esq.

Application for Fire Risks received at the Home Office, Toronto, on Wellington Street, opposite the Commercial Bank.

OFFICE HOURS, 10 A. M. TO 3 P. M.

Marine Risks Taken.

ISAAC C. GILMOR, President.
ROBERT STANTON, Secretary & Treasurer.
JOHN McCRAE, Agent at Windsor.

Equitable Fire Insurance Compy
OF LONDON.

CAPITAL, £5,000,000 STERLING.

DIRECTORS.

Archibald C. Barclay, Esq., Chairman.
Hugh Croft, Esq. Charles Bennett, Esq.
John Shaw, Esq. E. S. Symes, Esq.
John Moss, Esq. R. Gough, Esq.
Augustus Vinge, Esq Charles Seward, Esq.
Clement Tabor, Esq. P. J. Morris, Esq.

ACTUARY.

W. S. B. Wolhouse, Esq., F.R.A.S., &c.

SECRETARY.

W. H. PRESTON, Esq.

LOCAL DIRECTORS AT MONTREAL—Office, 17, Great St. James Street.

Wm. Lunn, Esq. Hon. W. Morris.
John Torrance, Esq. J. G. Mackenzie, Esq
J Fothergingham, Esq R. R. Fabre, Esq.
A. LaRocque, Esq. A. T. Galt, Esq.
Benj. Holmes, Esq. T. Hart, Esq.

GENERAL AGENT B.N.A. COLONIES,
Charles F Tilstone.
JOHN MACRAE,
Agent for Windsor and vicinity.

DISSOLUTION.

THE COPARTNERSHIP heretofore existing between the undersigned, under the name and style of Hunt, St. Louis and Co., is this day dissolved by mutual consent. The business of the late firm will be settled by C. H. and D. St. Louis.

WM. HUNT.
C. H. ST LOUIS.
D. ST. LOUIS.

Sandwich, 1st March, 1856.

COPARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

THE Undersigned have this day formed a Co-Partnership under the name and style of C. H. and D. ST. LOUIS, for the purpose of doing business in the Retail Dry Goods, Grocery, Provision, Produce and General Merchandize line, as successors to Hunt; St. Louis & Co., at the Old Stand, opposite the Court House in the Town of Sandwich.

C. H. ST. LOUIS.
D. ST. LOUIS.

Sandwich, 1st March, 1856.

In connection with the above C. H. and D. St. Louis would inform the Inhabitants of Sandwich, its vicinity, and their customers generally that they have received this day, via Great Western Railway, a well-assorted stock of Merchandize in the line which they will dispose of on liberal terms for cash or Produce.

Sandwich, 8th May, 1856.

HIDES WANTED.

ANY Quantity of Hides will be taken in for the Sandwich Tannery at either of the Saddler's Shops in Sandwich or Windsor, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

JAS. WOODBRIDGE.

GUILLOT'S COLUMN.

FOR APRIL, 1856.

NEW
SPRING GOODS
JUST OPENED AT GUILLOT'S STORE
PER
GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY
WHICH HE NOW OFFERS AT THE LOWEST REMUNERATING PROFIT, FOR CASH.

PRINTS, in Variety,
PRINTED LAWNS & MUSLINS,
SILKS, SILK PARASOLS,
BLEACHED AND UNBLEACHED
COTTONS & SHEETING
HOSIERY, GLOVES,
CLOTHING,
COATINGS, TWEEDS,
TROWSERINGS,
LINENS,
DRILLS,
KOSSUTH HATS,
COTTON WARP,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
TICKINGS,
GINGHAMS,
CARPETING,
SHAWLS, &c. &c.
TOGETHER
WITH A GOOD ASSORTMENT OF
GROCERIES. CROCKERY,
SHELF HARDWARE, NAILS
ALSO,
THE XL FLOUR,
KEPT ON HAND FOR SALE
AT CURRENT PRICES.
CLOVER AND TIMOTHY
SEED.

H. C. GUILLOT,
SANDWICH, CANADA WEST.

Family Store

THE Subscriber keeps constantly on hand a large and well selected assortment of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware and Crockery,

at his old stand on Bedford Street, which he will sell, at a small advance upon cost, for Cash.

A large supply of the very best Flour always on hand.

Produce and Cord Wood bought and sold.

JOSEPH MILLER.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

New Harness and Saddlery Establishment.
A. C. ELLIS.

Every description of LIGHT and FANCY BUGGY HARNESS, made in the most fashionable styles.

HEAVY HARNESSES constantly on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.

SADDLES of every description made to order on the shortest notice.

CARRIAGE and BUGGY TRIMMING done in a style not to be surpassed.

A large assortment of WHIPS always kept on hand.

In his Store, adjoining Mr Guillot's, will be found every description of Goods in his line of business. Every endeavor will be made to give entire satisfaction to his Customers.

N.B.—Cord Wood, Hides, and Produce wanted, for which the highest price will be given.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

NOTICE.

TO ALL IT MAY CONCERN.

ALL persons owing the subscriber are hereby notified that payment must be made on or before the 15th day of April next if they wish to save the costs of collection

TO RENT.

The House and Premises in which the subscriber lives. Terms $24 per quarter payable in advance. Possession given on the first of May next.

GEORGE HANN.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

LOT No. Four, in the 4th Concession, Gosfield.

J. H. WILKINSON.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

FOR SALE.
(ON TIME.)

AN Eighteen-Horse Power Engine and Boiler complete. Apply to

GEO. BULLOCK.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

Beacon
FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE CO
of London.

Incorporated under Act of Imperial Parliament, 7 and 8 Vic, Chap. 1.

CANADA BOARD.
KINGSTON.
TRUSTEES.

The Hon John A Macdonald.
James Morton, Esquire.

DIRECTORS:

M. W. Strange, Esq., Chairman.
Thos. A. Corbett, Esq., Deputy Chairman.
James Morton, Esq. John Mowatt, Esq.
James Harty, Esq. A. J Macdonell, Esq.
Lewis Walbridge, Esq. T. Clarkson, Esq.

MONTREAL.

Wm. Molson, Esq. Thomas Evans, Esq.
Damase Masson, Esquire,

This Company Insures all descriptions of BUILDINGS, MANUFACTORIES, MILLS, &c. and GOODS or FURNITURE in the same, against loss or damage by fire, on liberal terms. All descriptions of LIFE RISKS, taken at as low rates as are consistent with security to the assured. Losses promptly settled without reference to England.

ALEX. GORDON,
Agent at Windsor for Western Frontier

March 7, 1856.

LOTS FOR SALE IN THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.

PART of Lot No. 3; on the west side of Bedford Street, with a good Store thereon. Also, Lots 7 and 8, adjoining the residence of L. J. Fluett, Esquire, with dwelling house and stables. These Lots will be sold subject to incumbrances.

For particulars apply to

J. H. WILKINSON.
Att'y for J. A. Vervais.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

TO LET OR FOR SALE.

A Brick House and Lot, on No. 4, East side of Main Street, fronting "Mears' Hotel." The above property will be leased for $150 a year; or, for particulars of sale apply to

STANISLAUS LASALINE.

Sandwich, 20th March, 1856.

Sandwich and Windsor Stage.
BY JOHN LEWIS.

THE Proprietor of this popular line has added a new Stage and first-rate horses, and will hereafter run an Hourly Stage to Windsor with speed and punctuality. He hopes to merit the patronage of the public.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

NEW PAILORING ESTABLISHMENT.

THE Subscriber begs leave to notify the Public that he will carry on business in the building lately occupied by T. Murphy, opposite the Hennell Hotel, where he intends to carry on the Tailoring Business in all its branches, and hopes by strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage.

N. B.—He will receive the Report of Fashion monthly.

Cutting done to order.

W. T. BASSANDALE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

Agriculture and Science.

From the Rural New Yorker.

Root Crops.

It is but few years since the attention of the American Farmer was turned to the growth of roots for the purpose of feeding of stock, and to render stiff, tenacious soils more open and friable. On land properly prepared, their culture is easy as the generality of crops, and as a source of revenue to the producer they rank among the most profitable. Every farmer who is possessed of stock of any description, and who desires not only the well-being of his animals, but also to practise true Agricultural economy —by manufacturing the life of the farm upon his own soil—will devote a portion of his estate to the cultivation of those vegetables classified under the appellation of roots, consisting of Carrots, Parsnips, Beets, &c.

The Carrot is one of the most valuable, is hardy, easily grown, and in nutritive properties nearly equals the potato. A light, loamy soil is best adapted to its cultivation; but on more tenacious lands, provided they are deeply plowed, well drained and manured, large crops may be gathered. After thoroughly pulverizing the earth, sow in drills eighteen or twenty inches apart. It will be found advantageous to dampen the seed and then coat it with poundrette or any fine, fertilizing material, as this process will hasten germination, causing the young plant to make an early appearance, and thus obtain a start of weeds. This one item alone, each may have six or eight inches room.—Use the cultivator frequently, and keep the ground free and clean. Two pounds of good seed may be sown in May or early in June, but we opine that the best time is when the soil is warm and moist just after being harrowed. In harvesting, run the plow or share at the side of the drills, and the roots may easily be taken up by hand. Let them become dry and then store same as potatoes.

Parsnips possess nearly the nutritious value of carrots. The soil, to produce largely, should be deep and rich. This crop will thrive upon clay lands if it be well pulverized and manured. Cultivation same as for carrots. Seed three or four pounds per acre, sown with or without preparation, and as early as the season will permit. Care should be observed in electing seed, as the power of germination is more or less deficient in that which exceeds one year in age. Take up late in the fall, store in a cool place and cover with earth—heat and air causes them to shrink and soften, thus seriously affecting their worth for feeding purposes. Frost does not injure them, and when not wanted, they remain in the ground until the ensuing spring. At this period the parsnip is particularly rich and juicy, and may be fed in cattle and swine. For milch cows and for ewes which have just yeaned, it will be found very beneficial and nutritive.

Beets.—Several varieties of the beet are extensively cultivated as field crops. The mangel wurtzel is most esteemed on account of its productiveness. A clayey loam, somewhat moist is deemed the best for its culture.

The soil should be in good condition deep, fine tilth and rich. Where ground is not naturally damp, it is advisable to soak the seed from twenty-four to forty-eight hours before planting. The rows two feet apart, and from eight to twelve inches between the plants is the usual distance. From four to six pounds of seed per acre. Sow about the depth of an inch, as early as the ground can be in readiness. As soon as the young shoots appear they should be weeded carefully, and one plant only, the most thrifty, be allowed to remain. Vacancies may be filled by transplanting. The cultivator should be run between the rows several times during the season.—Stored same as carrots.

Method of Curing Bad Tub Butter.—A quantity of tub butter was brought to market in the West Indies, which, on opening, was found to be very bad, and almost stinking. A native of Pennsylvania undertook to cure it, which he did in the following manner: He started the tubs of butter in a large quantity of hot water, which soon melted the butter; he then skimmed it off as clean as possible, and worked it over again in a churn, and with the addition of salt and fine sugar, the butter was made sweet and good again.

Bad Effects of Grass on Colts.—When horses are turned out to grass in the spring of the year, the succulent nature of the food causes them to purge, often to a great extent; this is considered by many persons a most desirable event—a great misconception. The herbage is overcharged with sap and moisture, of a crude, acrimonious nature, to such an extent that all nourishment can not be taken up by the organs destined for the secretion of urine, or by the absorbent vessels of the body; the superfluous fluid therefore passes through the intestines with the indigestible particles of food, and thus the watery feces are thrown off.—Flatulent colic or gripes is a frequent attendant. The system is deranged; but the mischief does not not terminate here. If the purging is continued, a considerable relaxation of the bowels is established, very debilitating to the animal, and often difficult to control. I am so decidedly opposed to unrestricted allowance of luxuriant grass to horses at any age, that nothing could induce me to give it to them. After the second year, hay should form a considerable portion of daily food in summer to every animal intended for riding or driving.—So says the Mark Lane Express, an English agricultural journal of high character.

Devon Cows.—The editor of the Massachusetts Ploughman says—"In regard to Devon cattle we say, after an experience of eight years that these are the only kind which we have any desire to keep. They are unquestionably the richest milkers that we have in the country, and the half bloods make the best oxen, are seen in Massachusetts. We have repeatedly offered to set the milk of six other breed and give a premium on the richest. Four beer quarts of this milk, in September and October, have repeatedly produced a pound of excellent yellow butter."

Crackers.—One tea-cup of lard; one teaspoonful of saleratus; one of burnt alum; mix hard. Knead and roll into small crackers without a cutter. Bake in a quick oven. —P. Somerset N. Y.

A Nice Dish for Breakfast.—Take one egg and beat it up, add a teaspoonful of salt, pour into it about two-thirds of a pint of water, then slice some bread, dip it in, and fry in a little butter. Serve warm, and you will find it an excellent dish.

The Montreal Corporation is planting trees in the public streets and squares of that city.

The Steamer Ploughboy.—As we noticed last week, got ashore near Saugeen — She was got off, however, without any material damage, but on her passage down the lake, by some derangement taking place in her machinery, burst her cylinder, and had to be taken in tow by the Canadian, who took her down to Detroit on Saturday last, where she will undergo the necessary repairs. In the meantime, her place on the route is to be taken by the Mona Lee. The Canadian, which it was said would occupy the place of the Clifton until the latter came upon the route, still plies between Detriot and Goderich.

A Girl or Mark.—Upon the conclusion of a marriage at a village church in England, a few weeks since, the bridegroom signed the register with a cross. The pretty young bride did the same and then turned to a lady who had known her as the best scholar in the school, whispered to her while the tears of honest love and admiration stood in her eyes. 'He's a dear fellow mine, but cannot write! We are going to learn of me, and he would not shame him for the world.' Was she not emphatically a girl of mark?

A young man in one of our fashionable book towns invited a lady to a sleigh ride, and after getting her and her hoops into the carriage, found there was no room for him self; so he mounted his horse and rode off like a postilion.

MORE GOOD NEWS

FOR THE PEOPLE OF

SANDWICH

AND ITS

VICINITY.

L. P. St. Amour

Begs leave to inform the Public, that he has returned from the

EASTERN MARKETS,

where he has purchased an extensive Stock of Goods of the latest and newest Styles, and will sell them at such prices as cannot but suit his numerous Customers.

L. P. St. Amour is now opening, and will continue to open for the next month, a great variety of Goods.

No. 1, CHEAP HOUSE.

FARM FOR SALE.

NO. 293, on Sandwich Street, Maidstone Cross, consisting of 48 acres, 35 acres cleared and under fence, a good Dwelling house and barn and two good Barns. The property is situated at the corner of the Plank and Stage Roads.

The purchaser can be supplied with every requisite implement for agricultural purposes, which are now on the Farm.

Apply on the Farm to

April 13, '56: JOHN GEARY.

BARTLEY AND PINNEY,

Provincial Land Surveyors, Civil and Topographical Engineers, Draughtsmen and Architects.

A Nice Dish for Breakfast.—Take one egg and beat it up, add a teaspoonful of salt, pour into it about two-thirds of a pint of water, then slice some bread, dip it in, and fry in a little butter. Serve warm, and you will find it an excellent dish.

The Montreal Corporation is planting trees in the public streets and squares of that city.

The Steamer Ploughboy.—As we noticed last week, got ashore near Saugeen — She was got off, however, without any material damage, but on her passage down the lake, by some derangement taking place in her machinery, burst her cylinder, and had to be taken in tow by the Canadian, who took her down to Detroit on Saturday last, where she will undergo the necessary repairs. In the meantime, her place on the route is to be taken by the Mona Lee. The Canadian, which it was said would occupy the place of the Clifton until the latter came upon the route, still plies between Detriot and Goderich.

A Girl or Mark.—Upon the conclusion of a marriage at a village church in England, a few weeks since, the bridegroom signed the register with a cross. The pretty young bride did the same and then turned to a lady who had known her as the best scholar in the school, whispered to her while the tears of honest love and admiration stood in her eyes. 'He's a dear fellow mine, but cannot write! We are going to learn of me, and he would not shame him for the world.' Was she not emphatically a girl of mark?

A young man in one of our fashionable book towns invited a lady to a sleigh ride, and after getting her and her hoops into the carriage, found there was no room for him self; so he mounted his horse and rode off like a postilion.

Hotels, &c.

HENNELL HOUSE,

Late Free Mason's Tavern,

Sandwich.

THIS House is pleasantly situated at the terminus of the New Gravel Road from Windsor to Sandwich, and possesses all the requisites which are generally met with in first class hotels—Good Beds, superior Stabling, and unimpeachable Liquors.

From the long experience of the present proprietor in this line of business, he is enabled to meet the wishes of his patrons, in every particular, with promptness; and he will make it his study so to treat his visitors, that they may leave him with perfect satisfaction, and return with pleasure future occasions.

WM. HENNELL.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th.

SANDWICH EXCHANGE,

BEDFORD STREET, SANDWICH.

JACOB STUTTZ

IN returning thanks for past favors, begs to inform his Friends and the Public that he still keeps on hand the best of every thing to suit the taste and comfort of his customers, and trusts that by assiduity and attention to business, to merit their patronage and support.

N.B.—A Good Stable and Shed.

WESTERN HOUSE,

BY CYRUS DOBSON.

THIS Hotel, adjoining the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, has been put in firstrate repair, and the Proprietor hopes that, by strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a share of public patronage.

N.B.—There is an excellent stable attached to the premises, and the attentive ostler will always be in attendance.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

THE COTTAGE INN,

BY ALEXANDER REAUME.

THE Proprietor having lately leased the above comfortable premises, and having orthoughly repaired and refurnished the same, will be happy to attend upon the travelling public at all hours. A supply of good old Ohio and Hot Water will always be found at the Bar, with all other choice Liquors.

THE COTTAGE INN has good and comfortable Stables attached.

ALEXANDER REAUME.

Anderdon, February 29th, 1856.

TRAVELLERS' HOME,

T. HALEY, PROPRIETOR,

(Formerly of Aylmer, Canada West.)

THIS House having been fitted up in the neatest and most comfortable style, the Proprietor hopes that, by keeping the best of Liquors and a strict attention to business, to be able to give entire satisfaction to all who may give him a call. Attentive waiters and a well supplied table will always be found here.

Good Stabling and an attentive Ostler always in attendance.

N.B.—FRESH OYSTERS always on hand.

Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

PRINCE ALBERT HOTEL.

THIS Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Warren, has been thoroughly renovated, and will be kept well supplied with the very best liquors. An attentive man will always be in attendance to take charge of horses.

A private Parlor, for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen, has been fitted up.

F. X. TRUDELL,

Sandwich Street, Proprietor.

29th February, 1856.

BROOKER'S TAVERN.

WM. BROOKER is prepared to attend upon his Customers at his new and well-furnished house near the Canard Bridge, where the Traveller will have his wants attended to in regard to good liquors, and his friends may expect to find every accommodation as usual.

A supply of Groceries always kept on hand which will be sold very cheap.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROYAL EXCHANGE.

J. H. McGEE,

BEGS to announce to the Travelling Community, and Public in general, that he has opened the above new TAVERN, with good accommodations, and hopes by attention to his business, to merit a share of public patronage. A choice selection of Groceries always on hand.

Maidstone Cross, February 29th, 1856.

MANSION HOUSE.

THIS new and commodious Inn is now completely finished, and the Proprietor hopes, that by a strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to receive a continuance of the patronage which was so liberally awarded him at his old stand.

ALONZO BROWN,

Maidstone Cross, Proprietor.

7th March, 1856.

AMERICAN HOTEL.

COURT HOUSE SQUARE, LONDON, C. W.

ROBERT ARKELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and Travellers that he has taken the above Hotel, which has undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The house is in a fine open, airy and central situation, and commands a beautiful view of the valley of the Thames and surrounding country.

The Table is supplied with all the delicacies of the season. The Wines and Liquors will be of the best brands, and he trusts by assiduity and attention to the comfort of his guests to merit their patronage and support.

ROBERT ARKELL.

London, 29th Feb. 1856.

WARNERS'

EXCHANGE,

AMHERSTBURG, C. W.

THE SUBSCRIBER has leased the "La Liberty Stand," second door above the Prince Albert Hotel, Murray Street, for a term of years, and has it furnished throughout, furnished with new furniture, bedding, &c., and now open for the accommodation of the travelling public, and by strict attention to business he hopes to receive a liberal share of the same.

HIS TABLE

will be well supplied with all the luxuries of the season.

HIS BAR

will always contain the choicest brands of Liquors.

His Stables and Shed are large and convenient.

Persons wishing good Board will find this a convenient place, being a central place of business.

CHARLES WARNER.

Amherstburg, March 14th, 1856.

INTERNATIONAL

BILLIARD

SALOON,

Windsor, C.W., opposite the Depot of the Great Western Railway.

T. M. HOWRIGAN,

Proprietor.

The above Saloon is neatly and commodiously fitted out, and the Proprietor having spared no expense for the purpose of rendering it attractive to visitors.

The best of Cigars, Wines and Liquors always on hand.

Windsor, Feb. 29th, 1856.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

COURTER HOUSE

Corner of Erie and Seneca Streets,

Nearly Opposite the Railroad & N. Falls. Railroad.

B. POPPLE, MANAGER.

VISITORS visiting the Courter House, Buffalo, will find every convenience and attention at reasonable charges. Theotonal ers visiting Buffalo will find this Hotel calculated to meet their wishes.

Buffalo, 29th Feb. 1856.

Beecher, Rice and Ketchum.

CARPET & OIL CLOTH WAREHOUSE,

No. 142 Jefferson Avenue.

Conant Block, Detroit, Michigan.

BEECHER, HOLLISTER & WILKINS,

Carpet Hall, Lake Street, Chicago, Importers of Carpets, Oil Cloths, Paper Hangings Curtain and Upholstery materials.

A. A. RICE. E. BEECHER. E. F. HOLLISTER

C. B. KETCHUM. D. WILKINS, JR

Detroit, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TILES, TILES.

THE Public are respectfully informed that M. & J. H. Whitehouse are Manufacturing and have on hand a large quantity of Tiles, for Draining Cellars, Farms, &c., at their Brick Yard, Contractor, two miles from London, and a quarter of a mile from Mr. J. Nellis's Tavern, at First Toll Gate on the Hamilton Road, which they will sell at the Low Price of £9 per M. at Brick Sold on the Yard, without £2 15s. They will be found to be much cheaper than any other Material for Draining, as they facilitate greatly in the labor, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when put down will never require removing. Samples may be seen and orders received at the Store of Mr. J. Cole, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also Roofing Tiles and Press Bricks for fronting Buildings of a superior quality.

London, Feb. 29th, 1856.

DETROIT SEED STORE

AND

AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.

I would call the attention of Farmers and Gardeners to my present stock of Agricultural Implements, consisting of the most useful and latest improved kind of Ploughs, Hay and Corn Stalk Cutting Boxes, Cultivators, Seed Planters, Corn Shellers, Fan Mills, Root Pullers, Corn Planters, Cob Crushers, Churns, &c. Garden, Field, and Flower Seeds, raised by the most experienced and careful growers in this country and England, and I think purchasers may feel confident that every kind will prove true to their name, and give perfect satisfaction. All seed offered for sale will be of the present year's growth when offered as such.

E. F. PARKER.

75 Woodward Avenue, Detroit.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

ALL Persons to whom the late Mr. John McCormick, of Point Pelée Island, deceased, stood indebted at the time of his decease, are requested to send in their accounts forthwith to the undersigned or either of them.

MARY McCORMICK,

DAVID McCORMICK,

WILLIAM McCORMICK.

Point Pelee Island,

7th March, 1856.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, } BY virtue of a writ of
TO WIT: } Fieria Facias issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex against the lands and Tenements of Alfred Baby, and to me directed, at the suit of Dennis Ouellette, I have seized and taken the following lands and tenements, viz.:

Water Lot number three on the East, and Water Lots numbers two, four and fourteen West, and Land and Water Lots numbers thirteen and sixteen, all on the North side of Sandwich Street in the Village of Windsor, and being part of the Town plot of Windsor, as laid out on the estate of the late Francis Baby, Esquire, all which property, or the interest of the said Alfred Baby in and to the same, I will offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Monday the ninth day of June, one thousand and eight hundred and fifty-six, at 12 o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY,

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich, [Sheriff Essex.

29th February, 1856.

CIGAR FACTORY.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the inhabitants of Amherstburg and vicinity that he has opened a Cigar Factory in the above Town, where every description of the choicest kind are always on hand. He has also lately imported from Havana a large quantity of the very best Principe and every other description of Cigars, which he intends to sell at a much smaller price than can be had in Detroit. Call and see him, and he will give a puff.

JOHN N. MILLER.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

NOTICE.

A BAY PONEY came in the barn yard on the "Hand's Farm," about the 1st February last, and unless the owner comes to claim the same and pay the charges, it will be impounded and sold.

Hand's Farm, 15th March, 1856.

LANDS FOR SALE.

A SMALL FARM, being part of Lot No. 257, in First Concession, Petite Cote, 40 acres, all under fence, two acres in width by twenty in depth. This lot is beautifully situated upon the road to Amherstburg, about three miles from Sandwich, it is well adapted for a residence.

Two Lots on Regent Avenue, one house and lot on St. George's street, in the village of Windsor.

A number of Town Lots on the Pajot Farm, in the town of Sandwich.

Also part of lots Nos. 95 and 96, 1st and 2nd Con., half a mile above Windsor, two houses and barn thereon, containing 150 acres.

The above lots will be sold for cash, at the very lowest figure, and parties wishing to purchase for residences or speculation, will find this an opportunity which is not often afforded. Title Indisputable.

CHAS. LABADIE

All parties owing the subscriber are requested to settle forthwith, or having any claims against him are requested to present them without delay, as he is about winding up his business.

C. F. L

Sandwich April, 1856.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and in all who have the embellishment of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The Horticultural Department which it affords, ed together with its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in the world.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly on the first Monday in each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department: H. P. Knight, James Snowden and D. W. Ray.

Terms: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

N.B.—Newspapers inserting the above prospectus, and drawing attention editorially to the same, will be forwarded the Illustrated Horticulturist for one year, a copy containing the notice should be sent in all cases to ensure attention.

Address

C. REAGLES, Publisher,

Illustrated Horticulturist

208, Broadway, New York.

NEW VOLUME OF THE

AGRICULTURIST

SUBSCRIPTION REDUCED FROM 25 TO 50 PER CENT.

The Canadian Agriculturist

Has now reached the eighth volume, having been established by its present proprietor in 1848, and is too well known in the leading farmers of the British Provinces, to need any eulogium from us. The undersigned have made arrangements with the proprietor to publish the next, and probably succeeding volumes, and have resolved to make important improvements in the work, while at the same time its price will be considerably reduced.

THE AGRICULTURIST

Is published Monthly, on good Paper, each number containing 32 pages, making at the end of the year a handsome volume of 384 pages.

EVERY NUMBER WILL BE

Illustrated with Engravings

Such as Farm Implements, Portraits of Animals, designs of Farm Buildings, New Inventions, &c., &c., interesting to the Farmer, and also portraits of some of the most Distinguished Agriculturists.

The Work will be conducted as usual by WILLIAM MACDOUGALL, Esq., who has resumed the practice of Agriculture near this city. The active promoter of the various improvements made in our Agricultural Legislature since 1847, and having also been connected with this Journal from its commencement, he requires no recommendation from us.

PROFESSSOR BUCKLAND, of the Toronto University, whose labors and writings in behalf of Canadian Agriculture are known and appreciated throughout the Province, will contribute to its columns as usual.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS

Of known ability have also been engaged. Efforts will be made to extend the correspondence on subjects of a practical kind.

THE AGRICULTURIST IS NOT LIABLE TO POSTAGE.

WIMAN & Co, Publishers

Toronto, March, 1856.

To be published monthly, price half-a dollar per annum,

The Churchman's Friend,

For the diffusion of information relative to the Church of England, her Doctrine and Ordinances. Edited by Edward H. Dewar, M.A., Rector of Sandwich, assisted by other Clergymen.

Sandwich, March 15th, 1856.

New Wholesale

GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT!

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and the Trade generally, that he has commenced business on his own account, in this City, as a

WHOLESALE GENERAL GROCER,

And is now receiving a large and carefully selected Stock of

Groceries, Teas, Wines, Liquors, Oils, Paints, &c., &c., &c.

To which he confidently invites the attention of Western and City Merchants.

Premises, King Street West, opposite Messrs. McKeand, Bross & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods Warehouse.

A. I. McKENZIE.

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TO RENT.

A DRUG STORE, with a large and well selected stock of Drugs and Medicines, in the Town of Sandwich. The Store will be leased for a term of years, and the Drugs and Medicines will be sold on reasonable terms. The selection cannot be surpassed in Upper Canada. Possession given on the first day of July next, if required. The present proprietor is about entering other business, which will prevent him attending to the Drug business, and which is the only reason for his retiring from the trade. For particulars inquire of

J. ADLEY.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

J. H. ALLISON,

IMPORTER OF

IMPROVED

RAILROAD WATCHES.

Cased in beautiful styles warranted excellent time-keepers: do. Swiss full jeweled Levers of every style.

GOLD PENS.

I continue manufacturing Pens of every desirable pattern; these Pens have received

A SILVER MEDAL & DIPLOMA

At the Michigan State Fair, and are not to be surpassed by any Pens in the market.

ALSO DEALER IN

FINE JEWELRY,

SILVER WARE,

AND FANCY GOODS.

I have an experienced Jeweller, capable of making New Work to order,

SETTING STONES AND DIAMOND WORK, &c.,

FIRE GILDING AND GALVANIZING

Done at Short Notice.

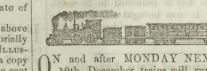
WATCH REPAIRING.

Being a Practical Workman, all work entrusted to my care will be carefully attended to.

GOLD PENS RE-POINTED

at 50 cents all sizes. Orders sent by mail, accompanied by cash, will be promptly attended to.

J. H. ALLISON,



No. 176 Jefferson Ave.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

Hamilton and Toronto Branch.

ALTERATION OF TIME.

ON and after MONDAY NEXT, the 10th December, trains will run daily (Sundays excepted) between Hamilton and Toronto, as follows:

GOING WEST

STATIONS	Express		Accommodation		Mixed Mail
	A M	P M	P M	P M	P M
Toronto,	8 00		3 20	10 00
Mimico,	8 10		3 30	10 10
Port Credit,	8 25		3 45	10 30
Oakville,	8 43		4 03	10 53
Bronte,	8 55		4 15	11 15
Wellington Square,	9 10		4 30	11 35
Hamilton,	9 30		4 50	12 00

GOING EAST.

STATIONS	Express		Accommodation		Mixed Mail
	A M	P M	P M	A M	A M
Hamilton,	10 40		6 10	1 10
Wellington Square,	11 00		6 30	3 35
Bronte,	11 15		6 45	3 55
Oakville,	11 27		7 00	4 15
Port Credit,	11 45		7 20	4 35
Mimico,	12 00		7 35	4 50
Toronto,	12 15		7 50	5 05

The above Trains connect at Hamilton with Trains of Great Western Railway running in connection with Trains to Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, Boston, New York, and with Michigan Central Railroad Trains at Detroit for Chicago, St Louis, &c, &c.

The 3-20 Train from Toronto meets G W R Accommodation Train going West at Hamilton, for Preston Galt, Paris, London, and intermedia te Stations

Through Tickets for any of the above places can be obtained at the Ticket Office, Toronto Station

Stages run daily between Oakville, Milton, Georgetown, &c, &c, &c.

C. J. BRYDGES,

Managing Director

Great Western Railway Offices,

AYER'S

PILLS

Are curing the Sick to an extent never before known of any Medicine.

INVALIDS, READ AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

JULES HAUEL, Esq., the well known perfumer, 48 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, whose choice products are found at almost every toilet, says:

"I am happy to say of your Cathartic Pills, that I have found them a better family medicine, for many years, than any other which my knowledge has embraced. Many of my friends have realized marked benefits from them, with every variety of disease, and I believe that they possess extraordinary virtues for driving out diseases and curing the sick. They are not only effective, but are pleasant to take, and there is no qualities which must make them valued by the public, as they are known."

The venerable Chancellor WARDLAW writes from Baltimore, 16th April, 1854:

"Dr. J. C. Ayer—Sir: I have taken your Pills with great benefit for the restlessness, languor, loss of appetite, and Bilious headache, which has of late years overtaken me in the spring. A few doses of your Pills cured me. I have used your Cherry Pectoral many years in my family for coughs and colds with unfailing success. You have my permission to use these facts, and I feel it a pleasure to commend medicines which have done and can do so much good."

JOHN F. HATTY, Esq., Sec. of the Penn. Railroad Co. says:

"Pa. R. R. Office, Philadelphia, Dec. 13, 1853.

"Sir: I take pleasure in adding my testimony to the efficacy of your Medicines, having derived very material benefit from the use of both your Pectoral and Cathartic Pills. I am never without them in my family, nor shall I ever consent to be, while my means will procure them."

The widely renowned S. S. STEVENS, M. D., of Wentworth, N. H., writes:

"Having used your Cathartic Pills in my practice, I can say, from experience that they are a safe and valuable active. In cases of disordered functions of the liver, causing dyspepsia, indigestion, costiveness, and the various forms of diseases that follow, they are a surer remedy than any other. In all these cases a purgative remedy is required, and I confidently recommend these Pills to the public, as superior to any other that has come under my notice in their operation, and perfectly safe—qualities which make them the most valuable article for public use. I am not many years known your Cherry Pectoral as the best Cough syrup that has ever been used. I know that it is superior to that admirable preparation for the treatment of diseases."

Apollo, Me., Nov. 26, 1853.

"Dr. J. C. Ayer—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted from twenty years' trial, and an untold amount of ancient suffering, have been entirely cured in a few weeks by your Pills. With what feelings of rejoicing I write you! I was so benighted when I first knew what I suffered, and how long.

"Never until now have I been free from this loathsome disease in some shape. At times it attacked my eyes, and made me entirely blind, besides the loss of hearing. In others it settled in the scalp of my head, and destroyed my hair, and has kept me partly bald all my days, sometimes it came out in my face, and kept it for months a raw sore.

"About two weeks ago I commenced taking your Cathartic Pills, and now am entirely free from the complaint. My eyes are well, my skin is fair, and my hair has experienced a healthy growth; all of which makes me feel already a new person.

"Hoping that this statement may be the means of conveying information that shall do good to others, I am, with every sentiment of gratitude, Yours, &c.,

MARIA RICKER."

"I have known the above named Maria Ricker from her childhood, and her statement is entirely correct.

ANDREW J. MESERVE,

Overseer of the Portsmouth Manufacturing Co."

Capt. Abel Gilbert, of the ship Marcus, writes from Boston, 20th April, 1854:

"Your Pills have relieved me from a bilious attack which arose from derangement of the Liver, which had become very serious. I feel that I owe my relief to Physicians, and from every remedy I could try; but a few doses of your Pills have completely restored me to health. I have given them to my children for worms, with the best effects. They were promptly cured. I have recommended them to a friend for costiveness, which had troubled him for months; he told me in a few days they had done him good. You make the best medicine in the world; and I am free to say so."

Read this from the distinguished Solicitor of the Supreme Court, whose brilliant abilities have made him well known, not only in the courts, but in the public prints:

"New Orleans, 5th April, 1854.

"Sir: I have great satisfaction in certifying that I myself and family have been very much benefited by your medicines. My wife was cured, by your Cherry Pectoral, of a severe and obstinate cough, by your Cherry Pectoral, and since then has enjoyed perfect health. I have also been cured of some bronchial affections by your Pectoral. The attacks of the influenza and Croup by it. It is an invaluable remedy in those complaints. Your Cathartic Pills have entirely cured me from a dyspepsia and costiveness, which has troubled me for years. I have used them in my family to much more important, from the fact that I had failed to get relief from the best Physicians which the skill of the country affords, and from any of the numerous remedies I had taken.

"You seem to us, Doctor, like a providential blessing to suffering humanity, and may well rejoice we are not all mindful of it. Yours respectfully,

LEAVITT, THAXTER."

"Senate Chamber, Ohio, April 5th, 1854.

"Dr. J. C. Ayer—Honored Sir: I have made a fair enough trial of your Cathartic Pills, left me by your agent, and have been cured by them of the dreadful inflammation and pain which for years had afflicted me. The first dose relieved me, and a few subsequent doses have entirely removed the disease. I have been troubled some time for some years before, which I attribute entirely to the effects of my Cathartic Pills. Yours, with great respect,

LUCIUS B. METCALF."

The above are all from persons whom we are personally acquainted with, or whose statements are vouched for by those in whom we have confidence, that they may be relied on.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO.,

Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass.

GEO. and G. A. BULLOCK, and J. A. VERVAIS, Sandwich;

D. OULLETTE, Windsor;

And every Druggist and Merchantin Canada.

OPPOSITION

To the Combination of Trade!!

J. W. JOHNSTON has just returned from New York, with a large and splendid stock of Gold and Diamond Jewelry, Diamond Rings and Breast Pins, Gold Watches, Lockets and Chains, Gold Pens and Pencils, Cuff Pins and Earrings; the Egyptian style just come in fashion, Pearl Earrings and Rings, Gold and Silver

Gold and Silver Watches, Gold Thimbles; a fine assortment of Silver Ware, Tea and Table Spoons, Fruit and Butter Knives, Card Cases, Port Monies, Cake Baskets, English, French and German Fancy Goods, Pearl and Shell Card Cases, Port Monies of every description.

Ladies and Gentlemen's Dressing Cases, fine assortment Writing Desks, Pearl and Rosewood, Crosha fixins of all kinds.

COMBS.

Back, fine, coarse, and pockets combs, both horn and wood combs, the latest style of Bloomer Combs.

CLOCKS.

Clocks at $1.25, warranted good time pieces; prices at wholesale a good deal less.

ENGLISH CUTLERY.

Bowie Knifes, Razors, and a very large stock of Table Cutlery, Tumellas, Spoon holders, Double and Single Barreled Guns, Yankee notions and Gilt Jewelry.

A very large stock of Notions, country merchants and peddlers' attention is called to examine this stock, before purchasing elsewhere.

Pins, Needles, Thread, Buttons, Tape Bobbin, Corset Laces, Tumellas, Spoonholders Tobacco Boxes, Hooks and Eyes, Whalebone, Feather Dusters, Horse Brushes, Shoe Brushes Tooth and Clothing Brushes, Fiddles, Accordeons, Flutinas, Flutes, Beads and Rings, and Pins, Gilt and Plated Watches at two dollars a piece; in fact all sorts, from a needle to an anchor, and from an anchor to a tin pail; nothing charged for looking; call and see, two doors down from Court House, on Jefferson avenue, opposite the U. S. Court Room.

J. W. JOHNSTON.

EXECUTOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given to all persons indebted to the late ALPHEUS MORSE, of the Town of Sandwich, deceased, and late of the Firm of MORSE AND CALVIN, Lumbermen, to make payment to the undersigned, and all persons having claims against the said A. MORSE, or MORSE AND CALVIN, are requested to present them for payment prior to the 1st day of May next to

ELECTA MORSE, } Executors

H. C. GUILLOT, }

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

MAPLE LEAF.

DIEU ET MON DROIT

James H. Wilkinson] "PROGRESS." [Proprietor and Publisher.

VOL. I. SANDWICH, C. W., FRIDAY, MAY 30, 1856. NO. 14.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

IS PUBLISHED

Every Friday Morning,

BY

J. H. WILKINSON,

BEDFORD STREET;

Sandwich, Canada West.

TERMS:—Eight shillings and ninepence Cy, per annum, if paid in advance; or Ten Shillings at the end of the year.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Six lines or under, first insertion, 2s 6d, cy Each subsequent insertion, 0 7½ "

Advertisements over six lines, 4d per line for the first insertion, and one penny per line for every subsequent insertion. A liberal discount made to Merchants and others who advertise by the year.

Advertisements sent in for insertion without written directions, will be continued till forbid and the usual rates charged.

CLUBS.

Any person procuring 10 subscribers will be entitled to a copy gratis. Payment to be made in advance.

The JOB OFFICE connected with the "MAPLE LEAF" is in every respect complete for the dispatch of BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

Professional Cards.

Mr. William Johnson,
Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c., &c.
Sandwich, C. W.

Mr. Charles Baby,
Attorney and Councillor at Law, Solicitor in Chancery, &c.
Office, Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. J. H. Wilkinson.
Law, Chancery, Conveyancing, and Land Agency Office,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

Mr. Louis J. Fluett,
Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, Conveyancer and Land Agent,
Sandwich.

Mr. S. S. Macdonell,
Barrister, Attorney-at-Law, Notary Public, &c., &c.
Windsor, C. W.

Mr. John O'Connor, Jun.,
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law, Solicitor in Chancery, Conveyancer, &c.,
Windsor, C. W.

Charles Eugene Casgrain, M.D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Office and Residence, opposite the "Moar's Hotel,"
Sandwich, Canada West.

Dr. Reynolds,
Physician and Surgeon,
Amherstburg.

John Adley,
Physician and Surgeon, &c.,
Bedford Street, Sandwich.

ALEXANDER GORDON,
NOTARY PUBLIC AND INSURANCE AGENT
Sandwich & Windsor, Canada West.

John McCrae,
Auctioneer, Insurance and General Agent
Windsor, Canada West.

Bank of Upper Canada Agency,
Windsor, Canada West.
Office Hours, 10, A.M., to 3, P.M.

Philip S. Donnelly,
Provincial Land Surveyor, &c.,
Moore, County of Lambton.

LAFFERTY & JONES,
AUCTIONEERS AND APPRAISERS,
Amherstburg, Canada West.

P. Marentette,
Gunsmith and Manufacturer of Guns.
Every description of Fire-arms repair d at his shop, on Bedford Street,
Sandwich.

L. P. St. Amour,
IMPORTER, AND WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN DRY GOODS
CROCKERY, HARDWARE,
PERFUMERY, &c.,
Sandwich, Canada West.

Sandwich Post Office.
Open daily, from Nine till Twelve, A.M., and from half-past Twelve till Five, P.M.
P. H. MORIN, Post Master.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware
Crockery, Boots & Shoes
&C. &C. &C.
Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich.

Bartley and Pinney,
PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.
Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.
O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.

MR. JAS. WOODBRIDGE, JUN.,
Division Court Agent, and General Agent for Collecting Debts.
Sandwich, Canada West.

S. D. ELWOOD & CO.,
PUBLISHERS,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALERS IN
BOOKS, STATIONERY,
AND ALL KINDS OF
PAPERS,
PRINTERS AND BINDERS STOCK
MANUFACTURERS OF
BLANK BOOKS
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.
Orders for Lithographed Letter and Bill Heads, Maps, Drafts, Stock Certificates, &c., &c., &c.,
EXECUTED WITH PROMPTNESS.
192 Jefferson Avenue,
S. D. ELWOOD, } DETROIT.
J. C. PARSONS, }

WILLIAM SWIFT,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
IS prepared to attend upon the Gentlemen of Amherstburg in his line of business, and is not afraid to assert that he will cut and Fit in the latest and most fashionable Styles as well as any Tailor west of London.
Amherstburg, Feb. 29th, 1856.

George Hann,
DEALER IN FURS AND SKINS.
The highest price paid for Shipping Furs at his Fur Store in the Town of Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

NIAGARA
MUTUAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.
GEORGE BULLOCK, Local Agent for the Townships of Sandwich, Maidstone, Rochester and Tilbury West; also the Village of Windsor. Address, Sandwich Post Office.

ROSE DALE MILLS,
THE highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Rye, Corn, or Buck Wheat, either at the Mills or at the Store of
GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.
Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

JAMES JESSOP,
CARPENTER & JOINER,
WILL always be on hand to attend to the erection of Building, and every description of Carpenter and Joiner work upon the shortest notice.
Sandwich, 20th February, 1856.

WARNER'S EXCHANGE,
AMHERSTBURG, C. W.
CHARLES WARNER, PROPRIETOR

SIMPSON'S EATING SALOON.
MR. SIMPSON would inform the Gentlemen of Sandwich and vicinity that he is prepared at all hours to furnish "Hot Meals," and those who may favor his establishment with a call, can depend upon having, if they wish, a "steak" cooked in the good old English style, with all the little etceteras.
Dinner Parties accommodated upon the shortest notice.
N.B.—A few persons can be accommodated with good clean beds.
No 253 Jefferson Avenue Detroit Mich. few doors above the Theatre.

NEW LIVERY STABLE.

JOHN LEWIS, having purchased the Livery Stable in the Town of Sandwich, formerly kept by C. F. Labadie, will carry it on in a style that has never been known in this place before. Fresh horses and new carriages are being added to this establishment every day, and persons who patronise him may expect to be furnished with "Crack Teams."

PAINT SHOP.
FRANCOIS PAYETTE having opened a Paint Shop in the Town of Sandwich, next door to L. P. St Amour's Store, will be happy to attend to the painting of houses, Graining, Glazing, Varnishing, and, in fact, every description of work in his line of business with despatch, and at moderate charges.
N.B.—Buggies and Carriages painted and varnished upon reasonable terms.

SANDWICH BREWERY.
ALE, BEER AND PORTER
MANUFACTURED BY
TROWNSELL, LEECH AND O'CALLAGHAN.
N.B.—CASH PAID FOR BARLEY.

Poetry.

The Hope of the Heart.

BY LORD BYRON.

"No nobler theme ever engaged the pen of the poet. It is the soul-elevated idea, that no man can consider himself entitled to complain of Fate, while in adversity he still retains the unwavering love of woman."—Edgar A. Poe.

Though the day of my destiny's over,
And the star of my fate hath declined,
Thy soft heart hast refused to discover
The faults which so many could find;
Though thy soul with my grief was acquainted,
It shrunk not to share it with me;
And the love which my spirit had painted,
It never had found but in THEE.

Then, when nature around me is smiling,
The last smiles which answers to mine,
I do not believe it beguiling,
Because it reminds me of thine;
And when winds are at war with the ocean,
As the breasts I believe in with me,
If the billows excite no emotion;
It is that they bear me from THEE.

Though the rock of my last hope is shivered,
And the fragments are sunk in the wave,
Though I feel that my soul is delivered
To pain—it shall not be a slave;
There is many a pang to pursue me,
They may crush, but they shall not condemn;
They may torture, but shall not subdue me—
'Tis of THEE that I think, not of them.

Though human, thou didst not deceive me,
Though woman, thou didst not forsake,
Though loved, thou didst not desert me,
Though slandered, thou never couldst shake,
Though trusted, thou didst not disclaim me,
Though parted, it was not to fly,
Though watchful it was not to defame me,
Nor mute that the world might belie.

Yet I blame not the world, nor despise it;
Nor the war of the many with one—
If my soul was not fitted to prize it—
'Twas folly not sooner to shun;
And if dearly that error hath cost me,
And more than I once could foresee,
I have found that whatever it cost me,
It could not deprive me of THEE.

From the wreck of the past which hath perished,
Thus much I at least may recall,
It hath taught me that which I most cherished,
Deserved to be dearest of all;
In the desert a fountain is springing;
In the wide waste there still is a tree,
And a bird in the solitude singing,
Which speaks to my spirit of THEE.

The Two Lady Watchers.

BY JOHN THORNBERRY.

Right next door to one another, lived two unmarried ladies, who were each busily occupied with getting into matrimony as fast as they could. Their names were Miss Padd and Miss Tilly. The former lived in No. 175, and the latter in No. 176. The exteriors of the houses were remarkably similar, so that it would be the easiest thing in the world for a man to get through one door, when he meant all the while to go into the other. There were several striking little circumstances connected with these two ladies and their beaux, among which were two that I will be at the trouble especially to mention. First, each of them felt compelled, by the force of unhappy domestic prejudices, to receive and entertain her favorite in a secret sort of style, and if it happened to be in the evening, always in the dark. Such coincidences may be common enough, if you take the entire sex thro'; but when you come to place them side by side in a way like this, and the two houses so very like one another, too, it really offers a subject for the liveliest remark.

In the second place, the names of their worshipers exactly made rhyme with their own names! That was stranger yet, if anything. For example,—The gentleman who waited upon Miss Padd, was named Mr. Dadd; and the name of Miss Tilly's favorite was Mr. Lilly. Rather ludicrous, perhaps, considered from some points of view, and something that almost any person in his senses would be apt to notice as at least very peculiar.

It turned out, in the natural course of events, that both Miss Dadd and Miss Tilly —who, bye-the-bye, were not acquaintances at all—had made private appointments for their lovers one evening, and the better to admit them to their houses without suspicion on the part of their friends, they had arranged to fasten back the night-locks on the hall doors, and to have them so that they could fly us they could, and slip upstairs into the parlors. The families were in the habit of passing the evening in their back sitting rooms; but the courageous lovers were expected to take their seats in rooms without lights, and without fires, too. For above upon a time, it was not exactly the most comfortable arrangement we have ever heard of.

On this particular evening, the two young ladies sat in their parlors, surrounded by nothing but the dark. Miss Padd at 175, and Miss Tilly at 176. Both waiting,—both shivering. Both rattling their teeth together like the rolling clatter of castanets. By-and-bye Mr. Dadd came creeping along up the street, and put his hand on the door knob of 176! He should have gone to the other number. But there was no gas light flaming near by, and so long as he felt very sure he was right, stopping to study the number was the last thing he would have thought of. He opened the door softly, and climbed the stairs. Working his way along a tip-toe, he finally found the parlor door which was situated just where it was in No, 175, and went in.

"It's me," he whispered, as soon as he had got safely into the room.

That was signal enough. Immediately a female figure glided along into the centre of the room, with its arms outstretched and rambling around in every direction. He extended his own to embrace it, although he was perfectly unconscious at the time that he was making the most, in an affectionate way, of Miss Tilly. He thought of course she must be Miss Padd.

So close was the parlor to the other room, that Miss Tilly dared express her feelings only in the most chastened whispers, articulating her words slowly and with much difficulty. And upon her visitor she enjoined the same caution. It were better not to say anything, she told him, than even by a careless whisper to arouse the suspicion of her dear papa. Accordingly there was very little talking done on the premises; what there was, was more in the way of slow and thick lisp, than anything after the style of spoken words or syllables.

As for Miss Padd, she still sat alone, shaking and shivering in the cold. She had told the family that she was going upstairs for awhile; which occasion she improved to come down again slily, and slip into the parlor in the dark. And there she sat now; while Mr. Dadd and Miss Tilly were having such a sweet time of it, she was freezing for her negligent lover. She could only sit and wonder what it meant. The clock had struck another hour since she had been there. It would not do for her to stay away from the family too long at a time, and so she went back upstairs, took her light, and came down again among them. It would be easy enough to slip into the parlor again, on one pretence or another to see when he did arrive; which she did several times, but no Mr. Dadd was to be discovered there. And because he was passing the evening, agreeably to a mistake of which both remained ignoran', with Miss Tilly.

Mr. Dadd sat with Miss Tilly as long a he thought it safe, and then took his leave. They had enjoyed their secret interview highly. Each had been deceived, "but O, how pleasantly! Miss Tilly was in a flutter of excitement, and Mr. Dadd was ditto.

By-and-by Mr. Lilly came along. Something or another had happened to make him late that evening; but better late, thought he, than never. He made no mistake in the number, I warrant you. He did not go in as Miss Padd's door, when he had promised to go in and see—or try to see—Miss Tilly. But he got the right figures to begin upon, and in he went, working up very softly to the door of the parlor. Having opened it, he listened. All was as still as a tomb.

As sat down, after calling in a whisper many times vainly on the name of his lady-love, and tried to settle his thought into a mood something like patience. For a time this plan worked quite well, but it soon began to wear itself out. He could hear Miss Tilly chatting and laughing gaily in the next room, and wondered why she did not come in to meet him. He heard one after another pass along the little hall to bed, but still she sat and talked and laughed incessantly. He wondered what it meant, and shivered as he wondered.

And then he thought that there must be some unheard family circumstance in the way, which she would know much better how to manage than himself. This thought buoyed him up a little, making him feel assured that she would certainly come in as soon as the coast was all clear. And still he sat and listened, and wondered and shivered, until Miss Tilly took her light, passed through the hall exactly by the parlor door, and went—to bed! This was more than Mr. Lilly was going to stand from any one. He had sat there in the cold long enough. Now he was going home. He would be careful to keep free from any such arrangements for the future. He took his hat accordingly, and crept down through the door again. And the town clocks began to strike twelve on the frosty air, as he carefully shut the outer door—which had the night-lock properly fixed by Miss Tilly since his arrival—and put his foot out upon the side-walk again.

From that day forward, Miss Tilly could see nothing of him. He avoided her in the street, and went round the shortest corners if he found such sort of travel necessary to escape her. He determined that he would give up his passion forever, and clear himself of the foolish thraldom into which he had fallen.

Miss Padd, on the other hand, went back into her parlor after the family retired, and there held her cold and lonely vigils for a long, long season. But in vain. No Mr. Dadd was destined to call on her that night, let her wait there in solitude the whole night through. He had made his visit—though at the next door—and gone home upon it. And she grew more and more vexed as the hours wore on, and finally worked herself up into a very respectable passion. And at last she pushed off up stairs again, this time determined to go to bed in her wrath. She did not forget, however, to run down and fasten the outer door. But from that night forward, she was resolved on giving her lover the "go-by." Anything so ungallant as this negligence, she could not find in her heart to forgive. She would have nothing more to do with Mr. Dadd whatever!

It was just such a case with Mr. Lilly.—Both of them determined on the same evening to turn over new leaves entirely. And still, for the time being at least, Mr. Dadd certainly thought he had met his engagement properly that evening. Miss Tilly likewise thought she had met hers. And both had finally gone to bed perfectly satisfied with themselves, and expecting to dream of wonderful pictures for their future.—Stranger and shallower infatuations than these lead the world by the nose every day that is counted off the calendar.

Mr. Dadd afterwards met Miss Padd in the street, but she knew no such man. She threw him one single cutting look, and then lifted her chin as high as it would go. And Miss Tilly met Mr. Lilly in her turn, too, and thought she was certainly going to stop and chat with him as he came up. But he never came up! He turned off at a cross walk, bestowing on her a hasty glance of anger as he went, and passed on his way alone.

And thus were two very good matrimonial engagements broken off forever, which, but for so trifling an accident, might have made a deal of difference with the hearts of our four individuals at least for a lifetime! Reader, if you mean ever to go to No. 175, don't pray drop in at No. 176. That's the moral.

THE BOY THAT "LICKED" PRINCE OF WALES.

The Birmingham (Eng.) Journal prints the following account of a flogging the Prince of Wales received from a poor boy:

"During her Majesty's residence, some years ago, at Osborne, in the Isle of Wight, her children were accustomed to ramble along the sea shore. Now, it so happened on one occasion that the young Prince of Wales met a boy who had been gathering sea shells. The boy got a basket full. The young Prince, presuming upon his high position, thought himself privileged to do what he pleased with impunity. So without any notice he upset the basket and shells. The poor lad was very indignant, and observed, 'You do that again and I'll lick you.' 'Put the shells into the basket,' said the Prince, 'and see if I don't.' The shells were gathered up and put into the basket. 'Now,' said the lad, touch 'em again, old fellow, if you dare,' whereupon the Prince again pitched over the shells. And he had pitched into him, and gave him such a licking as few Princes ever had.

"His lip was cut open, his nose knocked considerably out of its perpendicular, and his eyes of a color which might well become the champion of a prize ring. His disfigured face could not long be concealed from his royal mother. She inquired the cause of his disfigurement. The Prince was silent, but at last he confessed the truth. The poor boy was ordered before the Queen. He was asked to tell his story. He did so in a very straightforward manner. At its conclusion, turning to her child the Queen said, 'You have been rightly served, sir. Had you not been sufficiently punished already, I should have punished you severely. When you commit a like offence, I trust you will always receive a similar punishment.' Turning to the poor boy, she desired him to bring his parents the following morning. They came; and the result of the interview was that her Majesty told them she had made arrangements for educating and providing for their son, and she hoped he would make good use of the advantages which should be placed within his reach."

Miscellany.

According to the census taken in March of the present year, the population of the city of London, C. W., was 13,207. In 1851 it contained the population of 1,500; in 1854, 10,060. The Free Press is of opinion that if the assessors had visited more carefully the suburs of the city, their returns would have exhibited a population of 20,000 souls.

DISTRIBUTING THE MEDICINE.—Dewey, the 'town agent' for the distribution of the 'ardent' in Burlington, Vt., formerly kept a clerk who will make tresurer by and by. Having grown quite disgusted with the shabby pretexts that the old tipplers would offer as reason for medicine, he grew as sharp in his examinations as a quarantine doctor. One day an 'old hard head' asked for a pint of brandy. 'What is your difficulty?' inquired the boy. 'Why,' said the man, laying his hand pathetically on his abdomen, 'the fact is, I am rather loose.' 'Well,' replied the boy, 'this is no place to get TIGHT.'

It is a curious circumstance that a real magnifying glass, identified by Sir David Brewster as decidedly and designedly such, was recently found by Mr. Layard in one of the temples of Nineveh.

John Murdoc, the Glasgow hangman, is dead. For forty years his stalwart form and grim visage were seen at every scaffold erected throughout Scotland.

FEMALE HEROISM.—"One day," said Massena, 'being at Buezghen, I perceived a young soldier belonging to the Light Artillery, whose horse had just been wounded by a lance. The young man who appeared quite a child, defended himself desperately, as several bodies of the enemy lying around him could testify. I immediately dispatched an officer with some men to his assistance, but they arrived too late. Although this action had taken place on the borders of the wood, and in front of the bridge, the artillery man alone withstood the attack of a small party of Cossacks and Bavarians, whom the officer and men I dispatched put to flight. His body was covered with wounds inflicted by short, lance sword. There were at least thirty. And do you know, madame, what the young man was? said Massena turning to me."

"'A woman!"

"Yes, a woman, and a handsome woman too! although she was so covered with blood that it was difficult to judge of her beauty. She had followed her lover to the army.—The latter was a captain of artillery; she never left him; and when he was killed, defended like a lioness the remains of him she loved. She was a native of Paris; her name was Louise Bellitz, and she was the daughter of a fringe maker in the Rue de Petit Lion."—Memoirs of the Duchess Abrantes.

A Western paper lately stated that Judge Douglass was a man of "loose habits." Practice replies that on the contrary he is often very "tight."

We regret to learn that on Monday night, about 12 o'clock, some wretches in human shape, secured the door of James McKinstery's house, on Negro Hill, while he and his wife were in bed, and then set fire to the building, doubtlessly with the intention of burning them both. We believe that they had considerable difficulty in making their escape, as a great part of the building was consumed before they became conscious of their danger being asleep at the time. When they found all attempts to open the door fruitless, they at length got out by means of a small window in the back of the house, and in a few minutes afterwards, were joined by Wm. Gordon in front of the house who burst open the door and removed the bedding and bedstead almost at the risk of his life.

This is a very serious case of incendiary, and we trust that the proper authorities will adopt every possible means to bring the guilty parties to justice, as neither life nor property can be secured whilst such heartless monsters are allowed to perpetrate such deeds with impunity.—Owen Sound Times.

GENERAL HOLIDAY.—His Excellency has been pleased to fix Wednesday, the Fourth of June next, as a General Holiday, and Day of Thanksgiving to Almighty God for the restoration of peace, and earnestly exhorts all loving subjects to observe the said Public Day of Thanksgiving.

GOING TO LAW.—At Chicago, Mrs. Lyons was a tenant of John O'Reilley. The lady falling in arrears, the landlord attempted to dispossess her by by removing her furniture from her house during her absence. For this the tenant brought suit and obtained a judgement of $295. On this the landlord waxed wroth, and spoke indelicate words concerning the lady. She at once sued him for slander, and obtained a verdict of $1,500. Fast city that Chicago.

ANOTHER PROBABLE MURDER.—On Wednesday last, the 14th inst., a man named Robinson, who had just gone to live on Lot No. 4, in the fourth con. of Logan, as a squatter, was attacked by five or six persons at his own house. During the attack, Robinson was stabbed through the head and other parts of the body, and he was not expected to live over night. Two of the parties (brothers) named William & Patrick Flynn, were arrested and brought before James, Hill, Esq., J. P. of Mitchell. Yesterday morning, many of the Inhabitants of Mitchell turned out and arrested the other parties. A sum of money amounting to $44 together with a gun were taken from Robinson on the occasion of the attack on him. The Flynn's are now in jail.—Beacon.

GALLANTRY OF TWO OF THE OFFICERS OF HER MAJESTY'S SHIP PEARL.—As the Pearl, 20 gun corvette, Captain Sotherby, lay at anchor in line on the morning of the grand review, a marine fell overboard from one of the portholes while attending a gun. Lieutenant St. Paul, a Prussian in the British service, immediately jumped after him, as the man, could not swim, was struggling in the water; followed shortly after by Lieutenant Pimm, of the Marines. St. Paul, however, first grappled him, and held him up till they caught a rope thrown from the ship. This is the third life this brave young fellow has saved under similar circumstances. Each officer had on his breast clasps for active service during the late War.

Lord Palmerston has a reputation of being able to converse with fluency in a greater number of the living languages of Europe than any other Englishman known to fame. Others may have a more critical acquaintance with such languages than his lordship, but in the art of speaking with ease he is said to have no rival.

The length of all the different streets in London is 1750 miles. The paving of them cost £14,000,000, and the yearly cost of keeping the pavement in repair is £1,800,000.

"YOU FORGET ME.—A good joke is told at the expense of one of our church-going citizens, who is the father of an interesting family of children, and among them a bright eyed boy numbering four or five summers, the pet of the household and unanimously voted the direllest little mischief afloat.

On Saturday night he had been bribed to keep pence and retire to bed earlier than usual, with a promise that on the morning he might go with the family to church.—On Sunday morning it was found the convenient to put the youngest through the regular course of washing and dressing necessary for his proper appearance at the sanctuary, and the family slipped off without him.—They had not however, more than become comfortably seated in their pew, when in walked the youngest with nothing on but a night wrapper and cloth cap.

"You forgot me," said he in a tone loud enough to be heard all over the church.

The feelings of the parents can be more easily imagined than described.

In diving to the bottom of pleasure, we bring more gravel than pearls.—Balzac.

WHOSE ALE IS IT.—"Will you give me a glass of ale, please? asked a rather seedy-lish—looking person with an old but well brushed coat, and a most too shiny a hat.

It was produced by the bar tender, creaming over the hedge of the tumbler.

'Thank ye,' said the recipient, as he placed it to his lips. Having finished it at a swallow, he smacked his lips, and said,—'That's very fine ale—very.'

'Whose ale is it?'

'It's Harman's ale.'

Ah! Harman's eh? Well give us another glass of it.'

It was done—and holding it up to the light, and looking through it, the connoisseur said,—'Pon my word, it is superb ale —superb! clear as Madeira. I must have some more of that. Give me a mug of it'

The mug was finished; before putting it to his lips, the imbiber said, 'whose Harman's,' repeated the tender.

'The mug was exhausted, and also the vocabulary of praise; and it only remained for the appreciative gentleman to say, as he wiped his mouth and went towards the door,—'Harman's ale, is it? I know Harman very well—I shall see him soon, and settle with him for two glasses and a mug of his incomparable brew! Good mawning. —Knick.

AN ARISTOCRATIC QUALIFICATIONS.—The great thoroughfares of every large city are boiling over with characters, they loom up in the maze of pedestrians at every step, and are known by their hair, others by their dress, and a majority by their folly. Brown and Smith, two gentlemen well known to every one who walks the streets were out a few days since, when they were met by an over dressed individual who appeared as if he thought he was somebody and knew it.

'Do you know that chap Smith?' said Brown.

'Yes, I know him, that is I know of him.'

"Well, who in the name of sense is he?'

"Why, he's a sculptor.

"Such a looking chap as that a sculptor; surely you must be mistaken.

'He may not be the kind of a one you mean, but I know that he chiseled a tailor out of a suit of clothes last week.'

MAKE A NOTE OF THIS.—About forty years ago, a young man with a limited capital commenced business in the city of Boston, and was obliged to employ a single clerk on a small salary. A lady called at his store one day and made some purchases, which she wished delivered at her residence. The merchant requested the clerk to deliver the bundle as required. He declined; the merchant immediately took the bundle and delivered it himself. The clerk was never worth a hundred dollars in his life; the merchant was Abbott Lawrence the late millionaire.

NOVEL PENALTY FOR MURDER.—A suit has been commenced at the St. Louis Common Pleas by Mrs. Mary A. Brand, widow, against Robert M. O'Blennis, for damages sustained by the murder of her husband, which she lays at $20,000.

OBLIGING.—The proprietor of a bone mill, advertises that those sending their own bones to be ground, will be attended to with punctuality and despatch.

If our Maker thought it wrong for Adam to live single, when there was not a woman on earth, how very criminally guilty are old bachelors, with the world full of pretty girls.

An editor out West says:—'If we have offended any in the short, but brilliant course of our public career, let him send us in a new hat and say nothing more about it.'—Very cool indeed.

A village schoolmaster, in the county of Bucks, one day asked a boy who was about to leave school, to what trade his father intended to put him. The boy said he was going to be a butcher. 'Why, surely, rejoined the schoolmaster, 'you won't like to kill the poor sheep and lambs?' 'No' said the urchin, 'I shouldn't kill poor 'uns, I should like to kill fat 'uns.'

The latest case of indolence is that related by an exchange, of a man named John Hole, who was so lazy that in writing his name, he simply read the letter J., and then punched a hole through the paper.

'Father, what does the Printer live on?' 'Why my child?' 'Because you said you had'nt paid him for four years, and still take the paper.' 'Wife spank that child.'

SHOOKS says the prettiest sewing machine he ever saw was about seventeen years old, with short sleeves, low neck dress, and gaiter boots.

Province of Canada.

From the Canada Gazette Extra May 19.

By the Queen.—A Proclamation.— Victoria R.

Whereas a Definite Treaty of Peace and Friendship between us and our Allies and His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of All the Russias, was concluded at Paris on the Thirteenth Day of March last, and the Ratifications thereof have now been duly exchanged: In consideration whereof, we have thought fit hereby to command that the same be published throughout all our Dominions: And we do declare to all our loving Subjects our will and Pleasure, that the said Treaty of Peace and Friendship be observed inviolably as well by Sea as by Land, and in all Places whatsoever, strictly charging and commanding all our loving subjects to take Notice hereof, and to conform themselves thereunto accordingly.

Given at our Court at Buckingham Palace, this Twenty-eighth Day of April in the Year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and Fifty-six, and in the Nineteenth Year of our Reign.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN.

PROVINCE OF CANADA. } EDMUND HEAD.

Victoria, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, QUEEN, Defender of the Faith, &c.

To all whom these presents shall come—

GREETING:

John A. Macdonald, Attorney General,

Whereas it hath pleased Almighty God, in His great goodness to put an end to the warfare in which we have been engaged against the Emperor of Russia, and to restore peace to Europe, we therefore, adoring the Divine Goodness, and duly considering that the great and public blessings of peace do call for public and solemn acknowledgments, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council of our Province of Canada, to issue this Proclamation, hereby appointing that a General Holiday and Day of Thanksgiving to Almighty God for these His Mercies, be observed throughout our said Province of Canada, on Wednesday, the Fourth day of June next, and we do earnestly exhort all our loving subjects therein that they observe the said Public Day of Thanksgiving.

In Testimony Whereof, we have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the great seal of our said Province of Canada to be hereunto affixed: Witness our trusty and well-beloved Sir Edmund Walker Head, Baronet, Governor General of British North America, and Captain General and Governor in Chief in and over our Provinces of Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and the Island of Prince Edward, and Vice Admiral of the same, &c., &c.

At our Government House, in our City of Toronto, in our said Province of Canada, this Nineteenth day of May, in the year of Our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty six, and in the Nineteenth year of our Reign.

By Command.

GEORGE E. CARTIER, Sec'y.

Trade and Navigation.

The value of articles entered for consumption in Canada was in 1854, £10,130,331, in 1855, £9,021,542; a decrease of £1,110,789. The amount of duties collected was £881,445 in 1855; or £343,306 less than in 1854, a result attributable to the effect of reciprocity, as is proved by the return of £5,396,383, value of goods duty free imported in 1855, against £703,435 in 1854.

The Imports by sea via the St. Lawrence amounted in 1854 to £5,222,838. In 1855 they were but £2,837,507; showing a decrease of £2,410,431 or nearly one half. The Imports from the United States amounted in 1854 to £2,883,274; and in 1855 to £5,207,169, showing an increase of £1,322,895, or about one third. The Imports from the United States of free goods under the reciprocity treaty, were valued in 1855 at £1,312,180.

The total exports from Canada amounted in 1824 to £3,754,797; in 1855, they were £7,047,115, showing an increase of £1,292,318. The export of wheat was in 1854, 1,442,077 bushels, valued at £524,524;—in 1855, 4,195,748 bushels, valued at £1,482,216; showing an increase in quantity of 1,751,091 bushels, and of £957,682 in value. The exports of flour on the contrary shows a decrease of 7,404 barrels, accompanied by an increase in value of £231,306.

In comparing the value of Exports and Imports at each point for 1854 and 1855, we find that the exports at Quebec have fallen off £723,065; the imports £1,021,773. At Montreal the exports have decreased £1,382,216; the imports £75,202. At Hamilton the exports have increased from £148,121 to £454,586, or £306,465; the imports have decreased to the extent of £35,342. At Toronto, the exports have increased from £273,049 to £404,105, or £131,056; the imports have also increased from £1,332,939 to £1,401,435, or £68,747. Toronto is the only important port, which shows an increase in 1855 on both exports and imports.—Colonist.

The Collingwood Route.

We are glad to learn that arrangements are now fully completed by which the steamers Europe and Champion will form a daily line between this port and Oswego, in connection with the Northern Railroad. This completes the route from New York, Boston, &c., to Chicago and the Far West via Collingwood, and we believe no route commands itself more to the travelling community for comfort and pleasure, speed and safety. For the transition of large quantities of freight, ample arrangements have been made and we believe business men may safely rely on promptitude in forwarding to their destinations all goods sent by this route. A boon is granted to our business men by the resumption of the line between this city and Oswego, and we hope it will be extensively patronised. We hope, also, that arrangements will be made to transmit the Oswego mail by these steamers, so that that hospitable city may be brought into closer connection with us than it has been for some months.

The upper lake steamers, comprising the Queen City, Keystone State, Niagara, and Buckeye State, running between Collingwood and Chicago, and the Louisiana to Green Bay, &c., are all first class steamers. These, with a fleet of the best available schooners, will afford every accommodation for passengers and freight.

We believe the whole arrangement is most satisfactory, especially to those interested in the railroad, and we hope that success may attend it.

The Champion and Europa leave here every night at 9 o'clock, and arrive in the morning at about 7 o'clock. The Montreal, it is expected, will lay up for the season.—Globe.

Trade with Canada.

Our readers are indebted to the Rochester American for the following very flattering notice:

In 1851 our trade with Canada was about thirteen million dollars a year. In 1855 it was thirty-one millions. This large increase is due to removal of the unwise restrictions on the exchange of the product of human industry which before existed. The system of free trade in the vegetation and wealth of Canada will do as much for the benefit of the United States as they would, if a member of the Union. Annexation might be desirable for political purposes under cert in contingencies, but for all commercial and industrial interests, the profit of the resources of this country. Our own city is destined to derive most valuable support from the industrious people of Canada, for all times to come. Trade which is now thirty-one millions, will soon be one hundred millions a year.

Canada has much more wheat land than is generally known, all of which is destined to be improved, and yield a vast surplus for exportation. Its minerals and timbers are invaluable. The opening of the Collingwood road through one of the best farming and best timbered districts on the continent, is an improvement which can hardly fail to benefit this city about as much as it will Toronto. Our merchants, manufacturers, mechanics must look to the North, as well as to the West, for trade. It is true the wealth of the north is less developed than that of the West; but the work is in the hands of men of indomitable energy, whose success is morally certain. Nor can we set bounds to the enterprise and productive power of our Canadian neighbors. The climate is more congenial to both muscular and mental progressive nations of Europe.

Colonization.

This subject of immigration is one which, to our great surprise, never or very rarely obtains the slightest notice from the Press of Canada! Surely it must be for the interest of us all to state, honestly and fairly, our advantages and resources, and not allow this almost boundless country to continue uncupied and uncultivated, while we have daily evidences of its fertility and healthfulness.

This is a subject which every government of Canada has hitherto grossly neglected! It is the country which most needs population, and it is the only one which has made no systematic efforts to effect it object.

England has 332 persons to a square mile. Upper Canada 29! Lower Canada 41! All Canada 7 39-100. The land even now accupied in Upper Canada would easily support MILLIONS INHABITANTS more than it has now, to be as densely populated as England!!

Instead of a trumpery sum of about £300 currency for Prize Essays, as many thousands should have been readily granted for a County and Township History, detailing the peculiar character and productions of each locality. A fund of invaluable matter, though not written by well paid Philosophers and Professors, and full of hard words and incomprehensible theories, would have been the happy result—both clean of household and local statistics, supplied by practical men, and women. There are many men of education in the Backwoods of Canada, who would have cheerfully aided such a plan, and we should have called forth not only the information, but the talent of a host of men, by the "household words" and graceful authorship of the two English Ladies of whom Canada may well be proud—Mesdames Traill and Moodie, the former of whom, (whose works are, and whose profits should have been, of a more practical nature), have done more for Canada in making her known favorably at home, than any Governor General, Statesman, and Government has yet done, and for whom and for whose family, Canada, to her disgrace, has done nothing, but leave her and hers in the "Backwoods of Canada" while thousands of Canadian Farmers and Gentry have to thank her for having drawn their attention to this great country, where they have obtained a position and competence they could never have reached at home.—Old Countryman.

Canada and the West Indies.

The modern relations between the British colonies and the mother country are cast in the mould of independence. They are no longer ruled in the spirit of Roman Proconsulship. Representative government is established among them, and, to a great extent, they have the management of their local affairs. Downing street, however, still exercises a rigid control over their external commerce, and that reserved authority is beginning to excite some discontent. It was, indeed, relaxed in 1850, when a treaty of reciprocity, after protracted negotiations, was effected between the United States and our North American colonies, which has been attended with the happiest results; and the success of that experiment has created a desire in Canada to extend the system of reciprocity to some of the West India Islands; but a timely policy we shall presently refer to. We have before us the last report forwarded to Congress by the American Secretary of State, which contains comparative tables exhibiting the value of trade between the United States and the British American possessions during the years 1851, 1852, 1853, 1854, and 1855. These are instructive documents; being unanswerable protests against the restrictive system. We shall select as illustrations of the benefit of free or reciprocal commerce the tables belonging to the first and last years of the series:

1851.	Dollars.
American exports to Canada	7,929,140
To other British American possessions.	4,086,783
Total	12,015,923
1851.	Dollars.
Imports from Canada	4,956,471
From other possessions	1,636,651
Total	6,693,122

Thus, the first year produced an interchange of commodities valued at 12,708,045 dollars, where no such trade at all had previously existed. This was equivalent to the discovery of a gold mine.

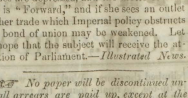
1855.	Dollars.
American exports to Canada	18,720,344
To other British American possessions	9,085,676
Total	29,806,020
1855.	Dollars.
Imports from Canada	12,182,814
From other British American possessions	2,954,420
Total	15,136,934

Thus, the reciprocal trade between the two countries in the last year of the new system amounted to 42,942,954 dollars. In this short period, from 1851 to 1855, the augmentation in the traffic has been about 356 per cent. and both have been enriched by the operation. Has the trade between the mother country and British North America increased in consequence of this arrangement, so long resisted, and with so much difficulty accomplished? Quite the reverse as shown by the last statistical abstract of the United Kingdom. We take the same years of comparison and the following is the result:—

British exports to British North America in 1851	£3,813,704
" " " 1852	2,065,384
" " " 1853	4,808,517
" " " 1854	5,578,092

The statistical abstract does not include the year 1855 in the section (No. 14), of the declared value of British and Irish produce exported from the United Kingdom to foreign countries and British possessions.

This prosperous commerce between the United States and British North America has excited in Canada the desire of intercolonial trade on a principle of reciprocity, for which purpose that province made overtures to British Guiana which were accepted, but on which the Home Government put a negative. The plan, however, was strongly recommended by Sir William Colebrooke a gentleman of great and varied experience. Many years since he was Governor of Antigua; he was then promoted to the Governorship of New Brunswick, and afterwards removed in the same high capacity to the Windward Islands. In these posts he acquired an intimate knowledge of the requirements both of North America and the West Indies. We have before us his letter of the 11th September, 1855, dated Barbadoes. In which he shows the advantage which has accrued to Mauritius from finding a ready market for its sugar in Australia. In Mauritius the increase in the production of sugars as Sir William points out, has been considerable since the gold mines were discovered, it being estimated, prior to the discovery, at 200,000,000lb. (142,800 hogsheads), which was with an annual addition of 20,000,000lb. (or 13,280 hogsheads), which, he says, "could not have been attained, even with the aid of 100,000 coolies, without the stimulus derived from the profits of the Australian markets." But, notwithstanding this partial revival Mauritius, Sir William adds, "Unfortunately, in the present condition of the colonies, all classes are suffering to a degree which renders some measures of relief of the greatest urgency; for, exposed to the competition of the Spanish colonies, stimulated by the slave-trade, and at the same time subject to the highest pressure of the present high duties in the United Kingdom the reduction of profits has checked the employment of capital."



The present proposition of Canada is to effect an intercolonial treaty of trade with such of the West India Islands as may be disposed to reciprocate with her. To these islands she desires to send flour, butter, beef, pork, biscuit, fish, deals, staves, spars, shingles and planks, receiving in exchange sugar, coffee, molasses and similar produce. It is presumed that this trade would be one almost purely of barter, without the intervention of coin. Under the British Trade Regulations now existing, Canada is compelled to let her West India produce through the United States, for which she pays in cash; while the British West Indies are compelled to get their provisions from the United States for which they also pay in cash; and Sir William Colebrook states in the letter already quoted, that this money is employed by the Americans in the purchase of sugars at Cuba and Porto Rico, thereby extracting capital from the British Colonies to the encouragement of the slave trade, to which they are exposed in competition in the British as well as the American markets. He advocates the intercolonial plan proposed; and concludes his correspondence with this remark:—"I fully anticipate the command of the American markets would give a similar impulse to these colonies to that which the Mauritius has received from its proximity to Australia."

The letter of Sir William Colebrook was an answer to a circular forwarded to him by the late Sir William Molesworth, in which that lamented Colonial Minister, after observing that the sentiments of her Majesty's Government had been called to a proposal made for the mutual abolition of custom's duties upon the productions of Canada and the West India colonies, meets it with a negative on the following grounds:—"First, that it would separate commercially, so far as such an arrangement was involved, the colonies who entered into it from every other part of the Empire. Thirdly, that it would be inconsistent with the Imperial policy of Free-trade. Sir William Molesworth added that such policy as Canada and British Guiana contemplated tended to form the colonies into separate groups, with peculiar and exceptional commercial relations."

On the 26th June, 1855, the Lords of committee of Privy Council for Trade had opposed this intercolonial proposition, and referring, in their circular, to the treaty concluded between her Majesty's Government and the United States, providing for the mutual admission, duty free, into the United States and the North American provinces, of certain articles of their respective produce, stated that they had deviated, in this instance, from the fundamental rule of recent commercial policy from a political motive, though that motive is not mentioned.

Such is an instance of this varied correspondence, which we have culled from official sources. A question of delicacy and difficulty is involved. The days of colonial coercion are past and it is dangerous to check the spirit of conciliation. The West Indies are depressed, and the motto of Canada is "Forward," and if she sees an outlet for her trade which Imperial policy obstructs the bond of union may be weakened. Let us hope that the subject will receive the attention of Parliament.—Illustrated News.

☞ No paper will be discontinued until all arrears are paid up, except at the option of the Publisher.

THE MAPLE LEAF.

SANDWICH, MAY 30, 1856.

In last week's paper we noticed the vote upon the motion of want of confidence which gave a majority in favor of the Ministry, and just as we were going to press the report of the resignation reached us, which turned out to be quite true, and this week we are enabled to lay the particulars before our readers. The resignation of the Ministry after receiving a vote of confidence was a somewhat strange proceeding, when we find that nearly the same gentlemen, were brought into the new one again, looking as though certain of the old composition were determined to get rid of some of their friends. Well, the result shows pretty clearly what the intention was; for the worthy Premier Sir Allan was by the manoevering of John A. Macdonald the main spring of the new Ministry thrown overboard—he was in fact quite deserted and when he went into Parliament on Friday last to make such explanations as the House expected and had a right to expect at the hands of the old government, he was quite alone but soon as this was discovered by his old friends in office they sent a messenger to him, requesting that he would make no disclosures at that time, knowing right well that had Sir Allan been allowed to give such explanations as he desired, that their treachery would have been exposed, and they would have plainly received the disapprobation of the House in their conduct towards the Premier. What object Mr. Macdonald had in throwing overboard the gallant Knight we cannot tell, for it is well known that Sir Allan can command ten times the respect in the House, which Mr. Macdonald can, and when it is known that he was replaced by Mr. Vankughnet a perfectly new man, (of whose abilities we will not speak at present) it does not appear to us that the new coalition will possess more power or influence than the last, if as much. Although by the resuscitation of the Ministry we may say that two new Conservative members are added, but where is the use of calling in new ones and discarding old tired men who have been found true. It is a matter of regret that division exists among the Conservative portion of the government and to such an extent that men of the party are sacrificed to the petty jealousies of such men as Mr. Macdonald,

We will wait to see what the feelings of the House are towards the new Ministry, and if we can judge from the warm reception which Sir Allan received when addressing them on Friday last; even the opposition approving the manly and straightforward course he had taken, we may look for little sympathy for the new coalition.

Below are the new appointments taken from the Gazette Extra.

Appointments.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE,

Toronto, 24th May, 1856.

His Excellency the Governor General has been pleased to make the following appointments, viz.:

The Hon. George Etienne Cartier, to be Attorney General in and for that part of the Province of Canada formerly Lower Canada, in the room and stead of the Hon. Lewis T. Drummond, resigned.

The Hon. Joseph Curran Morrison, to be Receiver General of the Province of Canada, in the room stead of Etienne Paschal Taché resigned.

The Honorable Lee Terrill, Esq. to be a Member of the Executive Council for the Province of Canada.

Philip M. Vankoughnet, Esq. to be a Member of the Executive Council for the Province of Canada.

The Hon. Timothy Lee Terrill to be the Secretary and Registrar of the Province of Canada, in the room and stead of the Honorable George Etienne Cartier, resigned.

The Hon. Philip M. Vankoughtet, to be the President of the Executive Council of the Province of Canada, in the room and stead of the Hon. Sir Allan McNab, Knight, resigned.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.

On Saturday last, the anniversary of the birthday of our Most Gracious Sovereign, was celebrated with earnest loyalty and in a style befitting the occasion. Sandwich has always proudly boasted of possessing the greatest loyalty for the mother country, and on this occasion we were thankful to see with what enthusiasm every occasion was seized upon to show their attachment to England and Victoria our Queen of Queens. Reigning over, as she does, one of the greatest nations of the earth, proud, indeed, should we be of the opportunity which was afforded of rejoicing over the day which gave to the world a Queen such as she has proved to be; possessing all the virtues of a saint, and ruling over her mighty empire, upon which the sun never sets, with a stern justice which the wealthiest men in the kingdom feel equally with the most humble. Our streets had quite a gay appearance from an early hour, with the number of flags floating from the tops of houses and cords carried across the streets, holding the red flag of Britain. The different militia companies turned out well, and after going through various manœuvres and marching through the different streets, their respected Colonel (Askin) proposed three cheers for the Queen, which was responded to by the men with a hearty good will. In the evening, between seven and eight, a large party sat down to a sumptuous dinner provided by Mr. Dobson at the Western Hotel, and if we are to judge of the quality by the justice bestowed upon the viands, Mr. Dobson certainly will have the satisfaction of knowing that they were excellent; and they were. After the inner man had been well attended to through the attentive care of Mr. Dobson and the cloth had been removed, a number of loyal toasts were given, appropriate to the occasion, and drunk with the greatest enthusiasm.

We must not forget to say that the wines provided on the occasion were of the very best, and were distributed with no sparing hand either.

Mr. Baby occupied the chair, and Mr. Bullock the vice-chair.

The Queen was given from the chair, and drunk with the greatest enthusiasm and with a hearty three times three. Song, "God save the Queen."

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN.

God save our gracious Queen,
Long live our noble Queen,
God save the Queen.—
Send her victorious,
Happy and glorious,
Long to reign over us,
God save the Queen.—

O Lord our God arise,
Scatter her enemies
And make them fall;
Confound their Politics,
Frustrate their knavish tricks,
On her our hopes are fixed;
God save us all.

Thy choicest gifts in store
On her be pleased to pour;
Long may she reign.
May she defend our lives
And ever give us cause
To sing with heart and voice
God Save the Queen.

Prince Albert, from the vice-chairman; a bumper. Song, "British Grenadiers."

The Emperor of the French, England's Ally, from the chair. Song, "Partant pour la Syrie."

Prince of Algiers, from the vice-chair. Responded to by Mr. Scott, in an appropriate and loyal speech.

The Army and Navy, from the chair.—Song, "Rule Britannia."

RULE BRITANNIA.

When Britain first at Heaven's command
Arose from out the azure main,
This was the Charter of our land,
And guardian angels sang the strain,

Rule Britannia, Britannia rule the waves.
Britons never will be slaves.

The nations not so blest as thee
Shall in their turn to tyrants fall;
But thou shalt flourish great and free,
The dread and envy of them all.

Rule Britannia, &c., &c.,

Still more majestic shalt thou rise,
More dreadful from each foreign stroke,
As the rude blast that tears the skies,
Serves but to root thy native oak.

Rule Britannia, &c., &c.

The muses love thy rural reign,
Thy cities shall with commerce shine,
And time shall make the subject main.
And every shore its circles thine.

Rule Britannia, &c., &c.

Our Allies, from the chair.

The Governor General, from the vice-chair, with three times three.

The Day we Celebrate, from the chair. A bumper and three cheers.

Our Guests, from the vice-chair, and responded to by Mr. Scott as one of them.

The regular toasts having been got thro' with, a number of volunteer ones were proposed.

The Loyalists of Canada, by Mr. Pinney. Song, "Cheer, Boys, Cheer."

Canada, the brightest Gem of England's Colonies, by Mr. Henoell. Song, "To the West."

Our late Worthy Sheriff, by Mr. Bullock, responded to by Mr. Baby.

The Ladies, by Mr. A. Prince. Song—"The Merry Maids of England."

The Dismissed Magistrates, by Mr. Bullock. Song, "For they are Jolly Good Fellows." Mr. Woodbridge responded.

After the dinner there was quite a brilliant display of fire-works, and upon the whole there could not have been a more agreeable day spent than was in the good old town of Sandwich. Everything bore the marks of a grand holiday, the merchants having closed their shops, showing their determination to do all in their power to render the day a day of rejoicing.

GOVERNOR HINCKS.

From the Liverpool Albion we are glad to perceive that the measures of Mr. Hincks, whose appointment to the Government of the Windward Islands so credibly distinguished the brief rule at the Colonial Office of the late Sir William Molesworth, are giving great satisfaction to the inhabitants, and fully realizing the expectations that were raised by the conciliatory disposition, firmness of temper, and enlightened views which he displayed during his administration of affairs in Canada. Mr. Hincks has inaugurated his Government by giving a separate Legislative Council and Legislative Assembly to the Island of St. Vincent, and rejecting the plan of his predecessor, Sir William Colebrooke, for the union of the islands under his government—measures which have given unqualified satisfaction throughout the Windward group, the inhabitants being of the opinion expressed by Mr. Hincks, that except as regards common political and educational institutions, an uniform system of secondary punishments, and the establishment of a Circuit Court of appeal, there is nothing in which the islands would benefit by the union.

Society has come to a pretty pass when such advice as the following is given through the press of the United States. "Do we live in the nineteenth century or not? when men are particularly Senators, are obliged to carry pistols and bowie knives to protect themselves from the lawless ruffians who infest society. And is there no law to protect individuals without recourse to such means of defence in the great and enlightened Republic?

CARRY ARMS.—Mr. Sumner was attacked for the very reason that the coward Brooks well knew he carried no arms. Let every Northern man, who dares to stand by the faith which is in him, carry the means to protect himself hereafter.

MUNITIONS OF WAR FOR CANADA.—It is stated that notice has been given by the Lords of the Admiralty at Lloyd's, that vessels were required to convey 458 tons of powder and ball ammunitions to Quebec; 232 tons of powder and ammunitions, ball cartridges and live shells to Montreal.

The Canadian steamship North American on her last trip from Montreal, took 8,000 barrels of Flour to Liverpool, at two shillings cy per barrel.

From Saturday evening to Monday evening of last week upwards of fifty ships arrived at Quebec from sea. The number of vessels that sailed for Canadian ports during the month of April amounted to 266.

☞ Mr Henry Rowsell, Toronto, is agent in Western Canada for the "Canadian Naturalist and Geologist." Price 15s. a year in advance.

☞ We would refer to the Advertisement in another column of the steamer Gem, which is to run between this port and Detroit. It would be useless at present to say anything in her favor, for every person almost has seen her slipping through the water like a little fairy, and the accommodation which she affords as regards comfort and beauty of finish cannot be surpassed. Mr. Campbell her owner, and Captain Goodsel are determined to do every thing to make the route both convenient and agreeable to those who have occasion to go by. A more agreeable and healthy ride could not be chosen than a trip to Detroit in the afternoon to enjoy the cooling breeze from the river, upon this favorite little craft.

BATE'S TIRAGE AU SORT

This grand Lottery is postponed to the 26th day of June when it will certainly be drawn, a few more tickets for sale at this Office.

☞ A dinner was given, at Windsor, to Lieut. Henry Elliott, son of Major Elliott of that place, on his return from the Crimea, by his old school fellows. Francis Caron, Esq., head of the Municipal Corporation during the absence of Mr. Macdonnell, took the chair, having Lieut. Elliott on his right and the Sheriff of the County of Essex on his left. Isaac Askew acted as vice, being supported by Mr. Hirons one of the Windsor Councillors on his left, Mr. Wade of the Windsor Herald on his right. Several excellent speeches were made and some good songs sung.

Arrival of the Baltic.

New York, May 27.

The Baltic sailed from Liverpool shortly after 12 P.M. Wednesday, 4th inst., and brings London papers of that day as well as commercial reports to the close of business. She reached her dock about half past six this A.M.

The Africa arrived at Liverpool on the afternoon of Monday, 12th inst.

There is considerable news of interest by this arrival.

It is stated at Constantinople that a defensive alliance had been concluded at Teheran between Persia and the United States and that the text of it had arrived at Constantinople where it is kept very secret. A commercial treaty must be meant.

It is reported from Hamburg that an American squadron is expected soon to enter the Baltic.

On Friday the 9th inst. Russia, Sweden and Oldenburg signed a protocol at Copenhagen, offering to adopt the last proposition of Denmark for capitalization of the Sound Dues providing all other States interested do the same.

Russia is reported to have demanded explanations respecting the Joint treaty secretly concluded between France, England and Austria, guaranteeing the independence of Turkey. As the rumor has not affected the stock exchange, it cannot be considered dangerous.

Russia is about to commence another campaign under Gen. Mouravieff against the Circassians.

Considerable excitement yet reigns at Belgium on the subject of the attempt of France to coerce the press.

An ovation has been offered by the Belgian efforts to Count Villain for his express determination to uphold the liberty of the press.

A Paris correspondent, however, says that the French and Belgian governments have come to an understanding in the matter, that Belgium will take more active measures to prevent the publication of appeals to assassination, and France will take an early opportunity of expressing satisfaction therewith.

The affair of Italy continue to excite a large share of attention, Count Cavour has presented two important notes to the Sardinian chambers, which will be found in our columns.

The news of Gen. Walker's battle had attracted some attention in England.

The French Government is stated to have had vigilance particularly awakened towards the movements of secret societies which are becoming dangerous.

At a meeting of capitalists at the British Treasury office of the 13th inst., the Chancellor of the Exchequer stated that the proposed loan of five millions sterling, was calculated to cover the whole service of the year, except two million which he should propose to issue exchequer bonds; but the two millions would not be required until the end of the present year, or perhaps not until the first quarter of 1857.

FROM WASHINGTON.—Washington, May 21.—The Courier and Enquirer's correspondent telegraphs, "Mr. Crampton, and the Consuls are to be dismissed. The papers in the case will be ready to morrow and will be despatched on Wednesday.—Mr. Dallas will be instructed to inform the British Government that the President finds much satisfaction in the friendly assurance, but the principal objections to Mr. Crampton are too strong to be overcome. Mr. Dallas will be also instructed to state that Mr. Crampton's letters corroborate the testimony of the witnesses against him. It is expected that Mr. Dallas will be dismissed in retaliation. There are rumors that the British West India Squadron have orders to act against the fillibusters at San Juan as soon as Mr. Crampton is dismissed. Mr. Sumner is ill with fever to day. The House Committee took his testimony at his room. The Comm ttee, also took the testimony of Gov. German; the evidence of both corroborates the published accounts.

WASHINGTON NEWS.—Washington, May 25.—The Time's correspondent says the Hon. Mr. Pinney delivered a strong oration yesterday on the downward tendency of civilization at Washington. He referred to the three recent cases of ruffianism, and the fact that the perpetrators are now making our laws, as a fearful evidence of depravity, and urged it as the duty of the church to exert its influence for reform and that if its members not to associate with those who outraged the laws by violence. He said it was "a shame to countenance such vio'ence and if you are not ashamed of it you should be."

It is publicly stated that Dr. Pine declined an invitation to dine at the house of a distinguished Senator, because he was informed that Brooks was to be of the party.

Dr. Sunderland also delivered an eloquent sermon in the same strain, to which the President listened.

The Wash. Tribune correspondent says: "Mr. Crampton, the British Minister, will be dismissed to morrow; also, the Consuls who have been engaged in the Enlistment business.

News from Australia.

The colonial trading screw-steamer Helespont, arrived at Singapore March 19, with a large mail for Europe, consisting of twenty-eight boxes and several bags of letters from Melbourne and Adelaide. From which places news has been received to the middle of February.

Sydney papers to February 13 are chiefly taken up in discussing the elections under the new Constitution, which were then going forward. There was no other political news of importance. The markets looking up, and the general prospects of the Colony very satisfactory.

Intelligence has been received, via Portland Bay, of the total loss of the Aberdeen clipper Varoon, 800 tons, between Cape Otway Cumberland and Hicks Island. All on board must have perished—the vessel being literally smashed to pieces. Some bodies were found on the beach fearfully mangled by the violence of the wreck, and were decently buried by the inhabitants. The Varoon was from Manilla to Sidney, with a large cargo of rice and other produce for the use of the Colony. The papers also announce the loss of the American clipper Reindeer, belonging to Messrs. E. Gasset & Co., of Boston, which struck on an unknown rock outside Torres Straits and foundered. The crew suffered severely, being forty-two days in the boats, and when picked up by a ship and were so completely exhausted that on reaching Moreton Bay they had to be lifted out of the boats, not having strength to stand or walk.

Melbourne papers are to the 18th of Feb. Mr. Haines and Macarthur succeeded in forming a Ministry, and was consolidating the new Government to the satisfaction of the greater part of the colonists. His Excellency was gaining golden opinions by his prudent conduct and determination.

The yields in the gold fields were undiminished. From January 1 to February 15, 1856, there had been shipped 384,681 ozs. of gold, or 16 tons 2 qrs. 7 lbs. 9 oz, which at 80s, amounted to £1,538,724. The price of gold had advanced to £3 16s per ounce. There had been severe floods at the Bendigo diggings, doing much damage; the losses were estimated at 10,000 ounces. Some riots had taken place at the diggings, the diggers being desirous to obtain the Government reserves of land, on which to carry on their mining operations.

England and the United States.

Among the official papers presented to Parliament last night, is the reply of Lord Clarendon, on the part of the British Government to the letter of Mr. Marcy, dated 20th December last, in which he announced that Mr. Crampton had become an unacceptable representative of her Majesty at Washington, and requested his recall.

The Daily News comments upon the same as follows:

"The step which Mr. Crampton did was done openly and frankly. He announced to the cabinet at Washington, that the Queen's Government would be glad to receive recruits in Halifax, for a Foreign Legion, and for months and months he explained all his plans to Mr. Marcy—showed Mr. Marcy how Lord Clarendon's instructions on no account to run any risk of infringing the laws of the United States.

"He remained in the most confidential communication with Mr. Marcy on the subject, and as soon as it became apparent that the United States government were averse to the scheme, it was abandoned, and the depot at Halifax was broken up. To ask under such circumstances, for the recall of Mr. Crampton, is really to invite the English cabinet to disgrace itself for the amusement and gratification of the government at Washington, and we confidently trust that the good sense of the American people will see the matter in this light."

More Government Patronage.

Not content with the enormous patronage they already possess, the Government introduced a set of resolutions last week and carried them too, to vest in them the power of fixing the salaries of the County Court Judges within the wide limit of £250 and £650. If there is any class of men that should be thoroughly independent of all political parties and Governments, that class is the Judges of the land. The power given to Government of raising at their will the salary of any County Court Judge, is a very dangerous one, and one calculated to destroy the independence of the Bench. The judges of our country are mortal like other men, and a very strong inducement is here held out for their becoming active partizans of the Government of the day, as the surest and most expeditious way of getting an advance of salary.

We are by no means averse to increasing the salaries of County Court Judges, it is to the mode of doing so that we are opposed. A liberal salary should be paid to induce men of eminent ability to take the onerous and highly honorable position of a Judge of a County Court. Let their salaries, as far as can be, be fixed by Statute; and if under this mode any special case of hardship may arise, let it be submitted to Parliament, and decided upon by the people's representatives. An amendment to this effect was lost on a division of 28 to 52; these Pseudo Reformers Conger, Cook, Daly, Mathieson, the Smiths and Morrisons voted with the Ministry as usual, for increasing their patronage by placing the judiciary under their influence and control. The patronage of the Government will soon become so enormous that the people will demand as a remedy a WRITTEN CONSTITUTION.—Dundas Tribune.

The New York Tribune gives the following detail of the way in which the news of the reception of Walker was received in Congress, and of the results the reception is likely to have:—

"The day has been lively in Congress.—In the Senate the Message of the President, explanatory of his recognition of the Walker Government, was read. Mr. Crittenden, true to his instincts and to those manly qualities which mark his character, promptly rose and condemned the action of the Administration. He censured the recognition of the fillibuster chief as an important step toward provoking a war with powers on this as well as the other Continent. He spoke the sentiments of a very important branch of the dominant party, and, indeed, of several members of the Cabinet itself. It is perfectly well understood that the opposition to this measure is wide and deep-seated in the ranks of the party in power, and that, if things come to any extremity in consequence of the proceedings of the Administration, serious embarrassment most ensue. The reception of the new Minister at this particular juncture is looked upon in fact as almost a war measure, backing, as it does, at a critical moment in its fortunes, a purely fillibustering movement looking directly toward consummating the Ostend Conference suggestions, which so offended both France and Spain at the time it took place. It is clear that the fillibusters who are after Cuba are acting under the wing of Walker, and are sustaining him in order to accomplish more surely and effectually their ulterior aims and purposes in regard to that island. The raid to Cuba lies through Nicaragua. This fact is perfectly well understood both by France and Spain, and it is believed in high quarters that thus in anticipation of some such action has this recognition of Walker, that the recent premeditated insult was offered by the French War Department to our military officers sent to the Crimea. The debate which as begun in the Senate so pungently we may expect will continue with increasing interest. The Administration will be glad of this, for anything that takes off public attention from the infamous proceedings in Kansas is most welcome to the authors of the deep agitation that now pervades the country in regard to that Territory."—Galt Reporter.

MR. THACKERAY.—To save himself from the distressing attention of our lionhunters, Mr. Thackeray quietly slipped off in the Baltic without letting anybody know he was going. The poor man, who enjoys a dinner as well as anybody; and is grafter fond of smoking and small talk, was almost bored to death by the attention of our lionhunters while he was here.—He had no opportunity of spending a quiet hour by himself; he was breakfasted, dinnered, supperd, and balled, to within an inch of his life, and by a set of people too, who had never read his books, and knew nothing more about him than that he was an immense lion whom everybody was running after, and stroking his mane. They did not like the king in the fable, draw out his teeth and cut off his claws, and he may, and probably will, bite some and scratch the insolent people who have been running after him. He will write a book about America, for it is not possible for a man with his satirical habit of observation, his keen insight into character, and fondness for depicting manners, to go through with his experience in a country, and make no record of them.—He reflects the objects that pass him by like a mirror, and, let him try ever so hard not to do it, he will not be able to restrain himself. He will certainly serve up the people of this country in some shape or other, and as we are now pretty used to skimming, we hope he will. It is said that he carried away with him about fifteen thousand dollars, as the proceeds of his four lectures on the Four Georges; and considering what he had to go through with, he was entitled to it. Mr. Collins very generously gave him a state-room, as a compliment, in the Baltic. —Sunday Cour.

The owner of one of the princely palaces on Bleecker street, New York, some time ago leased it for two thousand dollars a year. The tenant failed, and his surety waited the owner to assume possession of the premises, which he refused to do—whereupon the surety opened a fashionable negro boarding house in the premises, stuck up a sign of "Colored People's Hall," established a restaurant, for the colored population—and has balls thrice a week for the "upper ten" of sabledom. From these he is realizing a thousand dollars a year above rent and other expenses, and in his turn refuses the offer of the owner to take the premises off his hands. He won't pay rent until summoned before a court, when he appears just as a warrant of ejectment is about to be issued. The owner has tried to get the house indicted, but the neighbors wont complain of it as a disorderly house; they rather enjoy the fun, and many of them pay their twenty-five cents to see high life among the colored gentry.

It Made Him Feel Independent.

A man named Porter says he once had a clerical friend, between whom and himself there existed great intimacy.

Every Saturday night, as Porter was sitting balancing his cash, a note would come requesting "the loan of a five dollar bill" The money was always returned punctually at 8 o'clock on the following Monday morning. But what puzzled the lender was, the pason always returned the very identical note he borrowed! Since he had discovered this fact, he had made private marks on the note; still the same one was handed back on Monday morning.—The Saturday evening Porter sent a five dollar gold piece, instead of a note, and marked it. Still the very same coin was returned on Monday. Porter got nervous and billious about it; he could not sleep at night for thinking of it, he would awake his wife in the middle of the night and ask her what she thought of such a strange occurrence. He was fast boiling over with curiosity, when a note came from the reverend borrower, one Christmas eve, asking for the loan of ten dollars. A brilliant thought struck our friend, he put on his great coat and resolving to call and demand an explanation of the mystery.

When he was shown into his friend's study, he found him plunged in the deepest melancholy.

"Mr.——," said our friend, 'if you will answer me one question, I will let you have the ten dollars. How does it happen that you always repay me the money you borrow on Saturday night in the very same coin or note on Monday morning?'

The parson raised his head, and after a violent struggle, as though he was about to unveil the hoarded mystery of his soul, said in faltering tones, 'Porter, you are a gentleman—a scholar—a Christian and a New Yorker—I know I can rely on your inviolable secrecy—listen to the secret of my eloquence. You know that I am poor, and when I have bought my Sunday dinner, I have seldom a red cent left in my pocket. Now, I maintain that no man can preach the gospel and blow up his congregation properly, without he has got something in his pocket, to inspire him with confidence. I have, therefore, borrowed five dollars of you every Saturday, that I might feel it occasionally as I preached on Sunday. You know how independently I do preach—how I make the rich shake in their shoes; well, it is all owing to my knowing that I have a five dollar bill in my pocket! Of course, never having to use it for any other purpose, it is not changed, but invariably returned to you the next morning. Now, Mr. George Law is coming to hear me preach to-morrow, and I thought I would try the effect of a ten dollar sermon on him!'

SANDWICH MARKET.

"Maple Leaf" Office, May 29th 1856
Flour Best warranted,	$ 7 00	$ 7 50
" 2nd quality	5 00	5 50
Buckwheat Flour,	2 00	0 00
Rye "	2 00	2 50
Timothy Seed,		4 00
Clover,		10 00
Corn Meal per 100	1 50	2 00
Corn per bushel, 56lbs.	0 51	0 00
Oats " do 34lbs.	0 37½	0 00
Potatoes do	0 37	0 00
Wheat do 60lbs,	1 00	1 25
Barley do 48lbs,	0 75	0 00
Hay per Ton	10 00	12 00
Straw per load	1 50	2 00
Wood per cord (Hard)	2 00	2 25
do Mixed	1 50	0 00
Pork per 100lbs.	7 00	0 00
Beef " "	7 00	0 00

DETROIT MARKET.

Flour.—$5.25.
Wheat.—$1.
Corn.—47c for small lots.
Oats.—36 @ 37½ cts.
Cheese.—best quality 15 cts.
Eggs.—12 cts. ₱ doz.

DIVISION COURTS FOR ESSEX.

1st. Sandwich, 12th July, 1856.
2nd. Amherstburg, 12th June.
3rd Kingsville, 16th June.
4th. Colchester, 14th June,
5th. Mersea, 18th June.
6th. Simon's, Middle Road, 17th July.

THE FAVORITE STEAMER

GEM

Will run as a FERRY BOAT between SANDWICH and DETROIT daily, between the hours of 9, a.m. and 6, p.m.

Detroit, May 28th, 1856.

New Spring Goods.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK beg leave to notify their Customers, that they have received a portion of their

SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, which they are determined to sell very low for cash, in fact, ten per cent lower than the same kind of Goods were ever sold before in this neighborhood. But for Credit, the will be kept up, and the utmost time given will be three and six months, and only to those who have paid their accounts regularly when called upon.

OLD PRICES

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

Sandwich, May 23rd, 1856.

Michigan Central Railroad Co.

NORTH 1856 SHORE

LINE OF STEAMBOATS.

DETROIT AND BUFFALO.

THE NEW MAGNIFICENT

STEAMER MISSISSIPPI.

HAS been added to this line, and it will commence running immediately on the opening of navigation, as follows:

WESTERN WORLD,
J. H. BARKER, Commander.
Will leave Buffalo, Mondays and Thursdays
" " Detroit, Wednesdays & Saturdays

PLYMOUTH ROCK,
P. J. RALPH, Commander.
Will leave Buffalo, Tuesdays and Fridays.
" " Detroit, Mondays and Thursdays

MISSISSIPPI,
S. G. LANGLEY, Commander.
Leaves Buffalo, Wednesdays and Saturdays
" Detroit Tuesdays and Fridays.

These steamers are all new, of the largest class, being about two thousand tons each, commanded and officered throughout by men of large experience and capability, and fitted up and furnished for the convenience of passengers in a style of comfort and luxury, entirely unequalled, and are in all respects considered the most desirable steamers that float upon the waters of the United States.

For the transportation of freight, the line will surpass anything ever before offered to the public, having arrangements with parties between New York and Boston, and all points west of Buffalo to St. Louis, which will enable them to forward merchandise with greater despatch than has ever yet been attained.

Shippers of merchandise from the East, should mark packages to the care of C. I.. Seymour, Buffalo; merchandize from the West should be to the care of JOHN HOSMER, agent, Detroit.

C. B. SWAIN, Agent.

Detroit, January, 1856.

STEAM COMMUNICATION

BETWEEN

Liverpool and Canada.

Under Contract with the Provincial Government of Canada,

FOR THE CONVEYANCE OF MAILS

THE MONTREAL OCEAN STEAMship Company's First Class powerful Screw Steamships,

NORTH AMERICAN,
ANGLO SAXON,
INDIAN,
CANADIAN,
SARDINIAN,

Scheme of sailing of the Montreal Ocean Steamship Company's vessels, for 1856.

From Liverpool to Montreal.	From Quebec to Liverpool.
Wednesday April 23	Saturday, May 24
do May 7	do June 7
do May 21	do June 21
do June 4	do July 5
do June 18	do July 19
do July 3	do Aug. 2
do July 16	do Aug. 16
do July 30	do Aug. 30
do Aug. 13	do Sept. 13
do Aug. 27	do Sept. 27
do Sept. 10	do Oct. 11
do Sept. 24	do Oct. 25
do Oct. 8	do Nov. 8
do Oct. 22	do Nov. 22

From Liverpool to Portland.	From Portland to Liverpool
Wednesday, Nov. 26	Saturday, Dec. 27
do Dec. 24	do Jan 24, 1857
do Jan 28, 1857	do Feb 28, "
do Feb 25, "	do Mar 27, "
do Mar 25, "	do April 24, "

First Class, 80 or £20 0 0 currency.
Second Class, 60 or 15 0 0 do
Third Class, 30 or 7 10 0 do
Children under 12 years half price. Infants under one year free. All classes furnished with cooked provisions. Third class find their own bed and bedding.

For terms of freight or passage apply to

EDMONSTONE, ALLAN & Co., Montreal.
GEO. BURNS, SYMES & Co., Quebec.
JOHN GLASS, Ontario Hall, Toronto.
JAMES & ALEX. ALLAN, } Glasgow
ALLAN & GILLESPIE, } Liverpool
MONTGOMERY & GREENHORNE, London.

AUCTION SALE

OF HORSES AND CATTLE.

WILL be sold on FRIDAY, the 6th JUNE next and following day, at STUTTZ'S HOTEL, in the Town of SANDWICH, C. W., a number of

Horses Colts Cows Sheep

A NEW DOUBLE CARRIAGE, ALL NEW

Buggies! Harness

and a great variety of other articles, which will be sold without reserve.

A number of the horses are superior for Carriage other purposes. Two thoroughbred Colts and a number of Brood Mares, together with a few BLOOD CATTLE.

Parties will be permitted to enter Cattle and Stock for Sale, by application to the undersigned the day previous to sale.

TERMS:

$20 and under, cash; from 20 to $40, three months, and all over $40, six months' credit, with approved joint notes. No property can be removed from the ground until settled for.

Full particulars may be obtained upon application to J. H. WILKINSON, Sandwich, or

P. H. MORIN, Auctioneer.

Sandwich, 23rd May, 1856.

FOR SALE.

PART of Lot No. 4, on the East side of Pajot Street, and fronting upon the Huron Church Line, upon the PAJOT FARM in the Town of Sandwich, containing nearly half an acre.

There are a few choice FRUIT TREES upon this Lot, and a more suitable place for a residence could not be found.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Apply to

STANISLAS LASALIN,

Sandwich, May 20th, 1856.

THE QUESTION

IS NOW

SETTLED

WHERE THE CHEAPEST

GOODS

CAN BE BOUGHT

IT IS AT

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE.

Which has obtained universal

SUCCESS

The Proprietor offers for sale, at a small advance from the original cost,

A LARGE

STOCK

OF

DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, HARDWARE,

CROCKERY, READY-MADE

CLOTHING,

Boots and Shoes

AND A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF

MILLINERY AND DRESS

TRIMMINGS, BONNETS

In great varieties,

JUST OPEN AND FOR SALE CHEAP FOR CASH

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE.

L. P. ST. AMOUR

THE SAFEST AND MOST VALUABLE SCHEME EVER OFFERED TO THE PUBLIC.

BATES'

TIRAGE AU SORT,

VALUE $61,000!

Tickets Five Dollars Each.

A Prize to every 20th Ticket!

DRAWING TO TAKE PLACE AT

Brockville, C. W., on the 28th Inst.

TOTAL SUMMARY OF PRIZES.

1	Prize of £3,125	0 is	£3,125	0
1	do 1,027	10 is	1,027	10
1	do 1,025	0 is	1,025	0
1	do 900	0 is	900	0
1	do 850	0 is	850	0
1	do 625	0 is	625	0
1	do 350	0 is	350	0
1	do 212	10 is	212	10
1	do 187	10 is	187	10
1	do 125	0 is	125	0
1	do 100	0 is	100	0
1	do 82	10 is	82	10
1	do 67	10 is	67	10
2	do 65	0 is	130	0
1	do 60	0 is	60	0
2	do 55	0 is	110	0
4	do 50	0 is	200	0
2	do 45	0 is	90	0
1	do 40	0 is	40	0
27	do 37	10 is	1,012	10
10	do 35	0 is	350	0
3	do 32	10 is	97	10
13	do 30	0 is	390	0
4	do 27	10 is	110	10
42	do 25	0 is	1,050	0
2	do 22	10 is	45	0
21	do 20	0 is	420	0
22	do 17	10 is	385	0
20	do 15	0 is	300	0
44	do 12	10 is	550	0
48	do 10	0 is	480	0
11	do 8	0 is	88	0
87	do 7	10 is	652	10
20	do 6	5 is	125
2	do 6	0 is	12	0
51	do 5	0 is	255	0
60	do 3	10 is	210	0
128	do 1	5 is	160	0
640	Prizes.		Value, £16,000	0

The Property proposed in this Scheme forms part of the most valuable property in Canada West, well adapted for Mill Sites, Farm Lots and Residences; the titles to the property are indisputable.

The drawing will take place under the superintendence of a Committee of Gentlemen of the highest respectability, character and standing in society, who will see that everything connected with this drawing is fairly and honestly attended to, and no person need fear but that his rights will be honourably and justly looked after by them.

The plans of the property, and all information thereof, and Tickets, can be had by applying to the Agents,

JOSIAH BRAY,
Hamilton.
JOHN McINTOSH,
Ancaster.

The following gentlemen, of the city have allowed their names to be mentioned as Referees, regarding the character and standing of the parties connected with the above scheme:

Thos. Lee, Esq., Bank of Montreal.
A. Stuart, Esq., Clerk of the Crown, &c.
C. Freeland, Esq., Commission Merch't
W. Legge, Esq., Barrister.
J. Stewart, Esq., M'Nab st. Foundry
Hamilton, April, 1856.

FOR SALE.

THAT beautiful Cottage and about half an acre of ground, in the Town of Sandwich, being part of Lot No. 1, on the East side of Bedford street. This cottage is well adapted for a gentleman's residence, having excellent stables and coach house attached, and a few choice fruit trees are also upon the lot.

Terms easy, and will be made known by application to Mr. William Cowan, Sandwich, or Mr. Miles Cowan, Windsor.

MARY HALL.

Sandwich, 13th May, 1856.

Canada Western Assurance

COMPANY.

Chartered by Act of Parliament.

Capital £100, 000.

In Shares of £10 each.

HOME OFFICE,

TORONTO.

President: J. C. Gilmor, Esq.
Vice-President: T. Hawkins, Esq.
Secretary & Treasurer: R. Stanton, Esq.
Solicitor: A. Morrison, Esq.

DIRECTORS.

John Howatt, Esq., George Michie, Esq., Rice Lewis, Esq., W. Henderson, Esq., M. P. Hayes, Esq., Hugh Miller, Esq., James Beaty, Esq.

Application for Fire Risks received at the Home Office, Toronto, on Wellington Street, opposite the Commercial Bank.

OFFICE HOURS, 10 A. M. TO 3 P. M.

Marine Risks Taken.

ISAAC C. GILMOR,
President.

ROBERT STANTON,
Secretary & Treasurer.

JOHN McCRAE, Agent at Windsor.

Equitable Fire Insurance Compny

OF LONDON.

CAPITAL, £5,000,000 STERLING.

DIRECTORS.

Archibald C. Barclay, Esq., Chairman.
Hugh Croft, Esq. Charles Bonnett, Esq.
John Shaw, Esq. E. S. Symes, Esq.
John Moss, Esq. R. Gough, Esq.
Augustus Vinay, Esq Charles Gerard, Esq.
Clement Tabor, Esq. F. Morris, Esq.

ACTUARY.

W. S. B. Wolhouse, Esq., F.R.A.S., &c.

SECRETARY.

W. H. CRISTIAN, Esq.

LOCAL DIRECTORS AT MONTREAL.—Office, 17, Great St. James Street.

Wm. Lunn, Esq. Hon. W. Morris.
John Torrance, Esq. J. G. Mackenzie, Esq
J Fetherstonhaugh, Esq R. R. Fabre, Esq.
A. LaRoche, Esq. A. T. Galt, Esq.
Benj. Holmes, Esq. T. Hart, Esq.

GENERAL AGENT B.N.A. COLONIES,
Charles F. Elliston.

JOHN McCRAE,
Agent for Windsor and vicinity.

DISSOLUTION.

THE COPARTNERSHIP heretofore existing between the undersigned, under the name and style of Hunt, St. Louis and Co., is this day dissolved by mutual consent. The business of the late firm will be settled by C. H. and D. St. Louis.

WM. HUNT.
C. H. ST LOUIS.
D. ST. LOUIS.

Sandwich, 1st March, 1856.

COPARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

THE Undersigned have this day formed a Co-Partnership under the name and style of C. H. and D. ST. LOUIS, for the purpose of doing business in the Retail Dry Goods, Grocery, Provision, Produce and General Merchandize line, as successors to Hunt, St. Louis & Co., at the Old Stand, opposite the Court House in the Town of Sandwich.

C. H. ST. LOUIS.
D. ST. LOUIS.

Sandwich, 1st March, 1856.

In connection with the above C. H. and D. St. Louis would inform the Inhabitants of Sandwich, its vicinity, and their customers generally that they have received this day, via Great Western Railway, a well-assorted stock of Merchandize in the line which they will dispose of on liberal terms for cash or Produce.

Sandwich, 8th May, 1856.

HIDES WANTED.

ANY Quantity of Hides will be taken in for the Sandwich Tannery at either of the Saddler's Shops in Sandwich or Windsor, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

JAS. WOODBRIDGE.

NOTICE! NOTICE!!

THE SANDWICH MILLINERY AND DRESS MAKING Establishment will be reopened for the season.

The Proprietor having just returned from the Eastern Cities with a Large Stock of Millinery and Dress Goods of the latest style and fashion, which he offers for sale at a small advance from their original Cost.

NO. 1 CHEAP HOUSE
L. P. ST. AMOUR.

sandwich, Feb 29th, 1856.

AUCTION.

WILL be sold without reserve, by Public Auction, at the store of Mr. William G. Duff, commencing on the 20th instant, and on the following days until all his large Stock, consisting of

DryGoods, Crockery & Hardware

is all disposed of.

Terms of Sale:—All sums under £5, cash; £5 to £10, three months; £10 to £20, six months; £20 and upwards, nine months' credit, with approved notes.

LAFFERTY & JONES, Auctioneers.

Amherstburg, 13th May, 1856.

All orders left with the undersigned, will be punctually attended to, and on the most liberal terms.

LAFFERTY & JONES

NOTICE.

ON the 22nd inst., I lost a note of hand for two hundred dollars, drawn by S. Lasaline, and payable to Patrick N. Pajot, or bearer on demand, this is to forbid any person purchasing said Note of hand as the same has been already paid.

N. B.—Any person finding it will oblige the undersigned by handing the same to him.

P. N. PAJOT.

Sandwich, 23rd May 1856.

GUILLOT'S COLUMN.

FOR JUNE, 1856.

NEW

SPRING GOODS

JUST OPENED AT

GUILLOT'S STORE

PER

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

WHICH HE NOW OFFERS AT THE LOWEST REMUNERATING PROFIT, FOR

CASH.

PRINTS, in Variety,

PRINTED LAWNS & MUSLINS,

SILKS, SILK PARASOLS,

BLEACHED AND UNBLEACHED

COTTONS & SHEETING

HOSIERY, GLOVES,

CLOTHING,

COATINGS, TWEEDS,

TROWSERINGS,

LINENS

DRILLS,

KOSSUTH HATS,

COTTON WARP,

BOOTS AND SHOES,

TICKINGS,

GINGHAMS,

CARPETING,

SHAWLS, &c., &c.

TOGETHER

WITH A GOOD ASSORTMENT OF

GROCERIES. CROCKERY,

SHELF HARDWARE, NAILS

ALSO,

THE XL FLOUR,

KEPT ON HAND FOR SALE

AT CURRENT PRICES.

CLOVER AND TIMOTHY

SEED.

H. C. GUILLOT,

SANDWICH, CANADA WEST.

Family Store

THE Subscriber keeps constantly on hand a large and well selected assortment of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware and Crockery,

at his old stand on Bedford Street, which he will sell, at a small advance upon cost, for Cash.

A large supply of the very best Flour always on hand.

Produce and Cord Wood bought and sold.

JOSEPH MILLER.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

New Harness and Saddlery Establishment.

A. C. ELLIS.

Every description of LIGHT and FANCY BUGGY HARNESS, made in the most fashionable styles.

HEAVY HARNESSES constantly on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.

SADDLES of every description made to order on the shortest notice.

CARRIAGE and BUGGY TRIMMING done in a style not to be surpassed.

A large assortment of WHIPS always kept on hands.

In his Store, adjoining Mr Guillot's, will be found every description of Goods in his line of business. Every endeavor will be made to give entire satisfaction to his Customers.

N.B.—Cord Wood, Hides, and Produce wanted, for which the highest price will be given.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

NOTICE.

TO ALL IT MAY CONCERN.

ALL persons owing the subscriber are hereby notified that payment must be made on or before the 15th day of April next if they wish to save the costs of collection.

TO RENT.

The House and Premises in which the subscriber lives. Terms $24 per quarter payable in advance. Possession given on the first of May next.

GEORGE HANN.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

WILD LANDS FOR SALE.

LOT No. Four, in the 4th Concession, Gosfield.

J. H. WILKINSON.

Sandwich, 29th February, 1856.

FOR SALE.

(ON TIME.)

AN Eighteen-Horse Power Engine and Boiler complete. Apply to

GEO. BULLOCK.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

Beacon

FIRE & LIFE INSURANCE CO of London.

Incorporated under Act of Imperial Parliament, 7 and 8 Vic., Chap. 1.

CANADA BOARD.

KINGSTON.

TRUSTEES.

The Hon. Archd. Macdonald.
James Morton, Esquire.

DIRECTORS:

M. W. Strange, Esq., Chairman,
Thos. A. Corbett, Esq., Deputy Chairman,
James Morton, Esq. John Mowatt, Esq
James Harty, Esq. A. J Macdonell, Esq.
Lewis Walbridge, Esq. T. Clarkson, Esq.

MONTREAL.

Wm. Molson, Esq. Thomas Evans, Esq
Damase Masson, Esquire,

This Company Insures all descriptions of BUILDINGS, MANUFACTORIES, MILLS, &c. and GOODS or FURNITURE in the same, against loss or damage by fire, on liberal terms. All descriptions of LIFE RISKS, taken at as low rates as are consistent with security to the assured. Losses promptly settled without reference to England.

ALEX. GORDON,
Agent at Windsor for Western Frontier
March 7, 1856.

LOTS FOR SALE IN THE TOWN OF SANDWICH.

PART of Lot No. 3 on the west side of Bedford Street, with a good Store thereon. Also, Lots 7 and 8, adjoining the residence of L. J. Fluett, Esquire, with dwelling house and stables. These Lots will be sold subject to incumbrances.

For particulars apply to

J. H. WILKINSON,
Att'y for J. A. Vervais.

Sandwich, 29th Feb, 1856.

TO LET OR FOR SALE.

A Brick House and Lot, on No. 4, East side of Main Street, fronting "Mears' Hotel." The above property will be leased for $150 a year; or, for particulars of sale apply to

STANISLAUS LASALINE.

Sandwich, 20th March, 1856.

Sandwich and Windsor Stage.

BY JOHN LEWIS.

THE Proprietor of this popular line has added a new Stage and first-rate horses, and will hereafter run an Hourly Stage to Windsor with speed and punctuality. He hopes to merit the patronage of the public.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

New Tailoring ESTABLISHMENT.

THE Subscriber begs leave to notify the Public that he will carry on business in the building lately occupied by T. Murphy, opposite the Hennell Hotel, where he intends to carry on the Tailoring Business in all its branches, and hopes by strict attention to business, to merit a share of patronage.

N. B.—He will receive the Report of Fashion monthly.

Cutting done to order.

W. T. BASSANDALE.

Sandwich, Feb. 29, 1856.

Agriculture and Science.

Professor Buckland's Agricultural Tours.

(For the Agriculturist.)

The Board of Agriculture having expressed to me their opinion of the desirableness of my visiting the country, and giving lectures to Societies with a view of improving those organisations and of diffusing, as widely as possible, scientific and practical agricultural knowledge, it is my intention for the future to devote what time I can spare to this object, and I propose giving in the Agriculturist, from time to time, a brief sketch of the more interesting and suggestive matters that may come under my observation. Hitherto my personal attendance has been so constantly required on the grounds, that I have found it quite impracticable to visit the more distant parts of the country.

In October last, immediately after the Provincial Exhibition, I attended by appointment the Shows of the Agricultural Societies of the Counties of Kent, Essex, and Lambton, and consequently reported to the Board thereon. A few words in reference to this journey may not be unacceptable to many readers of this Journal.

The annual Exhibition of the Kent Society was held in Chatham, October 20th. The day was delightfully fine for the season, and there was a larger display both of materials and visitors than usual. The Society has a most convenient piece of ground close to the town, granted some years since by the Government. The show of grains, dairy products, fruit, and ladies' work, was highly creditable, as was also the Live Stock, in each department of which there were several excellent specimens. The dinner took place in the evening, in the Town Hall; about 150 persons attended, and the whole proceedings went off in the best spirit. I had a good opportunity of speaking on matters pertaining to Agricultural Education, and the improvement of Agricultural Societies. The advancement of Chatham and the surrounding country since I was there before, seven or eight years ago, has been very great.

The Exhibition of the County of Essex Society was held in Sandwich, and the weather proved most unfavorable. Notwithstanding, there was not a bad collection of materials, usually composing such exhibitions. Some of the cattle were good specimens, but the pure breeds seemed scarce.—The horses in this part of the country are generally too small for effectually working the heavy soils which predominate; they have more or less of French blood, and are bred extensively on the wet plains at a comparatively small cost. In the afternoon I addressed the members of the Society and others in the Court-house.

In consequence of the unusual inclement state of the weather, the Show of the County of Lambton Society, held at Port Sarnia was expected to prove a failure; it was, nevertheless, a good one. In live stock, although there were many specimens above mediocrity, the room for improvement is great, as is also, I was happy to observe, the desire. The grain and roots were mostly of excellent quality, and a more creditable display of butter is seldom to be seen even in older districts. In the evening I addressed the members on some of the more important topics in relation to agricultural improvement, and spent an agreeable hour afterwards in an interchange of views and suggestions relative thereto.

I was struck with the abundance of pasture to be seen almost every where throughout these Counties; indicating the natural fertility of the soil, and its happy adaptation to grazing purposes. The great thing needed is effective drainage, which in some parts would require conducting on a large scale. With this purely practicable object accomplished, this section would not be excelled for all the purposes of modern husbandry by any other in the Province.

I may state further, that I felt gratified with my visit to these Western Counties, not merely by signs of physical advancement which are everywhere apparent, but likewise by the manifestation of what may be correctly designated as the true British-Canadian spirit and loyalty of the people.

I attended, in February, the annual meeting of the County of Peel Agricultural Society, held in Brampton, and lectured in the Town-hall in the afternoon. This Society is progressing, and the improved breeds of cattle, horses, sheep, and swine are fast finding their way into this fine County. I had much interesting conversation with many of the farmers, and from the very scanty means of making observations in winter, I was led to form a very favourable opinion of the agricultural capabilities of the County of Peel.

I have since attended a soiree of a Literary and Machanics' Association, recently established at Aurora, a rapidly thriving village on the Northern Railway. The attendance was numerous, and the proceedings very interesting, affording me an opportunity of urging the importance and means of agricultural education and progress. Next evening I addressed a respectable audience, consisting in measure of farmers at Newmarket. This part of the country was early settled; many of the fields are free from stumps, and the farms have often a neat and more finished appearance. The surface is beautifully undulating, making drainage in most cases easy, and the general appearance picturesque. Captain Beresford's residence has quite an English appearance, and I observed in his yards several specimens of well-bred cattle, sheep, and swine; some of the former consisting of pure Durhams. The Captain is a rather extensive grower of Swedish turnips, which he feeds liberally to his stock, I visited Paris for a few days, and lectured before the Mechanics' Institute of that town, to a large and most respectable audience, on the relations of science to practical agriculture. The bad state of the roads prevented many farmers at a distance from attending. I was glad to meet here, as I had on a previous occasion at Aurora, several clergymen of different denominations, who were evidently desirous of promoting the welfare of their valuable institutions. I enjoyed the hospitality of David Buchan and Henry Mogh, Esqrs., and the Messrs. Allchin kindly conducted me to see the characteristic features and features and improvements of the place.—Since my former visit to Paris, some half a dozen years since, great changes and improvements have been effected; and few places, probably, are destined to reap so fully the advantages conferred by railways. Paris has unrivalled water power; what with the Grand River, and its tributaries, now so extensively improved by art, it is surely and steadily progressing in manufactures and commerce. Speculative excitement appears not to have attained to that hazardous note of intensity here as in some other places; a more healthy and enduring, if somewhat slower prosperity, has in consequence obtained. Surrounded by so pleasant and superior agricultural country, and with such great natural advantages, Paris holds out many great and substantial advantages, which can be procured on moderate terms by the mechanic, manufacturer, or trader.

GEO. BUCKLAND.

Board of Agriculture, Toronto, April 1856.

MORE GOOD NEWS

FOR THE PEOPLE OF

SANDWICH

AND ITS

VICINITY.

L. P. St. Amour

Begs leave to inform the Public, that he has returned from the

EASTERN MARKETS,

where he has purchased an extensive Stock of Goods of the latest and newest Styles, and will sell them at such prices as cannot but suit his numerous Customers

L. P. St. Amour is now opening, and will continue to open for the next month, a great variety of Goods.

No. 1, CHEAP HOUSE.

FARM FOR SALE.

NO. 293, on Sandwich Street, Maidstone Cross, consisting of 48 acres, 35 acres cleared and under fence, a good Dwelling House and two good Barns. The property is situated at the corner of the Plank and Stage Roads.

The purchaser can be supplied with every requisite implemeht for agricultural purposes, which are now on the Farm.

Apply on the Farm to
April 18, '56: JOHN GEARY.

BARTLEY AND PINNEY,

PROVINCIAL LAND SURVEYORS, CIVIL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS, DRAUGHTSMEN AND ARCHITECTS.

MAPS AND PLANS drawn in the first style. Estimates, Specifications, &c., of all kinds prepared at short notice. All work entrusted to us shall be executed with punctuality and despatch.

Offices in Sandwich and Windsor.

O. BARTLEY. C. PINNEY.
March 28, 1856. n51y

SHERIFF'S SALE.

COUNTY OF ESSEX to wit; } By virtue of a writ of fieri facias issued out of Court of Common Pleas at Toronto, to me directed, against the lands and tenements of Alfred Baby at the suit of James Olwell and Mathew Olwell, I have seized and taken in execution the following lands viz: water lot number three on the East, water lots numbers three, four, and fourteen on the west, and land and water lots numbers thirteen and sixteen on the north side of Sandwich Street, and Park Lots Nos. one and twelve, Field lot letter E, Village lots numbers nine and ten on the south side of Sandwich Street, lots numbers twenty-one and twenty-two, north side of Pitt Street, lots numbers one and two on the south side of Pitt Street, lots numbers eight and nine on the north side of Chatham Street, in Block C: lot number two on the south side of Chatham Street, lot number five on the north side of London Street, in Block E, lots three and four on the south side of London Street Block G, in the Village of Windsor in the County of Essex, forming part of the Town Plot of the said village, as laid out on the estate of the late François Baby, Esq., and lot number twenty-eight in the first Concession, Township of Maidstone, two hundred acres of land, all of which property I shall offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich on Saturday the twenty-eighth day of June next at twelve o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY.
Sheriff

Sheriffs office, Sandwich,
27th March.

CARPETS. CARPETS.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

THE Subscribers have just received, ex "London," a Large Stock of BRUSSELS, 3 PLY, AND SCOTCH CARPETINGS which they are prepared to offer at low prices, and are well worthy of inspection.

T. B. & J. HARRIS,

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

JUST PUBLISHED,

CANADA

PHYSICAL, Economic and Social, by Adam Lille, D.D. One Volume, 12mo, about 300 Pages. Maps of Canada East & West. Cloth 5s.; Stiff Covers 3s 9d.

MACLEAR & CO.,
Publishers, Toronto.

N. B.—Sent by Post to any part of North America or Europe, if desired.

Toronto, Feb. 29th, 1856.

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c. &c. &c. &c.

AT THE REGULATOR.

THE Subscribers would invite the attention of their Friends and the Public generally to their new and complete Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Tinware, Crockery, Boots and Shoes, &c., &c., which they are now offering low for cash.

GEO. & GEO. A. BULLOCK.

N·B.—The highest price paid in Cash for Wheat, Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all kinds of Produce.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1846.

Crockery Store and China Emporium.

F. P. MATHER & Co., IMPORTERS and Dealers in Crockery, China, Glass, Britannia and Silver Plated Ware, Lamps and Looking Glasses, Table Cutlery and Fancy Ware, "Sign of the Big White Pitcher," No. 224 Jefferson Avenue, Kearsley's Block, opposite Fireman's Hall, Detroit, Michigan.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

Hotels, &c.

HENNELL HOUSE,

LATE FREE MASON'S TAVERN,

Sandwich.

THIS House is pleasantly situated at the terminus of the New Gravel Road from Windsor to Sandwich, and possesses all the requisites which are generally met with in first class hotels—Good Beds, superior Stabling, and unimpeachable Liquors.

From the long experience of the present proprietor in this line of business, he is enabled to meet the wishes of his patrons, in every particular, with promptness; and he will make it his study so to treat his visitors, that they may leave him with perfect satisfaction, and return with pleasure on future occasions.

WM. HENNELL.

Sandwich, Feb. 29th.

SANDWICH EXCHANGE,

BEDFORD STREET, SANDWICH.

JACOB STUTTZ

IN returning thanks for past favors, begs to inform his Friends and the Public that he still keeps on hand the best of every thing to suit the taste and comfort of his customers, and trusts that by assiduity and attention to business, to merit their patronage and support.

N.B.—A Good Stable and Shed.

WESTERN HOTEL,

BY CYRUS DOBSON.

THIS Hotel, adjoining the Court House, in the Town of Sandwich, has been put in firstrate repair, and the Proprietor hopes that, by strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to merit a share of public patronage.

N.B.—There is an excellent stable attached to the premises, and an attentive ostler will always be in attendance.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

THE COTTAGE INN,

BY ALEXANDER REAUME,

THE Proprietor having lately leased the above comfortable premises, and having oughly repaired and refurnished the e, will be happy to attend upon the traing public at all hours. A supply of good old Ohio and Hot Water will always be found at the Bar, with all other choice Liquors.

The COTTAGE INN has good and comfortable Stables attached.

ALEXANDER REAUME.

Anderdon, February 29th, 1856.

TRAVELLERS' HOME,

T. HALEY, PROPRIETOR,

(Formerly of Aylmer, Canada West.)

THIS House having been fitted up in the neatest and most comfortable style, the Proprietor hopes that, by keeping the choicest Liquors and a strict attention to business, to be able to give entire satisfaction to all who may give him a call. Attentive waiters and a well supplied table will always be found here.

Good Stabling and an attentive Ostler always in attendance.

N.B.—FRESH OYSTERS always on hand.

Corner of Bedford and Mill Streets,
Sandwich, Feb. 29th, 1856.

PRINCE ALBERT HOTEL.

THIS Hotel, formerly kept by Mr. Warner, has been thoroughly renovated, and will be kept well supplied with the very best liquors. An attentive man will always be in attendance to take charge of horses.

A private Parlor, for the accommodation of Ladies and Gentlemen, has been fitted up.

F. X. TRUDELL,
Sandwich Street, Proprietor.
29th February, 1856.

BROOKER'S TAVERN.

WM. BROOKER is prepared to attend upon his Customers at his new and well-furnished house near the Canard Bridge, where the Traveller will have his wants attended to in regard to good liquors, and his friends may expect to find every accommodation as usual.

A supply of Groceries always kept on hand which will be sold very cheap.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

ROYAL EXCHANGE.

J. L. MEIGHEN,

BEGS to announce to the Travelling Community, and Public in general, that he has opened the above new TAVERN, with good accommodations, and hopes by attention to his business, to merit a share of public patronage. A choice selection of Groceries always on hand.

Maidstone Cross, February 29th, 1856.

MANSION HOUSE.

THIS new and commodious Inn is now completely finished, and the Proprietor hopes, that by a strict attention to the wants of all who may favor him with a call, to receive a continuance of the patronage which was so liberally awarded him at his old stand.

ALONZO BROWN,
Maidstone Cross, Proprietor.
7th March, 1856.

AMERICAN HOTEL.

COURT HOUSE SQUARE, LONDON, C. W.

ROBERT ARKELL, PROPRIETOR.

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and Travellers that he has taken the above Hotel, which has undergone extensive alterations and improvements. The house is in a fine open, airy and central situation, and commands a beautiful view of the valley of the Thames and surrounding country.

The Table is supplied with all the delicacies of the season. The Wines and Liquors will be of the best brands, and he trusts by assiduity and attention to the comfort af his guests to merit their patronage and support.

ROBERT ARKELL.

London, 29th Feb. 1856.

WARNER'S

EXCHANGE,

AMHERSTBURG, C. W.

THE SUBSCRIBER has leased the "La Liberty Stand," second door above the Prince Albert Hotel, Murray Street, for a term of years, and has it repaired throughout, furnished with new furniture, bedding, &c., and now open for the accommodation of the travelling public, and by strict attention to business he hopes to receive a liberal share of the same.

HIS TABLE

will be well supplied with all the luxuries of the season.

HIS BAR

will always contain the choicest brands of Liquors.

His Stables and Shed are large and convenient.

Persons wishing good Board will find this a convenient place, being a central place of business.

CHARLES WARNER.

Amherstburg, March 14th, 1856.

INTERNATIONAL

BILLIARD

SALOON,

Windsor, C.W. opposite the Depot of the Great Western Railway.

T. M. HOWRIGAN,

Proprietor.

The above Saloon is neatly and commodiously fitted up, the Proprietor having spared no expeuse for the purpose of rendering it attractive to visitors.

The best of Cigars, Wines and Liquors alway

Windsor, Feb. 29th, 1856.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

COURTER HOUSE

Corner of Erie and Seneca Streets,

Nearly Opposite the Buffalo & N. Falls Railroad.

B F. POPPLE, MANAGER.

VISITORS visiting the Courter House, Buffalo, will find every convenience and attention at reasonable charges. Teetotalers visiting Buffalo, will find this Hotel calculated to meet their wishes.

Buffalo, 29th Feb. 1856.

Beecher, Rice and Ketchum.

CARPET & OIL CLOTH WAREHOUSE,

No. 142 Jefferson Avenue.
Conant Block, Detroit, Michigan.

BEECHER, HOLLISTER & WILKINS, Carpet Hall, Lake Street, Chichago, Imporers of Carpets, Oil Cloths, Paper-hangings Curtain and Upholstery materials.

A. A. RICE. L. BEECHER. E. F. HOLLISTER
C. B. KETCHUM, D. WILKINS, JR

Detroit, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TILES. TILES.

THE Public are respectfully informed that M. & J. H. WHITEHOUSE are Manutacturing and have on hand a large quantity of Tiles, for Draining Cellars, Farms, &c., at their Brick Yard, Westminster, two miles from London, and a quarter of a mile from Mr. J. Nellis's Tavern, at First Toll Gate on the Hamilton Road, which they will sell at the Low Price of £4 per 1000 with Soles or Bottoms, without £2 15s. They will be found to be much cheaper than any other Material for Draining, as they facilitate greatly in the labor, also in the expense of Draining, only requiring a Drain the width of the Spade and when put down will never require removing. Samples may be seen and orders received at the Store of Mr. J. Fitzell, corner of Richmond and Dundas Streets, London.

Also Roofing Tiles and Press Bricks for fronting Buildings of a superior quality.

London, Feb. 29th, 1856.

DETROIT SEED STORE
AND
AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.

I would call the attention of Farmers and Gardeners to my present stock of Agricultural Implements, consisting of the most useful and latest improved kind of Ploughs, Hay and Corn Stalk Cutting Boxes, Cultivators, Seed Planters, Corn Shellers, Fan Mills, Root Pullers, Corn Planters, Cob Crushers, Churns, &c. Garden, Field, and Flower Seeds, raised by the most experienced and careful growers in this country and England, and I think purchasers may feel confident that every kind sold will prove true to their name, and give perfect satisfaction All seed offered for sale will be of the present year's growth when offered as such.

E. F. PARKER.

75 Woodward Avenue, Detroit.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

ALL Persons to whom the late Mr. John McCormick, of Point Pelée Island, deceased, stood indebted at the time of his decease, are requested to send in their accounts forthwith to the undersigned or either of them.

MARY MCCORMICK,
DAVID MCCORMICK,
WILLIAM MCCORMICK.

Point Pelee Island,
7th March, 1856.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF LANDS.

COUNTY OF ESSEX, TO WIT: } BY virtue of a writ of Fieria Facias issued out of the County Court of the County of Essex against the lands and Tenements of Alfred Baby, and to me directed, at the suit of Dennis Ouellette, I have seized and taken the following lands and tenements, viz.:

Water Lot number three on the East, and Water Lots numbers three, four and fourteen West, and Land and Water Lots numbers thirteen and sixteen, all on the North side of Sandwich Street in the Village of Windsor, and being part of the Town plot of Windsor, as laid out on the estate of the late Francis Baby, Esquire, all which property, or the interest of the said Alfred Baby in and to the same, I will offer for sale at the Court House in the Town of Sandwich, on Monday the ninth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, at 12 o'clock noon.

W. D. BABY,
[Sheriff Essex.

Sheriff's Office, Sandwich,
29th February, 1856.

CIGAR FACTORY.

THE Subscriber begs to inform the inhabitants of Amherstburg and vicinity that he has opened a Cigar Factory in the above Town, where every description of the choicest kind are always on hand. He has also lately imported from Havana a large quantity of the very best Principe and every other description of Cigars, which he intends to sell at a much smaller price than can be had in Detroit. Call and see him, and he will give a puff.

JOHN N. MILLER.

Sandwich, 29th Feb., 1856.

NOTICE.

A BAY PONEY came in the barn yard on the "Hand's Farm," about the 1st February last, and unless the owner comes to claim the same and pay the charges, it will be impounded and sold.

Hand's Farm, 15th March, 1856.

LANDS FOR SALE.

A SMALL FARM, being part of Lot No 37, in First Concession, Petite Cote, 40 acres, all under fence, two acres in width by twenty in depth. This lot is beautifully situated upon the road to Amherstburg, about three miles from Sandwich, it is well adapted for a residence.

Two Lots on Glengary Avenue, one house and lot on St. George's street, in the village of Windsor.

A number of Town Lots on the Pajot Farm, in the town of Sandwich.

Also part of lots Nos. 95 and 96, 1st and 2nd Con., half a mile above Windsor, two houses and barn thereon, containing 150 acres.

The above lots will be sold for cash, at the very lowest figure, and parties wishing to purchase for residences or speculation, will find this an opportunity which is not often afforded. Title Indisputable.

CHAS. F. LABADIE

All parties owing the subscriber are requested to settle forthwith, or having any claims against him are requested to present them without delay, as he is about winding up his business.

C. F. L

Sandwich April, 1856.

The Illustrated Horticulturist,

AND JOURNAL OF SUBURBAN ART.

An elegantly illustrated Monthly Journal, containing seventy-two large royal octavo pages, devoted to the Rural Arts and the advancement of the Science of Horticulture in the United States.

The want of such a magazine has long been experienced. The growing interest with which the rising generation view the science of Horticulture, renders such a Journal as "The Illustrated Horticulturist" imperatively necessary to the progress of Rural affairs.

Rural Architecture forms one of the principal features; each number contains from two to four engravings of model cottages, from designs by eminent and skilful architects. Space is also assigned to the tasteful art of Landscape Gardening, engraved plans of gardens in every style, and adapted to the peculiarities of different orders of architecture, beautifies the work.

To Nurserymen, Amateur Cultivators, and to all who can boast the sovereignty of a square rod of tillable earth, "The Illustrated Horticulturist and Journal of Suburban Art" will prove an invaluable companion. The extraordinary low price at which it is afforded: together wlth its really superior execution, both in regard to typography and editorial ability, must make it the most popular work of the kind in America.

"The Illustrated Horticulturist" is printed on the finest quality of pearl surfaced paper, manufactured expressly. It is issued regularly the first of each month, commencing with July, 1855. The following gentlemen, eminent for their ability in the science of Horticulture, are engaged to conduct the Editorial department: H. P. KNIGHT, JAMES SNOWDEN and D. W. RAY.

TERMS: Two Dollars per annum, payable invariably in advance; a liberal discount to the Trade, Postmasters, and getters-up of Clubs.

Advertisements inserted at the rate of Ten Dollars per page.

N.B.—Newspapers inserting the above prospectus, and drawing attention editorially to the same, will be forwarded the ILLUSTRATED HORTICULTURIST for one year, a copy containing the advertisement should be sent in all cases to ensure attention.

Address

C. REAGLES, Publisher,
Illustrated Horticulturist
208, BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

NEW VOLUME OF THE

AGRICULTURIST

SUBSCRIPTION REDUCED FROM 25 TO 50 PER CENT.

The Canadian Agriculturist

Has now reached the eighth volume, having been established by its present proprietor in 1848, and is too well known to the leading farmers of the British Provinces, to need any eulogium from us. The undersigned have made arrangements with the proprietor to publish the next, and probably succeeding volumes, and have resolved to make important improvements in the work, while at the same time its price will be considerably reduced.

THE AGRICULTURIST

Is published Monthly, on good Paper, each number containing 32 pages, making at the end of the year a handsome volume of 384 pages.

EVERY NUMBER WILL BE

Illustrated with Engravings

Such as Farm Implements, Portraits of Animals, designs of Farm Buildings, New Inventions, &c., &c., interesting to the Farmer, and also portraits of some of the most Distinguished Agriculturists.

The Work will be conducted as usual by WILLIAM MACDOUGALL, Esq., who has resumed the practice of Agriculture near this city. The active promoter of the various improvements made in our Agricultural Legislation since 1847, and having also been connected with this Journal from its commencement, he requires no recommendation from us.

PROFESSOR BUCKLAND, of the Toronto University, whose labors and writings in behalf of Canadian Agriculture are known and appreciated throughout the Province, will contribute to its columns as usual.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS

Of known ability have also been engaged. Efforts will be made to extend the correspondence on subjects of a practical kind.

THE AGRICULTURIST IS NOT LIABLE TO POSTAGE.

WIMAN & Co, Publishers

Toronto, March, 1856.

TO be published monthly, price half-a dollar per annum,

The Churchman's Friend,

For the diffusion of information relative to the Church of England, her Doctrine and Ordinances. Edited by Edward H. Dewar, M.A., Rector of Sandwich, assisted by other Clergymen.

Sandwich, March 15th, 1856.

New Wholesale

GROCERY ESTABLISHMENT!

THE Subscriber begs to inform his Friends and the Trade generally, that he has commenced business on his own account, in this City, as a

WHOLESALE GENERAL GROCER,

And is now receiving a large and carefully selected Stock of

GROCERIES, TEAS, WINES, LIQUORS, OILS, PAINTS, &C., &C., &C.

To which he confidently invites the attention of Western and City Merchants.

Premises, King Street West, opposite Messrs. McKeand, Bross & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods Warehouse.

A. I. McKENZIE.

Hamilton, Feb. 29th, 1856.

TO RENT.

A DRUG STORE, with a large and well selected stock of Drugs and Medicines, in the Town of Sandwich. The Store will be leased for a term of years, and the Drugs and Medicines will be sold on reasonable terms. The selection cannot be surpassed in Upper Canada. Possession given on the first day of July next, if required. The present proprietor is about entering other business, which will prevent him attending to the Drug business, and which is the only reason for his retiring from he trade. For particulars inquire of

J. ADLEY.

Sandwich, 15th March, 1856.

J. H. ALLISON,

IMPORTER OF

IMPROVED

RAILROAD WATCHES.

Cased in beautiful styles warranted excellent time-keepers: do. Swiss full jeweled Levers of every style.

GOLD PENS.

I continue manufacturing Pens of every desirable pattern; these Pens have received

A SILVER MEDAL & DIPLOMA

At the Michigan State Fair, and are not to be surpassed by any Pens in the market.

ALSO DEALER IN

FINE JEWELRY,

SILVER WARE,

AND FANCY GOODS.

I have an experienced Jeweller, capable of making New Work to order,

SETTING STONES AND DIAMOND WORK, &C.,

FIRE GILDING AND GALVANIZING

Done at Short Notice.

WATCH REPAIRING.

Being a Practical Workman, all work entrusted to my care will be carefully attended to.

GOLD PENS RE-POINTED

at 50 cents all sizes. Orders sent by mail, accompanied by cash, will be promptly attended to.

J. H. ALLISON,
No. 176 Jefferson Ave.

Feb. 29th, 1856.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY

Hamilton and Toronto Branch.

ALTERATION OF TIME.

ON and after MONDAY NEXT, the 10th December, trains will run daily (Sundays excepted) between Hamilton and Toronto, as follows:

GOING WEST

STATIONS			Express	Accommodation	Mixed Mail
			A M	P M	P M
Toronto,	-	-	8 00	3 20	10 00
Mimico,	-	-	8 10	3 30	10 15
Port Credit,	-	-	8 25	3 45	10 30
Oakville,	-	-	8 43	4 03	10 53
Bronte,	-	-	8 55	4 15	11 15
Wellington Square,			9 10	4 30	11 35
Hamilton,	-	-	9 30	4 50	12 00

GOING EAST.

STATIONS			Express	Accommodation	Mixed Mail
			A M	P M	A M
Hamilton,		-	10 40	6 10	3 10
Wellington Square,			11 00	6 30	3 35
Bronte,		-	11 15	6 45	3 55
Oakville,	-	-	11 27	7 00	4 15
Port Credit,		-	11 45	7 20	4 35
Mimico,	.	.	12 00	7 35	4 50
Toronto,	.	.	12 15	7 50	5 05

The above Trains connect at Hamilton with Trains of Great Western Railway running in connection with Trains to Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, Boston, New York, and with Michigan Central Railroad Trains at Detroit for Chicago, St Louis, &c, &c.

The 3 20 Train from Toronto meets G W R Accommodation Train going West at Hamilton, for Preston Galt, Paris, London, and intermediate Stations

Through Tickets for any of the above places can be obtained at the Ticket Office, Toronto Station

Stages run daily between Oakville, Milton, Georgetown, &c, &c, &c.

C. J. BRYDGES,
Managing Director

Great Western Railway Offices,

AYER'S

PILLS

Are curing the Sick to an extent never before known of any Medicine.

INVALIDS, READ AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

JULES HAUEL, Esq., the well known perfumer, of Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, whose choice products are found at almost every toilet, says:

"I am happy to say of your CATHARTIC PILLS, that I have found them a better family medicine, for common use, than any other within my knowledge. Many of my friends have realized marked benefits from them, and coincide with me in believing that they possess extraordinary virtues for driving out diseases and curing the sick. They are not only effectual, but safe and pleasant to be taken—qualities which must make them valued by the public, when they are known."

The venerable Chancellor WARDLAW writes from Baltimore, 15th April, 1854:

"DR. J. C. AYER—Sir: I have taken your Pills with great benefit, for the listlessness, languor, loss of appetite, and Bilious headache, which has of late years overtaken me in the spring. A few doses of your Pills cured me. I have used your Cherry Pectoral many years in my family for coughs and colds with unfailing success. You make medicines which cure; and I feel it a pleasure to commend you for the good you have done and are doing."

JOHN F. BEATTY, Esq., Sec. of the Penn. Railroad Co. says:

"Pa. R. R. Office, Philadelphia, Dec. 13, 1853.

"Sir: I take pleasure in adding my testimony to the efficacy of your medicines, having derived very material benefit from the use of both your Pectoral and Cathartic Pills. I am never without them in my family, nor shall I ever consent to be, while my means will procure them."

The widely renowned S. S. STEVENS, M. D., of Wentworth, N. H., writes:

"Having used your CATHARTIC PILLS in my practice, I certify from experience that they are an invaluable purgative. In cases of disordered functions of the liver, causing headache, indigestion, costiveness, and the great variety of diseases that follow, they are a surer remedy than any other. In all cases where a purgative remedy is required, I confidently recommend these Pills to the public, as superior to any other I have ever found. They are sure in their operation, and perfectly safe—qualities which make them an invaluable article for public use. I have for many years known your Cherry Pectoral as the best Cough medicine in the world; and these Pills are in no wise inferior to that admirable preparation for the treatment of diseases."

"Acton, Me., Nov. 25, 1853.

"DR. J. C. AYER—Dear Sir: I have been afflicted from my birth with scrofula in its worst form, and now, after twenty years' trial, and an untold of amount of suffering, have been completely cured in a few weeks by your Pills. With what feelings of rejoicing I write can only be imagined when you realize what I have suffered, and how long.

"Never until now have I been free from this loathsome disease in some shape. At times it attacked my eyes, and made me almost blind, besides the unendurable pain; at others it settled in the scalp of my head, and destroyed my hair, and has kept me partly bald all my days; sometimes it came out in my face, and kept it for months a raw sore.

"About nine weeks ago I commenced taking your Cathartic Pills, and now am entirely free from the complaint. My eyes are well, my skin is fair, and my hair has commenced a healthy growth; all of which makes me feel already a new person.

"Hoping this statement may be the means of conveying information that shall do good to others, I am, with every sentiment of gratitude, Yours, &c., MARIA RICKER."

